 [But] where is there a man like Job who swallows mockery like water?
 Who walks in the company of workers of iniquity, and who associates with the wicked?

For [Job] said, it is of no use to a man to please God.
 Therefore, you who have understanding, listen to me. God forbid that there should be wickedness in the Mighty One, and injustice in the Almighty!
 For he will repay a man according to his deeds, and he will cause each one to find what is right in his way.
 Surely, the Mighty One does not call [the good man] wicked, and the Almighty does not overturn justice.
 Who entrusted the earth to him? Or who placed the entire habitable earth there?
 If [God] were to pay close attention to him, he would withdraw his spirit and his breath.
 All flesh would perish together, and man would return to dust.
 So if you have understanding, listen to this; pay attention to what you hear from me.

How can someone who does not desire justice judge the world? And will you condemn as wicked someone who is supremely righteous?
 Shall we call a king a scoundrel? And princes wicked?
 [How much less will it be said to him] who has no regard for the person of the great, and [who] does not know the rich to prefer them to the poor, because they are all the work of his hands.

They will die in a moment, and at midnight a whole people will be filled with terror and will pass away; and the stronghold will be taken away without any hand striking it.

For his eyes are on everyone's paths, and he watches all their steps.

There is no darkness or shadow of death where the workers of iniquity can hide.

But he does not accuse man against justice when man comes to plead with the Mighty God.

He breaks down powerful men by incomprehensible means, and establishes others in their place.

Because he knows their works, he overthrows them at night, and they are broken.

Because they are mean, he crumples them up in front of everyone.

Because they have thus turned away from him, and have not considered any of his ways;

So they brought the cry of the poor man up to him, and he heard the clamor of the afflicted.

If he gives rest, who can cause trouble? If he hides his face from someone, who can look on him, whether it be a whole nation or just one man?

So that the hypocrite may not reign, lest he become a snare for the people.

Surely, you should have said to the Mighty God: I have suffered; but I will sin no more;

And you, [Lord!] teach me what is beyond what I see; and if I have done wrong, I will not continue.

[But] will not God reward you, since you rejected his punishment, when you made the choice you made? As for me, I [do not know what to say to that]; but you, if you have something to say, speak.

People of good sense will agree with me, and every wise man will agree,

That Job did not speak with knowledge, and that his words were not with understanding.

Ha! my father, let Job be tested until he is overcome, since he has answered like the wicked.

For [otherwise] he will add sin upon sin, he will clap his hands among us, and speak more and more against the [Mighty] God.

Elihu continued his speech, and said:

Did you think you were making your case good, [when] you said: My justice [is] above that of the [Mighty] God?

If you ask what benefit it will bring you, [saying]: What will I gain from it, as well as from my sin?

I will answer you in these terms, and to your friends who are with you.

Look up at the heavens and contemplate them; see the clouds, they are higher than you.

If you sin, what harm do you do to God? And when your sins multiply, what harm will he receive?

If you are just, what do you give him? And what does he receive from your hand?

It is to a man like yourself that your wickedness [can harm]; and it is to the son of a man that your righteousness [can be useful].

The oppressed are made to cry out because of the magnitude [of the evils done to them]; they cry out because of the violence of the powerful.

And we do not say: where is the God who made me, [and] who gives me something to sing about during the night;

What makes us more enlightened than the animals of the earth, and more intelligent than the birds of the air?

So people cry out because of the pride of the wicked, but God does not listen to them.

However [you must not say] that it is in vain; that the Mighty [God] does not listen, and that the Almighty pays no attention to it.

Even less should you tell him; you do not see him; for the judgment is before him; therefore wait for it.
But now, what his anger accomplishes is nothing, and he has not yet come to know all the things that you have done.
So Job opened his mouth without reason [to complain], and he heaped words upon words, without knowledge.
Elihu continued [speaking], and said:
Wait for me a little while, and I will show you that there are still other reasons for God's cause.
I will draw my reasons from afar, and I will defend the justice of the one who made me.
For surely there will be nothing false in anything I say, and he who is with you is infallible in his reasons.
Behold, God is full of strength, but he does not despise anyone, even though he is mighty in strength of heart.
He does not allow the wicked to live, and he grants justice to the afflicted.
He does not take his eyes off the righteous, even [he places the righteous] on the throne with kings, and [he] makes them sit there forever, and they are exalted.
Even if they are bound in chains, and if they are prisoners in the bonds of affliction,
He shows them what they have done, and he [makes them aware] that their sins have increased.
Then he opened their ears to make them wise; and he told them to turn away from iniquity.
If they listen to him and serve him, they will happily end their days and their years in pleasures;
But if they do not listen, they will fall by the edge of the sword, and they will die for not having been wise.
And those who are hypocritical in their hearts bring wrath upon themselves; they will not cry out when he has bound them.
Their person will die while still in its prime; and their life will end among those who prostitute themselves to fornication.
[But] he draws the afflicted out of their affliction, and opens their ear in their oppression.
That is why he would have pulled you out of anguish, to set you free, there would have been nothing to constrain you, and your table would have been covered with rich meats.
But you have fulfilled the judgment of the wicked, but judgment and justice will stand.
Surely [God] is angry; beware lest he plunge you into affliction, for then there will be no ransom so great that it can deliver you.
Would he care for your riches? He would not care for your gold, nor for all your great power.
Do not sigh after the night in which peoples vanish from their place;
And beware of returning to iniquity; for you have chosen it, for you have grieved as you have done.
Behold, the Mighty One exalts men by his power; and who is there that teaches like him?
Who prescribed for him the path he should follow? And who said to him, "You have done wrong?"
Remember to celebrate his work, which men see.
Every man sees it, everyone can see it from afar.
Behold, the Mighty One is great, and we do not know him; and as for the number of his years, he cannot be fathomed.
Because it breaks the water into small drops, they spread the rain according to the vapor that contains it.

And the clouds cause it to be distilled and dripped upon men in abundance.

And who could comprehend the [great] expanse of the cloud, and the resounding sound of its tabernacle?

There, he spreads his light over it, and he covers the bottom of the sea.

But it is by these things that he judges the peoples, [and] that he provides abundant food.

He holds the sparkling fire hidden in the palms of his hands, and he gives it orders regarding whatever comes its way.

Its noise carries the news, [and] there is fury against the one who rises [to whoever will win the place].

My heart itself, because of this, is in turmoil, and seems to leap out of its place.

Listen carefully and trembling to the noise he makes, and the brilliant sound that comes out of his mouth.

He makes it go under all the heavens, and his blazing fire to the ends of the earth.

After him comes a great noise; he thunders with his magnificent voice, and he does not delay after his voice has been heard.

The Mighty God thunders prodigiously with his voice, and does great things that we cannot comprehend.

For he says to the snow: Be on the earth; and [he also says it] to the downpour of the rain, to the downpour, I say, of the rains of his power.

So he wants everyone to stay home to recognize all the people he has at his work.

The beasts retreat into their dens and stay in their lairs.

The stormy wind comes from the southern region; and the cold comes from the northern winds.

The [God] Mighty by his breath gives ice, and the waters which spread out wide are confined.

He also wearies the cloud with his constant watering; and he disperses the clouds with his light.

And they make many turns according to his designs to do all that he has commanded them, on the face of the habitable earth.

He brings them forth, either to use them as a rod, or for the land, or to spread his blessings.

Pay attention to this, Job; stop; consider the wonders of the Mighty God.

Do you know how God arranges them, and how he makes the light of his cloud shine?

Do you know the balancing of the clouds, and the wonders of him who is perfect in knowledge?

Why are your clothes warm, when the south wind gives the earth respite?

Have you stretched out with him the heavens, which are firm like a molten mirror?

Show us what we shall say to him; for we cannot speak in order because of our darkness.

Will they tell him when I have spoken? If there is a man who speaks of it, he will certainly be swallowed up by it.

And now we do not see the light, when it shines in the heavens, after the wind has passed over them and cleansed them.

[And the time that shines like] gold has come from the North. There is in God a fearsome majesty.

He is the Almighty; he is beyond comprehension; he is great in power, in judgment, and in abundance of justice; he oppresses no one.

That is why men fear him; but he does not see all of them as wise in heart.

Then the Lord answered Job out of the midst of a whirlwind, and said to him:

Who is this person who obscures the council with words devoid of knowledge?

Now gird up your loins like a valiant man, and I will question you, and you shall show me what your knowledge is.

Where were you when I was laying the foundations of the earth? Tell me, if you have any understanding.

Who set the measurements? Do you know? Or who applied the level to it?

On what are its pilings planted, or who laid the cornerstone to support it?

When the morning stars rejoiced together, and the sons of God sang in triumph?

Who is it that enclosed the sea within its borders, when it was taken from the womb, [and] when it came forth?

When I put the cloud for his covering, and darkness for his swaddling clothes?

And that I establish my ordinance over it, and put up barriers and gates for it?

And said to him: You will come this far, and you will not go any further, and here the rising of your waves will stop.

Have you, since you came into the world, commanded the breaking of the sun; and have you shown the dawn the place where it should rise?

So that it may grasp the ends of the earth, and that the wicked may withdraw far away,

And let it take on a new form, like shaped clay; and let [all things] appear in it as if with [new] garments,

And let the light be forbidden to the wicked, and let the raised arm be broken?

Have you come to the depths of the sea, and have you walked in the abyssal depths?

Have the gates of death been revealed to you? Have you seen the gates of the shadow of death?

Have you understood the full extent of the earth? If you have known it all, show it.

Where is the light, and where is the place of darkness?

That you go and get each of them from their neighborhood, and that you know the way to their house?

You know this; for then you were born, and the number of your days is great.

Have you entered the treasures of the snow? Have you seen the treasures of the hail?

Which one do I choose for the time of affliction, and for the day of shock and struggle?

By what path is the light divided, [and by what means] does the east wind spread across the earth?

Who opened the conduits for the floods, and the way for the lightning of thunder?

To make it rain on a land where there is no one, and on the desert where no man dwells.

To water lonely and deserted places abundantly, and to make the grass sprout?

Does rain have no father? Or who produces the drops of dew?

From whose womb does ice come? And who brings forth the frost from the sky?

The waters were hidden, hardened like stone, and the top of the deep was taken hold.

Could you restrain the delights of the Poussinière, or raise the storms [excited] by the constellation of Orion?

Can you make the signs of the Zodiac rise in their proper time? And guide the Little Bear with the stars?

Do you know the order of the heavens, and will you have authority over their government on earth?

Will you cry out to the cloud, so that an abundance of waters may shower you?

Will you send the thunderbolts so that they depart and say to you: Here we are?

Who has placed wisdom in the loins? Or who has given understanding to the heart?

Who has the wisdom to count the clouds, and to place the wineskins of the heavens, When the powder is soaked by the waters that sprinkle it, and the cracks [in the earth] come together?

Will you hunt prey for the old lion, and satisfy the hunger of the lion cubs who seek their life?

When they crouch in their dens, and lie in wait in their forts?

Who prepares food for the raven, when its young cry out to the Mighty One, and wander about because they have nothing to eat?

Do you know when the chamois of the rocks give birth? Have you observed when the does are giving birth?

Will you count the months it takes them to complete their litter, and will you know how long it will take them to have their young?

And that they will bend down to give birth to their young, [and] that they will be freed from their pains?

Their fawns are doing well, they are growing in the wheat; they are moving away, and they are not returning to them.

Who let the wild donkey go free, and who untied the bonds of the fierce donkey?

To whom I gave the countryside for a home, the uninhabited land for his retreats?

He laughs at the noise of the city; he does not hear the clamor of the tax collector;

The mountains he spies on here and there are his pastures, and he seeks all kinds of greenery.

Will the unicorn want to serve you, or will it stay in your manger?

Will you tie the unicorn with its halter to plow? Or will it break up the clods of the valleys after you?

Will you trust her, knowing how great her strength is, and will you abandon your work to her?

Will you trust that she will bring you your harvest, and gather it into your threshing floor?

Did you give the peacocks that plumage which is so brilliant, or the ostrich the wings and feathers?

Nevertheless, she abandons her eggs on the ground and warms them on the dust.

And she forgets that they will be crushed underfoot, or trampled by beasts of the field.

She is cruel to her little ones, as if they did not belong to her; and her work is often useless and she does not care about it.

For God deprived her of wisdom, and did not give her understanding;

At the first opportunity she stands up on top, and mocks the horse and the one who rides it.

Have you given the horse strength? [and] have you clothed its neck with a [neighing] as bright as thunder?

Will you make the horse jump like the grasshopper? The magnificent sound of its nostrils is frightening.

He digs the earth [with his foot], he rejoices in his strength, he goes to meet an armed man;

He laughs at fear, he is not terrified of anything, and he does not turn away from the sword.

[He is not afraid of] the arrows whistling all around him, nor of the shining iron of the halberd and the javelin.

He digs the earth, full of emotion and fervor to the sound of the trumpet, and he cannot restrain himself.

At the loud sound of the trumpet, he says: Ha! ha! He smells the battle from afar, the thunder of the Captains, and the cry of triumph.

Is it through your wisdom that the sparrowhawk regains its strength and spreads its wings towards the South?

Will it be at your command that the eagle will take flight, and raise its nest on high?

She dwells on the rocks, and she stands there; [even] on the tops of the rocks and in strong places.

From there she spots the game; her eyes see far away.
Her young also suck blood, and wherever there are dead bodies, she is there immediately.
The Lord spoke again, and said:
Can he who disputes with the Almighty teach Him anything? Let him who argues with God answer this.
Then Job answered the Lord and said:
Behold, I am a vile man; what shall I answer you? I will put my hand over my mouth.
I have spoken once, but I will not answer again; I have even spoken twice, but I will not return to it.
And the Lord spoke again to Job from the midst of a whirlwind, and said to him:
Now gird up your loins like a mighty man; I will question you, and you shall teach me.
Will you overturn my judgment? Will you condemn me to justify yourself?
And do you have an arm like the [God] Strong? Do you thunder with your voice like him?
Now adorn yourself with magnificence and grandeur, and clothe yourself with majesty and glory.
Unleash the fury of your anger, look upon every proud man, and bring him down.
Look at all the proud, humble them, and crush the wicked in the square.
Hide them all together in the powder, and bandage their faces in a hidden place.
Then I myself will give you this praise, that your right hand has saved you.
But this is the Behemoth that I made with you; it eats hay like an ox.
Now, its strength is in its sides, and its virtue is in the navel of its belly.
It wags its tail, which is like a cedar; the nerves of its terrors are intertwined.
His bones are like bars of bronze, [and] his small bones are like bars of iron.
This is the masterpiece of the Mighty God; the one who made it gave him his sword.
And the mountains bring him their income, and that is where all the beasts of the field play.
It lies down in shady places, among reeds and marshes.
The dense trees cover it with their shade, and the willows of the streams surround it.
There he is, swallowing a river [by drinking], and he does not quickly withdraw from it; and he would not be surprised if the Jordan gushed forth into his mouth.
He swallowed it whole as soon as he saw it, and his nose passed right through the obstacles he encountered.
Will you catch Leviathan with the hook, and pull him out by his tongue with the line [of the hook] that you have thrown into the water?
Will you put a rush in his nose? Or will you pierce his jaws with a thorn?
Will he offer you many prayers? Or will he speak to you gently?
Will he make a deal with you, and will you take him as a slave forever?
Will you play with it like a little bird? And will you tie it up for your young daughters?
Will friends feast on his flesh? Will he be divided among the merchants?
Will you fill its skin with spikes? And would its head fit into a fish trap?
Lay your hand on him; he will never remember waging war against him.
There you have it, the hope we had of capturing him is frustrated; [and] will we not even be appalled by his gaze?
There is no man brave enough to awaken him; who then will stand before me?
Who warned me, and I will repay him? What is under all heaven is mine.
I will not remain silent about his members, nor about what concerns his strength, nor about the grace of the arrangement [of the parts of his body].
Who will uncover the top of his blanket, and throw himself between the two branches of his bit?
Who will open the doors of its mouth? Terror stands around its teeth.

The blades of his shields are nothing but magnificence; they are tightly bound [as] with a seal.

One approaches the other, and the wind does not come between them.

They are joined to one another, they converse, and do not separate.

His sneezes would illuminate the light, and his eyes are [like] the eyelids of the dawn of day.

Torches came out of his mouth, and sparks of fire flew out of them.

Smoke comes out of his nostrils as if from a boiling pot, or a boiler.

His breath would ignite coals, and a flame would come out of his mouth.

Strength is in his neck, and terror marches before him.

His flesh is firm, everything about him is solid, nothing moves within him.

His heart is as hard as a stone, even as hard as a piece of the millstone underneath.

Even the strongest tremble when it rises, and they don't know where they stand, seeing how it breaks everything.

Who can approach him with a sword? Neither sword, nor spear, nor dart, nor breastplate will be able to stand [against him].

He takes no more account of iron than of straw; and of bronze than of rotten wood.

The arrow will not make him flee; the stones of a sling are like straw to him.

He treats war machines like wisps of straw; and he scoffs at the javelin thrown at him.

He has acute tests beneath him, and he cuts down sharp reeds [beneath him] by lying down on the mud.

It makes the abyss boil like a cauldron, and makes the sea resemble a perfumer's cauldron.

He makes his path shine behind him, and one would mistake the abyss for a head whitened with old age.

There is nothing on earth that can be compared to it, having been made to fear nothing.

He sees [below him] all that is highest; he is King over all the proudest animals.

Then Job answered the Lord and said:

I know you can do anything, and that no one can stop you from doing what you think is right.

Who is this, [did you say], who, being without knowledge, [undertakes] to obscure [my] advice? I have therefore spoken, and I understood nothing of it; these things are too wonderful for me, and I know nothing of them.

Listen now, and I will speak; I will question you, and you will teach me.

I had heard with my ears spoken of you; but now my eye has seen you.

That is why I am horrified [that I have spoken thus], and I repent of it in dust and ashes.

Now after the Lord had spoken these words to Job, he said to Eliphaz the Temanite, "My wrath is kindled against you and against your two companions, because you have not spoken rightly of me as Job my servant has."

Therefore, take now seven bulls and seven rams and go to Job my servant and offer a burnt offering for yourselves, and Job my servant will pray for you (for I will certainly grant his prayer), so that I may not deal with you according to your folly, because you have not spoken rightly before me, as Job my servant has.

So Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Nahamathite came and did what the Lord had commanded them; and the Lord granted Job's prayer.

And the Lord brought Job out of captivity after he had prayed for his friends; and he restored to Job double all that he had had.

So all his brothers and sisters and all who had known him before came to him and ate with him in his house, and they showed him that they sympathized with his condition and comforted him concerning all the evil which the Lord had brought upon him; and each of them gave him a piece of silver and each one a gold ring.

So the Lord blessed Job's last state more than his first, so that he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand pairs of oxen, and a thousand donkeys.

He also had seven sons and three daughters.

And he called the name of one Jemina, and the name of the other Keziha, and the name of the third Keren-happuch.

And there were not found in all the land so beautiful as the daughters of Job; and their father gave them an inheritance among their brothers.

And Job lived after these things one hundred and forty years, and he saw his children, and his children's children, to the fourth generation.

Then he died, old and full of days.

Blessed is the man who does not live according to the counsel of the wicked, nor stand in the way of sinners, nor sit in the seat of mockers;

But who delights in the Law of the Lord, and meditates on his Law day and night.

For he will be like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in its season, and whose leaf does not wither; and [so] all that he does will prosper.

It will not be so with the wicked; but they will be like chaff that the wind blows away.

Therefore the wicked will not stand in judgment, nor sinners in the assembly of the righteous.

For the Lord knows the way of the righteous, but the way of the wicked will perish. Why do nations rebel, and why do peoples plot futile things?

The kings of the earth are gathered together, and the princes are plotting against the Lord and against his anointed one.

Let us break, [they say], their bonds, and cast away their ropes.

He who dwells in heaven will laugh at them; the Lord will mock them.

Then he will speak to them in his anger, and he will fill them with terror because of the greatness of his wrath.

And I, [he will say], have anointed my King on Zion, the mountain of my Holiness.

I will tell you what this consecration was; the Lord said to me: you are my Son, today I have begotten you.

Ask me, and I will give you the nations as your inheritance, and the ends of the earth as your possession.

You will break them with an iron scepter, and you will shatter them like a potter's vessel.

Now therefore, O kings! be wise; O judges of the earth, be instructed.

Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice with trembling.

Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and you perish in this way, when his wrath is kindled even slightly. Oh, how blessed are all those who trust in him!

A Psalm of David concerning his flight from Absalom his son. O Lord, how many are those who press their oppression against me! Many are rising up against me.

Many say of my soul: "There is no deliverance for him in God." Selah.

But you, O Lord! You are a shield around me, you are my glory, and you are the one who makes me lift up my head.

I cried out to the Lord with my voice, and he answered me from his holy mountain. Selah.

I lay down, I slept, I woke up; for the Lord sustains me.

I will not fear several thousand peoples, even if they were to rally against me all around.

Arise, O Lord my God! Deliver me. Surely you have struck all my enemies on the cheek; you have broken the teeth of the wicked.

Deliverance comes from the Lord; your blessing is upon your people. Selah.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Neguinoth. O God, answer me in my righteousness, for I cry out; when I was in distress, you gave me room; have mercy on me, and grant my plea.

O people of authority, how long will my glory be defamed? [How long] will you love vanity and seek falsehood? Selah.
But know that the Lord has chosen a beloved one for himself. The Lord will answer me when I cry out to him.
Tremble, and do not sin; reflect within yourselves on your beds, and be still. Selah.

Offer sacrifices of righteousness, and trust in the Lord.
Many are saying, "Who will show us any good?" Lift up the light of your face upon us, O Lord!
You have put more joy in my heart than they had when their wheat and their best wine were plentiful.
I will lie down and sleep in peace; for you alone, O Lord, will make me dwell in safety.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Nehilot. O Lord, give ear to my words; consider my meditation.
My King and my God! Hear the voice of my cry; for it is to you that I address my request.
O Lord, hear my voice in the morning; in the morning I will turn to you and watch for you.
For you are not a God who takes pleasure in wickedness; the wicked will not dwell with you.
The proud will not stand before you; you have [always] hated all workers of iniquity.

You will destroy those who speak lies; the Lord detests the bloodthirsty and deceitful man.
But I, filled with your blessings, will enter your house; I will bow down in the palace of your holiness with feelings of [reverent] fear.
Eternal One, lead me in your righteousness because of my enemies; prepare your way before me.
For there is nothing right in their mouth, their inner selves are full of malice; their throats are open graves, they flatter with their tongues.
O God! Convict them, and let them fail in their undertakings; drive them far away, because of the great number of their transgressions; for they have rebelled against you.
But let all who trust in you rejoice, let them be joyful forever, and let you be their protector; and let those who love your Name be glad in you!
For, O Lord, you will bless the righteous, and you will surround them with favor as with a shield.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] in Neguinoth, according to Seminit. O Lord, do not rebuke me in your anger, nor discipline me in your wrath.

O Lord, have mercy on me, for I am without strength; heal me, O Lord, for my bones are in agony.
Even my soul is greatly troubled; and you, O Lord! How long?
Eternal One! Turn back, protect my soul, deliver me for the sake of your grace.
For you are not remembered in death; [and] who will praise you in the grave?
I have exhausted myself from sighing; I bathe my bed every night, I soak it with my tears.
My gaze is all undone with sorrow, it is aged because of all those who press upon me.

Depart from me, all you workers of iniquity, for the Lord has heard the voice of my weeping.
The Lord has heard my supplication; the Lord has received my request.
All my enemies will be ashamed and terrified; they will turn back, they will be confused in a moment.

A Psalm of David, which he sang to the Lord concerning the matter of Cush Benjamite. Lord my God, I have fled to you; deliver me from all who pursue me, and protect me. Lest he tear me apart like a lion, ripping me to pieces, with no one to deliver me. Eternal my God! If I have committed such an action, if there is iniquity in my hands;

If I have rewarded with evil the one who was at peace with me, and if I have not protected the one who wrongfully oppressed me;

Let the enemy pursue me and overtake me; let him trample my life to the ground and bury my glory in dust! Selah.

Arise, O Lord! In your anger, appear to stop the fury of my enemies, and awaken for me; you have ordained justice.

Let the assembly of the peoples surround you, and turn towards it in a high place. Let the Lord judge the peoples; vindicate me, O Lord, according to my righteousness and my integrity, which is in me.

May the malice of the wicked come to an end, and strengthen the righteous, you, I say, who search hearts and minds; O righteous God!

My shield is in God, who delivers those who are upright in heart.

God gives justice to the righteous, and the Mighty God is angry every day.

If [the wicked] do not repent, God will sharpen his sword; he has bent his bow and fitted it.

And he has prepared deadly weapons against him; he will unleash his arrows against the ardent persecutors.

Behold, [the wicked one] works to bring forth outrage, and he has conceived the work; but he will bring forth a thing that will deceive him.

He made a pit, he dug it out; but he fell into the pit he made.

His work will turn on his head, and his violence will come down on his head.

I will praise the Lord according to his righteousness, and I will sing praises to the Name of the Sovereign Lord.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Gittith. O Lord our Lord, how majestic is your name in all the earth, for you have set your glory above the heavens.

From the mouths of little children and infants you have established your strength because of your adversaries, to put an end to the enemy and the avenger.

When I look at your heavens, the work of your fingers, the moon and the stars, which you have arranged,

[I say]: What is man that you remember him, and the son of man that you visit him?

For you have made him a little lower than the angels, and you have crowned him with glory and honor.

You have made him, Lord, by the works of your hands; you have put all things under his feet,

Sheep and oxen without reservation, even the beasts of the field,

The birds of the sky, and the fish of the sea, that which crosses by the paths of the sea.

Eternal, our Lord! How majestic is your Name throughout the earth!

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Muth-Labben. I will praise the Lord with all my heart; I will recount all your wonderful deeds.

I will rejoice and be glad in you; I will sing praises to your Name, O Sovereign!

Because my enemies have turned back; they have fallen, and they have perished before your face.

For you have made me righteous and just; you have sat down on the throne, you righteous judge.

You have severely rebuked the nations, you have destroyed the wicked, you have blotted out their name forever and ever.

O enemy! Have the desolations ended? Have you also razed the cities forever? Has their memory perished with them?

But the Lord will sit forever; he has prepared his throne to judge;
And he will judge the world with justice, [and] will give justice to the peoples with equity.

And the Lord will be a high refuge for him who is trampled upon; he will be a high refuge for him in the time of his distress.

And those who know your Name will trust in you: for, O Lord, you do not forsake those who seek you.

Sing praises to the Lord who dwells in Zion; proclaim his deeds among the peoples.
For he seeks murder, [and] he remembers it; he does not forget the cry of the meek.
Eternal One! Have mercy on me; look upon my affliction caused by those who hate me, you who deliver me from the gates of death.

So that I may proclaim all your praises in the gates of the daughter of Zion. I will rejoice in the deliverance you have given me.

The nations were plunged into the pit they had dug; their feet were caught in the net they had hidden.

The Lord has made himself known; he has executed judgment; the wicked are ensnared in the work of their own hands. Higgajon, Selah.

The wicked will return to the grave, all the nations, [I say], who forget God.
For the poor will not be forgotten forever, [and] the expectation of the afflicted will not perish forever.

Arise, O Lord! Do not let mortal man gain strength! Let vengeance be taken on the nations before your face!

O Lord, fill them with terror; [and] let the nations know that they are but men [mortal]. Selah.

Why, O Lord, do you stand far off and hide yourself in our time of distress?

The wicked man, in his pride, ardently pursues the afflicted man; [but] they will be caught by the schemes they have premeditated.

For the wicked boasts of the desire of his soul, and considers the miserly blessed, and provokes the Lord to anger.

The wicked man, walking about with pride, is unaware [of anything]; all his thoughts are, that there is no God.

His train prospers at all times; your judgments are far from his sight; he blows against all his adversaries.

He said in his heart: I will never be shaken; for I cannot be harmed.

His mouth is full of curses, deceit, and fraud; under his tongue there is only oppression and outrage.

He lies in wait for ambushes in villages; he kills the innocent in hidden places; his eyes spy on the flock of the desolate.

He lies in wait in ambush in a hidden place, like a lion in its stronghold; he lies in wait to catch the afflicted; he catches the afflicted, drawing them into his net.

He crouches, and bends down, and then the flock of the desolate falls into his arms.

He says in his heart: the Mighty God has forgotten him, he has hidden his face, he will never see him.

Arise, O Lord, O Mighty One! Lift up your hand, and do not forget the meek.

Why should the wicked provoke God? He has said in his heart that you shall not seek him out.

You have seen it; for when someone is afflicted or mistreated, you look upon them to place them in your hands; the flock of the desolate take refuge with you; you have helped the orphan.

Break the arm of the wicked, and seek out the wickedness of the unjust, until you find none left.

The Lord is King forever and ever; the nations have been cut off from his land.

Eternal One, you grant the wish of the meek, strengthen their hearts, [and] let your ear listen attentively to them;

To give justice to the orphan and to the oppressed, so that man [mortal], who is of the earth, may no longer cause terror.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. I have withdrawn to the Lord; how then do you say to my soul, "Flee to your mountain, O bird"?

Indeed, the wicked have drawn their bows, they have fitted their arrows to the string, to shoot in secret against those who are righteous of heart.

Since the foundations are ruined, what can the righteous do?

The Lord is in his holy palace; the Lord has his throne in heaven; his eyes behold, and his eyelids test the sons of men.

The Lord tests the righteous and the wicked, and his soul hates the one who loves violence.

He will rain down on the wicked snares, fire, and brimstone; and a tempestuous wind will be their portion of drink.

For the righteous Lord loves justice; his eyes behold the upright man.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Seminit. Deliver, O Lord! For the righteous are no more to be seen, [and] the true have vanished from among the sons of men.

Each one tells his companion falsehood with flattering lips, and they speak with a double heart.

May the Lord cut off all flattering lips, [and] the tongue that speaks proudly.

Because they say: we will prevail with our tongues; our lips are in our power; who will be Lord over us?

Because of the ill-treatment of the afflicted, because of the groaning of the poor, I will now arise, says the Lord, I will deliver him from the snares.

The words of the Lord are pure words, like silver refined in an earthen furnace, purified seven times.

You, Eternal One! protect them, [and] preserve each of them forever from this race of people.

[For] the wicked walk about on every side, while vile people are exalted among the sons of men.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. Lord, how long will you forget me?

[Will it be] forever? How long will you hide your face from me?

How long will I consult myself, [and] grieve my heart throughout the day? How long will my enemy exalt himself against me?

Eternal my God! Look, answer me, enlighten my eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death.

Lest my enemy say: I have prevailed; lest my adversaries rejoice if I should fall.

But I trust in your grace; my heart will rejoice in the deliverance you have given me; I will sing to the Lord for this good deed he has done for me.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. The fool says in his heart, "There is no God." They have become corrupt, they have made themselves abominable in their deeds; there is no one who does good.

The Lord looked down from heaven upon the sons of men, to see if there were any who were wise, [and] who sought God.

They have all gone astray, they have all made themselves odious together, there is no one who does good, not even one.

Do all these workers of iniquity have no knowledge? They eat my people as if they were eating bread, but they do not call upon the Lord.

There they will be seized with great fear; for God is with the righteous generation.

You are putting to shame the afflicted one, for he has chosen the Lord as his refuge.

Oh, who will bring deliverance for Israel out of Zion! When the Lord restores his people from captivity, Jacob will rejoice, Israel will be glad.

A Psalm of David. Lord, who may dwell in your tabernacle? Who may live on your holy mountain?

It will be the one who walks in integrity, who does what is right, and who speaks the truth as it is in his heart;

He who does not slander with his tongue, who does not harm his friend, who does not defame his neighbor;

In whose eyes he is despicable who deserves to be rejected, but he honors those who fear the Lord; if he has sworn, even to his own harm, he will not change it;

He who does not give his money at interest, and who does not take a bribe against the innocent; he who does these things will never be shaken.

Mictam of David. Keep me, O [God] Strong! for I have trusted in you.

[My soul!] you have said to the Lord: You are the Lord, my wealth does not reach you,

[But] to the Saints who are on earth, and to those distinguished persons, in whom I take all my pleasure.

The anxieties of those who pursue another will be multiplied. I will not sprinkle their blood, and their name will not pass through my mouth.

The Lord is my portion of inheritance and my drink; you maintain my lot.

The ropes fell to me in pleasant places, and a very fine inheritance was granted to me.

I will bless the Lord, who gives me counsel; I will bless him even on the nights when my loins instruct me.

I have always set the Lord before me; [and] because he is at my right hand, I shall not be shaken.

Therefore my heart rejoiced, and my tongue exulted; also my flesh shall dwell securely.

For you will not abandon my soul to the grave, [and] you will not allow your beloved to feel corruption.

You will show me the path of life; your presence is the fullness of joy; at your right hand are pleasures forevermore.

David's petition. Eternal One! Hear my righteous cause, pay attention to my cry, give ear to my petition, [which I make to you] without deceit in my lips.

Let my right depart from your presence; let your eyes look to justice.

You have searched my heart, you have visited it by night, you have examined me, you have found nothing; my thought does not go beyond my word.

As for the actions of men, according to the word of your lips, I have taken care to avoid the conduct of the violent man.

Having made my steps firm in your paths, the soles of my feet have not slipped.

O [God] Mighty One! I call upon you, because you are accustomed to answering me; incline your ear to me, listen to my words.

Make your acts of mercy admirable, you who deliver those who turn to you from those who rise up against your right hand.

Keep me as the apple of your eye, [and] hide me under the shadow of your wings;

From before these wicked ones who have plundered me; and from my mortal enemies who surround me.

Their faces are hidden by fat; they speak proudly with their mouths.

Now they surround us at every step we take; they cast their gaze to lay us on the ground.

He resembles the lion who only wants to tear apart, and the lion cub who hides in secret places.

Arise, O Lord, go before him, overthrow him; deliver my soul from the wicked [by] your sword.

Eternal, [deliver me by] your hand from these people, from the people of the world, whose portion is in this life, and whose bellies you fill with your provisions; their children are satisfied, and they leave their leftovers to their little children.

[But] I will see your face in judgment, and I will be satisfied with your likeness when I awake.

A Psalm of David, the servant of the Lord, who spoke to the Lord the words of this Song on the day the Lord delivered him from the hand of Saul. [Given] to the chief musician. He said: "Lord, you are my strength; I will love you with a loving heart."

The Lord is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer; my strong [God] is my rock, in him I will trust; he is my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my high refuge. I will cry out to the Lord, to whom praise is due; and I will be delivered from my enemies.

The cords of death had surrounded me, and torrents of the wicked had terrified me.

The cords of the sepulchre had girded me, the nets of death had surprised me.

When I was in adversity, I cried out to the Lord, I cried out to my God; he heard my voice from his palace; the cry that I uttered before him reached his ears.

Then the earth shook and quaked; and the foundations of the mountains fell and were shaken, because he was angry.

Smoke rose from his nostrils, and from his mouth [came] a devouring fire, coals were ablaze.

So he bowed down the heavens and came down, with darkness under his feet.

He had mounted a cherub, and he was flying; he was carried on the wings of the wind.

He made darkness for his secret dwelling place: [and] around him was his Tabernacle, [namely] the darkness of the waters, which are the clouds of the air.

From the brightness that was before him his clouds were dispersed, and there was hail and coals of fire.

And the Lord thundered in the heavens, and the Sovereign made his voice resound with hail and coals of fire.

He shot his arrows and drove them away; he hurled lightning bolts and routed them.

Then the depths of the waters appeared, and the foundations of the habitable earth were uncovered, because you rebuked them, O Lord, with the breath of the wind from your nostrils.

He reached down from on high, lifted me up, and drew me out of the deep waters.

He delivered me from my powerful enemy, and from those who hated me, for they were stronger than I.

They had preceded me in the day of my calamity; but the Lord was my support.

He brought me out into the open; he rescued me, because he took pleasure in me.

The Lord has rewarded me according to my righteousness; he has dealt with me according to the cleanness of my hands.

Because I have kept to the way of the Lord, and have not turned away from my God.

For I have had all his commandments before me, and I have not rejected his ordinances.

I have been faithful to him, and I have guarded myself against my iniquity.

The Lord has rewarded me according to my righteousness, [and] according to the cleanness of my hands, which he knew.

Towards the one who acts freely you act freely, and towards the whole person you show yourself to be whole.

Towards the pure you show yourself pure: but towards the perverse you act according to his perversity.

For you save the afflicted people, and you humble the haughty eyes.

It is you who make my lamp shine; the Lord my God will make my darkness shine.

Even by your means I will throw myself upon [a whole] troop, and by the means of my God I will cross the wall.

The way of the Mighty God is pure; the word of the Lord is refined: it is a shield to all who trust in him.

For who is God except the Lord? And who is the Rock except our God?

It is the Mighty God who arms me with strength, and makes my way straight.
He made my feet like those of deer, and he made me stand on my high places.
It was he who trained my hands for battle, so much so that a bronze bow was broken with my arms.
You also gave me the shield of your protection, and your right hand upheld me, and your gentleness made me become very great.
You made me walk in broad strokes, and my heels did not slip.
I pursued my enemies, I overtook them, and I did not turn back until I had consumed them.
I pierced them so deeply that they could not get up: they fell at my feet.
For you have armed me with strength for the battle; you have subdued under me those who rose up against me.
You also made my enemies turn their backs on me, and I destroyed those who hated me.

They cried out, but there was no deliverer; they cried out to the Lord, but he did not answer them.
And I crushed them like dust that is scattered by the wind, [and] I trampled them like mud in the streets.
You have delivered me from the rebellions of the people; you have made me ruler of the nations; a people whom I did not know have been subjugated to me.
As soon as they heard about me, they became obedient; the strangers hid their thoughts from me.
The foreigners fled, and they trembled with fear in their hidden retreats.
The Lord lives, and blessed is my rock; therefore let the God of my salvation be exalted!
The Mighty [God] is the one who gives me the means to take revenge, and who has subdued the peoples under me.
who rise up against me, you deliver me from the violent man.
Therefore, O Lord, I will praise you among the nations, and I will sing psalms to your name.
It is he who magnificently delivers his King, and who shows mercy to David his Anointed, and to his posterity forever.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. The heavens declare the glory of the Mighty One; the skies proclaim the work of his hands.
One day provides plenty of talk for [the next] day, and one night reveals knowledge to [the next] night.
They have no language, no speech; yet their voice is heard.
Their outline covers the whole earth, and their voice has reached to the ends of the habitable world. He has placed in them a pavilion for the sun;
So much so that he is like a bridegroom leaving his bridal chamber; he rejoices like a valiant man to run his race.
Its starting point is one end of the heavens, and its circuit is made to one end and to the other, and there is nothing that can take shelter from its heat.
The Law of the Lord is perfect, restoring the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, giving wisdom to the simple.
The commandments of the Lord are right, they gladden the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, and makes the eyes see.
The fear of the Lord is pure, enduring forever; the judgments of the Lord are true, and likewise they are just.
They are more desirable than gold, even than much fine gold; and sweeter than honey, even than that which distills from honeycombs.
Therefore, your servant is enlightened by them, and there is great reward in observing them.
Who knows their own mistakes made by error? Purify me of my hidden sins.

Keep your servant away from proud deeds, so that they may not rule in me; then I shall be pure, and clean from great sins.

May the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be pleasing to you, O Eternal One, my rock and my Redeemer.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. May the Lord answer you in the day of your distress; may the name of the God of Jacob make you a refuge.

May he send your help from the holy place, and may he sustain you from Zion.

May he remember all your offerings, and may he reduce your burnt offering to ashes; Selah.

May He give you what your heart desires, and may He make your plans succeed.

We will triumph in your deliverance, and we will march with banners unfurled in the Name of our God; the Lord will grant you all your requests.

I already know that the Lord has delivered his Anointed; he will answer him from his Holy Heaven; the deliverance from his right hand is with power.

Some boast of their chariots, and others of their horses, but we will boast in the Name of the Lord our God.

They bowed down and fell; but we rose up and stood firm.

Eternal One, deliver us. May the King answer us on the day we cry out.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. O Lord, the King will rejoice in your strength; how much more will he exult in your salvation!

You have granted him the desire of his heart, and have not withheld from him what he has uttered with his lips; Selah.

For you have warned him with blessings of wealth, [and] you have placed on his head a crown of fine gold.

He asked you for life, and you gave it to him: [even] an extension of days forever and ever.

His glory is great through your deliverance; you have covered him with majesty and honor.

For you have ordained it as a perpetual blessing; you have filled it with joy in your presence.

Because the King trusts in the Lord, and in the grace of the Sovereign, he will not be shaken.

Your hand will find all your enemies; your right hand will find all those who hate you.

You will make them like a fiery furnace in the time of your wrath; the Lord will swallow them up in his anger, and the fire will consume them.

You will destroy their fruit from the earth, and their offspring from among the sons of men.

Because they have plotted harm against you, and they have devised a scheme which they will not be able to accomplish.

Because you will set them as targets, and you will lay [your arrows] on your strings against their faces.

Arise, O Lord, in your strength; [and] we will sing and praise your might.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Ajelet-Hassachar. My God! My God! Why have you forsaken me, turning away from my salvation, and from the words of my roar?

My God! I cry out by day, but you do not answer; and by night, but I do not cease.

However, you are the Holy One dwelling [amidst the] praises of Israel.

Our fathers trusted in you; they trusted, and you delivered them;

They cried out to you, and were delivered; they relied on you, and were not put to shame.

But I am a worm and not a man, scorned by men and despised by the people.

Everyone who sees me mocks me; they frown at me; they shake their heads.

They say he abandons himself to the Lord; let him deliver him, and let him take him away, since he takes his good pleasure in him.

However, it was you who brought me out of [my mother's] womb, who made me safe when I was at my mother's breasts.

I was placed in your care from the womb; you are my [God] strong from my mother's womb.

Do not leave me; for distress is near [to me], and there is no one to help me.

Several bulls surrounded me; powerful bulls of Bashan surrounded me.

They opened their mouths against me, [like] a tearing and roaring lion.

I have flowed out like water, and all my bones are out of joint; my heart is like wax, having melted within me.

My strength is dried up like brick, and my tongue clings to the roof of my mouth, and you have laid me in the dust of death.

For dogs surrounded me, a band of wicked men encircled me; they pierced my hands and my feet.

I could count all my bones one by one; they stare at me, they gaze back at me.

They divide my clothes among themselves, and cast a spell on my dress.

You then, Eternal One! Do not be far from me; my strength, hasten to help me.

Deliver my life from the sword, [deliver] my only one from the dog's paw.

Deliver me from the lion's mouth, and answer me [by withdrawing me] from between the horns of the unicorns.

I will declare your Name to my brothers, I will praise you in the midst of the assembly.

You who fear the Lord, praise him; all you descendants of Jacob, glorify him; and all you descendants of Israel, revere him.

For he did not despise or scorn the affliction of the afflicted, nor did he hide his face from him; but when the afflicted cried out to him, he answered him.

My praise will begin with you in the great assembly; I will offer my vows in the presence of those who fear you.

The meek will eat and be satisfied; those who seek the Lord will praise him; your heart will live forever.

All the ends of the earth will remember, and they will turn to the Lord, and all the families of the nations will bow down before you.

For the kingdom belongs to the Lord, and he rules over the nations.

All the people of the earth will eat and worship him; all who go down to dust will bow down, even those who cannot guarantee their lives.

Posterity will serve him, [and] will be consecrated to the Lord from age to age.

They will come and proclaim his righteousness to the people yet to be born, because he has done these things.

A Psalm of David. The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He makes me lie down in grassy parks, [and] leads me along still waters.

He restores my soul, and leads me for the love of His Name, along united paths.

Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for you are with me; your rod and your staff, they comfort me.

You prepare the table before me in the sight of those who oppress me; you have anointed my head with fragrant oil, and my cup is full.

In any case, good things and grace will follow me all the days of my life, and my dwelling will be in the house of the Lord forever.

A Psalm of David. The earth belongs to the Lord, with all that is in it, the habitable land, and those who dwell in it.

For he founded it upon the seas, and set it upon the rivers.

Who may ascend the mountain of the Lord? And who may dwell in his holy place?

It will be the man who has clean hands and a pure heart, who does not aspire to falsehood in his soul, and who does not swear deceitfully.

He will receive blessing from the Lord, and justice from God his Savior.

These are those who call upon him, those who seek your face in Jacob: Selah.

Lift up your heads, O gates, and be lifted up, O everlasting doors, that the King of glory may enter.

Who is this King of glory? It is the Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle.

Lift up your heads, O gates, lift them up, you everlasting doors, and the King of glory will enter.

Who is this King of glory? The Lord of hosts; he is the King of glory: Selah.

A Psalm of David. [Aleph.] Eternal One, I lift up my soul to you.

[Beth.] My God, I trust in you, do not let me be put to shame, [and] let my enemies not triumph over me.

[Guimel.] Indeed, not one of those who trust in you will be put to shame; those who act treacherously without cause will be put to shame.

[Daleth.] O Lord, make me know your ways, teach me your paths.

[He. Vau.] Lead me in the truth and teach me, for you are the God of my salvation; I wait for you all day long.

[Zain.] Eternal, remember your mercies and your gracious acts; for they are from of old.

[Heth.] Do not remember the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions; according to your grace remember me, for the sake of your goodness, O Lord!

[Teth.] The Lord is good and upright; therefore he will teach sinners the way they should keep.

[Jod.] He will lead the humble in righteousness, and teach them his way.

[Caph.] All the paths of the Lord [are] free and true to those who keep his covenant and his testimonies.

[Lamed.] For the love of your Name, O Eternal One! you will forgive me my iniquity, though it is great.

[Mem.] Who is the man who fears the Lord? [The Lord] will teach him the way he should choose.

[Nun.] His soul will dwell in the midst of good things, and his descendants will possess the earth as an inheritance.

[Samech.] The secret of the Lord is for those who fear him, and his covenant to make known to them.

[Hajin.] My eyes are continually on the Lord; for it is he who will deliver my feet from the snare.

[Pe.] Turn your face towards me, and have pity on me; for I am alone and afflicted.

[Tsade.] The distress of my heart has increased; draw me out of my anguish.

[Res.] Look upon my affliction and my toil, and forgive me all my sins.

[Res.] Look at my enemies, for they are many, and they hate me with a violent hatred.

[Scin.] Guard my soul, and deliver me; [do] that I may not be put to shame; for I have withdrawn to you.

[Thau.] May integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I have waited for you.

[Pe.] O God! redeem Israel from all its distress.

A Psalm of David. Lord, vindicate me, for I have walked in my integrity, and I have trusted in the Lord; I shall not stumble.

Eternal One, search me and test me, examine my mind and my heart.

For your grace is before my eyes, and I have walked in your truth.

I have not sat with vain men, nor have I associated with cloaked people.

I have hated the company of the wicked, and I do not associate with the ungodly.

I wash my hands in innocence, and I go around your altar, O Eternal One!

To burst forth in a voice of thanksgiving, and to tell of all your wonders.

Eternal One, I love the dwelling place of your house, and the place where the pavilion of your glory is.

Do not unite my soul with sinners, nor my life with bloodthirsty men.

In whose hands there is premeditated wickedness, and whose [right] hand is full of gifts.

But I walk in my integrity; redeem me, and have mercy on me.
My foot has stood still on the level path; I will bless the Lord in the assemblies.
A Psalm of David. The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?
When the wicked, my adversaries and enemies, approached me, [throwing themselves] at me to eat my flesh, they stumbled and fell.
Even if an entire army were to encamp against me, my heart would not fear; if war were to arise against me, I would have confidence in this.
I have asked one thing of the Lord, [and] I will ask it [again], that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the ravishing presence of the Lord, and to diligently visit his palace.
For he will hide me in his dwelling place in bad weather; he will keep me hidden in the secret place of his Tabernacle; he will lift me up upon a rock.
Even now my head will be lifted up above my enemies who are around me, and I will offer sacrifices of joyful shouts in his Tabernacle; I will sing and make music to the Lord.
Eternal One! Hear my voice when I call to you; have mercy on me, and answer me.
My heart tells me from you: seek my face; I will seek your face, O Lord!
Do not hide your face from me, do not reject your servant in anger; you have been my helper; O God of my salvation, do not forsake me, do not abandon me!
Even if my father and mother had abandoned me, the Lord would take me in.
Eternal One, teach me your way, and lead me in a straight path because of my enemies.

Do not deliver me to the desires of my adversaries; for false witnesses and those who breathe only violence have risen up against me.
Had it not been that I believed that I would see the good things of the Lord in the land of the living, [it would have been done for me].
Wait for the Lord, and stand firm, and he will strengthen your heart; wait, I say, for the Lord.
A Psalm of David. I cry out to you, O Lord, my rock; do not be deaf to me, lest if you do not answer me I be made like those who go down to the pit.
Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry out to you, when I lift my hands to the Oracle of your Holiness.
Do not drag me with the wicked, nor with the workers of iniquity, who speak peace with their neighbors, while malice is in their hearts.
Treat them according to their deeds and the wickedness of their actions; treat them according to the work of their hands; repay them what they have deserved.
Because they do not heed the works of the Lord, the work, I say, of his hands; he will destroy them, and not build them up.
Blessed be the Lord, for he has heard the voice of my supplications.
The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart has trusted in him; I have been helped, and my heart rejoices; therefore I will praise him with my song.
The Lord is their strength, and he is the strength of deliverances for his Anointed One.
Deliver your people, and bless your inheritance, nourish them, and raise them up forever.
A Psalm of David. Sons of princes, ascribe to the Lord, ascribe to the Lord glory and strength.
Ascribe to the Lord the glory due his Name; worship the Lord in his magnificent Sanctuary.
The voice of the Lord is over the waters; the mighty God thunders; the Lord is over the great waters.
The voice of the Lord is strong, the voice of the Lord is magnificent.
The voice of the Lord breaks the cedars; even the Lord breaks the cedars of Lebanon.

And he makes them leap like a calf: [he makes] Lebanon and Sirion leap, like a fawn of a unicorn.
The voice of the Lord hurls forth bursts of fiery flame.
The voice of the Lord makes the desert tremble, the Lord makes the desert of Kadesh tremble.
The voice of the Lord shapes the deer, and reveals the forests; but as for his Palace, everyone glorifies him there.
The Lord presided over the flood; and the Lord will preside as King forever.
The Lord will give strength to his people; the Lord will bless his people in peace.
A Psalm, [which was] a Song of the dedication of the house of David. Lord, I will exalt you, because you have delivered me and have not given joy to my enemies [in my defeat].
Eternal God, I cried out to you, and you healed me.
Eternal One, you have brought my soul up from the grave; you have given me life, so that I will not go down to the pit.
Sing praises to the Lord, you his beloved, and celebrate the memory of his holiness.

For there is but a moment in his anger, [but there is] a whole lifetime in his favor; does lamentation dwell in our house at night? There is singing in the morning.
When I was in my prosperous years, I used to say: I will never be shaken.
Eternal One, by your favor you had made strength stand on my mountain; have you hidden your face? I was terrified.
Eternal One, I have cried out to you, and I have presented my supplication to the Eternal One, [saying]:
What profit will there be in my blood, if I go down to the pit? Will the dust praise you? Will it preach your truth?
Lord, hear me, and have mercy on me; Lord, be my helper.
You have turned my mourning into joy; you have taken off my sackcloth and clothed me with gladness.
So that my tongue may sing praises to you, and not be silent. Eternal, my God! I will praise you forever.
A Psalm of David, to the chief musician. Lord, I have taken refuge in you; let me never be put to shame; deliver me in your righteousness.
Incline your ear to me, deliver me quickly; be to me a strong rock [and] to a fortress, that I may save myself there.
For you are my rock and my fortress; therefore lead me and guide me, for the sake of your Name.
Pull me out of the net that was secretly laid for me, for you are my strength.
I commit my spirit into your hand; you have redeemed me, O Lord, the God of truth.
I have hated those who indulge in deceptive vanities; but I have trusted in the Lord.

I will rejoice and be glad in your grace, because you have looked upon my affliction, [and] have cast your eyes upon my soul in its distress;
And because you did not deliver me into the hands of the enemy, [but] set my feet upright in a spacious place.
Eternal One, have mercy on me, for I am in distress; my eyes are overcome with grief, my soul [also] and my stomach.
For my life is consumed with sorrow, and my years with groaning; my virtue has failed because of my iniquity, and my bones are consumed.
I have become a reproach because of all my adversaries, I have even become extremely reproached to my neighbors, and a terror to those I know; those who see me outside flee from me.
I have been forgotten in the hearts [of men], like a dead man; I have been esteemed as a vessel of no use.
For I have heard the insults of many; fear has seized me on all sides, when they conspired together against me. They plotted to take my life.

However, O Eternal One! I have trusted in you; I have said: You are my God.
My times are in your hands, deliver me from the hand of my enemies, and from those who pursue me.
Let your face shine upon your servant; deliver me by your grace.
O Lord, let me not be put to shame, for I have called upon you; let the wicked be put to shame, let them lie in the grave!
Let lying lips be silenced, which utter harsh words against the righteous, with pride and contempt.
Oh, how great are your possessions, which you have reserved for those who fear you, [and] which you have made in the presence of the sons of men, for those who retreat to you!
You hide them in the secret place where you dwell, far from the pride of men; you preserve them in a shelter from the disputes of tongues.
Blessed be the Lord, for he has shown me such wonderful grace, as if I were in a stronghold.
I said in my haste: I am cut off from your sight; and yet you have heard the voice of my supplications, when I cried out to you.
Love the Lord, all you his beloved; the Lord preserves the faithful, and punishes [severely] him who acts proudly.
All you who have your hope in the Lord, stand firm, and he will strengthen your heart.
Maskil of David. O! How blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, and whose sin is covered!
How blessed is the man whose iniquity the Lord does not impute, and in whose spirit there is no deceit!
When I kept silent, my bones wasted away; and also when I did nothing but roar all day long.
Because day and night your hand was heavy upon me, my strength was turned into the drought of summer. Selah.
I acknowledged my sin to you, and I did not hide my iniquity. I said, "I will confess my transgressions to the Lord," and you forgave the guilt of my sin. Selah.
Therefore, every one of your beloved will plead with you at the time when you are found, so much so that in a flood of great waters, they will not reach him.
You are my refuge; you protect me from distress; you surround me with songs of triumph because of deliverance. Selah.
I will make you wise, I will teach you the way you should walk, and I will guide you with my eye.
Do not be like the horse or the mule, which have no understanding; whose mouths must be muzzled with a bit and a bridle, or they will not come near you.
Many sorrows will befall the wicked, but grace will surround the man who trusts in the Lord.
You righteous ones, rejoice in the Lord, be glad, and sing for joy, all you upright in heart.
You righteous ones, sing for joy because of the Lord; his praise is fitting for the upright.
Praise the Lord with the violin, sing psalms to him with the bagpipe and the ten-stringed instrument.
Sing to him a new song, skillfully play [your musical instruments] with a shout of joy.
For the word of the Lord is pure, and all his works are steadfast.
He loves justice and righteousness; the earth is full of the Lord's unfailing love.
The heavens were made by the word of the Lord, and all their host by the breath of his mouth.
He gathers the waters of the sea as into a heap, he puts the deeps into cellars.

Let all the earth fear the Lord, let all the inhabitants of the inhabited earth revere him.

For he spoke, and [what he said] came to be; he commanded, and it came to be.

The Lord scatters the counsel of the nations, he thwarts the plans of the peoples; [But] the counsel of the Lord stands forever; the purposes of his heart endure from generation to generation.

O blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, the people he has chosen for his inheritance!

The Lord looks down from Heaven; he sees all the children of men.

He is mindful of the place of his residence for all the inhabitants of the earth.

He is also the one who shapes their hearts, and who watches over all their actions.

The King is not saved by a large army, and the powerful man does not escape by [his] great strength.

The horse fails to save, and does not deliver by the greatness of its strength.

Behold, the eye of the Lord is on those who fear him, on those who wait for his grace.

So that he may deliver them from death, and keep them alive during the famine.

Our soul has trusted in the Lord; he is our help and our shield.

Surely our hearts will rejoice in him, because we have placed our trust in his holy name.

May your grace be upon us, O Lord, according to the faith we have placed in you.

A Psalm of David, concerning how he changed his appearance before Abimelech, who drove him out, and he departed. [Aleph.] I will bless the Lord at all times; his praise will continually be on my lips.

[Beth.] My soul will boast in the Lord; the meek will hear it and rejoice.

[Gimel.] Magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his Name together.

[Daleth.] I sought the Lord, and he answered me, and delivered me from all my fears.

[He. Vau.] Have we looked at it? We are enlightened by it, and their faces are not confused.

[Zain.] This afflicted man cried out, and the Lord answered him, and delivered him from all his distresses.

[Heth.] The Angel of the Lord encamps all around those who fear him, and protects them.

[Teth.] Taste and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man who trusts in him!

[Jod.] Fear the Lord, you his holy people; for nothing is lacking to those who fear him.

[Caption] The lion cubs are hungry and want, but those who seek the Lord will need no good things.

[Lamed.] Come, children, listen to me; I will teach you the fear of the Lord.

[Mem.] Who is the man who takes pleasure in living, [and] who loves long life to see good?

[Nun.] Keep your tongue from evil, and your lips from speaking deceit.

[Samech.] Turn away from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it.

[Hajin.] The eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are attentive to their cry.

[Pe.] The face of the Lord is against those who do evil, to exterminate their memory from the earth.

[Tsade.] When the righteous cry out, the Lord answers them, and delivers them from all their distress.

[Koph.] The Lord is near to those who are brokenhearted [by pain], and he delivers those who are crushed in spirit.

[Res.] The righteous man has many afflictions, but the Lord delivers him from them all.

[Scin.] He keeps all his bones, [and] not one is broken.

[Thau.] Malice will slay the wicked; and those who hate the righteous will be destroyed.

[Pe.] The Lord redeems the soul of his servants; and none of those who trust in him shall be destroyed.

A Psalm of David. Lord, plead against those who plead against me; wage war against those who wage war against me.

Take up the shield and the buckler, and rise up to help me.

Take hold of the spear, and press [the passage] before those who pursue me; say to my soul: I am your deliverance.

May those who seek my soul be ashamed and confused, and may those who plot my harm be cast back and blush.

Let them be like chaff exposed to the wind, and let the Angel of the Lord drive them away to and fro.

May their path be dark and slippery; may the Angel of the Lord pursue them.

For without cause they hid from me the pit where their nets were spread, and without cause they dug to [surprise] my soul.

Let the ruin he does not foresee befall him; and let his net, which he has hidden, befall him, and let him fall into that same ruin.

But let my soul rejoice in the Lord, and be glad in his deliverance.

All my bones will say: O Lord, who is like you, who delivers the afflicted from the hand of him who is stronger than he, the afflicted, I say, and the poor, from the hand of him who plunders him?

Violent witnesses are rising up against me, I am being asked to do things I know nothing about.

They repaid me with evil for good, [trying] to take my life.

But when they were sick, I put on sackcloth, I afflicted my soul with fasting, and my prayer returned to my breast.

I acted as if he were my close friend, as if he were my brother; I went about bowed in mourning clothes, like one who would mourn for his mother.

But when I stumbled, they rejoiced and gathered together; worthless people gathered against me, without my knowing it; they laughed openly and did not stop;

With the hypocrites among the mockers who frequent the good tables, [and] they gnashed their teeth at me.

Lord, how long will you see him? Deliver my soul from their storms, my only one among the lion cubs.

I will celebrate you in a great assembly; I will praise you among a great people.

Let not those who are my enemies without cause rejoice over me; and let not those who hate me without cause insult me with their eyes.

For they do not speak of peace, but they plot deceitful schemes against the peacemakers of the earth.

And they opened their mouths as much as they could against me, and said: aha! aha! our eye saw it.

O Eternal One! You have seen it: do not be silent; Lord, do not depart from me.

Wake up, wake up, I say, O my God and my Lord! to do me justice, [and] to support my cause.

Judge me according to your righteousness, O Lord my God! and let them not rejoice over me.

Let them not say in their hearts, "Aha, our soul!" and let them not say, "We have swallowed it up."

Let those who rejoice in my misfortune be ashamed and blush together; and let those who rise up against me be covered with shame and confusion.

But let those who are devoted to my righteousness rejoice with songs of triumph and be glad, and let them say continually: Magnificent be the Lord who delights in the peace of his servant.

Then my tongue will speak of your righteousness [and] of your praise all day long.

A Psalm of David, the servant of the Lord, [given] to the chief musician. The transgression of the wicked tells me in my heart, that there is no fear of God in his sight.

For he flatters himself when his iniquity presents itself to be hated.

The words from his mouth are nothing but injustice and fraud; he is careful not to be attentive to doing good.

He plots on his bed the means to do harm; he stops at the path that is not good; he does not abhor evil.

Eternal One, your grace reaches to the heavens, your faithfulness to the clouds.

Your righteousness is like the high mountains, your judgments a great abyss. O Lord, you preserve both man and beast.

O God! How precious is your grace! Therefore the sons of men take refuge under the shadow of your wings.

They will be abundantly satisfied with the fat of your house, and you will give them drink from the river of your delights.

For the source of life is with you, [and] by your light we see clearly.

Continue your generosity towards those who know you, and your justice towards those who are upright in heart.

Let not the foot of the proud advance upon me, nor let the hand of the wicked shake me.

There the workers of iniquity fell; they were overthrown, and could not rise again.

A Psalm of David. [Aleph.] Do not fret because of the wicked, nor be envious of those who practice perversity.

For they will suddenly be cut down like hay, and wither like green grass.

[Beth.] Trust in the Lord, and do what is good; dwell in the earth, and feed on truth.

And take your delight in the Lord, and he will grant you the requests of your heart.

[Gimel.] Commit your way to the Lord, and trust in him; and he will act;

And he will manifest your justice like the dawn, and your righteousness like the noonday.

[Daleth.] Remain calm, trusting in the Lord, and wait for him; do not fret because of him who does well in his affairs, because, [I say], of the man who accomplishes his tasks.

[He.] Beware of becoming angry, and renounce anger; do not be spiteful, lest you do evil.

For the wicked will be cut off; but those who trust in the Lord will inherit the land.

[Vau.] Yet a little while, and the wicked will be no more; and you will take heed to his place, and he will be no more there.

But the good-natured will inherit the land, and will enjoy great prosperity at their leisure.

[Zain.] The wicked machine against the righteous, and grinds its teeth against him. The Lord will laugh at him, for he has seen that his day is near.

[Heth.] The wicked have drawn their swords and bent their bows to strike down the afflicted and the poor, and to slaughter those who walk in righteousness.

[But] their sword will pierce their hearts, and their bows will be broken.

[Teth.] Better is the little he has than abundance to many wicked people.

For the arms of the wicked will be broken, but the Lord upholds the righteous.

[Jod.] The Lord knows the days of the blameless, and their inheritance will endure forever.

They will not be ashamed in the time of evil, but they will be satisfied in the time of famine.

[Caph.] But the wicked will perish, and the enemies of the Lord will vanish like the fat of lambs; they will go away like smoke.

[Lamed.] The wicked borrow and do not repay; but the righteous are compassionate and give.

For those blessed [by the Lord] will inherit the land, but those whom he has cursed will be cut off.

[Mem.] The steps of the man [whom he has blessed] are guided by the Lord, and he delights in his ways.

If he falls, he will not be [completely] struck down; for the Lord upholds his hand.

[Nun.] I have been young, and I have reached old age, yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his descendants begging for their bread.

He is moved with compassion all day long, and he lends; and his offspring are a blessing.

[Samech.] Turn away from evil and do good, and you will have an eternal dwelling.

For the Lord loves what is right, and he does not forsake his faithful ones; therefore they are kept forever; but the offspring of the wicked are cut off.

[Hajin.] The righteous will inherit the earth, and will dwell there forever.

[Pe.] The mouth of the righteous will utter wisdom, and his tongue will pronounce justice.

The Law of his God is in his heart; not one of his steps will falter.

[Tsade.] The wicked man spies on the righteous man and seeks to kill him.

The Lord will not abandon him to his hand, nor will he allow him to be condemned when he is judged.

[Koph.] Wait for the Lord, and pay attention to his way, and he will exalt you, so that you may inherit the land, [and] you will see how the wicked will be cut off.

[Res.] I saw the terrible villain, and spreading out like a green laurel; But he passed away, and behold, he is no more; I sought him, but he could not be found.

[Scin.] Take heed to the blameless man, and consider the upright man; for the end of such a man is prosperity.

But the wrongdoers will all be destroyed together, and what remains of the wicked will be cut off.

[Thau.] But the deliverance of the righteous [will come] from the Lord; he will be their strength in the time of distress.

For the Lord helps them and delivers them; he will deliver them from the wicked and save them, because they have trusted in him.

A Psalm of David, to be remembered. O Lord, do not rebuke me in your anger, nor discipline me in your wrath.

For your arrows have entered me, and your hand has come down heavily upon me.

There is no wholeness in my flesh, because of your indignation; nor rest in my bones, because of my sin.

For my iniquities have gone over my head; they have weighed me down like a heavy burden, beyond my strength.

My wounds are rotten [and] oozing, because of my madness.

I am bent and stooped excessively; I walk in mourning all day long.

For my groin is filled with inflammation, and in my flesh there is nothing whole.

I am weakened and utterly broken, I roar with the great trembling of my heart.

Lord, all my desire is before you, and my groaning is not hidden from you.

My heart is restless here and there, my strength has abandoned me, and the clarity of my eyes too: even they are no longer with me.

Those who love me, and even my close friends, stay away from my wound, and my relatives stay away from [me].

Those who seek my life have laid nets for me, and those who seek my ruin speak of calamities and plot deceptions all day long.

But I too hear like a deaf person, and I am like a mute who does not open his mouth.

I am, I say, like a man who does not hear, and who has no reply in his mouth.
Since I have waited for you, O Eternal One, you will answer me, Lord my God!
For I said: [Beware] that they do not triumph over me: when my foot slips, they rise up against me.
When I am about to falter; and my pain is continually before me;
When I confess my iniquity [and] I am troubled for my sin.
However, my enemies, who are alive, are growing stronger, and those who hate me unjustly are multiplying.
And those who repay me evil for good are opposed to me, because I seek good.
Eternal One, do not forsake me; my God, do not be far from me.
Hurry to come to my aid, Lord, who are my deliverance.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [namely] to Jeduthun. I said: I will guard my ways, that I do not sin with my tongue; I will keep my mouth with a muzzle, while the wicked are before me.
I was mute, without saying a word, I kept quiet for my own good; but my pain intensified.
My heart was heated within me, and the fire blazed in my meditation; I spoke with my tongue, [saying]:
Eternal One, grant me to know my end, and what is the measure of my days; make me know how short a time I am.
Behold, you have reduced my days to the measure of four fingers, and the span of my life is before you as nothing; surely it is but vanity for every man, though he stands. Selah.
Certainly, man wanders among things that are only superficial; certainly, one frets in vain; one amasses wealth, and one does not know who will reap it.
Now, Lord, what have I been waiting for? My waiting is for you.
Deliver me from all my transgressions, [and] do not allow me to be a reproach to the fool.
I kept silent and did not open my mouth, because you did it.
Remove from me the wound you have inflicted; I am consumed by the war you are waging against me.
As soon as you chastise someone, censuring them for their iniquity, you consume their beauty like a moth; surely all men are vanity: Selah.
Eternal One, hear my plea, and give ear to my cry, and do not be deaf to my tears; for I am a traveler and a stranger with you, as were all my fathers.
Depart from me, so that I may regain my strength, before I depart and am no more.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. I waited patiently for the Lord, and he turned to me and heard my cry.
He brought me up out of a noisy well, and out of a muddy mire; he set my feet on a rock, [and] made my steps steady.
And he put a new song in my mouth, a song of praise to our God. Many will see this and fear and put their trust in the Lord.
How blessed is the man who has set the Lord as his confidence, and who does not look to the proud, nor to those who turn aside to falsehood!
Eternal God! You have done many wonders and have thought for us; it is not possible to arrange them before you: shall I recite and speak? They are so many that I cannot tell them.
You do not take pleasure in sacrifice or in cake; [but] you have pierced my ears; you did not ask for burnt offering or sin offering.
Then I said: Behold, I have come, it is written of me in the roll of the Book;
My God, I have delighted in doing your will, and your Law is within my heart.
I have proclaimed your righteousness in the great assembly; behold, I have not restrained my lips; you know it, O Lord!
I have not hidden your righteousness, [which is] within my heart; I have declared your faithfulness and your deliverance; I have not sealed your gratuitousness nor your truth in the great assembly.

[And] you, Eternal One! do not withhold your compassion from me; may your grace and your truth continually protect me.

For countless evils have surrounded me; my iniquities have overtaken me, and I could not see them; they are more numerous than the hairs of my head, and my heart has forsaken me.

O Lord, deliver me; O Lord, hasten to my aid.

Let all those be ashamed and blush together who seek my soul to destroy it; and let those who take pleasure in my misfortune turn back and be confounded.

May those who say of me: Aha! Aha! be consumed, as a reward for the shame they have brought upon me.

May all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you; [and] may those who love your deliverance continually say: Magnificent be the Lord.

But I am afflicted and miserable, [but] the Lord cares for me; you are my help and my deliverer; my God does not delay.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. O blessed is he who walks wisely toward the afflicted! The Lord will deliver him in the day of calamity.

The Lord will keep him and preserve him alive; he will even be made prosperous in the earth; therefore do not hand him over to the will of his enemies.

The Lord will sustain him [when he is] in a sick bed; you will transform his entire bed, [when he is] ill.

I said, "Lord, have mercy on me, heal my soul, though I have sinned against you."

My enemies, wishing me harm, say: When will he die? And when will his name perish?

And if one of them comes to visit me, he speaks falsely; his heart gathers things to anger me. He has gone out? He speaks about it outside.

All those who hate me whisper silently together against me, [and] plot evil against me.

Some action, [they say, such as] the wicked [commit], has him trapped, and this man who is lying down will not rise again.

Even he who was at peace with me, on whom I trusted, [and] who ate my bread, has lifted up his heel against me.

But you, O Lord, have mercy on me, and raise me up; and I will restore it to them.

By this I know that you take pleasure in me, that my enemy does not triumph over me.

For me, you have kept me whole, and you have established me before you forever.

Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, from age to age. Amen! Amen!

Maskil of the children of Korah, [given] to the chief musician. As the deer pants for the stream of water, so my soul pants for you, O God!

My soul thirsts for God, for the [God] strong, [and] living; oh, when shall I enter and present myself before the face of God.

My tears were my bread, day and night, when they said to me every day: Where is your God?

I recalled these things in my memory, and I discussed them in my mind, [namely] that I walked in the troop, and that I went very gently in their company, with a voice of triumph and praise, to the house of God, [and] that a great multitude of people then jumped for joy.

My soul, why are you downcast, and why are you disturbed within me? Wait for God; for I will yet praise him; his gaze is deliverance itself.

My God! My soul is downcast within me, because I remember you from the region of the Jordan, and from the region of the Hermonians, and from the mountain of Mitzhar.

Deep calls to deep at the sound of your canals; all your waves and breakers have swept over me.

The Lord will proclaim his grace by day, and his song will be with me by night, and I will call upon the Mighty God, who is my life.

I will say to the Mighty God who is my rock: why have you forgotten me? Why must I mourn because of the oppression of the enemy?

My adversaries have insulted me; it has been a sword in my bones, when they say to me day after day, "Where is your God?"

My soul, why are you downcast, and why are you disturbed within me? Wait for God; for I will yet praise him, he is my salvation, and my God.

Grant me justice, O God! and uphold my right against the cruel nation; deliver me from the deceitful and perverse man.

Since you are the God of my strength, why have you rejected me? Why must I mourn because of the enemy's oppression?

Send forth your light and your truth, that they may lead me [and] bring me into the mountain of your holiness, and into your tabernacles.

Then I will come to the Altar of God, to the [God] Strong with the gladness of my joy, and I will praise you on the violin, O God! my God!

My soul, why are you downcast, and why are you disturbed within me? Wait for God; for I will yet praise him; he is my salvation, and my God.

Maskil of the children of Korah, [given] to the chief musician. O God, we have heard with our ears, [and] our fathers have told us of the deeds that you performed in their days, in days of old.

With your hand you drove out the nations, and you established our [fathers]; you afflicted the peoples, and you made our fathers prosper.

For it was not by their sword that they conquered the land, nor was it their arm that delivered them, but your right hand, your arm, and the light of your face, because you loved them.

O God! You are my King, command the deliverance of Jacob.

With you we will defeat our adversaries, by your Name we will trample those who rise up against us.

For I do not trust in my bow, and it will not be my sword that delivers me;

But you will deliver us from our adversaries, and you will put to shame those who hate us.

We will glory in God all day long, and we will praise your Name forever. Selah.

But you have rejected us and confounded us, and you no longer go out with our armies.

You made us turn back from before the enemy, and our enemies enriched themselves with what they plundered from us.

You have given us up like sheep to be eaten, and you have scattered us among the nations.

You sold your people for nothing, and you did not raise their price.

You have brought us shame among our neighbors, ridicule, and mockery among those who live around us.

You have made us a proverb among the nations, [and] a nodding of the head among the peoples.

My shame is before me all day long, and the shame of my face has covered me completely.

Because of the words of the one who reproaches us and insults us, and because of the enemy and the vindictive one.

All this has happened to us, and yet we have not forgotten you, and we have not broken your covenant.

Our heart has not turned back, nor have our steps turned away from your paths;

Though you have crushed us among dragons, and covered us with the shadow of death.

If we had forgotten the Name of our God, and had stretched out our hands to a foreign god,

Would not God inquire about it? Since it is He who knows the secrets of the heart.

But we are being killed every day for your sake, [and] we are regarded as sheep to be slaughtered.

Arise, why do you sleep, Lord? Awake, do not reject us forever.

Why do you hide your face, [and] why do you forget our affliction and our oppression?

For our soul is bowed down to the dust, and our belly is fastened to the ground.
Rise up to help us, and deliver us for the love of your grace.

Maskil of the children of Korah, [which is] a wedding song, [given] to the chief musician, [to sing] over Sosannim. My heart meditates on a good speech, [and] I said: My works will be for the King; my tongue will be the pen of a diligent writer. You are more beautiful than any of the sons of men; grace is poured upon your lips, because God has blessed you forever.

O Most Powerful One, gird your sword on your thigh, your majesty and your magnificence.

And prosper in your magnificence; be inclined to the word of truth, gentleness, and justice; and your right hand will teach you awesome things.

Your arrows are sharp, the peoples will fall beneath you; [they will penetrate] into the heart of the King's enemies.

Your throne, O God, is forever and ever; the scepter of your kingdom is a scepter of justice.

You love justice and hate wickedness; therefore, O God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness above your companions.

It is nothing but myrrh, aloes and cassia from all your garments, [when you come out] of the ivory palaces, with which they made you glad.

Daughters of kings are among your ladies-in-waiting; your wife is at your right hand, adorned with gold from Ophir.

Listen, daughter, and consider; pay attention, forget your people and your father's house.

And the King will find favor in your beauty; since he is your Lord, bow down before him.

And the daughter of Tyre, [and] the richest of peoples will beseech you with gifts. The King's daughter is inwardly full of glory; her garment is studded with gold settings.

She will be presented to the King in embroidered garments; and the girls who come after her, and who are her companions, will be brought to you.

They will be presented to you with joy and gladness, [and] they will enter the King's palace.

Your children will be in place of your fathers; you will establish them as princes throughout the earth.

I will make your Name memorable throughout all ages, and because of this the peoples will praise you forever and ever.

A psalm of the children of Korah, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Halamoth. God is our refuge, our strength, and our help in times of trouble; and very easy to find.

Therefore we will not be afraid, even if the earth is shaken, and the mountains are overturned into the sea;

When its waters should roar and become troubled, [and] the mountains should be shaken by the rising of its waves; Selah.

The streams of the river will gladden the city of God, which is the holy place where the Sovereign dwells.

God is in her midst; she will not be shaken. God will give her help at daybreak.

The nations made a fuss, the kingdoms were shaken; he made his voice heard, and the earth melted.

The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress; Selah.

Come, behold the works of the Lord, [and see] what devastation he has brought upon the earth.

He has put an end to wars to the ends of the earth; he breaks bows, he shatters halberds, he burns chariots with fire.

Cease, [he said], and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted throughout all the earth.

The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress; Selah.

A Psalm of the Children of Korah, [given] to the chief musician. Clap your hands, all you peoples; shout to God with a joyful voice.

For the Lord, who is the Sovereign, is awesome, and he is a great King over all the earth.

He places the peoples under us, and the nations under our feet.

He has chosen us, our inheritance, which is the majesty of Jacob, whom he loves; Selah.

God ascended with a shout of joy; the Lord [ascended] with the sound of a trumpet.

Sing psalms to God, sing psalms, sing psalms to our King, sing psalms.

For God is the King of all the earth; all you who hear, sing psalms.

God reigns over the nations; God sits on the throne of his holiness.

The leaders of the peoples have gathered together [towards] the people of the God of Abraham; for the shields of the earth belong to God; he is greatly exalted.

A Psalm of the Children of Korah. Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised in the city of our God, in his holy mountain.

The most beautiful of the land, the joy of all the earth, is Mount Zion in the north; it is the city of the great King.

God is known in his palaces for a high retreat.

For behold, the kings had appointed themselves, and they had all gone ahead together.

Did they see her? They were immediately astonished; they were quite disturbed, they fled from her in a hurried manner.

There trembling seized them, [and] a pain like that of childbirth.

[They were driven away as] by the east wind [which] breaks the ships of Tarshish.

As we had heard, so we have seen in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God, which God will maintain forever; Selah.

O God! We have heard your grace in the midst of your Temple.

O God! As is your Name, so is your praise to the ends of the earth; your right hand is full of justice.

Mount Zion will rejoice, and the daughters of Judah will be glad, because of your judgments.

Surround Zion, and encircle her, [and] count her towers.

Pay close attention to its outer wall, and consider its palaces; so that you may tell it to the next generation.

For this is the God who is our God forever and ever; he will accompany us even to death.

A Psalm of the children of Korah, to the chief musician. All you peoples, hear this; all you inhabitants of the world, give ear.

Let those of low status and those of high status listen; likewise the rich and the poor.

My mouth will speak words of wisdom, and the thoughts of my heart are meaningful.

I will listen to a sententious remark, I will expound my notable pronouncements on the violin.

Why should I fear in bad weather, when the iniquity of my heels surrounds me?

There are those who trust in their possessions, and who boast in the abundance of their riches.

No one can redeem his brother with his riches, nor give God his ransom.

For the redemption of their souls is too great, and it will never be accomplished; So that he may live forevermore and never see the grave.

For we see that the wise die, and likewise that the fool and the stupid perish, and that they leave their possessions to others.

Their intention is that their houses should last forever, and that their dwellings should remain from age to age; they have named the lands after themselves;

And yet man does not maintain his honors, [but] he is made like brute beasts which perish [entirely].
This path they follow drives them to madness, [and yet] their successors take pleasure in their teachings; Selah.
They will be put in the grave like sheep; death will feed on them, and the upright will rule over them in the morning, and their strength will be the grave to consume them, each of them being taken out of their home.
But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave, when he takes me to himself;
Selah.
Do not be afraid when you see someone become rich, and when the glory of his house is multiplied.
For when he dies, he will take nothing with him; his glory will not descend after him.
Although he blessed his soul in his life, and although you are praised because you will have done yourself good;
Going back to the race of each of their fathers, [it will be as] as if they had never seen the light.
The man who is honored, [and] has no intelligence, is like the brute beasts that perish [completely]
Psalm of Asaph The Mighty God, the Lord, has spoken, and has called all the earth, from the rising of the sun to its setting.
God has caused his splendor to shine forth from Zion, which is perfectly beautiful.
Our God will come, he will not be silent: there will be a devouring fire before him, and a great storm all around him.
He will call upon the heavens above, and the earth, to judge his people, [saying]:
Gather for me my beloved ones who have made a covenant with me on sacrifice.
The heavens will also proclaim his righteousness: for God is judge; Selah.
Listen, O my people, and I will speak; [hear], Israel, and I will summon you; I am God, your God.
I will not rebuke you for your sacrifices, nor for your burnt offerings, which were continually before me.
I will not take any calf from your house, nor any goat from your pastures.
For every beast of the forest is mine, [and] also the beasts that graze on a thousand mountains.
I know all the birds of the mountains; and every kind of beast of the field is under my command.
If I were hungry, I would not tell you; for the inhabited earth is mine, and everything in it.
Would I eat the flesh of large bulls? And would I drink the blood of goats?
Offer praise to God, and make your vows to the Sovereign.
And call upon me in the day of your distress, I will deliver you, and you shall glorify me.
But God said to the wicked: What good is it to you to recite my statutes, and to take my covenant in your mouth?
Since you hate correction, and you threw my words behind you?
If you see a thief, you run with him; and your portion is with the adulterers.
You give free rein to evil, and with your tongue you plot fraud;
You sit [and] speak against your brother, [and] you heap reproach on your mother's son.
You did these things, and I kept silent about them; [and] you considered that I was truly like you; [but] I will rebuke you for it, and I will present [the whole thing] in order in your presence.
Hear this now, you who forget God; lest I snatch you away, and there be no one to deliver you.

He who sacrifices praise will glorify me; and to him who heeds his way, I will show the deliverance of God.

A Psalm of David, to the chief musician. Concerning what Nathan the prophet came to him after he had gone in to Bathsheba. O God, have mercy on me according to your unfailing love; according to the abundance of your compassion blot out my transgressions.

Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.

For I know my transgressions, and my sin is continually before me.

I have sinned against you, against you properly, and I have done what displeases you: so that you may be known as righteous when you speak, [and] found pure when you judge.

Behold, I was formed in iniquity, and my mother inflamed me in sin.

Behold, you love truth in the heart, and you have taught me wisdom in the secret [of my heart].

Cleanse me from sin with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

Let me hear joy and gladness, and let the bones you have broken rejoice.

Turn your face from my sins, and blot out all my iniquities.

O God! Create in me a clean heart, and renew a restored spirit within me.

Do not cast me away from your presence, and do not take your Holy Spirit from me.

Restore to me the joy of your salvation, and let the Spirit of liberation sustain me.

I will teach transgressors your ways, and sinners will turn to you.

O God! God of my salvation, deliver me from so much bloodshed, [and] my tongue will loudly sing of your righteousness.

Lord, open my lips, and my mouth will declare your praise.

For you do not take pleasure in sacrifices, otherwise I would give them; burnt offerings are not pleasing to you.

The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: O God! you do not despise a broken and grieved heart.

Do good to Zion according to your kindness, [and] build up the walls of Jerusalem.

Then you will take pleasure in righteous sacrifices, in burnt offerings, and in sacrifices that are completely consumed by fire; then calves will be offered on your altar.

A Maskil of David, given to the chief musician. When Doeg the Edomite came to Saul and reported, "David has come to the house of Ahimelech," he said, "Why do you boast of evil, mighty man? The mercy of the Almighty God endures all day long."

Your tongue plots evil, it is like a sharp razor, which deceives.

You love evil more than good, [and] falsehood more than telling the truth; Selah.

You love all pernicious speech, [and] deceptive language.

Therefore the Mighty God will destroy you forever; he will take you away and tear you from your tent, and he will uproot you from the land of the living; Selah.

And the righteous will see it, and fear it, and they will laugh at such a man, [saying]:

This is the man who did not consider God his strength, but relied on his great riches, and whose strength lay in his wickedness.

But I will be in the house of God like a green olive tree. I trust in the grace of God forever and ever.

I will praise you forever for what you have done; and I will put my hope in your Name, because it is good to your beloved.

A Maskil of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Mahalath. The fool says in his heart, "There is no God." They have become corrupt; they have made their wickedness abominable; there is no one who does good.

God looked down from Heaven upon the sons of men, to see if there were any who were wise, [and] who sought God.

They all retreated, [and] all made themselves odious: there is no one who does good, not even one.

Do the workers of iniquity have no knowledge, eating my people as if they were eating bread? They do not call upon God.

They will be terrified where they had no fear before, for God has scattered the bones of him who encamps against you. You have confounded them, because God has made them contemptible.

Oh, who will bring deliverance for Israel out of Zion? When God restores his people from captivity, Jacob will rejoice, Israel will be glad.

A Maskil of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Neguinoth.

Concerning the Ziphites who came to Saul and said to him, "Is not David hiding among us? O God, deliver me by your Name, and vindicate me by your power."

O God, hear my request, [and] give ear to the words of my mouth.

For foreigners have risen up against me, and terrible people, who have no God before their eyes, seek my life; Selah.

Behold, God grants me his help; the Lord is among those who sustain my soul.

He will turn the evil back on those who spy on me; destroy them according to your truth.

I will willingly offer you a sacrifice; O Lord! I will praise your Name, for it is good.

For he has delivered me from all distress: and my eye has seen [what it wanted to see] in my enemies.

A Maskil of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Neguinoth. O God!

Give ear to my plea, and do not hide yourself from my supplication.

Listen to me, and grant my wish, I am shedding tears in my meditation and I am agitated.

Because of the noise the enemy makes, [and] because of the oppression of the wicked; for they heap every insult upon me, and they hate me to the point of fury.

My heart is in turmoil within me, as if in childbirth, and mortal fears have fallen upon me.

Fear and trembling came upon me, and terror covered me.

And I said: Oh, who would give me pigeon wings? I would fly away, and I would land somewhere.

There, I would flee far away, and I would stay in the desert; Selah.

I would hasten to protect myself from this wind stirred up by the storm.

Lord, swallow them up, divide their tongue; for I have seen violence and strife in the city.

They surround it day and night on its walls; outrage and torment are in its midst. Calamities are in its midst, and deceit and fraud do not depart from its places.

For it is not my enemy who has defamed me, otherwise I would have suffered it; [it] is not he who hates me who has risen up against me, otherwise I would have hidden myself from him.

But it was you, O man! who was esteemed as much as I, my governor, and my confidant;

We took pleasure in sharing our secrets together, and we walked together in the house of God.

May death, like an extortioner, fall upon them! May they all go down alive into the pit! For there is only evil among them in their assembly.

[But] I will cry out to God, and the Lord will deliver me.

Evening, morning, and noon I will speak and I will be moved, and he will hear my voice.

He will deliver my soul in peace from the war that is being waged against me; for I have to deal with many people.

The Mighty God will hear it and overwhelm them, for he presides from of old; Selah!

Because there is no change in them, and they do not fear God.

[Each of them] laid hands on those who lived peacefully with him, [and] violated his agreement.

The words from his mouth are softer than butter, but war is in his heart; his words are softer than oil, yet they are like naked swords.

Cast your burden on the Lord, and he will give you relief: he will never allow the righteous to fall.

But you, O God, will plunge them into the pit of destruction; bloodthirsty and deceitful men will not live out half their days, but I will trust in you.

A Mictam of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] about Jonathan-rehovich, concerning how the Philistines captured him in Gath. O God! Have mercy on me, for man [mortal] swallows me up [and] oppresses me, waging war against me all day long.

My spies have swallowed me up all day long; for, O Most High! Many are waging war against me.

On the day when I am afraid, I will put my trust in you.

I will praise God's word; I trust in God; I will not be afraid. What can the flesh do to me?

All day long they twist my words, and all their thoughts are aimed at harming me. They gather, they lie hidden, they watch my heels, waiting [how they will surprise] my soul.

Their means of escape is through outrage; O God, hurl the peoples into your wrath! You have counted my comings and goings; put my tears in your vessels; are they not written in your register?

The day I cry out to you, my enemies will turn back; I know that God is for me.

I will praise God's word; I will praise the Lord's word.

I trust in God, I will not fear; what can man do to me?

O God, your vows will be upon me; I will give you thanks.

Since you have delivered my soul from death, will you not keep my feet from stumbling, so that I may walk before God in the light of the living?

A Mictam of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] on Al-tasheth: concerning his flight from Saul in the cave. Have mercy on me; O God! Have mercy on me; for my soul departs to you, and I take refuge in the shadow of your wings, until the calamities have passed.

I will cry out to the sovereign God, to the Mighty God, who accomplishes [his work] for me.

He will send from heaven and deliver me; he will put to shame the one who would devour me; Selah. God will send his grace and his truth.

My soul is among lions; I dwell among firebrands; among men whose teeth are halberds and arrows, and whose tongue is a sharp sword.

O God! Be exalted above the heavens, [and] let your glory be over all the earth.

They had prepared a net for my steps; my soul was already bowing. They had dug a pit before me, but they fell into the midst of it; Selah.

My heart is willing, O God! My heart is willing, I will sing and psalm.

Wake up my glory, wake up bagpipe and violin, I will wake up at the dawn of day.

Lord, I will praise you among the peoples, I will sing praises to you among the nations.

For your grace is great, reaching to the heavens, and your faithfulness to the clouds.

O God! Be exalted above the heavens, [and] let your glory be over all the earth!

A Mictam of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] on Al-tasheth. Truly, you people of the assembly, do you speak what is right? You sons of men, judge yourselves with equity.

On the contrary, you plot injustices in your heart; you swing the violence of your hands onto the earth.

The wicked went astray from the womb, they wandered from the womb [of their mother], speaking falsely.

They have venom like the venom of a snake, [and] they are like the deaf asp, which plugs its ear;

He who does not listen to the voice of the enchanters, [the voice] of the charmer very skilled in charms.

O God, break the teeth in their mouths! Eternal One, break the teeth of the young lions.

Let them flow away like water, and melt away! Let [each of them] bend [his bow, but] let his arrows be as if they were broken!

Let him go away like a snail that melts! Let them not see the sun any more than a woman's stillborn child!

Before your boilers have felt the fire of the thorns, the heat of the anger, like a whirlwind, will snatch [each of them] away like raw flesh.

The righteous will rejoice when they see vengeance; they will wash their feet in the blood of the wicked.

And each one will say: In any case, there is a reward for the righteous; in any case, there is a God who judges on earth.

A Mictam of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] on Al-tasheth; concerning the thing that Saul sent [men] to spy on his house in order to kill him.

My God! Deliver me from my enemies, protect me from those who rise up against me.

Deliver me from the workers of iniquity, and keep me from bloodthirsty men.

For behold, they have set traps for me, and strong men have gathered against me, though there is no transgression or sin in me, O Lord!

They run here and there, and arrange themselves, although there is no iniquity in me; wake up to meet me, and look.

Therefore, O Lord! God of hosts, God of Israel, awake to visit all the nations; show no mercy to any of those who treacherously revile; Selah.

They come and go in the evening, they make noise like dogs, they go around the city.

There they are, evaporating in words; there are swords on their lips; for, [they say], who is it that hears us?

But you, Lord! You will laugh at them, you will mock all the nations.

Because of his strength, I wait for you; for God is my high refuge.

God who favors me will warn me, God will make me see [what I desire] in those who observe me.

Do not kill them, lest my people forget; make them wander by your power, and strike them down, Lord, who is our shield.

The sin of their mouth is the word of their lips; therefore let them be caught by their pride; for they speak only words of execration and lies.

Consume them with fury, consume them so that they are no more; and let it be known that God rules in Jacob, and to the ends of the earth; Selah.

Let them come and go in the evening, let them make noise like dogs, and let them roam around the city.

Let them exert themselves to find food, and let them spend the night without being satisfied.

But I will sing of your strength, and I will praise your unfailing love aloud from the morning, because you have been my high refuge and my shelter in the day when I was in distress.

My strength! I will sing praises to you; for God is my high refuge, [and] the God who favors me.

A Mictam of David, suitable for teaching, and given to the chief musician, to be sung to Susan-heduth. Concerning the war he had against Syria of Mesopotamia, and against Syria of Zobah; and concerning how Joab returned and defeated twelve thousand Edomites in the Valley of Salt. O God! You have rejected us, you have scattered us, you have been angry; turn back to us.

You have shaken the earth and broken it to pieces; repair its fractures, for it is bowed down.
You have shown your people hard things, you have given us wine to drink that makes us stagger.
[But since] you have given a banner to those who fear you, to raise it high for the sake of your truth; Selah.
So that those you love may be delivered. Save me with your right hand, and answer me.

God has spoken in his Sanctuary; I will rejoice; I will divide up Shechem, and I will measure out the valley of Succoth.

Gilead will be mine, Manasseh also will be mine, and Ephraim will be the strength of my leader, Judah will be my lawgiver.

Moab will be the basin where I will wash myself; I will throw my sandal in Edom; O Palestine, triumph because of me.

Who will lead me to the fortified city? Who will lead me to Edom?

Is it not you, O God! who rejected us, and who no longer went out, O God! with our armies.

Give us help [to get out] of distress; for the deliverance [that is expected] from man is vanity.

We will do valiant deeds [with the help of] God, and he will crush our enemies.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] on Neguinoth. O God, hear my cry; give heed to my plea.

I will cry out to you from the ends of the earth, when my heart faints; lead me to that rock, which is too high for me.

For you have been my refuge, and a strong tower against the enemy.

I will dwell in your Tabernacle for a long time; I will withdraw under the shadow of your wings; Selah.

For you, O God, have heard my vows, [and you have] given me the heritage of those who fear your Name.

You will add days to the King's days; [and] his years will be like many ages.

He will remain forever in the presence of God; may grace and truth preserve him!

Thus I will chant your Name forever, making vows to you every day.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, of the descendants of Jeduthun.

However, my soul finds rest in God; from him comes my salvation.

Nevertheless, he is my rock, my deliverance, and my high refuge; I shall not be entirely shaken.

How long will you plot evils against a man? You will all be put to death, and you will be like the leaning wall, [and like] a partition that has been shaken.

They only consult to bring him down from his high position; they take pleasure in falsehood; they bless with their mouths, but inwardly they curse; Selah.

But you, my soul, remain still, [looking] to God; for my hope is in him.

Nevertheless, he is my rock, my deliverance, and my high refuge; I shall not be shaken.

In God is my deliverance and my glory; in God is the rock of my strength [and] my refuge.

Peoples, trust in him at all times, pour out your hearts to him; God is our refuge; Selah.

Those of the lower estate are nothing but vanity: the nobles are nothing but lies; if they were all put together in a balance, they would be found to be lighter than vanity itself.

Do not put your trust in deceit or robbery; do not become vain; [and] when riches abound, do not set your heart on them.

God has spoken once, [and] I have heard it twice, [namely], that power belongs to God.

And to you, Lord, belongs the gift freely; surely you will repay each according to their deeds.

A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah. O God, you are my mighty one; I seek you at daybreak; my soul thirsts for you; my flesh longs for you in this desert land, weary and without water.

To see your strength and your glory, as I have beheld you in your Sanctuary.

For your grace is better than life; my lips will praise you.

And so I will bless you during my life, [and] I will lift up my hands in your Name.

My soul is satisfied as with marrow and fatness; and my mouth praises you with a song of gladness.

When I remember you in my bed, I meditate on you during the night watches.

Because you came to my aid, because of this I will rejoice in the shadow of your wings.

My soul clings to you to follow you, [and] your right hand upholds me.

But those who demand that my soul fall into ruin will descend to the lowest depths of the earth.

They will be destroyed with sword blows; they will be the portion of foxes.

But the King will rejoice in God; [and] whoever swears by him will glory in it; for the mouths of those who lie will be silenced.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. O God! Hear my voice when I cry out; preserve my life from the fear of the enemy.

Keep me hidden from the secret council of the wicked, [and] from the tumultuous assembly of the workers of iniquity;

They have sharpened their tongues like swords, and have aimed bitter words for their arrows.

In order to shoot at the righteous man even in the place where he thought he was safe; they shoot swiftly at him; and they have no fear.

They insure themselves on bad deals, [and] make speeches to hide snares; [and] they say: Who will see them?

They curiously seek out wickedness; they have probed everything that can be probed, even what may be inside man, and in the deepest heart.

But God suddenly shot his arrow against them, and they were wounded.

And they have let their own tongue fall upon themselves; they will go here and there; everyone will see them.

And all men will fear, and they will tell of the work of God, and consider what he has done.

The righteous will rejoice in the Lord and return to him; and all the upright in heart will glory in him.

A Psalm of David, a Song, given to the chief musician. O God! Praise awaits you in the silence of Zion, and your vow will be granted.

You hear the requests there, every creature will come to you.

Iniquities had prevailed over me, [but] you will make atonement for our transgressions.

How blessed is the one you have chosen and brought near to dwell in your courts! We shall be satisfied with the good things of your house, with the good things of your holy palace.

O God of our deliverance, you will answer us with terrible things, [done] with justice, you who are the assurance of all the ends of the earth, and of the furthest seas.

He holds the mountains firm by his strength, [and] he is girded with power.

It soothes the noise of the sea, the sound of its waves, and the emotion of the people.

And those who dwell at the ends of the earth are afraid of your wonders; you make the East and the West glad.

You visit the earth, [and] after you have made it thirsty, you enrich it abundantly; the stream of God is full of water; you prepare their grain, after you have thus arranged it.

You water its furrows, and you level its rays; you soften it with the light rain, and you bless its bud.

You crown the year with your bounty, and your ruts cause the fat to flow.

They pour it down on the desert lodges, and the hills are girded with joy.

The fields are covered with flocks, and the valleys are covered with wheat; they triumph over it, and they sing of it.

A Psalm, [given] to the chief musician. All the earth, shout for joy to God.

Sing the praises of his Name, and give him glorious praise.

Say to God: Oh, how terrible you are in your exploits! Your enemies will lie to you because of the greatness of your strength.

All the earth will bow down before you and praise you; they will praise your name; Selah.

Come and see the works of God: he is awesome in his deeds against the sons of men.

He made the sea dry land; we crossed the river on dry land; [and] there we rejoiced in him.

He rules by his power forever; his eyes watch over the nations; the stubborn will not be able to rise; Selah.

Peoples, bless our God, and let the sound of his praise resound.

It is he who has given our souls life again, and who has not allowed our feet to stumble.

For, O God! you had searched us, you had refined us like silver.

You had led us to the nets, you had embraced our loins.

You had made men ride over our heads, and we had entered through fire and water; but you brought us into a fertile place.

I will enter your house with burnt offerings; [and] I will pay you back my vows.

Which my lips uttered, and which my mouth pronounced, when I was in distress.

I will offer you burnt offerings of tender beasts, with the fat of sheep, which is burned; I will sacrifice bulls and goats to you; Selah.

All you who fear God, come and listen, and I will tell you what he has done to my soul.

I invoked him with my mouth, and he was exalted by my tongue.

If I had harbored any insult in my heart, the Lord would not have listened to me.

But surely God has heard me, [and] he has been attentive to the voice of my supplication.

Blessed be God who has not rejected my supplication, and who has not withheld his grace from me.

A Psalm of Songs, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Neguinoth. May God have mercy on us, and bless us, [and] make his face shine upon us! Selah.

So that your way may be known in the earth, [and] your deliverance among all nations.

The peoples will praise you, O God! All the peoples will praise you.

The peoples will rejoice and sing for joy, because you will judge the peoples in equity and guide the nations on earth; Selah.

The peoples will praise you, O God, all the peoples will praise you.

The earth will produce its fruit; God, our God, will bless us.

God will bless us; and all the ends of the earth will fear him.

A Psalm of Songs, of David, [given] to the chief musician. Let God arise, and his enemies shall be scattered, and those who hate him shall flee from his presence.

You will drive them out as smoke is driven out [by the wind]; as wax melts before the fire, [so] the wicked will perish before God.

But the righteous will rejoice and be glad before God, and will exult with joy.

Sing to God, sing praises to his Name, exalt him who ascended to heaven; his Name is the Lord; and rejoice before him.

He is the father of orphans, and the judge of widows; God is in his holy dwelling.

God makes those who were alone dwell in families; he delivers those who were chained, but the stubborn remain in a desert land.

O God! When you went out before your people, when you marched through the desert; Selah.

The earth trembled, and the heavens poured out their waters because of the presence of God; this Mount Sinai [trembled] because of the presence of God, the God of Israel.

O God! You have sent abundant rain upon your inheritance; and when it was weary, you have restored it.

Your flock remained there. You accommodate the afflicted one from your bounty, O God!

The Lord gave something to speak about; the messengers of good news were a great army.

The kings of the armies fled from it, they fled from it, and she who stayed at home divided the spoils.

When you have lain down between the arranged andirons, [you will be like] the wings of a dove covered in silver, and whose wings are [like] the yellow color of fine gold.

When the Almighty scattered the Kings in this [inheritance], it became white, like the snow that is in Tsalmon.

The mountain of God is a mountain of Bashan; a high mountain, a mountain of Bashan. Why do you insult him, you lofty mountains? God desired this mountain to dwell in, and the Lord will abide there forever.

The knighthood of God is numbered in twenty thousand, in thousands doubled; the Lord is in their midst; it is a Sinai in holiness.

You ascended on high, you led captives away, you took gifts [to distribute] among men, and even among the rebels, so that they might dwell [in the place] of the Lord God.

Blessed be the Lord, who daily fills us with his blessings; the Mighty God is our deliverance; Selah.

The Mighty God is a Mighty God to deliver us, and the ways out of death belong to the Lord.

Surely God will crush the head of his enemies, the crown of the hairy head of the one who walks in his vices.

The Lord said: I will bring [my people] back from Bashan, I will bring them back from the depths of the sea.

So that your foot and the tongue of your dogs may sink into the blood of the enemies, [into the blood] of each of them.

O God! They have seen your steps in the holy place, the steps of my [God] Mighty, my King.

The singers went in front, then the instrumentalists, [and] in the middle the young girls, playing the drum.

Bless God in the assemblies, [bless] the Lord, you who are of the source of Israel.

There Benjamin the little one ruled over them; the leaders of Judah were their burden of stones: [there ruled] the leaders of Zebulun, [and] the leaders of Naphtali.

Your God has commanded your strength. Give us strength, O God; it is you who have done this for us.

In your Temple in Jerusalem, the Kings will bring you gifts.

He harshly rebukes the wild beasts of the reeds, the assembly of strong bulls, and the calves of the peoples, [and] those who display themselves adorned with silver blades. He has scattered the peoples who only ask for war.

Great lords will come from Egypt; Cush will hasten to stretch out his hands to God.

Kingdoms of the earth, sing to God, sing psalms to the Lord; Selah.

[Sing psalms] to him who ascended into the heavens of old; behold, he utters a mighty sound with his voice.

Attribute strength to God; his majesty is over Israel, and his power is in the clouds.

O God! You are feared because of your sanctuaries. The Mighty God of Israel is the one who gives strength and power to his people; Blessed be God!

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Sossannim. Deliver me, O God, for the waters have come up into my soul.

I am sunk in a deep quagmire, in which there is nowhere to find a foothold; I have entered the deepest waters, and the overflowing stream of water carries me away.

I am weary of crying out, my throat is parched; my eyes are consumed while I wait for my God.

Those who hate me without cause, many a hair of my head; those who seek to ruin me, and who are enemies to me unjustly, have grown stronger: I have then given back what I had not taken.

O God! You know my folly, and my sins are not hidden from you.

O Lord, Eternal of hosts! let not those who trust in you be put to shame because of me; [and] let not those who seek you be confounded because of me, O God of Israel!

For love of you I have suffered disgrace, shame has covered my face.

I have become a stranger to my brothers, and an outsider to my mother's children.

For zeal for your house has consumed me, and the insults of those who insulted you have fallen upon me.

And I wept while fasting, but it was held against me as a reproach.

I also took a bag for clothes, but I was a subject of ridicule for them.

Those who sit at the gate talk about me, and I serve as a song to drunkards.

But my request is to you, O Lord! There is a time of your good pleasure, O God, according to the greatness of your grace. Answer me according to the truth of your deliverance.

Deliver me from the mire, do not let me sink into it, and let me be delivered from those who hate me, and from the deep waters.

May the overflowing waters not sweep me away, and may the abyss not swallow me up, and may the pit not close its mouth upon me.

O Lord! Hear me, for your grace is good; turn your face toward me according to the greatness of your compassion;

And do not hide your face from your servant, for I am in distress: hasten, answer me.

Draw near to my soul, redeem it; deliver me because of my enemies.

You yourself know my reproach, and my shame, and my disgrace; all my enemies are before you.

Shame has torn my heart, and I languish; I waited for someone to have compassion on me, but there was none; and I waited for comforters, but I found none.

On the contrary, they gave me gall for my meal; and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.

May their table be a net spread before them; and may what leads to prosperity be a snare for them.

Let their eyes be so darkened that they cannot see; and make their backs continually waver.

Pour out your indignation upon them, and let the heat of your anger seize them.

May their palace be desolate, and may no one dwell in their tents.

For they persecute the one you struck, and they tell tales of the pain of those you wounded.

Add iniquity upon their iniquity; and let them not enter into your righteousness.

May they be blotted out of the Book of Life, and may they not be written with the righteous.

But for me, who am afflicted and in pain, your deliverance, O God! will lift me up to a high refuge.

I will praise the Name of God with songs, and I will magnify Him with solemn praise.

And this will please the Lord more than a bull, more than a calf that has horns and a divided hoof.

The meek will see it, [and] they will rejoice, and your heart will live, [the heart, I say, of all of you] who seek God.

For the Lord hears the afflicted, and does not despise his prisoners.

Let the heavens and the earth praise him; let the sea and everything that moves in it praise him also.

For God will deliver Zion, and rebuild the cities of Judah; they will inhabit it, and possess it.

And the offspring of his servants will inherit it, and those who love his name will abide in it.

A Psalm of David, for remembrance, [given] to the chief musician. O God! [hasten] to deliver me; O God! hasten to help me.

Let those who seek my soul be ashamed and blush; and let those who take pleasure in my evil be cast back and confounded.

Let those who say: Aha! Aha! turn back for the reward of the shame they have brought upon me.

May all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you; and may those who love your deliverance always say: Magnificent be God!

But I am afflicted and miserable; O God! hasten to come to me; you are my help and my deliverer; O Lord! do not delay.

Eternal One! I have withdrawn to you, grant that I may never be put to shame.

Deliver me by your justice, and protect me: incline your ear to me, and set me safe.

Be my rock of refuge, so that I may always withdraw to it; you have commanded me to be safe; for you are my rock, and my fortress.

My God! Deliver me from the hand of the wicked, from the hand of the perverse, and from the oppressor.

For you are my expectation, Lord Eternal! [and] my trust from my youth.

I have relied on you since [my mother's] womb; you brought me forth from my mother's womb; you are the subject of my continual praise.

I've been treated like a monster by many; but you are my strong refuge.

May my mouth be filled with your praise and your magnificence every day.

Do not cast me off in the time of my old age; do not forsake me now that my strength is spent.

For my enemies have spoken against me, and those who spy on my soul have taken counsel together;

Saying: God has abandoned him; pursue him and seize him, for there is no one who will deliver him.

O God! Do not be far from me; my God, hasten to my aid.

May those who are enemies of my soul be put to shame and defeated; and may those who seek my harm be covered with reproach and shame.

But I will always live in hope in you, and I will praise you more and more each day.

My mouth will tell of your righteousness every day, [and] of your deliverance, though I do not know their number.

I will walk by the strength of the Eternal Lord; I will proclaim your righteousness alone.

O God! You have taught me from my youth, and I have proclaimed your wonders to this day.

[I have proclaimed them] even to old age, even to gray old age; O God! do not forsake me until I have proclaimed your arm to this generation, and your power to all who come after.

For your righteousness, O God, is highly exalted, because you have done great things.

O God, who is like you?

Who, having shown me many distresses and many evils, restored me to life again, and brought me up out of the depths of the earth?

You will increase my greatness, and you will comfort me again.

Therefore, my God! I will praise you for the love of your truth with the instrument of the bagpipe; O Holy One of Israel, I will sing psalms to you with the harp.

My lips and my soul, which you have redeemed, will sing with joy when I sing psalms to you.

My tongue will also speak of your righteousness all day long, because those who seek my harm will be ashamed and blush.

For Solomon. O God, give your judgments to the King, and your righteousness to the King's son.

May he judge your people justly, and those of your people who will be afflicted fairly.

May the mountains bring peace to the people, and may the hills bring justice.

May he do justice to the afflicted among the people; may he deliver the children of the wretched, and may he crush the oppressor!

They will fear you as long as the sun and the moon last, throughout all ages.

It will fall like rain on the new growth, and like the same rain on the cut grass of the earth.

In his time the righteous will flourish, and there will be abundant peace, until the moon is no more.

He will even rule from one sea to the other, and from the river to the ends of the earth.

The inhabitants of the deserts will bow before him, and his enemies will lick the dust.

The kings of Tarshish and of the islands will present him with gifts; the kings of Sheba and Seba will bring him presents.

All kings will bow down before him, all nations will serve him.

For he will deliver the poor who cry out to him, and the afflicted, and him who has no one to help him.

He will have compassion on the poor and the wretched, and he will save the souls of the wretched.

He will protect their souls from fraud and violence, and their blood will be precious in his sight.

He will therefore live, and they will give him gold from Sheba, and they will continually offer prayers for him; and they will bless him every day.

A handful of wheat sown in the earth, on the tops of the mountains, its fruit will make a noise like [the trees] of Lebanon; and [men] will flourish through the cities, like the grass of the earth.

His fame will last forever; his fame will pass from father to son as long as the sun lasts; and in him people will be blessed; all nations will proclaim him blessed.

Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who alone does marvelous things!

Blessed be the Name of His glory forever, and may the whole earth be filled with His glory. Amen! Yes, Amen!

[Here] end the prayers of David, son of Jesse.

A Psalm of Asaph. In any case, God is good to Israel, [namely], to those who are pure in heart.

As for me, my feet almost failed me, [and] it was a close call that my steps almost slipped.

For I envied the foolish when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

Because there is no anguish in their death, but their strength is complete.

They are not in labor with [other] men, nor are they beaten with [other] men.

That is why pride surrounds them like a necklace, and a garment of violence covers them.

Their eyes bulge out from their fatness; they surpass the designs of their heart. They are pernicious, and speak maliciously of oppression; they speak as if they were in a high place.

They set their mouths to the heavens, and their tongues roam the earth.

That is why his people keep coming back to this, when they are made to suck water from a full [glass].

And they say, how can the Mighty One know, and can the Sovereign have knowledge? These people are wicked, and being at ease in this world, they acquire more and more wealth.

In any case, it is in vain that I have purified my heart, and washed my hands in innocence.

For I was beaten every day, and my punishment returned every morning.

[But] when I said, I will speak thus, behold, I have been unfaithful to the generation of your children.

However, I tried to find out about this; but it seemed very difficult to me.

Until I entered the sanctuary of the Mighty God, and considered the end of such people.

In any case, you put them in slippery places, you are making them fall into precipices.

How were they destroyed in such a moment? Did they faint? Were they consumed by terror?

They are like a dream when one wakes up. Lord, you will despise their likeness when you wake up.

[Or] when my heart grew sour, and I was tormented in my loins;

I was stupid then, and I had no knowledge; I was like a brute in your presence.

I will therefore always be with you; you have taken me by the right hand,

You will guide me with your counsel, and then you will receive me into glory.

Who else do I have in Heaven? Yet I have taken pleasure on earth in nothing but you alone.

My flesh and my heart were consumed; but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever.

For behold, those who turn away from you shall perish; you shall cut off all those who turn away from you.

But for me, it is good to be near God; I have put all my hope in the Eternal Lord, so that I may recount all your works.

Maskil of Asaph. O God, why have you rejected us forever? And why are you so angry with the flock of your pasture?

Remember your assembly which you acquired from ancient times. You appropriated this mountain of Zion, on which you dwelt, [so that it might be] your portion of inheritance.

Advance your steps towards the perpetual hovels; the enemy has overthrown everything in the Holy Place.

Your adversaries have roared in the midst of your Synagogues; they have set up their signs as signs.

There everyone was seen raising their axes high through the intertwined wood.

And now, with handles and hammers, they break off his notches together.

They set fire to your sanctuaries, and desecrated the Pavilion dedicated to your Name, [bringing it down] to the ground.

They said in their hearts: let us destroy them all together; they burned all the Synagogues of the [God] Mighty on earth.

We no longer see our signs; there are no more Prophets; and there is no one with us who knows how long.

O God! How long will the adversary heap reproach upon you? Will the enemy despise your Name forever?

Why do you withdraw your hand, even your right hand? Consume them by pulling it from the middle of your breast.

But God is my King from of old, who delivers in the midst of the earth.

You divided the sea by your strength; you broke the heads of the whales on the waters.

You have broken the heads of Leviathan, you have given it as meat to the people who live in the deserts.

You opened the fountain and the torrent, you dried up the great rivers.

Yours is the day, and yours also is the night; you have established the light and the sun.

You have set all the boundaries of the earth; you have formed Summer and Winter.

Remember this, that the enemy has blasphemed the Lord, and that a foolish people have insulted your Name.

Do not abandon to the troop [of such people] the soul of your turtledove, do not forget forever the troop of your afflicted.

Look to your covenant; for the dark places of the earth are full of booths of violence.

[Do not allow] the one who is trampled to return in shame, and make the afflicted and the poor praise your Name.

O God! Arise, defend your cause, remember the reproach that is heaped upon you daily by the fool.

Do not forget the cry of your adversaries; the noise of those who rise up against you continually ascends.

A Psalm of Asaph, a song [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] on Altasheth. O God! We have praised you; we have praised you; and your Name was near us; your wonderful deeds have been recounted.

When I have accepted the summons, I will judge fairly.

The land was sinking, along with all who lived in it; but I have strengthened its pillars; Selah.

I said to the foolish, 'Do not act foolishly,' and to the wicked, 'Do not be proud.'

Do not feign dominance, and do not speak with pride.

For elevation does not come from the East, nor from the West, nor from the desert.

For it is God who governs; he humbles one and exalts another.

Even there is a cup in the hand of the Lord, and the wine reddens within it; it is full of mixture, and [God] pours it out; surely all the wicked of the earth will suck it up and drink the dregs.

But I will tell of it forever; I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

I will humble all the wicked, but the righteous will be exalted.

A Psalm of Asaph, a song [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] on Neguineth.

God is known in Judea, his fame is great in Israel;

And his tabernacle is in Salem, and his dwelling place is in Zion.

There he broke the shining bows, the shield, the sword, and the battle; Selah.

You are resplendent, [and] more magnificent than the mountains of devastation.

The bravest among them were stunned, they were in a deep sleep, and none of these valiant men could find their hands.

O God of Jacob, the chariots and the horses were asleep when you rebuked them.

You are terrible; and who can stand before you when your anger is unleashed?

You have proclaimed judgment from heaven; the earth was afraid and remained silent.

When you arose, O God, to judge, to deliver all the meek of the earth; Selah.

Surely the anger of man will return to your praise: you will bind the rest of [these] violent men.

Vow, and make vows to the Lord your God, all you who are around him, [and] let gifts be brought to the Awesome One.

He cuts off the lives of leaders; he is fearsome to the kings of the earth.

A Psalm of Asaph, [given] to the chief musician, of the descendants of Jeduthun. My voice cries out to God, and I will cry for help; my voice cries out to God, and he will hear me.

I sought the Lord in the day of my distress: my wound flowed throughout the night, and did not cease; my soul refused to be comforted.

I remembered God, and I was tormented: I made noise, and my spirit was frozen; Selah.

You had kept my eyes awake, I was very confused, and couldn't speak.

I was thinking about days gone by, and the years of centuries past.

I remembered my night melody, I meditated in my heart, and my mind searched diligently, [saying];

Has the Lord rejected me forever? And will he no longer be pleased with me?

Has its gratuitousness disappeared forever? Has its word ceased for all ages?

Has the Mighty God forgotten to have mercy? Has he, in anger, closed the door of his compassion? Selah.

Then I said: this is precisely what weakens me; [but] the right hand of the Sovereign changes.

I remembered the exploits of the Lord; I remembered, I said, your wonders of old.

And I have meditated on all your works, and I have spoken of your exploits, [saying]:

O God! Your way is in [Your] Sanctuary. Who is [God] Mighty, [and] great like God?

You are the Mighty God who does wonders; you have made your strength known among the peoples.

You have delivered your people with your arm, the children of Jacob and Joseph; Selah.

The waters saw you, O God! The waters saw you, [and] trembled, even the depths were shaken.

The clouds poured down a deluge of water; the clouds made their sound resound; your arrows also flew to and fro.

The sound of your thunder was accompanied by rumbling, lightning illuminated the habitable land, the earth was moved and trembled.

Your way was by the sea, and your paths through the mighty waters, yet your footprints were not seen.

You led your people like a flock, under the guidance of Moses and Aaron.

Maskil of Asaph. My people, listen to my Law, give ear to the words of my mouth.

I will open my mouth in similarities: I will reveal the notable things of bygone times.

Which we have heard and known, and which our fathers have told us.

We will not hide them from their children, [and] they will tell the coming generation the praises of the Lord, and his strength, and his wonders which he has done.

For he established the testimony in Jacob, and he put the Law in Israel; and he commanded our fathers to teach them to their children.

So that the coming generation, the children, [I say], who would be born, would know them, [and] that they would make it their duty to tell them to their children;

And so that they may put their trust in God, and not forget the exploits of the Mighty One, and keep his commandments.

And that they would not be, like their fathers, a stubborn and rebellious generation, a generation that did not submit its heart, and whose spirit was not faithful to the Mighty God.

The children of Ephraim, armed between the archers, turned their backs on the day of the battle.

They did not keep God's covenant, and refused to walk according to his Law.

And they forgot his exploits and the wonders he had shown them.

He performed miracles in the presence of their fathers in the land of Egypt, in the territory of Zohan.

He divided the sea, and made them pass through, and made the waters stand still like a heap [of stones].

And he led them by day with a cloud, and all night with a light of fire.

He split the rocks in the desert, and gave them abundant drink, as if [he had drawn] from the depths.

He made, I say, streams flow from the rock, and made waters flow out like rivers.

However, they continued to sin against him, provoking the Sovereign in the desert.

And they tested the [God] Mighty in their hearts, asking for meat that would satisfy their appetite.

They spoke against God, saying, "Could the Mighty God prepare a table for us in this desert?"

"Look," they said, "he struck the rock, and the waters gushed out, and torrents flowed abundantly, but could he also give us bread? Would he prepare meat for his people?"

Therefore, when the Lord heard them, he became very angry, and fire was kindled against Jacob, and his anger was aroused against Israel.

Because they had not believed in God, nor trusted in his deliverance.

Although he had given command to the clouds above, and had opened the gates of heaven;

And that he had rained down manna on them so that they might eat of it, and that he had given them the wheat from heaven;

So much so that everyone was eating the bread of the powerful. He therefore sent them meat to satisfy their hunger.

He stirred up the east wind in the heavens, and by his power he brought in the south wind.

And he rained down upon them flesh like dust, and flying birds, in a quantity like the sand of the sea.

And he caused it to fall in the middle of their camp, [and] around their pavilions.

And they ate it, and were fully satisfied, for he had granted their wish.

[But] they had not yet lost the desire, and their meat was still in their mouths.

When God's anger was aroused against them, and he put to death the fat men among them, and struck down the elite people of Israel.

Nevertheless, they sinned again, and added no faith to his wonders.

That is why he suddenly consumed their days, and their years swiftly.

When he put them to death, then they sought him, they repented, and they sought the Mighty God early in the morning.

And they remembered that God was their rock, and that the Mighty and Sovereign [God] was the one who delivered them.

But they put on a good show with their mouths, and they lied to him with their tongues;

For their hearts were not right toward him, and they were not faithful in his covenant.

However, because he is merciful, he forgave their iniquity, so much so that he did not destroy them, but he often appeased his anger, and did not unleash all his fury.

And he remembered that they were only flesh, like a passing wind that does not return.

How many times did they anger him in the desert, and how many times did they annoy him in that uninhabitable place?

For one after another they tested the Mighty God; and they restrained the Holy One of Israel.

They did not remember his hand, nor the day he delivered them from the hand of him who afflicted them.

They did not remember him who had performed his signs in Egypt, and his miracles in the territory of Zohan:

And who had turned their rivers and streams into blood, so that they could not drink from them.

And who had sent against them a multitude of beasts, which ate them; and frogs, which destroyed them.

And who had given their fruit to the worms, and their labor to the grasshoppers. Who had destroyed their vineyards with hail, and their sycamore trees with storms. And who had delivered their cattle to the hail, and their flocks to the flashing lightning.

Who had sent upon them the fierceness of his anger, great anger, indignation and distress, [which are] a sending of messengers of evil.

Who had prepared the way for his anger, and had not delivered their soul from death; and who had given their livestock over to death.

And who had struck every firstborn in Egypt, the first signs of vigor in the tents of Ham.

Who had led his people out like sheep; and who had guided them through the desert like a flock.

And who had led them safely, and without them having any fear, to where the sea covered their enemies.

And who had brought them into the land of His Holiness, [namely] into this mountain which His right hand has conquered.

And who had driven out from before them the nations, whom he had given as an inheritance allotted to them, and had made the Tribes of Israel dwell in the tents of those nations.

But they tested and angered the Sovereign God, and did not keep his testimonies.

And they turned back, and acted unfaithfully, just like their fathers; they fell over like a deceiving bow.

And they provoked him to anger with their high places, and stirred him to jealousy with their sculpted images.

God heard it, and was very angry, and he greatly despised Israel.

And he left the pavilion at Shiloh, the Tabernacle where he dwelt among men.

And he surrendered his strength and his adornment into the hands of the enemy.

And he delivered his people to the sword and was very angry with his heritage.

The fire consumed their elite people, and their virgins were not praised.

Their priests fell by the sword, and their widows did not mourn them.

Then the Lord awoke like a man who had fallen asleep, and like a mighty man who cries out, still having wine in his head.

And he struck his adversaries from behind, and put them in perpetual disgrace.

But he scorned the Tabernacle of Joseph, and did not choose the Tribe of Ephraim.

But he has chosen the Tribe of Judah, the mountain of Zion, which he loves;

And he built his Sanctuary like high [buildings], and established it as the earth which he founded forever.

And he chose David, his servant, and took him from the sheepfolds;

[He took him, I say,] from the nursing ewes, and brought him to shepherd Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance.

Therefore he fed them according to the integrity of his heart, and guided them by the wise direction of his hands.

A Psalm of Asaph. O God! The nations have entered into your inheritance; they have profaned the Temple of your Holiness, they have reduced Jerusalem to heaps of stones.

The dead bodies of your servants have been given as food to the birds of the air, and the flesh of your beloved ones to the beasts of the earth.

Their blood was poured out like water around Jerusalem, and there was no one to bury them.

We have been a reproach to our neighbors, a laughingstock and a scorn to those who live around us.

How long, O Lord, will you be angry forever? Will your jealousy burn like a fire?

Pour out your wrath on the nations that do not know you, and on the kingdoms that do not call upon your name.

For they devoured Jacob, and they ravaged his dwellings.

Do not remind us of the iniquities committed before; [and] let your compassion come before us; for we have become very weak.

O God of our deliverance, help us for the sake of the glory of your Name, and deliver us; and forgive us our sins for the sake of your Name.

Why should the nations say, "Where is their God?" Let vengeance for the blood of your servants, which has been shed, be manifested among the nations in our sight.

Let the groaning of the prisoners come before you, [but] reserve, according to the greatness of your power, those who are already condemned to death.

And repay our neighbors, in their midst, seven times double the reproach they have done to you, O Eternal One!

But we, your people, and the flock of your pasture, will praise you forever, from generation to generation, and will recount your praise.

A Psalm of Asaph, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Sosannim-heduth. You who shepherd Israel, give ear; you who lead Joseph like a flock; you who sit enthroned among the cherubim, shine forth your splendor.

Awaken your power before Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh; and come for our deliverance.

O God! Restore us, and let your face shine upon us; and we shall be delivered.

O Lord, God of hosts, how long will you be angry with the plea of your people?

You have fed them with the bread of tears, and you have given them tears to drink in abundance.

You have made us a subject of contention among our neighbors, and our enemies mock us among themselves.

O God of hosts, restore us, and let your face shine upon us; and we shall be delivered.

You had brought a vineyard out of Egypt; you had driven out the nations, and you had planted it.

You had prepared a place before it, you had made it take root, and it had filled the earth.

The mountains were covered with its shade, and its branches were like tall cedars.

It had spread its branches to the sea, and its offshoots to the river.

Why did you break down its walls, so that all the passers-by picked the grapes?

The wild boars from the forest destroyed it, and all sorts of wild beasts grazed on it.

O God of hosts, return, I pray you; look down from heaven, see, and visit this vine;

And the plant that your right hand had planted, and the provins that you had made strong for you.

She is burned by fire, she is cut off; they perish as soon as you appear to rebuke them.

Let your hand be upon the man of your right hand, upon the son of man whom you have strengthened.

And we will not turn back from you. Restore our lives, and we will call upon your Name.

O Lord! God of hosts, restore us, [and] let your face shine; that we may be delivered.

A Psalm of Asaph, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Gittith. Sing joyfully to God, our strength; shout aloud to the God of Jacob.

Sing the Song of Songs, take up the drum, the pleasant harp, and the bagpipe.

Sound the trumpet at the new moon, at the solemnity, for the day of our feast.

For it is a statute in Israel, an ordinance of the God of Jacob.

He established this as a testimony in Joseph, when he went out against the land of Egypt, where I heard a language I did not understand.

I removed, [he said], his shoulders from under the load, and his hands were removed from behind the pots.

You cried out in distress, and I delivered you; I answered you from the midst of the thundering cloud; I tested you at the waters of Meribah; Selah.

Listen, my people, I will summon you; Israel, if you would only listen to me!

There shall be no foreign god among you, and you shall not bow down to the gods of foreigners.

I am the Lord your God, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt; open your mouth wide, and I will fill it.

But my people did not listen to my voice, and Israel did not submit to my will.

That is why I abandoned them to the hardness of their hearts, and they walked according to their own advice.

Oh, if only my people had listened to me! If only Israel had walked in my ways!

I would have struck down their enemies in an instant, and I would have turned my hand against their adversaries.

Those who hate the Lord would have lied to him, and the time [for my people] would have been forever.

And [God] would have nourished him with the marrow of wheat; and I would have, [he said], satisfied you with the honey [that distills] from the rock.

A Psalm of Asaph. God attends in the assembly of the mighty; he judges in the midst of the judges.

How long will you judge unjustly, and show partiality to the wicked? Selah.

Defend the rights of the oppressed and the orphan; do justice to the afflicted and the poor;

Deliver the oppressed and the needy, rescue them from the hand of the wicked.

They neither know nor hear anything; they walk in darkness, all the foundations of the earth are shaken.

I said: you are gods, and you are all children of the Sovereign;

However, you will die like men, and you who are the leaders will fall like anyone else.

O God! Arise, judge the earth; for you shall inherit all the nations.

A Song and Psalm of Asaph. O God! Do not be silent, do not keep quiet, and do not remain at rest, [O Mighty God!]

For behold, your enemies are roaring; and those who hate you have raised their heads.

They secretly plotted against your people, and they held counsel against those who have retreated to you to hide.

They said, "Come, let us destroy them, so that they will no longer be a nation, and the name of Israel will no longer be mentioned."

For they conspired together with one mind; they formed an alliance against you.

The tents of the Idumeans, the Ishmaelites, the Moabites, and the Hagrites; the Gebalites, the Hammonites, the Hamalekites, and the Philistines, along with the inhabitants of Tyre.

Assur also joined them; they served as arms for the children of Lot: Selah.

Do to them as you did to Midian, as you did to Sisera, and as you did to Jabin by the Kishon River;

Who were defeated at Hen-dor, and served as manure for the earth.

Make their chiefs like Horeb and Zeeb, and all their princes like Zebah and Zalmunah;

Because they said: Let us conquer the pleasant dwellings of God.

My God! make them like a ball, and like stubble driven by the wind;

Like fire burns a forest, and like flame sets mountains ablaze.

Pursue them thus with your storm, and terrify them with your whirlwind.

Cover their faces with shame, so that they may seek your Name, O Eternal One!

May they be ashamed and dismayed forever, may they blush, and may they perish;
So that it may be known that you alone, whose name is the Lord, are Sovereign over all the earth.

A Psalm of the Children of Korah, [given] to the chief musician, [to be sung] to Gittith. O Lord of hosts, how lovely are your tabernacles!

My soul yearns earnestly, even faints for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh rejoice in the living and strong God.

Even the sparrow has found its home, and the swallow its nest, where it has laid its young; your altars, O Lord of hosts, my King and my God!

How blessed are those who dwell in your house, and who praise you continually! Selah.

Oh, how blessed is the man whose strength is in you, and those in whose hearts are the beaten paths!

Passing through the Baca valley they reduce it to a fountain; the rain also fills the marshes.

They march with strength to present themselves before God in Zion.

Eternal God of hosts, hear my request; God of Jacob, give ear; Selah.

O God, our shield, see, and look upon the face of your Anointed One.

For one day in your courts is better than a thousand elsewhere. I would rather be a gatekeeper in the house of my God than dwell in the tents of the wicked.

For the Lord God is a sun and shield to us; the Lord bestows favor and honor, and withholds no good thing from those who walk in integrity.

Lord of hosts, how blessed is the man who trusts in you!

A Psalm of the Children of Korah, [given] to the chief musician. Lord, you have had peace with your land; you have restored and given rest to the prisoners of Jacob.

You have forgiven the iniquity of your people, [and] you have covered all their sins;
Selah.

You have withdrawn all your anger, you have returned from the heat of your indignation.

O God of our deliverance, restore us, and put an end to the anger that you have against us.

Will you be angry with us forever? Will you prolong your anger from age to age?

Will you not return to give us life, so that your people may rejoice in you?

Eternal One, show us your mercy, and grant us your deliverance.

I will listen to what the Mighty God, the Lord, will say; for he will speak peace to his people and to his beloved, but they will never return to their folly.

Surely his deliverance is near to those who fear him, so that glory may dwell in our land.

Goodness and truth have met; justice and peace have embraced.

Truth will spring up from the earth, and justice will look down from heaven.

The Lord will also provide good things, so much so that our land will yield its fruit.

Justice will go before him, and he will establish it wherever he goes.

David's plea. Lord, hear me, answer me; for I am afflicted and miserable.

Guard my soul, for I am one of your beloved; O my God, deliver your servant, who trusts in you.

Lord, have mercy on me, for I cry out to you all day long.

Rejoice the soul of your servant; for I lift up my soul to you, Lord.

Because you, O Lord, are good and merciful, and very kind to all who call on you.

Eternal One, give ear to my prayer, and listen to the voice of my supplications.

I call upon you in the day of my distress, for you answer me.

Lord, there is none among the gods like you, nor are there any works like yours.

Lord, all the nations you have made will come and worship before you and glorify your Name;

For you are great, and you do wonderful things; you alone are God.

Eternal One! Teach me your ways, and I will walk in your truth; bind my heart to the fear of your Name.

Lord my God, I will praise you with all my heart, and I will glorify your Name forever.

For your kindness is great towards me, and you have delivered my soul from a deep grave.

O God! Proud people have risen up against me, and a band of terrible people, who have not had you before their eyes, have sought my life.

But you, Lord, are the [God] who is strong, compassionate, merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in goodness and truth.

Turn to me, and have mercy on me; give your strength to your servant, and deliver the son of your maidservant.

Show me some sign of your favor, so that those who hate me may see it and be ashamed, because you have helped me, O Lord, and comforted me.

A psalm of the song of the children of Korah. Its foundation is in the holy mountains.

The Lord loves the gates of Zion more than all the tabernacles of Jacob.

What is said about you, City of God, are glorious things; Selah.

I will mention Rahab and Babylon among those who know me; here are Palestine, Tyre, and Cush. This one, [it was said], was born there.

But of Zion it will be said: This one and that one was born there; and the Sovereign himself will establish it.

When the Lord records the peoples, he will also number these, [and he will say]: this one was born there; Selah.

And the singers, as well as the flute players, [and] all my springs will be in you.

Maskil of Heman Ezrahite, [which is] a Song of Psalms, [given] to the chief musician from among the descendants of Korah, [to sing] to Mahalath-lehannoth. O Lord! God of my salvation, I cry out before you day and night.

Let my prayer come into your presence; open your ear to my cry.

For my soul has had its fill of woes, and my life has come down to the grave.

I have been placed among those who go down to the pit; I have become like a man who has no more strength;

Placed among the dead, like the mortally wounded lying in the tomb, whom you no longer remember, and who are cut off by your hand.

You put me in the lowest pit, in dark places, in deep places.

Your fury has been hurled upon me, and you have overwhelmed me with all your waves; Selah.

You have removed from me those by whom I was known, you have made me an extreme abomination before them; I am so confined that I cannot get out.

My eye is weary with grief; O Lord! I cry out to you all day long, I stretch out my hands to you.

Will you perform a miracle for the dead? Or will the departed rise to praise you? Selah.

Will they recount your mercy in the grave? [and] your faithfulness in the tomb?

Will your wonders be known in the darkness, and your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

But I, O Eternal One! I cry out to you; my prayer comes before you early in the morning.

Eternal One! Why have you rejected my soul? Why have you hidden your face from me?

I am afflicted and as if giving up the ghost from my youth; I have been exposed to your terrors, and I do not know where I stand.

The heat of your [anger] has passed over me, and your fears have cut me off.

They surrounded me all day long like waters; they all surrounded me together.

You have taken away from me my friend, even my close friend, and those with whom I am known are darkness to me.

Maskil of Ethan Ezrahite. I will sing of the Lord's goodness forever; with my mouth I will declare your faithfulness from generation to generation.

For I said: your goodness continues forever, [like] the heavens, you established your faithfulness in them [when you said]:

I have made a covenant with my chosen one, I have sworn an oath to David my servant, [saying]:

I will establish your descendants forever, and I will establish your throne from generation to generation; Selah.

And the heavens praise your wonders, O Eternal One! Your faithfulness also is praised in the assembly of the Saints.

For who is above the clouds who can be compared to the Lord? Who is like the Lord among the mighty?

The Mighty [God] becomes extremely terrible in the secret Council of Saints; he is more feared than all those around him.

O Eternal God of hosts, who is like you, mighty Eternal? Therefore your faithfulness surrounds you.

You have power over the raising of the sea's waves; when its waves rise, you make them subside.

You struck down Rahab like a man mortally wounded; you scattered your enemies with the arm of your strength.

Yours are the heavens, yours also is the earth; you have established the earth as a dwelling place, and all that is in it.

You created the North and the South; Tabor and Hermon rejoice in your Name.

You have a powerful arm, your hand is strong, and your right hand is high and tall. Justice and fairness are the foundation of your throne; grace and truth go before you.

O how blessed is the people who know the sound of joy! They will walk, O Lord, in the light of your face.

They will rejoice in your name all day long, and they will boast in your righteousness.

Because you are the glory of their strength; and our power is distinguished by your favor.

For the Lord is our shield, and the Holy One of Israel is our King.

You once spoke in a vision concerning your beloved, and you said: I have commanded my help in favor of a valiant man; I have exalted the chosen one from among the people.

I have found David my servant, I have anointed him with my holy oil;

My hand will be firm with him, and my arm will strengthen him.

The enemy will not ransom him, and the wicked will not afflict him;

But I will crush his adversaries in his presence, and I will destroy those who hate him.

My faithfulness and my goodness will be with him; and his glory will be exalted in my Name.

And I will set his hand upon the sea, and his right hand upon the rivers.

He will call upon me, [saying:] You are my Father; my Mighty [God], and the Rock of my salvation.

Therefore I will establish him as the firstborn [and] the sovereign over the kings of the earth.

I will maintain my kindness to him forever, and my covenant with him will be assured.

I will make his descendants eternal, and I will make his throne as long as the heavens endure.

But if his children abandon my Law, and do not walk according to my ordinances;

If they violate my statutes, and do not keep my commandments;

I will punish their transgression with the rod, and their iniquity with plagues.

But I will not withdraw my kindness from him, and I will not betray my faith in him.

I will not violate my covenant, nor will I alter what has come out of my lips.

I once swore by my holiness; (if I ever lie to David;)

That his descendants will endure forever, and that his throne will be like the sun in my presence:

That it will be established forever like the moon; and there will be a sure witness of it in the heavens; Selah.

Nevertheless you rejected him and scorned him; you were very angry with your Anointed One.

You have rejected the covenant made with your servant; you have defiled his crown by throwing it to the ground.

You have broken down all its walls; you have laid its fortresses to ruin.

Everyone who passed by on the road plundered him; he became a disgrace to his neighbors.

You have exalted the right hand of his adversaries, you have rejoiced all his enemies.

You have also blunted the point of his sword, and you have not straightened it in battle.

You have put an end to its splendor, and you have cast down its throne.

You have shortened the days of his youth, [and] covered him with shame; Selah.

How long, O Eternal One? Will you hide yourself forever? Will your wrath burn like a fire?

Remember how short my life is; why would you have created all the sons of men in vain?

Who is the man who will live and not see death, and who will deliver his soul from the hand of the grave? (Selah.)

Lord, where are your previous acts of kindness which you swore to David regarding your faithfulness?

Lord! Remember the reproach of your servants, [and how] I bear in my breast [the reproach that has been done to us] by all the great peoples, [The reproach] with which your enemies have defamed, O Eternal One! with which they have defamed the traces of your Anointed One.

Blessed be the Lord forever; Amen! Yes, Amen!

A petition from Moses, man of God. Lord! You have been a refuge for us from age to age.

Before the mountains were born, and you formed the earth, the earth, [I say], habitable, even from age to age, you are the [God] Mighty.

You reduce man [mortal] to the point of making him into a woodcarver, and you say: Son of men, return.

For a thousand years are before your eyes like yesterday which has passed away, and [like] a watch in the night.

You sweep them away as through a stream of water; they are like a dream in the morning, like a blade of grass that changes color,

It blooms in the morning and turns green again; in the evening it is cut down and withers.

For we are consumed by your anger, and we are troubled by your fury.

You have set our iniquities before you, [and] our hidden sins before the brightness of your face.

For all our days pass away because of your great anger, [and] we consume our years like a thought.

The days of our years return to seventy years, and if there are vigorous ones, to eighty years; even the most beautiful of these days is but toil and torment; and it soon passes away, and we fly away.

Who knows, according to your fear, the strength of your indignation and your great anger?

Teach us to count our days so much that we may have a heart filled with wisdom.

O Lord! Turn back! How long? Be gracious to your servants.

Satisfy us each morning with your goodness, so that we may rejoice and be glad all our days.

Rejoice us for the days you have afflicted us, [and for] the years in which we have suffered:

May your work be shown to your servants, and your glory to their children.

And may the good pleasure of the Lord our God be upon us, and direct the work of our hands; yes, direct the work of our hands.

He who dwells in the dwelling of the Sovereign, lodges in the shadow of the Almighty.

I will say to the Lord: You are my refuge and my fortress; you are my God, in whom I trust.

Surely he will deliver you from the snare of the fowler; [and] from wretched mortality.

He will cover you with his feathers, and you will find refuge under his wings; his truth will be your shield and buckler.

You will not be afraid of the terrors of the night, nor of the arrow that flies by day.

Neither of the mortality that walks in darkness; nor of the destruction that wreaks havoc at midday.

A thousand will fall at your side, and ten thousand at your right hand; but [destruction] will not come near you.

Only you will gaze with your own eyes, and you will see the reward of the wicked.

For you are my refuge, O Lord! You have established the Sovereign for your dwelling place.

No harm will befall you, and no plague will come near your tent.

For he will entrust you to his angels, to guard you in all your ways.

They will lift you up in their hands, so that your foot will not strike against the stone.

You will tread on the lion and the asp, [and] you will trample the young lion and the dragon.

Because he loves me dearly, [says the Lord], I will deliver him; I will put him in a high refuge, because he knows my Name.

He will call on me, and I will answer him; I will be with him in trouble, I will deliver him, and I will honor him.

I will satisfy him with days, and I will show him my deliverance.

A psalm of song, for the Sabbath day. It is good to give thanks to the Lord, and to sing praises to your Name, O Sovereign!

To proclaim your goodness every morning and your faithfulness every night.

On the ten-stringed instrument, and on the bagpipe, and by a [premeditated] Canticle on the harp.

For, O Lord, you have made me glad by your works; I will rejoice in the works of your hands.

O Eternal One! How magnificent are your works! How wonderfully profound are your thoughts.

The stupid man knows nothing about it, and the fool does not understand this.

[Knowing], that the wicked grow like grass, and that all workers of iniquity flourish, only to be destroyed forever.

But you, O Eternal One! You are exalted forever.

For behold, your enemies, O Lord! For behold, your enemies shall perish, and all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered.

But you will lift up my horn like that of a unicorn, [and] my anointing will be with fresh oil.

And my eye will see in those who spy on me, and my ears will hear concerning the wicked, who rise up against me, [what I desire].
The righteous will flourish like a palm tree, they will grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

Planted in the house of the Lord, they will flourish in the courts of our God.
They will still bear fruit in old age; they will be in good condition and remain green;

To proclaim that the Lord is upright; he is my rock, and there is no injustice in him.

The Lord reigns, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, he has girded himself with it; therefore the inhabited earth is established, so that it will not be shaken.

Your throne was established from that time on; you are from all eternity.

The rivers have risen, O Eternal One! the rivers have increased their noise, the rivers have raised their waves;

The Lord, who is in the heights, is mightier than the roar of many waters, and than the mighty waves of the sea.

Your testimonies are very certain; Eternal One! holiness has adorned your house for a long time.

O Eternal One! who are the [God] Mighty with vengeance, the [God] Mighty with vengeance, let your splendor shine forth.

You, Judge of the earth, rise up: give reward to the proud.

How long, O Lord, will the wicked rejoice?

[How long will] all the workers of iniquity utter and speak harsh words, and boast? Eternal One, they oppress your people and afflict your heritage.

They kill the widow and the stranger, and they put the orphans to death.

And they said, "The Lord will not see it; the God of Jacob will not hear of it."

You most foolish among the people, take heed to this; and you senseless ones, when will you become wise?

He who planted the ear, will he not hear? He who formed the eye, will he not see?

He who chastises the nations, he who teaches knowledge to men, will he not censure?

The Lord knows that the thoughts of men are but vanity.

O how blessed is the man whom you chastise, O Eternal One! and whom you instruct by your Law;

So that you may protect him from days of adversity, until the pit is dug for the wicked!

For the Lord will not forsake his people, nor abandon his inheritance.

Therefore, judgment will be united with justice, and all who are upright in heart will follow it.

Who will rise up for me against the wicked? Who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity?

If the Lord had not been to help me, my soul would soon have been lodged in the [place of] silence.

If I said, "My foot has slipped," your goodness, O Lord, has sustained me.

When I had many thoughts inside me, your consolations recreated my soul.

Will the court of the wicked, who plot evil against the rules of justice, be joined with you?

They gather against the soul of the righteous, and condemn innocent blood.

But the Lord has been my fortress, and my God, the rock of my refuge.

He will repay them with their outrage, and will destroy them by their own wickedness.

The Lord our God will destroy them.

Come, let us sing to the Lord, let us shout for joy to the rock of our salvation.

Let us go before him with praise; and let us shout before him with joyful songs of praise.

For the Lord is a mighty and great God, and a great King above all gods.

The deepest places of the earth are in his hand, and the mountain peaks belong to him.

The sea belongs to him, for he himself made it, and his hands formed the dry land.

Come, let us bow down in worship, let us kneel before the Lord our Maker.

For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his care.

If you hear his voice today,

Do not harden your hearts, as at Meribah, [and] as on the day of Massah in the desert;

Where your fathers tested me and tried me; and also they saw my works.

I was annoyed with that generation for forty years, and I said, 'They are a people whose hearts go astray, and they have not known my ways;

That is why I swore in my anger, if they enter my rest.

Sing to the Lord a new song; all the earth, sing to the Lord.

Sing to the Lord, bless his Name, proclaim his deliverance day after day.

Declare his glory among the nations, [and] his wonders among all peoples.

For the Lord is great and worthy of praise; he is to be feared above all gods;

For all the gods of the peoples are idols, but the Lord made the heavens.

Majesty and magnificence go before him; strength and excellence are in his sanctuary.

Families of the peoples, ascribe to the Lord, ascribe to the Lord glory and strength.

Ascribe to the Lord the glory due his Name; bring the offering, and enter his courts.

Worship the Lord in holy splendor; all you inhabitants of the earth tremble in awe at the presence of his face.

Say among the nations: The Lord reigns; even the inhabited earth is established, [and] it will not be moved; he will judge the peoples in equity.

Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad! Let the sea and all that is in it resound!

Let the fields rejoice, with all that is in them. Then all the trees of the forest will sing with joy,

Before the Lord, because he comes, because he comes to judge the earth; he will judge the inhabited world in righteousness, and the peoples according to his faithfulness.

The Lord reigns; let the earth rejoice, and let many islands be glad.

Clouds and darkness surround him; righteousness and judgment are the foundation of his throne.

The fire marches before him, and engulfs all around his adversaries.

His lightning illuminates the habitable world, and the earth, seeing him, trembles in astonishment.

The mountains melt like wax, because of the presence of the Lord, because of the presence of the Lord of all the earth.

The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the peoples see his glory.

Let all who serve images and glory in idols be put to shame; you gods, all of you, bow down before him.

Zion heard it, and rejoiced; and the daughters of Judah were glad for your judgments, O Lord!

For you are the Lord, exalted above all the earth; you are far above all gods.

You who love the Lord, hate evil; for he guards the souls of his beloved, and delivers them from the hand of the wicked.

Light is made for the righteous, and joy for those who are upright in heart.

Righteous ones, rejoice in the Lord, and celebrate the memory of his holiness.

Psalm. Sing to the Lord a new song; for he has done marvelous things; his right hand and his holy arm have delivered him.

The Lord has made known his deliverance; he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations.

He remembered his grace and his faithfulness to the house of Israel; all the ends of the earth have seen the deliverance of our God.

All you inhabitants of the earth, shout for joy to the Lord, raise your voices in song, sing for gladness, and make music.

Sing psalms to the Lord with the harp, with the harp and with a melodious voice.

Shout with joyful shouts with trumpets and the sound of the horn before the King, the Lord.

Let the sea roar, with all that it contains, [and] let the earth and those who dwell in it [burst forth in their cries].

Let the rivers clap their hands, and let the mountains sing for joy,

Before the Lord; for he comes to judge the earth; he will judge the inhabited world in righteousness, and the peoples in equity.

The Lord reigns, let the peoples tremble; he sits between the cherubim, let the earth shake.

The Lord is great in Zion, and he is exalted above all peoples.

They will celebrate your Name, great and awesome; for it is holy;

And the strength of the King, [for] he loves justice; you have ordained equity, you have pronounced righteous judgments in Jacob.

Exalt the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool; he is holy.

Moses and Aaron were among his priests; and Samuel among those who called on his name; they called on the Lord, and he answered them.

He spoke to them about the pillar of cloud; they have preserved his testimonies and the order he gave them.

O Eternal my God! You have answered them, you have been a Mighty [God] to them, forgiving them, and avenging their deeds.

Exalt the Lord our God, and worship at his holy mountain, for the Lord our God is holy.

A psalm of thanksgiving. All you inhabitants of the earth, shout for joy to the Lord.

Serve the Lord with gladness; come before him with joyful songs.

Know that the Lord is God. He is the one who made us, and we are not his people, and the flock of his pasture.

Enter his gates with thanksgiving, and his courts with praise; give thanks to him, bless his name.

For the Lord is good; his love endures forever, and his faithfulness from generation to generation.

A Psalm of David. I will sing of mercy and justice; O Lord, I will sing praises to you.

I will be careful to maintain pure conduct until you come to me; I will walk in the integrity of my heart, within my house.

I will not set anything wicked before my eyes; I hate the deeds of the debauched; [nothing] of them will cling to me.

The evil heart will depart from me; I will not confess the wicked.

I will cut off the one who slanders his neighbor in secret; I cannot [bear] the one who has lofty eyes and a proud heart.

I will take care of the righteous people of the land, so that they may remain with me; whoever walks in the whole way will serve me.

He who practices deceit will not remain in my house; he who speaks lies will not be established in my sight.

I will cut off every morning all the wicked from the land, to exterminate from the City of the Lord all the workers of iniquity.

A prayer of the afflicted, in anguish, pouring out their complaint before the Lord. Lord, hear my prayer, and let my cry come to you.

Do not hide your back face from me; in the day of my distress, give ear to my plea; in the day I call upon you, hasten, answer me.

For my days have vanished like smoke, and my bones are dried up like a hearth.
My heart was struck, and became dry as grass, because I forgot to eat my bread.
My bones cling to my flesh because of the sound of my groaning.
I have become like the desert cormorant; and I am like the owl of the wild places.
I am watchful, and I am like the sparrow, which is alone on the roof.
My enemies hurl insults at me every day, and those who are furious with me swear against me.
Because I ate ashes like bread, and mixed my drink with tears.
Because of your anger and indignation: because after you had raised me up so high, you threw me to the ground.
My days are like a fading shadow, and I grow as dry as grass.
But you, O Eternal One, remain forever, and your memory endures from generation to generation.
You will arise, [and] you will have compassion on Zion; for it is time to have pity on her, because the appointed time has come.
For your servants are fond of its stones, and have compassion on its dust.
Then the nations will fear the Name of the Lord, and all the kings of the earth, your glory.
When the Lord has built Zion; when he has been seen in his glory;
When he has heeded the prayer of the distressed, and has not despised their supplication.
This will be recorded for the next generation; the people yet to be created will praise the Lord.
Because he will have cast his gaze from the high place of his holiness, and the Lord will have looked down from heaven to earth,
To hear the groaning of the prisoners, [and] to free those who were devoted to death;
So that the Name of the Lord may be proclaimed in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem;
When the peoples and the kingdoms have joined together to serve the Lord.
He cut off my strength on the way, he shortened my days.
I said: My God, do not take me away in the midst of my days! Your years [endure] from age to age.
You laid the foundations of the earth long ago, and the heavens are the work of your hands.
They will perish, but you will be permanent; and they will all wear out like a garment; you will change them like a robe, and they will be changed.
But you are still the same; and your years will never end.
The children of your servants will dwell [near you], and their descendants will be established before you.
A Psalm of David. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless his holy name.
My soul, bless the Lord, and forget not one of his benefits.
He is the one who forgives all your iniquities, who heals all your infirmities;
Who guarantees your life from the pit, who crowns you with grace and compassion;
Who satisfies your mouth with good things; your youth is renewed like that of the eagle.
The Lord brings justice and righteousness to all who are wronged.
He made known his ways to Moses, [and] his exploits to the children of Israel.
The Lord is gracious, merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in grace.
He does not quarrel forever, nor does he harbor [his anger] forever.
He has not treated us according to our sins, nor has he repaid us according to our iniquities.
For as high as the heavens are above the earth, so great is his grace toward those who fear him.

He has removed our misdeeds from us, as far as the East is removed from the West. With such compassion as a father has for his children, with such compassion the Lord has for those who fear him.

Because he knows full well what we are made of, remembering that we are but dust.

The days of mortal man are like hay, he flourishes like a flower of the field.

Because the wind has passed over it, it is no more, and its place no longer recognizes it.

But the Lord's mercy is from everlasting to everlasting toward those who fear him, and his righteousness toward their children's children;

For those who keep his covenant, and who remember to do his commandments.

The Lord has established his throne in the heavens, and his kingdom rules over all.

Bless the Lord, you his mighty angels, who do his commandment, obeying the voice of his word.

Bless the Lord, all you his armies, who are his ministers doing his good pleasure.

Bless the Lord, all his works, in all places of his dominion. My soul, bless the Lord.

My soul, bless the Lord. O Lord my God, you are wonderfully great, you are clothed with majesty and splendor.

He wraps himself in light as with a garment, he spreads the heavens like a veil.

He builds his high chambers between the waters; he makes the great clouds his chariot, he rides on the wings of the wind.

He makes winds his angels, and burning fire his servants.

He has established the earth on its foundations, so that it will never be shaken forever.

You had covered it with the abyss as with a garment; the waters stood upon the mountains.

They fled at your threat, [and] quickly took flight at the sound of your thunder.

The mountains rose up, and the valleys sank down, to the same place that you had appointed for them.

You have set a boundary for them which they shall not cross, they shall not return to cover the earth.

It is he who guides the fountains through the valleys, so much so that they wander between the mountains.

They provide water for all the animals of the fields, and wild donkeys quench their thirst.

The birds of the sky stand near them, and make their voices resound from among the branches.

He waters the mountains from his upper chambers; [and] the earth is satisfied with the fruit of your works.

He makes hay sprout for the cattle, and grass for the service of man, bringing forth bread from the earth;

And the wine that gladdens the heart of man, that makes his face shine with oil, and that sustains the heart of man with bread.

The tall trees are satiated with it, [and] the cedars of Lebanon, which he planted, So that the birds can make their nests there. As for the stork, the fir trees [are its home].

The high mountains are for the chamois [and] the rocks are the retreat of the rabbits.

He made the moon for the seasons, and the sun knows its setting.

You bring darkness, and night comes, during which all the beasts of the forest trot about.

The lion cubs roar after the prey, and to ask the [God] Strong for their food.

When the sun rises, they retreat and remain lying in their dens.

So the man goes out to his work and his labor, until evening.

O Lord, how many are your works! In wisdom you have made them all; the earth is full of your riches.

This vast and spacious sea, where there are countless moving animals, small creatures alongside large ones!

There the ships sail, and that Leviathan which you formed to frolic there.

They are all waiting for you, so that you may give them their feed in due season.

When you give it to them, they gather it up, and when you open your hand, they are satisfied with good things.

Do you hide your face? They are troubled; do you take away their breath, they faint, and return to their dust.

[But if] you send forth your Spirit, they are created, and you renew the face of the earth.

May the glory of the Lord be forever; may the Lord rejoice in his works!

He casts his gaze upon the earth, and it trembles; he touches the mountains, and they smoke.

I will sing to the Lord as long as I live; I will sing praises to my God while I have my being.

My meditation will be pleasing to him; [and] I will rejoice in the Lord.

May sinners be consumed from the face of the earth, and may there be no more wicked!

My soul, bless the Lord; praise the Lord.

Give thanks to the Lord, call upon his name, make known among the peoples his deeds.

Sing to him, chant to him, tell him of all his wonders.

Glory in the name of his holiness, [and] let the hearts of those who seek the Lord rejoice.

Seek the Lord and his strength; seek his face continually.

Remember the wonders he has done, his miracles, and the judgments he pronounced.

Abraham's descendants are his servants; the children of Jacob are his chosen ones;

He is the Lord our God; his judgments are over all the earth.

He has remembered his covenant forever, the word he commanded in a thousand generations;

From the treaty he made with Abraham, and from the oath he swore to Isaac, Which he ratified to be an ordinance to Jacob, [and] to Israel [to be] an everlasting covenant;

Saying: I will give you the land of Canaan as your inheritance;

Although they were a small number of people, and they stayed there for a short time as foreigners.

For they went from nation to nation, and from one kingdom to another people.

He did not allow anyone to oppress them: and he even punished kings for their sake.

[Saying]: Do not touch my Anointed Ones, and do not harm my Prophets.

He also called for famine on the land, [and] broke every staff of bread.

He sent a man ahead of them; Joseph was sold into slavery.

They bound his feet in stocks, and put him in irons.

Until the time when his word had come, and the word of the Lord had tested him.

The King sent, and he was released; the ruler of the peoples [sent], and he was freed.

He established him as master over his house, and as ruler over all his domain;

To subdue the leaders to his desires, and to instruct his Elders.

Then Israel went into Egypt, and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.

And the [Lord] greatly increased his people, and made them more powerful than those who oppressed them.

He changed their hearts, so that they hated his people, even to the point of conspiring against his servants.

He sent Moses his servant, [and] Aaron, whom he had chosen.

[Who] performed on them the wonders and miracles which they had been commanded to perform in the land of Cam.

He sent darkness and made the air darken; and they did not rebel against his commands.

He turned their waters into blood, and caused their fish to die.

Their land produced an abundance of frogs, even inside the chambers of their Kings.

He spoke, and a multitude of animals came, and lice were everywhere in their land.

He caused their rains to be hail, [and] there was a blazing fire on their land.

He struck their vines and their fig trees, and he shattered the trees of their land.

He gave his command, and the locusts came, and countless hurricanes;

Who grazed all the grass in their land, and who devoured the fruit of their soil.

And he struck down every firstborn in their land, who were the first fruits of all their strength.

Then he brought them out with gold and silver, and not one of his tribes wavered.

Egypt rejoiced at their departure; for the fear they had of them had seized them.

He spread out the cloud for a covering, and the fire to light up the night.

[The people] asked, and he brought quails, and he satisfied them with the bread of heaven.

He opened the rock, and the waters flowed out; and ran through the dry places, [like] a river.

For he remembered his holy word, which he had given to Abraham his servant.

And he brought out his people with gladness, and his chosen ones with singing.

He gave them the lands of the nations, and they possessed the fruit of the peoples' labor.

So that they may keep his statutes and observe his laws. Praise the Lord.

Praise the Lord. Give thanks to the Lord; for he is good, because his love endures forever.

Who could recount the exploits of the Lord? Who could proclaim all his praise?

How blessed are those who observe justice, [and] who do what is right at all times!

Eternal One, remember me according to the kindness you show to your people, and take care of me according to your salvation.

So that I may see the goodness of your chosen ones, that I may rejoice in the joy of your nation, [and] that I may glory with your inheritance.

We have sinned with our fathers, we have acted unjustly, we have done wrong.

Our fathers did not pay attention to your wonders in Egypt; they did not remember the multitude of your favors; but they rebelled by the sea, towards the Red Sea.

However, he delivered them for the sake of his Name, in order to make known his power.

For he rebuked the Red Sea, and it dried up, and he led them through the ravines as through the desert;

And delivered them from the hand of those who hated them, and protected them from the hand of the enemy.

And the waters covered their oppressors; not one of them remained.

So they believed his words, [and] they sang his praise.

[But] they immediately forgot his works, and did not heed his advice.

But they were seized by lust in the desert, and they tested the Mighty [God] in the uninhabited place.

So he gave them what they had asked for, however he sent a tuberculosis into their bodies.

They aroused envy in Moses in the camp, [and] in Aaron the holy one of the Lord.

The earth opened up and swallowed Dathan, and covered the band of Abiram.

So a fire was kindled in their assembly, [and] the flame burned the wicked.

They made a calf at Horeb, and worshiped the molten image.

They changed their glory into the image of an ox eating grass.

They forgot the Mighty [God], their Deliverer, who had done great things in Egypt;

Wonderful things in the land of Canaan, and terrible things on the Red Sea.
That is why he said that he would destroy them; but Moses, his chosen one, stood in the breach before him, to turn away his fury, so that he would not defeat them.
They despised the desirable land, [and] did not believe his word.
And they mutinied in their tents, and did not obey the voice of the Lord.
That is why he swore to them, with his hand raised, that he would overthrow them in the desert,
And that he would overwhelm their descendants among the nations, and scatter them throughout the countries.
They joined the worshipers of Baal-Peor, and ate sacrifices of the dead.
And they angered [God] by the things they did, so that a plague broke through them.
But Phinehas came forward and did justice, and the plague was stopped.
And this was allotted to him for justice throughout all ages forever.
They also provoked his anger near the waters of Meribah, and harm came to Moses because of them.
For they grieved his spirit, and he spoke rashly with his lips.
They did not destroy the peoples that the Lord had told them to;
But they mingled among these nations, and they learned their ways;
And they served their false gods, who were traps for them.
Because they sacrificed their sons and daughters to demons.
And they shed innocent blood, the blood of their sons and daughters, whom they sacrificed to the false gods of Canaan; and the land was defiled with blood.
And they were defiled by their deeds, and committed fornication by the things to which they gave themselves over.
That is why the anger of the Lord was kindled against his people, and he abhorred his inheritance.
And he delivered them into the hands of the nations, and those who hated them ruled over them.
And their enemies oppressed them, and they were humiliated under their hand.
He often delivered them, but they angered him with their counsel, and they were made to languish through their iniquity.
However, he looked at them in their distress when he heard their cry.
And he remembered his covenant on their behalf, and repented according to the greatness of his compassion.
And he caused those who had taken them captive to have pity on them.
Eternal our God, deliver us and gather us from among the nations, so that we may celebrate the Name of your holiness, and glory in your praise.
Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, from one age to the next! And let all the people say, Amen! Praise the Lord.
Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good, because his goodness endures forever.
Let those who are the redeemed of the Lord, whom he has redeemed from the hand of the oppressor, say so;
And also those which he gathered from the countries of the East and of the West, of the North and of the South.
They were wandering through the desert, on a lonely road, [and] they found no inhabited city.
They were hungry and thirsty, their spirits were failing them.
Then they cried out to the Lord in their distress; he delivered them from their troubles,
And led them on the right path to an inhabited city.
Let them praise the Lord for his unfailing love and his wonderful deeds toward mankind:
Because he has quenched the thirst of the thirsty soul, and satisfied the hungry soul with his bounty.
Those who dwell in darkness, and in the shadow of death, bound with affliction and iron;

Because they rebelled against the words of the Mighty God, and rejected the counsel of the Sovereign with contempt;

And he humbled their hearts with toil, [and] they were crushed, with no one to help them.

Then they cried to the Lord in their distress, [and] he delivered them from their anguish.

He brought them out of darkness and out of the shadow of death, and he broke their chains.

Let them praise the Lord for his unfailing love and his wonderful deeds toward mankind.

Because he broke down the bronze gates, and shattered the iron bars.

The fools who are grieved because of their transgression and their iniquities;

Their souls abhor all meat, and they are drawing near to the gates of death.

Then they cried out to the Lord in their distress, [and] he delivered them from their anguish.

He sends his word, and heals them, and delivers them from their graves.

Let them praise the Lord for his unfailing love and his wonderful deeds toward mankind.

And let them offer sacrifices of thanksgiving, and let them recount his works with songs of joy.

Those who go down to the sea in ships, trading among the great waters,

Those who see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep places,

(For he commands, and brings forth the stormy wind, which raises the waves of the sea.)

They ascend to the heavens, they descend to the depths; their soul melts with anguish.

They stagger and sway like a drunken man, and all their wisdom is gone.

Then they cry out to the Lord in their distress, and he delivers them from their anguish.

It stops the storm, [changing it] into calm, and the waves are calm.

Then they rejoice that they are appeased, and he leads them to the port they desired.

Let them praise the Lord for his unfailing love and his wonderful deeds toward mankind;

And let them exalt him in the congregation of the people, and praise him in the assembly of the Elders.

He reduces rivers to a desert, and springs of water to drought;

And the fertile land turned into salt land, because of the malice of those who dwell in it.

He turns the desert into pools of water, and the dry land into springs of water;

And he made those who were hungry live there, so much so that they built habitable cities.

And they sow the fields, and plant vines that bear fruit every year.

He blessed them, and they multiplied greatly, and he did not let their livestock decrease.

Then they diminish, and are humiliated by oppression, evil, and boredom.

He spreads contempt upon the leaders, and makes them wander through hideous places, where there is no path.

But he draws the poor out of affliction, and gives families together like flocks.

The upright see this and rejoice; but all wickedness keeps silent.

Whoever is wise will pay attention to these things, so that the goodness of the Lord may be seen.

A Psalm of David. My heart is willing, O God! My glory is also, I will sing and I will make music.

Wake up, my bagpipe and my harp, I will wake up at the dawn of day.
Eternal One, I will praise you among the peoples, and I will sing praises to you among the nations.
For your goodness is great above the heavens, and your faithfulness reaches to the clouds.
O God! Be exalted above the heavens, and let your glory be over all the earth.
So that those you love may be delivered; save me with your right hand, and answer me.

God has spoken in his Sanctuary; I will rejoice; I will divide up Shechem, and measure out the valley of Succoth.
Gilead will be mine, Manasseh will be mine, and Ephraim will be my chief strength, Judah my Lawgiver.
Moab will be the basin where I will wash myself, I will throw my sandal on Edom, I will triumph over Palestine.
Who will lead me to the fortified city? Who will lead me to Edom?
Is it not you, O God! who rejected us, and who no longer went out, O God! with our armies?
Give us help to get out of distress; for the deliverance [that is expected] from man is vain.
We will do valiant deeds in God, and he will trample down our enemies.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. O God of my praise, do not be silent.
For the mouth of the wicked, and the mouth [filled] with deceit, have opened against me, [and] have spoken to me, using a deceitful tongue.
And words full of hatred have surrounded me, and they wage war against me without cause.
Instead of loving them, they were my enemies; but I only prayed [on their behalf].
And they repaid me evil for good, and hatred for the love I bore them.
Place the wicked man over him, and make the adversary stand at his right hand.
When he is judged, let him be declared wicked, and let his prayer be regarded as a crime.
May his life be short, and may another take his place.
May his children be orphans, and his wife a widow;
And that his children be entirely vagabonds, and that they beg and beg [as they leave] their destroyed homes.
Let the creditor, using extortion, seize all that is his, and let foreigners plunder all his labor.
Let no one extend their compassion to him, and let no one have pity on his orphans.
May his posterity be subject to being cut off; may their name be erased from the race that follows him.
May the iniquity of his fathers be remembered before the Lord, and may the sin of his mother not be blotted out.
May they continually be before the Lord; and may he cut off their memory from the earth;
Because he did not remember to show mercy, but persecuted the afflicted and wretched man, whose heart is broken, to put him to death.
Since he loved the curse, let the curse fall upon him; and because he did not take pleasure in the blessing, let the blessing also depart from him.
And may he be clothed with a curse as with his robe, and may it enter his body like water, and his bones like oil.
Let it be like a garment with which he covers himself, and like a belt with which he continually girds himself.
May this be the reward from the Lord for my adversaries and for those who speak evil of me.
But you, Eternal Lord, act with me for the sake of your Name; [and] because your mercy is tender, deliver me.

For I am afflicted and miserable, and my heart is wounded within me.

I depart like a shadow when it declines, and I am chased away like a grasshopper.

My knees are weak from fasting, and my flesh has become thin, instead of being in good condition.

I am still held in contempt by them; when they see me they shake their heads.

Eternal God! Help me, [and] deliver me according to your mercy.

So that people may know that this is your hand, and that you, O Lord, have done this.

They will curse, but you will bless; they will exalt themselves, but they will be put to shame, and your servant will rejoice.

May my adversaries be clothed with confusion, and covered with their shame as with a cloak.

I will praise the Lord with my mouth, and I will commend him in the midst of many nations.

Because he stands at the right hand of the wretched, to deliver him from those who condemn his soul.

A Psalm of David. The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool.

The Lord will bestow from Zion the scepter of your strength, [saying]: Rule in the midst of your enemies.

Your people [will be a people full of] free will on the day [that you assemble] your army in holy pomp; the dew of your youth [will be produced] for you from the bosom of the dawn of day.

The Lord has sworn, and will not change his mind, that you are a priest forever, in the order of Melchizedek.

The Lord is at your right hand; he will crush kings on the day of his anger.

He will execute judgment on the nations, he will fill all with dead bodies; he will crush the ruler over a great country.

He will drink from the stream along the way, that is why he will lift his head high.

Praise the Lord. [Aleph] I will praise the Lord with all my heart, [Beth.] in the company of the upright, and in the assembly.

[Gimel.] The works of the Lord are great, [Daleth.] They are sought after by all who delight in them.

[He.] His work is nothing but majesty and magnificence, [Vau.] and his justice remains forever.

[Zain.] He has made his wonders memorable. [Heth.] The Lord is merciful and compassionate.

[Tet.] He has given life to those who fear him; [Jod.] he has remembered his covenant forever.

[Caph.] He has shown his people the power of his works, [Lamed.] by giving them the heritage of the nations.

[Mem.] The works of his hands are nothing but truth and equity; [Nun.] all his commandments are true;

[Samech.] Supported in perpetuity and forever, [Hajin.] being made with faithfulness and righteousness.

[Pe.] He sent redemption to his people; [Tsade.] he gave them an everlasting covenant; [Koph.] his name is holy and awesome.

[Resh.] The greatest thing in wisdom is the fear of the Lord: [Scin.] all who follow what she prescribes are truly wise; [Thau.] her praise remains forever.

Praise the Lord. [Aleph.] Blessed is the man who fears the Lord, [Beth.] and who delights greatly in his commandments!

[Guimel.] His descendants will be mighty in the earth, [Daleth.] the generation of the upright men will be blessed.

[He.] There will be good things and riches in his house; [Vau.] and his righteousness endures forever.

[Zain.] Light has dawned in the darkness for the righteous; [Heth.] He is compassionate, merciful, and gracious.

[Teth.] The righteous man gives alms and lends; [Jod.] He handles his affairs with justice.

[Caph.] Even he will never be shaken. [Lamed.] The righteous will be in perpetual memory.

[Mem.] He will not be afraid of any bad report; [Nun.] His heart is steadfast, trusting in the Lord.

[Samech.] His heart is firmly grounded, he will not fear, [Hajin.] until he has seen in his adversaries [what he desires].

[Pe.] He has scattered, he has given to the poor; [Tsade.] his righteousness endures forever; [Koph.] his horn will be lifted up in glory.

[Resch.] The wicked will see it, and be dismayed. [Sein.] He will gnash his teeth, and melt; [Thau.] the desire of the wicked will perish.

Praise the Lord. Praise, you servants of the Lord, praise the Name of the Lord. Blessed be the Name of the Lord from now on and forever.

The Name of the Lord is worthy of praise from the rising of the sun to its setting.

The Lord is exalted above all nations; his glory is above the heavens.

Who is like the Lord our God, who dwells in the highest places?

He who stoops down to look at the heavens and the earth.

He who raises the afflicted from the dust, and lifts the poor man from the dung heap,

To make him sit with the leaders, with the leaders, [I say], of his people;
He gives a family to the barren woman, making her a mother of children and joyful.
Praise the Lord.

When Israel left Egypt, [and] the house of Jacob from the barbarous people, Judah became sacred to God, [and] Israel his kingdom.

The sea saw it, and fled; the Jordan turned back.

The mountains skipped like sheep, [and] the hills like lambs.

O sea! What did you have to flee? [And you], Jordan, to turn back?

[And] you mountains, that you have skipped like sheep; and you hills, like lambs?

O earth! tremble at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob;

Who turned the rock into a pool of waters, [and] the very hard stone into a spring of waters.

Not to us, O Eternal One! Not to us, but to your Name give glory for the love of your mercy, for the love of your truth.

Why would the nations say: where is their God now?

Indeed, our God is in heaven; he does whatever pleases him.

Their gods are [gods] of gold and silver, the work of human hands.

They have a mouth, but do not speak; they have eyes, but do not see;

They have ears, but do not hear; they have a nose, but they do not smell;

Hands, but they do not touch them; feet, but they do not walk on them; and they make no sound from their throats.

May those who make them, [and] all those who trust in them, be made like them.

Israel, trust in the Lord; he is the help and shield of those [who trust in him].

House of Aaron, trust in the Lord; he is their help and their shield.

You who fear the Lord, trust in the Lord; he is their help and their shield.

The Lord has remembered us; he will bless, he will bless the house of Israel, he will bless the house of Aaron.

He will bless those who fear the Lord, both the small and the great.

The Lord will add [blessing] upon you, upon you and upon your children.

You are blessed by the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

As for the heavens, the heavens belong to the Lord; but he has given the earth to the children of men.

The dead, and all those who go down where no one speaks anymore, will not praise the Lord.

But we will bless the Lord from now on and forevermore. Praise the Lord.

I love the Lord, for he has heard my voice and my supplications.

Because he inclined his ear to me, therefore I will invoke him during my days.

The cords of death had surrounded me, and the distresses of the sepulchre had met me; I had met distress and weariness.

But I called upon the Name of the Lord, [saying]: I pray to you, O Lord! deliver my soul.

The Lord is gracious and just, and our God shows mercy.

The Lord protects the simple; I had become wretched, and he saved me.

My soul, return to your rest; for the Lord has dealt well with you.

Because you have shielded my soul from death, my eyes from tears, [and] my feet from falling.

I will walk in the presence of the Lord in the land of the living.

I believed, therefore I spoke; I was greatly grieved.

I said in my haste: every man is a liar.

What shall I render to the Lord? All his benefits are upon me.

I will take the cup of salvation, and I will call on the Name of the Lord.

I will now make my vows to the Lord in the presence of all his people.

[Every kind] death of the Lord's beloved is precious in his sight.

Yes, O Lord! for I am your servant, I am your servant, son of your handmaid; you have loosed my bonds.

I will offer you sacrifices of thanksgiving, and I will call upon the Name of the Lord.

I will now render my vows to the Lord in the presence of all his people;

In the courts of the house of the Lord, in your midst, Jerusalem. Praise the Lord.

All nations, praise the Lord; all peoples, extol him.

For his mercy is great toward us, and the faithfulness of the Lord endures forever.

Praise the Lord.

Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; his goodness endures forever.

Let Israel now say, "His goodness endures forever."

Let the house of Aaron now say, that his goodness remains forever.

Let those who fear the Lord now say, "His goodness endures forever."

When I was in distress, I called on the Lord, and the Lord answered me and set me free.

The Lord is on my side; I will not be afraid. What can man do to me?

The Lord is on my side among those who help me; therefore I will see in those who hate me what I desire.

It is better to trust in the Lord than to trust in man.

It is better to trust in the Lord than to rely on the rulers [among the peoples].

They had surrounded me; but in the Name of the Lord I will cut them to pieces.

They had surrounded me, they had, I say, surrounded me; [but] in the Name of the Lord I cut them to pieces.

They had surrounded me like bees; they were extinguished like a fire of thorns, for in the Name of the Lord I cut them to pieces.

You pushed me hard, trying to make me fall, but the Lord helped me.

The Lord is my strength, [and the subject of my] song, and he has been my deliverer.

A voice of triumph and deliverance resounds in the tabernacles of the righteous; the right hand of the Lord, [they cry], demonstrates virtue.

The right hand of the Lord is exalted; the right hand of the Lord does good.

I will not die, but I will live, and I will tell the deeds of the Lord.

The Lord has chastised me severely, but he has not given me over to death.

Open to me the gates of righteousness; I will enter through them, and I will praise the Lord.
This is the gate of the Lord; the righteous shall enter through it.
I will celebrate you for having answered my prayers and for having been my liberator.

The stone that the architects had rejected became the main one in the area.
This was done by the Lord, [and] it was marvelous in our eyes.
This is the day the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it.
Lord, I pray, deliver now. Lord, I pray, grant prosperity now.
Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord; we bless you from the house of the Lord.
The Lord is the mighty one, and he has given us light. Bind the sacrificial animal with ropes, and bring it to the horns of the altar.
You are my mighty God, therefore I will praise you. You are my God, I will exalt you.

Give thanks to the Lord; for he is good, because his mercy endures forever.
ALEPH. Blessed are those who are blameless in their way, who walk in the Law of the Lord.
Blessed are those who keep his testimonies, and who seek him with all their heart;
Who also do no iniquity, [and] who walk in his ways.
You gave your commandments so that they might be carefully observed.
May it please you, O God! that my ways be well prepared, to keep your statutes.
And I will not be ashamed when I consider all your commandments.
I will praise you with uprightness of heart, when I have learned of the ordinances of your justice.
I want to keep your statutes; do not abandon me entirely.
BETH. How will the young man keep his way pure? By heeding it according to your word.

I have sought you with all my heart; do not lead me astray from your commandments.
I have hidden your word in my heart, so that I may not sin against you.
Eternal One! You are blessed; teach me your statutes.
I have recounted with my lips all the decrees of your mouth.
I rejoiced in the path of your testimonies, as if I had all the riches of the world.

I will speak to your commandments, and I will consider your ways.
I take pleasure in your statutes, and I will not forget your words.
GUIMEL. Do this good to your servant so that I may live, and I will keep your word.
Open my eyes, so that I may see the wonders of your Law.
I am a sojourner on earth; do not hide your commandments from me.
My soul is ablaze with the affection it has always had for your ordinances.
You have severely rebuked the proud and cursed, who turn away from your commandments.

Remove the reproach and contempt from me; for I have kept your testimonies.
Even the leaders sat [and] spoke against me, while your servant discussed your statutes.
Therefore, your testimonies [are] my pleasure, [and] the people of my council.
DALETH. My soul clings to dust; revive me according to your word.
I have told you my ways at length, and you have answered me; teach me your statutes.

Let me hear the way of your commandments, and I will speak of your wonders.
My soul has melted with sorrow, raise me up according to your words.
Remove from me the way of falsehood, and give me your Law freely.
I have chosen the way of truth, and I have set your ordinances before me.
I have clung to your testimonies, O Lord! Do not let me be put to shame.
I will run in the way of your commandments, when you have set my heart free.

HE. Eternal One, teach me the way of your statutes, and I will keep it to the end.
Give me understanding; I will keep your Law, and I will observe it with all my heart.

Lead me in the path of your commandments, for I delight in it.
Incline my heart to your testimonies, and not to dishonest gain.
Turn my eyes away from vanity; revive me through your ways.
Confirm your word to your servant, who is devoted to your fear.
Take away my reproach, which I have feared; for your precepts are good.
Behold, I am devoted to your commandments; revive me in your righteousness.
VAU. And let your favors come upon me, O Eternal One! [and] your deliverance also,
according to your word;
So that I may have something to answer the one who heaps reproach upon me: for I have put my trust in your word.
And do not snatch the word of truth from my mouth; for I have waited for your ordinances.
I will continually keep your Law, forever and ever.
I will walk in the deep, because I have sought your commandments.
I will speak of your testimonies before kings, and I will not be ashamed.
And I will take my pleasure in your commandments, which I have loved;
I will even stretch out my hands to your commandments, which I have loved; and I will meditate on your statutes.
ZAIN. Remember the promise you made to your servant, which you have made me wait for.

This is my consolation in my affliction, that your word has restored me to life.
The proud have greatly mocked me, [but] I have not turned away from your Law.
Eternal One, I have remembered the judgments of old, and I have comforted myself [in them].
Horror seized me, because of the wicked who have abandoned your Law.
Your statutes were the subject of my songs in the house where I stayed as a traveler.

Eternal One, I remembered your Name during the night, and I kept your Law.
This happened to me because I kept your commandments.
HETH. O Eternal One! I have concluded that my portion is to keep your words.
I have begged you with all my heart, have mercy on me according to your word.
I have taken stock of my paths, and I have turned back towards your testimonies.
I hastened, I did not delay in keeping your commandments.
The troops of the wicked have plundered me, [but] I have not forgotten your Law.
I rise at midnight to praise you because of the decrees of your justice.
I am accompanied by all those who fear you and keep your commandments.
Eternal One, the earth is full of your favors; teach me your statutes.
TETH. Lord, you have dealt well with your servant according to your word.
Teach me to have good sense and knowledge, for I have placed my trust in your commandments.
Before I was afflicted, I was wandering through the fields; but now I obey your word.

You are good and benevolent, teach me your statutes.
The proud have fabricated lies against me; [but] I will keep your commandments with all my heart.
Their hearts are as if frozen with fat; but I delight in your Law.
It is good that I have been afflicted, so that I may learn of your statutes.
The Law [that you have spoken] with your mouth is more precious to me than a thousand pieces of gold or silver.
JOD. Your hands made me and fashioned me; make me heard, so that I may learn your commandments.
Those who fear you will see me and rejoice, because I have waited for your word.

I know, O Lord, that your precepts are just; and that you have afflicted me according to your faithfulness.

I pray that your mercy may comfort me, according to your word [addressed] to your servant.

Let your compassion be poured out upon me, and I shall live; for your Law is all my delight.

Let the proud be ashamed, for they have overthrown me without cause; [but] I will speak of your commandments.

Let those who fear you, and those who know your testimonies, return to me.

May my heart be blameless in your statutes, so that I may not be ashamed.

CAPH. My soul has been consumed in waiting for your deliverance; I have waited for your word.

My eyes grew weary [waiting] for your word, when I said: when will you comfort me?

For I have become like a wineskin burned in smoke, [and I] have not forgotten your statutes.

How long will your servant's days last? When will you judge those who persecute me?

The proud have dug pits for me, which is not according to your Law.

All your commandments are faithful; I am persecuted without cause; help me.

They have almost reduced me to nothing, [and] brought me to the ground: but I have not abandoned your commandments.

Revive me according to your mercy, and I will keep the testimony of your mouth.

LAMED. O Eternal One! Your word remains forever in heaven.

Your faithfulness endures from age to age; you established the earth, and it remains firm.

[These things] remain today according to your ordinances; for all things serve you.

Had it not been that your Law was my only pleasure, I would have already perished in my affliction.

I will never forget your commandments; for through them you have given me life.

I am yours, save me; for I have sought your commandments.

The wicked were waiting for me to destroy me; [but] I paid attention to your testimonies.

I have seen a beginning in all things perfect; [but] your commandment [is] of a very great scope.

MEM. Oh, how I love your Law! It is what I talk about all day long.

You have made me wiser by your commandments than my enemies are, because your commandments are always with me.

I have surpassed in prudence all those who taught me, because your testimonies are my sustenance.

I have become wiser than the ancients, because I have observed your commandments.

I have kept my feet from every evil way, so that I may observe your word.

I have not turned away from your ordinances, because you taught them to me.

Oh, how sweet your words were to my palate! Sweeter than honey to my mouth.

I have become wise through your commandments; therefore I have hated every false way.

NUN. Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path.

I have sworn, and I will keep my oath, to observe the ordinances of your justice.

Eternal One, I am extremely afflicted; revive me according to your word.

Eternal One, I pray you, accept the voluntary offerings of my mouth, and teach me your precepts.

My life has been continually in danger, however I have not forgotten your Law.

The wicked have set traps for me, yet I have not strayed from your commandments.

I have taken your testimonies as my perpetual inheritance; for they are the joy of my heart.

I have inclined my heart to always fulfill your statutes to the very end.

SAMECH. I have hated various thoughts, but I have loved your Law.

You are my refuge and my shield; I have waited on your word.
You wicked, depart from me, and I will keep the commandments of my God.
Uphold me according to your word, and I shall live; and do not make me ashamed by withholding from me what I hoped for.
Support me, and I will be safe, and I will continually keep my eyes on your statutes.

You have trampled underfoot all those who turn away from your statutes; for falsehood is the means they use to deceive.
You have brought to nothing all the wicked of the earth, as if they were but scum; therefore I have loved your testimonies.
My flesh trembled with fear of you, and I dreaded your judgments.
HAJIN. I have exercised judgment and justice, do not abandon me to those who wrong me.
Be a mercy to your servant for his good; [and do not allow] me to be oppressed by the proud,
My eyes have grown weary while waiting for your deliverance and the word of your righteousness.
Deal with your servant according to your mercy and teach me your statutes.
I am your servant; make me wise, and I will know your testimonies.
It is time for the Lord to act; they have abolished your Law.
That is why I have loved your commandments more than gold, even more than pure gold.

That is why I have considered all the commandments that you give of all things to be just, [and] I have hated every way of falsehood.
PE. Your testimonies are wonderful things; that is why my soul has kept them.
The entrance of your words illuminates, [and] gives understanding to the simple.
I opened my mouth and sighed, for I longed for your commandments.
Look upon me, and have mercy on me, as you ordinarily have compassion on those who love your Name.
Strengthen my steps according to your word, and let iniquity have no dominion over me.
Deliver me from the oppression of men, so that I may keep your commandments.
Let your face shine upon your servant, and teach me your statutes.
My eyes have turned into streams of water, because your Law is not observed.
TSADE. You are just, O Eternal One! and upright in your judgments.
You have ordained your testimonies as a just and supremely firm thing.
My zeal has undermined me; because my adversaries have forgotten your words.
Your word is supremely refined, that is why your servant loves it.
I am small and despised, [however] I do not forget your commandments.
Your justice is justice forever, and your Law is truth.
Distress and anguish had overtaken me; [but] your commandments are my delight.
Your testimonies are nothing but justice forever; give me understanding of them, so that I may live.
KOPH. I have cried out with all my heart, answer me, O Eternal One! [and] I will keep your statutes.
I cried out to you; save me, so that I may observe your testimonies.
I warned at daybreak, and I cried out; I waited for your word.
My eyes have warned the night watches to meditate on the word.
Listen to my voice according to your mercy: O Eternal One! revive me according to your commandments.
Those who are given to scheming have approached me, [and] they have turned away from your Law.
Eternal One, you are also near to me; and all your commandments are truth.
I have known for a long time how touching your testimonies were, that you have established them forever.

RESCH. Look upon my affliction, and take me away from it; for I have not forgotten your Law.

Support my cause, and redeem me; revive me according to your word.

Deliverance is far from the wicked; because they have not sought your statutes.

Your mercies are many, O Lord! Revive me according to your precepts.

Those who persecute me and press my pressure are many: yet I have not turned away from your testimonies.

I have looked upon the treacherous and I was filled with sorrow that they did not observe your word.

See how I have loved your commandments; Eternal One! Revive me according to your mercy.

The main point of your word is truth, and all the ordinances of your justice endure forever.

SCIN. The leaders of the people persecuted me without cause; but my heart was afraid because of your word.

I rejoice in your word, like one who has found great plunder.

I have hated and abhorred falsehood; I have loved your Law.

Seven times a day I praise you because of your righteous decrees.

There is great peace for those who love your Law, and nothing can overthrow them.

Eternal One, I have hoped in your deliverance, and I have done your commandments.

My soul has observed your testimonies, and I have loved them supremely.

I have observed your commandments and your testimonies; for all my ways are before you.

THAU. Eternal One, let my cry come near to your presence; make me wise according to your word.

Let my supplication come before you; deliver me according to your word.

My lips will proclaim your praise, when you have taught me your statutes.

My tongue will speak only of your word; for all your commandments are just.

May your hand help me, because I have chosen your commandments.

Eternal One, I have desired your deliverance, and your Law is all my delight.

May my soul live, so that it may praise you; and may your precepts be to my aid.

I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek your servant, for I have not forgotten your commandments.

Song of Mahaloth. I called upon the Lord in my great distress, and he answered me.

Eternal One, deliver my soul from false lips and from a deceitful tongue.

What will a deceitful tongue give you, and what will it profit you?

These are sharp arrows shot by a powerful man, and juniper coals.

Alas! How wretched I am to dwell in Meshech, and to remain in the tents of Kedar!

That my soul should have remained so long with him who hates peace!

I [only seek] peace, but when I speak of it, they are at war.

Song of Mahaloth. I lift my eyes to the mountains, from where will my help come?

My help comes from the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

He will not allow your foot to tremble; he who watches over you will not slumber.

Behold, he who guards Israel will neither slumber nor fall asleep.

The Lord is your keeper; the Lord is your shade, at your right hand.

The sun will not beat upon you by day, nor the moon by night.

The Lord will keep you from all harm; he will keep your soul.

The Lord will guard your way out and your way in, now and forever.

A Psalm of Mahaloth, of David. I rejoiced because of those who said to me, "Let us go to the house of the Lord."

Our feet have stood still at your gates, O Jerusalem!

Jerusalem, which is built like a city whose inhabitants are very united,

To which the Tribes go up, the Tribes of the Lord, which is a testimony to Israel, to praise the Name of the Lord.

For it was there that the seats for judging were placed, the seats, [I say], of the house of David.

Pray for the peace of Jerusalem; may those who love you prosper.

May peace be upon your outer wall, and prosperity within your palaces.

For the love of my brothers and friends, I will now pray for your peace.

For the sake of the house of the Lord our God, I will provide for your well-being.

Song of Mahaloth. I lift my eyes to you, who dwell in the heavens.

Behold, as the eyes of servants look to the hand of their masters, and as the eyes of a maidservant look to the hand of her mistress, so our eyes look to the Lord our God, until he has mercy on us.

Have mercy on us, O Lord! Have mercy on us; for we have been overwhelmed with contempt.

Our soul is burdened by the insults of those who are at ease, [and] by the contempt of the proud.

A Psalm of Mahaloth, of David. Had it not been for the Lord, who was for us, let Israel now say.

Had it not been for the Lord, who was for us when men rose up against us.

They would have swallowed us alive then; while their anger was kindled against us.

If the waters had overflowed upon us, a torrent would have swept over our souls.

From then on, the swollen waters had passed over our soul.

Blessed be the Lord; who has not given us as prey to their teeth.

Our soul has escaped, like a bird from the fowler's snare; the snare has been broken, and we have escaped.

Our help be in the name of the Lord who made heaven and earth.

A song of Mahaloth. Those who trust in the Lord are like Mount Zion, which cannot be shaken, but endures forever.

As for Jerusalem, there are mountains all around it, and the Lord is around his people, now and forever.

For the rod of wickedness shall not rest upon the lot of the righteous; lest the righteous lay their hands upon iniquity.

Eternal One, bless the righteous and those whose hearts are upright.

But as for those who twist their ways crookedly, the Lord will make them walk with the workers of iniquity. Peace will be upon Israel.

A song of Mahaloth. When the Lord restored the fortunes of Zion, we were like those who dream.

Then our mouths were filled with joy, and our tongues with shouts of triumph, and it was said among the nations: The Lord has done great things for these;

The Lord has done great things for us; we have rejoiced.

O Lord! Restore our prisoners, [so that they may be] like the streams [of water] in the land of the South.

Those who sow with tears will reap with songs of triumph.

He who carries the seed to the earth will go weeping on his way, but he will return with songs of triumph, when he carries his sheaves.

A Psalm of Mahaloth, of Solomon. Unless the Lord builds the house, the builders labor in vain; unless the Lord watches over the city, the watchmen stand guard in vain.

It is in vain that you rise early, that you stay up late, [and] that you eat the bread of suffering; surely it is [God] who gives rest to the one he loves.

Behold, children are an inheritance from the Lord; and the fruit of the womb is a reward from God.

As are arrows in the hand of a mighty man, so are the sons of a father in the prime of his life.

Oh, how blessed is the man who has filled his quiver with them! Men like these will not blush with shame when they speak with their enemies at the gate.

Song of Mahaloth. Blessed is he who fears the Lord, and walks in his ways.

For you will eat the fruit of your labor; you will be blessed, and you will prosper.

Your wife will be in your house like a fruitful vine, and your children will be around your table like olive shoots.
Behold, thus shall the person who fears the Lord be blessed.
The Lord will bless you from Zion, and you will see the prosperity of Jerusalem all the days of your life.
And you will see children to your children. Peace will be upon Israel.
Song of Mahaloth. Let Israel now say: They have often tormented me from my youth. They have often tormented me since my youth; [however] they have not yet been stronger than me.
Ploughmen ploughed over my back, they dragged their furrows all the way across it. The Lord is righteous; he has cut the cords of the wicked.
All those who hate Zion will be ashamed and cast back.
They will be like the grass on the roofs, which is dry before it grows up in a tube;

Of which the reaper does not fill his hand, nor does the one who gathers the sheaves fill his arms;

And [whose] passers-by will not say: The blessing of the Lord be upon you; we bless you in the name of the Lord.

Mahaloth's Song. O Eternal One! I invoke you from the deep places.

Lord, hear my voice! Let your ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.

O Lord! If you, Lord, were to keep watch over iniquities, who could stand?

But there is forgiveness with you, so that you may be feared.

I waited for the Lord; my soul waited for him, and I waited for him in his word.

My soul waits for the Lord more than watchmen wait for the morning, more than watchmen wait for the morning.

Israel, wait on the Lord: for the Lord is merciful and with him is abundant redemption.

And he himself will redeem Israel from all its iniquities.

A Psalm of Mahaloth, of David. O Lord, my heart has not been lifted up, nor have my eyes been haughty, nor have I walked in things great and marvelous than I can understand.

Have I not subdued and silenced my heart, as a weaned child does with its mother? My heart is within me, like that of a weaned child.

Israel, wait on the Lord now and forever.

A song of Mahaloth. O Lord, remember David, and all his affliction.

Who has sworn to the Lord, and made a vow to the Mighty One of Jacob, saying:

If I enter the Tabernacle of my house, [and] if I go up onto the bed where I lie;

If I let my eyes sleep, [if I let] my eyelids slumber,

Until I find a place for the Lord, [and] pavilions for the Mighty One of Jacob.

Behold, we have heard of her in Ephrat, we found her in the fields of Jahar.

We will enter his pavilions, [and] we will bow down before his footstool.

Arise, O Lord! [to come] to your rest, you and the Ark of your strength.

May your priests be clothed with righteousness, and may your beloved ones sing for joy.

For the sake of David your servant, do not let your Anointed One turn his face backward.

The Lord has sworn to David in truth, [and] he will not change his mind, [saying]: I will place some of the fruit of your womb on your throne.

If your children keep my covenant and my testimony, which I will teach them, their children also will sit on your throne forever.

For the Lord has chosen Zion; he has preferred it to be his seat.

She is, [he said], my eternal rest; I will remain there, because I have cherished her.

I will abundantly bless her provisions; I will satisfy her poor with bread.

And I will clothe her priests with deliverance; and her beloved will sing with joy.

I will cause a horn for David to sprout in it; I will prepare a lamp for my Anointed One.

I will shame his enemies, and his diadem will flourish upon him.

A Servant's Song, Restore to Me Mahaloth, of David. Behold, oh! How good and pleasant it is, when brothers converse, when they converse, I say, together!

It is like that precious oil poured on the head, which runs down on Aaron's beard, and down on the edges of his garments;

And like the dew of Hermon, and that which falls on the mountains of Zion: for there the Lord has ordained blessing and life forevermore.

A song of Mahaloth. Behold, bless the Lord, all you servants of the Lord, who stand every night in the house of the Lord.

Lift up your hands in the Sanctuary, and bless the Lord.

The Lord, who made heaven and earth, bless you from Zion!

Praise the Name of the Lord; you servants of the Lord, praise him.

You who stand in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God,

Praise the Lord, for the Lord is good; sing praises to his name, for it is pleasant.

For the Lord has chosen Jacob for himself, and Israel for his most precious jewel.

I certainly know that the Lord is great, and that our Lord is above all gods.

The Lord does whatever pleases him, in heaven and on earth, in the sea, and in all the depths.

He is the one who makes the vapors rise from the ends of the earth; he makes the lightning for the rain; he brings the wind out of his storehouses.

It was he who struck down the firstborn of Egypt, both of men and of beasts;

Who sent wonders and miracles in your midst, O Egypt, against Pharaoh and against all his servants;

Who struck down many nations, and killed mighty kings;

[Knowledge], Sihon the king of the Amorites, and Hog the king of Hasan, and those of all the Kingdoms of Canaan;

And who gave their land as an inheritance, as an inheritance, [I say], to Israel his people.

Your fame, O Lord, endures forever; your memory, O Lord, is from generation to generation.

For the Lord will judge his people, and will relent toward his servants.

The gods of the nations are nothing but gold and silver, the work of human hands.

They have a mouth, but do not speak; they have eyes, but do not see;

They have ears, but do not hear; nor is there any breath in their mouths.

May those who make them, [and] all those who trust in them, be made like them.

House of Israel, bless the Lord; house of Aaron, bless the Lord.

House of Levites, bless the Lord; you who fear the Lord, bless the Lord.

Blessed be the Lord of Zion who dwells in Jerusalem. Praise the Lord.

Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; his mercy endures forever.

Give thanks to the God of gods; for his mercy endures forever.

Give thanks to the Lord of Lords, for his goodness endures forever.

Celebrate the one who alone does great wonders; for his goodness endures forever.

He who made the heavens with understanding; because his goodness endures forever;

He who spread out the earth upon the waters; because his goodness endures forever;

He who made the great lights; because his goodness endures forever;

The sun to rule over the day; because its goodness remains forever;

The moon and the stars to have dominion over the night; because his goodness endures forever;

He who struck Egypt in their firstborn; because his goodness endures forever;

And who brought Israel out from among them; because his mercy endures forever.

And this with a strong hand and an outstretched arm; because his goodness remains forever.

He parted the Red Sea in two; because his goodness endures forever;
And he led Israel through the midst of it; because his mercy endures forever:
And he overthrew Pharaoh and his army in the Red Sea; because his goodness endures forever.
He led his people through the desert; because his goodness endures forever.
He struck down the great Kings; because his goodness remains forever.
And he killed the magnificent kings; because his goodness remains forever.
[Knowledge], Sihon King of the Amorites; because his goodness remains forever;
And Hog King of Bashan; because his goodness endures forever.
And gave their land as an inheritance; because his goodness endures forever;
As an inheritance to Israel his servant; because his goodness endures forever.
And who, when we were very low, remembered us, because his goodness remains forever;

And he delivered us from the hand of our adversaries; because his goodness endures forever.
And he gives food to all flesh; because his goodness endures forever.
Give thanks to the God of heaven, for his goodness endures forever.
We sat by the rivers of Babylon, and there we wept, remembering Zion.
We hung our harps on the willows in the middle of it.
When those who had taken us captive asked us for words of song, and to make them glad with our harps that we had hung up, [saying to us]: Sing us some of the songs of Zion; [we answered]:
How could we sing the Songs of the Lord in a land of strangers?
If I forget you, Jerusalem, may my right hand forget itself.
May my tongue cling to the roof of my mouth if I do not remember you, and if I do not make Jerusalem my [principal] joy.
O Eternal One, remember the children of Edom, who on the day of Jerusalem said: uncover, uncover even its foundations.
Daughter of Babylon, [who is about to be] destroyed, happy is he who will repay you [for what] you have done to us!
Blessed is he who seizes your little children and dashes them against the stones!
A Psalm of David. I will praise you with all my heart; I will sing praises to you in the presence of the sovereigns.
I will bow down in the palace of your holiness, and I will praise your Name for the love of your goodness and your truth; for you have magnified your word above all your fame.
On the day I cried out you answered me; and you strengthened me with a [new] strength in my soul.
Eternal One! All the kings of the earth will praise you when they hear the words of your mouth.
And they will sing of the ways of the Lord; for the glory of the Lord is great.
For the Lord is high and exalted, and he sees the lowly things, and he knows the high things from afar.
If I walk in the midst of adversity, you will revive me; you will stretch out your hand against the wrath of my enemies, and your right hand will deliver me.
The Lord will accomplish what concerns me. Lord, your steadfast love endures forever; you will not abandon the work of your hands.
A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. Lord, you have searched me, and you know me.
You know when I sit down and when I get up; you perceive my thoughts from afar.
You make me pregnant, whether I walk or whether I stand; and you have accustomed all my ways.
Even before the word was on my tongue, behold, O Lord! you already knew it all.
You hold me tight from behind and from the front, and you have put your hand on me.
Your knowledge is too wonderful for me, and it is so high and lofty, that I cannot attain it.

Where can I go from your Spirit? And where can I flee from your presence?

If I ascend to heaven, you are there; if I make my bed in the grave, you are there.

If I take the wings of the dawn of day, [and] I lodge at the end of the sea;

Even there your hand will lead me, and your right hand will grasp me.

If I say: surely darkness will cover me; even night will be a light all around me.

Even the darkness will not hide me from you, and the night will shine like the day, [and] the darkness like the light.

But you have possessed my loins [since] you wrapped me in my mother's womb.

I will praise you for having been made in such a strange and admirable way; your works are marvelous, and my soul knows it very well.

The arrangement of my bones was not hidden from you, when I was made in a secret place, and fashioned like embroidery in the lowest parts of the earth.

Your eyes saw me when I was [like] a platoon, and all these things were written in your book in the days they were being formed, even when there were [yet] none of them.

Therefore, O Mighty [God]! How precious to me are the considerations I have of your deeds, and how great is their number!

Do I want to count them? They are more numerous than the sand. Am I awake? I am still with you.

O God! Will you not kill the wicked? Therefore, you bloodthirsty men, depart from me.

For they have spoken of you, thinking some wicked thing; they have exalted your enemies by lying.

Lord, should I not hate those who hate you, and should I not be angry with those who rise up against you?

I hated them with a perfect hatred; they were my enemies.

O Mighty One [God], search me and consider my heart; test me and consider my words.

And see if there is in me any intention to grieve others; and lead me along the way of the world.

A Psalm of David, [given] to the chief musician. O Lord, deliver me from the wicked man; keep me from the violent man.

They have conceived evils in their hearts; they plot battles every day.

They sharpen their tongues like a snake; there is viper's venom under their lips; [Selah.]

Eternal One, keep me from the hands of the wicked, preserve me from the violent man, from those who have plotted to strike me and make me fall.

The proud have hidden the trap from me, and they have spread a net with ropes in the place where I passed; they have set snares to catch me. [Selah.]

I said to the Lord: You are my mighty [God]; Lord, give ear to the voice of my supplications.

O Eternal! Lord! the strength of my salvation, you have covered my head on all sides in the day of battle.

The Lord does not grant the desires of the wicked; do not let their thoughts take effect, lest they exalt themselves. [Selah.]

As for the leaders of those who besiege me, may the pain of their lips cover them.

May burning coals fall upon them, may he cast them into the fire, and into deep pits, without them rising up.

Let not the slanderer be established in the earth; [and] as for the violent and wicked man, let him be pursued until he is exterminated.

I know that the Lord will do justice to the afflicted, [and] justice to the poor.

In any case, the righteous will celebrate your Name, [and] the upright will dwell in your presence.

A Psalm of David. Lord, I call upon you; hasten to me; give ear to my voice when I cry out to you.

May my request be pleasing to you like perfume; and the lifting up of my hands, like the evening sacrifice.

Eternal One, set a guard over my mouth; guard the entrance of my lips.

Do not incline my heart to evil things, so that I commit wicked deeds maliciously, with men who work iniquity; and that I do not eat of their delicacies.

Let the righteous strike me, [it will be] a favor to me: and let him rebuke me, [it will be] an excellent balm to me; he will not injure my head; for even still my plea [will be for them] in their calamities.

When their governors have been hurled among the rocks, then they will hear that my words are pleasing.

Our bones are scattered near the mouth of the tomb, like when someone cuts and splits [the wood that is] on the ground.

Therefore, O Eternal Lord, my eyes are on you; I have withdrawn to you; do not abandon my soul.

Keep me from the trap they have set for me, and from the snares of the workers of iniquity.

Let all the wicked fall, each into his own net, until I have passed by.

Maschil of David, which [is] a request he made while he was in the cave. I cry out to the Lord with my voice, I plead with the Lord with my voice.

I pour out my complaint before him; I declare my anguish before him.

When my spirit swooned within me, then you knew my path. They hid a snare from me in the way I walked.

I looked to my right, and I gazed, and there was no one who recognized me; I had no refuge, [and] there was no one who cared for my soul.

Eternal One, I cried out to you; I said, you are my refuge [and] my portion in the land of the living.

Listen to my cry, for I have become very weak; deliver me from those who pursue me, for they are stronger than I.

Deliver me from the place where I am confined, and I will praise your Name; the righteous will come around me, because you have done this good for me.

A Psalm of David. O Lord, hear my plea; give ear to my supplications; according to your faithfulness, answer me because of your righteousness.

And do not enter into judgment with your servant, for no living person will be justified before you.

For the enemy pursues my soul; he has trampled my life to the ground; he has placed me in dark places, like those who have long been dead.

And my spirit swoons within me, my heart is desolate within me.

I remember the days of old; I meditate on all your deeds, [and] I speak of the works of your hands.

I stretch out my hands to you; my soul calls to you like a thirsty land: [Selah.]

O Lord, hasten, answer me, my spirit fails me; do not hide your back from me, lest I become like those who go down to the pit.

Let me hear of your mercy in the morning, for I have put my trust in you; show me the way I should walk, for I have lifted up my heart to you.

Eternal One, deliver me from my enemies; [for] I have taken refuge with you.

Teach me to do your will; for you are my God; may your good Spirit lead me [as] through a united land.

Eternal One, preserve my life for the sake of your Name; deliver my soul from distress, because of your righteousness.

And according to the goodness that [you have for me] cut off my enemies, and destroy all those who hold my soul tight, because I am your servant.

A Psalm of David. Blessed be the Lord, my rock, who prepares my hands for battle, and my fingers for battle.

He who shows his kindness to me, [who is] my fortress, my high refuge, my deliverer, my shield, and I have withdrawn to him; he gathers my people under me.

O Lord! What is man that you care for him, or the son of man [mortal], that you take heed?

Man is like vanity; his days are like a passing shadow.

Eternal One, bow down your heavens and come down; touch the mountains, and let them smoke.

Launch your lightning, and scatter them; shoot your arrows, and rout them.

Stretch out your hands from on high, save me, and deliver me from the great waters, from the hand of the foreigners;

Their mouths utter lies; and whose right hand is a deceitful right hand.

O God! I will sing a new song; I will psalm you on the bagpipe, and with the ten-stringed instrument.

It is he who sends deliverance to kings, [and] who delivers his servant David from the dangerous sword.

Rescue me and deliver me from the hand of the foreign children, whose mouths speak lies, and whose right hand is a deceitful right hand.

So that our sons may be like young plants, growing in their youth; and our daughters, like cornerstones hewn for the adornment of a palace.

May our expenses be full, providing every kind of provision; may our flocks multiply by thousands, even by tens of thousands in our streets.

Let our oxen be fattened. Let there be no breach, no exit [in our walls], nor any outcry in our squares.

How blessed is the people to whom this is! How blessed is the people whose God is the Lord!

A psalm of praise, [composed] by David. [Aleph.] My God, my King, I will exalt you, and I will bless your Name forever and ever.

[Beth.] I will bless you every day, and I will praise your Name forever and ever.

[Gimel.] The Lord is great and most worthy of praise; his greatness cannot be fathomed.

[Daleth.] One generation will praise your works to the next, and they will tell of your exploits.

[He.] I will speak of the glorious magnificence of your Majesty, and of your marvelous deeds.

[Vau.] And they will recount the power of your awesome deeds; and I will tell of your greatness.

[Zain.] They will spread the memory of your great goodness, and they will recount your righteousness with songs of triumph.

[Heth.] The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love.

[Teth.] The Lord is good to all, and his compassions surpass all his works.

[Jod.] Eternal, all your works will praise you, and your beloved ones will bless you.

[Caph.] They will recount the glory of your reign, and they will tell of your great exploits.

[Lamed.] In order to make known to men your great exploits, and the glory of the magnificence of your reign.

[Mem.] Your kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and your dominion is throughout all ages.

[Samech.] The Lord upholds all who are about to fall, and raises up all who are bowed down.

[Hajin.] The eyes of all [animals] await you, and you give them their food in their time.

[Pe.] You open your hand, and you satisfy every living creature to its heart's content.

[Tsade.] The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and full of love in all his works.

[Koph.] The Lord is near to all who call on him, to all who call on him in truth.

[Res.] He fulfills the desire of those who fear him, and he answers their cry, and delivers them.

[Scin.] The Lord protects all who love him, but he will destroy all the wicked.

[Thau.] My mouth will declare the praise of the Lord, and all flesh will bless the Name of his holiness forever and ever.

Praise the Lord. My soul, praise the Lord.

I will praise the Lord as long as I live; I will sing praises to my God while I live.

Do not rely on the leaders [of the peoples, nor] on [any] son of man, to whom [it is] not his duty to deliver.

His spirit departs, [and the man] returns to his land, [and] on that day his plans perish.

O how blessed is he whose help is the Mighty God of Jacob, and whose hope is in the Lord his God;

Who made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, [and] who keeps the truth forever!

He upholds justice for those who are wronged, and gives bread to the hungry. The Lord sets the captives free.

The Lord opens the eyes of the blind; the Lord straightens those who are bowed down; the Lord loves the righteous.

The Lord protects the foreigners, preserves the orphan and the widow, and overthrows the train of the wicked.

The Lord will reign forever. O Zion! Your God is from generation to generation.

Praise the Lord.

Praise the Lord; for it is good to sing praises to our God, for it is a pleasing thing; [and] praise is fitting.

The Lord is the one who builds Jerusalem; he will gather those of Israel who are scattered to and fro.

He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds.

He counts the number of stars; he calls them all by name.

Our Lord is great and of great power; his understanding is incomprehensible.

The Lord preserves the meek, [but] he casts the wicked to the ground.

Sing to the Lord with thanksgiving, answering one another; make melody to our God with the harp;

Who covers the heavens with clouds; who prepares rain for the earth; who makes the mountains produce hay;

Who gives pasture to the cattle, and to the young ravens, who cry out.

He takes no pleasure in the strength of the horse; he does not value the greaves of man.

The Lord takes pleasure in those who fear him, in those who hope in his goodness.

Jerusalem, praise the Lord; Zion, praise your God.

For he has strengthened the bars of your gates; he has blessed your children in your midst.

It is he who makes your lands peaceful, and who satisfies you with the marrow of wheat.

It is he who sends his word upon the earth, [and] his word runs with great speed.

It is he who gives the snow like [flakes] of wool, and who scatters the drizzle like ashes.

It is he who throws his ice away as if in pieces; and who can withstand his coldness?

He sends forth his word, and melts them; he makes his wind blow, [and] the waters flow away.

He declares his words to Jacob, and his statutes and ordinances to Israel.

He has not dealt thus with all nations; therefore they do not know his ordinances.

Praise the Lord.

Praise the Lord. Praise the Lord from the heavens; praise him in the high places.
All his angels, praise him; all his armies, praise him.
Praise him, you sun and moon; all you stars that give light, praise him.
Praise him, you heavens of heavens; and [you] waters that are above the heavens.
Let these things praise the Name of the Lord; for he commanded, and they were created.

And he established them forever [and] always; he put in them a decree which will not pass away.

Praise the Lord from the earth; [praise him], whales, and all the deeps,
Fire and hail, snow and steam, whirlwind, that carry out his word,
Mountains, and all hillsides, fruit trees, and all cedars,
Wild beasts, and all livestock, reptiles, and birds that have wings,
Kings of the earth, and all peoples, Princes, and all Rulers of the earth.
Those who are in the prime of their lives, and virgins too, old men, and young men.
Let them praise the Name of the Lord; for his Name alone is exalted; his Majesty is on earth, [and] on heaven.

And he has raised up a horn for his people, which is a praise to all his beloved, to the children of Israel, who are the people near to him. Praise the Lord.

Praise the Lord. Sing to the Lord a new song, and his praise in the assembly of his faithful ones.

Let Israel rejoice in the one who made it, [and] let the children of Zion be glad in their King.

Let them praise his Name on the flute, let them sing psalms to him on the tambourine, and on the harp.

For the Lord delights in his people; he will honor the humble by delivering them.

The beloved will rejoice with glory, [and] they will be glad in their beds.

The praises of the Mighty God will be in their mouths, and sharp double-edged swords in their hands.

To take revenge on the nations, [and] to punish the peoples.

To bind their Kings with chains, and the most honorable among them with iron stocks;

To execute upon them the judgment that is written. This honor is for all his beloved. Praise the Lord.

Praise the Lord. Praise the Mighty God for his holiness; praise him for the vastness he has made by his strength.

Praise him for his great exploits, praise him according to the greatness of his Majesty.

Praise him with the sound of the trumpet; praise him with the bagpipe and the harp.

Praise him with drum and flute; praise him on the spinet, and on the organ.

Praise him with resounding cymbals; praise him with shouts of joy.

Let everything that has breath praise the Lord! Praise the Lord.

The Proverbs of Solomon, son of David, and King of Israel.

To know wisdom and instruction, to understand words of understanding;

To receive a lesson in common sense, justice, judgment, and fairness.

To give discernment to the simple, and knowledge and skill to the young.

The wise man will listen, and become better informed, and the intelligent man will acquire prudence;

In order to hear wise speeches, and what is elegantly said; the words of the wise, and their riddles.

The fear of the Lord is the principal knowledge; [but] fools despise wisdom and instruction.

My son, listen to your father's instruction and do not forsake your mother's teaching.

For they will be graces strung together around your head, and necklaces around your neck.

My son, if sinners want to lure you, do not give in to them.
If they say: Come with us, let us set ambushes to kill; let us secretly spy on the innocent, although he has given us no cause;
Let us swallow them up alive, like the tomb; and whole, like those who go down into the pit;
We will find all kinds of precious goods, we will fill our houses with plunder;
You will have your share among us; there will only be one purse for all of us.
My son, do not go with them on the way; keep your foot out of their path.
Because their feet run to evil, and hasten to shed blood.
For [as] it is without cause that the net is spread before the eyes of all that has wings;
Thus they lay traps against the blood of those others, and secretly spy on their lives.
Such is the way of every greedy [dishonest] man, who will take the lives of those who are given to it.
The sovereign Sapience cries out loudly outside, she makes her voice resound in the streets.
She shouts at the crossroads, where there is the most noise, at the entrances to the gates, she pronounces her words throughout the city:
"Fools," she said, "how long will you love foolishness? And how long will mockers delight in mocking, and fools hate knowledge?"
When you are rebuked by me, repent; behold, I will give you of my Spirit in abundance, and I will make my words known to you.
Because I cried out, and you refused [to listen]; because I stretched out my hand, and no one paid attention;
And because you rejected all my advice, and did not accept my rebuke;
So I will laugh at your calamity, I will mock you when your terror comes.
When your terror comes like a ruin, and your calamity like a whirlwind; when distress and anguish come upon you;
Then they will cry out to me, but I will not answer; they will look for me early in the morning, but they will not find me.
Because they will have hated knowledge, and will not have chosen the fear of the Lord.
They did not like my advice; they scorned all my rebukes.
Let them eat the fruit of their way, and let them be filled with their counsels.
For the ease of fools kills them, and the prosperity of fools destroys them.
But whoever listens to me will dwell safely and be at ease, without fear of any harm.

My son, if you receive my words, and store up my commandments within yourself;
So that you will incline your ear to wisdom, and your heart to understanding;
If you call for prudence, and address your voice to understanding;
If you seek it as silver, and if you search for it carefully as for treasures;
Then you will know the fear of the Lord, and you will find the knowledge of God.
For the Lord gives wisdom; from his mouth come knowledge and understanding.
He reserves a permanent state for those who are upright, and he is a shield for those who walk in integrity;
To guard the paths of judgment; [so that] he will guard the way of his beloved.
Then you will hear justice, and judgment, and equity, and every good way.
If wisdom comes into your heart, and if knowledge is pleasing to your soul;
Prudence will preserve you, and understanding will protect you;
To deliver you from the evil way, and from the man who speaks evil.
Of those who abandon the paths of righteousness to walk in the ways of darkness;
Those who rejoice in doing evil, and rejoice in the reversals that the wicked make.
Whose paths are crooked, and which go crooked in their train.
[And] so that he may deliver you from the foreign woman, and from another man's wife, whose words are flattering;

Who abandons the leader of his youth, and has forgotten the covenant of his God.
For his house leans towards death, and his path leads to the dead.
Not one of those who go towards her returns, nor does anyone resume the paths of life.
So that you may walk in the way of good people, and keep to the paths of the righteous.
For the righteous will dwell in the earth, and the blameless will remain in it.
But the wicked will be cut off from the earth, and those who act treacherously will be torn from it.
My son, do not forget my teaching, and let your heart keep my commandments.
For they will bring you long days, and years of life, and prosperity.
Let not gratuitousness and truth abandon you: bind them around your neck, and write them on the tablet of your heart;
And you will find grace and good sense in the eyes of God and men.
Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and do not lean on your own understanding.
Consider him in all your ways, and he will direct your paths.
Do not be wise in your own eyes; fear the Lord, and turn away from evil.
It will be medicine for your navel, and moistening for your bones.
Honor the Lord with your wealth, and with the firstfruits of all your produce.
And your barns will be filled with abundance, and your vats will burst with new wine.

My son, do not reject the Lord's instruction, and do not be angry when he rebukes you.
For the Lord will rebuke the one he loves, even as a father rebukes the child in whom he takes pleasure.
Oh, how blessed is the man who finds wisdom, and the man who puts forward understanding!
For the trade that can be made in it is better than the trade in money; and the income that can be obtained from it is better than fine gold.
It is more precious than pearls, and all your desirable things are not worth it.
Long days are in his right hand, riches and honor in his left.
His ways are pleasant ways, and all his paths lead to prosperity.
It is the tree of life to those who embrace it; and all who hold onto it are blessed.

The Lord laid the foundations of the earth by wisdom, and he established the heavens by understanding.
The depths overflow with his knowledge, and the clouds distill the dew.
My son, do not let them depart from your sight; maintain right knowledge and prudence.
And they will be the life of your soul, and the ornament of your neck.
Then you will walk securely in your way, and your foot will not stumble.
If you lie down, you will have no fear, and when you lie down your sleep will be sweet.
Do not fear sudden terror, nor the ruin of the wicked, when it comes.
For the Lord will be your hope, and he will keep your foot from being caught.
Do not withhold what belongs to those to whom it belongs, even if it were in your power to do so.
Do not say to your neighbor, 'Go, and return, and I will give it to you tomorrow,' when you have it with you.
Do not plot evil against your neighbor, since he lives in security with you.
Do not have a lawsuit without cause with anyone, unless he has wronged you in some way.
Do not envy the violent man, and do not choose any of his ways.
For he who goes astray is an abomination to the Lord; but his secret is with those who are righteous.

The curse of the Lord is on the house of the wicked, but he blesses the dwelling of the righteous.

Certainly he mocks the mockers, but he shows mercy to the good-natured.

The wise will inherit glory; but ignominy exalts fools.

Children, listen to your father's instruction, and be careful to know prudence.

For I give you good doctrine; therefore do not forsake my teaching.

When I was my father's son, tender and unique to my mother.

He taught me, and said to me: Let your heart retain my words; keep my commandments, and you will live.

Acquire wisdom, acquire prudence; forget nothing of it, and do not turn away from the words of my mouth.

Do not abandon her, and she will keep you; love her, and she will preserve you.

The most important thing is wisdom; acquire wisdom, and in all your acquisitions, acquire prudence.

Esteem her, and she will exalt you; she will glorify you when you embrace her.

She will place graces strung together upon your head, and she will give you a crown of splendor.

Listen, my son, and receive my words, and the years of your life will be multiplied.

I have taught you the way of wisdom, and I have led you in the paths of uprightness.

When you walk there, your steps will not be awkward; and if you run, you will not stumble.

Embrace education, do not let it go, hold on to it; for it is your life.

Do not enter the path of the wicked, and do not set your foot on the way of perverse men.

Turn away from it, do not go that way, move away from it, and go on the other side.

For they would not sleep unless they had done some wrong; and sleep would be taken from them unless they had caused someone to stumble.

Because they eat the bread of wickedness, and drink the wine of violence.

But the path of the righteous is like the brightest light, which increases in brightness until the day reaches its fullness.

The way of the wicked is like darkness; they do not know where they will fall.

My son, pay attention to my words, incline your ear to my speeches.

Do not let them depart from your sight; keep them in your heart.

For they are life to those who find them, and health to the whole body of each one of them.

Guard your heart from all that you should guard against; for out of it flow the springs of life.

Keep perversity from your mouth and depravity from your lips.

Let your eyes look straight ahead, and let your eyelids direct [your path] before you.

Make straight the path of your feet, and let all your ways be established.

Do not turn to the right or to the left; turn your foot away from evil.

My son, pay attention to my wisdom, incline your ear to my understanding;

So that you may keep my advice, and that your lips may preserve knowledge.

For the lips of the stranger distill rays of honey, and her palate is sweeter than oil.

But what comes from it is bitter like wormwood, and sharp like a double-edged sword.

His feet descend to death, his steps lead to the tomb.

So that you do not waver in the path of life; its paths are far removed from it, you will not know it.

Now then, children, listen to me, and do not turn away from the words of my mouth.

Keep your way away from the foreign woman, and do not approach the entrance of her house.

Lest you give your honor to others, and your years to the cruel.

Lest foreigners become satiated with your abilities, and the fruit of your labor end up in the house of the foreigner;

And that you do not roar when you are near your end, when your flesh and your body are consumed;

And that you do not say: How I hated instruction, and how my heart despised correction!

And how is it that I did not obey the voice of those who instructed me, and did not incline my ear to those who taught me?

I was very close to being in all sorts of trouble, in the midst of the congregation and the assembly.

Drink water from your cistern, and from the streams in the middle of your well;

Let your fountains overflow outside, and streams of water through the streets;

Let them be yours alone, and not those belonging to strangers with you.

May your spring be blessed, and rejoice in the wife of your youth,

[Like] a lovely doe, and a graceful kid; may her udders satisfy you at all times, and be continually enamored of her love;

And why, my son, would you go wandering after the stranger, and kiss the breast of the fairground woman?

For the ways of man are before the eyes of the Lord, and he weighs all his ways.

The iniquities of the wicked will overtake him, and he will be held by the cords of his sin.

He will die for lack of education, and he will wander because of the magnitude of his folly.

My son, if you have given security for someone to your friend, or if you have shaken hands with a stranger,

You are entangled by the words of your mouth, you are caught by the words of your mouth.

My son, do this now, and free yourself, since you have fallen into the hands of your close friend, go, prostrate yourself, and encourage your friends.

Give no sleep to your eyes, and do not let your eyelids slumber.

Break free like a deer from the hand [of the hunter], and like a bird from the hand of the fowler.

Go, you sluggard, to the ant, consider its ways, and be wise.

It has no leader, no director, no governor,

[And yet] she prepares her bread in the summer, and gathers her food at harvest time.

How long will you lie here, you lazybones? When will you get up from your bed?

A little sleep, [you say], a little sleep, a little bending of the arms, so as to remain lying down;

And your poverty will come like a passerby; and your want, like a soldier.

The man who imitates the demon is a violent man and his words are false.

He signals with his eyes, he speaks with his feet, he teaches with his fingers.

There are turmoil in his heart; he plots evil at all times; he stirs up quarrels.

That is why his calamity will come suddenly; he will be suddenly broken, and there will be no healing.

God hates these six things, and even seven are an abomination to him;

Knowledge, haughty eyes, false tongue, hands that shed innocent blood;

The heart that plots evil designs; the feet that hasten to run towards evil;

The false witness who utters lies; and the one who sows quarrels among the brothers.

My son, keep your father's commandment, and do not forsake your mother's teaching;

Keep them continually bound to your heart, and fasten them around your neck.

When you walk, he will lead you; and when you lie down, he will watch over you; and when you wake up, he will talk with you.

For the commandment is a lamp, and the teaching a light, and the reproofs proper to instruction are the way of life.

To protect you from the wicked woman, and from the flattery of a foreign tongue, Do not covet her beauty in your heart, and do not let yourself be captivated by her eyes.

For the love of a debauched woman, one will even give a piece of bread, and the [lustful] woman chases after a man's precious soul.

Can someone take fire into their bosom without their clothes burning?

Can anyone walk on hot coals without getting their feet burned?

Thus [it applies] to the one who enters upon his neighbor's wife; whoever touches her will not be innocent.

We do not despise a thief if he steals to fill his soul when he is hungry;

And if he is found, he will reward him seven times double, he will give him everything he has in his house.

[But] he who commits adultery with a woman lacks sense; and he who does so will destroy her own soul.

He will find wounds and shame, and his reproach will not be erased.

For jealousy is a husband's fury, which will not spare [adultery] on the day of vengeance.

He will not regard any ransom, nor will he accept anything, even if you multiply gifts.

My son, keep my words, and store up my commandments for yourself.

Keep my commandments, and you will live, and keep my teaching as the apple of your eye.

Bind them to your fingers, write them on the table of your heart.

Say to wisdom: You are my sister; and call prudence, your relative.

So that they may protect you from the foreign woman, and from the foreigner, who uses flattering words.

As I looked out of my window through my latticework,

I saw among fools, and I considered among the young men a young man devoid of sense,

Who was passing by a street, near the corner of a certain woman's house, and who was keeping to the way to her house;

In the evening, at the end of the day, when the night became black and dark.

And behold, a woman came to meet him, dressed as a woman of ill repute, and full of cunning;

Noisy and debauched, and whose feet do not stay in her house;

Sometimes being outside, sometimes in the streets, and keeping watch at every street corner.

She took him and kissed him; and with a brazen face, said to him:

I have sacrifices of prosperity at home; I have paid my vows today.

That is why I went out to meet you, to search for you carefully, and I found you.

I adorned my bed with a latticework, interspersed with Egyptian thread.

I perfumed it with myrrh, aloe, and cinnamon.

Come, let us be intoxicated with pleasure until morning, let us rejoice in love.

Because my husband is not at home; he has gone on a journey far away.

He took a bag of money with him; he will return to his house on the appointed day.

She lured him away with many sweet words, and attracted him with the flattery of her lips.

He immediately went away after her, like an ox goes to the slaughter, and like a fool to the stocks to be punished;

Until the arrow pierced his liver; like the bird that hurries towards the net, not knowing that it has been set for its life.

Now then, children, listen to me, and pay attention to my words.
Do not let your heart turn to the ways of this woman, and let her not lead you astray in her paths.
For she caused many wounded to fall to death, and all those she killed were strong.
His house is the paths of the sepulchre, which descend to the chambers of death.
Does not Wisdom cry out? And does not Intelligence make its voice heard?
She appeared on the summit of high places; on the road, at crossroads.
She shouts in the place of the gates; at the entrance to the city; on the avenue of gates.
O you! Men of quality, I call to you; and my voice is also addressed to the common people.
You simple ones, understand what discernment is, and all of you, become intelligent of heart.
Listen, for I will say important things: and the opening of my lips [will be] of right things.
Because my palate will speak the truth, and my lips abhor wickedness.
All the words of my mouth [are] with justice; there is nothing forced or evil in them.
They are all easy to find for the intelligent man, and straightforward for those who have discovered science.
Receive my instruction, and not money; and knowledge, rather than fine choice gold.
For wisdom is better than pearls; and all that one could wish for is not worth it.
I, Wisdom, remain [with] discretion, and I find the science of prudence.
The fear of the Lord is to hate evil. I hate pride and arrogance, the way of wickedness, and hypocritical speech.
Counsel and skill belong to me; I am prudence, strength belongs to me.
Through me kings reign, and through me princes dispense justice.
Through me rule the Lords, and the Princes, and all the judges of the earth.
I love those who love me; and those who diligently seek me will find me.
With me are riches and honor, lasting wealth, and righteousness.
My fruit is better than fine gold, even than refined gold; and my income is better than choice silver.
I lead them in the way of righteousness, and in the midst of the paths of uprightness;
So that I may bestow lasting wealth upon those who love me, and fill their treasuries.
The Lord possessed me from the beginning of his ways, even before he did any of his works.
I was declared Princess from the beginning, from the very start, from the ancient times of the earth.
I was conceived when there were no deeps, nor fountains full of water.
I was conceived before the mountains were laid down, and before the hills.
When he had not yet made the earth, nor the countryside, nor the most beautiful of the habitable lands in the world.
When he arranged the heavens; when he drew the circle above the abyss;
When he established the clouds above; when he held fast the fountains of the deep;
When he established his ordinance concerning the sea, so that the waters would not overflow its banks; when he measured out the foundations of the earth;
I was then, in his eyes, his infant, I was his daily delight, and I was always joyful in his presence.
I rejoiced in the habitable part of his land, and my pleasures were with the children of men.
Now then, children, listen to me; for blessed are those who keep my ways.
Listen to instruction, and be wise, and do not reject it.
Oh, how blessed is the man who listens to me, not leaving my gates every day, and guarding my gateposts!

For whoever finds me finds life and receives favor from the Lord.

But he who offends me harms his own soul; all who hate me love death.

The Sovereign Wisdom built her house, she hewed its seven columns.

She prepared her meat, she mixed her wine; she also set her table.

She sent her maids; and she calls from the battlements of the highest places in the city, [saying]:

Who is the one who is simple? Let him withdraw here; and she says to the one who lacks sense:

Come, eat my bread, and drink the wine I have mixed.

Leave [folly], and you will live; and walk straight in the way of prudence.

He who instructs the mocker receives shame; and he who rebukes the wicked receives a stain.

Do not rebuke a mocker, lest he hate you; rebuke a wise man, and he will love you.

Give instruction to the wise, and they will become even wiser; teach the righteous, and they will increase in knowledge.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the holy ones is prudence.

For your days will be multiplied by me, and years of life will be added to you.

If you are wise, you will be wise for yourself; but if you are a mocker, you alone will bear the consequences.

The madwoman is noisy; it's all nonsense, and she knows nothing.

And she sat on a seat at the door of her house, in the high places of the city;

To call out to passers-by who are going straight on their way, [saying]:

Who is the one who is simple? Let him withdraw here; and she says to the one who lacks sense:

Stolen waters are sweet, and bread taken in secret is pleasant.

And he does not know that the dead are there, and that those whom she has invited are at the bottom of the tomb.

A good child pleases his father, but a foolish child is a nuisance to his mother.

The treasures of wickedness will profit nothing; but justice will guarantee against death.

The Lord will not let the righteous go hungry, but the wickedness of the wicked drives them far away.

A lazy hand brings poverty, but a diligent hand brings wealth.

A prudent child gathers in summer; [but] he who sleeps during harvest is a child who brings shame.

Blessings will be upon the head of the righteous, but violence will cover the mouth of the wicked.

The memory of the righteous will be a blessing; but the reputation of the wicked will be tarnished.

The wise of heart will receive the commandments; but the fool of lips will fall.

He who walks in integrity walks in confidence; but he who perverts his ways will be known.

He who winks with his eyes causes trouble; and the fool with his lips will be overthrown.

The mouth of the righteous is a fountain of life; but extortion will cover the mouth of the wicked.

Hatred stirs up quarrels; but charity covers all wrongs.

Wisdom is found on the lips of the intelligent man, but the rod is for the back of the one who lacks understanding.

The wise store up knowledge; but the mouth of the fool [is] imminent ruin.

The wealth of the rich is the city of their strength; but the poverty of the poor is their ruin.

The work of the righteous tends toward life; but the work of the wicked tends toward sin.

He who heeds instruction holds the path that leads to life; but he who neglects correction goes astray.

He who conceals hatred uses false lips; and he who puts forward defamatory things is a fool.

The multitude of words is not without sin; but he who restrains his lips is prudent.

The tongue of the righteous is choice silver, but the heart of the wicked is of little worth.

The lips of the righteous instruct many; but fools will die for lack of sense.

The blessing of the Lord is that which makes rich, and [the Lord] adds no labor to it.

It is like a fool's game to do some wicked thing; but wisdom belongs to the intelligent man.

What the wicked fear will come upon them; but [God] will grant the righteous what they desire.

As the whirlwind passes, so the wicked are no more; but the righteous are a perpetual foundation.

What vinegar is to the teeth and smoke to the eyes, so is a lazy person to those who send him.

The fear of the Lord increases the number of days; but the years of the wicked will be cut short.

The hope of the righteous brings joy, but the expectation of the wicked will perish.

The way of the Lord is the strength of the upright man, but it is the ruin of the workers of iniquity.

The righteous will never be shaken; but the wicked will not dwell in the earth.

The mouth of the righteous will produce wisdom, but the hypocritical tongue will be cut off.

The lips of the righteous know what is pleasing; but the mouth of the wicked is nothing but corruption.

A false balance is an abomination to the Lord; but a just weight pleases him.

When pride came, so came disgrace; but wisdom is with the humble.

The integrity of the upright guides them; but the perversity of the treacherous destroys them.

Riches will be of no use in the day of indignation; but justice will guarantee against death.

The righteousness of the upright man paves the way; but the wicked will fall by their wickedness.

The justice of the upright will deliver them; but the treacherous will be caught in their wickedness.

When the wicked man dies, [his] expectation perishes; and the hope of violent men will perish.

The righteous are delivered from distress; but the wicked enter in their place.

He who deceives with his mouth corrupts his neighbor; but the righteous are delivered by knowledge.

The city rejoices in the good fortune of the righteous, and there is a song of triumph when the wicked perish.

The city is raised up by the blessing of the upright, but it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked.

He who despises his neighbor lacks sense; but the prudent man remains silent.

He who goes about betraying reveals the secret; but he who is faithful in heart conceals the matter.

The people fall for lack of prudence, but deliverance lies in the multitude of counselors.

He who gives security for a foreigner is bound to have difficulties, but he who hates those who strike [on the hand] is assured.

The graceful woman gains honor, and the robust men gain riches.

The gentle man does good to himself; but the cruel man troubles his flesh.

Therefore she lies in wait, as if after prey: and she will multiply transgressors among men.
To whom does it belong: woe to me? To whom does it belong: alas? To whom do the debates? To whom does the noise? To whom do the wounds without cause? To whom does the redness of the eyes?
To those who stop by the wine, and who go to get the blended wine.
Do not look at the wine when it appears red, and when it gives its color in the cup, and when it flows straight.
It bites from behind like a snake, and it stings like a basilisk.
Then your eyes will look at foreign women, and your heart will speak foolishly.
And you will be like one who sleeps in the heart of the sea, and like one who sleeps at the top of the mast.
They beat me, [you will say], and I was not sick; they ground me with blows, and I did not feel it; when shall I wake up? I will start looking for it again.
Do not envy wicked men, nor desire to be with them.
For their hearts are set on plunder, and their lips speak of harm.
The house will be built by wisdom, and will be established by understanding.
And through science, the cabinets will be filled with all precious and pleasant goods.
The wise man [is accompanied] by strength, and the man who has intelligence increases power.
For by prudence you will wage war advantageously, and deliverance lies in the number of counselors.
There is no wisdom too lofty for a fool; he will not open his mouth at the gate.
He who thinks of doing harm will be called, Malicious-Dreamer.
Foolish speech is sin, and a mocker is an abomination to man.
If you have lost courage in the face of calamity, your strength has diminished.
If you refrain from delivering those who are being dragged away to their death, and who are about to be killed,
Because you will say, "Behold, we knew nothing of it; will not he who weighs hearts hear it? And will not he who guards your soul know it? And will he not repay each one according to his deeds?"
My son, eat the honey, for it is good; and the honeycomb, for it is sweet to your taste.
So shall your soul have knowledge of wisdom, when you have found it; and there shall be a [good] outcome, and your hope shall not be cut off.
Wicked man, do not spy on the home of the righteous, and do not destroy his dwelling place.
For the righteous will fall seven times, and will rise again; but the wicked fall into evil.
When your enemy falls, do not rejoice; and when he is overthrown, do not let your heart be glad;
Lest the Lord see it and be displeased, so that he turn away his anger from you.
Do not fret because of wicked people; do not envy the evildoers;
For there will be no [good] way out for the wicked, and the lamp of the wicked will be extinguished.
My son, fear the Lord and the King; and do not associate with turbulent people.
For their calamity will arise all at once; and who knows what misfortune will befall those two?
These things too are for the wise. It is not good to show partiality to those who are on trial.
He who says to the wicked, "You are righteous," will be cursed by the peoples and hated by the nations.

But for those who take it back, they will derive satisfaction from it, and the blessing that accompanies good things will be poured out upon them.
He who answers correctly pleases [the one who listens].
Put away your work outside, and prepare it in the field that is yours, and then build your house.
Do not be a witness against your neighbor unless it is necessary; for would you want to make yourself believe it with your lips?
Do not say, "As he has done to me, so I will do to him; I will repay him according to what he has done to me."
I passed by the field of the lazy man, and by the vineyard of the man lacking sense;

And there it was, everything had grown into thistles, and nettles had covered the top, and its stone wall was demolished.
And having seen this, I put it in my heart, I looked at it, I received instruction from it.
A little sleep, a little sleep, a little bending of the arms to stay lying down, And your poverty will come like a passerby; and your want, like a soldier.
These things are also Proverbs of Solomon, which the people of Hezekiah King of Judah copied.
It is to the glory of God to conceal a matter; and it is to the glory of kings to search out affairs.
There is no way to fathom the heavens because of their height, nor the earth because of its depth, nor the hearts of kings.
Remove the scum from the silver, and a ring will come out for the refiner;
Remove the wicked from before the King, and his throne will be established in justice.
Do not act magnificent in front of the King, and do not stand in the place of the Great.
For it is better that we tell you, come up here, than that we should humble you before him who is in authority, whom your eyes have seen.
Do not rush out to quarrel, lest you [not know] what to do in the end, after your neighbor has confused you.
Treat your dispute with your neighbor so thoroughly that you do not reveal another's secret;
Lest the one who listens to him reproach you, and you receive an indelible disgrace.

Like apples of gold enameled with silver, so is the word spoken properly.
When you correct the wise man who listens attentively, it is like a gold ring, or like a jewel of fine gold.
The faithful ambassador is to those who send him, like the coldness of snow at harvest time, and he restores the soul of his master.
He who boasts of false generosity is [like] the clouds and the wind without rain.
The captain is bent by patience, and the gentle tongue breaks the bones.
When you find honey, eat only as much as you need, lest you become drunk and vomit it up.
Rarely set foot in your neighbor's house, lest, being satiated with you, he should hate you.
The man who bears false witness against his neighbor is a hammer, a sword, and a sharp arrow.
Trusting someone who acts treacherously in times of distress is like a broken tooth and a slipping foot.
He who sings songs with a sorrowful heart is like one who takes off his robe in the time of cold, and like vinegar poured on soap.
If the one who hates you is hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he is thirsty, give him water to drink.

For you will remove the burning coals from above his head, and the Lord will reward you.

The north wind drives away the rain; and a stern face drives away the tongue that [slanders] in secret.

It is better to live on a rooftop than in a spacious house with a quarrelsome wife. Good news brought from a distant country is like fresh water to a thirsty and weary person.

The righteous man who falters before the wicked is like a fountain clogged with mud, and a spoiled spring.

[Just as] it is not good to eat too much honey, so there is no glory for those who seek it too ardently.

A man who cannot restrain his spirit is like a city with a breach, which has no walls.

Just as snow is not appropriate in summer, nor rain in harvest time, so glory is not appropriate for a fool.

As the bird is quick to go to and fro, and the swallow to fly, so a curse given without cause will not come to pass.

The whip is for the horse, the halter for the donkey, and the rod for the backs of fools.

Do not answer a fool according to his folly, lest you become like him.

Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he consider himself wise.

He who sends messages by a madman cuts off his feet; and drinks the punishment for the harm he has done himself.

Make a man walk who only goes limping; it will still amount to a sententious remark in the mouth of madmen.

It is like someone who gives glory to a fool, as if he were throwing a precious stone into a heap of stones.

What a thorn that falls into the hand of a drunkard is a sententious saying in the mouth of madmen.

The powerful cause trouble for everyone, and take madmen and transgressors into their employ.

Like a dog returning to what it has vomited, [so] the madman repeats his madness.

Have you ever seen a man who thinks he is wise? There is more hope in a fool than in him.

The lazy man said: The great lion is in the road, the lion is in the fields.

[As] a door turns on its hinges, so turns the lazy man on his bed.

The lazy man hides his hand in his breast; he has difficulty bringing it back to his mouth.

The lazy man thinks he is wiser than seven [others] who give wise advice.

He who, in passing, becomes angry over a dispute that does not concern him at all, is [like] one who grabs a dog by the ears.

Such is the one who acts foolishly, and yet throws fire, arrows, and things fit to kill;

Such is the man who deceived his friend, and afterwards said: Was I not playing a trick on me?

The fire goes out for lack of wood; so when there are no more sowers of reports, the quarrels will subside.

Coal is for making embers, and wood for making fire, and a quarrelsome man for stirring up quarrels.

The words of a sower of reports are like those of those who do not pretend to touch, but they go down to the very heart.

Fiery lips and an evil heart are like litharge smeared on an earthenware pot.

He who hates deceives himself with his lips, but he hides the deceit within himself.

When he speaks graciously, do not believe him; for there are seven abominations in his heart.

The malice of the one who hides it as if in a secret place will be revealed in the assembly.

He who digs the pit will fall into it; and the stone will roll back on him who rolls it.

A false tongue hates the one it has brought down; and a flattering mouth causes one to fall.

Do not boast about tomorrow; for you do not know what the day will bring forth.

Let another praise you, and not your own mouth; let it be a stranger, and not your own lips.

The stone is heavy, and the sand is crushing; but the madman's resentment is heavier than both.

There is cruelty in fury, and excess in anger; but who can stand before jealousy?

Open correction is better than secret love.

The wounds inflicted by one who loves are faithful, and the kisses of one who hates are to be feared.

The satiated soul treads the honeycombs; but to the hungry soul, everything bitter is sweet.

As a bird strays from its nest, so is a man who strays from his place.

Oil and perfume gladden the heart, and so it is with the sweetness of a friend, which comes from kind advice.

Do not leave your friend, nor your father's friend, and do not enter your brother's house in the time of your calamity; [for] a neighbor who is near is better than a brother who is far away.

My son, be wise, and gladden my heart, so that I may have something to answer the one who reproaches me.

The wise man foresees evil, and remains hidden; [but] the foolish pass by, and pay the penalty.

When someone has stood surety for the foreigner, take his garment, and hold him as security for the foreign woman.

He who blesses his friend aloud, rising early in the morning, will be regarded as if he were cursing him.

A constantly dripping gutter during heavy rain, and a quarrelsome wife, are one and the same.

He who wants to hold it back holds back the wind; and it will make itself known [as] a fragrance that he has in his right hand.

As iron sharpens iron, so a man sharpens the face of his friend.

[Just as] he who tends the fig tree will eat of its fruit, so he who keeps his master will be honored.

As in water face [responds] to face, so the heart of man [responds] to man.

The grave and the abyss are never satiated; therefore the eyes of men are never satisfied.

As the furnace is for testing silver, and the crucible for gold, so is the mouth that praises a man.

Even if you were to pound the madman in a mortar among grain that is pounded with a pestle, his madness would not leave him.

Be careful to recognize the condition of your sheep, and put your heart into the pens.

For the treasure does not last forever, and the crown does not last from age to age.

The hay appears, and the grass seems to grow, and the mountain grasses are gathered.

Lambs are for your clothing, and goats are the price of a field;

And the abundance of the goats' milk [will be] for your food, for the food of your house, and for the life of your servants.

Every wicked person flees when no one pursues them, but the righteous will be as secure as a young lion.

There are several governors, because of the misdeeds of the country, but for the sake of the wise and intelligent man, the same [government] will be prolonged.

The poor man who oppresses the needy is like rain that causes a shortage of bread.

Those who abandon the Law praise the wicked; but those who keep the Law wage war against them.

Those who do evil do not understand what is right; but those who seek the Lord understand everything.

The poor man who walks in his integrity is better than the perverse man [who walks] by [two] ways, even if he is rich.

He who keeps the Law is a prudent child, but he who entertains gluttons brings shame upon his father.

He who increases his wealth by usury and surplus, gathers it for him who will give it freely to the poor.

He who turns his ear away from listening to the Law, his request itself will be an abomination.

He who leads astray those who are upright by a bad path will fall into the pit he has made; but those who are blameless will inherit the good.

The rich man thinks he is wise; but the poor man who is intelligent will see through him.

When the righteous rejoice, there is great glory, but when the wicked are exalted, everyone disguises themselves.

He who conceals his transgressions will not prosper; but he who confesses them and forsakes them will obtain mercy.

Blessed is the man who continually frightens himself; but he who hardens his heart will fall into calamity.

The wicked ruler over a poor people is like a roaring lion, and like a bear stalking its prey.

The driver who lacks understanding commits many extortions; [but] he who hates dishonest gain will prolong his days.

The man who wrongs a person's blood will flee to the pit, with no one to hold him back.

He who walks in integrity will be saved; but the perverse one who walks in two ways will suddenly fall.

He who tills his land will be filled with bread; but he who follows the lazy will be overwhelmed with misery.

The faithful man will abound in blessings, but he who is quick to get rich will not go unpunished.

It is not good to show partiality to people; for a man would commit a crime for a piece of bread.

The cunning man rushes to acquire riches, and he does not know that poverty will come upon him.

He who corrects someone will ultimately be more cherished than he who flatters with his tongue.

He who robs his father or mother, and says that it is not a sin, is a companion of the wasteful man.

He who is proud stirs up strife; but he who trusts in the Lord will be fattened.

He who trusts in his own heart is a fool; but he who walks wisely will be delivered.

He who gives to the poor will not want; but he who turns his eyes away from them will abound in curses.

When the wicked rise, man hides; but when they perish, the righteous multiply.

The man who, when corrected, stiffens his neck, will suddenly be broken, without any possibility of healing.

When the righteous are in power, the people rejoice; but when the wicked rule, the people groan.

A man who loves wisdom makes his father glad, but a man who keeps loose women squanders his wealth.

The King maintains the country through judgment; but the man who is given to bribes will ruin it.

The man who flatters his neighbor spreads a net before his feet.

The evil that is in man's sin is like a snare to him; but the righteous will sing and rejoice.

The righteous man takes note of the cause of the poor; [but] the wicked man does not take note of it.

Mocking men trouble the city; but wise men calm anger.

The wise man who argues with the foolish man, whether he is moved or laughs, will have no rest.

Bloodthirsty men hate the upright man, but righteous men value his life highly.

The fool pushes all his passion outwards, but the wise man represses it, and [sends it] back.

All the servants of a Prince who listens to lies are wicked.

The poor man and the usurer met, and the Lord enlightened the eyes of both of them.

The throne of the King who does justice according to truth to the poor, will be established forever.

The rod and reproof give wisdom, but a child left to himself brings shame to his mother.

When the wicked advance, crimes multiply; but the righteous will see their ruin.

Discipline your child, and he will give you peace and pleasure to your soul.

Where there is no vision, the people are abandoned; but blessed is he who keeps the Law.

The servant cannot correct himself with words; for he will hear, but will not answer.

Have you ever seen a man rash in his words? There is more hope in a fool than in him.

The servant will finally be the son of the one who raises him gently from his youth.

An angry man stirs up quarrels, and a furious man commits many crimes.

A man's pride brings him low, but the humble in spirit obtain glory.

He who shares with a thief hates his soul; he hears the oath of execration, and he does not recognize it.

The fear a man feels lays a snare for him; but he who trusts in the Lord will have a high refuge.

Many seek the face of the ruler, but judgment concerning anyone comes from the Lord.

The wicked man is an abomination to the righteous; and he who walks uprightly is an abomination to the wicked.

The words of Agur son of Jakeh, [namely] the charge that this man uttered at Ithiel, at Ithiel, [I say], and at Ucal.

Certainly I am the most foolish of all men, and there is no human prudence in me.

And I have not learned wisdom; and shall I know the knowledge of the saints?

Who is this who ascended to heaven and descended? Who is this who enclosed the wind in his fists, who wrapped up the waters in his garment, who set up all the boundaries of the earth? What is his name, and what is the name of his son, if you know?

All the word of God is pure; he is a shield to those who take refuge in him.

Do not add anything to his words, lest he rebuke you, and you be found to be a liar.

I have asked you for two things, do not refuse them to me during my lifetime.

Keep vanity and lying speech far from me; give me neither poverty nor riches, feed me with my ordinary bread.

Lest I be full and deny you, and say, 'Who is the Lord?' Lest I be poor and steal, and take [in vain] the name of my God.

Do not blame the servant in front of his master, lest [the servant] curse you, and harm come to you.

There is a race of people who curse their father and do not bless their mother.

There is a breed of people who think they are clean, and yet are not cleansed of their filth.

There is a race of people whose eyes are very haughty, and whose eyelids are raised.

There is a race of people whose teeth are swords, and whose jawbones are knives, to consume from the earth the afflicted and the needy among men.

The leech has two daughters, [who say]: Bring, bring. There are three things that are never satisfied; there are even four that do not say: It is enough:

The tomb, the barren womb, the earth that is not satisfied with water, and the fire that does not say, "It is enough."

The eye of one who mocks his father and despises his mother's teaching, the ravens of the streams will peck out, and the young eagles will eat it.

There are three things that are too wonderful for me, even four, [which] I do not know;

To know, the eagle's trail in the air, the snake's trail on a rock, the path of a ship in the middle of the sea, and the man's trail towards the virgin.

This is the mark of the adulterous woman; she eats, and wipes her mouth, and then says, "I have not committed iniquity."

The earth trembles for three things, even for four, which it cannot bear:

For the servant when he reigns; for the fool when he is full of meat;

For the [woman] worthy of being hated, when she marries; and for the servant when she inherits from her mistress.

There are four very small things on earth that are nevertheless very wise and well-advised:

The ants, who are a weak people, and who nevertheless prepare their food during the summer.

Rabbits, who are a people without strength, and who nevertheless make their homes in the rocks;

The grasshoppers, who have no king, and yet all go in flocks.

The spider, which catches [flies] with its feet, and yet is in the palaces of kings.

There are three things that have a beautiful walk, even four, that have a beautiful gait:

The lion, who is the strongest of the beasts, and who does not turn back to meet anyone;

[The horse], which has well-raised flanks; the goat; and the King, before whom no one can stand.

If you have acted foolishly in rising up, and if you have thought evil thoughts, put your hand over your mouth.

As one who churns milk produces butter; and one who squeezes the nose produces blood; so one who stirs up anger stirs up quarrel.

The words of King Lemuel and the instruction that his mother gave him.

What? My son? What, son of my womb? Oh, what? My son, for whom I made so many vows?

Do not give your strength to women, and [do not devote] your study to destroying kings.

Lemuel, it is not for kings, it is not for kings to drink wine, nor for princes to drink beer.

Lest, having drunk, they forget the ordinance, and thus infringe upon the rights of all the afflicted poor.

Give beer to the one who is about to perish, and wine to the one who is bitter of heart;

So that he may drink of it, and forget his poverty, and no longer remember his sorrow.

Open your mouth in favor of the mute, for the right of all those who are about to perish.

Open your mouth, do justice, and give justice to the afflicted and the needy.

[Aleph.] Who can find a valiant wife? For her price far surpasses pearls.

[Beth.] Her husband's heart is secure in her, and he will lack no spoils.

[Guimel.] She does him good every day of his life, and never harm.

[Daleth.] She seeks wool and flax, and she makes what she wants with her hands.

[He.] She is like a merchant's ships, she brings her bread from afar.

[Vau.] She gets up while it is still night, she distributes the necessary food to her house, and she [gives] her servants their task.

[Zajin.] She considers a field, and acquires it; and she plants the vine with the fruit of her hands.

[Heth.] She girded her loins with strength, and fortified her arms.

[Teth.] She finds that her trade is good; her lamp does not go out at night.

[Jod.] She puts her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff.

[Caption] She extends her hand to the afflicted, and puts out her hands to the needy.

[Lamed.] She does not fear the snow for her family, for all her family is clothed in double garments.

[Mem.] She makes bed skirts; fine linen and scarlet are what she dresses in.

[Nun.] Her husband is recognized at the gates, when he sits with the Elders of the land.

[Samech.] She makes linen and sells it; and she makes belts and gives them to the merchant.

[Hajin.] Strength and magnificence are her garment, and she laughs at the day to come.

[Pe.] She opens her mouth with wisdom, and the Law of charity is on her tongue.

[Tsade.] She contemplates the routine of her household, and does not eat the bread of idleness.

[Koph.] Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praises her, [saying]:

[Resch.] Many girls have been valiant; but you surpass them all.

[Scin.] Grace deceives, and beauty vanishes; [but] the woman who fears the Lord, she shall be praised.

[Thau.] Give her the fruits of her hands, and let her works praise her at the gates.

The words of Ecclesiastes, son of David, King of Jerusalem.

Vanity of vanities, says Ecclesiastes; vanity of vanities, all is vanity.

What does man gain from all the toil he occupies himself with under the sun?

One generation passes, and another generation comes, but the earth always remains firm.

The sun also rises, and the sun sets, and it sighs back for the place from which it rises.

The wind blows towards the South, and turns towards the North; it goes whirling here and there, and it returns after its circuits.

All the rivers flow into the sea, yet the sea is not filled; the rivers return to the place from which they came, to return [to the sea].

All things work [more than] man can say: the eye is never satisfied with seeing, nor the ear sated with hearing.

What has been will be again; what has been done will be done again; there is nothing new under the sun.

Is there anything of which we can say: Look at this, it is new? It has already existed in the centuries that came before us.

We do not remember the things that came before, we will not remember the things that will be in the future, and those who come after will have no recollection of them.

I, the Preacher, was King over Israel in Jerusalem;

And I applied my heart to seek and to search out by wisdom all that was done under heaven, which is a grievous occupation that God has given to men, to occupy themselves with.

I have looked at all that is done under the sun, and indeed, it is all vanity and a gnawing of the mind.

What is crooked cannot be straightened; and defects cannot be counted.

I spoke in my heart, saying, Behold, I have grown great and increased in wisdom, above all who were before me in Jerusalem, and my heart has seen much wisdom and knowledge.

And I applied my heart to know wisdom, and to know foolishness and insanity, [but] I recognized that this also was a gnawing of the mind.

For where wisdom abounds, sorrow abounds; and he who increases in knowledge, sorrow abounds.

I said to myself, "Let me now test you with pleasure, and enjoy yourself." But behold, this too is vanity.

I said concerning laughter: It is foolish; and concerning joy: What good is it?

I searched within myself for a way to treat myself gently, to make my heart accustomed to wisdom, and to understand what folly is, until I saw what it would be good for men to do under heaven, during the days of their lives.

I have made magnificent things for myself; I have built houses for myself; I have planted vineyards.

I made myself gardens and orchards, and I planted all kinds of fruit trees there.

I made myself some water reservoirs to water the park planted with trees.

I acquired male and female slaves; and I had slaves born in my house, and I had more cattle and sheep than all who were before me in Jerusalem.

I have also amassed silver and gold, and the most precious jewels which are found in Kings and in Provinces; I have acquired male and female singers, and the delights of men, a harmony of musical instruments, even several harmonies of all kinds of instruments;

I have grown and increased more than all who were before me in Jerusalem, and my wisdom has remained with me.

Finally, I refused nothing to my eyes of all that they asked, and I withheld no joy from my heart; for my heart rejoiced in all my labor; and this is all that I got from all my labor.

But when I considered all my works that my hands had done, and all the toil that I had exerted in doing them, behold, all was vanity and gnawing of the spirit; so that man has no advantage in what is under the sun.

Then I began to consider both wisdom, foolishness, and madness (for who is the man who could follow the King in what has already been done?)

And I saw that wisdom has many advantages over folly, just as light has many advantages over darkness.

The wise man has his eyes in his head, and the fool walks in darkness; but I also have seen that the same fate befalls them all.

That is why I said to myself, "It will happen to me like to a fool; what good will it do me then if I had been wiser?" That is why I said to myself, "This too is meaningless."

For neither the wise man nor the fool will be remembered; because what is now will be forgotten in the days to come; and how does the wise man die just as the fool does?

That is why I hated this life, because the things that were done under the sun displeased me; for all is vanity and gnawing of the spirit.

I also hated all my work, which I toiled for under the sun, because I will leave it to the man who will come after me.

And who knows whether he will be wise or foolish? However, he will be master of all my work, which I have done, and of that in which I have been wise under the sun; this too is vanity.

That is why I made my heart lose all hope in all the work I had done under the sun. For there is such a man, whose work has been done with wisdom, knowledge, and skill, who nevertheless leaves it to him who did not work at it [as] his share; this also is vanity and a great evil.

For what does man gain from all his toil and the gnawing of his heart with which he labors under the sun?

Since all his days are filled with pain, and his occupation with sorrow; even at night his heart does not rest; this too is vanity.

Is it not good for a person to eat and drink and to find satisfaction in their work? I have seen that this is from the hand of God.

For who will eat of it, and who will feel its effects more than I?

For to the one who pleases him, God gives wisdom, knowledge, and joy; but to the sinner he gives tasks to gather and assemble, so that these may be given to the one who pleases God; this too is vanity and a devouring of the spirit.

Everything has its season, and every matter under heaven has its time.

There is a time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to uproot what is planted;

A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to tear down, and a time to build;

A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to leap [for joy];

A time to throw stones, and a time to gather them up; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;

A time to seek, and a time to let go; a time to keep, and a time to discard;

A time to tear, and a time to sew; a time to be silent, and a time to speak;

A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

What advantage does the worker gain from that in which he works?

I considered this occupation that God has given to men to apply themselves to.

He has made all things beautiful in their time; and he has also placed the world in their hearts, yet man cannot comprehend from beginning to end the work that God has done.

That is why I have come to know that there is nothing better for men than to rejoice and do good during their lives.

And indeed, that each one should eat and drink, and enjoy the fruits of all his labor, this is a gift from God.

I have come to know that whatever God does, it is always himself; nothing can be added to it, nor taken away from it; and God does it so that we may fear him.

What has been, is now; and what must be, has already been; and God calls back what has passed.

I have seen something else under the sun: In the place appointed for judgment, there is wickedness; and in the place appointed for justice, there is also wickedness.

[And] I said in my heart: God will judge the just and the unjust; for there is a time for everything, and for every work.

I thought in my heart about the state of men, that God would enlighten them, and that they would see that they are nothing but beasts.

For the accident that befalls men and the accident that befalls beasts is the same accident: as the death of the one, so the death of the other; and they all have the same breath, and man has no advantage over beast; for all is vanity.

Everything goes to one place; everything was made from dust, and everything returns to dust.

Who knows that the breath of men ascends upwards, and that the breath of the beast descends downwards to the earth?

So I learned that there is nothing better for a man than to rejoice in what he does; for this is his portion; for who is that which will bring him back to see what will be after him?

Then I began to look at all the injustices that are done under the sun; and behold the tears of those who are wronged, and they have no comfort; and the power is on the side of those who wrong them, and they have no comforter.

That is why I value the dead who are already dead more than the living who are still alive.

I even consider him who has not yet been, happier than both, because he has not seen the evil deeds that are done under the sun.

Then I looked at all the work, and the skill of each trade, [and I saw] that one envies another; this too is vanity, and a gnawing of the mind.

The madman holds his hands folded, and consumes himself, [saying]:

Better is a full hand, with rest, than two full palms, [with] work and mental anguish.

Then I began to look at [another] vanity under the sun;

For there is one who is alone, and has no second, who also has neither son nor brother, and yet does not put an end to his labor; even his eye never sees enough riches, [and he does not say to himself]: For whom do I labor, and deprive my soul of good? This too [is] vanity, and a grievous occupation.

Two are better than one; for they have a better reward for their labor.

Even if one of the two falls, the other will help his companion up; but woe to him who is alone; because having fallen, he will have no one to help him up.

If two lie together, they will have more warmth; but how can one who is alone stay warm?

If anyone forces one or the other, both will be able to resist him; and the three-stranded rope does not break so easily.

A poor but wise child is better than an old and foolish king who does not know what it is to be warned.

For there is one who comes out of prison to reign; and likewise there is one who, being born a king, becomes poor.

I have seen all the living who walk under the sun, [following] the son who is the second person [after the King], and who must be in his place.

All these people, [namely] all those who have been before these, are without end; these latter also will not rejoice in this one; certainly this too is vanity, and a gnawing of the mind.

When you enter the house of God, guard your foot; and draw near to hear, rather than to give [what] fools give, [namely] sacrifice; for they do not know that they do wrong.

Do not be hasty in your speech, and do not let your heart be quick to speak before God; for God is in heaven, and you are on earth; therefore use few words.

For as a dream comes from a multitude of activities, so the voice of fools comes from a multitude of words.

When you have made a vow to God, do not delay in fulfilling it; for he takes no pleasure in fools; therefore fulfill what you have vowed.

It is better that you make no vows than that you make vows and not fulfill them.

Do not let your mouth cause you to sin, and do not say before the messenger [of God], "It is ignorance." Why should the Lord be angry because of your words and destroy the work of your hands?

For as in the multitude of dreams there are vanities, so there are many in the multitude of words; but fear God.

If you see in the Province that the poor are being wronged, and that right and justice are being violated, do not be surprised at this; for a higher one than that higher one is taking care of it, and there are those higher ones than they.

The land has advantage above all things; the King is enslaved to the field.

He who loves money is not satisfied by money; and he who loves a lavish lifestyle is not nourished by it; this too is vanity.

Where there is much good, there are many who consume it; and what advantage does it bring to its owner, except that he sees it with his own eyes?

The sleep of the laborer is sweet, whether he eats little or much; but the fullness of the rich does not let him sleep.

There is a grievous evil that I have seen under the sun: that riches are kept for their masters so that they may suffer harm from them.

And these riches perish through some unfortunate accident, so that a child will be conceived, and he will have nothing in his hands.

And as he came [naked] from his mother's womb, so he shall return naked, going as he came, and he shall take nothing of his labor with which he employed his hands.

And it is also a grievous evil, that as it came, it goes away in the same way; and what advantage does it have in having worked after wind?

He also eats in darkness all the days of his life, and grieves greatly, and his suffering reaches a fury.

So this is what I have seen, that it is good and pleasant [for man] to eat and drink, and to enjoy the bounty of all his labor which he has done under the sun, during the days of his life which God has given him; for this is his portion.

Therefore, whatever riches and possessions God gives to any man, [and] which he makes master of, to eat of, and to take his share, and to rejoice in his work, is a gift of God.

For he will not remember many of the days of his life, because God answers him with the joy of his heart.

There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, and which is frequent among men.

For there is such a man to whom God gives riches, goods, and honors, so that his soul lacks nothing of all that he could wish for; but God does not make him master of it to eat it, and a stranger will eat it; this is a vanity, and a grievous evil.

Even if a man had fathered a hundred children, and had lived for many years, so that the days of his years had greatly multiplied, yet if his soul had not been satiated with good things, and even if he had not had a burial, I say that a stillborn child is better than him.

For he will have come in vain, and will have gone into darkness, and his name will have been covered with darkness.

Even though he will not have seen the sun, nor known anything, he will have had more rest than that man.

And if he lived two thousand years, and enjoyed no possessions, do they not all go to the same place?

All of man's work is for his mouth, and yet his desire is never satisfied.

For what does the wise man have more than the fool? [or] what [advantage] does the afflicted man have who knows how to walk before the living?

Better is what one sees with one's eyes than what the soul does great research; that too is vanity, and a gnawing of the mind.

The name of what has been, has already been named; and who knew what man should be, and that he could not plead with him who is stronger than him.

When one has much, one only becomes more vain; [and] what advantage does man have in it?

For who knows what is good for a person in their life, during the fleeting days of their life, which pass like a shadow? And who can tell a person what will happen under the sun after them?

A good reputation is better than good perfume; and the day of death is better than the day of birth.

It is better to go to a house of mourning than to go to a house of feasting; for in the latter is the end of every man, and the living man has set this in his heart.

It is better to be angry than to laugh; because sadness of face makes the heart joyful.

The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning, but the heart of fools is in the house of joy.

It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise than to hear the song of fools.

For as the sound of thorns under the cauldron is, so is the laughter of a fool; this too is vanity.

Certainly, oppression makes the wise man lose his senses; and giving makes one lose his understanding.

Better is the end of a thing than its beginning. Better is a man who is patient than a man who is proud.

Do not rush headlong into your thoughts to become resentful; for resentment resides in the bosom of fools.

Do not say, "Why were the former days better than these?" For what you inquire about is not wisdom.

Wisdom is good with an inheritance, and those who see the sun receive benefit from it.

For [one is sheltered] in the shadow of wisdom, just as in the shadow of money; but knowledge has this advantage, that wisdom gives life to the one who possesses it.

Look at the work of God; for who can set right what he has overturned?

In the day of good, do good, and in the day of adversity, be careful; for God has made the one opposite the other, so that man may find nothing to say after him.

I saw all this during the days of my vanity; there is a righteous man who perishes in his righteousness; and there is a wicked man who prolongs [his days] in his wickedness.

Don't think yourself too righteous, and don't pretend to be wiser than necessary; why should you be surprised?

Don't be too restless, and don't be foolish; why should you die before your time?

It is good that you remember this, and also that you do not withdraw your hand from the other; for he who fears God comes out of everything.

Wisdom gives more strength to the wise man than ten governors in a city.

Surely there is no righteous man on earth who does [always] good and does not sin.

Do not set your heart on all the words that people will say, so that you do not hear your servant slandering you.

For your heart has also known many times that you have spoken ill of others in the same way.

I tried all this with wisdom, and I said, 'I will acquire wisdom'; but it was far from me.

What once was is now far away and sunk very low; who can find it?

I and my heart have been restless to know, to spy, and to seek wisdom and reason [in all things]; and to know the malice of folly, stupidity, [and] foolishness;

And I found that the woman who is like a net, and whose heart is like a snare, and whose hands are like fetters, is more bitter than death; he who pleases God will escape from it, but the sinner will be caught in it.

"See," says Ecclesiastes, "what I have found in seeking the reason for all things, one after the other;

It is that, until now my soul has sought, but I have not found, it is, [I say], that I have indeed found one man among a thousand; but not one woman among them all.

But here is what I have found: that God created man righteous; but they have sought much talk.

Who is like the wise man? And who knows what things mean? The wisdom of man makes his face shine, and his fierce gaze is changed.

Pay attention (I tell you) to the mouth of the King, and to the word of the oath of God.

Do not rush to withdraw from his presence; and do not persist in evil; for he will do whatever he pleases.

Wherever the word of the King is, there is power; and who can say to him, "What are you doing?"

He who keeps the commandment will feel no harm; and the heart of the wise discerns the time and what is right.

Because in every matter there is a time to consider the justice of the situation, otherwise misfortune upon misfortune falls upon man.

For he does not know what will happen; and indeed, who will tell him when it will happen?

Man is not master of his mind to be able to retain it; he has no power over the day of death; and there is no deliverance in such a war; and wickedness will not deliver its master.

I have seen all this, and I have applied my heart to every work that has been done under the sun. There is a time when one man rules over another, to his own harm. And then I saw the wicked buried, and returned; and those who had come from the place of the Holy One, [and] who had done good, were forgotten in the city. This too is vanity.

Because the sentence against evil works is not executed immediately, for this reason the hearts of men are full within themselves [of the desire] to do evil.

For the sinner does wrong a hundred times, and [God] grants him respite; but I also know that it will be well with those who fear God and revere his face:

But it will not be well with the wicked, nor will they prolong their days, nor will a shadow, because they do not revere the face of God.

There is a vanity that happens on earth: there are righteous people to whom things happen according to the works of the wicked; and there are also wicked people to whom things happen according to the works of the righteous; I said that this too is vanity.

That is why I have valued joy, because there is nothing better under the sun for a man than to eat and drink and be merry; this is also what he will have for his labor during the days of his life, which God gives him under the sun.

After applying my heart to know wisdom, and to consider the occupations that are on the earth, (for neither day nor night does [man] give his eyes rest.)

After having, [I say], seen all the work of God, [and] that man cannot find the work which is done under the sun, for which man labors in seeking it, and he does not find it, and even if the wise man intends to know it, he cannot find it.

Certainly I have applied my heart to all this; and to clarify all this, [knowing] that the righteous and the wise, and their deeds are in the hand of God; but men know neither love nor hate for all that is before them.

Everything happens equally to everyone; the same misfortune befalls the righteous and the wicked; the good, the clean, and the defiled; the one who sacrifices, and the one who does not sacrifice; the sinner is like the righteous man; the one who swears, like the one who fears to swear.

This is a grievous thing above all that happens under the sun, that the same misfortune befalls all, and that the hearts of men are full of evils, and that follies occupy their hearts during their lives, and after that they go to the dead. And who would want to be associated with them? There is hope for all who are still alive: and even a living dog is better than a dead lion.

Certainly the living know that they will die, but the dead know nothing, and gain nothing more; for their memory is forgotten.

So their love, their hate, their envy have already perished, and they no longer have any part in the world in all that is done under the sun.

Go, eat your bread with joy, and drink your wine cheerfully; for God has already accepted your works.

Let your clothes be white at all times, and let perfume never fail on your head.

Live joyfully all the days of your vain life with the wife whom you have loved, and who has been given to you under the sun for all the days of your vain life; for this is your portion in this life, and [what is due to you] for your labor which you do under the sun.

Whatever you can manage, do it according to your ability; for in the tomb, where you are going, there is neither occupation, nor discourse, nor knowledge, nor wisdom.

I turned [elsewhere], and I saw under the sun that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, nor bread to the wise, nor riches to the prudent, nor favor to the learned; but that time and opportunity decide what happens to all.

For man himself does not know his time, nor do the fish that are caught in the net, [which is] bad [for them], nor the birds that are caught in the snare; [for] men are thus snared by the bad time, when it falls suddenly upon them.

I have also seen this wisdom under the sun, which seemed great to me;

It was because there was a small town, and few people in it, against which came a great King, who besieged it, and who built great forts against it;

But there was found in her a poor, [and] wise man, who delivered her by his wisdom; but no one remembered that man.

Then I said: Wisdom is better than strength, and yet the wisdom of this poor man was despised, and no one hears of him.

The words of the wise should be listened to more peacefully than the cry of the one who rules among fools.

Wisdom is better than all the instruments of war; and one sinful man destroys a great good.

Dead flies make the perfumer's perfumes stink and boil; and a little folly produces the same effect on him who is esteemed for his wisdom and glory.

The wise man has his heart on his right, but the fool has his heart on his left.

Even when the madman sets out on a journey, he lacks sense; and he says of everyone, "He is mad."

If the spirit of the one who rules rises against you, do not leave your condition; for gentleness makes great faults forgiven.

There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, like an error that proceeds from the Prince;

It is because madness is placed in the highest places, and the rich sit in a low place.

I saw the servants on horseback, and the lords going on foot, like servants.

He who digs the pit will fall into it; and he who cuts down the hedge, the serpent will bite him.

He who moves stones out of their place will be injured; and he who splits wood will be in danger.

If the iron is blunt, and its blade has not been sharpened, it will overcome even strength; but wisdom is an excellent skill.

If the snake bites silently, the slanderer is no better.

The words of the wise man are grace, but the lips of the fool reduce him to nothing.

The beginning of the words of his mouth is folly; and the last words of his mouth are evil foolishness.

But the fool heaps up many words; [and yet] man does not know what will happen; and who is it that will tell him what will be after him?

The work of madmen only tires them out, and [not one of them] knows how to find the way to get to the city.

Woe to you, earth, when your king is young, and when your rulers eat in the morning!

How happy you are, O earth! when your King is of illustrious lineage, and your Governors eat when the time is right, for their sustenance, and not out of debauchery!

Because of lazy hands the floor sags, and because of loose hands the house has gutters.

Meat is prepared for celebration, and wine makes the living glad; but money answers for everything.

Do not speak ill of the King, not even in your thoughts; do not speak ill of the rich man in the room where you lie; for the birds of the air will surely speak of it, and the winged creatures will carry the news.

Cast your bread upon the surface of the waters; for in time you will find it.

Tell seven, or even eight; for you do not know what evil will come upon the earth.

If the clouds are full, they will pour down rain on the earth; and if a tree falls toward the South, or toward the North, in the place where it falls it will remain.

He who heeds the wind will not sow; and he who regards the clouds will not reap.

Just as you do not know the way of the wind, nor how the bones form in the womb of a pregnant woman, so you do not know the work of God, how he does everything.

Sow your seed in the morning, and do not let your hands lie idle in the evening; for you do not know which will be better, this or that; and whether both will be equally good.

It is true that the light is soft, and that it is pleasant to the eyes to see the sun;

But if a man lives many years and enjoys himself throughout those years, and then remembers the many days of darkness, all that has happened to him will be in vain.

Young man, rejoice in your youth, and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth, and walk as your heart leads you, and according to the sight of your eyes; but know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment.

Remove sorrow from your heart, and put away evil; for youth and adolescence are but vanity.

But remember your Creator in the days of your youth, before the evil days come, and before the years arrive of which you say, "I have no pleasure in them."

Before the sun, the light, the moon, and the stars darken, and the clouds come one upon another after the rain.

When the guards of the house tremble, and the strong men bow down, and those who grind cease, because they have been diminished; and those who look out of the windows are darkened.

And when the two leaves of the door are closed towards the street, with the sound of the millstone lowered; when one rises at the voice of the bird, and all the singers are lowered.

When people fear what is high, and tremble as they go; when the almond tree blossoms, and the cicadas become heavy; and when appetite departs, (for man goes to the house where he will dwell forever), and when people go about the streets in mourning.

Before the silver cable breaks free, before the golden vessel overflows, before the pitcher is shattered at the fountain; before the wheel is broken at the cistern;

And before the dust returns to the earth, as it had been, and the spirit returns to God, who gave it.

Vanity of vanities, says Ecclesiastes, all is vanity.

The wiser Ecclesiastes was, the more he taught knowledge to the people; he made known, he researched and arranged many serious pronouncements.

Ecclesiastes sought to find pleasant words; but what has been written [here] is righteousness itself; these are words of truth.

The words of the wise are like goads, and the teachers who have compiled them are like nails driven in, [and these things] were given by a Shepherd.

My son, beware of what lies beyond this; for there is no end to writing many books, and so much study is merely self-imposed labor.

The point of all the speech that has been heard is: Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man.

Because God will bring every work into judgment, including every hidden thing, whether good or evil.

The Song of Songs, which is Solomon's. Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth; for your love is more delightful than wine.

Because of the scent of your excellent perfumes, your name is [like] a widespread fragrance: that is why the girls loved you.

Pull me, and we will run after you; when the King has brought me into his chambers, we will rejoice and be glad in you; we will celebrate your love more than wine; the upright have loved you.

O daughters of Jerusalem, I am dark-haired, but graceful; I am like the tents of Kedar, and like the curtains of Solomon.

Do not pay attention to me because I am dark-skinned, for the sun has looked upon me; my mother's children were angry with me, they made me to tend the vineyards; and I did not tend the vineyard that was mine.

Tell me, you whom my soul loves, where you graze, and where you make [your flock] lie down in the south; for why should I be like a woman wandering among the pastures of your companions?

If you do not know, O fairest of women! go out after the tracks of the flock, and graze your goats near the shepherds' huts.

My dear friend, I compare you to the most beautiful pair of horses I have to Pharaoh's chariots.

Your cheeks look good with finery, and your neck with necklaces.

We will make you adorned with gold, with silver buttons.

While the King sat at the table, my asp gave off its scent.

My beloved is with me like a sachet of myrrh; he will spend the night between my breasts.

My beloved is to me like a cluster of henna blossoms in the vineyards of Hengedi. You are beautiful, my dear friend, you are beautiful; your eyes are like those of doves.

How handsome you are, my beloved; how pleasing you are! And our bed is fruitful.

The beams in our houses are made of cedar, and our joists are made of fir.

I am the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valley.

As the lily of the valley is among the thorns, so is my great friend among the girls.

As the apple tree is among the trees of a forest, so is my beloved among the young men; I desired his shade, and sat down there, and his fruit was sweet to my taste.

He led me into the banquet hall; and his livery, which I wear, is LOVE.

Restore my strength with liqueurs; make me a bed of apples; for I am fainting with love.

Let his left hand be under my head, and let his right hand embrace me.

Daughters of Jerusalem, I adjure you by the deer and the does of the field, that you do not awaken her whom I love, that you do not awaken her, until she wishes.

This is the voice of my beloved; behold, he comes, leaping over the mountains, and bounding over the hills.

My beloved is like a deer, or a young stag; behold, he stands behind our wall; he looks through the windows, he makes himself seen through the latticework.

My beloved spoke, and said to me: Arise, my great love, my fair one, and come away.

For behold, the winter is past, the rain is past, it is gone.

The flowers appear in the earth, the time for songs has come, and the voice of the turtledove has already been heard in our land.

The fig tree has put forth its figs, and the vines their clusters, and they give off their fragrance. Arise, my great love, my fair one, and come away.

My dove, who dwells in the clefts of the rock, in the recesses of the steep places, let me see your face, let me hear your voice; for your voice is sweet, and your face is gracious.

Take away the foxes, and the little foxes, that have been spoiling the vines ever since our vines began to bear fruit.

My beloved is mine, and I am his; he feeds [his flock] among the lilies of the valley.

Before the wind of day blows, and the shadows flee, return, my beloved, and be like the deer, or the fawn of the does, upon the broken mountains.

I have searched at night on my bed for the one whom my soul loves; I have sought him, but I have not found him.

I will now rise and go about the city, to its crossroads and squares, and I will seek the one whom my soul loves. I sought him, but I did not find him.

The watchmen, who were making their rounds through the city, found me. Have you not seen, [I told them], the one whom my soul loves?

I had scarcely passed them when I found the one my soul loves; I took him, and I will not let him go until I have brought him to my mother's house, and to the chamber of her who conceived me.

Daughters of Jerusalem, I adjure you by the deer and the does of the field, that you do not awaken her whom I love, that you do not awaken her, until she wishes.

Who is this coming up from the desert, like columns of smoke in the shape of palm trees, perfumed with myrrh and frankincense, and with all kinds of perfume powder?

This is Solomon's bed, around which are sixty valiant men, the most valiant of Israel; all wielding swords, and very well trained for war, each having his sword on his thigh because of the fears of the night.

King Solomon made himself a bed of wood from Lebanon.

He made its pillars of silver and its interior of gold, its sky of scarlet, and in the middle he placed her whom he loves among the daughters of Jerusalem.

Go forth, daughters of Zion, and behold King Solomon, with the crown with which his mother crowned him on the day of his wedding, and on the day of the joy of his heart.

You are beautiful, my dear friend, you are beautiful; your eyes are like those of doves between your tresses; your hair is like the hair of a flock of goats that are sheared, coming down from the mountain of Gilead.

Your teeth are like a flock of shorn sheep, coming up from the washing place, and they are all two by two, and there is not one missing.

Your lips are like a scarlet thread. Your speech is gracious; your temple is like a piece of pomegranate within your braids.

Your neck is like the battlement of David's tower, on which hang a thousand shields, and all the great shields of the mighty men.

Your two breasts are like two twin fawns of a doe, grazing among the lily of the valley.

Before the day wind blows, and the shadows flee, I will go to the mountain of myrrh, and to the hill of frankincense.

You are absolutely beautiful, my dear friend, and there is no blemish on you.

Come from Lebanon with me, my Bride, come from Lebanon with me; look from the summit of Amana, from the summit of Senir and Hermon, from the dens of the lions, and from the mountains of the leopards.

You have stolen my heart, my sister, my wife; you have stolen my heart with one of your eyes and with one of the necklaces around your neck.

How beautiful are your loves, my sister, my wife? How much better are your loves than wine? And the scent of your perfumes more than any aromatic drug?

Your lips, my Bride, drip honeycombs; honey and milk are under your tongue, and the fragrance of your garments is like the fragrance of Lebanon.

My sister, my bride, you are a garden enclosed, a spring enclosed; and a fountain sealed away.

Your offspring are a park of pomegranates, with delicious fruits, of privet, with asp;

asp and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon, with every frankincense tree; myrrh and aloe, with all the principal aromatic drugs.

O fountain of the gardens! O well of living water! And streams flowing from Lebanon.

Arise, O north wind, and come, O south wind, blow in my garden; that its fragrant spices may flow forth. Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat of its choice fruits.

I have come into my garden, my sister, my wife; I have gathered my myrrh, with my aromatic spices; I have eaten my honeycombs, and my honey; I have drunk my wine and my milk; My friends, eat, drink, and be merry, my beloved.

I was asleep, but my heart was awake; and behold, the voice of my beloved knocking, [saying]: Open to me, my sister, my great love, my dove, my perfect one; for my head is full of dew, and my hair with the moisture of the night.

I have stripped off my robe, [I told him], how can I put it back on? I have washed my feet, how can I defile them?

My beloved put his hand through the hole in the door, and my heart stirred for him.

I arose to open to my beloved, and myrrh was distilled from my hands, and the pure myrrh from my fingers, upon the fittings of the lock.

I opened to my beloved, but my beloved had withdrawn, he had passed by; my soul swooned at the sound of his voice; I sought him, but I did not find him; I called to him, but he did not answer me.

The watchmen who were patrolling the city found me, they beat me, they wounded me; the guards on the walls took my veil off me.

Daughters of Jerusalem, I adjure you, if you find my beloved, bring him back; and what? Let me faint with love.

What is it about your beloved more than another, O fairest among women? What is it about your beloved more than another, that you have thus conjured us?

My beloved is white and crimson, a standard-bearer [chosen] out of ten thousand.

Her head is of very fine gold; her hair is frizzy, black as a raven.

Her eyes are like those of doves on streams of running water, washed in milk, and set in ring-like settings.

Her cheeks are like a tile of aromatic drugs, and [like] fragrant flowers, her lips are [like] lily of the valley; they exude pure myrrh.

Her hands are [like] gold rings, in which there are chrysolites set; her belly is like polished ivory, covered with sapphires.

His legs are [like] marble pillars, founded on bases of fine gold; his bearing is [like] Lebanon; he is exquisite like cedars.

His palate is sweetness itself; everything in him is lovely. This is my beloved, this is my friend, daughters of Jerusalem.

Where has your beloved gone, O fairest among women? Which way has your beloved gone, so that we may seek him with you?

My beloved has gone down to his orchard, to the beds of aromatic herbs, to graze [his flock] in the orchards, and to pick lilies of the valley.

I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine; he feeds [his flock] among the lilies of the valley.

My dear friend, you are as beautiful as Tirtzah, as pleasant as Jerusalem, as formidable as armies marching with banners unfurled.

Turn your eyes away from me; for they are forcing me; Your hair is like a flock of goats that are sheared [when they come down] from Gilead.

Your teeth are like a flock of sheep coming up from the washhouse, and they are all in pairs, and there is not one missing.

Your temple is like a piece of pomegranate inside your braids.

[That there be] sixty queens, and eighty concubines, and countless virgins;

My dove, my perfect one, is unique; she is unique to her mother, to her who bore her; the daughters saw her, and called her blessed; the queens and the concubines praised her, [saying]:

Who is this that appears like the dawn of day, beautiful like the moon, bright like the sun, formidable like armies marching with banners unfurled?

I went down to the walnut orchard to see the fruits of the valley ripening, and to see if the vine is advancing, and if the pomegranate trees have put forth their blossom.

I did not realize that my affection had made me like the chariots of Haminadab.

Return, return, O Shulamite! Return, return, that we may behold you. What would you behold in the Shulamite? Like a dance of two bands.

Prince's daughter, how beautiful are your steps, with [your] shoe! The curve of your hips is like necklaces worked by the hand of an excellent craftsman.

Your navel is [like] a round cup, full of drink, your belly is [like] a heap of wheat surrounded by lily of the valley.

Your two udders are like two twin fawns of a doe.

Your neck is like an ivory tower; your eyes are like the fishponds in Heshbon, near the gate of Bathrabbim; your face is like the tower of Lebanon looking towards Damascus.

Your head is like crimson upon you, and the fine hair of your head is like scarlet; the King is chained to the galleries [to gaze upon you].

How beautiful you are, and how pleasant you are, delightful love!

Your height is like a palm tree, and your breasts like clusters of grapes.

I said, 'I will climb the palm tree and grasp its branches,' and your breasts will now be like clusters of grapes to me, and the scent of your face like the scent of apples;

And your palate is like the fine wine that flows for my beloved, and that makes the lips of sleepers speak.

I am my beloved's, and his desire is for me.

Come, my beloved, let us go out to the fields, let us spend the night in the villages.

Let us rise early in the morning to go to the vineyards, and see if the vine has progressed, and if the clusters have formed, and if the pomegranates are in bloom; there I will give you my love.

The mandrakes give off their fragrance, and at our gates there are all kinds of exquisite fruits, new fruits, and preserved fruits, which I have kept for you, O my beloved.

Would to God that you were like a brother to me who suckled at my mother's breasts! I would go to you outside, I would kiss you, and I would not be despised for it.

I would bring you, I would introduce you to my mother's house, you would teach me, and I would give you wine mixed with spices, and the juice of my pomegranate tree to drink.

Let his left hand be under my head, and let his right hand embrace me.

I adjure you, Daughters of Jerusalem, that you do not awaken her whom I love, that you do not awaken her, until she wishes.

Who is this coming up from the desert, gently leaning on her beloved? I awakened you under an apple tree, where your mother bore you, where she who conceived you, bore you.

Set me as a seal upon your heart, as a seal upon your arm; for love is as strong as death, and jealousy as cruel as the grave; their conflagrations are conflagrations of fire, and a most vehement flame.

Many waters could not quench that love, nor could rivers drown it; if someone were to give all the possessions of his house for that love, surely it would not be taken into account.

We have a little sister who doesn't yet have breasts; what will we do for our sister the day people talk about her?

If it is [like] a wall, we will build on it a silver palace; and if it is [like] a gate, we will strengthen it with a cedar entablature.

I am [like] a wall, and my breasts are like towers; I was so favored by him then, that I found peace.

Solomon had a vineyard in Bahalhamon, which he gave to guards, and each of them must bring a thousand [pieces] of silver for its fruit.

My vineyard, which is mine, is at my command: O Solomon, let the thousand [pieces of silver be] yours, and [let there be] two hundred for the guards of the fruit of the vineyard.

O you who dwell in the gardens, friends listen to your voice; let me hear it.

My beloved, flee as quickly as a deer, or a fawn of a doe, to the mountains of aromatic drugs.

The vision of Isaiah son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem in the days of Hoziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.

Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth, for the Lord has spoken, [saying]: I have nourished children, I have brought them up, but they have rebelled against me.

The ox knows its owner, and the donkey its master's crib; [but] Israel does not know, my people do not understand.

Ha! sinful nation, people laden with iniquity, brood of wicked people, children who do nothing but corrupt themselves; they have forsaken the Lord, they have provoked the Holy One of Israel to anger with their contempt, they have turned back.

Why should you be beaten again? You will add rebellion; every head is in pain, and every heart is faint.

From the sole of his foot to his head there is nothing whole in him; there is only wound, bruise, and putrid sore, which have not been cleaned or bandaged, and none of them has been soothed with oil.

Your country is desolate, and your cities are on fire; foreigners devour your land in your presence, and this desolation is like an upheaval caused by foreigners.

For the daughter of Zion will remain like a hut in a vineyard; like a shelter in a cucumber field; like a tightly packed city.

If the Lord of hosts had not left us a remnant, even though they are very few, we would have been like Sodom, we would have been like Gomorrah.

Listen to the word of the Lord, rulers of Sodom; give ear to the law of our God, people of Gomorrah!

"What have I to do with the multitude of your sacrifices," says the Lord? "I am full of burnt offerings of sheep and the fat of fattened animals; I do not delight in the blood of bulls, lambs, or goats."

When you come in to present yourselves before me, who required this of your hands, that you should trample my courts with [your feet]?

Stop bringing me empty offerings; perfume is an abomination to me; as for the new moons, and the Sabbaths, and the publication of [your] convocations, I can no longer bear the weariness of them, nor of [your] solemn assemblies.

My soul hates your new moons, and your solemn festivals; they are vexing to me, I am weary of bearing them.

Therefore, when you stretch out your hands, I will hide my eyes from you, and when you multiply your prayers, I will not answer them; your hands are full of blood.

Wash yourselves, cleanse yourselves, remove the malice of your actions from before my eyes; cease to do evil.

Learn to do good; seek justice; correct the oppressed, bring justice to the orphan, plead the widow's cause.

Come now, says the Lord, let us contend about our rights; though your sins be like scarlet, they shall be whitened like snow; and though they be red like vermilion, they shall be [whitened] like wool.

If you obey willingly, you will eat the best the country has to offer.

But if you refuse [to obey], and if you rebel, you will be consumed by the sword; for the mouth of the Lord has spoken.

How has the faithful city become so prostituted? She was once full of righteousness, and justice dwelt within her, but now she is full of murderers.

Your money has become foam, and your drink is mixed with water.
The leaders of your people are stubborn and companions of thieves; each of them loves bribes and chases after rewards; they do not defend the cause of the orphan, nor does the widow's cause come before them.
Therefore the Lord, the Lord of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel, says: Ha! I will be satisfied [by punishing] my adversaries, and I will take revenge on my enemies.
And I will lay my hand upon you, and I will refine your scum, and I will remove all your tin.
But I will restore your judges as they were at first, and your counselors as from the beginning; and after that you shall be called City of Justice, faithful city.
Zion will be redeemed by judgment, and those who return to it [will be redeemed] by justice.
But the rebels and the sinners will be crushed together; and those who have forsaken the Lord will be consumed.
For you will be ashamed because of the oak trees you desired, and you will blush because of the gardens you chose.
For you will be like the oak whose leaf falls, and like the garden that has no water.

And the strong will be like tow, and his work a spark; and both will burn together, and there will be no one to quench [the fire].
The word that Isaiah son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.
But in the last days the mountain of the Lord's house will be established as the highest of the mountains and will be exalted above the hills, and all nations will come to it.
Many peoples will go and say, "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob. He will teach us his ways, so that we may walk in his paths. The law will go out from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."
He will execute judgment among the nations, and he will rebuke many peoples; they will beat their swords into plowshares, and their halberds into pruning hooks; nation will not lift up sword against nation, nor will they engage in war anymore.
Come, O House of Jacob! Let us walk in the light of the Lord.
Indeed you have rejected your people, the house of Jacob, because they have become filled with people from the East, and with prognosticators, like the Philistines; and they have taken pleasure in the children of foreigners.
His country was filled with silver and gold, and there was no end to his treasures; his country was filled with horses, and there was no end to his chariots.
His land was filled with idols; they bowed down to the work of their hands, to what their fingers had made.
And the common people bowed down, and the people of quality humbled themselves; therefore do not forgive them.
Go into the rock, and hide in the dust, because of the fear of the Lord, and because of the glory of his majesty.
The haughty eyes of men will be humbled, and the proud will be brought low, and the Lord alone will be exalted on that day.
For there is a day [assigned] by the Lord of hosts against every proud and haughty man, and against every man who exalts himself, and he shall be humbled;
And against all the tall and lofty cedars of Lebanon, and against all the oaks of Bashan;
And against all the high mountains, and against all the lofty hills;
And against every high tower, and against every strong wall;
And against all the ships of Tarshish, and against all the pleasure paintings.
And the exaltation of men will be humbled, and the exalted will be brought low; and the Lord alone will be exalted on that day.
And as for the idols, they will all fall.
And [men] will enter caves in the rocks and holes in the earth because of the fear of the Lord and because of his magnificent glory, when he rises to punish the earth. On that day man will throw to the moles and bats the idols of his silver and the idols of his gold, which were made for him to worship [before them].

And they will enter the clefts of the rocks, and the quarters of the rocks, because of the fear of the Lord, and because of his magnificent glory, when he rises to punish the earth.

Get away from the man whose breath is in his nostrils; for what is he worth?

For behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, is going to take away from Jerusalem and Judah the support and the sustenance, all sustenance of bread, and all sustenance of water.

The strong man, and the warrior, the judge and the Prophet, the man enlightened about the future, and the elder.

The fiftieth, and the man of authority, the advisor, and the expert among the craftsmen, and the eloquent one;

And I will give them young men as governors, and children will rule over them.

And the people will be ransomed by one another, and each by his neighbor. The child will arrogantly turn against the old man, and the abject man against the honorable.

Even a man will take his brother from his father's house, [and say to him]; you have a cloak, be our leader, and let this distraction [be] under your direction.

[And he] will raise [his hand] on that day, saying, I cannot remedy this, and in my house there is neither bread nor cloak; therefore do not make me a leader of the people.

Surely Jerusalem is overthrown, and Judah has fallen; because their tongue and their deeds are against the Lord, to provoke the eyes of his glory to anger.

What they show on their faces testifies against them; they have proclaimed their sin like Sodom, and have not hidden it; woe to their souls, for they have brought evil upon themselves!

Tell the righteous that it will be well with him: for [the righteous] will eat the fruit of their works.

Woe to the wicked [who seeks only to do] evil; for he will receive the recompense of his hands.

As for my people, the children are their leaders, and the women rule over them. My people, those who guide you lead you astray, and have made you lose your way.

The Lord presents himself to plead, he stands to judge the peoples.

The Lord will enter into judgment with the elders of his people, and with his leaders; for you have consumed the vine, and what you have stolen from the afflicted is in your houses.

What right do you have to trample my people, and crush the faces of the afflicted? says the Lord, the Lord of hosts.

The Lord also said: because the daughters of Zion have exalted themselves, and walked with their throats uncovered, and with their eyes beckoning, and they have walked with a proud gait, making a noise with their feet,

The Lord will make the crowns of the heads of the daughters of Zion bald, and the Lord will uncover their nakedness.

At that time the Lord will remove the ornament of the bells, and the clasps, and the buckles;

The little boxes, and the chains, and the papillotes;

The finery, and the garters, and the ribbons, and the scented rings, and the ear cuffs;

The rings, and the bands that hang on their noses;

The mantlets, and the capes, and the sails, and the punches,

And the mirrors, and the crepes, and the tiaras, and the headdresses.

And it will come to pass that instead of aromatic scents, there will be stench; and instead of being girded, they will be uncovered, and instead of curly hair, they will have bald heads; and instead of corded belts, [they will be girded] with sackcloth; and instead of a beautiful complexion, they will have a sallow complexion. Your people will fall by the sword, and your strength by war. And its gates will wail and mourn; it will be emptied and lying on the ground. And at that time seven women will take one man and say, "We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothes; only let your name be called upon us; take away our disgrace."

At that time the Branch of the Lord will be full of nobility and glory, and the fruit of the earth full of greatness and excellence, for those who are saved from Israel. And it will come to pass that he who remains in Zion, and who stays in Jerusalem, will be called Holy; and those who are in Jerusalem will all be marked to live. When the Lord has washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and has wiped away the blood of Jerusalem from the midst of her, in the spirit of judgment, and in the spirit of consumption [by fire].

Therefore the Lord will create over all the extent of Mount Zion and over its assemblies a cloud by day with smoke, and a splendor of blazing fire by night; for the glory will spread everywhere.

And by day there will be a shelter to provide shade from the heat, and to serve as a refuge and sanctuary from the storm and rain.

I will now sing to my friend the song of my beloved, concerning his vineyard. My friend had a vineyard on a fertile hillside.

And he surrounded it with a hedge, and removed the stones, and planted it with exquisite vines; he also built a tower in the middle of it, and carved a vat in it; now he expected that it would produce grapes, but it produced wild bunches.

Now then, you inhabitants of Jerusalem, and you men of Judah, judge, I pray you, between me and my vineyard.

What more could I have done for my vineyard than I have done for it? Why did I wait for it to produce grapes, and it produced wild bunches?

Now therefore let me tell you, I pray you, what I am going to do to my vineyard: I will remove its hedge, and it will be grazed; I will break down its wall, and it will be trampled.

And I will reduce it to a desert; it will no longer be cut down or ditch-dug, and briers and thorns will grow there; and I will command the clouds not to rain on it.

Now the house of Israel is the vineyard of the Lord of hosts, and the men of Judah are the plant in which he delighted; he looked for justice, and behold, destruction; for righteousness, and behold, an outcry.

Woe to those who join house to house, and who place one field near another, until there is no more space, and you become the only inhabitants of the land.

The Lord of hosts makes me hear, [saying]: If not vast houses are laid waste, and if not great and beautiful [houses] without inhabitants?

Even ten acres of vineyard will only yield one Bath, and the seed of one Homer will only yield one Ephah.

Woe to those who rise early in the morning, who seek beer, who stay up until evening, and until the wine inflames them.

The harp, the bagpipe, the drum, the flute, and wine are in their feasts; and they do not look at the work of the Lord, nor see the work of his hands.

My people are taken captive because they have no knowledge; and the most honorable among them are poor, dying of hunger, and their multitude is parched with thirst.

Therefore the tomb has widened, and opened its mouth without measure; and its magnificence will descend into it, its multitude, its pomp, and those who rejoice there.

Those of the common people will be humbled, and those of quality will be brought low, and the eyes of the proud will be humbled.

And the Lord of hosts will be highly exalted in judgment, and the Mighty God, the Holy One, will be sanctified in righteousness.

The lambs will graze according to where they are penned, and going from place to place, they will eat the deserts where the cattle grew fat.

Woe to those who draw iniquity with cords of vanity; and sin, as with chariot ropes;

They say; let him hasten, and let him bring forth his work soon, so that [we] may see it; and let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel advance, and let him come; and we shall know [what it is].

Woe to those who call evil good, and good evil; who make darkness light, and light darkness; who make bitter sweet, and sweet bitter.

Woe to those who are wise in their own eyes, and intelligent in their own eyes.

Woe to those who are strong to drink wine, and valiant to swallow beer;

They justify the wicked in exchange for bribes, and deprive each of the righteous of their justice.

Therefore, as the torch of fire consumes the stubble, and the flame consumes the chaff, [they shall be consumed]; their root shall be like rot, and their blossom shall be destroyed like dust, because they have rejected the Law of the Lord of hosts, and despised the word of the Holy One of Israel.

Therefore the Lord's anger burned against his people, and he stretched out his hand against them and struck them; the mountains crumbled, and their dead bodies were smashed in the streets. Yet for all this he did not turn away his anger, but his hand was still stretched out.

And he will raise the banner to the distant nations, and will whistle to each of them from the ends of the earth; and behold, each will come swiftly and lightly.

Not one of them will be weary, nor will he stumble, nor will he slumber, nor will he sleep; their belts will not be loosed, nor the straps of their sandals broken.

Their arrows will be sharp, and all their bows bent; the hooves of their horses' feet will be like so many pebbles, and the wheels of their [chariots] like a whirlwind.

Their roar will be like that of the old lion, they will roar like young lions; they will roar, and seize the prey; they will carry it off, and there will be no one who can take it from them.

At that time a noise will be brought about him, like the noise of the sea, and he will look towards the earth, but behold, there will be darkness, and calamity will come with the light; there will be darkness in the sky over it.

In the year that King Hozias died, I saw the Lord sitting on a high and lofty throne, and its folds filled the Temple.

The seraphim stood above him, and each of them had six wings; with two they covered their faces, and with two they covered their feet, and with two they flew.

And they cried out to one another, and said: Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts; all that is in all the earth is his glory.

And the threshold posts shook at the voice of the one who cried out; and the house was filled with smoke.

Then I said, Alas for me! For it is done to me, because I am a man defiled by my lips, and I dwell among a people defiled by my lips; and my eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts.

But one of the Seraphim flew towards me, holding in his hand a burning coal, which he had taken from above the altar with tongs;

And he touched my mouth with it, and said, "Behold, this has touched your lips; therefore your iniquity shall be taken away, and atonement shall be made for your sin."

Then I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" And I said, "Here I am, send me."

And he said, "Go and tell this people: 'By hearing you will hear, but you will not understand; and by seeing you will see, but you will not perceive.'"

Fatten the heart of this people, and make their ears dull, and close their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand their heart, and turn, and be healed.

And I said, "How long, Lord?" And he answered, "Until the cities are desolate, and there are no more inhabitants, nor men in the houses, and the earth is made completely desolate;

And that the Lord had scattered the men far and wide, and that she whom he had abandoned had remained a long time in the midst of the land.

However, there will still be about ten in it, then it will be grazed again; [but] as the firmness of oaks and sessile trees consists in their suckering, [so] the holy seed will be firmness.

Now it came to pass in the days of Ahaz son of Jotham, son of Hoziah king of Judah, that Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah son of Remaliah king of Israel, came up against Jerusalem to make war against it; but they could not take it.

And it was reported to the house of David, saying, "Syria has rested on Ephraim." And the heart of Ahaz, and the heart of his people, trembled, as the trees of the forest tremble before the wind.

Then the Lord said to Isaiah, "Now go out to meet Ahaz, you and Sear-Jasub your son, to the end of the conduit of the upper pool, to the main road of the fuller's field;

And said to him, "Be careful, and remain calm; do not be afraid, and do not let your heart become weak because of the two tails of these smoking embers, because, [I said], of the fierce anger of Rezin and Syria, and of the son of Remaliah."

Because Syria conspired with Ephraim and the son of Remaliah to harm you, saying; Let us go up to Judea, and awaken it, and let us open it up, [divide it] among ourselves, and establish the son of Tabeal as king in its midst.

Thus says the Lord, the Eternal; [this] shall not have effect, nor shall it come to pass.

For the capital of Syria is Damascus, and the leader of Damascus is Rezin; and in sixty-five years Ephraim will be crushed so as not to be a people anymore.

And the capital of Ephraim is Samaria; and the leader of Samaria is the son of Remaliah, and if you do not believe [this], you will certainly not be strengthened.

And the Lord continued to speak with Ahaz, saying;

Ask a sign for yourself from the Lord your God, ask it whether in the lowest place or in the highest.

And Ahaz said, "I will not ask for it, nor will I put the Lord to the test."

Then [Isaiah] said; now listen, O House of David! Is it a small thing for you to work with men, that you also work with my God?

Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign: a virgin will conceive and give birth to a son, and will call his name Emmanuel;

He will eat butter and honey until he knows how to reject evil and choose good.

But before the child knows how to reject evil and choose good, the land you hate will be abandoned by its two Kings.

The Lord will bring upon you, and upon your people, and upon the house of your father, by the King of Assyria, days such as have not been since the day that Ephraim separated from Judah.

And it shall come to pass that on that day the Lord will whistle to the flies that are at the end of the streams of Egypt, and to the bees that are in the land of Assyria.

And they will come, and will settle all of them in the deserted valleys, and in the holes in the rocks, and in all the bushes, and in all the thickets.

And on that day the Lord will shave with the razor hired from beyond the river, [namely] with the King of Assyria, the head and the hair of the feet, and he will also finish the beard.

And it will come to pass at that time that a man will feed a cow and two sheep.

But it will come to pass that because of the abundance of milk they will produce, he will eat butter; for every man who remains in the land will eat butter and honey.

And it will happen on that day that every place where there were a thousand vines, worth a thousand pieces of silver, will be reduced to briers and thorns. They will enter it with arrows and with the bow, for the whole land will be full of thorns and briers. And in all the mountains that were cleared with the sickle, there will no longer be fear of seeing brambles and thorns, but it will be for throwing oxen into them, and for trampling sheep. And the Lord said to me, "Take a large scroll and write on it with a stylus in large letters: LET THEM HURRY TO GLEAN; HE HASTENS THE PLUNDER." Of this I took with me faithful witnesses, [namely] Uriah the Priest, and Zechariah son of Jeberechiah. Then I approached the prophetess, who conceived and gave birth to a son; and the Lord said to me, "Call his name Mahershalal-has-baz." For before the child can cry, 'My father! and my mother!' the power of Damascus will be taken away, and the spoils of Samaria, before the King of Assyria. And the Lord continued to speak to me, saying; Because this people rejected the gently flowing waters of Siloam, and rejoiced in Rezin and in the son of Remaliah; For this reason, behold, the Lord is going to bring upon them the waters of the river, strong and high, [namely] the King of Assyria, and all his glory, and this [river] will rise above all its streams of water, and will go above all its banks. And it will pass through Judah, and overflow, and pass so far that it will reach up to the neck; and the spans of its wings will fill the breadth of your land, O Emmanuel! Peoples, go forth, and be bruised; and listen, all you who are from a distant land; equip yourselves, and be bruised; equip yourselves, and be bruised. Take counsel, and it will be scattered; speak the word, and it will have no effect, because the Mighty One [God] is with us. For thus the Lord spoke to me with a strong hand, and he instructed me not to go in the way of this people, saying to me; Do not say, "Conspiracy," whenever this people says, "Conspiracy"; and do not fear what they fear, nor be terrified by it. Sanctify the Lord Almighty himself; and let him be your fear and your dread. And it will be for you a sanctuary; but it will be a stone of stumbling and a rock of tripping to both houses of Israel; a snare and a net to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And many of them will stumble, and fall, and be crushed, and be entangled, and be captured. Wrap up the Testimony, hide the Law among my disciples. Therefore I will wait for the Lord, who hides his face from the house of Jacob, and I will wait for him. Here I am, with the children the Lord has given me to be a sign and a wonder in Israel, from the Lord of hosts, who dwells in Mount Zion. If they tell you, "Inquire about the spirits of Pythons and the fortune-tellers who chirp and babble," [answer] "Should not the people inquire about their God? [Go] for the living to the dead!" To the Law and to the Testimony. If they do not speak according to this word, certainly there will be no light for him. And he will wander on the earth, hardened and hungry; and it will come to pass that in his hunger he will become enraged, and curse his King and his God; and he will look upward; Then he will look toward the earth, and behold, distress and darkness, a terrifying anguish, and he will be plunged into gloom. For there was no thick darkness for her who was afflicted, when the first one discharged himself lightly toward the land of Zebulun, and toward the land of Naphtali; and the last one weighed himself down on the way to the sea, on this side of the Jordan in the Galilee of the Gentiles.

The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light, and light has dawned on those who dwelt in the land of the shadow of death.

You have multiplied the nation, you have increased its joy; they will rejoice before you, as one rejoices in the house, as one is glad when dividing the spoils.

For you have broken the yoke on which he was burdened, and the staff with which they regularly beat his shoulders, and the rod of his tax collector, as on the day of Midian.

Because every clash of those who fight does so with tumult, and clothes are wallowed in blood; but this will be [like] a conflagration, when fire devours something.

For to us a child is born, to us a Son is given; and the government is upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty and Mighty [God], Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.

There will be no end to the increase of the empire, and to the prosperity upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it and to establish it in judgment and in justice, from now on and forever; the jealousy of the Lord of hosts will do this.

The Lord sent the word to Jacob, and it fell on Israel.

And all the people, [namely] Ephraim, and the inhabitants of Samaria will know it, and [nevertheless] they will say with pride and with a haughty heart;

The bricks have fallen, but we will build with hewn stone; the wild fig trees have been cut down, but we will replace them with cedars.

After the Lord has raised up the enemies of Rezin above him, he will also bring in the enemies of Israel pell-mell;

Syria on the east side, and the Philistines on the west, will devour Israel with open mouths. Despite all this, he will not turn away his anger, but will still stretch out his hand.

Because the people did not turn back to the one who struck them, and they did not seek the Lord of hosts.

Because of this the Lord will cut off from Israel in one day the head and the tail, the branch and the reed.

The Elder and the man of authority; that is the head; and the Prophet teaching lies, that is the tail.

Therefore, those who make this people believe that they are happy will find themselves to be deceivers; and those who are made to believe that they are happy will be lost.

Therefore the Lord will not take pleasure in his chosen young men, nor will he have pity on his fatherless children or widows; for all of them are hypocrites and evildoers, and every mouth speaks slander. For all this, he will not turn away his anger, but will still stretch out his hand.

For wickedness is ablaze like a fire; it will consume briars and thorns, and will ignite in the thickest parts of the forest, which will be lost as they rise, like smoke going up.

The earth will be darkened because of the wrath of the Lord of hosts, and the people will be like food consumed by fire; they will have no compassion for one another.

He will snatch with his right hand, and he will be hungry; he will eat with his left hand, and they will not be satisfied; each will eat the flesh of his own arm.

Manasseh will devour Ephraim, and Ephraim will devour Manasseh; together they will be against Judah. Despite all this, he will not turn away his anger, but will still stretch out his hand.

Woe to those who enact unjust decrees and dictate oppression as they were commanded.

To deprive the needy of their rights, and to rob the afflicted of my people of their rights, so that they may have widows as plunder, and plunder the orphans.

And what will you do on the day of visitation, and of the dazzling ruin that will come from afar? To whom will you turn for help, and where will you leave your glory?

Without anyone bowing down under the prisoners, they will fall even under those who have been killed. Despite all this, he will not turn away his anger, but his hand will still be stretched out.

Woe to Assyria, the rod of my anger; though the staff in their hand is my indignation.

I will send him against the hypocritical nation, and I will dispatch him against the people of my fury, so that he may carry off a great plunder and a great spoil, and trample them down like mud in the streets.

But he will not consider it so, nor will his heart think it so; but [he will have] in his heart to destroy and exterminate many nations.

For he will say; are not my Princes all Kings?

Is not Calno like Carchemish? Is not Hamath like Arpad? And is not Samaria like Damascus?

Just as my hand subdued the kingdoms that had idols, whose carved images were worth more than those of Jerusalem and Samaria;

Shall I not do to Jerusalem and its gods as I did to Samaria and its idols?

But it will come to pass that when the Lord has finished all his work in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, I will examine the fruit of the greatness of the heart of the King of Assyria, and the glory of the pride of his eyes.

Because he will have said; I did it by the strength of my hand, and by my wisdom, for I am intelligent; I removed the boundaries of the peoples, and I plundered what they had most precious, and as a mighty man I brought down those who were seated.

And my hand found the riches of the peoples like a nest; and as one gathers the abandoned eggs, so I have gathered all the earth, and there was no one who stirred a wing, or opened a beak, or grumbled.

Shall the axe boast against him who cuts with it? Or shall the saw exalt itself against him who moves it? As if the rod were moved against those who lift it up, and the staff lifted up, as if it were not made of wood.

Therefore the Lord, the Lord of hosts, will send leanness upon his fat men, and from beneath his glory he will kindle a blaze, like the blaze of a fire.

For the light of Israel will be a fire, and its Holy One a flame, which will set ablaze and consume its thorns and briers all in one day.

And he will consume the glory of his forest, and of his Carmel, from the soul to the flesh; and it will be as when he who carries the standard is defeated.

And the rest of the trees in his forest will be easy to count, so easy that a child would be able to write them down.

And it will come to pass on that day that the remnant of Israel, and those who are spared from the house of Jacob, will no longer rely on him who struck them, but they will truly rely on the Lord, the Holy One of Israel.

The remnant will be converted, the remnant, [I say], of Jacob [will be converted] to the [God] Strong and mighty.

For, O Israel! though your people be like the sand of the sea, a remnant of it shall be converted, [but] the determined consumption shall overflow with justice.

For the Lord, the Eternal of hosts, is going to bring about a definite consumption in the midst of all the earth.

Therefore this is what the Lord, the Lord Almighty, says: My people who live in Zion, do not be afraid of the king of Assyria; he will strike you with the rod and lift up his staff against you as he did in Egypt.

But a little while longer, a little while longer, and [my] indignation will be complete, and my anger will be directed toward their destruction.

And the Lord of hosts will raise a whip against him, [which will be] like the plague of Midian at the rock of Horeb; and [like] his staff over the sea, which he will also raise as against the Egyptians.

And it will come to pass on that day, that his burden will be removed from off your shoulder, and his yoke from off your neck; and the yoke will be broken because of the anointing.

He came to Hajath, he passed through Migron, and he put his luggage in Michmas. They crossed the ford; they made their lodging at Gebah, Rama was frightened, Gibeah-Saul fled from it.

Daughter of Gallim, raise your voice, poor Hanathoth, make yourself heard to Laïs. Madmena withdrew, and the inhabitants of Gebim fled from it in a crowd.

One more day he will stop at Nob; he will raise his hand against the mountain of the daughter of Zion, against the hill of Jerusalem.

Behold, the Lord, the Lord of hosts, will break off the branches with might, and those that are highest shall be cut down; and those that are high shall be brought low.

And he will cut with iron the thickest parts of the forest, and Lebanon will fall impetuously.

But a shoot will spring from the stump of Jesse, and a branch will grow from his roots.

And the Spirit of the Lord will rest on him, the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge and the fear of the Lord.

And he will make him feel the fear of the Lord, so that he will not judge by the sight of his eyes, nor rebuke by the hearing of his ears.

But he will judge the meek with righteousness, and he will admonish with equity, to uphold the meek of the earth; and he will strike the earth with the rod of his mouth, and slay the wicked with the spirit of his lips.

And righteousness will be the belt around his waist, and faithfulness the sash around his hips.

The wolf will remain with the lamb, and the leopard will lie down with the goat; the calf, and the lion cub, and the yearling together; and a little child will lead them.

The young cow will graze with the bear, their cubs will lie down together, and the lion will eat fodder like the ox.

And the nursing child will play at the asp's hole; and the weaned child will put its hand at the basilisk's hole.

They shall not harm or damage anyone in all my holy mountain, because the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea.

For in that day the nations will seek the root of Jesse, set up as a sign for the peoples; and his dwelling will be nothing but glory.

And it will come to pass on that day, that the Lord will again put out his hand a second time to acquire the remnant of his people, who will be left in Assyria, in Egypt, in Pathros, in Cush, in Helam, in Sinhar, in Hamath, and in the islands of the sea.

And he will raise his banner among the nations, and gather together the Israelites who have been driven out, and gather from the four corners of the earth those of Judah who have been scattered.

And the jealousy of Ephraim shall be removed, and the oppressors of Judah shall be cut off; Ephraim shall no longer be jealous of Judah, and Judah shall no longer oppress Ephraim.

But they will swoop down on the Philistines by the snare towards the sea; together they will plunder the children of the East; Edom and Moab [will be] those on whom they will lay their hands, and the children of Hammon will obey them.

The Lord will also destroy the tongue of the sea of Egypt in the manner of the curse, and will lift up his hand against the river by the force of his wind, and will strike it at the seven rivers, and will make it necessary to walk on it with sandals.

And there will be a way for the remnant of his people who will remain in Assyria, as there was for Israel when they came up from the land of Egypt.

And you will say on that day: O Lord, I will praise you, for although you were angry with me, your anger has turned away, and you have comforted me.
Behold, the Mighty God is my deliverance; I will trust, and I will not be afraid; for the Lord, the Lord, is my strength and my praise, and he has been my Savior.
And you will draw from the fountains of this deliverance of waters with joy.
And you will say on that day: Give thanks to the Lord, call on his name, make known among the peoples his deeds, and proclaim that his name is a fortress.
Sing praises to the Lord, for he has done magnificent things; this is known throughout the earth.
O inhabitant of Zion, be glad and rejoice with songs of triumph; for the Holy One of Israel is great in your midst.
The charge of Babylon, which Isaiah son of Amoz saw.
Raise the sign on the high mountain, raise your voice to them, wave your hand, and let them enter the gates of the magnificent.
It is I who have entrusted my devoted servants to them, and I have called upon my mighty men to execute my wrath, who rejoice because of my greatness.
There is on the mountains a sound of a multitude, like that of a great people, a sound of the resounding roar of the kingdoms of the nations assembled; the Lord of hosts is mustering the army for battle.
The Lord and the instruments of his indignation come from a distant land, from the ends of the heavens, to destroy the whole land.
Howl; for the day of the Lord is near, it will come like destruction from the Almighty.
That is why all hands will become cowardly, and every human heart will melt.
They will be terrified, distress and pain will seize them, they will be in labor like one giving birth, each will be astonished [looking] at his neighbor, their faces will be like faces aflame.
Behold, the day of the Lord is coming, it is cruel, it is but fury and burning anger, to make the land a desolation, and he will destroy the sinners from it.
Even the stars of heaven and their constellations will not give their light; the sun will be darkened when it rises, and the moon will not shine with its light.
I will punish the inhabited world because of its malice, and the wicked because of their iniquity; I will put an end to the arrogance of those who are proud, and I will lower the height of those who are feared.
I will make a man more precious than fine gold; and a person, more precious than the gold of Ophir.
Therefore I will make the heavens crumble, and the earth shake from its place, because of the fury of the Lord of hosts, and because of the day of his fierce anger.

And [each] will be like a deer that is hunted, and like a sheep that no one seeks; each will turn their face toward their people, and each will flee to their country. Anyone who is found will be pierced through; and anyone who joins them will fall by the sword.
And their little children will be crushed before their eyes, their houses will be looted, and their women raped.
Behold, I will stir up against them the Medes, who will not value silver, nor will they rest on gold.
Their bows will crush the young men, and they will have no pity on the fruit of the womb; their eyes will not spare the children.
Thus Babylon, the nobility of the Kingdoms, the excellence of the pride of the Chaldeans, will be like when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah.
It will never be inhabited, it will never be inhabited from generation to generation, not even the Arabs will pitch their tents there, nor will the shepherds put their pens there.
But the wild beasts of the deserts will have their lairs there; and their houses will be filled with weasels, owls will dwell there, and owls will hop there.

And the wild beasts of the Isles will answer one another in her desolate palaces, and the dragons in her pleasure castles; her time is ready to come, and her days will not be prolonged.
For the Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will again choose Israel, and will settle them in their own land, and foreigners will join them and attach themselves to the house of Jacob.
And the peoples will take them, and bring them to their place, and the house of Israel will possess them as an inheritance in the land of the Lord, as male and female servants; they will hold captive those who had held them captive, and they will rule over their oppressors.
And it will come to pass that on the day the Lord puts an end to your toil, your anguish, and the harsh bondage under which you were enslaved.
You will thus mock the King of Babylon, and you will say; how does the tax collector rest? [how] does she who was so greedy for riches rest?
The Lord has broken the staff of the wicked, and the rod of the rulers.
He who furiously struck the peoples with blows that could not be averted, who ruled over the nations with anger, is pursued without being able to protect himself.
The whole earth was put to rest and quiet; they burst into song of triumph, at the top of their lungs.
Even the fir trees and the cedars of Lebanon rejoiced over you, [saying]: Since you have slept, no one has come up to prune us.
The deep grave was stirred because of you, to go out to meet you at your coming; it roused the dead because of you, and made all the princes of the earth, all the kings of the nations, rise from their seats.
They will all speak up and tell you; you have been weakened as we are; you have been made like us;
They brought your height down to the grave, with the noise of your bagpipes; you lie on a bed of worms, and vermin cover you.
How you have fallen from heaven, Morning Star, daughter of the dawn of day! You who once trampled the nations, you have been cast down to the earth.
You said in your heart; I will ascend to heaven, I will place my throne above the stars of the Mighty One; I will sit enthroned on the mount of assembly, beside the north wind;
I will ascend above the high places of the clouds; I will be like the Sovereign.
And yet you were brought down to the grave, to the bottom of the pit.
Those who see you will look at you and consider you, [saying]; Is this not the person who made the earth tremble, who shook the Kingdoms.
Who has reduced the habitable world to a desert, and destroyed its cities, and has not released its prisoners [to send them back] to their homes?
All the Kings of the nations died with glory, each in his own house;
But you were cast out of your tomb like a rotten shoot, like the garment of those slain, pierced with the sword, who went down among the stones of a pit, like carrion trampled underfoot.
You will not be laid in the grave like them; for you have ravaged your land; you have killed your people; the offspring of the wicked will not be remembered forever.
Prepare the slaughter for his children, because of the iniquity of their fathers; so that they may not rise again, and may not inherit the land, and may not fill the face of the habitable earth with cities.
I will rise up against them, says the Lord of hosts, and I will cut off from Babylon the name, and the remnant [that she has], the son and the grandson, says the Lord.
And I will reduce it to a dwelling place for bitterns, and to a marsh of waters, and I will sweep it away with a broom of destruction, says the Lord of hosts.
The Lord of hosts has sworn, saying: If it is not done as I have planned, even as I have determined in my council, it will stand;

For I will crush the King of Assyria in my land, I will trample him on my mountains; and his yoke will be removed from them, and his burden will be removed from their shoulders.

This is the plan that has been devised against the whole earth, and this is the hand stretched out against all nations.

For the Lord of hosts has determined it in his council; and who can hinder him? And his hand is stretched out; and who can turn it back?

In the year in which King Ahaz died, this charge was [put forward].

You, all you Philistine country, do not rejoice that the rod of him who struck you has been broken; for from the root of the serpent will come forth a basilisk, and its fruit will be a fiery flying serpent.

The most wretched will be sated, and the poor will rest securely, but I will starve your root to death, and what remains in you will be killed.

You gate, wail! You city, cry out! You all the land of the Philistines, be like something that runs away! For smoke will come from the north, and not a single man will remain in his dwelling.

And what will be said to the ambassadors of [this] nation? [The answer will be] that the Lord has founded Zion; and that the afflicted of his people will return to her.

The charge of Moab; because Har of Moab was ravaged by night, he was defeated; because Kir of Moab was plundered by night, he was defeated.

He went up to Bajith, and to Dibon, to the high places, to weep; Moab will howl over Nebo, and over Medeba, all its heads will be bald, and all its beards will be shaved.

We will be surrounded by bags in its streets, everyone will scream, bursting into tears on its rooftops, and in its squares.

Heshbon and Elhale cried out, their voice was heard as far as Jahaz; therefore those of Moab who will be equipped [to go to war] will utter a lamentable cry, his soul will be tormented within him.

My heart cries out because of Moab; her fugitives have fled to Zohar, [like] a three-year-old heifer; for they will go up the ascent of Luhith with weeping, and they will raise the cry of the plague on the way to Horonajim.

Even the waters of Nimrim will be nothing but desolation, even the hay is already dried up, the grass has been consumed, and there is no greenery.

He will have acquired abundant riches, so that what they have set aside may be brought to the valley of the Arabs.

For the cry has surrounded the land of Moab; its howling will reach as far as Eglajim, and its howling as far as Beer-Elim.

Even the waters of Dimon were filled with blood; for I will add an additional burden to Dimon, [namely] the lion, to those who will be spared from Moab, and to the remnant of the land.

Send the lamb to the Ruler of the earth, send it from the rock in the desert, to the mountain of the daughter of Zion.

For it will come to pass that the daughters of Moab will be at the crossing of Arnon, like a bird flying to and fro, [like] a nest driven from its nest.

Put forward counsel, make the ordinance, be a shade like night at midday; hide those who have been driven out, and do not reveal those who are wandering.

Let those of my people who have been driven out dwell with you, O Moab! Be their refuge from the one who causes destruction; for the one who used extortion has ceased, the destruction has ended, those who trampled are consumed from the earth. And the throne will be established by grace; and on that throne will truly sit, in the tabernacle of David, one who will judge, who will seek justice, and who will hasten to do righteousness.

We have heard of the pride of Moab the very proud, his pride, and his arrogance, and his arrogance; those on whom he relies are nothing firm.

That is why Moab will howl at Moab, everyone will howl; you will grumble about the foundations of Kir-Hareseth; there will only be people wounded to death. For the fields of Heshbon, and the vineyard of Sibmah, languish; the lords of the nations have trampled its best plants, [which] reached as far as Jazer, they ran here and there through the desert, and its provinces extended and passed beyond the sea. Therefore I will weep with the weeping of Jazer, the vineyard of Sibmah; I will water you with my tears, O Heshbon and Elhaleh! For the enemy with shouts has rushed upon your summer fruits, and upon your harvest.

And joy and gaiety have withdrawn from the fertile field; there will be no more rejoicing and merriment in the vineyards, he who trod the wine will no longer tread it in the vats, I have put an end to the song of the harvest.

That is why my bowels will make noise like a harp over Moab, and my belly over Kir-Heres.

And it will come to pass that Moab will grow weary of going to the high place, and will enter his holy place to pray; but he will obtain nothing.

This is the word that the Lord spoke long ago concerning Moab.

And now the Lord has spoken, saying: In three years, like the years of a hired servant, the glory of Moab will be brought low, along with all this great multitude; and the remnant will be small, it will be little, it will be nothing considerable. The burden of Damascus; behold, Damascus is destroyed, no longer a city, and will be nothing but a heap of ruins.

Harher's cities will be abandoned; they will become sheepfolds where sheep will rest, and no one will frighten them.

There will be no fortress in Ephraim, nor kingdom in Damascus, nor in the rest of Syria; they will be like the glory of the children of Israel, says the Lord of hosts.

And it will come to pass on that day that the glory of Jacob will be diminished, and the fat of his flesh will melt away.

And it will happen as when the reaper gathers the wheat, and reaps the ears with his arm; it will happen, I say, as when the ears are gathered in the valley of the Rephaim.

But there will remain some gleanings, as when an olive tree is shaken, and two or three olives remain at the ends of the highest branches, and four or five that the olive tree has produced in its fruitful branches, says the Lord, the God of Israel. On that day, man will turn his gaze to the one who made him, and his eyes will look to the Holy One of Israel.

And he will no longer look upon the altars that are the work of his hands, nor will he look upon what his fingers have made, nor upon the groves, nor upon the tabernacles.

On that day, the cities of his power, which were abandoned because of the children of Israel, will be like a coppice and abandoned branches, and there will be desolation.

Because you have forgotten the God of your salvation, and have not remembered the rock of your strength, for this reason you have transplanted plants [from pleasant places], and you have planted provins from a foreign country.

By day you will have made what you have planted grow, and in the morning you will have caused your seed to sprout; [but] the harvest will be taken away on the day when it was to be enjoyed, and there will be desperate pain.

Woe to the multitude of many peoples who roar like the roaring seas; and to the stormy tempest of the nations, who make a noise like a stormy tempest of rushing waters.

The nations roar like a flashing storm of mighty waters, but he will rebuke it, and it will flee far away; it will be pursued like a mountain ball, driven by the wind, and like a ball driven by a whirlwind.

At evening time there will be terror, but before morning it will be no more; this is the portion of those who have plundered us, and the lot of those who have robbed us.

Woe to the land that casts shadows with wings, that lies beyond the rivers of Cush; Who sends ambassadors by sea, and in reed boats on the waters. Go, swift messengers, to the nation of great armor and shining glory, to the terrible people, from where they are and beyond; a nation going in procession, and trampling [everything], whose rivers ravage their land.

All you inhabitants of the habitable world, and you who dwell in the land, as soon as the standard is raised on the mountains, look, and as soon as the trumpet sounds, listen.

For thus the Lord said to me; I will be still; but I will look upon my settled dwelling, and [I will be] to it like a brilliant heat of splendor, and like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest.

For before the harvest, as soon as the bud has reached its full maturity, and the flower has become a ripening grape, he shall cut off the branches with pruning hooks, and he shall remove the twigs, having cut them off.

They will all be left to the birds of prey [that dwell] in the mountains, and to the beasts of the land; the birds of prey will be upon them all the summer long, and all the beasts of the land will spend their winter there.

At that time a present will be brought to the Lord of hosts from the people of long armor and splendor, from, [I say], the terrible people, from where [they are], and beyond; from the nation going in procession, and trampling [everything]; the rivers of which have ravaged their land, in the dwelling place of the Name of the Lord of hosts, in Mount Zion.

The burden of Egypt. Behold, the Lord will ride on a light cloud, and he will enter Egypt; and the idols of Egypt will flee from every side before his face, and the heart of Egypt will melt in the midst of her.

And I will bring Egyptian against Egyptian, and each will fight against his brother, and each against his friend, city against city, kingdom against kingdom.

The spirit of Egypt will vanish in its midst, and I will scatter its counsel, and they will consult the idols, and the enchanter, and the spirits of Python, and the fortune-tellers.

And I will deliver Egypt into the hand of a severe Lord, and a cruel King will rule over them, says the Lord, the Lord of hosts.

And the waters of the sea will fail, and the river will dry up and run dry.

And the rivers will be diverted; the streams from the dikes will be lowered and dried up; the reeds and rushes will be cut down.

The meadows that are near the streams, and on the mouth of the river, and everything that has been sown along the streams, will dry up, will be thrown away, and will be no more.

And the fishermen will groan, and all who cast their lines into the river will mourn, and those who spread their nets upon the waters will languish.

Those who work with linen and fine crepe, and those who weave nets, will be ashamed.

And its causeways will be broken; and all those who make fishponds will be grieved in heart.

Indeed, the leaders of Zohan are fools, the wise men among Pharaoh's advisors are a foolish council; how can you say to Pharaoh, "I am the son of the wise, the son of the ancient kings"?

Where are they now? Where are, [I say], your wise men? Let them tell you, I pray, if they know, what the Lord of hosts has decreed against Egypt.

The leaders of Zohan have become foolish; the leaders of Noph have erred; the cantons of the tribes of Egypt have led him astray.

The Lord poured out a spirit of perversion in the midst of her, and they made Egypt wander in all her works, as a drunkard wallows in his vomit.

And there will be no work that will benefit Egypt, [nothing] that the head or the tail, the branch or the reed will make.

On that day Egypt will be like women, and will be astonished and terrified because of the exalted hand of the Lord of hosts, which he is about to raise against her.

And the land of Judah will be a terror to Egypt; whoever mentions it will be terrified within himself, because of the counsel of the Lord of hosts, which he is about to decree against it.

On that day there will be five cities in the land of Egypt that will speak the language of Canaan, and will swear allegiance to the Lord of hosts; and one of them will be called the City of Destruction.

On that day there will be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a standard set up to the Lord on its border.

And [this] will be for a sign and a testimony to the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt; for they will cry out to the Lord because of the oppressors, and he will send them a deliverer, a great man who will deliver them.

And the Lord will make himself known to Egypt; and on that day Egypt will acknowledge the Lord and serve him, offering sacrifices and cakes, and will make vows to the Lord and fulfill them.

The Lord will therefore strike the Egyptians, striking them and healing them, and they will return to the Lord, who will be moved by their prayers, and will heal them.

On that day there will be a highway from Egypt to Assyria; and Assyria will come to Egypt, and Egypt to Assyria, and Egypt will serve with Assyria.

On that day Israel will be joined for the third part to Egypt and Assyria, and the blessing will be in the midst of the earth.

What the Lord of hosts will bless, saying: Blessed be Egypt my people; and [blessed be] Assyria the work of my hands; and Israel my inheritance.

The year in which Tartan, sent by Sargon King of Assyria, came against Ashdod, and fought against Ashdod, and took it.

At that time the Lord spoke through Isaiah son of Amoz, saying, "Go, and take off the sackcloth from your loins, and remove your sandals from your feet." And he did so, going naked and barefoot.

Then the Lord said; as my servant Isaiah walked naked and barefoot, which is a sign and a wonder against Egypt and against Cush for three years;

Thus the King of Assyria will take from Egypt and Chus prisoners and captives the young and the old, the naked and the barefoot, with their hips uncovered, which will be the disgrace of Egypt.

They will be terrified and ashamed because of Cush, whom they looked to; and because of Egypt, which was their glory.

And the one who dwells in this island will say on that day: This is the state of the one we were looking to, the one to whom we fled for help, so that we might be delivered from the encounter with the King of Assyria; and how can we escape?

The charge of the desert of the sea. It comes from the desert, from the dreadful land, like whirlpools that rise in the land of the South, to cross over.

A harsh vision has been revealed to me. The treacherous remain treacherous; he who plunders, plunders [always]. Helamites, come up; Medes, besiege; I have put an end to all his sighing.

That is why my loins were filled with pain; anguish seized me, like the anguish of a woman in childbirth; I was tormented because of what I heard, and I was greatly troubled because of what I saw;

My heart was agitated on all sides, and trembling terrified me; they made me hideous in the night of my pleasures.

Let the table be set, let the watch be kept, let us eat, let us drink; rise up, Captains, anoint the shield.

For thus says the Lord to me; go, set up the watchman, and let him bring back what he sees.

And she saw a chariot, a couple of people on horseback, a chariot drawn by donkeys, and a chariot drawn by camels, and she considered them very carefully.

And he cried out; It is a lion; Lord, I stand watch continually by day, and I stand on guard every night.

And behold, a man's chariot came, and a pair of horsemen. Then she spoke, and said: Fallen, fallen is Babylon; and all the carved images of her gods have been shattered on the ground.

This is what I have trodden, and the grain that I have threshed on my threshing floor. I have told you what I have heard from the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel. The charge of Duma. They cry to me from Sehir; O watchman! What has happened since evening? O watchman! What has happened since night?

The watchman said; Morning has come, but it is going to be night; if you ask, ask: return, come.

The charge against Arabia. You will spend the night pell-mell in the forest, troops of Dedanim;

Waters, come to meet the one who is thirsty; the inhabitants of the land of Tema came to meet the one who was wandering about, bringing him bread.

For they went about wandering here and there from before the swords, from before the drawn sword, and from before the bent bow, and from before the stronghold of the battle.

For thus the Lord said to me; in one year, like the years of a hired servant, all the glory of Kedar will come to an end.

And the remaining number of the mighty archers of the children of Kedar will be reduced; for the Lord, the God of Israel, has spoken.

The burden of the valley of vision. What is it you have now, that you have climbed all the way up onto the rooftops?

You full of tumult, noisy city, city that only asked to be cheerful? Your mortally wounded were not mortally wounded by the sword, and they did not die by the war.

All your leaders went wandering here and there together, they were bound by the archers; all those of yours who were found were bound together, having fled far away.

That is why I said, "Depart from me, I will weep bitterly. Do not hasten to console me concerning the harm done to the daughter of my people."

For it is a day of trouble, oppression, and perplexity, from the Lord, the Lord of hosts, in the valley of vision; he is going to break down the wall, and the cry will reach the mountain.

Even Helam took his quiver, [there were] men riding on chariots, and Kir uncovered the shield.

And it came to pass that the elite of your valleys were filled with chariots, and the horsemen all drew up in battle array against the gate.

And we discovered what covered Judah, and you looked on that day towards the armory of the house in the park.

And you saw that the breaches in the city of David were great; and you gathered together the waters of the lower pool.

And you took a census of the houses of Jerusalem, and demolished the houses to strengthen the wall.

You also made a water reservoir between the two walls, for the waters of the old pond; but you did not consider the one who made and formed it long ago.

And the Lord, the Lord of hosts, has called you on that day to weeping and mourning, to tear out your hair, and to put on sackcloth;

And behold, there is joy and gladness; they kill oxen, they slaughter sheep, they eat their flesh, and they drink wine; [then they say]: Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die.

But the Lord of hosts declared to me, saying; if ever this iniquity is forgiven you, that you should not die, says the Lord, the Lord of hosts.

Thus says the Lord, the Lord of hosts; go, enter to this treasurer, to Sebna the steward [and say to him];
What are you doing here? And who is here that belongs to you, that you have carved out a tomb for yourself here? He cuts out a prominent place for his tomb, and carves out a dwelling for himself in a rock.
Behold, O man! The Lord will drive you far away, and cover you completely.
He will make you roll very fast like a ball in a wide and spacious land; you will die there, and there will be the chariots of your glory, [of you who are] the shame of the house of your Lord.
And I will cast you out of your position, and you will be removed from your post.
And it will come to pass on that day that I will call my servant Eliakim, son of Hilkiah.
And I will clothe him with your tunic, I will gird him with your baldric, I will put your authority in his hands, and he will be a father to those who dwell in Jerusalem, and to the house of Judah.
And I will place the key to the house of David on his shoulder; and he will open, and no one will shut; and he will shut, and no one will open.
And I will fix it like a hook in a firm place; and it will be for a throne of glory in his father's house.
And on it will hang all the glory of his father's house, of his parents, and of those that belong to him; all the utensils of the smallest things, from the utensils of the cups to all the utensils of the satchels.
On that day, says the Lord of hosts, the hook that was fastened in a firm place will be removed; and being cut off, it will fall, and what it was carrying will be cut off; for the Lord has spoken.
The charge of Tyre. Howl, ships of Tarshish, for it is destroyed, there are no more houses, no one will come there anymore; this has been discovered to them from the land of Shittim.
You who live in the Island, be silent; you who were filled with merchants from Sidon, and with those who crossed the sea.
The grain of Sihor [which comes] among the great waters, the harvest of the river, was its revenue, and it was the fair of the nations.
Be ashamed, O Sidon! For the sea, the fortress of the sea, has spoken, saying: I have not been in labor, nor have I given birth, nor have I nourished young men, nor brought up any virgins.
According to the noise that was affecting Egypt, so will one be in labor when one hears the noise affecting Tyre.
Go to Tarshish, howl, you who dwell in the Isles.
Wasn't it here that your [city] rejoiced? The one whose antiquity is of very long standing will be carried far away on its own feet, to sojourn in a foreign land.
Who took this advice against Tyre, which crowns [his people], whose merchants are princes, and whose agents are the most honorable on earth?
The Lord of hosts has taken this counsel, to humble the pride of all the nobles, and to bring low all the most honorable of the earth.
Cross your land like a river, O daughter of Tarshish; there is no longer a belt.
He stretched out his hand over the sea, and made the kingdoms tremble; the Lord commanded a merchant to destroy his fortresses.
And he said, "You will no longer rejoice, oppressed virgin, daughter of Sidon. Arise, cross over to Shittim; yet there will be no rest for you there."
This is the land of the Chaldeans; this people did not exist [formerly]; Assyria founded it for sailors; they erected its fortresses, they raised up its palaces, and they brought it to ruin.
Howl, ships of Tarshish; for your strength is destroyed.
And it will come to pass on that day that Tyre will be forgotten for seventy years, according to the days of a king; [but] at the end of seventy years a song will be sung to Tyre as to a prostitute.

Take the harp, surround the city, O prostitute, who had been forgotten, sound loudly, sing and sing again, so that you may be remembered.

And it will come to pass at the end of seventy years, that the Lord will visit Tyre, but she will return to the wages of her prostitution, and she will prostitute herself with all the kingdoms of the countries that are on the face of the earth.

And its trade and its wages shall be consecrated to the Lord; nothing of it shall be reserved or hoarded; for its trade shall be for those who dwell in the presence of the Lord, to eat of it until they are satisfied, and to have garments that last a long time.

Behold, the Lord is going to make the land empty and exhaust it; he will overthrow its surface and scatter its inhabitants.

And the priest shall be like the people; like the master like his servant; like the lady like her maid; like the seller like the buyer; like the lender like the borrower; like the creditor like the debtor.

The country will be completely emptied and completely plundered, for the Lord has pronounced this decree.

The earth mourns, it has fallen; the inhabited land has become languishing, it has fallen; the most distinguished of the people of the earth are languishing.

The land has been desecrated by its inhabitants, who trample on it; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinances, and broken the everlasting covenant. That is why the abhorrence of the oath has devoured the land, and its inhabitants have been put to desolation; because of this the inhabitants of the land are burned, and few people have remained.

The excellent wine has brought mourning, the vine languishes, all those who had joyful hearts sigh.

The joy of the drums has ceased; the noise of those who rejoice is over; the joy of the harp has ceased.

Wine will no longer be drunk with songs; beer will be bitter to those who drink it.

The disfigured city has been ruined, every house is closed up, so much so that nobody enters.

The clamor is in the squares because the wine [has run out], all the joy has turned to darkness, the gladness of the land has departed.

Desolation remained in the city, and the gate was struck by a dazzling ruin.

For it will come in the midst of the earth, and among the peoples, as when an olive tree is shaken, and as when gleanings are taken after the harvest is over.

They will raise their voices, they will rejoice with songs of triumph, and they will exult by the sea, because of the majesty of the Lord.

Therefore glorify the Lord in the valleys, the Name of the Lord, the God of Israel, in the islands of the sea.

We had heard songs from the ends of the earth [that proclaimed] that the Righteous One was full of nobility; but I said: Leanness upon me! Leanness upon me! Woe to me! The treacherous have acted treacherously; and they have imitated the bad faith of the treacherous.

Terror, the pit, and the snare are upon you, inhabitant of the land.

And it will come to pass that he who flees because of the noise of terror will fall into the pit; and he who comes up out of the pit will be caught in the net; for the floodgates above are opened, and the foundations of the earth tremble.

The earth was completely shattered, the earth was completely crushed, the earth was completely moved from its place.

The earth will stagger entirely like a drunken man, and will be tossed about like a lodge, and its crime will weigh heavily upon it, so much so that it will fall, and will not rise again.

And it will come to pass on that day, that the Lord will visit the proud army in a high place, and the kings of the earth on the earth.

And they will be gathered together like prisoners in a pit; and they will be locked up in a prison, and after several days they will be inspected. The moon will blush, and the sun will be ashamed, when the Lord of hosts reigns in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem; and there will be nothing but glory in the presence of his Elders.

Eternal, you [are] my God, I will exalt you, I will praise your name, for you have done wonderful things; the plans made long ago [have proven to be] the very firmness.

For you have made the city a heap of stones, and the strong city a ruin; the palace of the foreigners that was in the city will never be rebuilt.

And because of this the mighty people will glorify you, the city of awesome nations will revere you.

Because you have been the strength of the weak, the strength of the afflicted in their distress, a refuge from flooding, a shade from scorching heat; for the breath of the terrible is like a flood [that would bring down] a wall.

You will subdue the brilliant storm of foreigners, as the sun [is subdued] in a dry land, the sun, [I say,] by the shadow of a cloud; the branches of the terrible will be cut down.

And the Lord of hosts will make for all the peoples in this mountain a banquet of rich food, a banquet of wines still on their mother, [a banquet, I say,] of rich and succulent food, and of wines still on their mother, well purified.

And he will remove from this mountain the double layer of covering that is seen over all peoples, and the covering that is spread over all nations.

He will destroy death by his victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from every face, and he will remove the reproach of his people from all the earth; for the Lord has spoken.

And on that day they will say: Behold, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord; we have waited for him; we will rejoice and be glad in his salvation.

For the hand of the Lord will rest on this mountain; but Moab will be trampled under him, as straw is trampled to make dung.

And he will stretch out his hands through him, as one who swims stretches them out to swim, and he will humble his pride, making himself open with his hands.

And he will bring down the fortress of the highest retreats of your walls, he will overthrow them, he will throw them to the ground, and reduce them to dust.

On that day this song will be sung in the land of Judah; we have a strong city; deliverance will be placed there as its wall and outer wall.

Open the gates, and the righteous nation, the one that keeps faithful, will enter through them.

It is a settled decision that you will preserve true peace; for people trust in you.

Trust in the Lord forever; for the Rock of Ages is in the Lord God.

For he will bring down those who dwell in the high places, he will overthrow the city of refuge, he will overthrow it to the ground, he will reduce it to dust.

The foot will tread upon it; the feet, [I say], of the afflicted, the soles of the feeble [will tread upon it].

The path is level with the righteous; you make straight the way of the righteous.

Therefore we have waited for you, O Eternal One! in the path of your judgments, and the desire of our soul tends toward your Name, and toward your memorial.

By night I longed for you with my soul, and at daybreak I will seek you with my spirit, which is within me; for when your judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the inhabited earth learn righteousness.

Is there mercy for the wicked? He does not learn righteousness, but acts wickedly in the land of uprightness, and does not regard the majesty of the Lord.

Eternal One, is your hand raised high? They do not see it; but they will see it, and they will be ashamed because of the jealousy you show for your people; and the fire with which you punish your enemies will consume them.

Eternal One! You will grant us peace: for it is you who takes care of everything that concerns us.

Eternal our God, other Lords besides you have overpowered us, [but] it is through you [alone] that we mention your Name.

They are dead, they will not live again; they have perished, they will not rise again, because you have visited them and destroyed them, and you have utterly obliterated all memory of them.

Eternal, you had increased the nation, you had increased the nation, you were glorified, [but] you have cast them far away to all the ends of the earth.

Eternal One, being in distress they came to you, they withdrew their humble request when your punishment was upon them.

Like a pregnant woman in labor, crying out in her womb when she is about to give birth, so have we been because of your anger, O Lord!

We conceived, and we were in labor; we gave birth as if to wind, we cannot in any way deliver the land, and the inhabitants of the habitable earth would not fall [by our power].

Your dead will live, even my dead body; they will rise again. Awake and be glad, you who dwell in the dust; for your dew is like the dew of the grass, and the earth will cast out the dead.

Go, my people, go into your chambers, and shut your doors behind you; hide yourselves for a little while, until the indignation has passed.

For behold, the Lord is going out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for the iniquity committed against him; then the earth will uncover the blood which it has received, and will no longer cover those which have been put to death.

On that day the Lord will punish with his hard, great, and strong sword Leviathan, the serpent that runs through; Leviathan, I say, the twisting serpent, and he will kill the whale that is in the sea.

On that day sing, answering one another, touching the [fertile] vine into red wine.

I am the Lord who guards it; I will water it from time to time; I will guard it night and day, so that no one will harm it.

There is no fury in me; who will set up thorns and briers against me to fight them? I will trample them, I will burn them all together.

Or would he force my strength? Let him make peace with me, let him make peace with me.

He will make it so that Jacob will take root, and Israel will bud and flourish, and they will fill the face of the inhabited earth with fruit.

Would he have struck him with the same wound with which he struck the one who struck him? And would he have been killed as those he killed were killed?

You shall plead with her moderately when you dismiss her; [even when] he makes his harsh wind resound, on the day of the east wind.

Therefore the atonement for Jacob's iniquity will be made by this means, and this will be its full fruit, that his sin will be removed; when he has set all the altar stones like dressed plaster stones, and when the groves and tabernacles are no longer standing.

For the fortified city will be desolate, the pleasant dwelling will be abandoned and deserted like a desert, the calf will graze there, it will lie down there, and it will browse the branches that are there.

When its branches are dry it will be broken off, and the women coming there will light fires from them; for they are not an intelligent people, therefore the one who made them will not have pity on them, and the one who formed them will not show them grace.

It will therefore come to pass on that day, which the Lord will shake from the course of the river to the Wadi of Egypt; but you will be gleaned one by one, O children of Israel.

And it will come to pass on that day, when the great trumpet will be sounded, and those who were lost in the land of Assyria, and those who were driven out into the land of Egypt, will return and worship before the Lord on the holy mountain in Jerusalem.

Woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, whose noble glory is but a falling flower; those on the head of the fertile valley are reeling with wine.

Behold, the Lord [has in his hand] a strong and mighty man, like a hailstorm, like a whirlwind that breaks everything, like a storm of overflowing waters; he will throw [everything] to the ground with his hand.

The crown of pride and the drunkards of Ephraim will be trampled underfoot.

And the nobility of his glory which is on the summit of the fertile valley will be but a falling flower; they will be like the early fruits before Summer, which as soon as someone sees them, he devours as soon as he has them in his hand.

On that day the Lord of hosts will be a crown of nobility and a diadem of glory to the remnant of his people.

And for the spirit of judgment to him who will sit [on the seat] of judgment; and for strength to those who in the battle will turn back the [officers] to the gate.

But these also forgot themselves in wine, and went astray in ale; the priest and the prophet forgot themselves in ale; they were swallowed up by wine, they went astray because of ale; they forgot themselves in vision, they stumbled in judgment.

For all their tables were covered with what they returned and with their refuse; so that there was no more room.

To whom can one teach knowledge, and to whom can one make knowledge understood? [They are like] those who have just been weaned, and taken away from the breast.

For [they must be given] command after command; command after command; line after line; line after line; a little here, a little there.

That is why he will speak to this people with a lisp and in a foreign tongue.

He had told them; this is rest, that you may give rest to the weary, and this is relief; but they would not listen.

Thus the word of the Lord will be to them commandment after commandment; commandment after commandment; line after line; line after line; a little here, a little there; so that they may go and fall backward, and be broken; and so that they may fall into the snare, and be caught.

Therefore, listen to the word of the Lord, you mockers, who rule over this people who are in Jerusalem;

For you have said: We have made a covenant with death, and we have an understanding with the grave; when the overwhelming scourge passes through, it will not come upon us, for we have made falsehood our hiding place, and we have concealed ourselves under deceit.

Therefore thus says the Lord, the Eternal One; behold, I lay in Zion a stone for a foundation, a tested stone, the most precious cornerstone, for a sure foundation; he who believes shall not be hasty.

And I will set judgment square, and justice level; and hail will destroy the hiding place of lies, and waters will flood the place where people took refuge.

And your agreement with death will be abolished, and your understanding with the grave will not stand; when the overwhelming scourge sweeps through, you will be trampled underfoot.

As soon as it crosses, it will carry you away; and it will cross every morning, day and night; and as soon as the sound of it is heard, there will be nothing but commotion.

Because the bed will be too short, and one will not be able to stretch out on it; and the blanket too narrow when one wants to wrap oneself up.

Because the Lord will arise as in the mountains of Perazim, and he will be moved as in the valley of Gibeon, to do his work, his extraordinary work, and to do his task, his unusual task.

Therefore, now do not mock [any longer], lest your bonds be strengthened, for I have heard from the Lord, the Lord of hosts, a destruction which is even determined upon the whole land.

Give ear, and listen to my voice; pay attention, and listen to my speech.

He who plows to sow, will he plow every day? Will he not break and churn the clods of his soil?

When he has equaled the height of it, will he not sow the vetch; will he not scatter the cumin, will he not put the wheat in the best place, and the barley in its assigned place, and the spelt in its quarter?

Because his God instructs and teaches him concerning what he should do.

For one does not tread vetch with a harrow, nor does one turn the cartwheel over cumin; but one beats vetch with a rod, and cumin with a stick.

The [wheat from which bread is made] is crushed, because [the plowman] can never fully tread it, and although he crushes it with the wheel of his cart, nevertheless he will not crush it with his horses.

This too comes from the Lord of hosts, who is wonderful in counsel, and magnificent in means.

Woe to Ariel, to Ariel, the city where David camped; add year upon year, that victims are slaughtered for the Feasts.

But I will confine Ariel, and [the city] will be nothing but sadness and mourning, and it will be like Ariel to me.

For I will encamp against you, and I will besiege you with towers, and I will erect forts against you.

And you will be humbled, and you will speak as if from within the earth, and your speech will be low, as if from the dust, and your voice, like that of a spirit of Python, will come out of the earth, and your speech will murmur as if from the dust.

And the multitude of your foreigners will be like fine dust; and the multitude of the terrible will be like passing chaff, and this will be for a little while.

It will be visited by the Lord of hosts with thunder, and with earthquakes, and with a great noise, tempest, whirlwind, and devouring flame of fire.

And the multitude of all the nations that will make war on Ariel, and all those that will fight against the [city], and those that will besiege it, will be like a dream of a night vision.

And it will come to pass, as one who is hungry dreams that he is eating, but when he wakes up, his soul is empty; and as one who is thirsty dreams that he is drinking, but when he wakes up, he is weary and his soul is thirsty, so will be the multitude of all the nations that will fight against Mount Zion.

Stop and be amazed; cry out and shout; They were drunk, but not with wine; they staggered, but not from beer.

For the Lord has poured out on you a spirit of deep sleep; he has closed your eyes; he has blinded [those of] your prophets and your chief seers.

And every vision will be to you like the words of a sealed book, which one would give to a man of letters, saying, "Please read this," and he would answer, "I cannot, for it is sealed."

Then if it were given to someone who was not a man of letters, and he were told; he beg you, read this; he would reply; I cannot read.

Therefore the Lord says; because this people draw near to me with their mouth, and honor me with their lips, but they have far from me their heart, and because the fear they have of me is a commandment of men, taught [by men];

For this reason, behold, I will continue to perform wonders and strange marvels for this people: for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their learned men shall vanish.

Woe to those who want to go beyond the Lord, to hide their plan, and whose works are in darkness, and who say, "Who sees us? Who perceives us?"

Will not what you overturn be considered like a potter's clay? Likewise, will the finished product say of its maker, "He did not make me"? And will the formed thing say of its maker, "He understood nothing about it"?

Won't Lebanon soon be transformed into a Carmelite monastery? And won't Carmel become renowned as a forest?

And the deaf will hear the words of the book on that day, and the eyes of the blind, being delivered from darkness and gloom, will see.

And the meek will have joy upon joy in the Lord, and the poor among men will rejoice in the Holy One of Israel.

For the terrible will end, and the mocker will be consumed, and all those who lie in wait to commit iniquity will be cut off.

Those who hold men guilty for a word, and who lay traps for the one who rebukes them at the gate, and who cause the righteous to fall into shame.

That is why the Lord, who redeemed Abraham, said this concerning the house of Jacob: Jacob will no longer be ashamed, nor will his face grow pale again.

For when he sees his children, the work of my hands, in his midst, they will sanctify my Name; they will sanctify, [I say], the Holy One of Jacob, and fear the God of Israel.

And those whose spirit had erred will become prudent; and those who murmured will learn doctrine.

Woe to the stubborn children, says the Lord, who take counsel, and not from me; and who fashion for themselves idols, where my spirit is not, to add sin upon sin.

Those who, without having consulted my mouth, march down to Egypt, to strengthen themselves with the power of Pharaoh, and to withdraw under the shadow of Egypt.

For the power of Pharaoh will put you to shame, and the retreat under the shadow of Egypt will put you to confusion.

For the leaders of his people were at Zohan, and his messengers reached Hanes.

They will all be put to shame by a people who will not profit them from anything; they will receive no help or advantage from them, but it will be their shame and their disgrace.

The beasts will be loaded to go south; they will carry their riches on the backs of donkeys, and their treasures on the humps of camels, to the people who will not profit them, to the land of distress and anguish, from where come the old lion, and the lion, the viper, and the fiery flying serpent.

For the help that the Egyptians will give them will be nothing but vanity and nothingness; that is why I have cried out this: their strength is to remain calm.

Go therefore now, and write it down in their presence on a table, and set it in writing in a book, so that it may remain for the time to come, forever and ever;

This is a rebellious people, lying children, children who will not listen to the Law of the Lord;

Who said to the seers, "Do not see," and to those who see [visions], "Do not see visions of righteousness, but tell us pleasant things; see [visions] of deception."

Get out of the way, turn away from the path, and remove the Holy One of Israel from our sight.

Therefore, thus says the Holy One of Israel; because you have rejected this word, and have trusted in oppression, and in your crooked ways, and have relied on these things;

Because of this, this iniquity will be to you like a crack in a wall which is about to fall, bulging from top to bottom, from which the ruin comes suddenly, and in an instant.

He will break it, therefore, as one breaks a potter's bottle of earthenware which is broken, which is not spared, and of pieces of which there would not be a single head to take fire from the hearth, or to draw water from a pit.

For thus had said the Lord, the Eternal, the Holy One of Israel; in keeping quiet and at rest you shall be delivered, your strength shall be in keeping quiet and in hope; but you did not accept it.

And you said, "No, but we will flee on horses; therefore you will flee." And you said, "We will ride on light horses; therefore those who pursue you will be light."

A thousand of you will flee at the threat of one; you will flee at the threat of five; until you are left like a tree with all its branches on the top of a mountain, and like a banner on a hillside.

And yet the Lord waits to be gracious to you, and thus he will be exalted in having compassion on you; for the Lord is a God of judgment; O blessed are all who trust in him!

For the people will remain in Zion and in Jerusalem; you will not weep; surely he will be gracious to you as soon as he hears your cry; as soon as he hears you, he will answer you.

The Lord will give you the bread of distress and the water of anguish, but your teachers will no longer fly away, and your eyes will see your teachers.

And your ears will hear the word of him who is behind you, saying, "This is the way, walk in it," whether you turn to the right or to the left.

And you shall consider as defiled the capitals of the carved images, made of the silver of each one of you, and the ornaments made of the melted gold of each one of you; you shall throw them away, like unclean blood; and you shall say, empty it out.

And he will give rain on your sowing, when you have sown in the earth; and the grain of the land's produce will be plentiful and well nourished; in that day your cattle will graze in a spacious field.

And the oxen and donkeys that plow the land will eat the pure fodder of what has been winnowed with the shovel and the winnowing fan.

And there will be streams of running water on every high mountain, and on every high hill, on the day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall.

And the light of the moon will be like the light of the sun; and the light of the sun will be seven times as bright, as if it were the light of seven days, on the day when the Lord binds up the bruise of his people, and heals the wound of his injury.

Behold, the Name of the Lord comes from afar, his anger is fierce, and a heavy burden; his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue is like a consuming fire.

And his Spirit is like an overflowing torrent, which reaches up to the middle of the neck, to scatter the nations, so that they will be reduced to nothing; and it is like a bridle in the jaws of the peoples, which will make them go through the fields.

You will have a song like the one sung on the night when preparations are made for a solemn feast; and you will have a joy of heart like one who goes with the flute to come to the mountain of the Lord, to the rock of Israel.

And the Lord will make his voice heard, full of majesty, and he will show where he has struck his arm in the indignation of his anger, with a devouring flame of fire, with brightness, storm, and hailstones.

For the Assyrian, who struck with the staff, will be terrified by the voice of the Lord.

And wherever the hammer that the Lord has thrust into him passes, and with which he has fought in battles with his arms raised, [there will be heard] drums and harps.

For Topheth is already prepared, and even it is made ready for the King; he has made it deep and wide; its pyre is fire, and much wood; the breath of the Lord kindling it like a torrent of sulfur.

Woe to those who go down to Egypt for help, who rely on horses, who trust in their chariots when they are many, and in their horsemen when they are strong, but have not looked to the Holy One of Israel or sought the Lord.

And yet, he is the wise one; and he brings evil, and does not revoke his word; he will rise up against the house of the wicked, and against those who aid the workers of iniquity.

But the Egyptians are men, and not the Mighty God; and their horses are flesh, and not spirit; therefore the Lord will stretch out his hand, and he who gives help will be overthrown; and he to whom help is given will fall; and they all together will be consumed.

But this is what the Lord says to me: As a lion and a young lion roars over its prey, and though many shepherds are called against it, it is not afraid of their shouting, nor does it bow down at their noise; so the Lord Almighty will come down to fight for Mount Zion and its hillside.

As birds fly, so the Lord of hosts will protect Jerusalem, protecting it and delivering it, passing over it and saving it.

Return to the one from whom the children of Israel have strangely strayed.

For on that day each one will reject the idols of their silver and the idols of their gold, which your own hands made for you to sin.

And the Assyrian will fall by the sword, which will not be the sword of a valiant man, and the sword, which will not be a man's sword, will devour him, and he will flee from before the sword, and his elite young men will be made tribute.

And seized with fear he will go to his fortress, and his captains will be afraid because of the banner, says the Lord, whose fire is in Zion, and whose furnace is in Jerusalem.

Behold, a King shall reign in justice, and the Princes shall preside with equity.

And this person will be like the place to which one retreats under cover from the wind, and like a refuge from the storm; like streams of water in a dry land, and the shade of a large rock in a thirsty land.

Then the eyes of those who see will not be hindered, and the ears of those who hear will be attentive.

And the hearts of the foolish will understand knowledge; and the tongues of stammerers will speak easily and clearly.

The stingy person will no longer be called liberal, and the miser will no longer be called magnificent.

For the miser only speaks miserly words, and his heart plots only iniquity, to carry out his disguise, and to utter false things against the Lord; to empty the soul of the hungry, and to dry up drink for the thirsty.

The miser's instruments are pernicious; he takes advice full of machinations, to catch the afflicted with words of lies, even when the poor speak rightly.

But the liberal takes advice on liberality, and rises up to exercise liberality.

Women who are at ease, stand up, listen to my voice; daughters who are confident, give ear to my word.

In a year and a few days beyond, you who are so secure will be troubled; for the vintage has failed; the harvest will not come again.

You who are at ease, tremble; you who are secure, be troubled; strip yourselves, take off your clothes, and put on sackcloth around your waists.

We beat our breasts because of the abundant fruit of the vine.

Thorns and briers will grow up on the land of my people; even on all the houses where there is joy, and on the city that rejoices.

For the palace will be abandoned; the multitude of the city will be deserted; the inaccessible places of the country and the fortresses will be like caverns forever; there the wild donkeys will play, and the little ones will graze.

Until the Spirit is poured out on us from on high; and the desert becomes like Carmel, and Carmel is likened to a forest.

The court will dwell in the desert, and justice will be held in Carmel.

Peace will be the result of justice, and the cultivation of justice will bring rest and security forever.

And my people will dwell in peaceful dwellings, and in secure pavilions, and in very quiet rest.

But hail will fall on the forest, and the city will be completely flattened.

How happy you are, you who sow on all the waters, and who make the ox and the donkey walk there!

Woe to you who forage, and have not been foraged, and to you who act treacherously, and against whom no treachery has been used; as soon as you have finished foraging, you will be foraged; and as soon as you have finished acting treacherously, you will be treated treacherously.

Eternal One, have mercy on us; we have waited for you; be their arm from the morning, and our deliverance in the time of distress.

The peoples were separated because of the loud noise, the nations were scattered because you were exalted.

And your plunder will be gathered up like worms, it will be pounced on like grasshoppers.

The Lord will be exalted, for he dwells in a high place; he will fill Zion with justice and righteousness.

And the certainty of your duration, and the strength of your deliverances will be wisdom and knowledge; the fear of the Lord will be her treasure.

Behold, their heralds cry out outside, and the messengers of peace weep bitterly.

The roads have become desolate, passersby no longer travel the paths; he has broken the covenant, he has rejected the cities, he does not even regard men.

There is mourning; the land languishes, Lebanon is dry and cut down; Sharon has become like a wasteland; and Bashan and Carmel have been shaken.

Now I will arise, says the Lord, now I will be exalted, now I will be lifted up.

You will conceive from chaff, and you will give birth to stubble; your breath will consume you [like] fire.

And the peoples will be [like] lime kilns; they will be burned with fire like cut thorns.

You who are far away, listen to what I have done; and you who are near, know my strength.

The sinners will be terrified in Zion, and trembling will seize the hypocrites, [so much so that they will say]: Who among us can dwell with the consuming fire? Who among us can dwell with the everlasting flames?

He who observes justice, and who speaks upright things; he who rejects dishonest gain from extortion, and who shakes his hands so as not to accept a bribe; he who stops his ears so as not to hear blood, and who closes his eyes so as not to see evil; He will dwell in high places; fortresses set upon rocks will be his high refuge; his bread will be given him, and his water will not fail him.

Your eyes will behold the King in his beauty; and they will gaze upon the distant land.

Will your heart dwell on fear? [saying]; where is the secretary? Where is the one who weighs? Where is the one who keeps count of the turns?

You will not see the proud people, a people of unknown language, which cannot be understood; and of stammering tongue, which cannot be understood.

Look upon Zion, the city of our solemn feasts, let your eyes see Jerusalem, a tranquil dwelling place, a tabernacle that will not be moved, and whose stakes will never be removed, nor any of its cords broken.

For [it is] truly there that the Lord is magnificent to us; it is the place of rivers, and of very broad streams, into which no oar-boat will go, and where no large ship will pass.

Because the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, the Lord is our King; he is the one who will save you.

Your ropes are loose, and so they will not hold their mast steady, and the sail will not be spread; then the spoils of a great haul will be divided; even the lame will plunder the haul.

And he who dwells in the house shall not say, I am sick; the people who dwell in it shall be cleansed of iniquity.

Come near, you nations, to listen, and you peoples, pay attention; let the earth and all that is in it listen; let the habitable world and all that is produced in it listen;

For the indignation of the Lord is upon all these nations, and his fury upon all their armies; he has set them aside, he has given them up to be killed.

Their mortally wounded will be thrown there, and the stench of their dead bodies will spread, and mountains will flow from their blood.

And all the host of heaven shall melt, and the heavens shall be rolled up like a scroll, and all their host shall fall, as the leaf falls from the vine, and as the leaf falls from the fig tree.

Because my sword is drunk in heaven, behold, it will descend in judgment against Edom, and against the people whom I have put under the curse.

The sword of the Lord is full of blood; it is fattened with its fat and with the blood of lambs and goats and with the fat of sheep's kidneys; for there is a sacrifice to the Lord in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the land of Edom.

And the unicorns will come down with them, and the calves with the bulls; their land will be drunk with blood, and their dust will be fattened with fat.

For the Lord has a day of vengeance, and a year of recompense to uphold Zion's justice.

And its streams will be turned into pitch, and its dust into sulfur, and its land will become burning pitch.

It will not be extinguished night or day; its smoke will rise forever, it will be desolate from generation to generation; no one will ever pass through it.

And the cormorant and the bittern will possess it, the owl and the raven will dwell there; and the line of confusion and the level of disorder will be spread over it.

Its magistrates will cry out that there is no longer a Kingdom there, and all its governors will be reduced to nothing.

Thorns will grow in her palaces, thistles and brambles in her fortresses, and she will be a lair of dragons, and a court of owls.

[There] the wild beasts of the deserts will meet the [wild beasts of the] Islands, and the owl will cry to its mate; there the osprey will also land, and find its rest.

There the swift will make its nest, there it will incubate, there it will hatch, and it will gather [its young] under its shade; and there also the vultures will gather together.

Search in the Book of the Lord, and read: not one thing was lacking; neither she nor her companion were lacking; for it was my mouth that commanded it, and his Spirit is the one who assembled them.

For he cast the lot for them, and his hand distributed this land to them with a measuring line; they shall possess it forever, they shall dwell in it from generation to generation.

The desert and the parched place will rejoice, and the lonely place will be glad and blossom like a rose.

It will flourish abundantly and rejoice, even exulting and singing triumphantly. The glory of Lebanon will be given to it, along with the majesty of Carmel and Sharon; they will see the glory of the Lord and the majesty of our God.

Strengthen weak hands, and fortify shaky knees.

Tell those who are troubled in heart; take courage, and do not fear; here is your God; vengeance will come, the retribution of God; he himself will come, and deliver you.

Then the eyes of the blind will be opened, and the ears of the deaf will be unblocked.

Then the lame will leap like a deer, and the tongue of the mute will sing in triumph; for waters will spring up in the desert, and streams in the lonely place.

And the places that were dry will become pools, and the parched earth will become springs of water, and in the lairs of the dragons where they made their dwelling, there will be a court of reeds and rushes.

And there will be a path and a way there, which will be called the Way of Holiness; the unclean will not pass on it, but it will be for those who go their own way; and the foolish will not stray on it.

There will be no lion there, and none of those beasts that prey on others will go up there or be found there; but the redeemed will walk there.

Those for whom the Lord has paid the ransom will return and come to Zion with singing, and everlasting joy will be upon their heads; they will obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing will flee away.

Now it came to pass in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, that Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, came up against all the fortified cities of Judah, and captured them.

Then the king of the Assyrians sent Rabshakeh with a large force from Lachish to Jerusalem, to King Hezekiah, and he presented himself near the conduit of the upper pool, at the main road to the fuller's field.

And Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, the steward, and Sebna the secretary, and Joab son of Asaph, the clerk of the registers, went out to him.

And Rabshakeh said to them, "Now tell Hezekiah, 'This is what the great King, the King of the Assyrians, says: What is this confidence you have?'"

I tell you that these are only words; [but] counsel and force are required in war: now on whom have you trusted, that you have rebelled against me?

Behold, you have trusted in this staff, which is but a broken reed, in Egypt, on which if anyone leans, it will pierce his hand; such is Pharaoh King of Egypt to all who trust in him.

If you say to me, "We trust in the Lord our God," is this not the very one from whom Hezekiah removed the high places and altars, and said to Judah and Jerusalem, "You shall worship before this altar?"

Now therefore give hostages to the King of the Assyrians, my master; and I will give you two thousand horses, if you can provide that many men to ride on them.

And how could you turn your face to the least governor among my master's servants?

But you trust in Egypt because of the chariots and the horsemen.

But have I now gone up against this land to destroy it without the Lord? The Lord said to me, "Go up against this land and destroy it."

Then Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joab said to Rabshakeh, "We beg you to speak to your servants in Syriac, for we understand it; but do not speak to us in Judah while the people on the wall are listening."

And Rabsake answered, "Did my master send me to your master, or to you, to say these words? Did he not send me to the men who stand on the wall, to tell them that they will eat their own dung and drink their own urine with you?"

Rabsake then stood up and cried out in a loud voice in the Hebrew language, and said: Listen to the words of the great King, the King of the Assyrians.

The King has said this; Hezekiah should not deceive you; for he will not be able to deliver you.

And let not Hezekiah cause you to trust in the Lord, saying, "The Lord will undoubtedly deliver us; this city will not be given into the hands of the King of Assyria."

Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the King of the Assyrians: make an agreement with me for your own good, and come out to me, and you shall each eat from his own vine, and each from his own fig tree, and you shall each drink from his own cistern;

Until I come and take you to a land like your own, a land of wheat and good wine, a land of bread and vineyards.

Therefore, let Hezekiah not deceive you by saying, "The Lord will deliver us." Have the gods of the nations each delivered their own land from the hand of the king of Assyria?

Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? And has Samaria even been delivered from my hand?

Who among all the gods of those lands have delivered their land from my hand, [to say] that the Lord will deliver Jerusalem from my hand?

But they remained silent and did not answer him a word; for the King had commanded, saying, you shall not answer him.

After this Eliakim son of Hilkiah, the steward, and Shebna the secretary, and Joab son of Asaph, the clerks, returned with their clothes torn to Hezekiah, and told him the words of Rabshakeh.

And it came to pass that as soon as King Hezekiah heard these things, he tore his clothes and covered himself with sackcloth and went into the house of the Lord.

Then he sent Eliakim the steward, and Shebna the secretary, and the elders of the priests, covered in sackcloth, to Isaiah the prophet son of Amoz.

And they said to him, "Thus says Hezekiah, this day is a day of distress, rebuke, and blasphemy; for the children have come to the opening of the womb, but there is no strength to give birth."

Perhaps the Lord your God has heard the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria, his master, sent to blaspheme the living God and to revile him, according to the words that the Lord your God has heard; therefore, make inquiries for the remnant that is still found.

So the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

And Isaiah said to them, "Tell your master this: 'This is what the Lord says: Do not be afraid because of the words you have heard, with which the servants of the King of Assyria have blasphemed me.'"

Behold, I am going to put such a spirit in him, that having heard a certain noise, he will return to his own country, and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own country.

But when Rabsake had returned, he went to the King of the Assyrians, who was defeating Libnah; for [Rabsake] had heard that he had left Lachish.

[The King] therefore [of the Assyrians] heard concerning Tirhakah, King of Ethiopia; he has come out to fight you; having heard this, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying to them;

You shall speak thus to Hezekiah King of Judah, saying: let not your God in whom you trust deceive you, saying: Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the King of Assyria.

So, you have heard what the Kings of Assyria did to all the countries, destroying them completely; and you would escape?

Have the gods of the nations that my ancestors destroyed, [namely] of Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the children of Heden, who are in Pelasar, delivered them?

Where is the King of Hamath, and the King of Arpad, and the King of the city of Sepharvaim, Henah and Hivah?

And when Hezekiah had received the letters from the messengers and had read them, he went up to the house of the Lord, and Hezekiah spread them out before the Lord.

Then Hezekiah prayed to the Lord, [saying];

O Lord of hosts! God of Israel! who sits between the Cherubim; you alone are the God of all the kingdoms of the earth; you made the heavens and the earth.

O Lord! incline your ear, and listen; O Lord! open your eyes, and see, and listen to all the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent me to speak to blaspheme the living God.

It is indeed true, O Eternal One! that the Kings of the Assyrians have destroyed all the countries, and their lands;

And they threw their gods into the fire; for they were not gods, but the work of human hands, wood and stone; therefore they destroyed them.

Now therefore, O Lord our God! deliver us from the hand of [Sensherib], so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you alone are the Lord.

Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent word to Hezekiah, saying, "Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, concerning what you have asked me about Sennacherib king of the Assyrians;

This is the word that the Lord has spoken against him: The virgin daughter of Zion has despised you and mocked you; the daughter of Jerusalem has shaken her head at you.

Whom have you insulted and blasphemed? Against whom have you raised your voice and lifted your eyes on high? Against the Holy One of Israel.

You have insulted the Lord through your servants, and you have said; I have gone up with my multitude of chariots to the top of the mountains, to the side of Lebanon, I will cut down the tallest cedars, and the finest fir trees that are there, and I will enter to its highest point, and into the forest of its Carmel.

I dug [springs], and I drank their waters; and I dried up with the sole of my feet all the streams of the fortresses.

Have you not heard that I made this city long ago, and that I formed it thus from ancient times? And now would I have preserved it only to be reduced to desolation, and fortified cities to heaps of ruins?

But their inhabitants being powerless were terrified and confused, and became like the grass of the field; and the green grass, like the hay on the roofs, which is dry before it is stacked in a pipe.

But I know your hiding place, your exit, and your entrance, and how furious you are with me.

Because you are furious with me, and your insolence has reached my ears, I will put my hook in your nostrils, and my bit in your mouth, and I will make you return by the way by which you came.

And this will be a sign to you, [O Hezekiah], that this year you will eat what grows of itself in the fields; and in the second year, what grows again without sowing; but in the third year you will sow and reap, and plant vineyards and eat their fruit. And what has survived, and remained in the house of Judah, will put forth its root underneath, and it will bear its fruit above.

For a remnant will go out of Jerusalem, and a few survivors from Mount Zion; the jealousy of the Lord of hosts will do this.

Therefore this is what the Lord says concerning the King of Assyria: He shall not enter this city, nor shoot an arrow at it, nor come against it with a shield, nor build a siege ramp against it.

He will return by the way by which he came, and he will not enter this city, says the Lord.

For I will guarantee this city, in order to deliver it for my own sake and for the sake of David my servant.

An angel of the Lord went out and killed 185,000 [men] in the camp of the Assyrians; and when people got up early in the morning, behold, they were all dead bodies.

And Sennacherib King of the Assyrians departed from there, he went away, and returned, and stayed in Nineveh.

And it came to pass that, being prostrate in the house of Nisroc his God, Adrammelech and Sareezer his sons killed him with the sword; then they escaped to the land of Ararat, and Esarhaddon his son reigned in his place.

In those days Hezekiah was sick to the point of death, and Isaiah the Prophet son of Amoz came to him and said to him, "Thus says the Lord, prepare your house, for you are going to die; you will not live again."

Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the Lord.

And he said, "Now remember, O Lord, how I walked before you in truth and in integrity of heart, and how I did what was pleasing to you." And Hezekiah wept bitterly.

Now the word of the Lord came to Isaiah, saying;

Go, and tell Hezekiah, this is what the Lord, the God of David your father, says: I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; behold, I will add fifteen years to your life.

And I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the King of Assyria, and I will protect this city.
And this sign is given to you by the Lord, [to show] that the Lord will fulfill this word that he has spoken;
Behold, I am going to make the shadow of the steps by which it went down to the sundial of Ahaz return ten steps back with the sun; and the sun returned ten steps by the steps by which it had gone down.
This is the writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, concerning how he was sick and was healed of his illness.
I had said in the retreat of my days; I will go to the gates of the sepulchre, I am deprived of what remained of my years.
I had said; I will no longer behold the Lord, the Lord, in the land of the living; I will no longer see anyone among the inhabitants of the world.
My life has departed, and has been carried away from me, like a shepherd's hut; I have cut my life as the weaver [cuts his cloth]; he will cut me from the looms: from morning to evening you will have taken me away.
I kept thinking until morning that he was like a lion, that he would break all my bones; from morning till evening you will have taken me away.
I grumbled like the crane, and [like] the swallow; I moaned like the pigeon; my eyes grew faint from looking up; Lord, I am strengthened, be my guarantor.
What shall I say? He spoke to me; and he himself did it; I will go away gently, all the years of my life, in the bitterness of my soul.
Lord, by these things we have life, and in all [that is] in these things is the life of my spirit; so you will restore me, and make me live again.
Behold, in my peace great bitterness had come upon me, but you embraced me, so that I would not fall into the pit of decay; because you cast all my sins behind your back.

For the grave will not celebrate you, death will not praise you; those who go down to the pit no longer expect your truth.
But the living one, the living one, is the one who will praise you, as I do today; the father will lead the children to the knowledge of your truth.
The Lord has come to deliver me, and because of this we will play my songs on the instruments all the days of our lives, in the house of the Lord.
But Isaiah had said; let a mass of dried figs be made into a poultice on the ulcer, and it shall be healed.
And Hezekiah had said, "What will be the sign that I will go up to the house of the Lord?"
At that time Merodach-Baladan, son of Baladan, King of Babylon, sent letters with a present to Hezekiah, because he had heard that he had been sick, and that he was well again.
And Hezekiah was glad, and showed them the cabinets of his precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the aromatic things, and the precious ointments, all his armory, and everything that was found in his treasures; there was nothing that Hezekiah did not show them in his house, and in all his court.
Then the Prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah and said to him, "What did these men say, and where did they come from?" Hezekiah replied, "They came to me from a distant country, from Babylon."
And [Isaiah] said; what have they seen in your house? And Hezekiah answered; they have seen everything that [is] in my house; there was nothing in my treasures that I did not show them.
And Isaiah said to Hezekiah, "Hear the word of the Lord of hosts."
The days are coming when everything in your house, and what your ancestors have stored up until this day, will be carried off to Babylon; not a thing will be left behind, says the Lord.

They will even take some of your sons who will come from you, whom you will have fathered, to be eunuchs in the palace of the King of Babylon.

And Hezekiah answered Isaiah, "The word of the Lord that you have spoken is good," and he added, "Surely there may be peace and security in my days."

"Comfort, comfort my people," your God will say.

Speak to Jerusalem from her heart, and cry out to her that her appointed time is fulfilled, that her iniquity is accepted as acquitted, that she has received from the hand of the Lord double for all her sins.

The voice of one crying in the wilderness [is]: Prepare the way of the Lord, make paths in the wilderness to our God.

Every valley shall be filled in, and every mountain and hill made low, and the crooked places made straight, and the rough places made smooth.

Then the glory of the Lord will be revealed, and all flesh together will see it; for the mouth of the Lord has spoken.

The voice says; cries out; and it was answered; what shall I cry out? All flesh is like grass, and all its grace is like the flower of a field.

The grass is withered, and the flower has fallen, because the wind of the Lord has blown on it; truly the people [are like] grass.

The grass has withered, and the flower has fallen; but the word of our God remains forever.

Zion, who brings good tidings, ascends a high mountain; Jerusalem, who brings good tidings, lift up your voice with strength; lift it up, do not be afraid; say to the cities of Judah, "Here is your God."

Behold, the Lord God will come against the strong, and his arm will rule over him; behold, his reward is with him, and his reward goes before him.

He will tend his flock like a shepherd; he will gather the lambs in his arms and place them in his bosom; he will lead those that are nursing.

Who is he who measured the waters with the hollow of his hand, and marked off the heavens with the span; who gathered all the dust of the earth into a bushel; and weighed the mountains on scales, and the hills in balances?

Who directed the Spirit of the Lord, or who, being his counselor, showed him [something]?

With whom did he seek counsel, and who instructed him, and taught him the path of judgment? Who taught him knowledge, and showed him the way of prudence?

Behold, the nations are like a drop that falls from a seal, and they are considered like the fine dust on a scale; behold, he has scattered the islands like dust.

And Lebanon would not be enough to make the fire, and the animals that are there would not be enough for the holocaust.

All nations are as nothing before him, and he regards them only as dust and as nothing.

To whom then will you make the Mighty [God] resemble, and what likeness will you give him?

The worker casts the image, and the goldsmith spreads gold over it, and casts silver chains for it.

He who is so poor that he has nothing to offer, chooses a wood that will not rot, and seeks a skilled craftsman, to make a carved image that will not move.

Will you never have knowledge? Will you never listen? Has it not been declared to you from the beginning? Have you not heard it from the foundations of the earth?

It is he who sits above the globe of the earth, and to whom its inhabitants are like grasshoppers; it is he who stretches out the heavens like a veil, and has spread them out like a tent to dwell in.

It is he who reduces Princes to nothing, and makes the rulers of the earth like a thing of nothingness.

They will not even be planted, nor will they be sown, nor will their trunk send down roots into the earth; even if the wind blows on them, they will wither, and the whirlwind will carry them away like straw.

"To whom will you make me resemble, and to whom shall I be equal?" said the Saint. Lift up your eyes on high, and look; who created these things? It is he who brings out their army by order, and calls them all by name; not one is missing, because of the greatness of his forces, and because he excels in power.

Why then should you say, O Jacob! and why should you say, O Israel! My state is hidden from the Lord, and my right is unknown to my God?

Do you not know and have you not heard that the eternal God, the Lord, created the ends of the earth? He does not tire or become weary, and his understanding is beyond comprehension.

It is he who gives strength to the weary, and multiplies the strength of the weak. Young people grow weary and overworked; even elite young people fall without strength.

But those who wait for the Lord will find renewed strength; their wings will return to them like those of eagles; they will run and not grow weary, they will walk and not be faint.

Islands, be silent to me, and let the peoples gather their strength; let them come forward, and then let them speak; let us go together to judgment.

Who is he who raises up justice from the East? Who summons her to follow him step by step? Who subdues nations under his command, gives them dominion over kings, and delivers them to his sword like dust, and to his bow like chaff before the wind? He pursued them, and he passed in peace along the path which he had not entered with his feet.

Who is it that has worked and done these things? It is he who called the ages from the beginning. I, the Lord, am the first, and I am with the last.

The islands saw, and were afraid; the ends of the earth were frightened; they drew near and came.

Each one helped his neighbor, and said to his brother, "Be strong."

The worker encouraged the smelter; the one who gently strikes with the hammer [encourages] the one who strikes on the anvil, and says; This is good for soldering, then he holds it with nails, so that it does not move.

But you, Israel, are my servant, and you, Jacob, are the one I have chosen, the offspring of Abraham who loved me.

For I have taken you from the ends of the earth, I have called you, preferring you to the most excellent ones that are in it, and I have said to you; You are my servant, I have chosen you, and I have not rejected you.

Do not be afraid, for I am with you; do not be astonished, for I am your God; I have strengthened you and helped you, even I have upheld you by the right hand of my righteousness.

Behold, all those who are indignant against you shall be ashamed and confused; they shall be reduced to nothing, and the men who quarrel with you shall perish.

You will seek the men who have quarrel with you, but you will not find them; they will be reduced to nothing; and those who wage war against you will be like those who are no more.

For I am the Lord your God, upholding your right hand, the one who tells you, "Do not be afraid, it is I who have helped you."

Do not be afraid, you worm Jacob, you mortal men of Israel; I will help you, says the Lord, and your defender is the Holy One of Israel.

Behold, I will make you like a brand new, sharp harrow with teeth; you will trample the mountains and grind them down, and you will make the hills like chaff.

You will winnow them, and the wind will carry them away, and the whirlwind will scatter them; but you will rejoice in the Lord, you will glory in the Holy One of Israel.

As for the afflicted and the wretched who seek water, and have none, whose tongue is so parched that it can no longer drink, I, the Lord, will answer them; I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them.

I will make rivers spring forth in the high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys; I will make the desert into pools of water, and the dry land into springs of water.

I will make the cedar, the pine, the myrtle, and the olive tree grow in the desert; I will put the fir, the elm, and the box tree together in the wastelands.

So that people may see, know, think, and hear alike that the hand of the Lord has done this, and that the Holy One of Israel has created this.

Bring forth your case, says the Lord; and set forth the foundations of your cause, says the King of Jacob.

Let them be brought forth, and let them tell us what will happen; tell us what the things which have been before mean, and we will take heed to them; and we will know their outcome; or let us hear what is about to happen.

Declare the things that are to happen after this; and we shall know that you are gods; do good or evil, and we shall be astonished; then we shall see together.

Behold, you are nothing, and what you do is useless; he who chooses you is nothing but an abomination.

I have raised him up from the north, and he will come; he will call on my Name from the rising of the sun, and will tread on the Magistrates, as on mortar, and trample them, as the potter treads clay.

Who is it that has manifested these things from the beginning, so that we may know him, and before the time in which we are, and declare that he is righteous? But there is no one who proclaims them, nor is there anyone who makes them heard, nor is there anyone who hears your words.

The first will be for Zion, [saying]; behold, behold them; and I will give someone to Jerusalem who will bring good tidings.

I looked, and there was no [notable] man; even among them, and there was no man of counsel; I also questioned them, so that they might answer something.

As for all of them, their works are vanity, a thing of nothing; their molten idols are wind and confusion.

Here is my servant, whom I will maintain: he is my chosen one, in whom my soul delights; I have put my Spirit upon him; he will reveal justice to the nations.

He will not cry out, nor raise his voice, nor make his voice heard in the streets.

He will not break the bruised reed, nor quench the smoldering wick; he will bring forth justice in truth.

He will not withdraw, nor will he hasten, until he has established a settlement in the land; and the islands will wait for his Law.

Thus says the Mighty God, the Eternal, who created the heavens and stretched them out, who leveled the earth and its produce, who gives breath to the people who are on it, and spirit to those who walk on it.

I, the Lord, have called you in righteousness, and I will take hold of your hand and keep you; and I will make you a covenant for the people and a light for the nations:

In order to open eyes that do not see, and to bring prisoners out of the place where they are confined, and those who dwell in darkness out of prison.

I am the Lord, that is my Name; and I will not give my glory to another, nor my praise to carved images.

Behold, the things which were [predicted] before have come to pass; and I announce new things to you, and I will make you hear them before they have come to pass.

Sing to the Lord a new song, and let his praise resound from the ends of the earth; let those who go down to the sea, and all that is in it; let the islands, and their inhabitants;

Let the desert and its cities raise their voices; let the villages where Kedar dwells, and those who live in the rocks, burst into song; let them cry out from the mountaintops;

Let them give glory to the Lord, and let them proclaim his praise in the islands. The Lord will go out like a valiant man, he will stir up his jealousy like a man of war, he will shout for joy, he will shout, I say, with a great shout, and will strengthen himself against his enemies.

I have been silent for a long time; shall I remain at rest? shall I restrain myself? I will cry out like one giving birth, I will destroy, and I will swallow everything up at once.

I will reduce the mountains and hills to a desert, and I will dry up all their grass; I will reduce the rivers to islands, and I will make the ponds dry up.

I will lead the blind by a way they do not know, I will make them walk along paths they do not know; I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight; I will do these things for them, and I will not forsake them.

Therefore let those who trust in carved images, and who say to cast images, "You are our gods," turn back and be ashamed.

You deaf, listen; and you blind, look and see.

Who is blind but my servant? And who is deaf like my messenger whom I have sent? Who is blind like the one I have favored? Who, I say, is blind like the servant of the Lord?

You see many things, but you pay no attention to anything; you have open ears, but you hear nothing.

The Lord took pleasure in him because of his righteousness; he magnified his law and honored him.

But this is a people plundered and looted; they will all be entangled in caves, and hidden in prisons; they will be plundered, and there will be no one to deliver them; they will be looted, and there will be no one to say, "Restore."

Who among you will lend an ear to this, pay attention to it, and hear it from now on?

Who gave Jacob up to plunder, and Israel to raiders? Was it not the Lord, against whom we have sinned? Because we did not accept to walk in his ways, and did not listen to his Law.

That is why he poured out on him the fury of his anger, and a great war; and he set him ablaze all around, but [Israel] did not recognize him; and you burned him, but he did not care.

But now thus says the Lord, who created you, O Jacob, and formed you, O Israel: Do not be afraid, for I have redeemed you; I have called you by your name; you are mine.

When you pass through the waters, I will be with you, and [when you pass] through the rivers, they will not drown you; when you walk through the fire, you will not be burned, and the flame will not set you ablaze.

For I am the Lord your God, the Holy One of Israel your Savior; I gave Egypt as your ransom, Cush and Sheba in your place.

Since you were precious in my sight, you were honored, and I loved you; and I will give men for you, and peoples for your life.

Do not be afraid, for I am with you; I will bring your descendants from the East, and I will gather you from the West.

I will say to the North, Give; and to the South, Put no hindrance there; Bring my sons from afar, and my daughters from the ends of the earth;

[Know], all those who are called by my Name; for I created them for my glory; I formed them, and made them:

Bringing out the blind people, who have eyes, and the deaf, who have ears.

Let all the nations be gathered together, and let the peoples be assembled. Which of them foretold this? And who are those who have told us the things that were former?

Let them produce their witnesses, and let them prove themselves; let them be heard, and [after that] let it be said, "It is true."

"You are my witnesses," declares the Lord, "and also my servant whom I have chosen, so that you may know and believe me and hear that it is I. There was no mighty God before me who formed anything, nor will there be one after me."

I am he, I am the Lord, and there is no Savior except me.

It is I who foretold what was to come, it is I who delivered you, and who made you hear the future, and there was no foreign [god] among you [who did these things]; and you are my witnesses, says the Lord, that I am the Mighty [God].

And indeed I was there from the first light of day, and there is no one who can deliver from my hand; I will do one thing, and who can stop me?

Thus says the Lord your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel; I will send for your sake against Babylon, and I will bring them all down as fugitives, and the cry of the Chaldeans will be in the ships.

I am the Lord, your Holy One, the Creator of Israel, your King.

Thus says the Lord, who made a way in the sea, and a path in the rushing waters; As for the one who brought chariots and horses, and great forces; they were [all] laid out together, and they will not rise again, they were smothered, they were extinguished like a wick.

Do not mention the things of old, and do not consider the former things.

Behold, I am about to do a new thing, which shall soon appear, do you not perceive it? For I will make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desolate place.

The beasts of the field, the dragons, and the owls will glorify me, because I will have put waters in the desert, and rivers in the desolate place, to give drink to my people, whom I have chosen.

I formed this people for myself, [and I said]; they will recount my praise.

But you, Jacob, did not call upon me, when you labored for me, O Israel!

You have not offered me the small animals of your burnt offerings, nor have you glorified me in your sacrifices; I have not enslaved you to make offerings to me, nor have I wearied you to [present] incense to me.

You did not buy me fragrant cane with money, nor did you intoxicate me with the fat of your sacrifices; but you have enslaved me through your sins, and you have oppressed me through your iniquities.

It is I, it is I who erase your misdeeds for love of me, and I will remember your sins no more.

Remind me, and let us plead together; you, deduce [your reasons], so that you may justify yourself.

Your first father sinned, and your intermediaries wronged me.

Therefore I will treat the leaders of the holy place as defiled, and I will make Jacob a curse, and Israel a reproach.

But now, O Jacob! my servant, listen; and you, Israel whom I have chosen.

Thus says the Lord, who made you and formed you from the womb, [and who] helps you; do not be afraid, O Jacob my servant! and you Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

For I will pour water on the thirsty one, and rivers on the dry land; I will pour out my Spirit on your offspring, and my blessing on those who come from you.

And they will sprout [as] among the grass, like willows beside flowing waters.

One will say, "I belong to the Lord," and another will call himself by the name of Jacob; and another will write with his own hand, "I belong to the Lord," and will call himself by the name of Israel.

Thus says the Lord, the King of Israel and his Redeemer, the Lord of hosts: I am the first, and I am the last; and there is no other God besides me.

And who is he who has called like me, who has declared to me, and ordained this, since I established the ancient people? Let them declare to them the things to come, the things, [I say], that will take place afterward.

Do not be afraid, and do not be troubled; did I not tell you and declare it to you from that time? And you are my witnesses; is there any God besides me? Indeed, there is no other Rock; I know of none.

The workers of carved images are all but nothing, and their most precious things profit nothing; and they are witnesses that they do not see, nor do they know, so that they may be ashamed.

[But] who has fashioned a mighty [God], and cast a carved image, to gain no profit from it?

Behold, all his companions will be ashamed, for these workers are of men; they will be terrified and put to shame together.

The ironworker [takes] the chisel and works with the coal, he shapes it with hammers, he does it by the strength of his arm, even when hungry, until he can do no more; and if he does not drink water, he is very tired.

The carpenter stretches out his ruler, and marks it with chalk; he makes it with squares, and shapes it with compasses, and makes it in the likeness of a man, and adorns it like a man, so that it may dwell in the house.

He cuts down cedars, and takes a cypress, or an oak, which he has let grow among the trees of the forest; he plants an ash, and the rain makes it grow.

Then it will serve man for burning; for he takes it, and warms himself with it; he makes fire from it, I say, and bakes bread; he also makes a god of it, and bows down [before it]; he makes a carved image of it, and worships it.

He burns part of it in the fire, and with another part he eats his flesh, which he roasts, and is satisfied with it; he also warms himself, and he says; ha! ha! I am warmed, I saw the glow [of the fire].

Then he makes him into a god to be his own carved image; he worships him and bows down before him, and makes his request to him, [and says to him]: Deliver me, for you are my God.

[These people] know nothing and hear nothing; for their eyes have been plastered over so that they cannot see, and their hearts so that they cannot hear.

No one looks into his own mind, nor does he have knowledge or understanding, to say, "I burned half of this in the fire, and even baked bread on the coals; I roasted some meat and ate it; and should I make the rest an abomination? Should I worship a branch of wood?"

He feeds on ashes, and his deluded heart makes him stray; and he will not deliver his soul, nor say, "Is not what is in my right hand a lie?"

Jacob and Israel, remember these things, for you are my servant; I formed you, you are my servant, O Israel! I will not forget you.

I have blotted out your transgressions like a thick cloud, and your sins like a cloud; return to me, for I have redeemed you.

O heavens! Rejoice with singing, for the Lord has done it; you low places of the earth, shout for joy; you mountains, burst into song; [and you] forests, and all the trees in them, because the Lord has redeemed Jacob, and has manifested himself gloriously in Israel.

Thus says the Lord your Redeemer, and he who formed you from the womb: I am the Lord who made all things, who alone stretched out the heavens, and who by myself leveled the earth;

He who dispels the signs of liars, who makes fools of diviners; who overturns the minds of the wise, and makes their knowledge become folly.

It is he who carries out the word of his servant, and who fulfills the counsel of his messengers; who says to Jerusalem, "You shall be inhabited again," and to the cities of Judah, "You shall be rebuilt," and I will restore its desolate places.

Who says to the deep, "Be dried up, and I will dry up your rivers."

Who says of Cyrus; he is my Shepherd; he will accomplish all my good pleasure, saying even to Jerusalem; you shall be rebuilt; and to the Temple; you shall be founded.

Thus says the Lord to his Anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have taken, that I may subdue nations before him, and loose the loins of kings; that gates may be opened before him, and that gates may not be shut.

I will go before you, and I will make straight the crooked ways; I will break down the bronze gates, and I will cut the iron bars to pieces.

And I will give you the hidden treasures, and the riches most secretly kept, so that you may know that I am the Lord, the God of Israel, who calls you by your Name; For the love of Jacob my servant, and of Israel my chosen; I have, I say, called you by your name, and I have given you a nickname, though you did not know me.

I am the Lord, and there is no other; there is no God besides me. I have armed you, though you do not know me.

So that from the rising of the sun and from its setting it may be known that there is no other [God] besides me. I am the Lord, and there is no other.

I, the Lord, am the one who forms the light and creates darkness; I, the Lord, am the one who does all these things.

O heavens! Send down the dew from on high, and let the clouds drip forth righteousness; let the earth open up, let it bring forth salvation, and let righteousness spring up together! I, the Lord, have created this.

Woe to him who argues against his maker! Let the pot argue against other earthen pots; but will the clay say to him who formed it, "What are you doing? You have no skill in your work."

Woe to him who says to his father, "Why are you having children?" and to his mother, "Why are you bearing children?"

Thus says the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, who is its Creator; they have questioned me concerning things to come; and will you give me the Law concerning my children, and concerning the work of my hands?

It is I who made the earth, and created man on it; it is I who stretched out the heavens with my hands, and who gave the law to all their armies.

It is I who have raised this one up in justice, and I will address all his plans; he will rebuild my city, and will send back my people who have been taken away without ransom or reward, says the Lord of hosts.

Thus says the Lord; the work of Egypt, and the trade of Cush, and the Sabeans, people of great stature, shall pass over to you, [Jerusalem], and they shall be yours, they shall march after you, they shall pass over in chains, and bow down before you, they shall make supplications to you, [and say to you]: surely the Mighty [God] is in your midst, and there is no other God besides him.

Surely you are the Mighty God who hides himself, the God of Israel, the Savior.

They were all ashamed and confused; the image-makers went away together in shame.

[But] Israel has been saved by the Lord with an everlasting salvation; you will never be put to shame or disgraced.

For thus says the Lord, he who created the heavens, he is God, he who fashioned the earth and made it and established it; he did not create it to be empty, but formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord, and there is no other.

I have not spoken in secret, nor in some dark place of the earth; I have not said to the descendants of Jacob, "Seek me in vain." I am the Lord, speaking righteousness, declaring what is right.

Assemble yourselves and come; draw near together, you survivors from among the nations. Those who carry the wood of their carved image know nothing, nor do those who ask of a God who does not deliver.

Declare, and bring near, and even let us consult together; who is it that has spoken of such a thing long ago? Who has declared it from that time? Is it not I, the Lord? Yet there is no God besides me; there is no strong, righteous, and saving God besides me.

All you ends of the earth, look to me and be saved; for I am the Mighty One [God], and there is no other.

I have sworn by myself, and the word has gone out from my mouth in judgment, and it shall not be revoked, that every knee shall bow before me, and every tongue shall swear [by me].

Surely it will be said of me, "Justice and strength are in the Lord," but whoever comes against him will be put to shame, and all who are indignant against him. All the descendants of Israel will be justified, and they will glory in the Lord. Bel bowed down on his knees; Nebo was overthrown, their false gods were placed on beasts and mares; the idols you carried were loaded down, they were a burden to the weary beasts.

They bent down, they bowed down on their knees together, [and] could not avoid being loaded, they themselves went into captivity.

House of Jacob, listen to me, and you, all the remnant of the house of Israel, whom I have borne from the womb, and who have been carried from the womb.

I will be the same even to your old age, and I will carry you [on me] even to your gray old age; I have done it, and I will carry you again, I will carry you [on me], and I will deliver you.

To whom would you compare me, and to whom would you equate me? And to whom would you make me resemble, to say that we were alike?

They take gold from the purse, and weigh silver on the scales, and hire a goldsmith to make him into a god; they worship him, and bow down [before him].

We carry it on our shoulders, we take it on, we put it in its place, where it stands, [and] does not move from its place; then we will cry out to it, but it will not answer, and it will not deliver those [who cry out to it] from their distress.

Remember this, and take heart, you transgressors, and come to your senses.

Remember the former things [that were] of old: for I am he [the Mighty God], and there is no other God, and there is nothing like me.

He who declares the end from the beginning, and from long beforehand things which have not yet been done; who says, "My plan will stand, and I will carry out all my good pleasure."

Who calls for a bird of prey from the East, and for a man from a distant land to carry out my plan? I have spoken, and I will bring it about; I have formed it, and I will bring it to pass.

Listen to me, you who have hardened hearts, and who are far from justice.

I have brought near my righteousness, it will not depart, and my deliverance will not be delayed; I will establish deliverance in Zion for Israel, who is my glory.

Come down, sit on the dust, Virgin daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground, there is no longer a throne for the daughter of the Chaldeans, for you will no longer be called the delicate and the voluptuous one.

Put your hand to the millstones, and grind the flour; undo your braids, take off your shoes, uncover your legs and cross the rivers.

Your shame will be uncovered, and your disgrace will be seen; I will take revenge, I will not come against you like a mere man.

As for our Redeemer, his Name is the Lord of hosts, the Holy One of Israel.

Sit down without saying a word, and enter into darkness, daughter of the Chaldeans, for you will no longer be called the Lady of Kingdoms.

I was filled with anger against my people, I profaned my inheritance, that is why I delivered them into your hands, [but] you showed no mercy to them, you severely weighed down your yoke on the old man;

And you said, "I will be Lady forever," so much so that you did not put these things in your heart; you did not remember what would happen.

Now therefore listen to this, you voluptuary; who dwells in security, who says in your heart, "It is I, and there is no other besides me; I shall not become a widow, and I shall not know what it is like to be childless."

For these two things will happen to you in one moment, in one day: the loss of children and widowhood; they have come upon you in their entirety, because of the great number of your spells, and because of the great abundance of your enchantments.

And you trusted in your malice, and said, "There is no one who sees me"; your wisdom and your knowledge are what led you astray; so much so that you said in your heart,

"It is I, and there is no other besides me."

Therefore evil will come upon you, and you will not know when it is near to arrive; and the calamity that will fall upon you will be such that you will not be able to avert it; and the dazzling ruin, which you will not know, will come upon you suddenly.

Now keep your enchantments and the great number of your spells, for which you have labored since your youth; perhaps you may gain some profit from them; perhaps you will be strengthened by them.

You have grown weary of seeking advice. Let the observers of heaven, who gaze upon the stars and make predictions according to the moons, now appear, and let them deliver you from the things that are coming upon you.

Behold, they have become like straw, the fire has burned them; they will not deliver their soul from the power of the flame; there is no coal to warm themselves with, and there is no glow [of fire] to sit opposite.

Such have become to you those after whom you worked, and with whom you traded from your youth; each one has fled to his own neighborhood like a vagabond; there is no one to deliver you.

Listen to this, house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel, and who are descended from the waters of Judah, who swear by the name of the Lord, and who mention the God of Israel, but not in accordance with truth and justice.

For they take their name from the holy City, and rely on the God of Israel, whose name is the Lord of hosts.

I declared the things that came before from the beginning, and they went out from my mouth, and I published them; I did them suddenly, and they came to pass.

Because I knew that you were stubborn, and that your neck was like an iron bar, and that your forehead was bronze;

I have told you these things from that time, and I made you hear them before they happened, lest you should say, "My gods did these things, and my carved image and my cast image commanded them."

You have heard it, see all this; and you, will you not announce it? I am telling you now new things, which were stored up, and which you did not know.

Now they have been created, and not from of old, and before this day you had not heard of them, so that you would not say, "Behold, I knew them well."

Yet you have not heard; yet you have not known, and since that time your ear has not been opened; for I knew that you would act treacherously; therefore you were called Transgressor from the womb.

For the sake of my Name I will delay my anger, and for the sake of my praise I will restrain my wrath against you, so as not to cut you off.

Behold, I have refined you, but not as silver is refined; I have chosen you in the crucible of affliction.

For my own sake, for my own sake I will do it; for how could [my Name] be profaned? Surely I will not give my glory to another

Listen to me, Jacob, and you Israel, called by me; I am the first, and I am also the last.

My hand also laid the foundations of the earth, and my right hand measured the heavens by the span; when I call upon them, they appear together.

All of you, gather together and listen; which of these men has spoken such things?

The Lord has loved him; he will carry out his good pleasure against Babylon, and his arm will be against the Chaldeans.

It was I, it was I who spoke, I also called him, I brought him, and his plans succeeded.

Come near to me and listen to this; from the beginning I have not spoken in secret; when it was done, I was there. Now the Lord God and his Spirit have sent me.

Thus says the Lord your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel; I am the Lord your God, who teaches you to profit, and who guides you in the way you should walk.

Oh, if you had heeded my commandments! For your peace would have been like a river, and your righteousness like the waves of the sea. And your descendants would have been like the sand, and those who come from your body like the gravel of the sea; his name would not have been cut off or blotted out from before my face.

Go out from Babylon, flee from the Chaldeans; proclaim this with a voice of triumphant song, announce, proclaim this, and send word to the ends of the earth; say, the Lord has redeemed his servant Jacob.

And they were not thirsty when he led them through the deserts; he made water flow out of the rock for them, he even split the rock open, and the water flowed out. There is no peace for the wicked, says the Lord.

Listen to me, islands, and pay attention, you distant peoples; the Lord called me from the womb; he mentioned my name from my mother's womb.

And he made my mouth like a sharp sword; he hid me in the shadow of his hand, and made me like a polished arrow; he held me in his quiver.

And he said to me, "You are my servant; Israel is the one in whom I will be glorified through you."

And I said, "I have labored in vain; I have used up my strength for nothing and without fruit; yet my right is with the Lord, my work is with my God."

Now therefore the Lord, who formed me from the womb to be his servant, has said to me that I should bring Jacob back to him; but Israel will not gather together; yet I shall be glorified in the sight of the Lord, and my God shall be my strength.

And he said to me, "It is a small thing that you should be my servant to restore the Tribes of Jacob and to deliver the captives of Israel; therefore I have given you as a light to the nations, that you may be my salvation to the ends of the earth."

Thus says the Lord, the Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, to the despised one, to the abominable one in the nation, to the servant of those who rule: Kings shall see him, and rise up, and the princes also, and they shall bow down [before him], for the sake of the Lord, who is faithful, [and] of the Holy One of Israel who has chosen you.

Thus says the Lord; I have answered you in the time of favor, and I have helped you in the day of salvation; I will keep you, and I will give you to be the covenant of the people, to restore the land, and so that you may possess the desolate inheritances.

Saying to those who are bound, "Come out!" and to those who are in darkness, "Show yourselves!" They will graze along the roads, and their pastures will be on all the high places.

They will not hunger; they will not thirst; neither heat nor sun will strike them anymore, for he who has compassion on them will lead them and bring them to springs of water.

And I will make all my mountains into roads, and my paths will be raised up.

Behold, these will come from afar; and behold, those will come from the North, and [those] from the sea, and others from the land of the Sinians.

O heavens! Rejoice with singing, and you earth, be glad, and you mountains, burst into song; for the Lord has comforted his people, and he will have compassion on those he has afflicted.

But Zion said, "The Lord has forsaken me, and the Lord has forgotten me."

Can a woman forget her nursing child, so as not to have compassion on the son of her womb? But even if women were to forget them, I would not forget you!

Behold, I have depicted you on the palms of my hands; your walls are continually before me.

Your children will come in great haste; but those who destroyed you and made you a desert will come out from among you.

Lift up your eyes to the surroundings, and look; all these have gathered together, they have come to you. As surely as I live, says the Lord, you will put on these as an ornament, and you will adorn yourself with them, like a bride.

For your deserts, and your desolate places, and your ruined land, will now be too small for its inhabitants, and those who swallowed you up will depart.

The children you will have, after you have lost the others, will again say, when you hear it; this place is too small for me, make room for me so that I may stay here.

And you will say in your heart, "Who has given me these children, since I lost my children and was alone? I was taken captive and distressed. Who has nourished these children for me? Behold, I was left all alone. And where were these?"

Thus says the Lord GOD; behold, I will lift up my hand to the nations, and raise my banner to the peoples; and they shall bring your sons in their arms, and your daughters shall be carried on their shoulders.

And kings will be your foster fathers, and princesses their wives your nurses; they will bow down before you with their faces to the ground, and lick the dust from your feet; and you will know that I am the Lord, and that those who trust in me will not be put to shame.

Will plunder be taken from the powerful? And will the captives of the righteous be set free?

For thus says the Lord; even the captives taken by the mighty man shall be taken away, and the plunder of the strong man shall be taken away; for I myself will plead with those who plead against you, and I will deliver your children.

And I will cause those who oppressed you to eat their own flesh and be drunk with their own blood, as with new wine; and all flesh will know that I am the Lord who saves you, and your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

Thus says the Lord; where are the certificates of divorce from your mother whom I sent away? Or which of my creditors is it to whom I sold you? Behold, you were sold for your iniquities, and your mother was sent away for your transgressions.

Why did I come, and no one was found? I cried out, and no one answered. Is my hand somehow shortened, so that I cannot redeem? Or is there no longer any power in me to deliver? Behold, I make the sea dry up when I rebuke it; I make the rivers a desert, so that their fish stink, having died of thirst, because there is no water.

I clothe the heavens with darkness, and I put sackcloth on them for a covering.

The Lord God has given me the tongue of the wise, to know how to season words to him who is afflicted with [ills]; every morning he carefully awakens me so that I may give ear to the words of the wise.

The Lord God has opened my ear, and I have not been rebellious, nor have I turned back.

I exposed my back to those who struck me, and my cheeks to those who pulled my hair; I did not hide my face from reproach and spitting.

But the Lord God helped me, therefore I was not ashamed; and so I made my face like a flint; for I know that I shall not be put to shame.

He who vindicates me is near; who will contend with me? Let us stand together; who is my adversary? Let him come near to me.

Behold, the Lord, the Eternal One, will help me; who shall condemn me? Behold, they shall all wear out like a garment; the moth shall eat them up.

Who among you fears the Lord and obeys the voice of his servant? Let him who has walked in darkness and had no light trust in the name of the Lord and rely on his God.

Behold, all you who kindle the fire, and who gird yourselves with sparks, walk by the light of your fire, and in the sparks that you have kindled; this has been done to you by my hand, you will lie in torment.

Listen to me, you who follow justice and seek the Lord; look to the rock from which you were hewn, and to the cistern from which you were dug.

Look to Abraham your father, and to Sarah who bore you; how I called him, though he was only one, and how I blessed him and multiplied him.

For the Lord will comfort Zion, he will comfort all her desolates, and will make her wilderness like Eden, and her wastelands like the garden of the Lord; in her will be found joy and gladness, praise and the sound of music.

Listen to me attentively, my people, and give ear to me, you my nation; for the Law will go out from me, and I will establish my judgment to be a light to the peoples. My righteousness is near, my salvation has appeared, and my arms will judge the peoples; the islands will trust in me, and their confidence will be in my arm.

Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look down to the earth; for the heavens will vanish like smoke, and the earth will wear out like a garment, and its inhabitants will die likewise; but my salvation will endure forever, and my righteousness will never be destroyed.

Listen to me, you who know what justice is, people in whose hearts is my Law; do not fear the reproach of men, and do not be ashamed of their reproaches.

For the moth will eat them like a garment, and the worm will devour them like wool; but my righteousness will endure forever, and my salvation through all generations.

Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of the Lord, awake, as in days of old, in ages past. Are you not the one who cut Rahab to pieces, and mortally wounded the dragon? Was it not you who dried up the sea, the waters of the great deep? Who made the deepest places of the sea a way, so that the redeemed might pass through.

And those whose ransom the Lord has paid will return and come to Zion with singing; and everlasting joy will be upon their heads; they will obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing will flee away.

It is I, it is I who comfort you; who are you that you fear the mortal man, who will die, and the son of man who will become like hay?

And you have forgotten the Lord who made you, who stretched out the heavens, who laid the foundations of the earth; and you were continually afraid every day because of the fury of him who oppressed you, when he was about to destroy you; and where is [now] the fury of him who oppressed you?

He will hasten to set free the one who has been transported from one place to another, so that he does not die in the pit, and so that his bread does not fail him.

For I am the Lord your God, who divides the sea, and the waves roar; the Lord of hosts is his name.

I have put my words in your mouth, and I have covered you with the shadow of my hand, so that I may establish the heavens and lay the foundations of the earth, and say to Zion, "You are my people."

Awake, awake; arise, Jerusalem, you who have drunk from the hand of the Lord the cup of his wrath; you have drunk, you have sucked the dregs of the cup of staggering. Not one of the children she bore led her; and not one of the children she nursed took her by the hand.

These two things have happened to you; and who is there to pity you? The ruin, the plague, the famine, and the sword; by whom shall I comfort you?

Your children have fainted, they have lain at the crossroads of all the streets, like a wild ox caught in a net, full of the fury of the Lord, [and] because your God has rebuked them.

Therefore, listen now to this, O afflicted one, and drunk! but not with wine.

Thus says the Lord your Lord and your God, who pleads the cause of his people; behold, I have taken from my hand the cup of staggering, the dregs of the cup of my wrath; you shall drink of it no more.

For I will place it in the hand of those who afflicted you, [and] who said to your soul, "Bow down, and we will pass by"; therefore you exposed your body like the earth, and like a street to passers-by.

Awake, awake, Zion; put on your strength; Jerusalem, holy city, put on your magnificent garments; for the uncircumcised and the defiled will no longer pass through you.

Jerusalem, shake off the dust from yourself, rise up, and sit down: loose the bonds from your neck, captive daughter of Zion.

For thus says the Lord; you were sold for nothing, and you shall also be redeemed without money.

For thus says the Lord GOD; my people first went down to Egypt to sojourn there; but the Assyrians oppressed them in vain.

And now, what have I to do here, says the Lord, that my people have been taken away for nothing? Those who rule over them make them howl, says the Lord, and they continually cause my Name to be blasphemed every day.

Therefore my people will know my Name; therefore [they will know] on that day that it was I who said, "Here I am."

How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good tidings, who proclaims peace, who brings glad tidings of good, who proclaims salvation, and who says to Zion, "Your God reigns!"

Your watchmen will raise their voices, and rejoice together with a song of triumph; for they will see with their own eyes how the Lord will restore Zion.

Deserts of Jerusalem, burst forth, rejoice together with a song of triumph; for the Lord has comforted his people, he has redeemed Jerusalem.

The Lord has manifested his holy arm before the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

Withdraw, withdraw, get out of there, do not touch anything unclean, get out of the midst of it; cleanse yourselves, you who carry the vessels of the Lord.

For you shall not go out in haste, nor shall you walk in flight, because the Lord will go before you, and the God of Israel will be your rearguard.

Behold, my servant shall prosper, and shall be greatly exalted, and lifted up, and glorified.

As many were astonished at seeing you, that you were thus marred in appearance more than any other, and in form more than any of the children of men;

Thus he will cause the blood of many nations to gush forth, and kings will shut their mouths over you; for those who had not been told will see it, and those who had not heard of it will hear it.

Who has believed our preaching? And to whom has the arm of the Lord been seen?

However, he went up like a shoot before him, and like a root out of dry ground;

[there is] in him no form or appearance, when we look at him, there is nothing in him to be seen that we should desire him.

[He] is despised and rejected by men, a man of suffering, and knowing what languor is; and we hid our faces from him, so despised was he; and we held him in low esteem.

But he bore our griefs, and he carried our sorrows; and we considered that, being thus struck, he was beaten by God, and afflicted.

But he was grieved for our transgressions, [and] offended for our iniquities; the recompense which brought us peace was upon him, and by his wound we are healed.

We all, like sheep, have gone astray; we have each turned to our own way, and the Lord has laid on him the iniquity of us all.

[Everyone] asks him, and he is distressed, yet he did not open his mouth; he was led like a lamb to the slaughter, and like a sheep before its shearer is silent, and he did not open his mouth.

He was taken from the power of anguish and condemnation, but who can recount his duration? For he was cut off from the land of the living, and the plague was inflicted upon him for the transgression of my people.

They had assigned his grave with the wicked, but he was with the rich man when he died; for he had done no shameful thing, and no deceit was found in his mouth.

However, the Lord, desiring to afflict him, caused him to languish. After he has offered his soul [as an offering for] sin, he will see his offspring, he will prolong his days, and the Lord's good pleasure will prosper in his hand.

He will enjoy the labor of his soul, and be satisfied with it; my righteous servant will justify many by the knowledge they will have of him; and he himself will bear their iniquities.

Therefore I will give him his portion among the great, and he will divide the spoils with the strong, because he poured out his soul unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors, and he himself bore the sins of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

Rejoice with a song of triumph, barren woman who did not bear children, you who did not know the pains of childbirth, burst into joyful song and be glad; for the children of the desolate woman will be more numerous than the children of the married woman, says the Lord.

Enlarge the place of your tent, and let the curtains of your pavilions be extended; spare nothing, lengthen your cords, and make your stakes firm.

For you will spread out to the right and to the left, and your descendants will possess the nations and inhabit the desolate cities.

Do not be afraid, for you will not be ashamed, nor confused, nor will you blush; but you will forget the shame of your youth, and you will no longer remember the reproach of your widowhood.

For your husband is the one who made you; the Lord of hosts is his name; and your Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel: he shall be called the God of all the earth.

For the Lord has called you like a woman deserted and distressed in his spirit, and like a woman who was married in her youth and then divorced, says your God.

I have neglected you for a little while; but I will gather you together with great compassion.

I hid my back face from you for a little while in the time of indignation; but I have had compassion on you with eternal mercy, says the Lord your Redeemer.

For this shall be to me like the waters of Noah; for as I swore that the waters of Noah shall no more pass over the earth, so I have sworn that I shall no more be angry with you, and that I shall no more rebuke you.

For though the mountains shake and the hills crumble, yet my mercy will not depart from you, and my covenant of peace will not be shaken, says the Lord, who has compassion on you.

O afflicted one! agitated by the storm, deprived of consolation, behold, I will lay carbuncles for your stones, and I will establish you upon sapphires;

And I will make your windows of agate, and your gates shall be of rubies, and all your walls of precious stones.

Therefore all your children will be taught by the Lord, and peace will abound among your children.

You will be established in righteousness, you will be far from oppression, and you will fear nothing; you will be, I say, far from terror, for it will not come near you.

Behold, they will not fail to plot [against you], but it will not be from me; whoever plots against you will fall for love of you.

Behold, it is I who created the blacksmith blowing the coal in the fire, and shaping the tool for his work; and it is I who created the destroyer to scatter.

No weapons forged against you will prosper, and you will convict with malice every tongue that rises against you in judgment; this is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness from me, says the Lord.

Hello, all you who are thirsty, come to the waters; and you who have no money, come, buy and eat; come, I say, buy wine and milk without money and without any price.

Why do you spend money on things that do not nourish, and your labor on things that do not satisfy? Listen to me attentively, and you will eat what is good, and your soul will delight in the richness.

Incline your ear, and come to me; listen, and your soul shall live; and I will make with you an everlasting covenant, [namely] the unchanging gifts [promised] to David.

Behold, I have given him to be a witness to the peoples, to be a leader, and to give commandments to the peoples.

Behold, you shall call the nation which you did not know, and the nations which did not know you shall run to you, because of the Lord your God and of the Holy One of Israel, who has glorified you.

Seek the Lord while he may be found; call upon him while he is near.

Let the wicked forsake their ways and the unrighteous their thoughts, and let them turn to the Lord, and he will have mercy on them; and to our God, for he will freely pardon.

For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, says the Lord.

But as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways; and my thoughts than your thoughts.

For as the rain and the snow come down from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it produce and sprout, so that it gives seed to the sower, and bread to the eater;

So shall my word be that goes forth from my mouth: it shall not return to me empty, but it shall accomplish that which I have pleased, and prosper in the things for which I have sent it.

For you will go out with joy, and you will be led forth in peace; the mountains and hills will burst into song before you, and all the trees of the field will clap their hands.

Instead of the bush a fir tree will grow; and instead of the thornbush a myrtle will grow; and this will make known the name of the Lord, and it will be a perpetual sign, which will not be taken away.

Thus says the Lord; observe justice, and do what is right; for my salvation is ready to come; and my righteousness to be revealed.

O how blessed is the man who does this, and the son of man [who] keeps to it, observing the Sabbath so as not to profane it, and keeping his hands from doing any harm.

And let not the foreigner who has joined himself to the Lord speak, saying, "The Lord has completely separated me from his people"; and let not the eunuch say, "Behold, I am a dry tree."

For thus says the Lord concerning the eunuchs; those who keep my Sabbaths, and choose what pleases me, and keep my covenant;

I will give them in my house and within my walls a place and a name better than the name of son or daughter; I will give to each of them a perpetual reputation, which will not be taken away.

And as for the foreign children who have joined themselves to the Lord, to serve him, and to love the Name of the Lord, in order to be his servants, [namely] all those who keep the Sabbath so as not to profane it, and who hold fast to my covenant;

I will also bring them to my holy mountain, and I will give them joy in the house where they call upon me; their burnt offerings and sacrifices will be acceptable on my altar; for my house will be called a house of prayer for all peoples.

I will gather yet others to him besides those who are gathered there, says the Lord GOD, who gathers the exiles of Israel.

Beasts of the fields, beasts of the forests, come all to eat.

All his sentinels are blind; they know nothing; they are all mute dogs who cannot bark, sleeping and remaining lying down, and loving to slumber.

They are greedy dogs, who do not know what it is to be satiated; and they are shepherds who understand nothing; they have all turned to their own way, each to his dishonest gain in his own quarter, [saying]:

Come, I will get some wine and we will get drunk on beer; and tomorrow will be like today, even greater.

The righteous are dead, and no one takes it to heart; and the good are gathered, without anyone noticing, [without anyone considering] that the righteous have been gathered from the face of evil.

He will enter in peace, they will rest in their graves, [namely] whoever has walked before him.

But you children of the soothsayer, adulterous and lewd race, come here.

Whom have you mocked? Against whom have you opened your mouths, [and] stuck out your tongues? Are you not misbehaving children, and a false race?

You who are inflamed after oak trees, [and] under every green tree; and who slaughter children in the valleys, under the quarters of the rocks.

Your portion is among the smooth stones of the streams; these are your lot; you have also sprinkled them, you have offered them gifts; can I be content with these things?

You placed your bed on the high and lofty mountains, you even climbed them to make sacrifices.

And you put your memorial behind the door and [behind] the post, for you uncovered yourself far from me, and you went up, you widened your bed, and you made it [bigger] than these others did; you loved their bed, you took care of the good places.

You have journeyed to the King with precious ointments, and you have added perfume upon perfume; you have sent your embassies far away, and you have lowered yourself even to hell.

You have labored in the length of your journey, and you have not said, "It is done."

You have found strength in your hand, and because of this you have not grown weary.

And whom did you fear, whom did you dread, that you lied to me, and did not remember me, [and] did not care about me? Did I remain silent, even for so long, that you did not fear me?

I will declare your righteousness and your deeds, which will not benefit you.

Let those whom you gather deliver you when you cry out; but the wind will carry them all away, vanity will sweep them off their feet; but he who withdraws to me will inherit the land, and possess the mountain of my holiness.

And they will say: Raise up, raise up, prepare the ways, remove the obstacles from the way of my people.

For thus says he who is high and exalted, who dwells in eternity, and whose name is the Holy One: I will dwell in the high and holy place, and with him who is brokenhearted and humble in spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive those who are brokenhearted.

Because I will not argue forever, nor will I be indignant forever; for it is from me that the spirit is clothed, and it is I who made the souls.

Because of the iniquity of his dishonest gain I was indignant, and I struck him; I hid [my face], and I was indignant; but the stubborn man went away, [and followed] the way of his heart.

I saw his ways, and yet I healed him; I brought him back, and I restored his comforts, [namely], to those among them who are mourning.

I create what is spoken by the lips; peace, peace to him who is far away, and to him who is near, says the Lord, for I will heal him.

But the wicked are like the sea in its turmoil, when it cannot calm itself; and its waters throw up mire and mud.

There is no peace for the wicked, says my God.

Cry aloud, do not hold back, raise your voice like a trumpet, and declare to my people their iniquity, and to the house of Jacob their sins.

For they seek me every day, and delight to know my ways, like a nation that followed righteousness and did not forsake the judgment of its God; they inquire into righteous judgments and delight to draw near to God; [and then they say];

Why have we fasted, and you have not regarded it? Why have we afflicted our souls, and you have not cared? Behold, on the day of your fast you find your own will, and you demand all that by which you torment others.

Behold, you fast in order to sue and quarrel, and to strike with a wicked fist; you do not fast as this day [requires] that your voice may be heard from on high.

Is this the fast I have chosen, that man should afflict himself for a day? [Is it] by bowing his head like a reed, and by spreading sackcloth and ashes? Will you call this a fast, and a day acceptable to the Lord?

Is this not the fast I have chosen, that you loose the bonds of wickedness, that you untie the cords of the yoke, that you set the oppressed free, and that you break every yoke?

Do you not share your bread with the hungry, and bring the afflicted wanderers into your house? When you see a naked man, do you cover him, and do you not hide behind your flesh?

Then your light will break forth like the dawn of the day, and your healing will spring up immediately, your righteousness will go before you, and the glory of the Lord will be your rearguard.

Then you will pray, and the Lord will answer you; you will cry out, and he will say, "Here I am." If you remove the yoke from among you, and cease lifting your finger and speaking insults;

If you open your heart to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then your light will dawn in the darkness, and the darkness will be like the South.

And the Lord will guide you continually; he will satisfy your soul in great droughts, he will fatten your bones, and you will be like a watered garden, and like a spring whose waters do not fail.

And [people will come out] from you who will rebuild the places that have been desolate for a long time; you will restore the foundations [that have been ruined] for many generations; and you will be called the Repairer of Breaches, and the Straightener of Highways; so that people may inhabit [the land].

If you turn back your foot from the Sabbath, [you] who do your will on my holy day; and if you call the Sabbath your delight, and honorable what is holy to the Lord, and honor it by not going your own ways, not finding your own will, and not using [many] words;

Then you will find delight in the Lord, and I will cause you to ride over the high places of the earth, and I will give you to eat the inheritance of Jacob your father; for the mouth of the Lord has spoken.

Behold, the hand of the Lord is not shortened, that it cannot deliver; nor his ear is dulled, that it cannot hear.

But your iniquities have separated you from your God; and your sins have caused him to hide his face from you, so that he would not hear you.

For your hands are stained with blood, and your fingers with iniquity; your lips have spoken lies, [and] your tongue has uttered perversity.

There is no one who cries out for justice, and there is no one who pleads for truth; they trust in worthless things, and speak of vanity; they conceive of toil, and give birth to torment.

They hatched basilisk eggs, and they spun spider webs; whoever eats their eggs will die; and if they are crushed, a viper will come out.

Their fabrics will not be used to make clothing, nor will anyone cover themselves with their works; for their works are works of torment, and in their hands are acts of violence.

Their feet run to evil, and hasten to shed innocent blood; their thoughts are thoughts of torment; damage and calamity are in their ways.

They do not know the way of peace, and there is no justice in their ruts; they have become corrupt in their paths, and all who walk in them do not know peace.

That is why justice has departed from us, and righteousness does not come to us; we looked for light, but behold darkness; for splendor, but we walk in darkness.

We groped after the wall like blind people; we groped, I say, like those who are without eyes; we stumbled at midday as at dusk, [and we were] in the abundant places as [the dead] would be.

We all roar like bears, and we do not cease moaning like doves; we looked for judgment, but there is none; for deliverance, but it is far from us. For our transgressions have multiplied before you, and each of our sins has testified against us; because our transgressions are with us, and we know our iniquities; Who are to sin and lie against the Lord, to turn away from our God, to utter oppression and rebellion; to conceive and speak words of falsehood from the heart. That is why justice has turned away and righteousness has stood aloof; for truth has fallen through the streets, and uprightness has not entered them. Even truth has disappeared, and whoever turns away from evil is exposed to plunder; the Lord saw it, and it displeased him, because there is no justice. He also saw that there was no man [who upheld innocence] and he was astonished that no one stepped forward to break the deadlock; therefore his own arm delivered him, and his own righteousness sustained him. For he has put on righteousness as a breastplate, and the helmet of salvation was on his head; he has put on the garments of vengeance as a garment, and covered himself with zeal as with a cloak. As with retribution, and as when someone wants to repay, [namely] fury to his adversaries, and retribution to his enemies; he will thus repay the Islands. And they will fear the Name of the Lord from the West; and his glory from the rising of the Sun; for the enemy will come like a flood, [but] the Spirit of the Lord will raise the banner against him. And the Redeemer will come to Zion, and to those in Jacob who repent of their sin, says the Lord. And as for me, this is my covenant that I will make with them, says the Lord; my Spirit that is upon you, and my words that I have put in your mouth, will not depart from your mouth, nor from the mouth of your offspring, nor from the mouth of your offspring's offspring, says the Lord, from now on and forever. Arise, shine bright; for your light has come, and the glory of the Lord has risen upon you. For behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and thick darkness the peoples; but the Lord shall arise upon you, and his glory shall appear upon you. And the nations will walk in your light, and kings in the splendor that will rise upon you. Lift up your eyes to the surroundings, and look; all these have gathered together, they have come to you; your sons will come from afar, and your daughters will be nursed by nurses, [being carried] on the sides. Then you will see, and you will be enlightened, and your heart will be amazed and overflowing with joy, when the abundance of the sea has turned towards you, and the power of the nations has come to you. An abundance of camels will cover you; the camels of Midian and Hephaestus, and all those of Sheba will come, they will bring gold and frankincense, and proclaim the praises of the Lord. All the sheep of Kedar will be gathered to you, the sheep of Nebaioth will be for your service; they will be pleasing as offerings on my altar, and I will make the house of my glory magnificent. What are these flocks, thick as clouds, that fly like pigeons to their holes? For the islands will wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring your sons from afar, with their silver and gold, for the sake of the Name of the Lord your God, and of the Holy One of Israel, because he has glorified you. And the sons of foreigners will rebuild your walls, and their kings will be employed in your service; for I struck you in my fury, but I had pity on you in the time of my good pleasure. Your gates will also always be open; they will not be shut night or day, so that the forces of the nations may be brought to you, and their kings may be led there. For the nation and the kingdom that will not serve you will perish; and those nations will be reduced to utter desolation.

The glory of Lebanon will come to you, the fir, the elm, and the box together, to honor the place of my Sanctuary; and I will glorify the place of my feet.

Even the children of those who afflicted you will come bowing down to you; and all who despised you will prostrate themselves at your feet, and will call you, The City of the Lord, the Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

Instead of you being forsaken and hated, so that no one passed by [among you], I will raise you to eternal exaltation, [and] to joy that will be from generation to generation.

And you will suckle the milk of nations, and you will suckle at the breast of kings, and you will know that I am the Lord your Savior, and your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

I will bring gold instead of bronze, and I will bring silver instead of iron, and bronze instead of wood, and iron instead of stones; and I will make peace rule over you, and your tax collectors will be nothing but justice.

Violence will no longer be heard in your land, nor devastation or calamity in your regions, but you will call your walls Salvation, and your gates Praise.

You will no longer have the sun for light by day, nor will the brightness of the moon shine on you; but the Lord will be your everlasting light, and your God your glory.

Your sun will no longer set, and your moon will no longer wane, for the Lord will be your perpetual light, and your days of mourning will be over.

And as for your people, they shall all be righteous; they shall possess the earth forever; [namely] the branch of my plants, the work of my hands, to be glorified therein.

The small [family] will grow to a thousand [people], and the smallest will become a mighty nation. I am the Lord, I will hasten this in its time.

The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me, therefore the Lord has anointed me to proclaim good news to the meek, he has sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to those who are bound.

To proclaim the year of the Lord's favor and the day of our God's vengeance; to comfort all who mourn;

To announce to those in Zion who mourn, that splendor will be given to them instead of ashes; the oil of gladness instead of mourning; the mantle of praise instead of the spirit of despair; so that they will be called the oaks of righteousness, and the planting of the Lord, in which to boast.

And they will rebuild what has long been desolate, they will restore the places that were formerly desolate, and they will renew the desolate cities and the desolate places from age to age.

And foreigners will stay there, and will feed your sheep, and foreign children will be your plowmen and your vinedressers.

But you will be called priests of the Lord, and you will be named ministers of our God; you will eat the wealth of the nations, and you will boast of their glory.

Instead of the shame you have had, [the nations will have] double, and they will cry out that confusion is their portion; therefore they will possess double in their land, [and] have eternal joy.

For I am the Lord, who loves justice, [and] hates plunder for burnt offering; I will establish their work in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them.

And their offspring will be known among the nations, and those who come from them will be known among the peoples; all who see them will know that they are the offspring that the Lord has blessed.

I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, and my soul will exult in my God; for he has clothed me with garments of salvation, and covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decks himself with splendor, and as a bride adorns herself with her jewels.

For as the earth brings forth its bud, and as a garden causes the things sown in it to sprout, so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring up before all the nations.

For Zion's sake I will not remain still, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not be at rest until her righteousness shines forth like splendor, and her salvation like a lamp.

Then the nations will see your righteousness, and all the kings, your glory; and you will be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord will expressly declare. You will be an ornamental crown in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of your God.

You will no longer be called the Forsaken, nor will your land be called Desolate; but you will be called My Delight in Her; and your land, The Bride, for the Lord will take His pleasure in you, and your land will be married.

For as the young man marries the virgin, and as your children marry in your house, so your God will rejoice in you, with the joy that a husband has in his wife.

Jerusalem, I have posted watchmen on your walls all day and all night continually; they will not be silent. You who call upon the Lord, do not keep silent.

And do not cease to invoke him until he restores and restores Jerusalem to a state renowned throughout the earth.

The Lord has sworn by his right hand and by the arm of his might; if I give more of your wheat as food to your enemies, and if foreigners drink more of your [excellent] wine for which you have labored.

For those who have gathered the wheat will eat it and praise the Lord; and those who have collected [the wine] will drink it in the courts of my holiness.

Go through, go through the gates, [saying]; Prepare the way for the people, raise up, raise up the path, and remove the stones from it, and raise up the standard to the peoples.

Behold, the Lord has made this known to the ends of the earth; Say to the daughter of Zion, behold, your Savior is coming; behold, his reward is with him, and his reward goes before him.

And they will be called the holy people, the redeemed of the Lord, and you will be called the sought-after city, the city not abandoned.

Who is this who comes from Edom, from Bozrah, with clothes dyed red; this one who is magnificently adorned in his garment, walking according to the greatness of his strength? It is I who speak in righteousness, and who have all power to save.

Why is there red in your garment? And why are your clothes like the clothes of those who tread the winepress?

I have trodden the winepress alone, and no one from the peoples has been with me; yet I have walked upon them in my anger, and I have trampled them in my fury; and their blood has splashed on my garments, and I have soiled all my clothes.

For the day of vengeance is in my heart, and the year in which I must redeem my people has come.

So I looked, and there was no one to help me; and I was astonished, and there was no one to support me; but my arm saved me, and my fury sustained me.

So I trampled the peoples in my anger, and I made them drunk in my fury; and I struck down their strength to the ground.

I will mention the Lord's gifts, which are the Lord's praises, because of all the benefits the Lord has done for us; for great is the good of the house of Israel, which he has done for them according to his compassion, and according to the greatness of his gifts.

For he said; however, they are my people, children who will not degenerate; and he has been their Savior.

And in all their anguish he was in anguish, and the angel of his presence delivered them; he himself redeemed them by his love and his mercy, and he carried them, and lifted them up at all times.

But they rebelled and grieved the Spirit of his holiness; therefore he became their enemy and fought against them.

And they remembered the days of old, of Moses and his people. Where is he, they said, who brought them up out of the sea with the shepherds of his flock? Where is he who placed the Spirit of his holiness among them?

Who led them, being at the right hand of Moses, by the arm of his glory? Who divided the waters before them, so that he might acquire an everlasting name?

Who led them through the depths, [and] they did not stumble, any more than a horse in a place of pasture?

The Spirit of the Lord led them gently, like a beast going down into a plain; you led your people in this way, to acquire a glorious name for yourself.

Look down from heaven, and see from the dwelling place of your holiness and your glory. Where is your jealousy, and your strength, and the rousing emotion of your heart and your compassions, which have been restrained toward me?

Surely you are our Father, though Abraham did not acknowledge us, and Israel did not confess us; Eternal One, you are our Father, and your Name is our Redeemer from all times.

Why have you led us astray, O Lord, from your ways, and why have you alienated our hearts from your fear? Turn back to your servants, to the tribes of your inheritance.

Your holy people were in possession for only a short time; our enemies have trampled your Sanctuary.

We have been [like those] over whom you have not had dominion for a long time, and over whom your Name is not claimed.

At my command, that you would split the heavens and come down, and that the mountains would flow away from before you!

As a molten fire burns brightly, and as fire boils water, so that your name was revealed to your enemies, and the nations trembled because of your presence.

When you did the terrible things that we did not expect, you came down, and the mountains flowed away from before you.

And no ear has ever heard, nor has any eye seen, any God except you, who does such things for those who wait for him.

You came to meet the one who rejoiced and was well; they will remember you in your ways; behold, you were moved to indignation because we have sinned; [your compassions] are eternal, therefore we shall be saved.

But we have all become like something filthy, and all our righteous acts are like the filthiest rags; we have all fallen like a leaf, and our iniquities have swept us away like the wind.

And there is no one who claims your Name, who wakes up to remain firmly attached to you; therefore you have hidden your face from us, and you have made us melt by the power of our iniquities.

But now, O Eternal One! you [are] our Father; we are the clay, and you [are] the one who formed us, and we are all the work of your hand.

Lord, do not be excessively angry with us, and do not remember our iniquity forever. Behold, look, we pray to you, we are all your people.

Your holy cities have become a desert; Zion has become a desert, [and] Jerusalem a desolation.

The house of our sanctification and our magnificence, where our fathers praised you, was burned by fire, and there was nothing of all the things that were dear to us that was not desolate.

Eternal One, will you not restrain yourself after these things? And will you not cease? For you have grieved us greatly.

I made myself sought by those who did not ask for me, and I made myself found by those who did not seek me; I said to the nation that did not call on my name, "Here I am, here I am."

All day long I have stretched out my hands to the rebellious people, to those who walk in the wrong way, [namely] after their thoughts;

To the people who continually provoke me to my face, who sacrifice in gardens, and who burn incense on brick altars.
Those who dwell in the tombs, and spend the night in desolate places; who eat the flesh of swine, and who [have in] their vessels the juice of abominable things.
Those who say, "Depart from me, do not come near me, for I am holier than you," are like smoke to my nostrils, a burning fire all day long.
Behold, this is written before me; I will not remain silent about it, but I will reveal it, yes, I will reveal it within their midst.
[Namely] your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers together, says the Lord; who made incense on the mountains, and dishonored me on the hills; therefore I will measure out to them also in their bosom the wages of what they did at the beginning.

Thus says the Lord; as when wine is found in a bunch of grapes [to be squeezed], and one says, do not spoil it, for in it is a blessing; I will do the same for my servants, so that the whole may not be destroyed.
And I will raise up from the descendants of Jacob and Judah one who will inherit my mountains, and my chosen ones will inherit the land, and my servants will dwell there.
And Sharon will be for the huts of the small cattle, and the Valley of Hachor will be the resting place of the herd, for my people who have sought me.
But you who forsake the Lord, and forget my holy mountain, who prepare a table for the host of heaven, and provide sprinkling water to as much as can be counted;
I will also count you with the sword, and you will all bow down to be slaughtered;
because I called, and you did not answer; I spoke, and you did not listen; but you did what displeased me, and you chose things in which I took no pleasure.
Therefore, thus says the Lord GOD; behold, my servants shall eat, and you shall be hungry; behold, my servants shall drink, and you shall be thirsty; behold, my servants shall rejoice, and you shall be ashamed.
Behold, my servants shall rejoice with singing for the joy that they have in their hearts, but you shall cry out for the pain that you have in your hearts, and you shall wail because of the affliction of your spirit.
And you will leave your name to my chosen ones to use in the curses, and the Lord
Eternal will cause you to die; but he will call his servants by another name.
Whoever blesses himself on earth will bless himself by the God of Truth; and whoever swears on earth will swear by the God of Truth; for the anxieties of the past will be forgotten, and even hidden from my eyes.
For behold, I am going about to create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be remembered, nor shall they come to mind.
But rather you will rejoice and be glad forever in what I am about to create; for behold, I am about to create Jerusalem to be joyful, and its people to be a delight.

Therefore I will rejoice over Jerusalem, and be glad over my people; and no more will be heard the voice of weeping or the voice of crying in it.
From now on there will be no infant born a few days ago, nor an old man who does not live out his days; for he who dies at a hundred years [will be] still young; but the sinner who is a hundred years old will be cursed.
They will even build houses and live in them; they will plant vineyards and eat their fruit.
They will not build houses for another to live in; they will not plant [vines] for another to eat their fruit; for the days of my people will be like the days of the trees; and my chosen ones will continue the work of their hands.
They will no longer labor in vain, nor will they bear children to be exposed to terror; for they will be the offspring of the blessed of the Lord, and those who come from them will be with them.

And it will come to pass that before they cry out, I will answer them; and while they are still speaking, I will have already heard them.

The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox, and dust shall be the serpent's food; they shall not harm, nor destroy, in all my holy mountain, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord; the heavens are my throne, and the earth is my footstool: what kind of house would you build me, and what would be the place of my rest?

For my hand has made all these things, and all these things came into being through me, declares the Lord. But to whom shall I look? To him who is afflicted, and broken in spirit, and trembles at my word.

He who slaughters an ox is like killing a man; he who sacrifices a sheep is like cutting off a dog's throat; he who offers a cake is like offering a pig's blood; he who makes incense is like blessing an idol. But they have chosen their ways, and their souls have delighted in their abominations.

I too will watch for their deceptions, and I will bring upon them the things they fear; because I cried out, and there was no one who answered; I spoke, and they did not listen; because they did what displeased me, and chose the things in which I took no pleasure.

Listen to the word of the Lord, you who tremble at his word; your brothers who hate you and reject you as an abomination because of my name have said, "Let the Lord show his glory." He will be seen to your joy, but they will be ashamed.

A resounding sound comes from the city, a sound comes from the Temple, the sound of the Lord, repaying his enemies.

She gave birth before she felt the pains of childbirth; she was delivered of a male child before the pains of childbirth came to her.

Who ever heard of such a thing, and who ever saw anything like it? Could a country be brought forth in a day? Or could a nation be born all at once, as if Zion had given birth to her children as soon as she was in labor?

I who cause others to give birth, shall I not cause [Zion] to give birth? says the Lord; I who give offspring to others, shall I prevent it [from giving birth?] says your God.

Rejoice with Jerusalem, and be glad in her, all you who love her; all you who mourned over her, rejoice with her with great joy.

So that you may be nursed, and be satisfied at the breast of her consolations; so that you may suckle [the milk], and enjoy to your heart's content all kinds of her glory.

For thus says the Lord; behold, I will cause peace to flow to her like a river, and the glory of the nations like an overflowing stream; and you shall be nursed, carried on the hips, and made to play on the knees.

I will caress you to soothe you, as a mother caresses her child to soothe it; for you will be comforted in Jerusalem.

And you will see it, and your heart will rejoice, and your bones will sprout like grass; and the hand of the Lord will be known to his servants; but he will be moved with indignation against his enemies.

For behold, the Lord will come with fire, and his chariots will be like the storm, so that he may turn his anger into fury, and his rebuke into a flame of fire.

For the Lord will execute judgment on all flesh by fire and with his sword, and the number of those who will be put to death by the Lord will be great.

Those who sanctify and purify themselves in the midst of the gardens, one after another, who eat the flesh of pigs, and abominable things, [like] mice, will be consumed together, says the Lord.

But for me, [seeing] their works and their thoughts, [the time] has come to gather all nations and languages; they will come and see my glory.

For I will put a mark on them, and I will send those of them who are saved to the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, Lud (men of the bow), Tubal, and Javan, [and to] the distant islands that have not heard of my fame, nor seen my glory, and they will proclaim my glory among the nations.

And they shall bring all your brothers from all nations on horses, on chariots, and in litters, on mules, and on camels, as an offering to the Lord, to my holy mountain in Jerusalem, says the Lord, as when the children of Israel bring the offering in a clean vessel to the house of the Lord.

And I will even take some of them as priests, [and] as Levites, says the Lord.

For as the new heavens and the new earth that I am going to make will be established before me, says the Lord, so will your offspring and your name be established.

And it shall come to pass that from one new moon to the next, and from one Sabbath to the next, all flesh shall come to bow down before my face, says the Lord.

And they will go out and see the dead bodies of the men who have sinned against me; for their worm will not die, and their fire will not be quenched; and they will be despised by everyone.

The words of Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah, one of the priests who were at Hanathoth in the land of Benjamin;

To whom the word of the Lord came in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign;

Which was also [addressed] to him in the days of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, King of Judah, until the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, son of Josiah, King of Judah, [namely] until the time when Jerusalem was carried away, which occurred in the fifth month.

The word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, before you were born I consecrated you; I appointed you as a prophet to the nations.

And I answered: Ha! ha! Lord Eternal! behold, I do not know how to speak; for I am a child.

And the Lord said to me, "Do not say, 'I am a child,' for you shall go wherever I send you, and you shall say all that I command you."

Do not be afraid [to show yourself] before them, for I am with you to deliver you, says the Lord.

And the Lord put out his hand and touched my mouth, and said to me, "Behold, I have put my words in your mouth."

Look, I have appointed you this day over the nations and over the kingdoms, to uproot and to tear down, to ruin and to destroy; to build and to plant.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying, "What do you see, Jeremiah?" And I answered, "I see an almond branch."

And the Lord said to me: you have seen well; for I hasten to execute my word.

Then the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying, "What do you see?" And I answered, "I see a boiling pot, its front turned toward the north."

And the Lord said to me: evil will be discovered from the north upon all the inhabitants of this land.

For behold, I am going to summon all the families of the kingdoms of the north, says the Lord; and they shall come, and each shall set up his throne at the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, and near all its walls around it, and near all the cities of Judah.

And I will pronounce my judgments upon them, because of all their wickedness, by which they have forsaken me, and have made incense to other gods, and have bowed down to the work of their own hands.

So you, lift up your loins, and stand up, and tell them all the things that I shall command you; do not be afraid [to show yourself] before them, lest I cause you to be cut to pieces before their eyes.

For behold, I have today established you as a fortified city, and as an iron pillar, and as bronze walls, against all this land, that is, against the kings of Judah, against the leaders of the land, against its priests, and against the people of the land.

And they will fight against you, but they will not be stronger than you; for I am with you, says the Lord, to deliver you.

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Go and proclaim this, when those in Jerusalem hear it, and say: This is what the Lord says: I remember the compassion I had for you in your youth, and the love I showed you as a bride, when you followed me into the wilderness, into a land that is not sown.

Israel was holy to the Lord, the firstfruits of his harvest; all who devoured it were guilty, and harm came to them, says the Lord.

Listen to the word of the Lord, O house of Jacob, and all you families of the house of Israel:

Thus says the Lord: What injustice did your fathers find in me, that they went far from me, that they walked after vanity, and became vanity?

And they did not say, "Where is the Lord who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, who led us through a desert, through a land of barren wastes and mountains, through a land of drought and the shadow of death, through a land where no man had passed through and where no one had lived?"

For I brought you into the land of Carmel, so that you might eat its fruits and its bounty; but as soon as you entered it, you defiled my land and made my inheritance abominable.

The priests did not say, "Where is the Lord?" And those who explained the law did not know me; and the shepherds transgressed against me, and the prophets prophesied by Bahal, and followed things that profit nothing.

For this cause also I will plead with you, says the Lord, and I will plead with your children's children.

For go through the islands of Kittim, and see; send to Kedar, and consider well, and see if there has been anything of this kind.

Has any nation changed its gods, which are not gods at all? But my people have exchanged their glory for that which profits nothing.

Be astonished at this, O heavens; be horrified, and be exceedingly dry, says the Lord.

For my people have done two evils; they have forsaken me, the spring of living water, and have dug their own cisterns, broken cisterns that cannot hold water.

Is Israel a slave, or a slave born in the house? Why then was he given over to plunder?

The lion cubs roared and cried out at him; and their land was laid waste, their cities were burned, so that no one lives there.

Even the children of Noph and Taphnes will break the top of your head.

Have you not done this to yourself because you forsook the Lord your God, in the days when he led you along the way?

And now, what do you gain by going to Egypt to drink water from Sihor? And what do you gain by going to Assyria to drink water from the river?

Your wickedness will punish you, and your debauchery will rebuke you, so that you may know and see that it is an evil and bitter thing that you have forsaken the Lord your God, and that you are not filled with my fear, says the Lord, the Lord of hosts.

Because long ago I broke your yoke and tore off your bonds, you said, "I will no longer be a servant"; therefore you have wandered about, prostituting yourself on every high hill and under every green tree.

But I myself had planted you [like] a choice vine, of which the whole plant was true; how then have you changed into branches of a corrupt vine?

Even if you wash yourself with lye and use much soap, your iniquity will still be marked before me, says the Lord GOD.

How can you say: I have not defiled myself, I have not gone after the Bahalins? Look at your train in the valley, recognize what you have done, light dromedary, which does not keep to a sure road.

A wild donkey, accustomed to the desert, sniffing the wind at her pleasure; and who could make her turn back? None of those who seek her will tire of her, she will be found in her month.

Hold back your foot, lest you walk barefoot, and your throat, lest you become thirsty. But you said: it is done. No; for I love foreigners, and I will go after them.

As the thief is ashamed when he is caught, so are the people of the house of Israel ashamed, they, their kings, their leaders, their priests, and their prophets; They say to the wood, "You are my father," and to the stone, "You begot me." For they have turned their backs to me, and not their faces; then they say in the time of their calamity, "Arise, and deliver us."

And where are your gods that you made for yourselves? Let them rise up to see if they will deliver you in the time of calamity; for, O Judah! you have had as many gods as cities.

Why would you plead against me? You have all sinned against me, says the Lord.

I struck your children in vain, they received no instruction; your sword devoured your Prophets, like a lion that ravages [everything].

O race! Consider for yourselves the word of the Lord, [who says]: Have I been a desert to Israel? Have I been a land of complete darkness? Why did my people say, "We are the masters; we will not come to you again"?

Will the virgin forget her ornament? Will the bride forget her finery? But my people have forgotten me for countless days.

Why do you feign such disdain in your search for lovers, to the point that you have even taught your ways to women of ill repute?

Even in the folds of your robe was found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents, whom you had not surprised in a state of rupture, but it was found there for all these things.

And you say: I am innocent; however, his anger has turned away from me. Behold, I am going to argue with you about what you have said: I have not sinned.

Why are you making such a fuss, changing your path? You will be as confused in Egypt as you were confused in Assyria.

You will even leave here with your hands on your head, because the Lord has rejected the foundations of your trust, and you will have no prosperity through them.

It is said: If a man leaves his wife, and she separates from him and marries another husband, will [the first husband] return to her again? Would not the whole land be defiled? But you have played the harlot with many lovers; yet return to me, says the Lord.

Lift up your eyes to the high places, and see what place you have not given yourself over to; you stood by the roads, like an Arab in the desert; and you have defiled the land by your debauchery, and by your malice.

That is why the rains were withheld, and there was no rain in the last season, and you have the face of a debauched woman; you did not want to be ashamed.

Will you not now cry out to me: My Father, you are the leader of my youth?

Will he hold [his anger] forever, and will he keep it for me forever? Behold, you have spoken thus, and you have done these evils, as much as you could.

Therefore the Lord said to me in the days of King Josiah: Have you not seen what stubborn Israel has done? She has gone up on every high mountain and under every green tree, and there she has prostituted herself.

And when she had done all these things, I said: return to me; but she did not return; which her treacherous sister Judah saw;

And I saw that for all the occasions on which stubborn Israel had committed adultery, I sent her away and gave her her certificates of divorce; however Judah her faithless sister had no fear, but went away, and she too became a prostitute.

And it came to pass that, through her ease in giving herself up, she defiled the land and committed adultery with stone and wood.

And yet for all this, Judah, her treacherous sister, has not returned to me with all her heart, but with lies, says the Lord.

The Lord therefore said to me: "Rebellious Israel has proven more righteous than treacherous Judah."

Go now, and proclaim these words toward the north; and say: Repent, stubborn Israel, says the Lord; I will not fall my wrath upon you; for I am merciful, says the Lord, and I will not keep it against you forever.

But acknowledge your iniquity; for you have sinned against the Lord your God, and you have prostituted yourself to foreigners under every green tree, and have not obeyed my voice, says the Lord.

"Repent, you stubborn children," says the Lord, "for I have a right of husband over you; and I will take from you one from a town, and two from a lineage, and I will bring you into Zion."

And I will give you shepherds after my own heart, who will feed you with knowledge and understanding.

And it will come to pass that when you have multiplied and increased in the earth, in those days, says the Lord, they will no longer say, "The Ark of the covenant of the Lord"; it will no longer enter their hearts, they will not mention it, they will not visit it anymore, and it will not be done anymore.

At that time Jerusalem will be called the Throne of the Lord, and all nations will gather to it in Jerusalem in the Name of the Lord, and they will no longer follow the hardness of their evil hearts.

In those days the house of Judah will walk with the house of Israel, and they will come together from the land of the north to the land that I gave as an inheritance to your fathers.

For I said: how shall I put you among [my] children, and give you the desirable land, the inheritance of the nobles of the armies of the nations? And I said: you will cry out to me, my Father, and you will not turn away from me.

Surely, as a woman sins against her husband, so you have sinned against me, O house of Israel, says the Lord.

A voice was heard on the high places, the weeping of the children of Israel, because they have perverted their way, and have forgotten the Lord their God.

Rebellious children, repent, and I will remedy your rebellions. Behold, we come to you; for you are the Lord our God.

Surely, the hills and the multitude of mountains are of no use; but in the Lord our God is the deliverance of Israel.

For shame has consumed from our youth the work of our fathers, their sheep and their oxen, their sons and their daughters.

We will lie in shame, and our disgrace will cover us, because we have sinned against the Lord our God, we and our fathers, from our youth to this day; and we have not obeyed the voice of the Lord our God.

Israel, if you repent, says the Lord, return to me; if you remove your abominations from before me, you will no longer wander about.

Then you will swear truthfully, and in judgment, and in righteousness, by the Lord, as surely as he lives; and the nations will bless themselves in him, and glory in him.

For thus says the Lord to those of Judah and Jerusalem: Clear the ground for yourselves, and do not sow among thorns.

Men of Judah, and you inhabitants of Jerusalem, be circumcised to the Lord, and remove the foreskins of your hearts; lest my wrath go forth like fire, and burn with no one to quench it, because of the wickedness of your deeds.

Make known in Judah, and publish in Jerusalem, and say: blow the trumpet throughout the land, shout, [and] gather together; and say: assemble, and we will enter the fortified cities.

Raise your banners toward Zion, withdraw in force, and do not stop; for I am going to bring evil and great calamity from the north.

The lion has come out of the cave, and the destroyer of nations has departed; he has come out of his place to make your land a desolation, your cities will be ruined, so that no one will live in them.

Therefore put on sackcloth, wail, and scream; for the fierce anger of the Lord has not turned away from us.

And it will come to pass on that day, says the Lord, that the heart of the king and the heart of the princes will be appalled, and the priests will be astonished, and the prophets will be utterly confounded.

That is why I said: Ha! Ha! Lord Eternal! Yes, certainly you have deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying: you will have peace; and the sword has come to the soul.

At that time it will be said to this people and to Jerusalem: a wind clearing the high places [blows] in the desert, in the way of the daughter of my people, not to winnow or to cleanse:

A wind more vehement than these will come against me, and I will now put them on trial.

Behold, he will come up like clouds, and his chariots will be like a whirlwind, his horses will be swifter than eagles; woe to us! for we are destroyed.

Jerusalem, cleanse your heart of your wickedness, so that you may be delivered; how long will the thoughts of your injustice dwell within you?

For the cry brings news of Dan, and proclaims torment from the mountain of Ephraim.

Make it heard among the nations, behold, proclaim against Jerusalem, [and say]: the besiegers come from a distant land, and they have hurled their cry against the cities of Judah.

They surrounded her like guards of the field, because she rebelled against me, says the Lord.

Your conduct and your actions have produced these things for you; such was your malice; because it was a bitter thing; surely it will touch you to the heart.

My belly! My belly! I am in pain; the inside of my heart, my heart beats, I cannot be silent; for O my soul! you have heard the sound of the trumpet, and the loud resounding of the alarm.

One ruin calls forth another, for the whole earth is destroyed; my tents were immediately destroyed, [and] my pavilions in a moment.

How long will I see the sign, and hear the sound of the horn?

For my people are foolish; they have not known me; they are foolish children, and have no understanding; they are skilled at doing evil, but they do not know how to do good.

I looked at the earth, and behold, it was formless and empty; and at the heavens, there was no light.

I looked at the mountains, and behold, they are shaking; and all the hills are overturned.

I looked, and behold, there was not a single man, and all the birds of the heavens had fled from him.

I looked, and behold, Carmel is a desert, and all its cities have been ruined by the Lord, and by the fierceness of his anger.

For thus says the Lord: the whole earth shall be desolate; yet I will not make it entirely.

Therefore the earth will mourn, and the heavens above will be darkened, because I have spoken it; I have thought it, I will not repent, nor will I revoke it.

Every city flees because of the noise of the horsemen and those who shoot the bow; they have entered the thick woods and climbed the rocks; every city is deserted and no one lives in it.

And when you have been destroyed, what will you do? Though you dress in crimson, and adorn yourself with ornaments of gold, and cover your face with makeup, you beautify yourself in vain; your lovers have rejected you, they will seek your life. For I have heard a cry like that of a woman in labor, and an anguish like that of a woman in labor with her firstborn; it is the cry of the daughter of Zion; she sighs, she stretches out her hands, [saying]: Woe is me now, for my soul faints because of the murderers.

Walk through the streets of Jerusalem, and look now, and know, and inquire through its squares, if you will find there a good man, if there is anyone who does what is right, and who seeks faithfulness; and I will forgive the [city].

But if they say, "As the Lord lives," they swear even more falsely.

O Lord, do not your eyes look to faithfulness? You struck them, but they felt no pain; you consumed them, but they refused to receive instruction; they hardened their faces more than a rock; they refused to repent.

And I said: surely it is only the most abject, who have shown themselves to be fools, because they do not know the way of the Lord, the justice of their God.

I will go therefore to the greatest, and I will speak to them; for they know the way of the Lord, the justice of their God; but they themselves have also broken the yoke, [and] shattered the bonds.

That is why the lion of the forest has killed them, the evening wolf has ravaged them, [and] the leopard is lying in wait for their cities; whoever goes out of them will be torn to pieces, for their sins are multiplied, [and] their rebellions are strengthened.

How can I forgive you for this? Your sons have forsaken me, and they swear by those who are not gods; I have fed them, and they have committed adultery and gone in droves to the house of the prostitute.

They are like well-fed horses; when they get up in the morning, each one neighs after his neighbor's wife.

Should I not punish these things, says the Lord? And should not my soul take revenge on such a nation?

Go up on its walls, and break them down; but do not complete them entirely; remove its battlements; for they do not belong to the Lord.

Because the house of Israel and the house of Judah have acted very unfaithfully against me, says the Lord.

They have denied the Lord, and said: this will not happen, and evil will not come upon us, we will not see the sword or famine.

And the prophets are as fleeting as the wind, and there is no speech in them; so it will be done to them.

Therefore, this is what the Lord, the God of hosts, says: Because you have spoken this word, behold, I am going to put my words in your mouth to be like fire in it, and this people shall be like wood, and this fire shall consume them.

House of Israel, behold, I am going to bring against you a nation from a distant country, says the Lord, a strong nation, an ancient nation, a nation whose language you will not know, nor understand what they will say.

His quiver is like an open tomb, [and] they are all valiant.

And she will eat your harvest and your bread, which your sons and daughters should eat; she will eat your sheep and your cattle; she will eat [the fruits] of your vines and your fig trees, and will reduce to poverty by the sword your fortified cities, in which you trusted.

However, in those days, says the Lord, I will not completely destroy you.

And it will come to pass that you will say: Why has the Lord our God done all these things to us? And you will say thus to them: As you have forsaken me, [and] served the gods of the foreigner in your land, so shall you be enslaved to foreigners in a land which is not yours.

Make this known in the house of Jacob, and proclaim it in Judah, saying:

Listen now to this, you foolish people, who have no understanding, who have eyes but do not see, and ears but do not hear.

"Do you not fear me?" declares the Lord. "Do you not be terrified in my presence? I have set the sand as the boundary of the sea by a perpetual ordinance, and it shall not pass over. Its waves may surge, but they shall not prevail; they may roar, but they shall not cross it."

But this people has a stubborn and rebellious heart; they have turned back and gone away.

And they did not say in their hearts: Let us now fear the Lord our God, who gives us the early and late rains, [and who] keeps for us the appointed weeks for harvest. Your iniquities have turned these things away, and your sins have prevented good from coming to you.

For among my people there have been found wicked men who lie in wait, like one who sets traps; they set a machine of destruction to ensnare men.

As the cage is filled with birds, so their houses are filled with fraud, and by this means they have grown larger and richer.

They are fattened and adorned; they have even surpassed the deeds of the wicked; they do not do justice to anyone, not even to the orphan, and they prosper, and do not uphold the rights of the poor.

Should I not punish these things, says the Lord? And should not my soul take revenge on such a nation?

Something astonishing and horrifying has happened on earth:

For the prophets prophesy lies, and the priests rule by them; and my people have loved it. What then will you do when it comes to an end?

Children of Benjamin, flee [in troops] from the midst of Jerusalem, and sound the trumpet at Tekoah, and raise a signal of fire at Bethkerem; for evil and great destruction has appeared from the north.

I had made the daughter of Zion like a woman who does not leave the house, and who is delicate.

The shepherds with their flocks will come against them, they will pitch their tents around them, each will graze in his own quarter.

Prepare for battle against her, rise up, and let us go up at high noon. Woe to us, for the day is declining, and the shadows of evening are lengthening.

Arise, let us ascend by night, and destroy his palaces.

For thus says the Lord of hosts: Cut down trees, and build siege works against Jerusalem; it is the city which must be visited, for it is entirely plunder within.

As the well makes its waters bubble, so she makes her malice bubble; in her presence, one hears continually nothing but violence and damage, with diseases and wounds.

Jerusalem, be warned, lest my affection depart from you, and I make you a desolate, [and] an uninhabitable land.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: The remnant of Israel shall be gleaned like a vineyard; put your hand back into the baskets like a grape gatherer.

To whom shall I speak, [and] whom shall I summon, that they may listen? Behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hear; behold, the word of the Lord is an insult to them, they take no pleasure in it.

Therefore I am filled with the wrath of the Lord, and I am weary of holding it back, so I will pour it out on the children in the street, and on the assembly of young men; even the husband will be taken with the wife, and the old man with the one who is full of years.

And their houses will return to the foreigners, the fields, and the women as well; for I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of the land, says the Lord. Because from the least of them to the greatest, each one indulges in dishonest gain, both the Prophet and the Priest, all behave falsely.

And they lightly bandaged the wound of the daughter of my people, saying, "Peace, peace," when there was no peace.

Were they ashamed of what they committed? They felt no shame, nor did they know what it was to blush; therefore they will fall upon those who have fallen, they will fall at the time I visit them, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: Stand at the roads, and look, and inquire concerning the paths of former ages, which is the good way, and walk in it, and you will find rest for your souls; and they answered: we will not walk in it.

I had also set up watchmen over you [who said]: listen for the sound of the trumpet; but they answered: we will not listen.

Therefore, you nations, listen, and you, assembly, know what is between them.

Listen, earth: behold, I am going to bring disaster upon this people, [namely] the fruit of their thoughts, because they have not heeded my words, and have rejected my Law.

Why offer me incense from Seba, and sweet-smelling cane from a distant land? Your burnt offerings do not please me, and your sacrifices are not acceptable to me.

Therefore this is what the Lord says: "I am going to put stumbling blocks in this people, so that both fathers and children, neighbor and neighbor, will stumble together, and they will all perish."

Thus says the Lord: Behold, a people shall come from the land of the north, and a great nation shall be roused from the depths of the earth.

They will take up the bow and the banner; they will be cruel and have no compassion; their voice will roar like the sea, and they will be mounted on horses, each of them arrayed as a man of war against you, daughter of Zion!

Will we have heard the noise? Our hands will become weak; anguish will seize us, and a labor like that of childbirth.

Do not go out into the fields, and do not go along the road, for the sword of the enemy [and] terror is all around.

Daughter of my people, put on sackcloth and wallow in ashes; mourn as for an only son, and make a bitter lamentation, for the destroyer will come suddenly upon us.

I have established you as a stronghold and a fortress in the midst of my people, so that you may know and understand their ways.

They are all stubborn, and more than stubborn, and they go around slandering; they are like bronze and iron; they are all people who destroy one another.

The bellows are burned, the lead is consumed by the fire, the founder has melted in vain, for the bad ones have not been separated.

They will be called: Rejected Silver; for the Lord has rejected them.

The word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying:

Stand at the gate of the house of the Lord, and cry out this word there, and say: All you men of Judah who enter through these gates to worship before the Lord, hear the word of the Lord;

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: amend your life and your actions, and I will make you dwell in this place.

Do not trust in deceptive words, saying, "This is the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord."

But seriously correct your conduct and actions, and apply yourselves to doing justice to those who plead against one another.

Do not wrong the foreigner, the orphan, or the widow; do not shed innocent blood in this place, and do not follow foreign gods to your own destruction.

And I will cause you to dwell in this place, in the land that I gave to your fathers, from one century to the next.

Behold, you rely on deceptive words, without any profit.

Do you not steal? Do you not kill? Do you not commit adultery? Do you not swear falsely? Do you not burn incense to Bahal? Do you not go after foreign gods, whom you do not know?

However you come and present yourselves before me in this house, on which my Name is claimed, and you say: we were delivered to do all these abominations.

Has not this house, on which my Name is claimed before your eyes, become a den of robbers? And behold, I myself have seen it, says the Lord.

But now go to my place, which was in Shiloh, where I had put my Name from the beginning, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel. Now therefore, because you do all these things, says the Lord, and I have spoken to you, rising early in the morning and speaking, but you have not listened; I have called you, but you have not answered:

I will do to this house, on which my Name is claimed, and on which you trust, and to this place which I gave to you and to your fathers, as I did to Shiloh.

And I will drive you out from before my face, as I drove out all your brothers, with all the descendants of Ephraim.

Therefore, do not pray for this people, nor cry out, nor make a plea for them, nor intercede with me; for I will not listen to you.

Do you not see what they are doing in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

The sons gather the wood, and the fathers light the fire, and the women knead the dough to make cakes for the Queen of Heaven; and to sprinkle the foreign gods, in order to provoke me to anger.

Is what they provoke me to anger against me? says the Lord. Is it not against themselves, to the shame of their faces?

Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: behold, my anger and my wrath shall pour forth upon this place, upon man and beast, upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the earth; my anger shall burn, and not be quenched.

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices, and eat the flesh.

For I did not speak to your fathers, nor did I give them any commandment concerning burnt offerings and sacrifices, on the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt. But this is what I commanded them, saying: Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and you shall be my people; and walk in all the ways that I have commanded you, so that you may prosper.

But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ear; but they followed [other] advice, and the hardness of their evil heart, they went away and did not return to me.

From the day your fathers left the land of Egypt until today, I have sent you all my servants the Prophets, rising every morning and sending them.

But they did not listen to me, nor did they incline their ears, but they stiffened their necks; they did worse than their fathers.

You will say all these words to them, but they will not listen to you; and you will shout after them, but they will not answer you.

Therefore you shall say to them: [This is] the nation which did not obey the voice of the Lord their God, nor did it receive instruction; faithfulness has perished, and has been cut off from their mouth.

Cut off your hair, [O Jerusalem!] and throw it away, and raise your lament aloud on the high places; for the Lord has rejected and forsaken the generation against which he is very angry.

Because the children of Judah have done what displeases me, says the Lord, they have put their abominations in this house, which is called by my Name, in order to defile it.

And they built the high places of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to burn their sons and daughters in the fire, which I did not command, nor did I ever think of doing.

Therefore, behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when it shall no longer be called Topheth, nor the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter, and they shall bury [the dead] in Topheth, because there shall be no [other] place.

And the dead bodies of this people will be food for the birds of the air and the beasts of the earth, with no one to frighten them away.

I will also put an end to the sounds of joy and gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, from the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem, for the land will be desolate.

At that time, says the Lord, the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of its princes, the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, will be thrown out of their tombs.

And they shall be spread out before the sun, and before the moon, and before all the host of heaven, which are things which they loved, which they served, and after which they walked; which they sought, and before which they bowed down; they shall not be gathered or buried, they shall be like dung upon the face of the earth.

And death will be more desirable than life to all those who remain of this wicked race, those, [I say], who remain in all the places where I have driven them, says the Lord of hosts.

You shall say to them, therefore, this is what the Lord says: If we fall, will we not rise again? And if we turn aside, will we not return [to the way]?

Why then has this people, [the inhabitants of] Jerusalem, gone astray in continual error? They have stubbornly devoted themselves to deceit and have refused to repent.

I paid attention and listened, but no one speaks according to justice, there is no one who repents of their sin, saying, "What have I done?" They all return to the things that drive them, like a horse that rushes headlong into battle.

Even the stork in the heavens knows its seasons, the turtledove and the swallow, and the crane, observe the time that they should come; but my people have not known the right of the Lord.

How can you say: we are wise, and the Law of the Lord is with us? Behold, they have certainly acted falsely, and the pen of the Scribes [is a pen] of falsehood.

The wise men were confounded, they were terrified and captured, for they rejected the word of the Lord; and in what way could they be wise?

Therefore I will give their wives to others, and their fields to people who will possess them as an inheritance; for from the least to the greatest, everyone is greedy for dishonest gain, both prophet and priest, all act falsely.

And they bandaged the wound of the daughter of my people lightly, saying, "Peace, peace," when there was no peace.

Were they ashamed of what they committed as an abomination? They felt no shame, nor did they know what it was to blush; therefore they will fall upon those who have fallen; they will fall at the time I visit them, says the Lord.

When I gather them, I will consume them entirely, says the Lord; there is not a cluster of grapes on the vines; and there is not a fig on the fig tree, the leaf is withered, and what I have given them will be carried away with them.

Why are we stopping? Assemble yourselves, and let us enter the fortified cities, and let us rest there, for the Lord our God has silenced us and given us gall water to drink, because we have sinned against the Lord.

We look for peace, but there is nothing good; we look for a time of healing, but here is trouble.

Dan heard the snorting of his horses, and the whole land trembled at the sound of the neighing of his powerful horses; they came and devoured the land and everything in it, the city and those who lived in it.

Moreover, behold, I am going to send against you serpents, basilisks, against which there is no enchantment, and they will bite you, says the Lord.

I wanted to gather strength to bear the pain, but my heart is languishing inside me.

This is the voice of the cry of the daughter of my people [who cries] from a distant land; is not the Lord in Zion? Is not her King in her midst? But why have they provoked me to anger with their carved images, with the vanities of foreigners?

The harvest is past; the summer is over, and we have not been delivered.

I am bitterly grieved because of the calamity of the daughter of my people, I am in mourning, I am very sorry.

Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there? Why then is the wound of the daughter of my people not healed?

Would to God that my head were like a reservoir of water, and that my eyes were a living fountain of tears, and I would weep day and night for the mortally wounded of the daughter of my people!

Would to God that I had a stranger's cabin in the desert, I would abandon my people and withdraw from them; for they are all adulterers and a band of treacherous men. They have stretched out their tongues, [which were like] their bows to shoot out lies, and they have strengthened themselves in the earth against faithfulness, because they have gone from wickedness to wickedness, and have not acknowledged me, says the Lord.

Beware of your close friends, and trust no brother; for every brother makes a business of supplanting, and every close friend goes slandering.

And everyone mocks their close friend, and they do not speak truthfully; they have trained their tongues to speak lies, they torment themselves exceedingly to do evil.

Your dwelling is in the midst of deceit; they refuse because of deceit to acknowledge me, says the Lord.

Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty says: "I am going to melt them and test them; for how else can I deal with the daughter of my people?"

Their tongue is a bolt of fire, it utters deceit; each has peace in his mouth with his close friend, but in his heart he lays traps for him.

Should I not punish them for these things? says the Lord. Should not my soul take vengeance on such a nation?

I will lift up my voice with tears, and I will utter a loud lamentation for the mountains, and a complaint for the huts in the wilderness, because they have been burned down, so that no one passes through them, and the sound of the herds is no longer heard; the birds of the air and the cattle have fled from them, they have gone away.

And I will reduce Jerusalem to heaps of ruins, it will be a den of dragons, and I will destroy the cities of Judah, so that no one will live in them.

Who is the wise man who hears this, and who is the one to whom the mouth of the Lord has spoken, who reports it, [and says] why the land is desolate, and burned up like a desert, with no one passing through it?

The Lord therefore said: because they have forsaken my Law, which I had set before them, and have not listened to my voice, nor walked according to it;

But because they followed the hardness of their hearts, and the Bahalins; which their fathers taught them;

Therefore, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am going to give this people wormwood to eat, and I will give them gall water to drink.

I will scatter them among the nations that neither they nor their fathers have known; and I will send the sword after them until I have consumed them.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: seek, and call for mourners, that they may come, and summon the wise women, that they may come;

Let them hasten, and let them utter a loud lamentation over us, and let our eyes melt into tears and let our eyelids overflow with tears.

For a voice of lamentation has been heard from Zion, [saying]: How have we been destroyed? We are greatly ashamed, because we have abandoned the land, because our tents have cast us out.

Therefore, you women, listen to the word of the Lord, and let your ear receive the word from his mouth; and teach your daughters to lament, and each one her companion to make a dirge.

For death has come up through our windows, it has entered our palaces, to exterminate the children, [so that there are none left] in the streets; and the young men, [so that there are none left] in the squares.

Say: Thus says the Lord: Even the dead bodies of men shall be spread like dung on the surface of the fields, and like a handful of ears of grain after the reapers, which no one gathers.

Thus says the Lord: Let not the wise man boast of his wisdom, nor the strong man boast of his strength, nor the rich man boast of his riches;

But let him who boasts, boast in that he has understanding, and knows me; for I am the Lord, who shows mercy, and judgment, and righteousness on the earth; for I delight in these things, says the Lord.

"The days are coming," says the Lord, "when I will punish every circumcised man who still has his foreskin."

Egypt, Judah, Edom, the children of Hammon, Moab, and all those who are at the ends of the corners, dwelling in the desert; for all the nations have the foreskin, and all the house of Israel has the foreskin of the heart.

House of Israel, listen to the word that the Lord has spoken concerning you.

Thus says the Lord: Do not learn the ways of the nations, and do not be dismayed at the signs of the heavens, lest the nations be dismayed at them.

For the statutes of the peoples are nothing but vanity, because wood is cut down from the forest to be put into practice with the axe;

Then they embellish it with silver and gold, and hold it in place with nails and hammer blows, so that it will not move.

They are made straight like a palm tree, and they do not speak; they are carried out of necessity, because they cannot walk; do not fear them, for they do no harm, and it is not in their power to do good.

There is no [god] like you, O Eternal One! You are great, and your Name is great in power.

Who would not fear you, King of the nations, for this is due to you? Because among all the wisest of the nations, and in all their kingdoms, there is none like you.

And they are all together stupefied and have gone mad; the wood teaches them nothing but vanities.

The silver, which is laid out in plates, is brought from Tarshish, and the gold is brought from Uphaz, to be worked by the craftsman and by the hands of the refiner; and purple and scarlet are their garments; all these things are the work of skilled people.

But the Lord is the God of truth, the living God, and the eternal King; the earth will tremble at his anger, and the nations will not be able to endure his indignation.

You shall say to them: the gods who did not make the heavens and the earth shall perish from the earth and from under the heavens.

[But the Lord] is the one who made the earth by his power, who formed the world to be lived in by his wisdom, and who stretched out the heavens by his understanding;

As soon as he utters his voice, there is a great roar of waters in the heavens; after he makes the vapors rise from the ends of the earth, he makes the lightning flash before the rain, and he brings the wind out of his storehouses.

Every man is shown to be stupid in his knowledge; every metalworker is put to shame by the carved images; for what they make is falsehood, and there is no breath in them.

They are nothing but vanity, and a work fit to deceive; they will perish at the time of their visitation.

Jacob's portion is not like these things; for he is the one who formed all things, and Israel is his allotted inheritance; his name is the Lord of hosts.

You who live in a stronghold, take your merchandise out of the country.

For thus says the Lord: Behold, I am going to throw away the inhabitants of the land at this time, as with a sling, and I will make them so cramped that they will find it.

Woe to me, [they will say], because of my wound, my wound is painful. But I said: Be that as it may, it is a disease that I must suffer.

My tent is ruined; all my ropes are broken; my children have departed from me and are no more; there is no one left to pitch my tent or raise my pavilions.

For the shepherds are foolish, and have not sought the Lord; therefore they have not acted wisely, and all their pastures have been destroyed.

Behold, a rumor of certain news has come, with great excitement from the land of the North, to ravage the cities of Judah, and to make it a den of dragons.

Eternal One, I know that the way of man is not in himself, and that it is not in the power of man who walks to direct his steps.

O Lord! discipline me, but [be] in due measure, [and] not in your anger, lest you reduce me to nothing.

Pour out your wrath on the nations that do not know you, and on the families that do not call on your name; for they have devoured Jacob, they have devoured and consumed him, and they have desolated his pleasant dwelling place.

The word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying:

Listen to the words of this covenant, and speak them to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

You shall therefore say to them: Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Cursed be the man who will not listen to the words of this covenant;

Which I commanded your fathers on the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the iron furnace, saying: Obey my voice, and do all the things that I have commanded you, and you shall be my people, and I shall be your God.

So that I may confirm the oath I swore to your ancestors, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is today. And I answered, and said, Amen! O Lord!

Then the Lord said to me, "Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying, 'Hear the words of this covenant and do them;

For I expressly summoned your fathers from the day I brought them up out of the land of Egypt until this day, rising early in the morning and summoning them, saying: Obey my voice.

But they did not listen to it, nor did they incline their ear to it, but each walked according to the hardness of their evil heart; therefore I have brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to keep, and which they have not kept.

And the Lord said to me: there is a conspiracy among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

They have returned to the iniquities of their ancestors, who refused to listen to my words, and who went after other gods to serve them; the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant, which I made with their fathers.

Therefore this is what the Lord says: "Behold, I am going to bring on them a disaster from which they cannot escape; they will cry out to me, but I will not answer them."

And the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go away and cry out to the gods to whom they make their incense; but those gods will not deliver them at all in the time of their affliction.

For, O Judah! you have had as many gods as cities; and you, Jerusalem, have erected as many altars to shameful things as you have streets, altars, [I say], to make incense to Bahal.

Therefore, do not make any request for this people, nor cry out, nor make any prayer for them; for I will not answer them when they cry out to me in their calamity.

My beloved, what is this that so many people use in my house to plot their schemes?

The holy flesh is carried away from you, and yet when you do evil, you rejoice.

The Lord had called your name, Green and beautiful Olive Tree, because of the beautiful fruit; but with a loud noise he kindled fire on it, and its branches were broken.

For the Lord of hosts, who planted you, has pronounced evil against you, because of the wickedness of the house of Israel and the house of Judah, which they committed against themselves, to the point of provoking me to anger by making incense to Baal.

And the Lord made him known to me, and I knew him; and you showed me their deeds. But I, like a lamb, [or like] an ox that is led to the slaughter, did not know that they had plotted against me, [saying]: Let us destroy the tree with its fruit, and exterminate it from the earth of the living, and let its name be remembered no more.

But you, Lord of hosts, who judges justly, and who searches the heart and mind, let me see the vengeance you will take on them; for I have revealed my cause to you. Therefore this is what the Lord says concerning the people of Hanathoth, who seek your life, and who say, "Do not prophesy in the name of the Lord anymore, and you will not die by our hands."

Therefore, this is what the Lord Almighty says: "I will punish them; their young men will die by the sword, their sons and daughters by famine; And nothing will remain of them, for I will bring evil upon the people of Hanathoth in the year of their visitation.

Lord, when I contend with you, you will be found righteous; yet I will contend with you. Why has the way of the wicked prospered, and why do all the faithless live at ease?

You planted them, and they took root; they grew up and bore fruit. You are near their mouths, but far from their loins.

But, O Lord! you have known me, you have seen me, and you have searched my heart toward you. Draw them out like sheep led to the slaughter, and prepare them for the day of the slaughter.

How long will the earth mourn, and the grass of every field wither because of the wickedness of those who dwell in the earth? The beasts and the birds have been consumed [by the famine], because [these wicked ones] said: We will not see our end.

If you have run with the foot soldiers and they have wearied you, how will you mingle with the horses? And if you thought you were safe in a land of peace, what will you do when the Jordan River swells?

Surely your own brothers and your father's house have acted treacherously against you; they themselves have shouted at you loudly; do not believe them, even if they speak kindly to you.

I abandoned my home, I left my inheritance, what my soul loved most I delivered into the hands of its enemies.

My inheritance has been like a lion in the forest; it has roared against me, that is why I hate it.

Will my inheritance then be like the painted bird? Are not the birds around it? Come, gather together, all you beasts of the field, come to devour it.

Several shepherds have spoiled my vineyard, they have trampled my portion, they have reduced my desirable portion into a dreadful desert.

They ravaged it, and it mourned before me; the whole earth was ravaged, because there is no one who pays attention to it.

The destroyers have come to all the high places that are in the desert, for the sword of the Lord devours from one end of the land to the other; there is no peace for any flesh.

They have sown wheat, and they will reap thorns; they have toiled, [and] they will gain nothing; you will be ashamed of your income because of the fierce anger of the Lord.

Thus says the Lord concerning all my wicked neighbors, who lay hands on the inheritance that I gave to my people Israel: behold, I will uproot them from their land, and I will uproot the house of Judah from among them.

But it will come to pass that after I have uprooted them, I will again have compassion on them, and I will return each to their inheritance, and each to their own quarter.

And it shall come to pass that if they learn well the ways of my people, to swear by my Name, as the Lord lives, as they have taught my people to swear by Bahal, they shall be edified among my people.

But if they do not listen, I will uproot such a nation entirely, and [conquer] it, says the Lord.

This is what the Lord said to me: Go and buy yourself a linen belt and put it around your waist, but do not put it in the water.

So I bought a belt according to the word of the Lord, and put it around my waist.

And the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying:

Take the belt you bought, which is around your waist, and get up, and go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole in a rock.

So I went away and hid her in the Euphrates, as the Lord had commanded me.

And it came to pass that several days later the Lord said to me, "Arise, and go to the Euphrates, and take from there the belt which I commanded you to hide there."

And I went to the Euphrates, I dug; and I took up the belt from the place where I had hidden it, and behold, the belt was rotten, and was no longer good for anything.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Thus says the Lord: I will thus rot the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jerusalem.

[The pride] of this very wicked people, who refuse to listen to my words, and who walk according to the hardness of their heart, and go after other gods to serve them, and to bow down before them, so that it will be like this belt, which is good for nothing.

For as a belt is fastened around a man's waist, so I had bound to myself all the house of Israel and all the house of Judah, says the Lord, that they might be my people, my fame, my praise, and my glory; but they did not listen.

So you shall say to them this word: Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: every ship shall be filled with wine; and they shall say to you: do we not know that every ship shall be filled with wine?

But you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am going to make all the inhabitants of this land drunk, and the kings who sit on David's throne for his sake, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

And I will break them one against another, fathers and children together, says the Lord; I will have no compassion for them, I will not spare them, and I will have no pity on them, lest I destroy them.

Listen and pay attention, do not be proud, for the Lord has spoken.

Give glory to the Lord your God before he brings darkness, and before your feet stumble on the mountains where it is not bright; you will look for light, and he will turn it into a shadow of death, and reduce it to darkness.

If you do not listen to this, my soul will weep in secret because of [your] pride, and my eye will shed abundant tears, even melt into tears, because the flock of the Lord will have been taken captive.

Tell the King and the Regent: humble yourselves, and sit [on the ashes], for your magnificent crown will fall from your heads.

The cities of the South are closed, and there is no one to open them; all Judah is carried into captivity, it is universally carried away.

Lift up your eyes, and see those who come from the north. Where is the pasture that was given to you, and your magnificent flock?

What will you say when he punishes you? For you taught them against yourself, to be superior to you; will not pains seize you, as they seize a woman in childbirth?

If you say in your heart, "Why have these things happened to me?" It is because of the greatness of your iniquity that your garments have been pulled up, [and] your heels have been pressed close.

Would the Moor change his skin, and the leopard his spots? Could you also do some good, you who have only been taught to do evil?

That is why I will scatter them like stubble, which is blown here and there by the desert wind.

This is your lot, and the portion I have measured out for you, says the Lord; because you have forgotten me and trusted in lies,

Because of this I have pulled your clothes up over your face, and your shame will be revealed.

Your adulteries and your neighing, the enormity of your prostitution is on the hills, in the fields, I have seen your abominations; woe to you, Jerusalem, will you not be cleansed? How long will this last?

The word of the Lord, which came to Jeremiah, concerning what the rains had been withheld.

Judea mourned, and its gates were in a pitiful state. They all lay mourning on the ground, and the cry of Jerusalem rose up to heaven.

And the distinguished people sent the least of them into the water; they came to the hollow places, they found no water there, and they returned with their empty vessels; they were made ashamed and confused, and they covered their heads.

Because the earth cracked open because there was no rain in the land; the farmers were put to shame, [and] they covered their heads.

Even the doe gave birth to her fawn in the field and abandoned it, because there was no grass.

And the wild donkeys stood on the high places, they drew the air like dragons; their eyes are consumed, because there is no grass.

Eternal One, if our iniquities testify against us, act for the sake of your Name, for our rebellions are many; it is against you that we have sinned.

You who are the hope of Israel, [and] its deliverer in times of distress, why should you be in the land like a stranger, and like a traveler who turns away to spend the night?

Why should you be like a man astonished, and like a strong man who cannot deliver?

Yet you are in our midst, O Lord! and your Name is invoked upon us; do not abandon us.

The Lord said this to this people, because they loved to wander about like this, and did not restrain their feet, the Lord did not take pleasure in them; now he will remember their iniquities and punish their sins.

Then the Lord said to me: do not make any petition on behalf of this people.

When they fast, I will not listen to their cry, and when they offer burnt offerings and grain offerings, I will not be pleased with them; but I will consume them with the sword, and with famine, and with plague.

And I said: Ah! Ah! Lord Eternal! Behold, the Prophets say to them: You shall not see the sword, and you shall not have famine, but I will give you sure peace in this place.

And the Lord said to me, "These prophets are prophesying lies in my name. I have not sent them, nor have I appointed them, nor have I spoken to them. They are prophesying false visions to you, divinations of nothing, and the delusions of their own minds."

Therefore, this is what the Lord says concerning the prophets who prophesy in my name, but whom I did not send, and who say, "Sword and famine will not be in this land": those prophets will be consumed by the sword and by famine.

And the people to whom they prophesied will be thrown out into the streets of Jerusalem because of famine and sword; and there will be no one to bury them, nor their wives, their sons and their daughters, and I will pour out their wickedness upon them.

You shall therefore say to them this word: let my eyes overflow with tears night and day, and let them not cease; for the virgin, daughter of my people, has been greatly mistreated, the wound is very painful.

If I go out to the fields, behold, people are slain by the sword; and if I enter the city, behold, the pangs of famine; even the Prophet and the Priest have run through the land, and they do not know where they are.

Have you utterly rejected Judah? And does your soul despise Zion? Why have you struck us so that there is no healing? We look for peace, but there is no good; and for a time of healing, but behold, turmoil.

Eternal One, we acknowledge our wickedness, [and] the iniquity of our fathers; for we have sinned against you.

Do not reject us because of your Name, and do not expose to reproach the throne of your glory; remember your covenant with us, [and] do not break it.

Among the vanities of the nations, are there any that make it rain, and do the heavens give light showers? Is it not you who do it, O Lord our God? Therefore we will wait for you; for it is you who have done all these things.

And the Lord said to me, "Even if Moses and Samuel were to stand before me, I would not have affection for this people; drive them out from before me, and let them go out."

If they ask you, "Where shall we go out?" you shall answer them, "Thus says the Lord: those who are destined for death will go to death; those destined for the sword will go to the sword; those destined for famine will go to famine; and those destined for captivity will go into captivity."

I will also establish on them four kinds of [punishments], says the Lord, the sword to kill, and the dogs to drag, and the birds of the air, and the beasts of the earth to devour and destroy.

And I will hand them over to be tormented by all the kingdoms of the earth, because of Manasseh son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, for the things he did in Jerusalem.

For who would be moved with compassion for you, Jerusalem? Or who would come to offer condolences to you? Or who would turn away to inquire about your prosperity?

You have forsaken me, says the Lord, and have gone backward; therefore I will stretch out my hand against you and destroy you; I am weary of repenting.

I will winnow them with a winnowing fork at the gates of the land; I have devastated [and] destroyed my people, and they have not turned aside from their way.

I have multiplied her widows more than the sand of the sea, I have brought upon the mother of their youth a destroyer at midday, I have suddenly brought down upon her the enemy and terrors.

She who had borne seven has grown faint, she has given up her spirit, her sun has set while it was still day, she has been made ashamed and confused; and I will give her remnant to the sword before their enemies, says the Lord.

Woe to me, O my mother! that you bore me to be a man of contention, and a man of quarrel to all the land; I have bound myself to no one, and no one has bound themselves to me, yet everyone curses and despises me.

[Then the Lord said:] Will not those who remain of you prosper? And will I not cause the enemy to come against you in the time of calamity and distress?

Will iron wear down the iron of the North Wind, and steel?

I will give up your riches and treasures to plunder, without paying a price for them; and this because of all your sins, and even throughout all your lands.

And I will make your enemies pass through a land you do not know, for the fire has been kindled in my anger, it will be kindled upon you.

Eternal One, you know me, remember me, and visit me, and avenge me on those who persecute me; do not take me away when you have long delayed your anger; know that I have suffered reproach for love of you.

Were your words found? I ate them [immediately]; and your word was joyful to me, and it was the gladness of my heart; for your Name is called upon me, O Eternal God of hosts.

I did not sit at the gathering of mockers, nor did I rejoice there; but I sat alone because of your hand, because you filled me with indignation.

Why is my pain unending, and my wound beyond hope? It refuses to be healed; are you like a deceitful thing? Like waters that do not last?

Therefore this is what the Lord says: If you turn back, I will bring you back, and you will stand before me; and if you separate the precious from the worthless, you will be like my mouth; let them turn back to you, but you must not turn back to them.

And I will make you a strong wall of steel against this people; they will fight against you, but they will not prevail against you, for I am with you to protect you and to deliver you, says the Lord.

And I will deliver you from the hand of the wicked, and redeem you from the hand of the terrible.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

You shall not take a wife, nor shall you have sons or daughters in this place.

For thus says the Lord concerning the sons and daughters who will be born in this place, and concerning their mothers who will bear them, and concerning the fathers who will beget them in this land;

They will die of very painful diseases; they will not be mourned, nor buried, but they will be on the surface of the earth like dung, and they will be consumed by the sword and by famine, and their dead bodies will be food for the birds of the air, and for the beasts of the earth.

Even so, this is what the Lord says: Do not enter any house of mourning, nor go to wail or grieve for them; for I have withdrawn from this people, says the Lord, my peace, my mercy, and my compassion.

Both great and small will die in this land; they will not be buried, nor will they be mourned, and no one will cut themselves or shave for them.

They shall not be given [bread] in mourning to comfort any of them concerning the dead; nor shall they be given to drink from the cup of consolation for their father or for their mother.

Therefore you shall not enter any house of feasting to sit with them to eat or drink.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am going to put an end from this place before your eyes and in your days, to the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

And it will come to pass that when you have spoken all these words to this people, they will say to you: Why has the Lord pronounced all this great evil against us? And what is our iniquity, and what sin have we committed against the Lord our God?

And you shall say to them: because your fathers forsook me, says the Lord, and went after other gods, and served them, and bowed down to them, and forsook me, and did not keep my Law,

And you have done even worse than your fathers; for behold, each of you walks after the hardness of his evil heart, so as not to listen to me;

Because of this I will transport you from this land to a land neither you nor your ancestors have known, and there you will be enslaved day and night to other gods, because I have shown you no favor.

Nevertheless, behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when they will no longer say: As the Lord lives, who brought the children of Israel up out of the land of Egypt;

But the Lord lives, who brought the children of Israel up from the land of the north, and from all the countries to which he had driven them; after I brought them back to their own land, which I gave to their fathers.

"Behold, I will summon many fishermen," says the Lord, "and they shall catch them; and afterward I will summon many hunters, who shall chase them through all the mountains, and through all the hills, and through all the holes in the rocks.”

 For my eyes are upon all their ways, which are not hidden from me; nor is their iniquity concealed from my eyes.
 But firstly I will repay them double for their iniquity and their sin, because they have defiled my land with their abominable sacrifices, and have filled my inheritance with their abominations.
 Eternal One, who are my strength and my power, and my refuge in the day of distress, the nations will come to you from the ends of the earth, and will say: Surely our fathers inherited falsehood and vanity, and things which do not profit.
 Will man make gods for himself? Who, however, are not gods.
 Therefore, behold, I will make known to them this time, I will make known to them my hand and my strength, and they shall know that my Name is the Lord.
 The sin of Judah is written with an iron chisel, [and] with a diamond point; it is engraved on the tablet of their heart, and on the horns of their altars.
 So that their sons will remember their altars, and their groves, beside the green trees on the high hills.
 Mountaineer, I will give over the fields your riches [and] all your treasures to plunder; your high places [are full] of sin in all your lands.
 And you, and [those who are] with you, will leave vacant the inheritance that I had given you, and I will make you slaves to your enemies, in a land that you do not know, because you have kindled a fire in my anger; [and] it will burn forever.
 Thus says the Lord: Cursed is the man who trusts in man, and makes flesh his arm, and whose heart departs from the Lord.
 For he will be like heather in a wasteland, and he will not perceive when good comes; but he will dwell in the desert in dry places, in a salt land and not inhabited.
 Blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord, and whose trust is in the Lord.
 For it will be like a tree planted by the waters, which sends out its roots by the flowing water; when the heat comes, it will not be afraid; and its leaf will be green, it will not be troubled in the year of drought, nor will it cease to bear fruit.
 The heart is cunning, and desperately wicked above all things; who can know it?
 I am the Lord, who searches the heart and tests the mind, to reward each person according to their ways and the fruit of their deeds.
 He who acquires riches without observing justice is like a partridge [that] hatches what it has not laid; he will leave them in the midst of his days, and in the end he will be found foolish.
 The place of our Sanctuary is a throne of glory, a high place exalted from the beginning.
 Eternal One, who is the hope of Israel, all those who forsake you will be put to shame; those who turn away from me will be written in the ground, because they have forsaken the spring of living water, the Eternal One.
 Eternal One, heal me, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved; for you are my praise.
 These people are saying to me, “Where is the word of the Lord? Let it come now!”
 But I have not advanced more than a shepherd after you, and I have not desired the day of extreme affliction, you know that; and what came out of my lips was before you.
 Do not be afraid of me, you are my refuge in the day of evil.
 Let those who persecute me be ashamed, but let me not be ashamed; let them be terrified, but let me not be terrified; bring upon them the day of evil, and overwhelm them with a double plague.
 Thus said the Lord to me: Go, and stand at the gate of the people, through which the kings of Judah enter, and through which they go out; and at all the gates of Jerusalem.
 And say to them: Hear the word of the Lord, O kings of Judah, and all you [men] of Judah, and all you inhabitants of Jerusalem who enter through these gates;

Thus says the Lord: Take heed to your souls, and do not carry any burden on the Sabbath day, nor bring them through the gates of Jerusalem.
And do not carry out any burden from your houses on the Sabbath day, nor do any work, but keep the Sabbath day holy, as I commanded your fathers.
But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ears, but they stiffened their necks, so as not to listen, nor to receive instruction.
It will therefore come to pass if you listen carefully to me, says the Lord, so that you do not bring any burden through the gates of this city on the Sabbath day, and if you keep the Sabbath day holy, so that you do no work on that day;
Let the kings and the leaders, those who sit on the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they and the leaders of them, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, enter through the gates of this city; and this city shall be inhabited forever.
People will also come from the cities of Judah, from around Jerusalem, from the land of Benjamin, from the countryside, from the mountains, and from the South, and will bring burnt offerings, sacrifices, grain offerings, and incense; they will also bring peace offerings to the house of the Lord.
But if you do not listen to me to keep the Sabbath day holy, and not to carry any burden, nor bring any through the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day, I will set fire to its gates, it will consume the palaces of Jerusalem, and it will not be quenched.
This word came from the Lord to Jeremiah, saying:
Get up, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will make you hear my words.
So I went down to a potter's house, and there he was, doing his work, sitting on his saddle.
And the vessel which he made from the clay which was in his hand was spoiled, and he made yet another vessel, as it seemed good to him to do.
Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:
House of Israel, can I not do to you as this potter has done? says the Lord. Behold, as clay is in the hand of a potter, so are you in my hand, house of Israel.
In an instant I will speak against a nation, and against a kingdom, to uproot, to demolish, and to destroy;
But if that nation against which I have spoken turns away from the evil it has done, I will also repent of the evil I had intended to do to it.
And if in an instant I speak of a nation and of a kingdom, to build it up and to plant it;
And if this nation does what displeases me, so that it does not listen to my voice, I will also repent of the good that I had said I would do to it.
Now therefore speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying:
Thus says the Lord: Behold, I plan evil against you and devise a plan against you; therefore now each of you abandon your evil way, and change your way and your actions.
And they answered: there is no more hope; therefore we will follow our thoughts, and each of us will do according to the hardness of his evil heart.
Therefore, this is what the Lord says: Ask the nations now, who has heard of such things? The virgin of Israel has done a very great thing.
Shall we not abandon the snow of Lebanon for the rock of the field? And shall we not leave the waters that are not natural, and that are cold, [even] that they flow?
But my people have forgotten me, and have made perfumes for what is only vanity, and have made them stumble in their ways, to [make them turn away] from the ancient paths, to walk in the paths of a way that is not beaten;
To bring upon their country perpetual desolation and disgrace; [so that] whoever passes by will be astonished and shake their head.
I will scatter them before the enemy, as by the east wind; I will turn my back on them on the day of their calamity.

And they said, "Come, let us plot some schemes against Jeremiah; for the law will not perish with the priest, nor counsel with the wise, nor speech with the prophet; come, let us strike him with our tongues, and let us pay no attention to any of his words."

Eternal One, hear me, and listen to the voice of those who plead against me. Will evil be repaid for good? For they have dug a pit for my soul. Remember that I came before you to speak for their good, and to turn away your great wrath from them.

Therefore, give their children over to famine, and shed their blood by the sword; let their wives be childless and widowed, and let their husbands be put to death; and let their young men be killed with the sword in battle.

Let the cry be heard from their houses when you suddenly bring troops against them; because they have dug a pit to capture me, and have spread nets at my feet.

But you know, O Lord, that all their counsel is against me to put me to death; do not be appeased concerning their iniquity, and do not blot out their sin from before your face, but let them fall before your eyes; act against them in the time of your anger.

Thus says the Lord: Go, and buy a potter's clay jar, and [take] some of the elders of the people, and some of the elders of the priests;

And go out to the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is near the entrance of the eastern gate, and proclaim there the words that I shall tell you.

Say, O kings of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem, hear the word of the Lord: This is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: I am about to bring such disaster on this place that everyone who hears about it will hear an alarm.

Because they have abandoned me, and have profaned this place, and have burned incense to other gods, which neither they, nor their fathers, nor the Kings of Judah knew, and because they have filled this place with the blood of the innocent;

And that they have built high places of Bahal, in order to burn their sons in the fire to make burnt offerings to Bahal, which I have not commanded, nor spoken of, nor conceived of;

Therefore, behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when this place shall no longer be called Topheth, nor the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter.

And I will destroy the council of Judah and Jerusalem in this place, and I will cause them to fall by the sword in the presence of their enemies, and in the hand of those who seek their lives; and I will give their dead bodies to be eaten by the birds of the air and the beasts of the earth.

I will destroy this city and cover it with shame; everyone who passes by it will be astonished and will insult it because of all its plagues.

And I will make them eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters; and each one will eat the flesh of his companion during the siege, and in the extremity to which their enemies, and those who seek their life, will reduce them.

Then you will break the bottle in the presence of those who went with you;

And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: I will break this people and this city, as one breaks a potter's vessel, which cannot be welded, and they shall be buried in Topheth, because there will be no other place to bury them.

I will do this to this place, says the Lord, and to its inhabitants; so that I will reduce this city to the same state as Topheth;

And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the Kings of Judah shall be defiled, like the place of Topheth, because of all the houses on the roofs of which they made incense to all the host of heaven, and sprinkled to other gods.

Then Jeremiah came from Topheth, where the Lord had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the courtyard of the house of the Lord and said to all the people:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am going to bring upon this city, and upon all its cities, all the evil that I have pronounced against it, because they have stiffened their necks, not to listen to my words. Then Pashur, son of Immer the Priest, who was provost [and] leader in the house of the Lord, heard Jeremiah prophesying these things. And Pashur struck the Prophet Jeremiah, and put him in the prison which is at the upper gate of Benjamin, in the house of the Lord. And it happened the very next day that Pashur brought Jeremiah out of the prison, and Jeremiah said to him: The Lord has not called your name Pashur, but Magor-missabib. For thus says the Lord: behold, I am going to deliver you and all your friends to terror, who shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and your eyes shall see it; I will deliver all those of Judah into the hand of the King of Babylon, who shall carry them off to Babylon, and strike them with the sword. And I will deliver all the riches of this city, and all its work, and all that it has of precious things, I will deliver, I say, all the treasures of the Kings of Judah, into the hands of their enemies, who will plunder them, take them away, and carry them off to Babylon. And you, Pashur, and all the inhabitants of your house, will go into captivity; you will go to Babylon, there you will die, and there you will be buried, you and all your friends, to whom you prophesied lies. O Eternal One! You sought me, and I was drawn to you; you were stronger than I, and you prevailed; I am an object of mockery all day long; everyone mocks me. For since I have spoken, I have done nothing but cry out, shout violence and plunder, because the word of the Lord has been turned against me into reproach and mockery all day long. That is why I said: I will not mention him anymore, and I will not speak in his name anymore; but there was in my heart [as] a burning fire shut up in my bones; I am weary of bearing it, and I can do no more. For I have heard the insults of many, and fear has seized me on all sides. "Tell us," they say, "and we will tell you." All those who are at peace with me are watching for my downfall, saying, "Perhaps he will be deceived; then we will prevail and take revenge on him." But the Lord is with me like a mighty and awesome man; therefore those who persecute me will be overthrown, they will not prevail, they will be put to shame; for they have not been prudent; it will be an everlasting confusion, [which] will never be forgotten. Therefore, Lord of hosts, who searches the righteous, who sees the heart and the mind, let me see the vengeance that you will take; for I have revealed my cause to you. Sing to the Lord, praise the Lord; for he has delivered the souls of the poor from the hand of the wicked. Cursed be the day on which I was born; may the day on which my mother bore me not be blessed. Cursed be the man who brought good news to my father, saying, "A male child is born to you," and who made him so happy. May that man be like the cities that the Lord overthrew without repenting; may he hear the cry in the morning, and the loud tumbling at noonday. Why was I not made to die in my mother's womb? Why was my mother not my tomb, and why did her womb not conceive [without] ever giving birth. Why was I born only to see pain and boredom, and for my days to be wasted in shame? The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, when King Zedekiah sent Pashur son of Malkijah and Zephaniah son of Mahashiah the priest to him, saying: Inquire now of the Lord for us; for Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon is fighting against us; perhaps the Lord will act for us according to all his wonders, and will remove him from us. And Jeremiah said to them: you shall say this to Zedekiah:

Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Behold, I am going to bring back from outside the wall the weapons of war which are in your hand, with which you fight against the King of Babylon and against the Chaldeans who are besieging you, and I will gather them in the midst of this city.

And I will fight against you with an outstretched hand, and with a mighty arm, with anger, with zeal, and with great indignation.

And I will strike the inhabitants of this city, both men and beasts; [and] they will die with a great mortality.

And after this, says the Lord, I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his servants, and the people, and those who remain in this city of death, of the sword, and of famine, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those who seek their lives; and he will strike them with the edge of the sword, he will not spare them, he will have no compassion, he will have no pity.

You shall also say to this people: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death.

Anyone who remains in this city will die by the sword, or by famine, or by plague, but whoever leaves it and surrenders to the Chaldeans who are besieging you will live, and his life will be his prize.

For I have set my face against this city in evil and not in good, says the Lord, it will be given into the hand of the King of Babylon, and he will burn it with fire.

And as for the house of the King of Judah, hear the word of the Lord.

House of David, this is what the Lord says: Administer justice in the morning, and deliver the plundered from the hand of the oppressor, lest my wrath go out like fire and burn with no one to quench it, because of the evil of your deeds.

"Behold, I am against you, you who dwell in the valley, [and who are] the rock of the flat land," says the Lord, "you who say, 'Who will come down against us and enter our dwellings?'"

And I will punish you according to the fruit of your actions, says the Lord; and I will kindle a fire in its forest, which will consume everything around it.

Thus says the Lord: Go down to the house of the King of Judah, and speak this word there.

You shall say then: Hear the word of the Lord, O King of Judah! You sit on the throne of David, you and your servants, and your people, who enter through these gates.

Thus says the Lord: execute judgment and justice, and deliver him who has been plundered from the hand of him who wrongs him; do not trample the fatherless, nor the stranger, nor the widow; and do not use violence, and do not shed innocent blood in this place.

For if you indeed put this word into practice, then the kings who sit in David's place on his throne, riding on chariots and on horses, will enter through the gates of this house, they and their servants, and their people.

But if you do not listen to these words, I have sworn by myself, says the Lord, that this house will be reduced to desolation.

For thus says the Lord concerning the house of the King of Judah: You are to me a Gilead, [and] the summit of Lebanon, [but] unless I reduce you to a desert, and to cities not inhabited.

I will prepare destroyers against you, each with his weapons, who will cut down your exquisite cedars and throw them into the fire;

And many nations will pass by this city, and each will say to his companion, "Why has the Lord done this to this great city?"

And it will be said: it is because they abandoned the covenant of the Lord their God, and bowed down to other gods and served them.

Do not weep for the one who has died, nor mourn for him; but weep bitterly for him who departs, for he will not return, nor see again the land of his birth.

For thus says the Lord concerning Sallum son of Josiah, King of Judah, who reigned in place of Josiah his father, [and] who went out of this place, he shall not return there again.

But he will die in the place to which he was transported, and will never see that country again.

Woe to him who builds his house by injustice, and its floors without straightness, who uses his neighbor for nothing, and does not give him the wages of his labor.

Who says: I will build myself a large house with well-ventilated floors and windows; it is paneled with cedar and painted with vermilion.

Will you reign, that you mingle among the cedars? Did not your father eat and drink? When he executed judgment and justice, then he prospered.

He judged the cause of the afflicted and the poor, and so he prospered; was this not knowing me? says the Lord.

But your eyes and your heart are devoted only to your dishonest gain, to shedding innocent blood, to doing wrong, and to oppressing.

Therefore, this is what the Lord says concerning Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah: They will not grieve for him, [saying]: Alas, my brother! and alas, my sister!

They will not grieve for him, [saying]: Alas, Lord! and, alas, his magnificence!

He will be buried in the grave of a donkey, being dragged away, and thrown beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

Go up to Lebanon, and cry out, throw down your voice in Bashan, and cry out in the passages, because all your lovers have been torn to pieces.

I spoke to you during your great prosperity, [but] you said: I will not listen; such [is] your course from your youth, that you have not listened to my voice.

The wind will fill all your shepherds, and your lovers will go into captivity; surely you will then be ashamed and confused because of all your malice.

You stand in Lebanon, and you make your nest in the cedars, oh how you will be an object of compassion when the trenches come to you, [and] your pain, like that of a woman in childbirth.

As surely as I live, says the Lord, even if Chonah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, were a signet ring in my right hand, I would pull him out of there.

And I will deliver him into the hand of those who seek life, and into the hand of those whose presence you fear, and into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldeans.

And I will cast you and your mother who gave you birth into another country, to which you were not born, and there you will die.

And as for the country they desire to return to, they will not return.

Is this Chonja a despised [and] broken idol? Is he a vessel with nothing lovable about it? Why were he and his posterity cast there, cast, I say, into a land they do not know?

O earth! earth! earth! hear the word of the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: Write that this person is childless, that he is a man who will not prosper in his days, and that there will not be a man of his offspring who prospers, and who will sit on the throne of David, or who will rule over Judah.

Woe to the shepherds who destroy and scatter the flock of my pasture, says the Lord!

Therefore this is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says concerning the shepherds who tend my people: You have scattered my sheep and driven them away and have not visited them; behold, I am going to punish you for the evil of your deeds, says the Lord.

But I will gather the rest of my sheep from all the countries to which I have driven them, and will bring them back to their pastures, and they will be fruitful and multiply.

I will also appoint shepherds over them who will tend them, and they will no longer be afraid or dismayed, and not one will be missing, says the Lord.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord, "when I will raise up for David a righteous Branch, who will reign as king and will do good and just things in the earth."

In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell securely; and this is the name by which he will be called: The Lord Our Righteousness.

Therefore, behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when they will no longer say: As the Lord lives, who brought the children of Israel up out of the land of Egypt; But the Lord lives, who has brought up and restored the descendants of the house of Israel from the land toward the north, and from all the countries to which I had driven them, and they will live in their own land.

Because of the Prophets my heart is broken within me, all my bones tremble; I am like a drunken man, and like a man overcome by wine, because of the Lord and because of his holy words.

For the land is full of adulterers, and the land mourns because of the abominations: the pastures of the desert have become all dry, the oppression of these people is evil, and their strength is not in favor of justice.

For the Prophet and the Priest are deceitful; I have even found their wickedness in my house, says the Lord.

Therefore their way will be like slippery places in darkness; they will be driven into it and fall; for I will bring disaster upon them in the year of their visitation, says the Lord.

But I had indeed seen some unseemly things in the Prophets of Samaria, [for] they prophesied by means of Bahal, and led my people Israel astray.

But I have seen enormous things in the Prophets of Jerusalem; for they commit adultery, and walk in lies; they have given a hand to unjust men, and not one has turned away from his wickedness; they are all like Sodom to me, and the inhabitants of the city, like Gomorrah.

Therefore, this is what the Lord Almighty says concerning these prophets: I am going to make them eat wormwood and drink gall water, because the desecration of the prophets in Jerusalem has spread throughout the land.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: Do not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you; they make you vain, they speak the vision of their own heart, [and] they [have it] not from the mouth of the Lord.

They keep saying to those who despise me: The Lord has said: you will have peace; and they say to all those who walk in the hardness of their heart: no harm will come to you.

For who has been in the secret council of the Lord? And who has perceived and heard his word? Who has paid attention to his word and heard it?

Behold the storm of the Lord, his fury is about to be shown, and the whirlwind ready to swoop down will fall upon the head of the wicked.

The Lord's anger will not be turned away until he has executed and put into effect the thoughts of his heart; you will have clear understanding of this in the last days.

I did not send those prophets, yet they ran; I did not speak to them, yet they prophesied.

If they had been in my secret council, they too would have made my words heard by my people, and they would have turned them away from their evil ways and the malice of their actions.

Am I a God who is near, says the Lord, and not also a God who is far away?

Can anyone hide in some secret place so that I cannot see them? says the Lord. Do I not fill heaven and earth? says the Lord.

I have heard what the Prophets have said, prophesying lies in my Name, [and] saying: I had a dream, I had a dream.

How long will this remain in the hearts of the prophets who prophesy lies, and who prophesy the deceit of their own hearts?

Who think how they will make my people forget my Name, by the dreams that each of them recites to his companion, as their fathers forgot my Name for Bahal.

Let the prophet who has the dream tell the dream; and let him who has my word speak my word in truth. What good is straw with wheat? says the Lord.

Is not my word like fire, says the Lord, and like a hammer that breaks a stone in pieces?

Therefore, behold, I am against the prophets, says the Lord, who steal my words, each from his neighbor.

"Behold, I am against the prophets," says the Lord, "who adjust their tongues and say, 'He says.'"

"Behold, I am against those who prophesy false dreams," says the Lord, "and who recite them, and lead my people astray with their lies and their recklessness, although I have not sent them, nor have I given them any authority; therefore they shall profit this people nothing," says the Lord.

Therefore, if this people asks you, or if they ask the Prophet or the Priest, saying, "What is the burden of the Lord?" you shall say to them, "What burden?" I will abandon you, says the Lord.

And as for the Prophet, and the Priest, and the people who said, "The burden of the Lord," I will punish that man and his house.

Each of you should say to his companion, and each to his brother: What has the Lord answered? And what has the Lord declared?

And you shall no longer mention the charge of the Lord; for the word of each one shall be a charge against him; because you have perverted the words of the living God, [the words] of the Lord of hosts, our God.

You shall say to the Prophet: What has the Lord answered you, and what has the Lord declared to you?

And if you say, "The burden of the Lord," because of this, says the Lord, because you have said this word, "The burden of the Lord," and I have sent to you, saying, "Do not say anymore, 'The burden of the Lord.'"

Because of this, here I am, and I will completely forget you, and I will uproot from my presence you and the city that I gave to you and your fathers.

And I will bring upon you eternal reproach and everlasting shame, which will not be forgotten.

The Lord showed me [a vision], and behold, two baskets of figs, placed before the Temple of the Lord, after Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon had carried away from Jerusalem Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, King of Judah, and the leaders of Judah, with the carpenters and the smiths, and had taken them to Babylon.

One of the baskets had very good figs, as is usually the case with figs that are the first to ripen; and the other basket had very bad figs, which could not have been eaten, they were so bad.

And the Lord said to me, "What do you see, Jeremiah?" And I answered, "Figs, good figs, very good; and bad figs, very bad, which cannot be eaten, they are so bad."

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: As these figs are good, so I will remember, to do them good, those who were carried away from Judah, whom I sent out of this place to the land of the Chaldeans.

And I will set my eyes on them to do them good, and I will bring them back to this land, I will rebuild them, and I will not destroy them anymore, I will plant them, and I will not uproot them.

And I will give them a heart to know me, [to know, I say], that I am the Lord; and they shall be my people, and I shall be their God: for they shall return to me with all their heart.

And as these figs are so bad that one cannot eat them, so bad are they; so surely, says the Lord, I will make Zedekiah the king of Judah like him, and the leaders of his court, and the remnant of Jerusalem who remained in this land, and those who will become accustomed to the land of Egypt.

And I will deliver them up to be tormented throughout all the kingdoms of the earth, and to be an object of reproach, a proverb, a scorn, and a curse in all the places where I have driven them.

And I will send upon them the sword, famine, and plague, until they are consumed from the land that I gave to them and to their fathers.

The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, which was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon.

Which Jeremiah the Prophet spoke to all the people of Judah and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying:

From the thirteenth year of Josiah son of Amon king of Judah until this day, which is the twenty-third year, the word of the Lord has come to me, and I have spoken to you, rising early in the morning and speaking; but you have not listened.

And the Lord sent to you all his servants the prophets, rising early in the morning and sending them; but you did not listen to them, nor did you incline your ears to listen.

When they said: Turn now, each of you, from your evil ways and from the wickedness of your actions, and you will dwell from one century to the next in the land that the Lord has given to you and to your fathers.

And do not go after other gods to serve them and bow down to them, and do not provoke me to anger with the works of your hands; and I will not harm you.

But you have disobeyed me, says the Lord, to provoke me to anger by the works of your hands, to your own harm.

Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty says: Because you have not listened to my words,

Behold, I will send and gather all the families of the north, says the Lord, [I will send], I say, to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon my servant; and I will bring them against this land and against its inhabitants, and against all these surrounding nations; I will destroy them as a curse, I will make them a desolation, a reproach, and an everlasting wasteland.

And I will put an end to the sounds of joy and gladness, the voices of bridegroom and bride, the noise of millstones and the light of lamps.

And all this land will be a desert, to the point of astonishment, and these nations will be enslaved to the King of Babylon for seventy years.

And it will come to pass that when the seventy years are completed, I will punish, says the Lord, the King of Babylon, and that nation, for their iniquities, and the land of the Chaldeans, which I will make a perpetual desolation.

And I will bring upon that land all my words which I have spoken against it, all the things which are written in this book, which Jeremiah prophesied against all these nations.

For great kings and great nations will also use them, and I will repay them according to their deeds and according to the work of their hands.

For thus said the Lord, the God of Israel, to me: Take from my hand the cup of this wine, [namely] of this fury, and make all the peoples to whom I send you drink of it.

They will drink of it, and they will be troubled, and they will lose their minds, because of the sword that I will send among them.

So I took the cup from the Lord's hand and made all the nations to whom the Lord sent me drink from it.

[Knowledge] to Jerusalem, and to the cities of Judah, and to its kings, and to its leaders, to bring them to desolation, to astonishment, to reproach, and to a curse, as [it appears] today.

To Pharaoh King of Egypt, and to his servants, and to the principals [of his Court], and to all his people.

And to all the mixture [of Arabia], and to all the Kings of the land of Huz; and to all the Kings of the land of the Philistines, to Ashkelon, Gaza, and Hekron, and to the rest of Ashdod.

To Edom; and to Moab; and to the children of Hammon;
 To all the Kings of Tyre; and to all the Kings of Sidon; and to the Kings of the Islands that are beyond the sea;
 To Dédan; Téma; and Buz; and to all those who have cut their hair;
 To all the Kings of Arabia, and to all the Kings of the mixture who dwell in the desert.
 And to all the Kings of Zimri; and to all the Kings of Helam; and to all the Kings of Mede;
 And to all the Kings of the North, both near and far; and to all the Kingdoms of the earth, which are on the top of the earth; and the King of Shesh will drink of it after them.
 And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Drink and be drunk, and even give back the wine which you have drunk and fall down not to rise again, because of the sword which I will send among you.
 But it will happen that they will refuse to take the cup from your hand to drink from it; but you will say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: you shall certainly drink from it.
 For behold, I am beginning to send evil upon the city which is called by my Name, and will you be exempt in some way? You will not be exempt; for I am going to call down the sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, says the Lord of hosts.
 Therefore you shall prophesy against them all these words, and you shall say to them:
 The Lord will roar from on high, and make his voice heard from his holy dwelling; he will roar terribly against his pleasant dwelling; he will redouble his shout to all the inhabitants of the earth, as when wine is pressed in a winepress.
 The resounding sound has reached to the ends of the earth; for the Lord will contend with the nations, and will contend with all flesh; the wicked will be delivered to the sword, says the Lord.
 Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, evil will go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind will rise from the depths of the earth.
 And on that day those who have been put to death by the Lord will be spread out from one end of the earth to its other end; they will not be mourned, nor will they be gathered together, nor buried; but they will be like dung on the face of the earth.
 [You] shepherds, howl and cry out; and you magnificent ones of the flock, wallow [in the dust]; for the days [determined] to slaughter you, and [the days] of your death are fulfilled; and you will fall like a desirable vessel.
 And the shepherds will have no means of escape, nor will the magnificent ones of the flock escape.
 There will be a voice of the shepherds' cry, and a howling of the mightiest of the flock, because the Lord is going to ravage their pastures.
 And the peaceful huts will be cut down, because of the fierce anger of the Lord.
 He has abandoned his Tabernacle, like a young lion, for their land will be laid desolate, because of the fury of the forager, because, I say, of the fury of her anger.
 At the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying:
 Thus says the Lord: Stand in the court of the house of the Lord, and speak to all the cities of Judah that come to worship in the house of the Lord, all the words that I have commanded you to speak to them; do not omit a word.
 Perhaps they will listen, and each will turn away from their evil ways; and I will repent of the harm I intend to do them because of the malice of their actions.
 Therefore, you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord: If you do not listen to me and walk in my Law, which I have set before you,
 To obey the words of my servants the Prophets whom I send to you, rising early in the morning and sending them, whom you have not listened to:
 I will make this house like Shiloh, and I will make this city a curse to all the nations of the earth.

Now the priests and the prophets, and all the people, heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the Lord.

And it came to pass that as soon as Jeremiah had finished speaking all that the Lord had commanded him to speak to all the people, the priests and the prophets and all the people seized him, saying, "You shall surely die."

Why did you prophesy in the Name of the Lord, saying: this house will be like Shiloh, and this city will be desolate, with no one living in it? And all the people gathered around Jeremiah in the house of the Lord.

And the leaders of Judah, having heard all these things, went up from the house of the King to the house of the Lord, and sat down at the entrance of the new gate of the house of the Lord.

And the priests and the prophets spoke to the leaders and to all the people, saying, "This man deserves to be condemned to death, for he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your own ears."

And Jeremiah spoke to all the leaders and to all the people, saying, "The Lord has sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city, according to all the words that you have heard."

Therefore, amend your ways and your actions; and listen to the voice of the Lord your God, and the Lord will relent concerning the disaster that he has pronounced against you.

As for me, here I am in your hands; do with me as you see fit.

But know for certain that if you kill me, you will bring innocent blood upon yourselves, upon this city, and upon its inhabitants; for truly the Lord has sent me to you, to speak all these words, hearing you.

Then the leaders and all the people said to the priests and prophets, "This man does not deserve to be condemned to death, for he has spoken to us in the name of the Lord our God."

And some of the elders of the land stood up and spoke to the whole assembly of the people, saying:

Micah Morastite prophesied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and spoke to all the people of Judah, saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts, Zion shall be plowed [like] a field, and Jerusalem shall be reduced to heaps of stones, and the Temple mount to the heights of a forest.

Did Hezekiah the king of Judah, and all the people of Judah, put him to death? Did he not fear the Lord, and plead with the Lord? And the Lord relented concerning the disaster he had pronounced against them; therefore we are doing a great disaster to ourselves.

But also, [said the others], there was a man who prophesied in the Name of the Lord, [namely] Uriah, son of Shemaiah, from Kiriath-jeharim, who prophesied against this same city, and against this same land, in the same way as Jeremiah;

And King Jehoiakim, with all his officers and the principal men, having heard his words, the King sought to put him to death; but Uriah, having learned of it, and being afraid, fled, and withdrew to Egypt.

And King Jehoiakim sent men to Egypt, namely Elnathan son of Hakbor, and some men with him, who went to Egypt,

And they brought Uriah back from Egypt, and brought him to King Jehoiakim, who struck him with the sword, and threw his dead body into the tombs of the people.

However, the hand of Ahikam son of Shaphan was for Jeremiah, so that he would not be handed over to the people to be put to death.

At the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came from the Lord to Jeremiah, saying:

Thus said the Lord to me: Make yourself bonds and yokes, and put them on your neck;

And send them to the King of Edom, and to the King of Moab, and to the King of the children of Hammon, and to the King of Tyre, and to the King of Sidon, by the hands of the messengers who are to come to Jerusalem to Zedekiah King of Judah. And command them to tell their masters: This is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: This is what you are to tell your masters: I made the earth, and the men, and the beasts that are on the earth by my great power, and by my outstretched arm, and I gave it to whomever I pleased. And now I have given all these countries into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, my servant; and I have even given him the beasts of the field, so that they may be enslaved to him. And all nations shall be subject to him, and to his son, and to his son's son, until the time of his own country also comes, and many nations and great kings shall subjugate him. And it shall come to pass that the nation and the kingdom which has not submitted to Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, and has not submitted its neck to the yoke of the King of Babylon, I will punish that nation, says the Lord, with the sword, and with famine, and with plague, until I have consumed them by his hand. Therefore, do not listen to your prophets, nor your diviners, nor your dreamers, nor your augurs, nor your magicians, who speak to you, saying: you will not be subject to the King of Babylon. For they are prophesying lies to you in order to make you leave your land, so that I may drive you out of it, and that you may perish. But the nation that submits its neck to the yoke of the King of Babylon, and submits to him, I will let remain in its own land, says the Lord, and it will plow it and dwell there. Then I spoke to Zedekiah King of Judah, according to all these words, saying: submit your neck to the yoke of the King of Babylon, and make yourselves subjects to him and to his people, and you will live. Why should you and your people die by the sword, famine, and plague, as the Lord has spoken concerning the nation that will not submit to the King of Babylon? Therefore, do not listen to the words of the prophets who speak to you, saying, "You will not be subject to the King of Babylon," for they are prophesying lies to you. "I did not send them," says the Lord, "yet they prophesy falsely to you in my name, so that I may reject you, and that you may perish, both you and the prophets who prophesy to you." I also spoke to the priests and to all the people, saying: This is what the Lord says: Do not listen to the words of your prophets who prophesy to you, saying: Behold, the ships of the house of the Lord will soon return from Babylon; for they are prophesying lies to you. Do not listen to them, submit to the King of Babylon, and you will live; why should this city be reduced to a desert? And if they are prophets, and the word of the Lord is in them, let them now intercede with the Lord of hosts, so that the ships which are left in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the King of Judah, and in Jerusalem, may not go to Babylon. For thus says the Lord of hosts concerning the pillars, and the sea, and the foundations, and the other ships which remained in this city. Which Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon did not carry off when he transported from Jerusalem to Babylon Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim King of Judah, and all the Magistrates of Judah and Jerusalem; The Lord, [I say], of hosts, the God of Israel, said thus, concerning the ships that remained in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the King of Judah, and in Jerusalem: They will be carried off to Babylon, and they will remain there until the day I visit them, says the Lord; then I will bring them up again, and they will return to this place. It also happened in that same year, at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, that Hananiah son of Hazur the prophet, who was from Gibeon, spoke to me in the house of the Lord, in the presence of the priests and all the people, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: I have broken the yoke of the King of Babylon.

In two years I will bring back to this place all the ships of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon took from this place and transported to Babylon.

And I will bring back to this place, says the Lord, Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and all those who were carried away from Judah to Babylon; for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

Then Jeremiah the Prophet spoke to Hananiah the Prophet, in the presence of the priests and all the people who were present in the house of the Lord.

And Jeremiah the Prophet said: so be it; so do the Lord; may the Lord indeed fulfill your words which you have prophesied, so that he may bring back from Babylon to this place the ships of the house of the Lord, and all those who were carried away to Babylon.

However, now listen to this word that I speak, you and all the people who hear it.

The Prophets who were before me and before you from long ago prophesied against many countries and against great kingdoms, against war, affliction, and death.

The Prophet who prophesied peace, when the word of that Prophet is fulfilled, that Prophet will be recognized as having been truly sent by the Lord.

Then Hananiah the Prophet took the yoke off the neck of Jeremiah the Prophet and broke it.

Then Hananiah spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, "Thus says the Lord: 'In this time and two years, I will break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon from the neck of all the nations.'" And Jeremiah the prophet went on his way.

But the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah after Hananiah the Prophet had broken the yoke off the neck of Jeremiah the Prophet, saying:

Go, and speak to Hananiah, saying: Thus says the Lord: You have broken the yokes that were of wood, but instead make yokes of iron.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: I have put an iron yoke upon the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, for they shall serve him, and I have also given him the beasts of the field.

Then Jeremiah the Prophet said to Hananiah the prophet: Listen now, O Hananiah! The Lord did not send you, but you have caused this people to trust in falsehood.

Therefore thus says the Lord, behold, I will drive you from off the face of the earth, and you shall die this year; for you have spoken of rebellion against the Lord.

And Hananiah the prophet died that year in the seventh month.

These are the words of the letters that Jeremiah the Prophet sent from Jerusalem to the remnant of the elders of those who had been deported, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people whom Nebuchadnezzar had deported from Jerusalem to Babylon;

After King Jehoiachin had left Jerusalem, with the Regent, the Eunuchs, the leaders of Judah and Jerusalem, the carpenters, and the locksmiths.

By Elhasah son of Shaphan, and Gemara son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; [and these letters] were of this content:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to all those who were deported, [and] whom I caused to be deported from Jerusalem to Babylon.

Build houses and dwell in them; plant gardens and eat their fruit.

Take wives, and have sons and daughters; also take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to men, and let them bear sons and daughters, and multiply there, and not be diminished.

And seek the peace of the city to which I have sent you into exile, and pray to the Lord for it; for in its peace you will have peace.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: let not your prophets who are among you, nor your diviners, deceive you, and do not believe the dreams that you dream.

Because they prophesy falsely to you in my name; I did not send them, says the Lord.

For thus says the Lord: When the seventy years are completed in Babylon, I will visit you, and I will execute my good promise upon you, to bring you back to this place.

For I know that the thoughts I have for you, says the Lord, are thoughts of peace and not of adversity, to give you the outcome you have been waiting for.

Then you will call upon me to return; and you will pray to me, and I will answer you.

You will seek me, and you will find me, after you have sought me with all your heart.

For I will make myself found among you, says the Lord, I will restore your fortunes, and I will gather you from all the nations and from all the places where I have scattered you, says the Lord, and I will bring you back to the place from which I have carried you away.

Because you will have said: The Lord has raised up prophets for us who have [prophesied that we would come] to Babylon.

Therefore, this is what the Lord says concerning the King who sits on the throne of David, and concerning all the people who live in this city, [that is], concerning your brothers who did not go into captivity with you;

Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I am going to send upon them the sword, famine, and death, and I will make them become like figs which are exceedingly bad, [and] which cannot be eaten, so bad are they.

And I will pursue them with the sword, with famine, and with plague; and I will abandon them to be tormented by all the kingdoms of the earth, and to be an object of execration, astonishment, ridicule, and reproach to all the nations among which I shall scatter them.

Because they did not listen to my words, says the Lord, who sent them my servants the prophets, rising early in the morning and sending them; and you did not listen, says the Lord.

All of you, therefore, who were carried away, [and] whom I sent back from Jerusalem to Babylon, hear the word of the Lord.

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning Ahab son of Kolaiah, and concerning Zedekiah son of Maheseiah, who prophesy falsely to you in my Name: behold, I am going to deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he will strike them down before your eyes.

And a form of cursing will be taken from them among all those who were carried away from Judah, who [are] in Babylon, saying: the Lord will put you in the same state as he put Zedekiah and Ahab, whom the King of Babylon burned in the fire.

Because they have committed impurities in Israel, and have committed adultery with the wives of their neighbors, and have spoken false words in my name, which I did not command them, and I know it, and I am a witness to it, says the Lord.

Speak also to Shemaiah the Nehelamite, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: because you have sent letters in your name to all the people who are in Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah son of Mahashiah the priest, and to all the priests, saying:

The Lord has appointed you as priest in place of Jehoiada the priest, so that you may have charge of the house of the Lord over every man troubled by the spirit and practicing prophethood, to put them in prison and in irons:

And now, why have you not rebuked Jeremiah of Hanathoth, who prophesies to you?

For this reason he has sent us to tell Babylon: the [captivity] will be long: build houses, and dwell in them; plant gardens, and eat their fruit.

(Now Zephaniah the Priest had read these letters, and Jeremiah the Prophet had heard them.)

Therefore the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying:

Send word to all those who were taken away, and tell them: This is what the Lord says concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite: because Shemaiah prophesied to you, though I did not send him, and made you trust in lies;

Because of this the Lord said, "Behold, I am going to punish Shemaiah the Nehelamite and his descendants, and there shall be no one of his offspring dwelling among this people, nor shall he see the good that I am going to do for my people," says the Lord, "because he has spoken of rebellion against the Lord."

The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying:

Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, saying: Write in a book all the words that I have spoken to you.

For behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will restore the fortunes of my people Israel and Judah, says the Lord, and I will bring them back to the land which I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.

And these are the words that the Lord spoke concerning Israel and Judah:

Thus says the Lord: We have heard a sound of terror and dread, and there is no peace.

Please inquire and consider whether a male gives birth; why then have I seen every man with his hands on his loins like a woman giving birth? And why are all faces yellow?

Alas! How great is that day, there has never been one like it, and it will be a time of distress for Jacob; [but] he shall be delivered from it.

And it will come to pass on that day, says the Lord of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off your neck, and I will burst your bonds; and foreigners will no longer enslave you;

But they will serve the Lord their God, and David their King, whom I will raise up for them.

"Therefore, my servant Jacob, do not be afraid, says the Lord, nor be dismayed, O Israel! For behold, I am going to deliver you from a distant land, and your descendants from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return and be at rest and at ease, and no one shall make him afraid."

For I am with you, says the Lord, to deliver you; and indeed I will completely consume all the nations among which I have scattered you; but as for you, I will not completely consume you, but I will discipline you in due measure, and I will not leave you entirely innocent.

For thus says the Lord: Your wound is beyond hope, [and] your injury is very painful.

There is no one to defend your cause to cleanse [your wound]; there is no remedy for you that will restore the flesh.

All your lovers have forgotten you, they do not seek you; for I have struck you with an enemy's plague, with a cruel [man's] punishment, because of the greatness of your iniquities; your sins have been strengthened.

Why do you cry out because of your wound? Your pain is beyond hope; I have done these things to you because of the greatness of your iniquity, your sins have been strengthened.

Nevertheless, all those who devour you will be devoured, and all those who cause you distress will go into captivity; and all those who prey on you will be preyed upon; and I will abandon to plunder all those who prey on you.

I will even bind up your wounds and heal your injuries, says the Lord. Because they have called you the driven one, [and have said:] this is Zion, no one seeks her:

Thus says the Lord: Behold, I will restore the captives of the tents of Jacob, and I will have compassion on his pavilions; the city shall be rebuilt on its ground, and the palace shall sit in its place.

And from them will come expressions of thanksgiving and the voices of laughter, and I will multiply them, and they will no longer be fewer; and I will enlarge them, and they will not be made small.

And her children will be as before, and her assembly will be established before me, and I will punish all those who oppress her.

And the one who will have authority over him will be of him, and his ruler will come out from among him; I will bring him near, and he will come to me; for who is he who has set his heart to come to me? says the Lord.

And you will be my people, and I will be your God.

Behold, the storm of the Lord, the fury has gone out, a whirlwind that piles up; it will settle on the head of the wicked.

The fierce anger of the Lord will not turn away until he has executed and accomplished the purposes of his heart; you will hear this in the last days.

At that time, says the Lord, I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they will be my people.

Thus says the Lord: The people who escaped the sword found favor in the wilderness; we will go to bring rest to Israel.

The Lord appeared to me from afar, [and said to me]: I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have prolonged my lovingkindness toward you.

I will establish you again, and you will be established, O virgin of Israel! You will again adorn yourself with your tambourines, and you will go out with the dancing of the players.

You will plant vineyards again on the mountains of Samaria; the vinedressers will plant them, and they will harvest the fruit for their own use.

For there will come a day when the watchmen will cry out in the mountains of Ephraim: Arise, and let us go up to Zion to the Lord our God.

For thus says the Lord: Rejoice with singing and be glad for Jacob, and be glad for the Prince of the nations; proclaim it, sing praises, and say: Lord, deliver your people, the remnant of Israel.

Behold, I am going to bring them from the land of the North, and I will gather them from the depths of the earth; the blind and the lame, the pregnant woman and she who is in labor shall be together among them; a great assembly shall return here.

They will have gone there weeping, but I will make them return with supplications, and I will lead them to streams of water, and by a straight way, in which they will not stumble; for I have been a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn.

Nations, hear the word of the Lord, and proclaim it to the distant islands, and say: He who scattered Israel will gather him, and will keep him as a shepherd keeps his flock.

For the Lord has redeemed Jacob, and delivered him from the hand of an enemy stronger than he.

They will come and rejoice with singing in the highest place of Zion, and they will stream to the bounty of the Lord, to the grain, the wine, the oil, and the fruit of the herd and the flock; and their soul will be like a garden full of springs, and they will be no more sorrowful.

Then the virgin will rejoice in the dance, and the young and the old together, and I will turn their mourning into joy, and I will comfort them, and gladden them [delivering them] from their pain.

I will also satisfy the soul of the priests with fat, and my people will be satisfied with my bounty, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: A very bitter voice of lamentation [and] of weeping was heard in Ramah, Rachel weeping for her children, and refused to be comforted concerning her children, because there are none left.

Thus says the Lord: Do not let your voice weep, nor let your eyes shed tears, for your work will receive its reward, says the Lord, and they will return from the land of the enemy.

And there is hope for your last days, says the Lord, and your children will return to their quarters.

I have heard Ephraim complaining, [and saying]: You have chastised me, and I have been chastised like an untamed bull; convert me, and I will be converted; for you are the Lord my God.

Indeed, after I have turned to God, I will repent; and after I have come to my senses, I will strike my thigh. I have been ashamed and disgraced, for I have borne the reproach of my youth.

Was not Ephraim a dear child to me? Was not he a child whom I loved? For all the time I spoke of him, I did not fail to remember him [with tenderness]: therefore my heart yearns for him, and I will certainly have mercy on him, says the Lord.

Set up signs for yourself on the roads, and make heaps of stones; take heaps of stones on the roads, and consider by what way you came. Return, virgin of Israel, return to your cities.

How long will you be troubled, you rebellious daughter? For the Lord has created a new thing on earth: woman will surround man.

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: This word shall again be spoken in the land of Judah and in its cities, when I have restored their captivity: The Lord bless you, O pleasant dwelling place of righteousness, holy mountain.

And Judah and all its cities together, the farmers, and those who walk with the flocks, will dwell in it.

For I have intoxicated the soul thirsting with labor, and I have filled every soul that languished.

That is why I awoke, and I looked, and my sleep was sweet to me.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord, "when I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of men and the seed of animals."

And it shall come to pass that as I have watched over them to uproot and demolish, to destroy, to lose, and to harm, so I will watch over them to build and to plant, says the Lord.

In those days people will no longer say: "The fathers ate the unripe juice, and the children's teeth are set on edge";

But each will die for their iniquity; every man who eats the unripe juice, his teeth will be set on edge.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord, "when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah."

Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers, on the day that I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt, which covenant they broke; and yet I had been a husband to them, says the Lord.

For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord: I will put my Law within them, and I will write it on their hearts; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

Each of them will no longer teach his neighbor, nor each one his brother, saying, 'Know the Lord,' for they will all know me, from the least of them to the greatest, says the Lord; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.

Thus says the Lord, who gives the sun to be the light of the day, and the setting of the moon and stars to be the light of the night; who divides the sea, and its waves roar; whose name is the Lord of hosts;

If these regulations ever disappear from before me, says the Lord, then the descendants of Israel will cease to be a nation before me forever.

Thus says the Lord: If the heavens can be measured above, and the foundations of the earth sounded out below, therefore I will reject all the descendants of Israel; because of all the things which they have done, says the Lord.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord, "when this city will be rebuilt for the Lord, from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate."

And again the measuring line will be stretched opposite it on the hill of Gareb, and will go around towards Goha.

And the whole valley of the road and of the ashes, and all the district as far as the Kidron Valley, as far as the corner of the Horse Gate toward the East, shall be holy to the Lord, and shall no more be demolished or destroyed forever.

The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar.

(Now the army of the King of Babylon was then besieging Jerusalem, and Jeremiah the Prophet was confined in the court of the prison, which was in the house of the King of Judah;

For Zedekiah King of Judah had imprisoned him and said to him, "Why are you prophesying?" saying, "Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am about to deliver this city into the hand of the King of Babylon, and he shall take it."

And Zedekiah King of Judah will not escape from the hand of the Chaldeans, but he will certainly be delivered into the hand of the King of Babylon, and will speak to him face to face, and his eyes will see the eyes of this King.

And he will take Zedekiah to Babylon, where he will remain until I visit him, says the Lord; if you fight against the Chaldeans, you will not prosper.

Jeremiah then said: The word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Here is Hanamel son of Shallum your uncle, who comes to you, to say to you: buy my field, which is in Hanathoth; for you have the right of redemption by lineage to redeem it.

Hanamel, son of my uncle, came to me, according to the word of the Lord, in the court of the prison, and said to me, "Buy, I pray you, my field which is in Hanathoth, in the territory of Benjamin: for you have the right of hereditary possession, and of redemption by lineage, buy it for yourself." And I knew then that it was the word of the Lord.

So I bought the field of Hanamel, my uncle's son, which is in Hanathoth; and I weighed out the silver to him, which was seventeen shekels of silver.

Then I wrote the contract, and sealed it, and I took witnesses after weighing the money in the balance;

And I took the acquisition contract, both the one that was sealed, according to the order and the statutes, and the one that was open.

And I gave the deed of purchase to Baruch son of Neriah, son of Mahaseiah, in the presence of Hanamel son of my uncle, and the witnesses who had signed the deed of purchase, [and] in the presence of all the Jews who were sitting in the court of the prison.

Then I gave my order to Baruc in their presence, saying to him:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Take these contracts here, namely this purchase contract, which is sealed, and this contract which is open, and put them in an earthen pot, so that they may be preserved for a long time.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: houses, fields, and vineyards shall again be bought in this land.

And after I had given Baruch son of Nerijah the deed of purchase, I petitioned the Lord, saying:

Ah! ah! Lord Eternal, behold, you have made heaven and earth by your great power, and by your outstretched arm; nothing will be difficult for you;

You show mercy to a thousand generations, and you repay the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them; you are the Mighty, the Great, the Mighty [God], whose Name is the Lord of hosts;

Great in counsel, and abundant in means; for your eyes are open to all the ways of the children of men, to reward each one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his works.

You performed signs and wonders in the land of Egypt [which are known] to this day, and in Israel, and among men, and you acquired a name such as [it appears] today.

For you brought your people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and wonders, with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, and by spreading terror everywhere. And you gave them this land that you had sworn to their fathers to give them, a land flowing with milk and honey; And they entered and possessed it; but they did not obey your voice, nor walk in your Law, nor do all the things that you commanded them to do; therefore you caused all this evil to befall them here.

Behold, the siege ramps [are raised], they have come against the city to take it, and because of the sword, famine, and death, the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans who fight against it; and what you have said has come to pass, and behold, you see it.

And yet, Lord Eternal! you told me: buy this field for money, and take witnesses, although the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.

But the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying:

Behold, I am the Lord, the God of all flesh; shall there be anything too hard for me?

Therefore this is what the Lord says: "Behold, I am about to deliver this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, who will take it."

And the Chaldeans who fight against this city will enter it, [and] set fire to this city, and burn it, along with the houses on the roofs of which incense has been made to Bahal, and [where] sprinkling has been done to other gods to anger me.

For the children of Israel and the children of Judah have done nothing but what displeases me from their youth; and the children of Israel only provoke me to anger by the works of their hands, says the Lord.

For this city has been brought to my anger and fury from the day they built it until this day, so that I should destroy it from my sight;

Because of all the wickedness of the children of Israel, and of the children of Judah, which they committed to provoke me to anger, they, their kings, their leaders, their priests, and their prophets, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

They have forsaken me; and when I have taught them, rising early in the morning and teaching them, they have not been obedient to receive instruction.

But they have placed their abominations in the house on which my Name is invoked, to defile it.

And they built the high places of Bahal, which are in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to make their sons and daughters pass through the fire to Molech; which I had not commanded them, nor did I ever think that they would do this abomination to make Judah sin.

And now, because of this, the Lord, the God of Israel, says this concerning this city, which you say has been given into the hands of the King of Babylon, because of the sword, famine, and death [are in it]:

Behold, I am going to gather them from all the countries in which I have scattered them by my anger and by my fury, and by my great indignation, and I will bring them back to this place, and I will make them dwell there in safety.

And they shall be my people, and I shall be their God.

And I will give them one heart and one way, so that they may fear me forever, for their own good and the good of their children after them.

And I will make an everlasting covenant with them, [namely] that I will not withdraw from them to do them good; and I will put my fear in their hearts, that they will not withdraw from me.

And I will take pleasure in doing them good, and I will plant them firmly in this land, with all my heart and all my soul.

For thus says the Lord: as I have brought all this great evil upon this people, so I will bring upon them all the good that I pronounce in their favor.

And we will buy fields in this land, which you say is nothing but desolation, having neither man nor beast there, [and which] is given into the hands of the Chaldeans. They will buy fields for money, and they will write up the deeds, seal them, and take witnesses in the land of Benjamin, and around Jerusalem, in the towns of Judah, both in the hill country and in the plains, and in the towns of the Negev. For I will restore their fortunes, says the Lord.

And the word of the Lord came a second time to Jeremiah, while he was still confined in the courtyard of the prison, saying:

Thus says the Lord who goes to do this, the Lord who goes to form it to establish it, whose name is the Lord.

Cry out to me, and I will answer you, and tell you great and hidden things which you do not know.

For thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city, and the houses of the kings of Judah; they shall be demolished by means of siege works, and by the sword.

They came to fight against the Chaldeans, but it was to fill their houses with the dead bodies of the men I had struck down in my anger and fury, and because I hid my face from that city because of all their wickedness.

Behold, I am going to give him health and healing; I will heal them, and I will show them an abundance of peace and truth.

And I will restore the captives of Judah and the captives of Israel, and I will rebuild them as before.

And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, by which they have sinned against me; and I will forgive all their iniquities by which they have sinned against me, and by which they have sinned grievously against me.

And [this city] will be a cause of rejoicing, praise, and glory to me among all the nations of the earth who hear of all the good that I am going to do for them, and they will be terrified and awestruck because of all the good and prosperity that I am going to give it.

Thus says the Lord: In this place of which you say, "It is desolate, without man or beast," in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, which lie desolate, without man or inhabitant or any beast, there shall again be heard,

The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, [and] the voice of those who say: Sing praises to the Lord of hosts; for the Lord is good, because his mercy endures forever, when they bring thanksgiving offerings to the house of the Lord; for I will restore the fortunes of this land, [and I will put them] in the same state as before, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: in this desolate place, where there is neither man nor beast, and in all its cities, there shall again be shepherds' huts where they shall rest their flocks;

In the cities of the mountains, and in the cities of the plain, in the cities of the South, in the land of Benjamin, in the vicinity of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah; and the flocks will again pass under the hands of him who counts them, says the Lord.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord, "when I will fulfill the good promise I have made to the house of Israel and the house of Judah."

In those days and at that time I will cause the Branch of righteousness to spring up for David, and he will execute justice and righteousness in the earth.

In those days Judah will be delivered, and Jerusalem will dwell securely; and this is the name by which it will be called: The Lord Our Righteousness.

For thus says the Lord, David will never lack a man to sit on the throne of the house of Israel;

And from among the Levite priests, there will never fail to be before me a man offering burnt offerings, making incense cakes, and making sacrifices every day.

Furthermore, the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying:

Thus says the Lord: If you can abolish my covenant concerning the day, and my covenant concerning the night, so that day and night no longer come at their appointed times;

Therefore my covenant with David my servant shall be abolished; so that he shall no longer have a son reigning on his throne; and with the Levite priests, who serve me.

For as one cannot number the host of heaven, nor measure the sand of the sea, so I will multiply the descendants of David my servant, and the Levites who minister to me.

The word of the Lord came again to Jeremiah, saying:

Have you not seen what this people has said, saying: The Lord has rejected the two families that he had chosen; for [by this] they despise my people; so much so that in their eyes they will no longer be a nation?

Thus says the Lord: if [I have not established] my covenant concerning the day and the night, and if I have not established the ordinances of heaven and earth;
Therefore I will reject the descendants of Jacob and of David my servant, and will no longer take from his descendants people who rule over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; for I will restore their fortunes and have compassion on them.

The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and all his army, all the kingdoms of the earth, and all the peoples who were under his power, were fighting against Jerusalem and all its cities, saying:

Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Go, and speak to Zedekiah king of Judah, and say to him: Thus says the Lord, behold, I am about to deliver this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire;

And you will not escape from his hand; for you will certainly be taken; and you will be delivered into his hands, and your eyes will see the eyes of the King of Babylon; and he will speak to you mouth to mouth, and you will come to Babylon.

However, O Zedekiah King of Judah, hear the word of the Lord: the Lord has spoken thus concerning you: you shall not die by the sword.

But you will die in peace, and aromatic things will be burned on you, as they burned on your fathers, the previous kings who were before you; and they will mourn for you, [saying]: Alas, Lord! For I have spoken this word, says the Lord.

Jeremiah the Prophet then spoke all these words to Zedekiah King of Judah, in Jerusalem.

And the army of the King of Babylon fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that had remained, [namely] against Lachish, and against Hazeka, for these were [the only] strong cities that remained among the cities of Judah.

The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people who were in Jerusalem, to proclaim liberty to them;

So that each one would set free his male servant, and each one his female servant, whether Hebrew or Hebrew, and that no Jew would be the slave of his brother.

Therefore, all the leaders and all the people who had entered into this covenant understood that each one should set his male servant free, and each one his female servant, without enslaving them any longer; and they obeyed and set them free.

But then they changed their minds, and brought back their male and female servants, whom they had sent away free, and subjected them to be their servants.

And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying:

This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: I made a covenant with your ancestors on the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery, saying:

In the seventh year you shall each send away your Hebrew brother who has been sold to you; he shall serve you six years, and then you shall send him away free from you; but your fathers did not listen to me, nor inclined their ear.

And you had converted today, and you had done what was right in my sight, by proclaiming liberty each to his neighbor, and you had made a covenant in my presence, in the house on which my Name is claimed;

But you have changed your minds and defiled my name; for you have brought back each one his male servant, and each one his female servant, whom you had sent away free to be of their own, and you have subjected them to be your male and female servants. Therefore this is what the Lord says: You have not listened to me to proclaim liberty, each to his brother and each to his neighbor; behold, I am going to proclaim liberty, says the Lord, against you by sword, pestilence, and famine; and I will give you up to be carried away to all the kingdoms of the earth.

And I will deliver up the men who have transgressed my covenant, and who have not carried out the words of the covenant which they made before me, when they passed between the two halves of the calf which they cut in two;

The leaders of Judah, and the leaders of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land, who passed between the two halves of the calf;

I will deliver them, I say, into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of those who seek their lives; and their dead bodies will be food for the birds of the heavens, and for the beasts of the earth.

I will also deliver Zedekiah King of Judah, and the chiefs of his court, into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of those who seek their lives; namely, into the hands of the army of the King of Babylon, who has withdrawn from before you.

“Behold, I will give them a command,” says the Lord, “and I will make them return to this city, and they will fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire, and I will make the cities of Judah a desolation, so that there will be no one to dwell in them.”

This is the word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying:

Go to the house of the Rechabites, and speak to them, and bring them into the house of the Lord, into one of the chambers, and offer them wine to drink.

So I took Jaazania son of Jeremiah, son of Habazinia, and his brothers, and all his sons, and all the house of the Rechabites;

And I brought them into the house of the Lord, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan, son of Jigdaliah, the man of God, which was near the chamber of the chiefs; which was above the chamber of Mahaseiah, son of Shallum, keeper of the ships.

And I set before the children of the house of the Rechabites goblets full of wine, and cups, and I said to them: drink wine.

And they answered: we will not drink wine; for Jehonadab, son of Rechab our father, gave us a commandment, saying: you shall not drink wine, neither you nor your children, forever;

You shall not build any house, you shall not sow any seed, you shall not plant any vineyard, nor shall you have any; but you shall dwell in tents all the days of your life, so that you may live long in the land in which you sojourn as strangers.

So we obeyed the voice of Jehonadab, son of Rechab our father, in all things which he commanded us, so that we did not drink wine all the days of our lives, neither we, nor our wives, nor our sons, nor our daughters.

We have not built any house for our dwelling, and we have had neither vineyard, nor field, nor seed.

But we remained in tents, and we obeyed, and did according to all the things that Jehonadab our father commanded us.

But it came to pass that when Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon came up into the land, we said, 'Come, let us enter Jerusalem to flee from the army of the Chaldeans and from the army of Syria'; and we remained in Jerusalem.

Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Go, and say to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Will you not receive instruction to obey my words? says the Lord.

All the words of Jehonadab son of Rechab, which he commanded his children not to drink wine, have been observed, and they have not drunk any to this day; but they have obeyed the commandment of their father; but I have spoken to you, rising early in the morning, and spoken, and you have not obeyed me. For I have sent to you all the Prophets, my servants, rising again and again and sending them, saying to you: Turn now, each of you, from your evil ways, and amend your deeds, and do not follow other gods to serve them, so that you may remain in the land that I gave to you and to your fathers; but you have not inclined your ears, and have not listened to me.

Because the children of Jehonadab son of Rechab observed the commandment of their father, which he had given them, and this people did not listen to me;

Because of this the Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel, said: "Behold, I am going to bring on Judah and on all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evil that I have pronounced against them; because I spoke to them, and they did not listen; and I called to them, and they did not answer."

And Jeremiah said to the house of the Rechabites: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: because you have obeyed the commandment of Jehonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and have done according to all that he commanded you;

Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: It will never happen that there is not someone belonging to Jehonadab son of Rechab who stands before me every day.

Now it came to pass in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, that this word came from the Lord to Jeremiah, saying:

Take a scroll and write on it all the words I have spoken to you against Israel, Judah, and all the nations, from the day I spoke to you, [that is], from the days of Josiah until this day.

Perhaps the house of Judah will pay attention to all the harm I intend to do to them, so that each one will turn away from their evil way, and that I will forgive them their iniquity and their sin.

So Jeremiah called Baruch son of Neriah, and Baruch wrote from Jeremiah's mouth in the scroll all the words of the Lord, which he dictated to him.

Then Jeremiah gave orders to Baruch, saying: I am detained, [and] I cannot enter the house of the Lord.

You shall go in, and you shall read in the scroll which you have written, [and which I have dictated to you] from my mouth, the words of the Lord, the people hearing them, in the house of the Lord, on the day of the fast; you shall read them, I say, all those of Judah, who will have come from their cities, hearing them.

Perhaps their supplication will be received before the Lord, and each one will turn from his evil way; for the anger and wrath that the Lord has declared against this people is great.

So Baruch son of Neriah did according to all that Jeremiah the Prophet had commanded him, reading from the book the words of the Lord, in the house of the Lord.

Now it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, that a fast was proclaimed before the Lord to all the people of Jerusalem and to all the people who had come from the cities of Judah to Jerusalem.

And Baruch read from the book the words of Jeremiah, in the house of the Lord, in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan, the secretary, in the upper court, at the entrance of the new gate of the house of the Lord, while all the people listened. And when Micaiah son of Gemariah, son of Shaphan, had heard [by reading] from the book all the words of the Lord;

He went down to the King's house to the Secretary's chamber, and behold, all the chief men were sitting there, [namely] Elisamah the Secretary, and Delaiah son of Shemaiah, Elnathan son of Hakbor, and Gemariah son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the chief men.

And Micah told them all the words he had heard when Baruch read from the book, the people listening.

Therefore, all the leaders sent to Baruch, Jehudi, son of Nethaniah, son of Shelemiah, son of Cusci, saying, "Take in your hand the scroll from which you have read, now that the people have heard it, and come here." So Baruch son of Neriah took the scroll in his hand and came to them.

And they said to him: sit down now, and read to us, while we listen; and Baruch read, while they listened to him.

And it came to pass that as soon as they had heard all these words, they were frightened among themselves, and said to Baruch: we shall not fail to report all these words to the King.

And they questioned Baruch, saying: tell us now how you wrote all these words from his mouth.

And Baruch said to them: he dictated all these words to me with his mouth, and I wrote them down with ink in the book.

Then the leaders said to Baruch: Go, and hide yourself and Jeremiah, and let no one know where you are.

Then they went to the King in the courtyard, but they kept the scroll safe in the room of Elisamah the Secretary; and they told all these words, the King hearing them.

And the King sent Jehudi to get the scroll; and when Jehudi had taken it from the chamber of Elisamah the Secretary, he read it, the King and all the principals who were present around him hearing him.

Now the King was sitting in the winter chamber in the ninth month, and there was a blazing fire before him.

And it came to pass that as soon as Jehudi had read three or four pages of it, the King cut it with the Secretary's penknife, and threw it into the fire of the brazier, until the whole scroll was consumed in the fire that [was] in the brazier.

And neither the King nor any of his servants who heard all these words were afraid, nor did they tear their clothes.

However, Elnathan, and Delaiah, and Gemariah interceded with the King, so that he would not burn the scroll, but he did not listen to them.

Even the King commanded Jerahmeel son of Hammelech, and Seraiah son of Hazriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel, to seize Baruch the secretary, and Jeremiah the Prophet; but the Lord hid them.

And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, after the king had burned the scroll and the words that Baruch had written by Jeremiah, saying:

Take yet another scroll, and write on it all the first words that were in the first scroll that Jehoiakim King of Judah burned.

And you shall say to Jehoiakim King of Judah: Thus says the Lord: You have burned this scroll, and you have said: Why did you write on it, saying that the King of Babylon will surely come, and that he will ravage this land, and destroy both man and beast?

Therefore this is what the Lord says concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah: he shall have no one to sit on the throne of David, and his dead body shall be thrown out by day to the heat, and by night to the frost.

Therefore I will punish him, his descendants, and his servants for their iniquity; and I will bring upon them, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the men of Judah, all the evil that I have spoken against them, which they have not listened to.

Jeremiah then took another scroll, and gave it to Baruch son of Neriah, the secretary, who wrote on it from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book that Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire, and many similar words were added to it.

Now King Zedekiah, son of Josiah, reigned in place of Shenah son of Jehoiakim, and was established as King over the land of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. But he did not obey, neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, the words of the Lord, which he had spoken through Jeremiah the Prophet.

However, King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah son of Mahaseiah the Priest, to Jeremiah the Prophet, to say to him: make a request, I pray you, to the Lord our God for us;

(For Jeremiah was still walking among the people, because he had not yet been put in prison.)

Then Pharaoh's army left Egypt, and when the Chaldeans, who were besieging Jerusalem, heard the news, they withdrew from before Jerusalem.

And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the Prophet, saying:

Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: you shall say this to the King of Judah, who sent you to question me: behold, the army of Pharaoh, which came out to help you, is going back to its land of Egypt.

And the Chaldeans will return, and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire.

Thus says the Lord: Do not deceive yourselves, saying, 'The Chaldeans will surely withdraw from us,' for they will not withdraw.

Even if you had defeated the entire army of the Chaldeans who are fighting against you, and there were only wounded men left among them, they would still rise up, each in their own tent, and burn this city with fire.

Now it came to pass that when the army of the Chaldeans had withdrawn from before Jerusalem, because of the army of Pharaoh;

Jeremiah left Jerusalem to go to the land of Benjamin, slipping out of there among the people.

But when he came to the gate of Benjamin, there was there a captain of the guard, whose name was Jireiah, son of Shelemiah, son of Hananiah, who seized Jeremiah the Prophet, saying to him, "You are going to surrender to the Chaldeans."

And Jeremiah answered: that is not so; I am not going to surrender to the Chaldeans; but he did not listen to him, and Jireija took Jeremiah, and brought him to the chiefs.

And the leaders became angry with Jeremiah, and beat him, and put him in prison in the house of Jehonathan the Secretary, for they had made it a place of prison.

And so Jeremiah entered the pit and the dungeons, and Jeremiah remained there for many days.

But King Zedekiah sent for him and brought him out, and questioned him privately in his house, saying to him, "Is there any word from the Lord?" And Jeremiah answered, "There is," and said to him, "You will be handed over to the King of Babylon."

Then Jeremiah said to King Zedekiah: What wrong have I done against you, and against your servants, and against this people, that you have put me in prison?

But where are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying: the King of Babylon will not return against you or against this land?

Now listen, I pray you, O King my Lord! and let my supplication now be received before your face, and do not send me back to the house of Jehonathan the Secretary, lest I die there.

Therefore, King Zedekiah ordered that Jeremiah be kept in the courtyard of the prison, and that he be given a loaf of bread daily from the bakers' square, until all the bread in the city was consumed. So Jeremiah remained in the courtyard of the prison.

But Sephatiah son of Mattan, and Gedaliah son of Pashur, and Jucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashur son of Malkijah, heard the words that Jeremiah spoke to all the people, saying:

Thus says the Lord: whoever dwells in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, or by plague, but whoever goes out to the Chaldeans shall live, and his life shall be his prize, and he shall live.

Thus says the Lord: this city shall surely be given into the hands of the army of the King of Babylon, and he shall take it.

And the leaders said to the King: let this man be put to death; for by this means he makes the hands of the warriors who have remained in this city cowardly, and the hands of all the people, by saying such words to them; because this man does not seek the prosperity of this people, but evil.

And King Zedekiah said: behold, he is in your hands; for the King can do nothing over you.

So they took Jeremiah and threw him into the pit of Malkijah, son of Hammelech, which was in the courtyard of the prison, and they lowered Jeremiah with ropes into the pit where there was no water, but mud; and so Jeremiah sank into the mud.

But Hebed-melech Cusian, a eunuch who was in the king's house, learned that they had put Jeremiah in that pit; and the king was sitting at the Benjamin Gate.

And Hebed-melech came out of the King's house and spoke to the King, saying:

O King my Lord! These men have done wrong in all that they have done against Jeremiah the Prophet, throwing him into the pit, for he would already have died of hunger in the place where he was, because there is no more bread in the city.

Therefore the King commanded Hebed-melech Cusian, saying: take thirty men from here under your command, and bring up Jeremiah the Prophet out of the pit before he dies.

Hebed-melech then took these men under his command, and entered the house of the King at the place which is under the Treasury, from where he took old rags and old tatters, and lowered them with ropes to Jeremiah in the pit;

And Hebed-melech Cusien said to Jeremiah: put these old rags and tatters under your armpits, under the ropes; and Jeremiah did so.

So they pulled Jeremiah out with ropes and brought him up out of the pit; and Jeremiah remained in the courtyard of the prison.

King Zedekiah sent and brought Jeremiah the Prophet to him at the third entrance to the house of the Lord. The king said to Jeremiah, "I am going to ask you something; do not hide it from me."

And Jeremiah answered Zedekiah: when I declare it to you, is it not true that you will put me to death? and when I give you counsel, you will not listen to me.

Then King Zedekiah swore secretly to Jeremiah, saying: As the Lord lives, who made this soul for us, I will not put you to death, nor will I hand you over to those who seek your life.

Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah: This is what the Lord, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, says: If you go out willingly to go to the officials of the King of Babylon, your life will be preserved, and this city will not be burned down, and you and your household will live.

But if you do not go out to the officials of the King of Babylon, this city will be given into the hands of the Chaldeans, who will burn it with fire; and you will not escape from their hands.

And King Zedekiah said to Jeremiah: I am afraid because of the Jews who have surrendered to the Chaldeans, that I may be handed over to them, and that they may mock me.

And Jeremiah answered him: they will not hand you over to them; I pray you, listen to the voice of the Lord in what I tell you, so that it may go well with you, and that you may live.

But if you refuse to come out, this is what the Lord has shown me,

For, behold, all the women who remained in the house of the King of Judah shall be brought out to the chiefs of the King of Babylon, and they shall say that those who foretold peace to you have incited you, and have won you over; so that your feet are sunk in the mud, having retreated backward.

They will therefore take all your wives and children out to the Chaldeans, and you will not escape from their hands, but you will be captured, to be handed over to the King of Babylon, and you will be the cause of this city being burned with fire.

Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah: let no one know anything about these words, and you will not die.

And if the leaders hear that I have spoken to you, and they come to you, and say to you: tell us now what you said to the King, and what the King said, do not hide anything from us, and we will not put you to death;

You will tell them: I have presented my supplication before the King, so that he will not bring me back to the house of Jehonathan to die.

So all the leaders came to Jeremiah and questioned him; but he gave them a report in accordance with all the words that the King had commanded him to say; and they stopped talking to him, because they had not known anything about this matter.

So Jeremiah remained in the courtyard of the prison until the day Jerusalem was taken, and he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came with his whole army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, a breach was made in the city.

And all the chief [Captains] of the King of Babylon [entered], and sat down at the middle gate, [namely] Nergal-sareetser, Samgar-nebu, Sar-sekim, Rabsaris, Nergal, Sareetser, Rabmag, and all the rest of the chief [Captains] of the King of Babylon. Now it came to pass that as soon as Zedekiah King of Judah and all the men of war saw them, they fled and went out of the city by night, by way of the King's garden, by the gate between the two walls, and they went by way of the country road.

But the Chaldean army pursued them, and they caught up with Zedekiah in the fields of Jericho; and having captured him, they brought him to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon at Riblah, which is in the land of Hamath, where he was put on trial.

And the King of Babylon had the sons of Zedekiah slaughtered in his presence at Riblah; the King of Babylon also had all the officials of Judah slaughtered.

Then he had Zedekiah's eyes gouged out, and bound him with double bronze chains, to take him to Babylon.

The Chaldeans also burned the royal houses and the houses of the people, and demolished the walls of Jerusalem.

And Nebuzaradan, provost of the temple, transported to Babylon the remnant of the people who had remained in the city, and those who had gone to give him, the remnant, I say, of the people who had remained.

But Nebuzaradan, the steward of the inn, left some of the poorest people who had nothing in the land of Judah, and on that day he gave them vineyards and fields.

Now Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon had given orders and commissions to Nebuzaradan, provost of the palace, concerning Jeremiah, saying:

Remove that man, and keep an eye on him, and do him no harm; but do for him all that he tells you.

Nebuzar-adan, therefore, provost of the palace, sent, and also Nebusazban, Rabsaris, Nergal, Saréetser, Rabmag, and all the chief [Captains] of the King of Babylon;

They sent, [I say], to take Jeremiah from the court of the prison, and gave him to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, to take him home; so he remained among the people.

Now the word of the Lord had come to Jeremiah, while he was confined in the courtyard of the prison, saying:

Go, and speak to Hebed-melech Cusian, and say to him: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am going to bring my words upon this city for harm, and not for good, and they shall be fulfilled on that day, in your presence.

But I will deliver you on that day, says the Lord, and you will not be handed over to the men you fear.

For I will surely deliver you, so that you will not fall by the sword; but your life will be your prize, because you have trusted in me, says the Lord.

The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, when Nebuzaradan, the governor of the temple, sent him away from Ramah, after he had taken him bound in chains among all those who were being carried out from Jerusalem and Judah, [and] led captive to Babylon.

When the innkeeper had taken Jeremiah out, he said to him, "The Lord your God has pronounced this disaster on this place."

And the Lord brought him, and did as he had said; because you have sinned against the Lord, and have not obeyed his voice, therefore this has happened to you.

Now therefore, behold, today I have freed you from the chains that were on your hands; if you please come with me to Babylon, come and I will take care of you; but if you do not please come with me to Babylon, stay; look, the whole earth is at your disposal; go wherever it seems good and proper to you to go.

Now [Gedaliah] will not return [here]; therefore return to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the King of Babylon appointed over the cities of Judah; and dwell with him among the people, or go wherever you please to go; and the steward of the inn gave him food and some gifts, and sent him away.

So Jeremiah went to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah, and stayed with him among the people who remained in the land.

And all the captains of the warmen who were in the field, they and their men heard that the King of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam over the land, and that he had appointed to him the men, and the women, and the children, and this from among the poorest of the land, [namely] from those who had not been transported to Babylon.

Then they went to Gedaliah at Mizpah; namely, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan sons of Kareah, and Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, and the children of Hephai Netophathite, and Jezaniah son of a Mahacathite, they and their people.

And Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, swore to them and to their people, saying: do not be reluctant to be subject to the Chaldeans, remain in the land, and be subjects of the King of Babylon, and you will be well.

And as for me, behold, I will remain at Mizpah to be ready to receive the orders of the Chaldeans who will come to us; but you, gather the wine, the summer fruits, and the oil, and put them in your vessels, and remain in your cities which you have taken [for your dwelling].

Likewise also all the Jews who were in Moab, and among the children of Hammon, and in Idumea, and in all those countries, when they heard that the King of Babylon had left some remnant in Judah, and that he had appointed over them Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan;

All those Jews returned from all the places to which they had been driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruits in great abundance.

But Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the warmen who were in the field came to Gedaliah at Mizpah;

And they said to him: surely do you not know that Bahalis, King of the children of Hammon, has sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah to take your life? But Gedaliah son of Ahikam did not believe them.

And Johanan son of Kareah spoke secretly to Gedaliah at Mizpah, saying, "I will now go and strike down Ishmael son of Nethaniah, without anyone knowing; why should he take your life, so that all the Jews who have gathered around you may be scattered, and the remnant of Judah may perish?"

But Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, said to Johanan son of Kareah: Do not do that; for you are speaking falsely about Ishmael.

Now it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael son of Nethaniah, son of Elisamah, of the royal line, and one of the chief men of the king, and ten men with him, came to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah, and ate bread together there at Mizpah.

But Ishmael son of Nethaniah stood up, and the ten men who were with him, and they struck down with the sword Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, and they put him to death, he whom the King of Babylon had appointed over the land.

Ishmael also struck down all the Jews who were with him, [that is], with Gedaliah at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans, men of war, who were found there.

And it came to pass that the day after Guedaliah had been put to death, before anyone knew it,

Some men from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria; in all eighty men, with shaved beards, torn clothes, and cuts on themselves, came with gifts and incense in their hands to bring to the house of the Lord.

Then Ishmael son of Nethaniah came out of Mizpah to meet them, and he walked weeping, and when he met them, he said to them: come to Gedaliah son of Ahikam.

But as soon as they came into the middle of the city, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, accompanied by the men who were with him, slaughtered them, [and threw them] into a pit.

But there were ten men among them who said to Ishmael, "Do not kill us, for we have secret stores of wheat, barley, oil, and honey in the fields"; and he let them go and did not kill them with their brothers.

And the pit into which Ishmael threw the dead bodies of the men he killed at Gedaliah was the one that King Asa had made when he was afraid of Bahasa King of Israel; and Ishmael son of Nethaniah filled it with the slain.

And Ishmael took captive all those of the people who had remained in Mizpah, [namely] the King's daughters, and all the people who had remained in Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan, provost of the palace, had appointed to Gedaliah son of Ahikam; Ishmael, I say, son of Nethaniah, took them captive, and went to cross over to the children of Hammon.

But Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the fighting men who were with him, having heard of all the evil that Ishmael son of Nethaniah had done;

And having taken all their people they went to fight against Ishmael son of Nethaniah, whom they met near the great waters which are at Gibeon.

And it came to pass that as soon as all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the men of war who were with him, they rejoiced.

And all the people whom Ishmael was taking captive from Mizpah turned their faces, and turning around they went to Johanan son of Kareah.

But Ishmael son of Nethaniah escaped with eight men from before Johanan, and went to the children of Hammon.

And Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the fighting men who were with him took all the rest of the people whom they had rescued from the hands of Ishmael son of Nethaniah, [whom he was taking captive] from Mizpah, after he had struck down Gedaliah son of Ahikam, [namely] the mighty fighting men, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs; and brought them back from Gibeon.

And they departed and settled in Geruth-kimham, near Bethlehem, before departing and withdrawing to Egypt.

Because of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had killed Gedaliah son of Ahikam, who had been appointed over the land by the King of Babylon.

Then all the captains of the fighting men, and Johanan son of Kareah, and Jezaniah son of Hoshaiah, and all the people, from the least to the greatest, approached,

And they said to Jeremiah the Prophet: let our supplication be received from you, and ask the Lord your God for us, [namely] for all this remnant; for of many [we were] we are left but a few, as your eyes see us;

And may the Lord your God show us the way we should walk and what we should do.

And Jeremiah the Prophet answered them, "I have heard [your request]; behold, I am going to ask the Lord your God according to your words; and it shall come to pass that I will tell you all that the Lord answers you, and I will not hide a word from you."

And they said to Jeremiah, "May the Lord be a true and faithful witness between us if we do not do according to all the words for which the Lord your God has sent you to us."

Whether it is good or bad, we will obey the voice of the Lord our God, to whom we are sending you; so that good may come to us when we have obeyed the voice of the Lord our God.

And it came to pass at the end of ten days that the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah.

And he called Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the war men who were with him, and all the people, from the least to the greatest;

And he said to them, "Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, to whom you have sent me to present your supplication before him."

If you continue to remain in this land, I will restore you and not destroy you; I will plant you and not uproot you, for I have relented concerning the evil I have done to you.

Do not be afraid of the King of Babylon, whom you fear; do not be afraid of him, says the Lord, for I am with you to save you and to deliver you from his hand.

I will even grant you mercy, so much so that he will take pity on you and return you to your country.

But if you say: we will not remain in this land, and we will not listen to the voice of the Lord our God;

Saying: no; but we will go to the land of Egypt, so that we will not see war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor have a lack of bread; and we will stay there.

Therefore, listen now to the word of the Lord, you remnant of Judah. This is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: If you prepare to go to Egypt and enter to sojourn there;

It will happen that the sword you fear will catch you there in the land of Egypt; and the famine you so greatly fear will follow you to Egypt, so that you will die there.

And it will come to pass that all the men who have taken the necessary steps to enter Egypt in order to sojourn there will die by the sword, by famine, and by mortality; none of them will remain, nor will they escape from the evil that I am going to bring upon them.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: As my anger and my wrath were poured out on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall my wrath be poured out on you when you go into Egypt; and you shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and an reproach; and you shall see this place no more.

You, remnant of Judah, the Lord has spoken against you: do not enter Egypt, you will surely feel that I have commanded you today.

For you have deceived yourselves when you sent me to the Lord your God, saying to me, "Please petition the Lord our God for us, and tell us everything the Lord our God tells you, and we will do it."

And I have declared this to you today; but you have not listened to the voice of the Lord your God, nor to anything for which he sent me to you.

Now therefore, know for certain that you will die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence, in the place which you have desired to enter, to dwell there.

Now it came to pass that as soon as Jeremiah had finished speaking to all the people all the words of the Lord their God, for which the Lord their God had sent him to them, [namely] all these things;

Hazariah son of Hosahia, and Johanan son of Kareah, and all these proud men, said to Jeremiah: You are speaking lies; the Lord our God did not send you to tell us: Do not go into Egypt to sojourn there.

But Baruch son of Neriah is inciting you against us, in order to hand us over to the Chaldeans, to kill us, and to transport us to Babylon.

So Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the war men, and all the people did not listen to the voice of the Lord, but remained in the land of Judah.

For Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the fighting men took all the remnant of those from Judah who had returned from all the nations among which they had been driven, to dwell in the land of Judah;

The men, and the women, and the children, and the daughters of the King, and all the people whom Nebuzar-adan, provost of the palace, had left with Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan; [they took] also Jeremiah the Prophet, and Baruch son of Neriah;

And they entered the land of Egypt, for they did not obey the voice of the Lord; and they came as far as Taphne.

Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah in Taphneh, saying:

Take large stones in your hand, and hide them in the clay, in the tile works which are at the entrance of Pharaoh's house at Taphneh, while the Jews see it;

And said to them, "Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am going to summon and bring Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon my servant, and I will put his throne upon these stones which I have hidden, and he shall spread his canopy over them;

And he will come and strike the land of Egypt. Those destined for death will die; those destined for captivity will go into captivity; and those destined for the sword will be given over to the sword.

And I will kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt, and [Nebuchadnezzar] will burn them down, and he will lead the people of Egypt captive, and he will adorn himself with the riches of the land of Egypt, as a shepherd wraps himself in his garment, and he will go out in peace.

He will also smash the statues of the house of the sun which is in the land of Egypt, and burn with fire the houses of the gods of Egypt.

The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Jews who remained in the land of Egypt, and who lived in Migdol, in Taphnes, in Noph, and in the land of Patros, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: you have seen all the disaster that I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah; and behold, they are now a desolate place, and no one dwells there;

Because of the evil they did to anger me, by going and burning incense to serve other gods, which neither they, nor you, nor your fathers knew.

And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets, rising early in the morning and sending them to tell you: do not now commit this abominable thing, which I hate.

But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ears to turn away from their wickedness, so as not to offer incense to other gods.

That is why my fury and my anger have been poured out upon them and have been kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, which are reduced to a desert, [and] to desolation, as [it appears] today.

Therefore, this is what the Lord, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, says: Why are you doing this great evil to yourselves, cutting yourselves off from Judah, men and women, little children and infants, so that no one is left of you?

By provoking me to anger over the works of your hands, by burning incense to other gods in the land of Egypt, which you have just entered to sojourn there, so that you may be cut off, and become a curse and an object of reproach among all the nations of the earth?

Have you forgotten the sins of your fathers, and the sins of the Kings of Judah, and the sins of their wives, and your own sins, and the sins of your wives, which they committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

To this day they have not been grieved, they have not been afraid, and they have not walked in my Law, nor in my ordinances, which I set before you, and before your fathers also.

Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: "I am about to turn my face against you to harm you and to cut off all Judah."

And I will take the remnant of those of Judah who have prepared to enter the land of Egypt and sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed; they shall fall in the land of Egypt, they shall be consumed by the sword and by famine, from the least to the greatest; they shall die by the sword and by famine; and they shall be an execration, an astonishment, a curse, and a reproach.

And I will punish those who remain in the land of Egypt, as I punished Jerusalem, with the sword, with famine, and with death.

And there will be none of the remnant of Judah among those who came to dwell there, [that is], in the land of Egypt, to return to the land of Judah, to which they promise to return to dwell there, who escapes, and who remains there; for not one will return, except those who have escaped [from the others].

But all those who knew that their wives were burning incense to other gods, and all the women who were there in large groups; and all the people who lived in the land of Egypt, in Patros, answered Jeremiah, saying:

As for the word that you spoke to us in the Name of the Lord, we will not listen to you;

But we will certainly do all that has come out of our mouth in burning incense to the Queen of Heaven, and sprinkling her, as we and our fathers, our kings, and the leaders among us did in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, and we had plenty of bread, we were at ease, and we saw no harm.

But since we stopped burning incense to the Queen of Heaven and sprinkling her with holy water, we lacked everything and were consumed by sword and famine.

When we offered incense to the Queen of Heaven, and when we sprinkled her, did we offer her, without our husbands' knowledge, cakes on which she was depicted, or did we sprinkle her?

Then Jeremiah spoke to all the people, against the men and against the women, and against all the people who had given this answer, and said to them:

Has not the Lord remembered the incense you burned in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your ancestors, your kings and leaders, and the people of the land? Has not his heart been moved?

So that the Lord could not bear it any longer, because of the wickedness of your actions, and because of the abominations that you have committed; so that your land has become a desolate place, and an astonishment, and a curse, with no one living in it, as it is today.

Because you made these incense offerings, and you sinned against the Lord, and did not listen to the voice of the Lord, and did not walk in his Law, nor in his ordinances, nor in his testimonies, because of this evil has come upon you, as it appears today.

Then Jeremiah said to all the people and to all the women: All you people of Judah who are in the land of Egypt, listen to the word of the Lord.

This is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: "It is you and your wives who have spoken through your mouths concerning what you have done with your hands, saying, 'We will certainly fulfill our vows that we have made, by burning incense to the Queen of Heaven and sprinkling her with holy ...

Therefore, listen to the word of the Lord, all you people of Judah who dwell in the land of Egypt: behold, I have sworn by my great Name, says the Lord, that my Name shall no more be invoked by the mouth of any of Judah, who shall say in all the land of Egypt: As the Lord God lives.

Behold, I am watching against them for harm, not for good; and all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt shall be consumed by the sword and by famine, until there is none left.

And those who have escaped from the sword will return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah in very small numbers, and all the rest of those from Judah who have entered the land of Egypt to sojourn there will know which word will be fulfilled, mine or theirs.

And this will be a sign to you, says the Lord, that I will punish you in this place, so that you may know that my words will be fulfilled without fail against you in evil.

Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am about to deliver Pharaoh-Hophrah king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of those who seek his life, as I delivered Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, his enemy, who sought his life.

The word that Jeremiah the Prophet spoke to Baruch son of Neriah, when he wrote these words in a book, from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, saying:

Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, concerning you, Baruch.

You said: Woe to me! For the Lord has added sorrow to my pain; I am weary in my groaning, and I have found no rest.

You shall say to him: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am about to destroy what I have built, and uproot what I have planted, [namely] all this land.

And you, would you seek greatness for yourself? Do not seek it; for behold, I am going to bring disaster on all flesh, says the Lord; but I will give you your life as a prize, in all places where you go.

The word of the Lord which was [spoken] to Jeremiah the Prophet against the nations.

With regard to Egypt, against the army of Pharaoh Neco King of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates, at Carchemish, which Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon defeated in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah King of Judah.

Prepare the shield and shield, and approach for battle.

Harness the horses, and you riders, mount up; present yourselves with helmets, sharpen your lances, and put on your breastplates.

Why do I see this? They are terrified; they turn back; their strong men have been defeated, and they flee in haste, without looking behind them; terror surrounds them, says the Lord.

Let not the swift man flee, nor the strong escape; they are overthrown and fall toward the north, near the shore of the river Euphrates.

Who is this that rises like a river, and whose waters surge like the streams?

This is Egypt; it rises like a river, and [its] waters surge like the rivers; and it says: I will rise, I will cover the earth, I will destroy the cities, and those who dwell in them.

Mount your horses, act furiously, [come] chariots, and let the strong men come out: those of Cusa and Put who wield the shield, and the Ludians who wield [and] draw the bow.

For this is the day of the Lord, the Lord Almighty, a day of vengeance, to avenge himself on his adversaries. The sword will devour, and it will be sated and drunk with their blood; for there is a sacrifice to the Lord, the Lord Almighty, in the land of the north, by the river Euphrates.

Go up to Gilead, and take balm, virgin daughter of Egypt. In vain you use remedy upon remedy; for there is no healing for you.

The nations have heard of your shame, and your cry has filled the earth; for the strong have fallen upon the strong, and they have both fallen together.

The word that the Lord spoke to Jeremiah the Prophet concerning the coming of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, to strike the land of Egypt:

Make it known in Egypt, and publish it in Migdol, in Noph, and in Taphnes; [and] say: present yourself, and be ready; for the sword has devoured what is around you.

Why was each of your valiant men swept away? He could not stand firm, because the Lord pushed him.

He struck down a great many of them, and even each fell upon his companion, and they said: Arise, let us return to our people, and to the land of our birth, far from the sword of the oppressor.

They shouted there, Pharaoh King of Egypt is nothing but noise; he let the allotted time pass.

As surely as I live, says the King whose name is the Lord of hosts, as Tabor is between the mountains, and as Carmel is in the sea, so shall he come.

O daughter inhabitant of Egypt, prepare yourself to be dislodged, for Noph shall be desolate, and made deserted, without [there being] any more inhabitants.

Egypt is a very beautiful heifer; [but] destruction is coming, it is coming from the North.

Even the soldiers she keeps at home in her pay are like fattened calves, for they too have turned their backs; they have fled together, they have not stood firm, because the day of their calamity, the time of their punishment, has come upon them.

She will hiss like a serpent, for they will march with a mighty army, and they will come against her with axes, like woodcutters.

They will cut down his forest, says the Lord, though [the trees] could not be counted; because [their army will be] more numerous than the locusts, and they cannot be counted.

The daughter of Egypt is shamed, she is delivered into the hands of the people of the North.

The Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, has said: behold, I am going to punish the great people of No, and Pharaoh, and Egypt, and its gods, and its kings, both Pharaoh, and those who trust in him.

And I will deliver them into the hands of those who seek their lives, into the hands, I say, of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and into the hands of his servants; but after that it will be inhabited as in the days of old, says the Lord.

And you Jacob my servant, do not be afraid, and do not be dismayed, you Israel; for behold, I am going to deliver you from the distant land; and your descendants from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and be at rest and at ease, and there shall be no one to make him afraid.

“So you, Jacob my servant, do not be afraid,” says the Lord, “for I am with you; and indeed I will completely consume all the nations among which I have driven you; but I will not completely consume you, and I will discipline you in due measure; yet I will not leave you entirely innocent.”

The word of the Lord, which came to Jeremiah the Prophet against the Philistines, before Pharaoh struck Gaza.

Thus says the Lord: Behold, waters will rise from the north; they will be like an overflowing torrent; they will overflow upon the earth, and upon all that is in it, upon the city, and upon its inhabitants; the people will cry out, and all the inhabitants of the land will wail;

Because of the resounding noise of the hooves of his powerful horses, because of the impetuosity of his chariots, and because of the noise of his wheels; the fathers did not look at the children, so cowardly were their hands.

Because of the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines, [and] to cut off from Tyre and Sidon whoever remains to help them; for the Lord is going to plunder the Philistines, who are the remnant of the Isle of Caphtor.

Gaza has gone bald; Ashkelon no longer speaks to the rest of their valley; how long will you cut yourself?

Ah! sword of the Lord, how long will you not rest? Return to your sheath, be still, and be at rest.

But how could you rest? For the Lord has given her a charge, he has assigned her against Ashkelon, and against the seashore.

As for Moab; thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Woe to Nebo, for it has been plundered! Kiriathaim has been put to shame, and has been taken; the high stronghold has been put to shame and terrified.

Moab will no longer boast of Heshbon; for evil has been plotted against it, [saying]: come, let us destroy it, [and] let it no longer be a nation; you too Madmen will be destroyed, and the sword will pursue you.

There is a sound of shouting from Horonajim, looting and a great defeat.

Moab is broken, the cry of her little children has been heard.

Weeping upon weeping will ascend by the ascent of Luhith, for on the descent of Horonajim will be heard those who cry out because of the plagues that the enemies have inflicted upon them.

Flee, [they will say], save your lives; and you will be like heather in a desert.

For because you trusted in your works and in your treasures, you will be taken, and Chemos will go out to be carried away with his priests and his chiefs.

And the one who causes the destruction will enter all the cities, and not one city will escape; the valley will perish, and the flat land will be destroyed, according to what the Lord has said;

Give wings to Moab; for surely it will fly away, and its cities will be reduced to desolation, without anyone living there.

Cursed be he who does the work of the Lord fraudulently, and cursed be he who keeps his sword from shedding blood!

Moab has been at ease since its youth; it has rested on its lees; it has not been emptied from ship to ship, and has not been transported, therefore its flavor has always remained in it, and its odor has not changed;

But behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will send men who will capture her, empty her ships, and break her wineskins in pieces.

And Moab will be ashamed because of Chemosh, just as the house of Israel became ashamed because of Bethel, which was their trust.

How do you say: we are strong and valiant in the fight?

Moab will be sacked, and each of its cities will go up in smoke, and the elite of its young men will go down to be slaughtered, says the King whose Name is the Lord of hosts.

The calamity of Moab is near, and its ruin is fast approaching.

All you who are around him, be moved with compassion, and all you who know his name, say: How was this mighty rod broken, and this scepter of honor?

You who dwell with the daughter of Dibon, come down from your glory and sit in a dry place; for he who plundered Moab has come up against you and destroyed your strongholds.

Inhabitant of Haroher, stand by the road and look around; ask him who fled and her who escaped, [and] say: what happened?

Moab is put to shame; for it has been torn to pieces; howl and cry out, report in Arnon that Moab has been plundered;

And judgment came upon the flat land, upon Holon, and upon Iathsah, and upon Mephahat,

And on Dibon, and on Nebo, and on Bethdiblathajim,

And on Kiriathajim, and on Beth-gamul, and on Beth-mehon,

And on Kerioth, and on Bozrah, and on all the cities of the land of Moab, both near and far.

The strength of Moab has been broken, and its arm has been shattered, says the Lord.

Make him drunk, for he has risen up against the Lord. Moab will wallow in the wine he has given up, and he too will become an object of ridicule.

For, [O Moab!] did not Israel mock you, [like] a man caught among thieves? Every time you spoke of him, you rejoiced.

Inhabitants of Moab, leave the cities and dwell in the rocks, and be like the dove that makes its nest beside the entrance of the caves.

We have heard of the pride of Moab the most proud, his arrogance and his pride, and his haughty heart.

I have known his fury, says the Lord; but it shall not be so; [I have known] those on whom he relies; they have done nothing right.

I will therefore howl because of Moab, indeed I will cry out because of all Moab; they will groan over those of Kir-heres.

O vineyard of Sibmah, I will weep over you with the weeping of Jahzer; your crops have passed beyond the sea, they have reached the Sea of Jahzer; the one who causes damage has thrown himself upon your summer fruits, and upon your vintage.

Joy and gladness have withdrawn from the fertile field and from the land of Moab, and I have stopped the wine from the vats; they will no longer tread there singing, and the song of the vintage will no longer be sung there.

Because of the cry of Heshbon which reached Elhale, they cast their cries as far as Jahaz; even from Zohar to Horonajim, [like] a three-year-old heifer; for also the waters of Nimrim shall be reduced to desolation.

And I will make it so that there will no longer be in Moab, says the Lord, anyone who offers on the high places, nor anyone who burns incense to its gods.

Therefore my heart will raise a sound like flutes over Moab; my heart will raise a sound like flutes over those of Kir-heres, because all the abundance of what he acquired has perished.

For every head shall be bald, and every beard shaved; and there shall be cuts on every hand, and sackcloth on the loins.

There will be lamentation on all the rooftops of Moab, and in its squares, because I will have smashed Moab like a ship in which no one takes pleasure, says the Lord.

Howl, [saying]: How has he been torn to pieces? How has Moab turned his back in shame? For Moab will be an object of mockery and terror to all who are around him.

For thus says the Lord: behold, he shall fly like an eagle, and spread his wings over Moab.

Kerioth has been taken, and the fortresses have been seized, and the heart of the mighty men of Moab will be on that day like the heart of a woman in labor.

And Moab will be exterminated, so much so that it will no longer be a people, because it has risen up against the Lord.

Inhabitant of Moab, terror, the pit, and the snare are upon you, says the Lord.

He who flees because of fear will fall into the pit; and he who comes up from the pit will be caught in the net; for I will bring upon him, [that is to say] upon Moab, the year of their punishment, says the Lord.

They stopped in the shadow of Heshbon, wanting to avoid the force; but fire came out of Heshbon, and flame from the midst of Sihon, which will devour a district of Moab, and the crown of the head of noisy people.

Woe to you, Moab! The people of Chemo are lost; for your sons have been taken captive, and your daughters captive.

However, in the last days I will restore and set at rest the captives of Moab, says the Lord. Until then, this is the judgment of Moab.

As for the children of Hammon, this is what the Lord says: Has Israel no children, or no heir? Why then has Malcam inherited the land of Gad, and why do his people remain in the cities of Gad?

Therefore, behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will cause an alarm to be heard in Rabbah of the children of Hammon, and it shall be reduced to a heap of ruins, and the cities within its jurisdiction shall be burned with fire, and Israel shall possess those who possess it, says the Lord.

Wail, O Heshbon! For Hai has been devastated. Cities of Rabbah's jurisdiction, cry out; put on sackcloth, wail, run along the hedges; for Malcam will go into captivity with his priests and his leaders.

Why do you boast of your valleys? Your valley has run dry, you stubborn daughter. She trusted in her treasures, and said, "Who can come against me?"

"Behold, I am going to bring terror upon you from all around you," says the Lord, the Lord of hosts, "and you shall be scattered to and fro, and there shall be no one to gather the scattered people."

But after that I will bring back the captives of the children of Hammon, says the Eternal.

As for Edom, this is what the Lord Almighty says: Is it not true that there is no more wisdom in Teman? Counsel has failed its inhabitants, their wisdom has vanished.

Flee, turn back, you inhabitants of Dedan, who have dug hollows to dwell in; for I have brought his calamity upon Esau, at the time when I visited him.

Did grape harvesters enter your home? They wouldn't have left you a single glean.

Were they night thieves? They would have caused as much damage as they could.

But I searched Esau, I discovered his secret places, so that he cannot hide; his descendants are destroyed, his brothers too, and his neighbors; and he is nothing.

Leave your orphans, and I will provide for them, and let your widows trust in me.

For thus says the Lord: behold, those who were not to drink from the cup shall surely drink from it; and shall you be exempt in any way? You shall not be exempt; but you shall surely drink from it.

For I have sworn by myself, says the Lord, that Bozrah shall become a desolation, a reproach, a desolation, and a curse, and that all its cities shall become perpetual desolations.

I have heard a proclamation from the Lord, and there is an ambassador sent among the nations, [saying to them]: Assemble yourselves, and come against her, and rise up to fight.

For behold, I have made you lowly among the nations, and contemptible among men.

But your presumption and the pride of your heart have deceived you, you who dwell in the clefts of the rocks and occupy the heights of the hills. Though you raise your nest like the eagle, I will bring you down from it, says the Lord.

And Idumea will be reduced to desolation, so much so that whoever passes by it will be astonished, and will insult it because of all its wounds.

No one will remain there, says the Lord, nor will any son of man dwell there, as in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, and their surrounding places.

Behold, he will go up like a lion because of the swelling of the Jordan, toward the dwelling place of the harsh land, and after I have made him lie down I will drive him out of Idumea. And who is chosen, whom shall I appoint against her? For who is like me? And who will determine the time for me? And who is the Shepherd who will stand against me?

Therefore, listen to the plan that the Lord has taken against Edom, and the purposes that he has formed against the inhabitants of Teman; unless the smallest of the flock drag them on the ground, and unless their huts are laid waste upon them.

The earth shook with the sound of their ruin; there was a cry, the sound of which was heard in the Red Sea.

Behold, he shall mount like an eagle, and he shall fly, and spread his wings over Bozrah; and the heart of the mighty of Edom in that day shall be like the heart of a woman in labor.

As for Damascus; Hamath and Arpad have been made ashamed, because they have learned very bad news, they are melted, there is a storm in the sea, it cannot be calmed.

Damas is completely cowardly, she is put to flight, fear has surprised her, anguish and pain have seized her like a woman giving birth.

Why wasn't the renowned city, my pleasure city, reserved?

For her elite men will fall in her streets, and all her fighting men will be rendered speechless on that day, says the Lord of hosts.

And I will set fire to the wall of Damascus, which will devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

As for Kedar, and the Kingdoms of Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon will strike, thus says the Lord: Arise, go up to Kedar, and destroy the children of the East.

They will take away their tents and their flocks, and will take for themselves their tents, and all their equipment, and their camels, and there will be a cry of terror all around.

Flee, get out of my way as much as you can, you inhabitants of Hazor, who have dug out hollows to dwell in, says the Lord; for Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon has formed a plan against you, he has taken a decision against you.

Arise, go up to the nation that is at rest, that dwells securely, says the Lord; that have neither gates nor bars, and that dwell alone.

And their camels will be plundered, and the multitude of their cattle will be prey; and I will scatter them to every wind, to those who cut the ends of their hair, and I will bring their calamity from every side, says the Lord.

And Hazor will become a den of dragons, and a desolate place forever; no one will dwell there, and no son of man will sojourn there.

The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah the Prophet against Helam at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I am going to break the bow of Helam, which is their chief strength.

And I will bring against Helam the four winds from the four corners of the heavens, and I will scatter them in all those winds; and there will be no nation to which those driven out of Helam will not return.

And I will make those of Helam terrified before their enemies, and before those who seek their lives; and I will bring evil upon them, the fierceness of my anger, says the Lord; and I will send the sword after them, until I have consumed them.

And I will set my throne in Helam, and I will destroy its kings and leaders, says the Lord.

But in the last days I will bring back the captives from Helam, says the Lord.

The word that the Lord spoke against Babylon, [and] against the land of the Chaldeans, by means of Jeremiah the Prophet.

Make it known among the nations, and proclaim it, and raise up the sign; proclaim it, do not hide it; say: Babylon has been taken; Bel is put to shame; Merodach is broken, his idols are put to shame, and their dung gods are broken.

For a nation has come up against it from the north, which will make its land a desolation, and there will be no one to live in it; both men and beasts have fled from it, they have gone away.

In those days and at that time, says the Lord, the children of Israel will come, they and the children of Judah together; they will come going and weeping, and seeking the Lord their God.

Those in Zion will inquire about the way toward which they should set their faces, and they will say, "Come, and join yourselves to the Lord. There is an everlasting covenant, which will never be forgotten."

My people have been like lost sheep; their shepherds have led them astray, and made them wander among the mountains; they have gone from mountain to hill, and they have forgotten their place.

All who found them ate them, and their enemies said: we will not be guilty of any harm, because they have sinned against the Lord, against the dwelling place of justice; and the Lord was the expectation of their fathers.

Flee from Babylon, and leave the land of the Chaldeans, and be like the goats that go before the flock.

For behold, I am going to raise up and bring against Babylon an assembly of great nations from the land of the north, who will array themselves in battle array against her, so that she will be taken. Their arrows will be like those of a mighty man, who only destroys, and does not return empty.

And Chaldea will be given over to plunder, and all who plunder it will be satisfied, says the Lord.

Because you rejoiced, because you were merry, ravaging my inheritance, because you fattened yourselves like a heifer grazing on grass, and you neighed like mighty horses.

Your mother has become very ashamed, and she who bore you has blushed; behold, she will be the very last among the nations, she will be a desert, a dry land, a wasteland.

It will no longer be inhabited because of the Lord's indignation; it will be entirely desolate. Anyone who passes by Babylon will be astonished and will insult her because of all her plagues.

Draw up your battle lines against Babylon, surround her; all you who bend the bow, shoot at her, and spare no arrows; for she has sinned against the Lord.

Shout for joy against her all around; she has stretched out her hand; her foundations have fallen, her walls are overturned; for this is the vengeance of the Lord; take revenge on her; do to her as she has done.

Cut off from Babylon the sower, and him who holds the sickle at harvest time; let each one return to his people, and let each one flee to his country, because of the sword of the oppressor.

Israel is like a stray sheep that the lions have scared away. The King of Assyria devoured it first, but this last one, Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, broke its bones.

Therefore this is what the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, says: "I am going to visit the king of Babylon and his land, just as I visited the king of Assyria."

And I will bring Israel back to its huts; it will graze in Carmel and in Bashan, and its soul will be satisfied in the mountains of Ephraim and Gilead.

In those days and at that time, says the Lord, they will look for the iniquity of Israel, but there will be none; and for the sins of Judah, but they will not be found; for I will forgive those whom I have left to remain.

[Come] against that land, you [two] rebels; go up against it, and against the inhabitants destined for visitation; dry up, and destroy in the manner of the banished after them, says the Lord, and do according to all the things that I have commanded you.

The alarm is in the country, and a great calamity.

How the hammer of the whole earth is shattered and broken! How Babylon is brought to astonishment among the nations!

I spread nets for you, and you were caught, O Babylon! And you did not know it; you were found and caught, because you defied the Lord.

The Lord has opened his armory, and brought out the weapons of his indignation; because the Lord, the Lord of hosts, has a plan to carry out in the land of the Chaldeans.

Come against her from the ends of the earth, open her barns, trample her like sheaves; destroy her as if forbidden, and let her have nothing left.

Cut the throats of all her calves, and let them go down to the slaughter; woe to them! For the day has come, the time of their visitation.

[We hear] the voice of those who flee, and who have escaped from the land of Babylon, to announce in Zion the vengeance of the Lord our God, the vengeance for his Temple.

Assemble the archers against Babylon with a public shout; all you who draw the bow, encamp against her all around; let no one escape; repay her according to her deeds; do to her according to all that she has done; for she has proudly gone out against the Lord, against the Holy One of Israel.

Therefore, his elite troops will fall in the squares, and all his fighting men will be rendered speechless on that day, says the Lord.

"Behold, I am against you, who are pride itself," says the Lord, the Lord of hosts; "for your day has come, the time when I will visit you."

Pride will stumble and fall, and there will be no one to raise it up; I will also kindle fire in its cities, and it will devour all its surroundings.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: The children of Israel and the children of Judah have been oppressed together; all who took them hold them fast, and have refused to let them go.

Their Redeemer is strong, his Name is the Lord of hosts; he will earnestly plead their cause, to give rest to the land, and to confound the inhabitants of Babylon. The sword is upon the Chaldeans, says the Lord, and upon the inhabitants of Babylon, upon her leaders, and upon her wise men.

The sword is drawn against his soothsayers, and they will lose their minds; the sword is against his mighty men, and they will be terrified.

The sword is upon her horses, and upon her chariots, and upon all the mass of various kinds of people which [is] in the midst of her, and they shall become [like] women; the sword is upon her treasures, and they shall be plundered.

A drought will be upon its waters, and they will dry up; because it is a land of carved images, and they will act foolishly toward their gods who terrify them.

Therefore the wild beasts of the deserts and those of the islands will dwell there, and the owls will also dwell there; and it will never again be inhabited, nor will anyone dwell there for any time.

No one will remain there, says the Lord, nor will any son of man dwell in it, as in the subversion that God brought upon Sodom and Gomorrah, and their surrounding places.

Behold, a people and a great nation is coming from the north, and many kings will awaken from the depths of the earth.

They will take up the bow and the banner; they are cruel, and they will have no compassion; their voice will roar like the sea, and they will be mounted on horses; each of them is arrayed as a man of war against you, daughter of Babylon.

The King of Babylon heard the noise, and his hands went limp; anguish seized him, [and] a labor like that of a woman giving birth.

Behold, he will go up like a lion because of the swelling of the Jordan, to the dwelling place of the harsh land, and after I have made them rest, I will make them run out of Chaldea. And who is chosen, whom shall I commission against her? For who is like me? And who will determine the time for me? And who is the shepherd who will stand against me?

Therefore, listen to the plan that the Lord has made against Babylon, and the purposes that he has devised against the land of the Chaldeans: unless the smallest of the flock drag them on the ground, and unless their huts are laid waste upon them.

The earth shook at the sound of Babylon's capture, and the cry was heard among the nations.

Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am going to raise a wind of destruction against Babylon, and against those who dwell in the heart [of the Kingdom] of those who rise up against me.

And I will send winnowers against Babylon who will winnow her and empty her land; for they will come against her from all sides in the day of her calamity.

Let the bow be bent against him who bends his bow, and against him who trusts in his breastplate; and spare not his elite men, exterminate his entire army in the manner of the forbidden;

And the mortally wounded will fall in the land of the Chaldeans; and the pierced [will fall] in its places;

For Israel and Judah are not without their God, the Lord of hosts; although their land was found by the Holy One of Israel full of sins.

Flee from Babylon, and save your own life; do not be destroyed in her iniquity; for it is the time of the Lord's vengeance; he will repay her what she deserves.

Babylon was like a golden cup in the hand of the Lord, making the whole earth drunk; the nations drank of her wine; therefore the nations lost their minds.

Babylon fell in an instant, and was shattered; howl at her, take balm for her pain, perhaps she will heal.

We have dealt with Babylon, and she is not healed; leave her and let us each go to our own country; for her case has reached to the heavens and has risen to the clouds.

The Lord has demonstrated our righteousness. Come, let us proclaim in Zion the deeds of the Lord our God.

Sharpen the arrows, and grasp the shields with both hands; the Lord has stirred up the spirit of the kings of Medea; for his purpose is against Babylon to destroy her, because this is the vengeance of the Lord, and the vengeance for his Temple.

Raise the standard on the walls of Babylon, strengthen the garrison, post the guards, prepare ambushes; for the Lord has formed a plan, even he has done what he said against the inhabitants of Babylon.

You were seated upon many waters, abundant in treasures; your end has come, and the culmination of your dishonest gain.

The Lord of hosts has sworn by himself, saying: unless I fill you with men like hurebecks, and they answer one another to encourage one another against you.

It is he who made the earth by his virtue, and who arranged the habitable world by his wisdom, and who stretched out the heavens by his understanding.

As soon as he makes his voice heard there is a great roar of waters in the heavens; after he makes the mists rise from the ends of the earth, his lightning announces the rain, and he brings the wind out of his storehouses.

Every man appears dull in his knowledge; every bronze caster is put to shame by the carved images; for what they cast is falsehood, and there is no breath in them.

They are nothing but vanity, and a work fit to deceive; they will perish at the time of their visitation.

Jacob's portion is not like these things; for he is the one who formed all things, and he is the lot of his inheritance; his name is the Lord of hosts.

You have been my hammer [and] instruments of war; by you I have torn nations to pieces, and by you I have destroyed kingdoms.

And through you I have smashed the horse and its rider to pieces; and through you I have smashed the chariot and its rider to pieces.

And through you I have torn to pieces the man and the woman; and through you I have torn to pieces the old man and the young boy; and through you I have torn to pieces the young man and the virgin.

And through you I have torn to pieces the shepherd and his flock; and through you I have torn to pieces the farmer and his yoked oxen; and through you I have torn to pieces the governors and the magistrates.

But I will repay Babylon and all the inhabitants of Chaldea for all the evil they have done to Zion, as you see, says the Lord.

"Behold, I am against you, O destroying mountain," says the Lord, "that destroys the whole earth; and I will stretch out my hand against you, and roll you down from the height of the rocks, and I will make you a burning mountain."

And no stone will be taken from you to set as a cornerstone, nor any stone to serve as a foundation, for you will be a perpetual desolation, says the Lord.

Raise the banner on the earth, sound the trumpet among the nations; prepare the nations against her; summon against her the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Askenas; appoint captains against her, mount her horses like the bristling hurricane.

Prepare against her the nations, the kings of Medea, her governors, and all her magistrates, and all the land under her dominion.

And the earth will be shaken and in labor, because all that the Lord has planned has been done against Babylon, to reduce the land to desolation, so that there is no one to inhabit it.

The mighty men of Babylon have ceased to fight, they have stood in the fortresses, their strength is extinguished, and they have become [like] women; her dwellings have been burned; and her bars have been broken.

The courier will come to meet the courier, and the messenger will come to meet the messenger, to announce to the King of Babylon that his city is taken at one end;

And that its fords are surprised, and that its marshes are burned with fire, and that the men of war are terrified.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: the daughter of Babylon is like a threshing floor; it is time for her to be trodden; yet a little while, and the time of her harvest will come.

Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, [Jerusalem will say], has devoured me and crushed me; he has made me like a ship that serves no purpose; he has swallowed me like a dragon; he has filled his belly with my delights, he has driven me far away.

What he has taken from me by violence, and my flesh [is] in Babylon, will say the inhabitant of Zion; and my blood is with the inhabitants of Chaldea, will say Jerusalem.

Therefore this is what the Lord says: "I am going to plead your case, and I will take vengeance on you; I will dry up her sea and make her spring run dry."

And Babylon will be reduced to heaps, a dwelling place of dragons, an astonishment, and a reproach, with no one dwelling there.

They will roar together like lion cubs, and make a sound like lion fawns.

I will make them revel in their feasts, and make them drunk, so that they will be glad and sleep a perpetual sleep, and will not wake up, says the Lord.

I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, and like sheep with goats.

How was Sheshach captured? And how was she who was the praise of all the earth taken captive? How was Babylon made a desolation among the nations?

The sea rose over Babylon, and was covered with its many waves.

Its cities were a source of astonishment, a dry land of wastelands, a country where no one lives, and where not a son of man passes.

I will also punish Bel in Babylon, and I will bring out of his mouth what he had swallowed, and the nations will no longer approach him; even the wall of Babylon has fallen.

My people, come out of the midst of her, and save your lives each from the fierceness of the Lord's anger.

Lest your heart grow weak, and you be afraid of the news that will be heard throughout the land; for news will come one year, and after that [other] news another year, and there will be violence in the land, and ruler upon ruler.

Therefore, behold, the days are coming when I will punish the carved images of Babylon, and all her land shall be put to shame, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.

The heavens and the earth and everything in them will rejoice and sing against Babylon, because destroyers will come against her from the north, says the Lord.

And as Babylon caused the mortally wounded of Israel to fall, so shall the mortally wounded of the whole land fall in Babylon.

You who have escaped from the sword, keep going, do not stop; remember the Lord in these distant lands where you are, and let Jerusalem return to your heart.

[But you will say]: we are ashamed of the reproaches we have heard; confusion has covered our faces, because foreigners have come against the sanctuaries of the house of the Lord.

Therefore, behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will avenge her carved images, and the mortally wounded will groan throughout her land.

Even if Babylon were to ascend to the heavens, and would have fortified the highest of her fortresses, yet the destroyers would enter her by me, says the Lord.

A great cry is heard from Babylon, and a great scattering from the land of the Chaldeans.

Because the Lord is going to destroy Babylon, and he will abolish the magnificent voice from within her, and their waves will roar like mighty waters, the majesty of their noise will resound.

For the destroyer has come against her, against Babylon; her mighty men have been captured, and their bows have been broken; for the Lord, the mighty God of retribution, never fails to repay.

I will make drunk its leaders and wise men, its governors and magistrates, and its mighty men; they will sleep a perpetual sleep, and they will not wake up again, says the King whose Name is the Lord of hosts.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: There shall not be a wall of Babylon, however broad, that shall not be completely razed; and its gates, which are so high, shall be burned with fire; so the peoples shall have labored in vain, and the nations for fire, and they shall have grown weary of it.

This is the order that Jeremiah the Prophet gave to Seraiah, son of Neriah, son of Mahaseiah, when he went from Zedekiah King of Judah to Babylon in the fourth year of his reign; now Seraiah was chief chamberlain.

For Jeremiah wrote in a book all the evil that was to come upon Babylon; namely, all these words that are written against Babylon.

Jeremiah then said to Seraiah: As soon as you come to Babylon, and see it, you will read all these words;

And you will say: Lord, you have spoken against this place to destroy it, so that there will be no inhabitant, neither man nor beast, but that it will be reduced to a perpetual desolation.

And as soon as you have finished reading this book, you shall tie it to a stone, and throw it into the Euphrates;

And you will say: Babylon will be plunged into this, and she will not rise again from the disaster I am about to bring upon her, and they will be overwhelmed by it. These are the words of Jeremiah up to this point.

Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem, his mother's name was Hamutal, [and] she was the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

He did what was displeasing to the Lord, just as Jehoiakim had done.

For it [happened] because of the anger of the Lord against Jerusalem and Judah, to the point of rejecting them from before him, that Zedekiah rebelled against the King of Babylon.

So it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign; on the tenth day of the tenth month, that Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon came against Jerusalem, he and all his army, and they encamped against it, and made siege works all around.

And the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah.

And on the ninth day of the fourth month the famine worsened in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land.

Then the breach was made in the city, and all the warriors fled, and left the city by night, by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was near the King's garden (now the Chaldeans were all around the city) and went away by the way of the country.

But the Chaldean army pursued the King, and when they reached Zedekiah in the fields of Jericho, his entire army scattered from him.

So they took the King, and brought him up to the King of Babylon at Riblath in the land of Hamath, where he was put on trial.

And the King of Babylon had the sons of Zedekiah slaughtered in his presence; he also had all the leaders of Judah slaughtered at Riblath.

Then he had Zedekiah's eyes gouged out, and bound him with double bronze chains, and the King of Babylon brought him to Babylon, and put him in prison until the day of his death.

And on the tenth day of the fifth month, in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, provost of the palace, ordinary servant of the King of Babylon, entered Jerusalem;

And burned the house of the Lord, and the royal house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and set fire to all the houses of the nobles.

And the whole army of the Chaldeans, which was with the provost of the inn, demolished all the walls that were around Jerusalem.

And Nebuzaradan, provost of the palace, transported [to Babylon] some of the poorest of the people, the rest of the people, [namely] those who had remained in the city, and those who had gone to surrender to the King of Babylon, with the rest of the multitude.

However, Nebuzar-adan, provost of the hotel, left some of the poorest people in the country to be vine growers and farmers.

And the Chaldeans broke into pieces the bronze pillars that were in the house of the Lord, with the bases; and the bronze sea that was in the house of the Lord, and carried all the bronze to Babylon.

They also took away the cauldrons, scrapers, sickles, basins, cups, and all the bronze utensils used in their service.

The provost of the hotel also took away the cups, and the censers, and the basins, and the cauldrons, and the candlesticks, and the cups, and the goblets; that which was of gold, and that which was of silver.

As for the two pillars, the sea, and the twelve bronze oxen that served as bases, which King Solomon had made for the house of the Lord, the bronze of all those vessels was not weighed.

Now as for the columns, each column was eighteen cubits high, and a cord of twelve cubits was around it; and it was four fingers thick, and was hollow; and there was above it a bronze capital; and the height of one of the capitals [was] five cubits, there was also a net and pomegranates all around the capital, all of bronze; and the second column was of the same kind, and also the pomegranates.

There were also ninety-six grenades on the side, [and] the grenades that were on the net around, were one hundred in all.

Furthermore, the provost of the hotel took away Seraiah, who was the first priest, and Zephaniah, who was the second priest, and the three guards of the ships.

He also brought from the city a eunuch who was in charge of the fighting men, and seven men from those who were near the person of the King, who were found in the city; and the Secretary of the Captain of the army who was enlisting the people of the country; and sixty men from among the people of the country, who were found in the city.

Nebuzar-adan, the steward of the inn, took them and brought them to the King of Babylon at Riblah.

And the King of Babylon struck them down and killed them at Riblah in the land of Hamath. Thus Judah was carried out of its land.

And this is the people that Nebuchadnezzar deported; in the seventh year, three thousand twenty-three Jews.

In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, eight hundred and thirty-two people were brought up from Jerusalem.

In the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzar-adan, provost of the inn, transported seven hundred and forty-five people of the Jews; so all the people were four thousand six hundred.

Now it came to pass in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin, King of Judah, on the twenty-fifth day of the twelfth month, that Evilmerodach, King of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, brought Jehoiachin King of Judah out of prison, and set him free.

And he spoke kindly to him, and placed his throne above the throne of the [other] kings who were with him in Babylon.

And after he had changed his prison clothes, he ate bread normally every day of his life in the presence of the King.

And as for his daily routine, a continuous routine was established for him by the King of Babylon for each day, until the day of his death, for the whole time of his life.

[Aleph.] How did it come about that the once so populated city should be so lonely?

That she who was great among the nations should become like a widow? That she who was Lady among the Provinces should be made a tributary?

[Beth.] She does not cease to weep during the night, and her tears are on her cheeks; there is not one of all her friends who consoles her; her close friends have acted treacherously against her, they have become her enemies.

[Gimel.] Judea has been taken captive because of her affliction and her great servitude; she now dwells among the nations and finds no rest; all her persecutors have caught her in her straits.

[Daleth.] The roads of Zion mourn because no one comes to the solemn feasts; all her gates are desolate, her priests weep, her virgins are overcome with sorrow; she is filled with bitterness.

[He.] Her adversaries were established as leaders, her enemies prospered; for the Lord plunged her into affliction because of the multitude of her sins, her little children went into captivity before the adversary;

[Vau.] And all the honor of the daughter of Zion has departed from her; her leaders have become like deer that find no pasture, and they have walked destitute by force, before the one who pursued them.

[Zajin.] Jerusalem in the days of her affliction and her poor state remembered all her desirable things which she had for so long, when her people fell by the hand of the enemy, without anyone helping her; the enemies saw her, and mocked her Sabbaths.

[Heth.] Jerusalem has sinned grievously; therefore heads have been shaken against her; all who honored her have despised her, because they have seen her disgrace; she also wept, and turned back.

[Teth.] Her filth was in the folds of her robe, [and] she did not remember her end; she was exceedingly low, and she has no comforter. Look, O Lord, upon my affliction, for the enemy has exalted himself [with pride].

[Jod.] The enemy has stretched out his hand on all her desirable things; for she has seen the nations enter her Sanctuary concerning which you had given this order: They shall not enter your assembly.

[Caph.] All her people weep, seeking bread; they have given their desirable things for food, in order to regain their hearts; look, O Eternal! and contemplate; for I have become despised.

[Lamed.] Does this not concern you? All you passers-by, look, and see if there is any pain like my pain, which was done to me, whom the Lord overwhelmed with pain in the day of his fierce anger.

[Mem.] He sent fire from on high into my bones, which consumed them all; he spread a net for my feet, and made me go backward; he made me desolate [and] languish all day long.

[Nun.] The yoke of my iniquities is held tightly in his hand; they are twisted, [and] applied to my neck; he has caused my strength to fall; the Lord has delivered me into the hands of [those] from whom I cannot rise.

[Samech.] The Lord has struck down all the mighty men I had in my midst; he has summoned his appointed men against me, to cut my elite men to pieces. The Lord has pulled the winepress on the virgin daughter of Judah.

[Hajin.] Because of these things I weep, [and] my eye, my eye melts into water; for the comforter who restored my heart is far from me; my children are desolate, because the enemy has been the strongest.

[Pe.] Zion is torn apart by his hands, and no one comforts her; the Lord has summoned his enemies against Jacob all around him; Jerusalem has become between them, like a woman separated because of her uncleanness.

[Tsadi.] The Lord is righteous, for I have rebelled against his command. Listen, I pray you, all you peoples, and see my suffering; my virgins and my elite men have gone into captivity.

[Koph.] I called my friends, but they deceived me. My priests and my elders died in the city; for they sought food for themselves, in order to revive their hearts.

[Resch.] Look, O Eternal One! for I am in distress; my bowels rage, my heart palpitates within me, because I have only been rebellious; outside the sword has deprived me of children; inside there is something like death.

[Scin.] I have been heard sobbing, [and] I have no one to comfort me; all my enemies have learned of my misfortune, and have rejoiced, because you have done it; you will bring the day that you have appointed, and they will be in my state.

[Thau.] Let all their wickedness come before you, and do to them as you have done to me because of all my sins; for my sobs are many, and my heart is faint.

[Aleph.] How is it that the Lord has covered the daughter of Zion all around with his anger, as with a cloud, and has cast down from heaven to earth the ornament of Israel, and has not remembered in the day of his anger the footstool of her feet?

[Beth.] The Lord has destroyed, and has not spared all the dwellings of Jacob; he has ruined in his fury the strongholds of the daughter of Judah, [and] thrown her to the ground; he has profaned the Kingdom and its princes.

[Gimel.] He cut off all the strength of Israel by the fierceness of his anger; he withdrew his right hand from before the enemy; he kindled in Jacob like a blazing fire, which consumed him all around.

[Daleth.] He bent his bow like an enemy; his right hand was applied to it like that of an adversary; and he killed all that was pleasing to the eye in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion; he poured out his fury like fire.

[He.] The Lord has been like an enemy; he has destroyed Israel, he has destroyed all her palaces, he has scattered all her strongholds, and he has multiplied mourning and affliction in the daughter of Judah.

[Vau.] He violently tore to pieces his dwelling, like [the hut] of a garden; he destroyed the place of his Assembly; the Lord caused the solemn feast and the Sabbath to be forgotten in Zion, and he rejected in the indignation of his anger the King and the Priest.

[Zajin.] The Lord has cast aside his altar, he has destroyed his Sanctuary; he has given the walls of his palaces into the hand of the enemy; they have raised their cries in the house of the Lord as on the days of solemn feasts.

[Heth.] The Lord intended to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion; he stretched out the measuring line there, and he did not restrain his hand lest he destroy it; and he desolated the forewall, and the wall, they were all destroyed together.

[Theth.] Its gates are sunk into the ground, it has destroyed and broken its bars; its king and its leaders are among the nations; the Law is no more, even its prophets have found no vision from the Lord.

[Jod.] The elders of the daughter of Zion sit on the ground, [and] are silent; they have put powder on their heads, they have girded themselves with sackcloth; the virgins of Jerusalem bow their heads to the ground.

[Caph.] My eyes are consumed with tears, my bowels are in turmoil, my liver has poured out on the ground, because of the plague of the daughter of my people, because the little children and those who were nursing have fainted in the squares of the city.

[Lamed.] They said to their mothers, "Where is the wheat and the wine?" when they fell into weakness in the city squares, like a man mortally wounded, and gave up their spirit in their mothers' arms.

[Mem] Whom shall I call to witness against you? To whom shall I compare with you, daughter of Jerusalem, and to whom shall I compare you, that I may comfort you, virgin daughter of Zion; for your wound is as deep as a sea? Who is there who will heal you?

[Nun.] Your prophets have planned vain and frivolous things for you, and they have not discovered your iniquity to avert your captivity; but they have planned vain burdens for you, suitable for driving you out.

[Samech.] All the passers-by have clapped their hands at you, they have mocked you, and they have shaken their heads against the daughter of Jerusalem, [saying]: Is this the city of which it was said: perfect in beauty; the joy of all the earth?

[Pe.] All your enemies have opened their mouths against you, they have mocked, they have gnashed their teeth, and they have said: we have ruined them; truly this is the day we have been waiting for, we have found it, we have seen it.

[Hajin.] The Lord has done what he planned, he has fulfilled his word which he commanded long ago; he has destroyed and spared not, he has made the enemy rejoice over you, he has caused the strength of your adversaries to burst forth.

[Tsadi.] Their hearts cried out to the Lord. O wall of the daughter of Zion, let us weep day and night like a torrent; give yourself no rest; [and] let the apple of your eye never cease.

[Koph.] Arise [and] cry out at night at the beginning of the watches; pour out your heart like water in the presence of the Lord; lift up your hands to him, for the soul of your little children who faint with hunger at the corners of every street.

[Resch.] Look, O Lord, and consider whom you have done this to. Have not the women eaten their fruit, the little children they swaddled? Have not the priest and the prophet been killed in the sanctuary of the Lord?

[Scin.] The young child and the old man lay on the ground by the streets; my virgins and my elite people fell by the sword; you killed in the day of your anger, you massacred, you did not spare.

[Thau.] You have summoned my surrounding fears as if to a solemn day, and no one has escaped, nor remained behind on the day of the Lord's anger; those whom I had swaddled and raised up, my enemy has consumed.

[Aleph.] I am the man who has seen affliction by the rod of his fury.

He led me and brought me into darkness, and not into light.

Certainly he turned against me, he turned his hand [against me] every day.

[Beth.] He aged my flesh and skin, he broke my bones.

He built against me, and surrounded me with bitterness and toil.

He made me stay in dark places, like those who have been dead for a long time.

[Guimel.] He made a wall around me, so that I could not get out; he weighed down my chains.

Even when I shout and raise my voice, he rejects my request.

He built a wall of hewn stones [to close] my ways, he overturned my paths.

[Daleth.] This is a bear lying in wait, and a lion lurking in a hidden place.

He diverted my paths, and tore me to pieces, he made me desolate.

He strung his bow, and positioned me like a mound for the arrow.

[He.] He has driven into my loins the arrows with which his quiver is full.

I have been ridiculed by all peoples, and their song, all day long.

He filled me with bitterness, he intoxicated me with absinthe.

[Vau.] He broke my teeth with gravel, he covered me with ashes;

So much so that peace has departed from my soul; I have forgotten what it is to be at ease.

And I said: My strength is lost, and also my hope that I had in the Lord.

[Zajin.] Remember my affliction, and my poor state, which is nothing but wormwood and gall.

My soul constantly remembers it, and it is downcast within me.

[But] I will remember this in my heart, [and] therefore I will have hope;

[Heth.] It is the Lord's grace that we have not been consumed, because his compassions have not run dry.

They are renewed every morning; [this is] a great thing, your faithfulness.

The Lord is my portion, says my soul, therefore I will hope in him.

[Teth.] The Lord is good to those who wait for him, [and] to the soul that seeks him.

It is good to wait, even while resting, for the deliverance of the Lord.

It is good for a man to bear the yoke in his youth.

[Jod.] He sits alone and remains still, because he has been burdened.
He puts his mouth in the dust, if perhaps there will be some hope.
He offers his cheek to the one who strikes him; he is overwhelmed with shame.
[Caph.] For the Lord does not reject forever.
But if he afflicts someone, he also has compassion for them according to the greatness of his acts of kindness.
For he does not willingly afflict and grieve the sons of men.
[Lamed.] When one tramples underfoot all the prisoners of the world;
When someone's rights are perverted in the presence of the Most High;
When someone is wronged in their lawsuit, does the Lord not see it?
[Mem.] Who says that this was done, [and] that the Lord did not command it?
Do not evils and good things proceed from the order of the Most High?
Why should a living man, a man, [I say], be displeased because of his sins?
[Nun.] Let us examine our ways, and search them out, and return to the Lord.
Let us lift up our hearts and our hands to the Mighty God who is in heaven, [saying]:

We have sinned, we have rebelled, you have not forgiven us.
[Samech.] You have covered us with [your] anger, and pursued us, you have killed, you have not spared.
You covered yourself with a cloud, so that the request would not pass.
You have made us the scum and refuse among the people.
[Pe.] All our enemies have opened their mouths against us.
Terror and the pit, devastation and calamity have befallen us.
My eye melted into streams of water because of the wound of the daughter of my people.
[Hajin.] My eye sheds tears, and does not cease, because there is no respite.
Until the Lord looks down and sees from heaven.
My eye afflicts my soul because of all the girls in my city.
[Tsadi.] Those who are enemies of me without cause have pursued me relentlessly, like one chases after a bird.
They have trapped my life in a pit, and rolled a stone over me.
The waters rose above my head; I said: I am cut off.
[Koph.] I have invoked your Name, O Eternal One! from one of the lowest pits.
You have heard my voice; do not close your ear, lest I die from crying out.
You came to me on the day I called upon you, and you said: do not be afraid.
[Resch.] O Lord! You have pleaded the cause of my soul; and you have guaranteed my life.
You have seen, O Eternal One! the wrong done to me, grant me justice.
You have seen all the acts of revenge they have used, and all their schemes against me.
[Scin.] You have heard, O Eternal One! their reproach and all their machinations against me.
The words of those who rise up against me, and their designs that they have against me all day long.
Consider when they sit down, and when they rise up, [for] I am their song.
[Thau.] Repay them, O Lord, according to the work of their hands.
Give them such sorrow that it covers their hearts; give them your curse.
Pursue them in your anger, and blot them out from under the heavens of the Lord.
[Aleph.] How did the gold become dark, and the fine gold change? How did the stones of the Sanctuary become scattered at the corners of all the streets?
[Beth.] How is it that the dear children of Zion, who were valued as the finest gold, are regarded as earthen vessels which are merely the work of a potter's hand?
[Guimel.] There are even sea monsters that show their breasts and nurse their young; but the daughter of my people has to deal with cruel people, like the owls that are in the desert.

[Daleth.] The tongue of the one who was nursing clung to his palate in his thirst; the little children asked for bread, and no one broke any for them.

[He.] Those who ate delicacies remained desolate in the streets; and those who were nourished on scarlet embraced filth.

[Vau.] And [the punishment for] the iniquity of the daughter of my people is greater than [the punishment for] the sin of Sodom, which was overthrown as in a moment, and for which the hands are not weary.

[Zajin.] His honorable men were clearer than snow, whiter than milk; their complexion was more crimson than precious stones, and they were polished like a sapphire.

[Heth.] Their faces are blacker than darkness, they are not known in the streets; their skin clings to their bones; it has become dry like wood.

[Teth.] Those who were put to death by the sword were happier than those who died by famine; because the latter were consumed little by little, being pierced by the lack of income from the fields.

[Jod.] The hands of women, [naturally] tender, cooked their children, and they were for meat in the time of the calamity of the daughter of my people.

[Caph.] The Lord has accomplished his fury, he has poured out the heat of his anger, and kindled in Zion a fire that has devoured its foundations.

[Lamed.] The Kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the habitable earth, would never have believed that the adversary and the enemy had entered the gates of Jerusalem.

[Mem.] This happened because of the sins of her prophets, and the iniquities of her priests, who shed the blood of the righteous in her midst.

[Nun.] The blind men wandered here and there through the streets, [and] we were so soiled with blood, that they could not find whose robe they were touching.

[Samech.] They were shouting to them, "Depart, you defiled one! Depart, depart! Do not touch it!" Indeed, they flew away from it and were carried here and there; it was said among the nations, "They will never return to sojourn there again."

[Pe.] The face of the Lord has rejected them; he will no longer look upon them. They showed no respect for the priests, nor pity for the elders.

[Hajin.] Until now our eyes have been consumed by our help of nothingness; we have looked down from our high places upon a nation that cannot deliver.

[Tsadi.] They watched our steps, so that we would not walk in our places; our end is near, our days are fulfilled; our end, I say, has come.

[Koph.] Our persecutors were swifter than the eagles of heaven; they pursued us on the mountains, they set ambushes for us in the desert.

[Resch.] The breath of our nostrils, the Lord's Anointed, was taken from their pits, [he] of whom we said: we shall live among the nations under his shadow.

[Scin.] Rejoice and be glad, daughter of Edom, who dwell in the land of Huz; the cup will also pass to you, you will be intoxicated by it, and you will uncover yourself.

[Thau.] Daughter of Zion, [the punishment for] your iniquity is completed, he will no longer transport you; [but] he will punish your iniquity, O daughter of Edom! he will uncover your sins.

Remember, O Lord, what has happened to us; look and see our disgrace.

Our heritage has been overturned by foreigners, our homes by traveling showmen.

We have become [like] orphans without fathers, and our mothers are like widows.

We drank our water for money, and our wood was put on the market.

We were pursued with swords at our throats. We exerted ourselves greatly, [and] we had no rest.

We extended our hand to the Egyptians [and] to the Assyrians so that we would have enough bread.

Our fathers sinned, and are no more; [and] we have borne their iniquities.

The slaves ruled over us, [and] no one delivered us from their hands.

We brought our bread at the risk of our lives, because of the sword of the desert.

Our skin was blackened like an oven, because of the vehement heat of hunger.
They have humiliated the women in Zion, and the virgins in the cities of Judah.
The principals were hanged by their own hands; and no respect was shown to the person of the Elders.

They took the young men to grind, and the children fell under the wood.
The elders ceased to be at the gates, and the young people ceased to sing.
The joy in our hearts has ceased, and our dance has turned to mourning.
The crown has fallen from our head. Woe now to us, for we have sinned!
That is why our hearts yearn. Because of these things our eyes are dim.
Because of the desolate mountain of Zion; the foxes do not move from it.
[But] you, O Eternal One! You remain forever, and your throne endures from generation to generation.

Why would you forget us forever? Why would you abandon us for so long?
Repent, O Lord, and we shall be converted; renew our days as in the days of old.
But you have completely rejected us, you have become extremely angry with us.
Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, on the fifth day of the fourth month, as I was among those who had been transported to the river Kebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.

On the fifth day of the month of this year, which was the fifth year after King Jehoiachin had been taken into captivity,
The word of the Lord came expressly to Ezekiel the priest, son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Kebar, and the hand of the Lord was upon him there.
I saw, and behold, a stormy wind came out of the north, and a great cloud, and a fire swirling about; and there was splendor around the [cloud], and in the midst of the [cloud] appeared something like the color of Hasmal, [when it comes out] of the fire.

And from the midst of this [color of Hasmal] appeared the likeness of four living creatures, and this was their form; they had the likeness of a man;
And each of them had four faces, and each had four wings.
And their feet were straight feet; and the soles of their feet were like the soles of a calf's foot, and they glittered like the color of polished bronze.
And there were human hands under their wings on their four sides; [and] all four had their faces and their wings.

Their wings were joined to each other; they did not turn when they walked, but each walked towards itself.
And the likeness of their faces was the face of a man, and the face of a lion, on the right hand of the four; and the face of an ox on the left hand of the four; and the face of an eagle, on all four.

And their faces and their wings were divided at the top; each had wings, which joined one to the other, and two covered their bodies.

And each of them walked towards himself; wherever the spirit drove them they went; and they did not turn around as they walked.

And as for the likeness of the animals, their eyes were like burning coals of fire, and like those of a lamp; the fire ran among the animals; and the fire was bright, and out of the fire came lightning.

And the animals ran back and forth, as the lightning appeared.

And as I was watching the animals, behold, a wheel appeared on the earth beside the animals, with four faces.

And the likeness and manner of the wheels was like the color of chrysolite, and all four had the same likeness; their likeness and manner was as if one wheel were inside another wheel.

As they walked, they went in all four directions, and they did not turn around as they went.

And they had rims, and were so tall, they were frightening, and their rims were full of eyes all around the four wheels.

And when the animals walked, the wheels walked beside them; and when the animals rose from the earth, the wheels also rose.

Wherever the Spirit wanted to go they went; and when the Spirit wanted to go there they went, and the wheels rose up before them; for the Spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

When they moved, they moved; and when they stopped, they stopped; and when they rose from the earth, the wheels also rose opposite them; for the spirit of the animals was in the wheels.

And the likeness of what was above the heads of the animals, [was] an expanse like seeing it as a crystal [whose state] filled one with awe, which extended over their heads.

And their wings stood upright beneath the expanse, one towards the other; [and] each had two wings with which they covered themselves, each, I say, had two that covered their bodies.

Then I heard the sound of their wings as they moved, which was like the sound of rushing waters, and like the sound of the Almighty, a resounding sound like the sound of an army; and when they stopped, they lowered their wings.

And when, upon stopping, they lowered their wings, there was a noise above the expanse that was over their heads.

And above that expanse, which was over their heads, was the likeness of a throne, which, to see it, was like a sapphire stone: and on the likeness of the throne there was a likeness, [which], to see it, was like a man sitting on a throne.

And I saw the color of the Hasmal, resembling a fire, within which he was all around; from the likeness of his loins, and above; and from the likeness of his loins downward I saw as one who sees fire, and there was splendor all around him.

And the splendor that was seen around him was like the bow of the clouds on a rainy day. This was the vision of the likeness of the glory of the Lord; when I saw it, I fell on my face, and I heard a voice speaking.

And I was told, "Son of man, stand on your feet, and I will speak with you."

Then the Spirit entered me, after he had spoken to me, and he raised me to my feet, and I heard him who was speaking to me,

Who said to me, "Son of man, I am sending you to the children of Israel, to rebellious nations who have rebelled against me; they and their fathers have sinned against me to this very day."

And these are cheeky children, and of an obstinate heart, to whom I am sending you; therefore you shall tell them that the Lord Eternal has spoken thus.

And whether they listen or do nothing; for they are a rebellious house, they will nevertheless know that there has been a Prophet among them.

But you, son of man, do not be afraid of them, nor be afraid of their words; though harsh people and [whose tongues are sharp] like thorns are with you, and you dwell among scorpions; do not be afraid of their words, nor be dismayed on account of them, though they are a rebellious house.

You will therefore speak my words to them, whether they listen or do nothing; for they are only rebellion.

But you, son of man, listen to what I tell you, and do not be rebellious like this rebellious house; open your mouth, and eat what I am going to give you.

Then I looked, and behold, a hand was sent out to me, and behold, it had a scroll of a book.

And she opened it before me, and behold, it was written inside and outside, and lamentations, regrets, and curses were written on it.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, eat what you find, eat this scroll, and go, [and] speak to the house of Israel."

So I opened my mouth, and he made me eat that roll.

And he said to me, son of man, eat your fill of this scroll that I am giving you; and I ate it, and it was sweet in my mouth like honey.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, get up and go to the house of Israel, and speak my words to them."

[For] you are not being sent to a people of unknown language, or of a barbarous tongue; it is to the house of Israel;

Nor to many peoples whose language is unknown or whose speech you cannot understand; if I had sent you to them, would they not listen to you?

But the house of Israel will not listen to you, because they will not listen to me; for all the house of Israel is defiant and stubborn-hearted.

Behold, I have strengthened your face against their faces, and I have strengthened your forehead against their foreheads.

And I have made your forehead like a diamond, [and] stronger than a flint; therefore do not fear them, nor be dismayed because of them, though they are a rebellious house.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, receive into your heart, and listen with your ears to all the words that I shall say to you."

Arise, therefore, go to those who have been taken captive, go to the children of your people, speak to them, and tell them that the Lord GOD has spoken thus, whether they listen, or whether they do nothing.

Then the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard a voice after me [which caused me] great emotion, [saying]: Blessed be the glory of the Lord from its place.

And I heard the sound of the animals' wings, touching one another, and the sound of the wheels opposite them, [I heard], I say, a voice that caused me great emotion.

The Spirit lifted me up and took me away, and I went away in a spirit filled with bitterness and anger, but the hand of the Lord strengthened me.

So I came to those who had been deported to Telabib, to those who were living by the river Kebar; and I stayed where they were staying, and I even stayed there among them for seven days, in amazement.

And at the end of seven days, the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, I have appointed you as overseer of the house of Israel; therefore, you shall listen to the word of my mouth, and you shall warn them from me.

When I say to the wicked man, "You shall surely die," and you have not warned him or spoken to him to warn him to turn from his wicked ways and save his life, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but I will require his blood from your hand.

But if you have warned the wicked, and he has not turned from his wickedness, nor from his wicked ways; he will die in his iniquity, but you will have delivered your soul.

Likewise, if the righteous man turns away from his righteousness and commits iniquity, when I have placed some obstacle before him, he shall die, because you did not warn him; he shall die in his sin, and no mention shall be made of the righteous deeds he has done; but I will require his blood from your hand.

If you warn the righteous man not to sin, and he also does not sin, he will surely live, because he has been warned, and you likewise will have delivered your soul.

And the hand of the Lord was upon me, and he said to me, "Get up and go out to the countryside, and there I will speak to you."

So I got up and went out into the countryside; and behold, the glory of the Lord was standing there, like the glory which I had seen by the river Chebar, and I fell on my face.

Then the Spirit entered me and raised me to my feet, and spoke to me, and said: Go in, and shut yourself up in your house.

For as for you, son of man, behold, they will put ropes on you and bind you with them, and you will not go out to go among them.

And I will make your tongue stick to the roof of your mouth, you will be mute, and you will not rebuke them; because they are a rebellious house.

But when I speak to you, I will open your mouth, and you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord GOD: He who listens, listen; and he who does not listen, do not listen; for they are a rebellious house.

And you, son of man, take a square board, and place it before you, and draw on it the city of Jerusalem.

Then you will lay siege to her, you will build forts against her, you will raise siege works against her, you will set up camps against her, and you will place siege engines around her to defeat her.

You shall also take an iron plate, and you shall set it up as an iron wall between you and the city, and you shall set your face against it, and it shall be besieged, and you shall besiege it; this shall be a sign to the house of Israel.

Afterwards you will sleep on your left side, and you will place on it the iniquity of the house of Israel; according to the number of days that you sleep on that [side], you will bear their iniquity.

And I have assigned to you the years of their iniquity according to the number of days, [namely] three hundred and ninety days; thus you shall bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

And when you have completed those days, you shall sleep a second time on your right side, and you shall bear the iniquity of the house of Judah for forty days, one day for every year; [for] I have assigned you one day for every year.

And you will set your face toward the siege ordered against Jerusalem, and your arm will be raised up; and you will prophesy against it.

But behold, I have put ropes upon you, and you shall not turn from one side to the other until you have completed the days of your siege.

You shall also take wheat, barley, beans, lentils, millet, and spelt, and put them in a vessel, and make bread from them according to the number of days that you sleep on your side; you shall eat of it for three hundred and ninety days.

And the meat that you shall eat shall weigh twenty shekels a day; and you shall eat it from one time to the next.

And you shall drink water by measure, [namely] a sixth of a Hin; you shall drink it from one time to another time.

You shall also eat barley cakes, and you shall bake them with human excrement, while they see it.

Then the Lord said: the children of Israel shall eat their defiled bread among the nations to which I will drive them.

And I say: Ah! Ah! Lord Eternal, behold, my soul has not been defiled, and I have not eaten any animal that died of itself, or was torn [by wild beasts], from my youth until now; and no unclean flesh has entered my mouth.

And he answered me: behold, I have given you oxen dung instead of human dung, and you shall bake your bread with this dung.

Then he said to me: Son of man, behold, I am going to break the staff of bread in Jerusalem; and they shall eat their bread by weight, and with sorrow; and they shall drink water by measure, and with astonishment;

Because they will lack bread and water, and they will be astonished looking at one another, and they will melt because of their iniquity.

You, son of man, take a sharp knife; take a barber's razor; and pass it over your head and over your beard; then you shall take a scale to weigh, and you shall divide what [you have shaved].

You shall burn a third part in the fire in the middle of the city when the days of the siege are fulfilled, and you shall take another third part, and strike with the sword all around; and you shall scatter the other third part to the wind; for I will draw the sword after them.

And you will take some of them from there, and bind them to the folds of your cloak.

And of these you shall take some more, and throw them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire; [and] fire shall come out against all the house of Israel.

Thus says the Lord GOD: This is the Jerusalem which I placed in the midst of the nations and countries which are around it.

She has changed my ordinances into a wickedness worse than that of the nations, and my statutes into a wickedness worse than that of the countries that are around her; for they have rejected my ordinances, and have not walked in my statutes.

Therefore the Lord Eternal One said thus: because you have multiplied [your wickedness] more than the nations that [are] around you, [and] you have not walked in my statutes, and have not observed my ordinances, and you have not even done according to the ordinances of the nations that are around you;

Because of this the Lord Eternal says thus: behold, I am against you, yes myself, and I will execute my judgments in your midst, before the eyes of the nations.

And I will do to you, because of all your abominations, things that I have never done before, and such as I will never do again.

Fathers will eat their children in your midst, and children will eat their fathers; and I will execute [my] judgments upon you, and I will scatter to the winds all that remains of you.

And as I live, says the Lord GOD, because you have defiled my Sanctuary with all your infamies and all your abominations, I myself will shave you to pieces, and my eye will not spare you, nor will I have pity on you.

A third part of you will die of mortality and be consumed by famine in your midst; and a third part will fall by the sword around you; and I will scatter the other third part to the winds, and I will draw out the sword after them.

For my anger will be fully satisfied, and I will unleash my fury upon them, and I will be satisfied; and they will know that I, the Lord, have spoken in my jealousy, when I have finished my fury upon them.

I will make you a desert and a reproach among the nations that are around you, so much so that all who pass by will see it.

And you will be a reproach, an ignominy, a lesson, and an astonishment to the nations that are around you, when I execute my judgments on you, in anger, in fury, and with punishments full of fury; I, the Lord, have spoken.

After I have shot upon them the deadly arrows of famine, which I will shoot to destroy you, I will further increase the famine upon you, and I will break your staff of bread.

I will send famine upon you, and harmful beasts, which will deprive you of children; and death and bloodshed will pass through you, and I will bring the sword upon you; I, the Lord, have spoken.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, set your face against the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them;

And say: Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God. Thus says the Lord God to the mountains and hills, to the streams and valleys: Behold, I am going to bring the sword against you, and I will destroy your high places.

And your altars will be desolate, and the tabernacles of your idols will be broken, and I will strike down the mortally wounded among you, before your dung gods.

For I will set the corpses of the children of Israel before their gods of dung, and I will scatter your bones around your altars.

The cities will be deserted in all your dwellings, and the high places will be desolate, so that your altars will be deserted and desolate, and your dung gods will be broken and will be no more; the tabernacles [of your idols] will be broken to pieces, and your works will be abolished.

And the mortally wounded will fall among you; and you will know that I am the Lord.

But I will leave a few of you as a remnant, so that you may have some survivors from the sword among the nations when you are scattered among the countries.

And your survivors will remember me among the nations among whom they will be captives, because I will have grieved over their fornicating hearts, which have turned away from me, and over their eyes which indulge in fornication after their dung gods; and they will grieve within themselves over the evils they have done in all their abominations.

And they will know that I am the Lord, [who] will not have spoken in vain about doing this evil to them.

Thus says the Lord GOD: Strike with your hand and stamp with your foot, and say: Alas! because of all the abominations and evils of the house of Israel; for they shall fall by the sword, by famine, and by death.

Those who are far away will die by disease, and those who are near will fall by the sword; and those who remain and are besieged will die by famine; thus I will spend my fury on them.

And you will know that I am the Lord, when the slain among them are among their dung gods, around their altars, on every high hill, on all the mountain peaks, under every green tree, and under every branching oak, which is the place where they made fragrant incense to all their dung gods.

I will therefore stretch out my hand against them, and I will make their land desolate and deserted in all their dwellings, more so than the desert that is towards Diblah; and they will know that I am the Lord.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

And you, son of man, [listen]: thus says the Lord Eternal to the land of Israel: the end, the end [is coming] to the four corners of the earth.

Now the end is coming upon you, and I will send my wrath upon you, and I will judge you according to your ways, and I will put all your abominations upon you.

And my eye will not spare you, nor will I have compassion; but I will set your way upon you, and your abominations will be in your midst; and you will know that I am the Lord.

Thus says the Lord God: behold, there is evil, only one evil which is coming.

The end is coming, the end is coming, it is rising up against you; behold, [evil] is coming.

Morning is coming to you who dwell in the land; the time is coming, the day is near you; it will be nothing but terror, and not an invitation from the mountains to rejoice together.

Now I will soon pour out my fury on you, and I will consume my anger on you, and I will judge you according to your ways, I will put all your abominations on you.

My eye will not spare you, nor will I have compassion; I will punish you according to your way, and your abominations will be in your midst; and you will know that I am the Lord who strikes.

Here is the day, here it comes, morning appears, the vine has blossomed, pride has sprouted buds.

Violence has grown into a rod of wickedness; nothing will remain of them, nor of their multitude, nor of their tumult, and they will not be mourned.

The time is coming, the day is very near: therefore let not the buyer rejoice, and let not the seller mourn; for there is fierce anger over all the multitude of his [country].

For he who sells will not return to what he has sold, while they are still alive; because the vision concerning all the multitude of his [country] will not be revoked, and each [will bear] the penalty of his iniquity, as long as he lives; they will never regain courage.

They sounded the trumpet, and they made all the preparations, but there is no one who goes into battle, because the intensity of my anger is upon all the multitude of his [country].

The sword is outside, and death and famine are inside; he who is in the field will die by the sword, and he who is in the city will be devoured by famine and death.

And the survivors among them will flee, and will be through the mountains like doves in the valleys, all moaning, each in their iniquity.

All hands will become weak, and all knees will melt into water.

They will wrap themselves in sackcloth, and trembling will cover them, confusion will be on all their faces, and their heads will become bald.

They will throw their silver into the streets, and their gold will go far away; neither their silver nor their gold will be able to deliver them on the day of the Lord's great anger; they will not satisfy their souls, nor fill their bellies, because their iniquity will have been their ruin.

He had placed [between them] the nobility of his magnificent ornament; but they placed there images of their abominations, and of their infamies, that is why I exposed it to be driven far away.

And I have given it up as plunder into the hands of foreigners, and as prey to the wicked of the earth, who will profane it.

I will also turn my face away from them, and they will violate my secret place, and the plunderers will enter and profane it.

Form a chain; for the land is full of murderous crimes, and the city is full of violence.

Therefore I will bring the most wicked of the nations, who will possess their houses, and I will put an end to the pride of the mighty, and their holy places will be profaned.

Destruction is coming, and they will seek peace, but there will be none.

Disaster will come upon disaster, and rumor upon rumor; they will seek visions from the prophets; the law will perish with the priest, and counsel with the elders.

The King will mourn, the leaders will be clothed in desolation, and the hands of the people of the land will fall with fear; I will deal with them according to their ways, and I will judge them according to what they deserve; and they will know that I am the Lord.

Then it came to pass in the sixth year, on the fifth day of the sixth month, as I sat in my house, and the elders of Judah sat before me, that the hand of the Lord GOD fell there upon me.

And I looked, and behold, a likeness which was like the appearance of fire; from the likeness of his loins down it was fire, and from his loins up it was like one who would see a splendor like the color of Hasmal.

And he reached out a form of hand, and took me by the hair of my head, and the Spirit lifted me up between earth and heaven, and transported me to Jerusalem, in visions of God, to the entrance of the inner gate, which faces north, where the idol of jealousy, which provokes jealousy, was set up.

And behold, the glory of the God of Israel was there, according to the vision which I had seen in the countryside.

And he said to me, son of man, now lift up your eyes to the road that leads to the North; and I lifted up my eyes to the road that leads to the North, and behold, on the side of the North at the gate of the altar [was] this idol of jealousy, at the entrance.

And he said to me, "Son of man, do you not see what these people are doing, and the great abominations that the house of Israel is committing here, so that I may withdraw from my sanctuary? But turn again, and you will see great abominations."

So he led me to the entrance of the courtyard, and I looked, and behold, there was a hole in the wall.

And he said to me, "Son of man, now break through the wall." And when I had broken through the wall, a door was found there.

Then he said to me, "Go in and see the wicked abominations they are committing here."

So I went in and looked; and behold, all kinds of reptile figures, and beasts, [and] abominations, and all the dung gods of the house of Israel were painted on the wall, all around, all around.

And seventy men from among the elders of the house of Israel, with Jaazana son of Shaphan, who was standing in the midst of them, stood before them, and each had in his hand a censer, from which rose a thick cloud of incense.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, have you not seen what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the darkness, each in his painted chamber? For they say, 'The Lord does not see us; the Lord has forsaken the land.'"

Then he said to me: Turn around again, [and] you will see the great abominations that these people are committing.

So he brought me to the entrance of the gate of the house of the Lord which is toward the north; and behold, there were women sitting there weeping for Thammus.

And he said to me, "Son of man, have you not seen? Turn around again, [and] you will see abominations greater than these."

So he brought me into the inner court of the house of the Lord, and behold, at the entrance of the Temple of the Lord, between the porch and the altar, were about twenty-five men with their backs to the Temple of the Lord, and their faces turned toward the East, bowing down toward the East before the sun.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, have you not seen? Is it a light thing for the house of Judah to commit these abominations which they are committing here? For they have filled the land with violence, and they have turned to provoke me to anger; but look, they are putting a thorn in their noses."

And I will act in my fury; my eye will not spare them, nor will I have compassion for them; and when they cry out in my ears, I will not answer them.

Then he shouted in a loud voice when I heard him, and he said: bring forward those who have commissioned attacks against the city, each with his instrument of destruction in his hand.

And behold, six men came from the way of the high gate which looks towards the North, and each had in his hand his instrument of destruction; and there was among them a man clothed in linen, who had a writing horn at his waist; and they went in, and stood beside the bronze altar.

Then the glory of the God of Israel rose from above the Cherub on which it was, [and came] to the threshold of the house, and he cried out to the man who was clothed in linen, [and] who had the writing horn at his waist.

And the Lord said to him, "Go through the middle of the city, through the middle of Jerusalem, and put the letter Thau on the foreheads of the men who groan and sigh over all the abominations that are committed within it."

And he said to the others, as I heard him: Go through the city after him, and strike; let your eye spare no one, and have no pity.

Kill everyone: the old men, the young men, the virgins, the little children, and the women; but do not approach any of those upon whom Thau's letter will be, and begin at my Sanctuary. So they began with the old men who were in front of the house.

And he said to them, "Profane the house, and fill the courts with slain men; go out."

So they went out and struck throughout the city.

Now it came to pass that as they were striking, I remained there, and having prostrated myself with my face to the ground, I cried out, and said: Ah! ah! Lord Eternal! are you going then to destroy all the remnant of Israel, pouring out your fury on Jerusalem?

And he said to me: The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is exceedingly great, and the land is filled with murders, and the city filled with crimes; for they have said: The Lord has forsaken the land, and the Lord does not see [us].

And as for me, my eye will not spare them, nor will I have any compassion for them; I will return their train upon their own head.

And behold, the man clothed in linen, who had the horn on his loins, reported what had been done, and he said, I have done as you commanded me.

Then I looked, and behold, in the expanse that was over the heads of the Cherubim there appeared above them something like a sapphire stone, which, to see it, was like a throne.

And they spoke to the man clothed in linen, and said to him: go into the space between the wheels under the Cherubim, and fill your palms with burning coals from between the Cherubim, and scatter them over the city; so he went in, I being the seer.

And the cherubim were standing at the right hand of the house when the man entered; and a cloud filled the inner court.

Then the glory of the Lord rose from above the cherubim to the threshold of the house, and the house was filled with a cloud; the court also was filled with the splendor of the glory of the Lord.

And the sound of the wings of the Cherubim was heard as far as the outer court, like the voice of the Almighty God when he speaks.

And it came to pass that when he had commanded the man who was clothed in linen, saying, "Take fire from between the Cherubim," he went in and stood by the wheels. And one of the Cherubim stretched out his hand toward the fire that was between the two of the Cherubim; and he took some of it, and put it into the hands of the man clothed in linen, who, having received it, withdrew.

(For there appeared in the Cherubim the figure of a man's hand beneath their wings.)

Then I looked, and behold, four wheels beside the Cherubim, one wheel beside one of the Cherubim, and another wheel beside a Cherub; and the likeness of the wheels was like the color of a chrysolite stone.

And as for their resemblance, all four had the same manner, as if one wheel were inside another wheel.

When they walked, they went in their four directions; and as they walked they did not turn, but to the place toward which the leader directed, they went after him; they did not turn as they walked.

Nor were the whole bodies of the Cherubim, nor their backs, nor their hands, nor their wings; and the wheels, [namely] their four wheels, were full of eyes all around.

And as for the wheels, they were called, as I heard, a chariot.

And each [animal] had four faces: the first face was the face of a Cherub; and the second face [was] the face of a man; and the third [was] the face of a lion; and the fourth the face of an eagle.

Then the cherubim rose up on high. These are the animals I had seen by the river Kebar.

And when the Cherubim walked, the wheels also walked beside them, and when the Cherubim raised their wings to rise from the earth, the wheels did not turn aside from them.

When they stopped, they stopped; and when they rose, they rose; for the spirit of the animals [was] in the wheels.

Then the glory of the Lord departed from above the threshold of the house and stood above the cherubim.

And the cherubim, raising their wings, rose from the earth before me as they departed; and the wheels [rose] also opposite them, and each of them stopped at the entrance of the eastern gate of the house of the Lord; and the glory of the God of Israel was above them.

These were the animals I had seen under the God of Israel by the river Chebar; and I knew that they were Cherubim.

Each one had four faces, and each one had four wings, and under their wings there was a likeness of a human hand.

And as for the resemblance of their faces, they were the faces I had seen by the river Kebar, and their [same] gaze, and themselves; and each walked facing himself.

Then the Spirit lifted me up and brought me to the eastern gate of the house of the Lord that faces east; and behold, twenty-five men were standing at the entrance of the gate; and I saw among them Jaazaniah son of Hazur, and Pelatiah son of Benaiah, the leaders of the people.

And he said to me: Son of man, these are the men who have unrighteous thoughts, and who give bad advice in this city;

By saying: it is not ready-made; let houses be built; it is the cauldron, and we [are] the flesh.

Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, son of man.

Then the Spirit of the Lord came upon me and said to me, "Speak." This is what the Lord says: "This is what you say, O house of Israel, and I know all the thoughts of your mind."

You have multiplied your people killed in this city; and you have filled its streets with people whom you have put to death.

Therefore, this is what the Lord GOD says: The people you killed, and put in the midst of her, are the flesh, and she is the cauldron, but I will bring you out of the midst of her.

You were afraid of the sword, but I will bring the sword upon you, says the Lord Eternal.

And I will bring you out of the city, I will hand you over to foreigners, and I will execute my judgments against you.

You will fall by the sword; I will judge you in the land of Israel; and you will know that I am the Lord.

It will not be a cauldron for you, nor will you be like flesh inside it; I will judge you in the land of Israel.

And you will know that I am the Lord; for you have not walked in my statutes, and you have not followed my ordinances; but you have acted according to the ordinances of the nations that are around you.

Now it came to pass, as I prophesied, that Pelatiah son of Benaiah died; then I fell prostrate on my face, and cried out with a loud voice, and said: Ah! Ah! Lord Eternal! Are you going to consume [entirely] the remnant of Israel?

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, your brothers, your brothers, the men of your kin, and all the people of the house of Israel entirely [are those] to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem said: Depart from the Lord, the land has been given to us as an inheritance.

Therefore tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: Although I have sent them far away among the nations and scattered them throughout the countries, I have nevertheless been like a little sanctuary to them in the countries to which they have come.

Therefore tell them: Thus says the Lord GOD: I will gather you from among the peoples, and I will assemble you from the countries where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.

And they will enter it, and remove from it all its infamies and all its abominations.

And I will cause them to have one heart, and I will put a new spirit within them; I will remove the heart of stone from their flesh, and I will give them a heart of flesh.

So that they may walk in my statutes; that they may keep my ordinances, and do them; and they shall be my people, and I shall be their God.

But as for those whose hearts follow the desire for their infamies and their abominations, as for them, I will bring down upon their heads the punishments that their conduct deserves, says the Lord Eternal.

Then the cherubim lifted their wings, and the wheels that were opposite them [also lifted], and the glory of the God of Israel that was above them also rose.

And the glory of the Lord rose from the midst of the city and stood upon the mountain that is east of the city.

Then the Spirit lifted me up and brought me to Chaldea, to those who had been taken captive, all in a vision by the Spirit of God. And the vision that I had seen vanished from before me.

Then I told those who had been taken captive all the things that the Lord had shown me.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man: you dwell in the midst of a rebellious house, [among people] who have eyes to see, but do not see; and who have ears to hear, but do not hear; because they [are] a rebellious house.

Therefore, son of man, prepare yourself like a man who sets out, and sets out by day, when they see it; set out, I say, from your place to go to another, when they see it; perhaps they will take heed to it; although they are a rebellious house.

You shall therefore put out your equipment during the day, like the equipment of a man who is setting out, they seeing it; and in the evening you shall go out, they seeing it, as when one goes out to set out.

Break through the wall, they seeing it, and pull [your crew] out through there.

You shall carry it on your shoulder, when they see it, and you shall bring it out at dusk; you shall also cover your face, so that you do not see the earth; for I have set you up to be a sign to the house of Israel.

So I did as I had been commanded: I carried outside during the day my equipment such as is the equipment of a man who is dislodging, and towards evening I pierced the wall with my hand, I pulled it out at dusk, [and] carried it on my shoulder, they seeing it.

And in the morning the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, did not the house of Israel, a rebellious house, say to you: what are you doing?

Tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: This command I am given is addressed to the Prince who is in Jerusalem, and to all the house of Israel who are among them.

Say: I am with you for a sign; as I have done, so it will be done to them; they will be driven out into captivity.

And the Prince who is among them will carry his equipment on his shoulder, and go out; they will pierce the wall to pull him out through it; he will cover his face, so that he does not see the earth with his eyes.

I will spread my net over him, and he will be caught in my nets; and I will bring him into Babylon, to the land of the Chaldeans, but he will not see it, and he will die there.

And I will scatter to the wind all that is around him, his help, and all his troops; and I will draw my sword after them.

And they will know that I am the Lord, when I have scattered them among the nations and dispersed them throughout the countries.

And I will leave a remnant of them, [preserved] from the sword, from famine, and from death, so that they may tell all their abominations among the nations to which they have come; and they will know that I am the Lord.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, eat your bread in turmoil, and drink your water trembling and anxiously.

Then you shall say to the people of the land: Thus says the Lord GOD concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to the land of Israel: They shall eat their bread with sorrow, and drink their water with fear, because her land shall be desolate, being deprived of its abundance, because of the violence of all who dwell in it.

And the populated cities will be deserted, and the land will be nothing but desolation; and you will know that I am the Lord.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, what is this proverb that you use concerning the land of Israel, saying: the days will be prolonged, and every vision will perish?

Therefore tell them: Thus says the Lord GOD, I will put an end to this proverb, and it shall no longer be used as a proverb in Israel; and tell them: The days, and the word of every vision, are near.

For there will no longer be any vision of vanity, nor any divination of flatterers, in the midst of the house of Israel.

For I, the Lord, will speak, and the word that I have spoken will be executed; it will no longer be delayed. But, O rebellious house, I will speak the word in your days, and I will execute it, says the Lord Lord.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, behold, those of the house of Israel say: the vision which this man sees will not come about in a long time, and he prophesies about times which are yet far off.

Therefore, tell them: Thus says the Lord GOD: None of my words will be delayed any longer, but the word that I have spoken will be executed [immediately], says the Lord GOD.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel who prophesy, and say to these prophets who prophesy of their own accord: Hear the word of the Lord.

Thus says the Lord GOD: Woe to the foolish prophets who follow their own spirit, and who have not had vision.

Israel, your prophets were like foxes in the deserts.

You have not gone up into the breaches, nor have you rebuilt the walls for the house of Israel, so that you may be ready for battle on the day of the Lord.

They had visions of vanity, and divinations of lies, saying: the Lord has spoken; but the Lord had not sent them; and they made people hope that their word would be fulfilled.

Have you not seen visions of vanity, and uttered lying divinations? Yet you say, "The Lord has spoken," and I have not spoken.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: Because you have spoken falsehood and have seen false visions, therefore I am against you, says the Lord GOD.

And my hand will be upon the prophets who have visions of vanity, and divinations of lies; they shall no longer be [admitted] in the council of my people, they shall no longer be written in the registers of the house of Israel, they shall no longer enter the land of Israel; and you shall know that I am the Lord the Eternal.

Because, yes, because they deceived my people, saying, "Peace!" when there was no peace. One built the wall, and the others plastered it with poorly mixed mortar.

Tell those who plaster [the wall] with poorly bonded mortar that it will fall; there will be an overflowing rain, and you, hailstones, will fall [on it], and a stormy wind will split it open.

And behold, the wall has fallen down; will it not be said to you, where is the plaster with which you plastered it?

Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: I will unleash in my fury a mighty wind, and there will be torrential rain in my anger, and hailstones in [my] fury to destroy completely.

And I will tear down the wall that you have plastered with poorly bonded mortar, I will throw it to the ground, so that its foundation will be exposed, and it will fall; you will be consumed in the midst of it, and you will know that I am the Lord.

So I will expend my anger against the wall, and against those who plaster it with poorly mixed mortar; and I will say to you: the wall is no more, nor are those who plastered it;

[Know] the Prophets of Israel, who prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and who see visions of peace for it; and yet there is no peace, says the Lord Eternal.

Therefore, you son of man, set your face against the daughters of your people who prophesy of their own accord, and prophesy against them.

And say: Thus says the Lord God: Woe to those who sew cushions to rest their arms upon, even to their hands, and who make veils to put on the heads of people of every size, to seduce souls. Would you seduce the souls of my people? Would you then safeguard yourselves?

And would you profane me before my people for handfuls of barley and pieces of bread, causing to die souls that should not die, and giving life to souls that should not live, by lying to my people who listen to the lie?

Therefore thus says the Lord Eternal: behold, I am against your cushions, with which you seduce souls to make them fly [to you]; and I will tear these [cushions] from your arms, and I will make the souls that you have attracted escape so that they fly [to you].

I will also tear your veils, and I will deliver my people from your hand, and they will no longer be in your hand to be hunted; and you will know that I am the Lord. Because you have grieved the heart of the righteous without cause, in which I did not grieve, and you have strengthened the hands of the wicked, so that he would not turn from his evil ways, [and] so that I might save his life.

Therefore you will no longer have any visions of vanity, nor any divination, but I will deliver my people from your hands; and you will know that I am the Lord.

Then some of the elders of Israel came to me and sat down before me.

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, these people have set their idols in their hearts, and have put the stumbling block of their iniquity before their faces; shall I be sought out by them seriously?

Therefore speak to them, and tell them: Thus says the Lord God. Whoever of the house of Israel has set up his idols in his heart, and has put the stumbling block of his iniquity before his face, and comes to the Prophet, I [am] the Lord, I have answered him [all] that I want to answer him, [since] he comes with the multitude of his idols.

So that I may take the house of Israel by their own hearts, for they have all turned away from me because of their idols.

Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord GOD, repent, and turn away from your idols, and turn away from all your abominations.

For whoever of the house of Israel, or of the foreigners who sojourn in Israel, has separated himself from me, and has set his idols in his heart, and put the stumbling block of his iniquity before his face, if he comes to the Prophet to inquire of me by him, I am the Lord, he has been answered all that he has to answer him from me.

And I will turn against that man, and I will make him a sign and a plaything, and I will cut him off from among my people; and you will know that I am the Lord.

And if it happens that the Prophet is deceived, and utters some word, I the Lord will have deceived that Prophet, and I will stretch out my hand against him, and I will exterminate him from among my people Israel;

And they will bear the punishment for their iniquity; the punishment for the iniquity of the Prophet will be just like the punishment of the one who questioned him;

So that the house of Israel may no longer depart from me, and that they may no longer defile themselves with all their sins; then they shall be my people, and I shall be their God, says the Lord Eternal.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, when a country has sinned against me by committing an unfaithfulness, and I have stretched out my hand against it, and broken its staff of bread, and sent famine, and cut off from its midst both men and beasts;

And if these three men, Noah, Daniel and Job, were there, they would deliver their souls by their righteousness, says the Lord Eternal.

If I send the bad beasts through that country, and they devastate it, so that it is nothing but devastation, without anyone passing through because of the beasts;

[And] that these three men are found there; I live, says the Lord GOD, that they shall not deliver sons or daughters, they alone shall be delivered, and the land shall be desolate.

Or if I bring the sword upon that land, and if I say: let the sword pass through the land, and cut off from it men and beasts;

If these three men are found in the midst of the land, I live, says the Lord GOD, that they will not deliver sons or daughters; but they alone will be delivered.

Or [if] I send death upon that land, and pour out my wrath upon it, until blood flows forth, so that I cut off from its midst both men and beasts;

And though Noah, Daniel, and Job are there, I live, says the Lord GOD, that they will not deliver sons or daughters; but they will deliver their own souls by their righteousness.

For thus says the Lord GOD: how much more when I send my four deadly plagues, the sword, and famine, and harmful beasts, and death, against Jerusalem, to cut off from it both man and beast?

And yet, behold, some survivors will remain there, [namely] those whom they are going to bring out, both sons and daughters; behold, they are coming to you, and you will see their way of life, and their actions, and you will be satisfied with the evil which I will have brought against Jerusalem, and with all that I will have brought upon it.

You will be satisfied, I say, when you have seen their way of life and their actions; and you will know that I have not done without cause all that I have done in it, says the Lord Eternal.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, what is the wood of the vine worth more than other woods? And what are its branches worth more than the boughs of the trees of a forest?

Will we take wood from it to make some kind of work? Or will we take a hook from it to hang something on?

Behold, it is put into the fire to be consumed: the fire immediately consumes its two ends, and the middle is on fire; is it worthless for any work?

Behold, when it is whole, no work can be done with it; how much less, when the fire has consumed it and it is burned, will it be fit for any work?

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: as the wood of the vine is like the trees of a forest, that I have assigned it to the fire to be consumed; so I will give up the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

And I will turn against them; will they have come out of the fire? The fire will consume them again; and you will know that I am the Lord, when I turn against them.

And I will make the land a desolate wasteland; because they have committed infidelity, says the Lord Eternal.

The word of the Lord also came to me, saying:

Son of man, make known to Jerusalem its abominations.

And say: Thus says the Lord GOD to Jerusalem: You were brought from the land of the Canaanites; your father was an Amorite, and your mother a Hittite.

And as for your birth, on the day you were born your navel was not cut, you were not washed in water to be cleansed; you were not salted with salt, nor wrapped in swaddling clothes.

No eye was moved to pity you, to do any of these things for you, having compassion on you; but you were thrown out onto the edge of a field, because they abhorred you the day you were born.

And passing by you I saw you lying on the ground in your blood, and I said to you: live in your blood; and I said to you again: live in your blood.

I made you grow by millions, like the grass of a field; and you grew and became great, you attained perfect beauty; your body was formed and you became eligible for marriage, but you were abandoned and without clothes.

And I passed by you, and I looked at you, and behold, you were of the age to be married: and I spread the corner of my robe over you, and I covered your nakedness; and I swore to you, and I entered into a covenant with you, says the Lord Eternal, and you became mine.

And I washed you in the water, and by immersing you I removed the blood from you, and I anointed you with oil.

I clothed you in embroidery, I shod you with hyacinth [colored skins], I girded you with fine linen, and I covered you with silk.

I adorned you with ornaments, I put bracelets on your hands, and a necklace around your neck.

I put a ring on your forehead, earrings in your ears, and a crown of glory on your head.

So you were adorned with gold and silver, and your clothing was of fine linen, silk, and embroidery; you ate the finest wheat, and honey, and oil; and you became exceedingly beautiful, and you prospered until you reigned.

And your fame spread among the nations because of your beauty, for it was perfect, because of the splendor I had bestowed upon you, says the Lord Eternal.

But you trusted in your beauty, and you prostituted yourself because of your fame, and you gave yourself to every passerby to be his.

And you took some of your clothes and made for yourself high places of various colors, such as there are none, nor will there ever be [like them], and you prostituted yourself on them.

And you took your beautiful rings, made of my gold and silver, which I had given you, and you made male images for yourself with them, and you committed fornication with them.

And you took your embroidered garments and covered them with them; and you put my perfume oil and my fragrance before them.

And my bread that I gave you, the fine wheat, and the oil, and the honey that I gave you to eat, you set before her as a fragrant offering; it was done thus, says the Lord Eternal.

You also took your sons and daughters whom you had borne to me, and you sacrificed them to be consumed. Is this a small thing, this result of your adulteries?

That you slaughtered my sons, and that you gave them up to be burned [in the fire] to honor these [idols]?

And amidst all your abominations and adulteries, you did not remember the days of your youth, when you were naked and uncovered, lying on the ground in your blood.

And it came after all your wickedness, (Woe, woe to you! says the Lord God.)

That you have built yourself a high place, and have made yourself high places in every square.

At every end of the road you built a high place, and you made your beauty abominable, and you prostituted yourself to every passerby, and you multiplied your adulteries.

You have given yourself over to the children of Egypt, your neighbors who are of advantageous stature; and you have multiplied your adulteries to provoke me to anger.

And behold, I have stretched out my hand upon you, and I have diminished your condition, and I have abandoned you to the will of those who hate you, [namely] the daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of your wicked ways.

You also gave yourself to the children of the Assyrians, because you were not yet satisfied; and after committing adultery with them, you were not yet satisfied.

But you have multiplied your adulteries in the land of Canaan as far as Chaldea, and you have not yet been satisfied for that.

Oh, how cowardly your heart is, says the Lord GOD, that you have done all these things, which are the deeds of a notorious prostitute.

You have built yourself a high place at every end of the road, and have made your high place in every square. And yet you have not acted like the immoral women, in that you have not considered the reward.

Adulterous woman, you take strangers instead of your husband.

All prostitutes are given a wage, but you have given to all your adulterers the gifts that your husband had given you, and you have given them gifts, so that from all around they would come to you, to plunge with you into crime.

And in your fornications, the opposite happened to you from what happens to other women, because no one was looking for you to commit adultery, yet you gave gifts, and no gift was given to you; so you acted in the opposite way [to other women of ill repute].

Therefore, O adulterer, listen to the word of the Lord:

Thus says the Lord Eternal: because your venom has been poured out, and in your excesses you have given yourself over to those whom you loved, and to your abominable idols, and you have put to death your children, whom you gave to them;

Therefore, behold, I will gather together all your adulterers, with whom you have taken your pleasure, and all those whom you have loved, with all those whom you have hated; indeed, I will gather them from all sides against you, and I will uncover your shame in their eyes, and they shall see your infamy.

And I will judge you as adulterous women and those who shed blood are judged; and I will hand you over to be put to death according to my fury and jealousy.

I will deliver you, I say, into their hands; and they will destroy your high places, and demolish your high places; they will strip you of your clothes, and take away your rings with which you adorn yourself, and leave you without clothes and all exposure.

And a horde of people will be brought up against you, who will stone you and pierce you with their swords.

Then they will set fire to your houses, and carry out these executions on you in the presence of many women, and I will warn you not to give up, and you will no longer pay wages.

And I will satisfy my fury on you, so much so that my jealousy will depart from you; and I will be at rest, and will no longer be angry.

Because you did not remember the days of your youth, and you provoked me with all these things; therefore, behold, I have brought the punishment for your crimes upon your own head, says the Lord GOD; and you did not reflect upon all your abominations.

Behold, all who use a proverb will make a proverb of you, saying, 'As the mother is, so is her daughter.'

You are the daughter of your mother, who despised her husband and children; and you are the sister of each of your sisters, who despised their husbands and children; your mother was a Hittite, and your father was an Amorite.

And your older sister is Samaria, with the cities around it, which is on your left; and your younger sister, which is on your right, is Sodom with the cities around it.

And you have not [only] walked in their ways and done according to their abominations, as if it were a very small thing, but you have corrupted yourself more than they in all your ways.

As surely as I live, says the Lord GOD, neither Sodom your sister nor the towns around her have done as you and the towns around you have done.

Behold, this was the iniquity of Sodom your sister, pride, abundance of bread, and soft idleness; she had enough, she and the cities of her jurisdiction, but she did not assist the afflicted, and the poor.

They arose and committed abominations before me, and I destroyed them, as I saw [it was appropriate to do].

And as for Samaria, she has not sinned half as much as you; for you have multiplied your abominations more than they, and you have justified your sisters by all the abominations that you have committed.

Therefore, you should also be ashamed, you who have judged each of your sisters because of your sins, by which you have been made more abominable than they; they are more righteous than you; therefore, be ashamed and be ashamed, since you have justified your sisters.

When I bring back their captives, the captives, [I say], of Sodom, and of the cities around it, and the captives of Samaria, and of the cities around it, [I will] also bring back the captives of your captivity among them; So that you may bear your shame, and be ashamed because of all that you have done, and that you may comfort them.

When your sister Sodom and the cities within its jurisdiction return to their former state; [and] when Samaria and the cities within its jurisdiction return to their former state, you and the cities within your jurisdiction will also return to your former state.

Yet your mouth did not mention your sister Sodom on the day of your pride.

Before your wickedness was discovered; as it was in the time of the reproach of the daughters of Syria, and of all those around, [namely] the daughters of the Philistines, who plundered you on all sides.

You bear your enormity and your abominations, says the Lord.

For thus says the Lord GOD: I will do to you as you have done, when you despised the detestation of the oath, by violating the covenant.

But I will remember the covenant I made with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish an everlasting covenant with you.

And you will remember your ways, and be ashamed, when you receive your sisters, both your older and your younger sisters, and I will give them to you as daughters; but not according to your covenant.

For I will establish my covenant with you, and you will know that I am the Lord.

So that you may remember [your past life], be ashamed of it, and not open your mouth again because of your confusion, after I have been appeased with you for all that you have done, says the Lord Eternal.

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, proposes a riddle, and highlights a similarity to the house of Israel.

And say: Thus says the Lord GOD: A great eagle with great wings, and long plumage, full of feathers like embroidery, came to Lebanon, and took the top of a cedar; She broke off the tips of his jets, and transported him to a merchant country, and put him in a city of traders.

And she took some of the seed from the land, and put it in a field suitable for sowing, [and] carrying it near the great waters, planted it [like] a willow.

This [seed] sprouted and became a vigorous, [but] low vine, with its branches turned towards this [eagle], and its roots under it; this [seed] therefore became a vine, and produced branches and put forth shoots.

But there was another great eagle with large wings and many feathers; and behold, this vine pressed its roots towards her and stretched out its branches towards her, so that she might water it [with the waters that flowed in] the tiles of her flowerbed.

So it was planted in good soil, near the great waters, so that it put out branches and bore fruit, and it became an excellent vine.

Say: Thus says the Lord GOD, Will it succeed? Will it not uproot itself and cut off its fruit, and they wither? All the branches that it has thrown down will wither, and it will not take much effort or many people to pull it up from its roots.

But behold, although planted, will it prosper? When the east wind touches it, will it not wither completely? It will wither on the ground where it was planted.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Now say to the rebellious house: Do you not know what these things mean? Say: Behold, the King of Babylon came to Jerusalem, and took its king and princes, and brought them with him to Babylon.

And he took one of the royal race, he made an alliance with him, he made him swear an oath with execration, and he retained the powerful of the land.

So that the Kingdom might be kept low, and not exalt itself, [but] that by keeping its covenant, it might subsist.

But this one rebelled against him, sending his messengers to Egypt to demand horses and a large army. Will he who does such things prosper? Will he escape? And having broken the covenant, will he escape?

As I live, says the Lord GOD, if this man does not die in the land of the King who made him king, because he despised the oath of desecration that he had sworn to him, and because he broke the covenant that he had made with him, if, [I say, he does not die in] Babylon.

And Pharaoh will do nothing for him in the war, with a great army and many troops, when [the enemy] has erected siege ramps and built strongholds to exterminate many people.

Because he despised the oath of desecration by violating the covenant; for behold, after he gave his hand, he nevertheless did all these things; he shall not escape. Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: As surely as I live, I will not bring down on his head my oath of detestation which he has despised, and my covenant which he has broken.

And I will spread my net over him, and he shall be caught in my nets, and I will bring him into Babylon, and there I will enter into judgment against him for the crime which he has committed against me.

And all his fugitives with all his troops will fall by the sword, and those who remain will be scattered to every wind; and you will know that I, the Lord, have spoken.

Thus says the Lord GOD: I will also take [a branch] from the top of this tall cedar, and I will plant it; I will cut off, I say, from the tip of its young branches a tender shoot, and I will plant it on a high and prominent mountain.

I will plant it on the high mountain of Israel, and there it will produce branches and bear fruit, and become a fine cedar; and birds of every kind will dwell under it, [and] in the shade of its branches.

And all the trees of the field will know that I, the Lord, will have brought down the great tree, and raised up the small tree, made the green wood dry, and made the dry wood flourish again; I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will do it.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

What do you mean, you who ordinarily use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying: the fathers have eaten the unripe juice and the children's teeth are set on edge?

As surely as I live, says the Lord GOD, you will no longer use this proverb in Israel.

Behold, all souls are mine; the soul of the child is mine as the soul of the father; [and] the soul that sins [will be] the one [that] dies.

But the man who is righteous, and who does what is just and right;

Who has not eaten on the mountains, nor lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, nor defiled his neighbor's wife, nor approached a woman in her state of impurity,

And who will not have trampled on anyone, who will have returned the pledge to his debtor, who will not have stolen the property of another, who will have given some of his bread to the hungry, and who will have covered the naked with a garment;

Who has not lent at usury, nor taken more; who has turned his hand away from iniquity; who has rendered a just judgment between the parties who plead together, Whoever walks in my statutes, and keeps my ordinances to act in truth, he is righteous; surely he shall live, says the Lord GOD.

If he has fathered a child who is a murderer, shedding blood, and committing similar acts;

And who does none of these things [that I have commanded], but eats on the mountains, and corrupts his neighbor's wife,

Let him trample on the afflicted and the poor, let him plunder the property of others and not return the pledge, let him lift his eyes to idols and commit abominations;

Let him give at interest, and let him take more: will he live? He will not live, when he has committed all these abominations; he shall be put to death, and his blood shall be upon him.

But if he fathers a son who, seeing all the sins his father has committed, takes heed and does not do such things;

He must not eat on the mountains, nor lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, nor corrupt his neighbor's wife;

And let him not trample anyone; let him not take pledges; let him not snatch the property of another, let him give some of his bread to the hungry, and let him cover the naked;

Let him withdraw his hand from the afflicted, let him take neither usury nor excess, let him keep my ordinances, and let him walk in my statutes; he shall not die for the iniquity of his father, but surely he shall live.

But his father, because he has acted fraudulently, and has stolen what belonged to his brother, and done what is not good among his people, behold, he shall die for his iniquity.

But you will say, why should not such a son bear the iniquity of his father? Because such a son has done what was just and right, and has kept all my statutes and done them; surely he will live.

The soul that sins shall die. The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, and the father shall not bear the iniquity of the son; the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon the righteous; and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon the wicked.

But if the wicked man turns away from all his sins which he has committed, and keeps all my statutes, and does what is just and right, surely he shall live, he shall not die.

No mention will be made of all the crimes he has committed, [but] he will live for his own justice, to which he has devoted himself.

Would I in any way take pleasure in the death of the wicked, says the Lord GOD, and not rather that he should turn from his ways and live?

But if a righteous person turns from their righteousness and commits iniquity, according to all the abominations that the wicked person is accustomed to committing, will they live? No mention will be made of all the righteous acts they have done, because of the crime they have committed and the sin they have perpetrated; they will die for these things.

And you say, "The way of the Lord is not right." Now listen, house of Israel: Is not my way right? Are not your ways rather wrong?

When the righteous man turns away from his righteousness and commits iniquity, he shall die for those things; he shall die for the iniquity he has committed.

And when the wicked man turns from the wickedness he has committed, and does what is just and right, he will save his soul.

Having therefore considered [his conduct], and having turned away from all the crimes he has committed, surely he will live, he will not die.

And the house of Israel will say, "The way of the Lord God is not just." O house of Israel, are my ways not just? Are not your ways not just?

Therefore I will judge each of you according to your ways, O house of Israel! says the Lord. Repent, and turn away from all your sins, and iniquity will not be your ruin.

Cast away from you all the crimes by which you have sinned; and make yourselves a new heart, and a new spirit, and why should you die, O house of Israel?

For I take no pleasure in the death of anyone, says the Lord God. Repent, then, and live.

And you, raise a loud lament concerning the leaders of Israel.

And say: what was it of your mother? She was a lioness [who] lay among the lions, and [who] raised her cubs among the lion cubs.

And she raised one of her cubs, which became a lion cub, and which learned to tear its prey apart, so much so that it devoured men.

The nations heard of it; he was caught in their pit; and they carried him off with curls to the land of Egypt.

Then, seeing that she had waited, [and] that her waiting was in vain, she took one [another] of her cubs, and made it into a lion cub;

He who walked among the lions [became] a lion cub, and learned to tear the prey so much that he devoured men.

He devastated their palaces and ravaged their cities, so that the land and everything in it was terrified by the cry of his roar.

And the nations were arrayed against him, from all the provinces, and they spread their nets against him; he was caught in their pit.

Then they locked him up and chained him, to bring him to the King of Babylon, and put him in a fortress, so that his voice would no longer be heard on the mountains of Israel.

Your mother was in your blood like a vine planted by the waters, and it became laden with fruit and branches because of the great waters.

And it had strong rods to make scepters of rulers; and its trunk rose up to its bushy branches, and it was seen in its height with the multitude of its boughs.

But it was uprooted in fury and thrown to the ground; and the east wind dried up its fruit; its strong branches were broken and withered; the fire consumed them.

And now it is planted in the desert, in dry and arid land.

And fire came out of a rod from its branches and consumed its fruit, and there was no strong rod in it to make a scepter to rule over it. This is the lament, and it will be used as a lament.

Now it came to pass in the seventh year, on the tenth day of the fifth month, that some of the elders of Israel came to inquire of the Lord, and sat before me.

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, speak to the elders of Israel, and say to them: Thus says the Lord GOD: Is it to inquire of me that you come? I live, says the Lord GOD, if you inquire of me.

Will you not judge them, son of man? Make them know the abominations of their fathers.

And said to them, "Thus says the Lord GOD: On the day that I chose Israel, and raised my hand to the offspring of the house of Jacob, and made myself known to them in the land of Egypt, and raised my hand to them, saying, 'I am the LORD your God.'"

On that very day I raised my hand to them, that I would bring them out of the land of Egypt, to bring them to the land that I had discovered for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, and which is the pride of all the lands.

Then I said to them, "Each of you must remove the abominations from before your eyes, and do not defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt; I am the Lord your God."

But they rebelled against me, and they would not listen to me; not one of them cast out the abominations from before his eyes, nor did he leave the idols of Egypt; and I said that I would pour out my fury on them, [and] that I would spend my anger on them in the land of Egypt.

But what I brought them out of the land of Egypt, I did for the sake of my Name, so that it would not be profaned in the sight of the nations among whom they were, and in whose sight I had made myself known to them.

So I brought them out of the land of Egypt and into the desert.

And I gave them my statutes, and made known to them my ordinances, which if a man fulfills, he shall live by them.

I also gave them my Sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them, so that they would know that I am the Lord who sanctifies them.

But those of the house of Israel rebelled against me in the wilderness; they did not walk in my statutes, but they rejected my ordinances; by which, if a man performs them, he shall live; and they utterly profaned my Sabbaths; therefore I said that I would pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness to consume them.

And I did it for the love of my Name, so that it would not be profaned before the nations, in whose presence I had brought them out [of Egypt].

And I even raised my hand to them in the desert that I would not bring them to the land that I had given them, a land flowing with milk and honey, which is the pride of all lands.

Because they had rejected my ordinances, had not walked in my statutes, and had profaned my Sabbaths; for their hearts followed their idols.

However, my eye spared them so as not to destroy them, and I did not consume them entirely in the desert.

But I said to their children in the desert: Do not walk in the statutes of your fathers, and do not keep their ordinances, and do not defile yourselves with their idols.

I am the Lord your God; walk in my statutes, and keep my ordinances, and do them. Keep my Sabbaths holy, and they will be a sign between me and you, so that you may know that I am the Lord your God.

But the children also rebelled against me, and they did not walk in my statutes, and did not keep my ordinances to do them; which if a man performs, he shall live by them; and they profaned my Sabbaths; therefore I said that I would pour out my fury on them, [and] that I would spend my anger on them in the wilderness.

However, I withdrew my hand, and I did it for the love of my Name, so that it would not be profaned before the nations, in whose presence I had brought them out [of Egypt].

And yet I raised my hand to them in the wilderness, that I might scatter them among the nations, and disperse them throughout the countries.

Because they had not carried out my ordinances, and had rejected my statutes, and profaned my Sabbaths, and their eyes were fixed on the idols of their fathers,

Because of this I gave them statutes [which were] not good, and ordinances by which they would not live.

And I defiled them in their gifts, in that they made all the firstborn pass through the fire, so that I might make them desolate, and so that they might know that I am the Lord.

Therefore, son of man, speak to the house of Israel, and say to them: Thus says the Lord GOD: your fathers have again insulted me, in that they have committed such a crime against me;

Because they brought them into the land, which I had raised my hand to give them, they looked at every high hill and every branching tree, and there they made their sacrifices, there they laid their offering to provoke me to anger, there they put their perfumes, and there they poured out their sprinkles.

And I said to them: what do these high places you are going to mean? And yet their name has been called high places to this day.

Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord GOD: Do not defile yourselves in the ways of your fathers, and do not prostitute yourselves to their abominable idols?

And by offering your gifts, when you sacrifice your children in the fire, you defile yourselves with all your idols to this day. Is this how you consult me, O house of Israel? As I live, declares the Lord God, you do not consult me.

And what you think will not happen at all, in what you say: we will be like the nations, and like the families of the countries, serving wood and stone.

As surely as I live, says the Lord GOD, I will rule over you with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm and with a great outpouring of anger.

And unless I do not bring you out from among the peoples, and gather you from the countries in which you have been scattered, with a strong hand, and an outstretched arm, and with a great outpouring of anger.

And if I do not bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and if I do not contend with you there, face to face.

As I contended with your fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt, so I will contend with you, says the Lord GOD.

And I will make you pass under the rod, and bring you back to the place of the covenant.

And I will set apart from among you the rebels, and those who revolt against me; [and] I will bring them out of the land in which they sojourn, but they shall not enter the land of Israel; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

Therefore, O house of Israel! thus says the Lord GOD, go, each of you serve your idols, even though you will not listen to me; therefore you shall no longer profane my holy Name with your gifts, and with your idols.

But it is on my holy mountain, on the high mountain of Israel, says the Lord GOD, that all the house of Israel shall serve me in all this land; there I will take pleasure in them, and there I will require your heaped offerings, and the firstfruits of your gifts, with all your sanctified things.

I will take pleasure in you through your pleasing aromas, when I have brought you out from among the peoples and gathered you from the countries in which you have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you, the nations seeing it.

And you will know that I am the Lord, when I bring you back to the land of Israel, the land I raised my hand over to give to your fathers.

And there you will remember your ways and all your deeds, by which you have defiled yourselves; and you will grieve in yourselves for all the evil you have done.

And you will know that I am the Lord, by all that I have done to you, for my Name's sake, and not according to your wicked ways, and your corrupt deeds, O house of Israel! says the Lord Lord.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, set your face toward the way of Teman, and send down [your word] toward the South, and prophesy against the forest of the field of the South.

And say to the forest of the South: Hear the word of the Lord. Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am going to kindle within you a fire which shall consume all the green wood and all the dry wood within you; the flame of the blazing fire shall not be quenched, and all the top of it shall be burned up, from the South to the North.

And all flesh will see that I, the Lord, have kindled a fire in it; [and] it will not go out.

And I say: ha! ha! Eternal Lord, they say of me: is it not true that this one only puts forward similarities?

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, set your face toward Jerusalem, and send down [your word] toward the holy places, and prophesy against the land of Israel.

And say to the land of Israel: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am against you, and I will draw my sword from its sheath, and I will cut off from among you both the righteous and the wicked.

Because I will cut off from among you both the righteous and the wicked, for this reason my sword will come out of its sheath against all flesh, from the South to the North.

And all flesh shall know that I, the Eternal, have drawn my sword from its sheath, [and] it shall not return to it again.

So you, son of man, groan and break your loins in pain, and sigh bitterly in their presence.

And when they say to you, 'Why are you groaning?' then you shall answer, 'It is because of the noise, for it is coming, and every heart will melt, and every hand will become slack, and every spirit will be reeling, and every knee will melt into water; behold, it is coming, and it will be fulfilled, says the Lord GOD.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, prophesy and say: This is what the Lord says: Say, the sword, the sword has been sharpened, and it is also polished.

It has been sharpened to do great slaughter, it has been polished to shine: shall we rejoice? It is the rod of my son; it scorns all wood.

And [the Lord] gave it to be refined, so that it might be held in the hand; the sword was sharpened, and it was polished to be placed in the hand of the destroyer.

Cry out and scream, son of man, for it is against my people, it is against all the leaders of Israel; the terrors of the sword will be upon my people; therefore strike your thigh.

When would it be a trial, and what would that be? Even if [this sword] which disdains [all wood, were] a rod, it would be nothing, says the Lord Eternal.

Therefore, son of man, prophesy, and strike with one hand against the other, and let the sword be doubled for the third time, the sword of the slain is the sword against the great ones who will be slain, passing right up to them in their chambers.

I have placed the shining sword at all their gates, so that their hearts may melt and their ruins multiply. Ah! It is made to shine and reserved for killing.

Join with your sword, strike to the right; advance, strike to the left, on whatever side you encounter.

I will also strike with one hand against the other, and I will satisfy my anger: I, the Lord, have spoken.

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

And you, son of man, consider two ways by which the sword of the King of Babylon might come, [and] let the two ways come out of the same country, and choose them, choose them at the place where the road to the city of [Babylon] begins.

You shall propose the way by which the sword must come against Rabbah of the children of Hammon, and [the way] which goes to Judea, and to Jerusalem, a fortified city. For the King of Babylon stood at a forked road, at the beginning of two roads, to consult the diviners; he polished the arrows; he inquired of the Teraphim; he examined the liver.

In his right hand is the divination against Jerusalem, to arrange the battering rams there, to announce the slaughter, to raise a loud alarm, to arrange the battering rams against the gates, to erect siege ramps, [and] build forts.

But it will be like someone who makes false predictions in their presence; there are great oaths among them, but he will bring their iniquity to the memory, so that they may be caught in it.

Therefore, this is what the Lord Eternal says: because you have brought back the memory of your iniquity, when your crimes were discovered, so that your sins are seen in all your actions; because, [I say], you have made yourselves remembered, you will be caught with the hand.

And you, profane, wicked, Prince of Israel, the day has come in the time of iniquity, which will bring about its end.

Thus says the Lord GOD, let this turban be taken off, and let this crown be removed: it shall not be this one; I will exalt what is low, and I will bring low what is high.

I will overturn it, overturn it, overturn it, and it will be no more, until he to whom the government belongs comes, and I will give it to him.

And you, son of man, prophesy, and say: Thus says the Lord Eternal concerning the children of Hammon, and concerning their reproach; say therefore, sword, sword drawn, polished to kill, to consume with its splendor.

While people see visions of vanity for you, and divine lies for you, so that you may be placed on the necks of the wicked who are put to death; whose day has come the time of iniquity, which will be its end.

Would we put it back in its sheath? I will judge you in the place where you were created, in the land of your origin.

I will pour out my indignation upon you, I will kindle the fire of my fury upon you, and I will deliver you into the hands of brutal men, forgers of destruction.

You will be destined for the fire to be devoured; your blood will be in the midst of the earth: you will be remembered no more, for I, the Lord, have spoken.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

And you, son of man, will you not judge, will you not judge the bloody city, and will you not make it aware of all its abominations?

You shall say, therefore, thus says the Lord Eternal: city which sheds blood within you, so that your time may come, and which made idols to your own harm, to be defiled.

You have made yourself guilty by the blood you have shed, and you have defiled yourself by the idols you have made; you have brought near your days, and you have come to your years; therefore I have exposed you as a reproach to the nations, and as a derision to all the countries.

Those who are near you, and those who are far away, will mock you, infamous in reputation, and full of troubles.

Behold, the Princes of Israel have contributed within you, each according to his strength, to shedding blood.

They have despised father and mother within you; they have deceived the stranger within you; they have oppressed the orphan and the widow within you.

You have despised my holy things, and profaned my Sabbaths.

Slanderers have been within you to shed blood, and those within you have eaten on the mountains; enormous deeds have been committed in your midst.

[The child] has uncovered the father's nakedness within you, and the woman has been humiliated within you in the time of her defilement.

And one has committed an abomination with his neighbor's wife; and another, by committing enormous acts, has defiled his daughter-in-law; and another has humiliated his sister, his father's daughter, within you.

You have received bribes to shed blood; you have taken usury and extra money; and you have made dishonest gain from your neighbors by using deceit; and you have forgotten me, says the Lord Eternal.

And behold, I have struck my hands together because of your dishonest gain which you have made, and because of your blood which has been shed within you.

Will your heart be able to stand firm? Or will your hands be strong in the days when I act against you? I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will do it.

And I will scatter you among the nations, I will winnow you through the countries, and I will consume your uncleanness until there is none left in you.

And you will be divided within yourself in the presence of the nations, and you will know that I am the Lord.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man: the house of Israel has become to me like scum; they are all bronze, tin, iron and lead in a crucible; they have become like the scum of silver.

Therefore this is what the Lord God says: Because you have all become like scum, I am going to gather you together in the midst of Jerusalem for this reason,

As one would gather silver, bronze, iron, lead, and tin in a crucible, to blow fire into it and melt them; so I will gather you in my anger, and in my fury I will satisfy myself, and I will melt you.

I will gather you together, and I will breathe upon you the fire of my fury, and you will be melted in the midst of [Jerusalem].

As silver is melted in the crucible, so you will be melted in the midst of it, and you will know that I, the Lord, have poured out my wrath upon you.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, say to him: you are a land that was not cleansed nor wet with rain on the day of indignation.

There is a conspiracy of her prophets in her midst; they will be like roaring lions, who seize the prey: they have devoured souls; they have carried off riches and glory; they have multiplied widows in her midst.

His priests have violated my law and profaned my holy things; they have made no distinction between the holy and the profane, they have not made known [the difference that is] between the unclean and the clean, and they have hidden their eyes from my Sabbaths, and I have been profaned in their midst.

Her chiefs were in her midst like wolves that snatch prey, to shed blood and to destroy souls, to indulge in dishonest gain.

His prophets also have coated them with poorly mixed mortar; they have false visions, and they predict lies to them, saying: 'Thus says the Lord Eternal,' when in fact the Eternal had not spoken.

The people of the country have used deceit, and they have stolen the property of others, and have oppressed the afflicted and the poor, and have trampled on the foreigner against all justice.

And I looked for someone among them who would rebuild the wall and stand in the gap before me for the sake of the land, so that I would not destroy it; but I found no one.

Therefore I will pour out my indignation upon them, and I will consume them with the fire of my fury; I will bring down the punishment of their course upon their own heads, says the Lord Eternal.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, there were two women, daughters of the same mother,

Those who prostituted themselves in Egypt, they abandoned themselves in their youth: there their breasts were dishonored and their virginity tarnished.

And these were their names, the name of the greatest was Aholah, and the name of her sister, Aholiba; they were mine, and they bore sons and daughters; so their names were Aholah, which was Samaria; and Aholiba, which is Jerusalem.

Now Ahola committed adultery while she was my wife, and fell in love with her lovers, [that is], the Assyrians, her neighbors;

Dressed in purple, governors and magistrates, all young and handsome, all horsemen, mounted on horses.

And she committed adultery with them, who were all the elite of the children of the Assyrians, and with all those with whom she fell in love, and defiled herself with all their idols.

She did not even leave behind her fornications [which she had brought] from Egypt, where they had slept with her in her youth, where they had dishonored her virginity and where they had committed impurity with her.

That is why I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands, [I say], of the children of the Assyrians, with whom she had fallen in love.

They covered her with shame, they took away her sons and daughters, and killed her herself with the sword, and she became famous among women, after they executed judgments on her.

And when her sister Aholiba saw this, she did worse than her in her love affairs; even she did worse in her debauchery than her sister had done in hers.

She fell in love with the children of the Assyrians, the governors and magistrates of her neighbors, magnificently dressed, and the horsemen mounted on horses, all young and well-built.

And I saw that she had soiled herself, and that it was the same train of both of them.

And she has increased her shamelessness even more, for having seen men portrayed on the wall, the images of the Chaldeans, painted in vermillion;

Girded with baldrics around their loins, and having flowing and dyed head coverings, all of them having the appearance of great Lords, and the likeness of the children of Babylon in Chaldea; land of their birth.

She fell in love with him through the look in his eyes, and sent messengers to them in the land of the Chaldeans.

And the children of Babylon came to her in her bed of prostitution, and defiled her with their adulteries; and she also defiled herself with them; and after that her heart turned away from them.

She therefore displayed her fornications and made her disgrace known; and my heart turned away from her, as my heart had turned away from her sister.

For she has multiplied her adulteries, to the point of recalling the days of her youth, to which she had given herself over in the land of Egypt.

And she fell in love with their fornicators, whose flesh is [like] the flesh of donkeys; and whose strength equals that of horses.

So you have repeated the actions of your youth, when you were dishonored, since you were in Egypt, because of the ways of your youth.

Therefore, O Aholiba, thus says the Lord GOD: behold, I am going to stir up against you all your lovers, from whom your heart has turned away, and I will bring them against you all around.

[Knowing] the children of Babylon, and all the Chaldeans, Pekod, Soah, Koah, and all the Assyrians with them, all elite young men, governors and magistrates, great Lords, and renowned, all riding on horseback.

And they will come against you with chariots, wagons, and carts, and with a great multitude of people; and they will use shields, bucklers, and helmets against you on all sides, and I will put the judgment in their hands, and they will judge you according to their judgment.

And I will unleash my jealousy against you, and they will act against you in fury; they will cut off your nose and ears; and what remains of you will fall by the sword. They will take away your sons and daughters; and what remains of you will be devoured by fire.

They will strip you of your clothes and take away the ornaments you wear.

And I will put an end to your abomination and your fornication [which you brought] from the land of Egypt, and you will no longer lift your eyes to them, nor remember Egypt.

For thus says the Lord GOD: behold, I will deliver you into the hand of those whom you hate, into the hand of those from whom your heart has turned away.

They will treat you with hatred, and take away all your work, and leave you without clothes and uncovering, and the depravity of your adulteries, and your enormity, and your fornications, will be exposed.

These things will be done to you because you have prostituted yourself to the nations, with whom you have defiled yourself through their idols.

You have walked in your sister's path, therefore I will place her cup in your hand.

Thus says the Lord GOD: you will drink from your sister's deep and wide cup, which will be a cup of great measure; you will be ridiculed and mocked.

You will be filled with drunkenness and pain, from the cup of desolation and destruction, which is the cup of your sister Samaria.

You will drink it, and suck it, and you will break its earthen vessels and tear your breast: for I have spoken, says the Lord Eternal.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: because you have forgotten me and cast me behind your back, you will bear the consequences of your enormity and your adulteries.

Then the Lord said to me, "Son of man, will you not judge Aholah and Aholiba? Declare to them their abominations."

[Tell them] how they committed adultery and how there is blood on their hands; how, I say, they committed adultery with their idols, and even made their children pass [through the fire] to consume them, these children whom they had borne me.

This is what they have done to me; they defiled my holy place that very day, and profaned my Sabbaths.

For after they had slaughtered their children to their idols, they entered my holy place that same day to profane it; and this is what they did in the midst of my house.

And what's more, they sent to men from a distant country, who came as soon as the messengers were sent to them; [and] for their sake you washed yourself, and painted your face, and adorned yourself with ornaments.
And you are sitting on a honorable bed, before which a table has been prepared, on which you have placed my perfume, and my scented oil.
And there was in it the sound of a troop of people who are at ease; and besides these men, there were so many people, Sabeans were brought in from the desert, who put bracelets on their hands, and magnificent crowns on their heads.
And I said, concerning the one who had grown old in adultery: Now her immoralities will end, and she too.
And yet they came to her as one comes to a prostitute; so they came to Ahola and to Aholiba, women [full] of enormity.
Therefore, righteous men will judge them as adulterous women are judged, and as those who shed blood are judged; for they are adulterers, and the blood is in their hands.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: Let the assembly be brought up against them, and let them be left to tumult and plunder.
And let the assembly stone them, and cut them to pieces with their swords; let them kill their sons and daughters, and burn their houses with fire.
And [thus] I will abolish the enormity from the land, and all the women will be taught not to do according to your enormity.
Your enormity will be placed upon you, and you will bear the sins of your idols; and you will know that I am the Lord, the Eternal.
Now in the ninth year, on the tenth day of the tenth month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying:
Son of man, write down the name of this day, this very day; [for] on this very day the King of Babylon approached Jerusalem.
Therefore, put forward a similarity to the rebellious house, and say to them: Thus says the Lord GOD: Put on the pot, put on the pot, and pour water into it.
Assemble its pieces in it, all the good pieces, the thigh, and the shoulder, and fill it with the best bones.
Take the best animal from the flock, and burn some bones under the cauldron, boil it vigorously, and let the bones cook in it.
For thus says the Lord Eternal: woe to the bloody city, to the cauldron in which her scum is, and from which the scum has not come out; empty it room by room; and let not lots be cast upon it.
Because her blood is in the midst of her, and she laid it on the dry stone, [and] did not pour it out on the earth to cover it with dust.
I put his blood on a dry stone, so that it would not be covered, to stir up fury, [and] to take revenge.
Therefore, this is what the Lord Eternal says: Woe to the bloodthirsty city; I will also make it a great pile of wood to be burned.
Gather plenty of wood, light the fire, cook the meat thoroughly, and let it be consumed, and let the bones be burned.
Then put the empty boiler on the hot coals, so that it may heat up, and its bronze may burn, and its dross may be melted inside it, [and] its scum may be consumed.
She worked on me with lies, and her great foam did not come out of her; her foam will go to the fire.
[There is] an enormous amount of filth in your defilement; for I had purified you, and you were not clean; you will not yet be cleansed of your defilement until I have satisfied my wrath upon you.
I, the Lord, have spoken; it shall come to pass, and I will do it; I will not turn back, I will not spare, nor will I be appeased. You have been judged according to your ways and your actions, declares the Lord God.
And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, behold, I am going to take from you by a wound that which your eyes see with the most pleasure; but do not mourn, and do not weep, and do not shed your tears.

Beware of moaning, and do not mourn as is customary for the dead; leave your cap on your head, and put your shoes on your feet, and do not cover your upper lip, and do not eat the bread of others.

So I spoke to the people in the morning, and my wife died in the evening; and the next morning I did as I had been commanded.

And the people said to me, "Will you not tell us what these things you are doing mean to us?"

And I answered them: The word of the Lord has come to me, saying:

Say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am about to profane my Sanctuary, the magnificence of your strength, that which is most pleasing in your eyes, that which you would have spared above all things; and your sons and your daughters, whom you have left behind, shall fall by the sword.

Then you will do as I have done; you will not cover your lips, and you will not eat the bread of others.

And your caps will be on your heads, and your sandals on your feet; you will not mourn or weep, but you will melt because of your iniquities, and you will groan one with another.

And Ezekiel will be a sign to you; you will do according to all the things he did; [and] when it has happened, you will know that I am the Lord Eternal.

And as for you, son of man, on the day when I take away their strength, the joy of their adornment, the most pleasing object in their eyes, and the object of their hearts, their sons and their daughters;

On that same day, won't someone who has escaped come to you to tell you about it?

On that day your mouth will be opened to him who has escaped, and you will speak, and will no longer be mute; thus you will be a sign to them, and they will know that I am the Lord.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, set your face against the children of Hammon, and prophesy against them.

And say to the children of Hammon: Hear the word of the Lord God. Because you have said, "Aha! Aha!" against my Sanctuary, because it was desecrated; and against the land of Israel, because it was desolate; and against the house of Judah, because they went into captivity;

Therefore, I am going to give you as an inheritance to the children of the East, and they will build palaces in your cities and live among you; they will eat your fruits and drink your milk.

And I will give Rabbah to be a resting place for camels, and [the land] of the children of Hammon to be a resting place for sheep; and you will know that I am the Lord.

For thus says the Lord GOD: because you have clapped your hands, and stamped your feet, and rejoiced with all your heart in all the contempt you have shown for the land of Israel.

Therefore, behold, I have stretched out my hand against you, and I will deliver you up to be plundered by the nations, and I will cut you off from among the peoples, I will cause you to perish from among the countries; I will destroy you; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

Thus says the Lord GOD: because Moab and Seir have said: behold, the house of Judah is like all the other nations.

Therefore, I am going to open up the Moabite quarter on the side of the cities, on the side, I say, of its border cities, the nobility of the land of Bethesmoth, Bahal-Mehon, and Kiriathaim,

To the children of the East, who are beyond the land of the children of Hammon, which

I gave them as an inheritance, so that the children of Hammon will no longer be remembered among the nations.

I will also execute judgments against Moab, and they will know that I am the Lord. Thus says the Lord GOD: because of what Edom did when he took inhumane revenge on the house of Judah, and because he made himself very guilty in taking revenge on them. Because of this, the Lord GOD says: I will stretch out my hand against Edom, I will cut off from it both men and beasts, and I will reduce it to a desolate wasteland; from Teman and from toward Dedan they shall fall by the sword.

I will exact my vengeance on Edom because of my people Israel, and Edom will be dealt with according to my anger and my fury, and they will feel what my vengeance is, says the Lord GOD.

Thus says the Lord Eternal: because the Philistines acted in vengeance, and inhumanely took revenge with pleasure [and] with contempt, until [all] were destroyed by an immortal enmity;

Because of this the Lord GOD says thus: behold, I am going to stretch out my hand against the Philistines, I will exterminate the Kerethites, and I will destroy the remnant of [their] seaports.

And I will unleash great vengeance upon them with punishments of fury; and they will know that I am the Lord, when I have executed my vengeance upon them.

And it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, because Tyre has said concerning Jerusalem: Ha! Ha! She who was the gate of the peoples has been broken down, she has taken refuge with me, I shall be filled [because] she has been made desolate.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: I am against you, Tyre, and I will bring many nations against you, as the sea brings up its waves.

And they will destroy the walls of Tyre, and demolish its towers; I will scrape away its dust, and make it like dry stone.

It will be used to spread nets in the midst of the sea; for I have spoken, says the Lord GOD, and it will be plundered by the nations.

And the cities within its jurisdiction, which are in the countryside, shall be put to the edge of the sword, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

For thus says the Lord GOD: behold, I am going to bring Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, King of Kings, from the north against Tyre, with horses, and chariots, and horsemen, and a great army assembled from all sides.

He will put to the sword the cities under your jurisdiction that are in the countryside, he will build forts against you, he will erect siege ramps against you, and he will raise shields against you.

And he will place his war machines against your walls, and demolish your towers with his hammers.

The dust of his horses will cover you because of their multitude; your walls will tremble with the noise of the horsemen, the carts, and the wagons, when he enters through your gates, as one enters a city that has been breached.

He will trample all your streets with the hooves of his horses; he will kill your people with the sword, and the trophies of your strength will fall to the ground.

Then they will plunder your goods and plunder your merchandise; they will destroy your walls and demolish your pleasure houses; and they will throw your stones, your timber, and your dust into the waters.

And I will put an end to the noise of your songs, and the sound of your harps will no longer be heard.

I will make you like a dry stone; it will be a place to spread nets, and it will not be rebuilt, because I, the Lord, have spoken, says the Lord God.

Thus says the Lord God to Tyre: Will not the islands tremble at the sound of your ruin, when those who are mortally wounded groan, when the slaughter takes place in your midst?

All the Princes of the sea will descend from their seats, and take off their cloaks, and strip off their embroidered garments, and clothe themselves in fear; they will sit on the earth, and they will be terrified from moment to moment, and will be desolate because of you.

And they will raise a loud lament over you, and say to you: how have you perished, you who were frequented by those who go to sea, a renowned city, which was strong in the sea, you and your inhabitants, who made themselves feared by all who dwell in it?

Now the islands will be terrified on the day of your ruin, and the islands in the sea will be astonished because of your flight.

For thus says the Lord GOD: when I have made you a desolate city, like cities that are not inhabited, when I have brought down the abyss upon you, and the great waters have covered you;

Then I will bring you down with those who go down to the pit, to the people of old, and I will place you in the lowest places of the earth, in the places long desolate, with those who go down to the pit, so that you will no longer be inhabited; but I will restore the nobility among the land of the living.

I will cause people to be astonished because of you, because you are no more; and when they seek you, they will never find you again, says the Lord Eternal.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

You then, son of man, raise a lament aloud concerning Tyre;

And say to Tyre: You who dwell on the avenues of the sea, who trade in selling to the peoples in many islands; thus says the Lord Eternal: Tyre, you have said: I am perfect in beauty.

Your borders are in the heart of the sea; those who built you made you perfect in beauty.

They built all the sides [of the ships] of fir trees from Senir; they took cedars from Lebanon to make masts for you.

They made your oars from Bashan oak, and the Assyrian troop made your benches from ivory, brought from the Isles of Kittim.

The fine linen of Egypt, worked into embroidery, was what you spread out to serve as veils; what you covered yourself with was the purple and scarlet of the Isles of Elisa.

The inhabitants of Sidon and Arvad were your sailors; O Tyre! your wise men [who] were within you were your pilots.

The elders of Gebal, and his expert men, were among you, repairing your breaches; all the ships of the sea, and their mariners, were within you, to trade with you in your commerce.

Those from Persia, and from Lud, and from Put were within you to be your warriors; they hung the shield and the helmet in your house; they made you magnificent.

The children of Arvad with your troops were on your walls all around, and those of Gammad were in your towers; they hung their shields on your walls all around, they finished making you perfect in beauty.

Those from Tarshish traded with you in all kinds of riches, promoting your fairs in silver, iron, tin, and lead.

Javan, Tubal, and Mesech were your agents, promoting your trade in men and in bronze ships.

Those from the house of Thogarma promoted your fairs with horses, riders, and mules.

The children of Dedan were your agents; you had in your hand the trade of several islands; and in exchange you were given ivory teeth and ebony.

Syria traded with you; in quantity of works made for you; your fairs were promoted in carbuncles, in scarlet, in embroidery, in fine linen, in coral, and in agate.

Judah and the land of Israel were your agents, promoting your trade in grain from Minnith and Pannag, in honey, oil, and balm.

Damascus traded with you in a great many goods made for you in all kinds of riches, in Helbon wine, and in white wool.

And Dan, and Javan and Mosel, have promoted your shining iron fairs; cassia and [aromatic] reed have been in your trade.

Those from Dédan were your agents in precious sheets for the carts.

The Arabs, and all the leaders of Kedar, were merchants [that you had] in your hand, trading with you in lambs, sheep, and goats.

The merchants of Seba and Rahma were your agents, promoting your fairs in all kinds of the most exquisite drugs, and in all kinds of precious stones, and in gold.

Haran, Cannae, and Heden traded in what came from Sheba; and Assyria learned of your trade.

These have been your agents in all kinds of things, in purple cloth and embroidery, and in chests for precious clothing, in twisted cords; even cedar chests have been in your trade.

The ships of Tarshish praised you in their songs because of your trade, and you were filled and made very glorious, [built] in the heart of the sea.

Your sailors brought you into rough waters, the east wind broke you in the heart of the sea.

Your riches, and your fairs, your commerce, your mariners, and your pilots, those who repaired your breaches, and those who took care of your commerce, all your fighting men who were within you, and all your multitude who are in your midst, will fall into the heart of the sea on the day of your ruin.

The suburbs will tremble at the sound of your pilots' cries.

And all those who handle the oars will disembark from their ships, the mariners, [and] all the pilots of the sea; they will stand on land;

And they will make their voices heard against you, and will cry out bitterly; they will throw powder on their heads, [and] wallow in the ashes;

They will tear out their hair and make their heads bald because of you; they will gird themselves with sackcloth and weep for you bitterly in spirit, mourning bitterly.

And they will raise a loud lament over you in their mourning, and will make their lament over you, [saying]: who [was ever] like Tyre, like her who was destroyed in the heart of the sea?

You have fed many peoples through the trade of goods brought from your fairs beyond the seas; and you have enriched the kings of the earth through the greatness of your riches and your commerce.

[But] when you were broken by the sea in the depths of the waters, your trade and all your multitudes fell with you.

All the inhabitants of the Isles were distressed because of you; and their Kings were horribly terrified, and their faces paled.

The merchants among the peoples have insulted you, you are the reason why we are all astonished that you will never be again.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre: This is what the Lord GOD says: because your heart is lifted up and you have said, I am the Mighty One, and I sit in the seat of God, in the heart of the sea, though you are a man and not the Mighty One, and because you have lifted up your heart as though you were a God.

Behold, you are wiser than Daniel; nothing hidden has been made obscure to you.

You have acquired power through your wisdom and prudence; and you have amassed gold and silver in your treasuries.

You have multiplied your power by the greatness of your wisdom in your trade, and your heart has been lifted up because of your power.

Therefore the Lord God says thus: because you have lifted up your heart, as if you were a God:

Therefore, I am going to bring against you the most terrible foreigners from among the nations, who will draw their swords against the beauty of your wisdom, and defile your splendor.

They will bring you down to the pit, and you will die in the heart of the sea, the death of the wounded, unto death.

Will you go and say before the one who will kill you, I am God? since you will find yourself a man, and not the Mighty God, in the hand of the one who will mortally wound you.

You will die the death of the uncircumcised at the hands of foreigners; for I have spoken, says the Lord Eternal.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, raise a lament aloud against the King of Tyre, and say to him: Thus says the Lord GOD: you who lack nothing, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty;

You were in Eden the garden of God; your covering was of every kind of precious stone, of sardonyx, topaz, jasper, chrysolite, onyx, beryl, sapphire, carbuncle, emerald, and gold; what your drums and flutes could do [was] with you; they were all ready on the day you were created.

You [were] a Cherub, anointed to serve as a protection; I had established you, [and] you were in the holy mountain of God; you walked among the shining stones.

You were perfect in your ways from the day you were created, until perversity was found in you.

Because of the greatness of your trade, violence has been filled in your midst, and you have sinned; therefore I will cast you out like a filthy thing from the mountain of God, and I will destroy you from among the shining stones, O Cherub! who serves as protection.

Your heart was lifted up because of your beauty, you lost your wisdom because of your splendor; I threw you to the ground, I made a spectacle of you before kings, so that they might gaze upon you.

You have profaned your Sanctuaries by the multitude of your iniquities, by making evil use of your trade; and I brought forth fire from the midst of you which consumed you, and I reduced you to ashes on the earth, in the presence of all who saw you.

All those who know you among the peoples have been saddened because of you; you are the cause that we are all astonished that you will never be again.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, set your face toward Sidon, and prophesy against her.

And say: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against you, Sidon, and I shall be glorified in your midst; and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I have executed judgments against her, and I have been sanctified there.

I will therefore send death into her, and blood into her places, and the slain will fall in the midst of her by the sword that will come against her from all sides; and they will know that I am the Lord.

And it will no longer be a prickly thorn to the house of Israel, nor a thorn causing more pain than any of those who are around them, and who plunder them; and they will know that I am the Lord Eternal.

Thus says the Lord GOD: When I have gathered the house of Israel from among the peoples among whom they have been scattered, I will be sanctified in them, and the nations will see it; and they shall dwell in their own land which I have given to my servant Jacob.

They will live there securely, they will build houses, they will plant vineyards; they will live there securely, I say, when I have executed judgments against those who have plundered them on every side; and they will know that I am the Lord their God.

In the tenth year, on the twelfth day of the tenth month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, set your face against Pharaoh King of Egypt, and prophesy against him and against all Egypt.

Speak, and say: Thus says the Lord Eternal: Behold, I am against you, Pharaoh King of Egypt, great Whale lying in the midst of your arms of water, who said: My arms of water are mine, and I made them for myself.

Therefore I will put fangs in your jaws, and I will make the fish of your water arms fasten to your scales; and I will pull you out of your water arms, with all the fish of your water arms that were fastened to your scales.

And [having drawn you] into the desert, I will leave you there, and all the fish in your arms of water; you will be spread out on the top of the field; you will not be gathered or collected; I have given you over to the beasts of the earth, and to the birds of the air, to be devoured by them.

And all the inhabitants of Egypt will know that I am the Lord; because they will have been to the house of Israel a staff, which was only a reed.

When they took hold of your hand, you broke, and pierced their whole shoulder; and when they leaned on you, you broke, and you made them fall backward.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: behold, I am going to bring the sword against you, and I will cut off from among you both man and beast.

And the land of Egypt will be a desolate wasteland, and they will know that I am the Lord, because [the King of Egypt] said: the watercourses are mine, and I made them.

Therefore, behold, I am against you and your watery arms, and I will make the land of Egypt a desert of drought and desolation, from the tower of Syene to the borders of Cush.

No human foot will pass by, nor will any animal foot pass by, and it will be uninhabited for forty years.

For I will make the land of Egypt a desolation among the desolate lands, and its cities among the desolate cities; they will be a desolation for forty years, and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them among the countries.

However, this is what the Lord GOD says: after forty years I will gather the Egyptians from among the peoples among whom they have been scattered;

And I will bring back the captives from Egypt, and return them to the land of Pathros, to the land of their origin, but they will be there a humbled kingdom.

It will be the lowest of kingdoms, and it will no longer exalt itself above the nations, and I will diminish it, so that it will not rule over the nations.

And he will no longer be the assurance of the house of Israel, reminding them of their iniquity when they looked after them; and they will know that I am the Lord Eternal.

And it came to pass in the twenty-seventh year, on the first day of the first month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon made his army serve in a painful service against Tyre; every head became bald, and every shoulder was trampled, but he received no pay, neither he nor his army, because of Tyre, for the service he did against her.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: behold, I am going to give to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon the land of Egypt; and he shall take away its multitude, and carry off its spoil, and plunder it; and this shall be the wages of his army.

For the work he did against Tyre, I gave him the land of Egypt, because they worked for me, says the Lord GOD.

On that day I will cause the horn of the house of Israel to sprout, and I will open your mouth in their midst, and they will know that I am the Lord.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, prophesy, and say: Thus says the Lord GOD: Howl, [and say]: What a day!

For the day is near, yes, the day of the Lord is near, it is a cloudy day; it will be the time of the nations.

The sword will come upon Egypt, and there will be terror in Cush, when those who are mortally wounded fall in Egypt, and when the multitude of its people are taken away, and its foundations are destroyed.

Cus, and Put, and Lud, and all the mixture [of Arabia], and Cub, and the children of the allied country will fall by the sword with them.

Thus says the Lord: those who will support Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her strength shall be overthrown; they shall fall into her by the sword from the tower of Syene, says the Lord Lord.

And they will be desolate in the midst of desolate lands, and their cities will be in the midst of deserted cities.

And they will know that I am the Lord, when I set fire to Egypt; and all who help her will be destroyed.

On that day messengers will go out from me in ships to frighten Cush the confident, and there will be torment among them like on the day of Egypt; for behold, it is coming.

Thus says the Lord GOD: I will destroy the multitude of Egypt by the power of Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon.

He and his people with him, the most terrible of the nations, will be brought to ruin the land, and they will draw their swords against the Egyptians, and fill the earth with the dead.

And I will dry up the arms [of water], and I will deliver the land into the hands of wicked people, I will devastate the land, and all that is in it, by the power of foreigners; I, the Lord, have spoken.

Thus says the Lord GOD: I will also destroy the idols, I will annihilate the false gods of Noph, and there shall be no Prince from the land of Egypt; and I will put terror in the land of Egypt.

I will devastate Pathros, I will set Tsohan ablaze, and I will execute judgments in No.

And I will pour out my fury on Sin, who is the strength of Egypt, and I will exterminate the multitude that is in No.

When I set fire to Egypt, Sin will be severely tormented, and Noh will be broken through various breaches, and there will be nothing but distress in broad daylight in Noph.

The elite young men of Aven and Pibeseth will fall by the sword, and they will go into captivity.

And the day will fail in Tahnes, when I break the bars of Egypt there, and the pride of its strength will cease; a cloud will cover it, and the cities within its jurisdiction will go into captivity.

And I will execute judgments in Egypt; and they will know that I am the Lord.

Now it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the seventh day of the first month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh King of Egypt; and behold, it was not bandaged to heal it, so that cloths were put on it to bind it, [and] to strengthen it, so that it could grasp the sword.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and I will break his arms, both the strong one and the broken one, and I will make the sword fall from his hand.

And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries.

And I will strengthen the arms of the King of Babylon, and I will put my sword in his hand; but I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and [Pharaoh] will weep before him, like people who are mortally wounded.

I will therefore strengthen the arms of the King of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh will fall; and they will know that I am the Lord, when I have put my sword in the hand of the King of Babylon, and he has stretched it out over the land of Egypt.

And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them throughout the countries; and they will know that I am the Lord.

It also came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first day of the third month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, say to Pharaoh King of Egypt, and to the multitude of his people: To whom are you like in your greatness?

Behold, the King of Assyria was like a cedar in Lebanon, having beautiful branches and boughs that gave great shade, and which were of great height; its top was very bushy.

The waters made it grow, the deep made it rise very high, its rivers flowed around its plants, and it sent the conduits of its waters to all the trees of the field. That is why its height rose above all the [other] trees of the field, its branches were multiplied, and its boughs became long by the great waters, when it put out its branches.

All the birds of the air have made their nests in its branches, and all the beasts of the field have made their young under its boughs, and all the great nations have dwelt under its shade.

It had therefore become beautiful in its grandeur, [and] in the extent of its branches, because its root was upon great waters.

The cedars that were in the Garden of God did not take away any of its splendor; the fir trees were not like its branches, and the chestnut trees did not equal [the extent] of its boughs; all the trees that were in the Garden of God were not like it in its beauty.

I had made it beautiful in the multitude of its branches, so much so that all the trees of Heden, which were in the Garden of God, envied it.

Therefore the Lord Eternal says thus: because you have exalted yourself on high, [like that one], whose top was all leafy, lifted up his heart on his high place; And I delivered him into the hands of the strongest of the nations, who dealt with him as he should, and I drove him out because of his wickedness.

And the most terrible foreigners among the nations cut it down and left it there, and its branches fell on the mountains and on all the valleys; and its boughs broke in all the streams of the earth, and all the peoples of the earth withdrew from under its shade and left it there.

All the birds of the air stood on its ruins, and all the beasts of the field retreated to its branches.

That is why no tree watered with water rises from its height, and produces a bushy crown, and the strongest of them, even of all those that drink water, do not remain in their height; for they are all given over to death in the low earth among the children of men, with those who go down into the pit.

Thus says the Lord GOD: On the day he went down to the grave, I caused mourning [over him], I covered the deep before him, and I stopped his rivers from flowing, and the great waters were held back; I made Lebanon mourn because of him, and all the trees of the field were weary.

I shook the nations with the sound of his ruin, when I brought him down to the grave, with those who go down into the pit; and all the trees of Heden, the choice and the best of Lebanon, all of them drinking water, were content in the depths of the earth.

They too went down with him to the tomb, to those who were slain by the sword and his arm, [that is], those who dwelt under his shadow among the nations, [also went down].

To whom then did you resemble in glory and majesty among the trees of Eden? Yet you will be cast down with the trees of Eden to the depths of the earth; you will lie among the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh, and all the multitude of his people, declares the Lord God.

It also came to pass in the twelfth year, on the first day of the twelfth month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, raise a lamentation aloud against Pharaoh King of Egypt, and say to him:

You have been among the nations like a young lion, and like a great fish in the seas; you rushed about in your rivers, and you muddied the waters with your feet, and filled their rivers with mud.

Thus says the Lord GOD: I will spread my net over you with a multitude of peoples, who will pull you in when you are in my net.

And I will leave you desolate on the earth; I will throw you upon the breadth of the fields, and I will cause all the birds of the heavens to dwell upon you, and I will satisfy with you the beasts of all the earth.

For I will lay your flesh upon the mountains, and I will fill your valleys with the debris of your heights.

And I will water the mountains with your blood, the land where you swim, and the beds of the waters will be filled with you.

And when I have extinguished you, I will cover the heavens and darken their stars, I will cover the sun with clouds, and the moon will no longer give its light.

I will darken over you all the lights that give light in the heavens, and I will spread darkness over your land, says the Lord GOD.

And I will cause the hearts of many peoples to tremble, when I bring [the news of] your plague among the nations, in countries you have not known.

And I will fill many peoples with astonishment because of you, and their kings will be utterly terrified because of you, when I make my sword gleam before their eyes; and they will be terrified from moment to moment, each in himself, on the day of your ruin.

For thus says the Lord GOD: the sword of the King of Babylon will come upon you.

I will strike down your multitude with the swords of the mighty men, who are all the most terrible among the nations; and they will destroy the pride of Egypt, and all the multitude of her people will be ruined.

And I will cause all his livestock to perish by the great waters, and no human foot will trouble them anymore, nor will any animal foot disturb them anymore.

Then I will make their waters deep, and I will make their rivers flow like oil, says the Lord GOD.

When I have made the land of Egypt a desolation, and the land has been stripped of the things with which it was filled; when I have struck down all who dwell in it, then they shall know that I am the Lord.

This is the lament that will be made over her, the daughters of the nations will make this lament over her; they will make, I say, this lament over Egypt, and over all the multitude of her people, says the Lord.

It also came to pass in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth day of the month, that the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, lament over the multitude of Egypt, and bring them down, and the daughters of the magnificent nations, to the lowest places of the earth, with those who go down to the pit.

Over whom would you have been pleasing? Come down, and lie with the uncircumcised.

They will fall in the midst of those who have been killed by the sword; the sword has [already] been given; drag it out with all the multitude of his people.

The strongest among the mighty will speak to him from the midst of the tomb, with those who gave him help, and will say: They have gone down, they lie, the uncircumcised slain by the sword.

There is the Assyrian, and all his assembly; his tombs are around him, all of them slain, fallen by the sword.

For his tombs were laid at the bottom of the pit, and his assembly around his tomb; all of them who had spread their terror on the land of the living fell dead by the sword.

There is Helam, and all his multitude around his tomb; they all fell dead by the sword, they went down uncircumcised to the lowest places of the earth, and after spreading their terror on the land of the living, they bore their ignominy with those who go down into the pit.

They laid his bed among those who were slain, with all his multitude; his tombs are around him; all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, though they spread their terror upon the land of the living, yet they bore their shame with those who go down to the pit; he was laid among those who were slain.

There are Mesech, Tubal, and all the multitude of their people; their tombs are around them; all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, though they spread their terror in the land of the living.

Yet they were not lying with the valiant men who fell from among the uncircumcised, who went down to the grave with their weapons of war, whose swords were placed under their heads, and whose iniquities rested on their bones; because the terror of the mighty men is in the land of the living.

You too will be crushed among the uncircumcised, and you will lie with those who were slain by the sword.

There is Edom, its kings, and all its princes, who were placed with their strength among those who were killed by the sword; they will lie with the uncircumcised, and with those who went down into the pit.

There are all the Princes of the North, and all the Sidonians, who went down with those who were killed, because of their terror, being ashamed of their strength; and they lie uncircumcised with those who were killed by the sword, and they bore their ignominy with those who went down into the pit.

Pharaoh will see them, and he will be comforted for all the multitude of his people; Pharaoh, says the Lord Eternal, has seen those wounded by the sword and all his army.

For I have put my terror in the land of the living, therefore Pharaoh with all the multitude of his people will lie in the midst of the uncircumcised, with those who were killed by the sword, says the Lord Eternal.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, speak to the children of your people, and say to them: when I bring the sword upon some country, and the people of the country have chosen one of their own, and have appointed him to serve as a watchman for them;

And that he, seeing the sword coming upon the land, will have sounded the trumpet and warned the people;

If [the people], having heard the sound of the trumpet, do not stand on their guard, and then the sword comes and dispatches them, their blood will be on their own head.

For he heard the sound of the trumpet, and did not heed it; therefore his blood will be on his own; but if he heeds it, he will save his life.

If the watchman sees the sword coming, and does not sound the trumpet, so that the people do not stand on their guard, and then the sword comes and takes the life of one of them; that person will indeed have been caught in his iniquity, but I will demand his blood from the hand of the watchman.

Therefore, son of man, I have appointed you as a watchman for the house of Israel; therefore, you shall hear the word of my mouth, and you shall warn them from me.

When I say to the wicked, "You wicked man, you shall surely die," and you do not speak to the wicked man to warn him from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but I will require his blood from your hand.

But if you have warned the wicked to turn from their ways, and they have not turned from their ways, they will die in their iniquity; but you will have delivered your soul.

Therefore, son of man, say to the house of Israel: you have spoken thus, saying: since our iniquities and our sins are upon us, and we are perishing because of them, how can we live?

Tell them: As surely as I live, declares the Sovereign Lord, I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather that the wicked turn from their ways and live.

Turn, turn from your wicked ways! Why should you die, people of Israel?

Therefore, son of man, say to the children of your people: the righteousness of the righteous will not deliver him on the day he sins, and the wicked will not fall by his wickedness on the day he turns away from it; and the righteous will not be able to live by his righteousness on the day he sins.

When I have said that he will certainly live, and that he, trusting in his own righteousness, has committed iniquity, none of his righteous acts will be remembered anymore, but he will die in the iniquity he has committed.

Therefore, when I say to the wicked, "You shall surely die," if he turns from his sin and does what is just and right;

[If] the wicked man returns the pledge, and restores what he has stolen, and walks in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity, surely he shall live, he shall not die.

His sins will not be remembered; he has done what is right and just; he will surely live.

But the children of your people have said, 'The way of the Lord is not right,' [but] it is rather their way that is not right.

When a righteous person turns away from their righteousness and commits iniquity, they will die for those things.

And when the wicked man turns from his wickedness and does what is just and right, he will live for those things.

And you said: the way of the Lord is not right! I will judge you, house of Israel, each according to his way.

Now it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, on the fifth day of the tenth month, that someone who had escaped from Jerusalem came to me, saying, "The city has been taken."

And the hand of the Lord had been upon me in the evening before the one who had escaped came, and [the Lord] had opened my mouth, while waiting for that man to come to me in the morning; and my mouth having been opened, I did not remain silent.

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, those who dwell in these desert places in the land of Israel speak, saying: Abraham was alone, and he possessed the land; but we are a great many people; and the land has been given to us as an inheritance.

Therefore you will say to them: This is what the Lord GOD says: You eat flesh with the blood still on, and you lift up your eyes to your idols, and you shed blood; and you would possess the land?

You rely on your sword; you commit abominations, and you defile each other's wives; and you would possess the land?

You shall say to them: Thus says the Lord GOD: As surely as I live, those who are in these desolate places shall fall by the sword, and I will give to the beasts those who are in the fields, that they may eat them; and those who are in the strongholds and in the caves shall die of mortality.

So I will reduce the land to a desolate wasteland, so that the pride of its strength will be abolished, and the mountains of Israel will be desolate, so that no one will pass through them anymore.

And they will know that I am the Lord, when I have made their land a desolate wasteland because of all the abominations they have committed.

And as for you, son of man, the children of your people speak of you at the walls and at the entrances of the houses, and speak to one another, each to his neighbor, saying: Come now, and hear what is the word which proceeds from the Lord.

And they come to you as a crowd, and my people sit before you, and they listen to your words, but they do not put them into practice; they repeat them as though they were a profane song, but their hearts always go after their dishonest gain.

And behold, you are to them like a man who sings them a profane song with a beautiful voice, which resounds well; for they listen well to your words, but they do not put them into practice.

But when that happens (and here it comes), they will know that there was a Prophet among them.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel; prophesy, and say to these shepherds: Thus says the Lord God: Woe to the shepherds of Israel who only shepherd themselves! Do not shepherds shepherd the flock?

You eat its fat, and you clothe yourselves with its wool; you kill what is fat, [and] you do not feed the flock!

You have not strengthened the weak sheep, you have not given medicine to the sick, you have not bound up the wound of the one with the broken leg, you have not brought back the one that was driven away, and you have not sought the one that was lost; but you have ruled them with harshness and severity.

And they were scattered, by the famine of the shepherds, and they were exposed to all the beasts of the field, to be devoured, being scattered.

My sheep have wandered over all the mountains and over all the high hills; my sheep have been scattered over all the face of the earth; and there was no one who sought them, and there was no one who inquired about them.

Therefore, Pastors, listen to the word of the Lord.

As surely as I live, says the Lord GOD, I will not [do justice] to the fact that my sheep were exposed as prey, and that my sheep were exposed to be eaten by all the beasts of the field, because they had no shepherd; and that my shepherds did not seek my sheep, but the shepherds fed only themselves, and did not feed my sheep.

Therefore, Pastors, listen to the word of the Lord.

Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against those shepherds, and I will demand my sheep from their hand, and I will make them cease to feed the sheep; and the shepherds shall no longer feed themselves, but I will deliver my sheep from their mouth, and they shall no longer be eaten by them.

For thus says the Lord GOD: Here I am, I will seek my sheep, and I will search for them.

As a shepherd, being among his flock, seeks his scattered sheep, so I will seek my sheep, and will bring them back from all the places where they were scattered on the day of cloud and darkness.

I will therefore take them from among the peoples, and gather them from the countries, and bring them back to their own land, and feed them on the mountains of Israel, by the streams of water, and in all the dwellings of the land.

I will pasture them in good pastures, and their enclosure will be in the high mountains of Israel; and there they will lie down in a good enclosure, and graze in rich pastures on the mountains of Israel.

I myself will shepherd my sheep, and make them lie down, says the Lord GOD.

I will seek the lost, and I will bring back the banished; I will bind up the wound of the broken-legged, and I will strengthen the weak; but I will destroy the fat and the strong; I will shepherd them with reason.

But as for you, my sheep; this is what the Lord GOD says: behold, I am going to set apart the sheep, the rams, and the goats.

Is it a small thing for you to be fed good pasture, if you trample the rest of your pasture underfoot? And to drink clear water, if you muddy the rest with your feet?

But my sheep are fed on the pasture that you trample under your feet, and they drink what your feet have muddied.

That is why the Lord God said to them, "Behold, I myself will set apart the fat sheep and the lean sheep."

Because you have pushed from the side and the shoulder, and you have struck with your horns all those that are languishing, until you have driven them out;

I will save my flock, so that it will no longer be prey, and I will distinguish between sheep and sheep.

I will raise up over them a Shepherd who will feed them, [namely] my servant David; he will feed them, and he himself will be their Shepherd.

And I, the Lord, will be their God; and my servant David will be Prince among them; I, the Lord, have spoken.

And I will make a covenant of peace with them; and I will destroy the wild beasts in the land; and [the sheep] will dwell securely in the desert, and sleep in the forests.

And I will bless them, and all the surroundings of my hillside; and I will send down rain in its season; it will be a shower of blessing.

And the trees of the field shall produce their fruit, and the earth shall yield its produce; and they shall be in their land securely, and shall know that I am the Lord, when I have broken the sticks of their yoke, and delivered them from the hand of those who enslaved them.

And they will no longer be prey to the nations, [and] the beasts of the earth will no longer devour them; but they will dwell securely, and there will be no one to frighten them.

I will raise up for them a renowned plant; they will no longer die of hunger on the earth, nor will they bear the reproach of the nations anymore.

And they will know that I, the Lord their God, am with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are my people, says the Lord God.

But you are my sheep, you men, the sheep of my pasture, and I am your God, says the Lord GOD.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, set your face against Mount Seir, and prophesy against it.

And said to him: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against you, O mountain of Seir, and I will stretch out my hand against you, and make you a desolate wasteland.

I will reduce your cities to a desert, and you will be nothing but desolation, and you will know that I am the Lord.

Because you had an eternal enmity, and you shed the blood of the children of Israel by the sword, in the time of their calamity, and in the time of their iniquity, [which was] its end.

Therefore, as I live, says the Lord GOD, I will make you covered in blood, and blood will pursue you; because you did not hate blood, blood will also pursue you.

And I will reduce Mount Seir to a desolate wasteland, and I will drive away from it all those who frequented it.

And I will fill its mountains with its slain people; your men slain by the sword will fall on your hills, and in your valleys, and in all your streams.

I will reduce you to perpetual desolation, and your cities will no longer be inhabited; and you will know that I am the Lord.

Because you said: the two nations and the two countries will be mine, and we will possess them, even though the Lord was there.

Because of this, as surely as I live, says the Lord GOD, I will act according to your anger and your desire which you have carried out because of your hatred against them; and I will be known among them when I have judged you.

And you will know that I, the Lord, have heard all the insulting words that you have spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying: they have been desolate, they have been given to us to consume.

And you have defied me with your words, and you have multiplied your words against me; I have heard it.

Thus says the Lord God: when all the earth rejoices, I will reduce you to desolation.

As you rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, I will do the same to you; you will be nothing but desolation, O mountain of Seir! even all of Edom entirely; and they will know that I am the Lord.

And you, son of man, prophesy also concerning the mountains of Israel, and say: Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord.

Thus says the Lord Eternal: because the enemy said against you: ha! ha! All the high places, even those of ancient times, have become our possession.

Therefore prophesy, and say: Thus says the Lord GOD: because, yes, because you have been made a desolation, and those around you have swallowed you up, so that you might be a possession for the remnant of the nations, and you have been exposed to the tongue and insults of the nations.

Therefore, mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD: thus says the Lord GOD to the mountains, and to the hills, to the streams of water, and to the valleys, to the ruined and desolate places, and to the abandoned cities which have been plundered and mocked by the rest of the nations all around;

Because of this, [I say], thus says the Lord Eternal: if I do not speak in the heat of my jealousy against the rest of the nations, and against all those of Idumea who have taken my land as their possession, with joy which their heart was full of, and with contempt which they took great pleasure in, to plunder it.

Therefore prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains, and to the hills, to the streams of water, and to the valleys: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy, and in my fury, because you have borne the reproach of the nations.

Therefore this is what the Lord Eternal says: I have raised my hand, if the nations all around you do not bear their shame.

But you, mountains of Israel, will put forth your branches and bear your fruit for my people Israel, for they are ready to come.

For here I am, [I am coming] to you, and I will return to you, and you will be plowed and sown.

And I will multiply men upon you, [namely] the whole house of Israel, and the cities will be inhabited, and the desolate places will be rebuilt.

And I will multiply upon you men and beasts, which shall multiply and be fruitful; I will cause you to be inhabited as of former times, and I will do you more good than you had at the beginning; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

And I will cause men to walk over you, [namely] my people Israel, who will possess you; you will be their inheritance, and you will no longer consume them.

Thus says the Lord Eternal: because it is said of you: you are a land that devours men, and you have consumed your inhabitants;

Because of this you will no longer devour men, nor consume your inhabitants, says the Lord Eternal.

And I will cause you to no longer hear the reproach of the nations, nor bear the reproach of the peoples; and you will no longer cause your inhabitants to perish, says the Lord Eternal.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Son of man, those of the house of Israel who dwell in their land have defiled it by their ways and by their actions; their ways have become before me like the defilement of a woman separated because of her impurity;

And I poured out my fury on them because of the blood they shed on the land, and because they defiled it with their idols.

And I scattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed throughout the countries; I judged them according to their ways and according to their actions.

And having come among the nations in whose midst they came, they profaned the Name of my Holiness, in that it was said of them: these are the people of the Lord, and yet they went out of his land.

But I spared the Name of my Holiness, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations in whose midst they had come.

Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord GOD: I am not doing this for your sake, O house of Israel! but for the sake of my Holy Name, which you have profaned among the nations among whom you have come.

And I will sanctify my great Name, which has been profaned among the nations, and which you have profaned among them; and the nations will know that I am the Lord, says the Lord God, when I am sanctified in you, in their presence.

I will therefore take you from among the nations, I will gather you from all countries, and I will bring you back into your own land.

And I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you will be cleansed; I will cleanse you from all your impurities and from all your idols.

I will give you a new heart, and put a new spirit within you; I will remove from you your heart of stone and give you a heart of flesh.

And I will put my Spirit within you, and I will cause you to walk in my statutes, and to keep my ordinances, and to do them.

And you will remain in the land that I gave to your fathers, and you will be my people, and I will be your God.

I will deliver you from all your uncleanness, I will call for the wheat, I will multiply it, and I will no longer send famine upon you;

But I will multiply the fruit of the trees, and the produce of the fields, so that you will no longer bear the reproach of famine among the nations.

And you will remember your evil way and your deeds, which were not good, and you will hate in yourselves your iniquities and your abominations.

I am not doing this for your sake, declares the Lord God, so that you may know. Be ashamed and disgraced because of your ways, O house of Israel!

Thus says the Lord GOD: on the day when I have cleansed you of all your iniquities I will make you dwell in cities, and the desolate places shall be rebuilt.

And the desolate land will be plowed, instead of having been nothing but desolation, in the presence of all passers-by.

And it will be said: this land, which was desolate, has become like the garden of Eden; and these cities, which had been deserted, desolate, and destroyed, are fortified and inhabited.

And the nations that remain around you will know that I, the Lord, will have rebuilt the destroyed places and planted the desolate land; I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will do it.

Thus says the Lord GOD: I shall again be sought out by the house of Israel, to do this to them, [namely] that I may multiply their men like a flock of sheep.

The deserted cities will be filled with troops of men, like the flocks of the sanctified animals, like the flocks of animals brought to Jerusalem at its solemn feasts; and they will know that I am the Lord.

The hand of the Lord was upon me, and the Lord brought me out in the Spirit and set me down in the middle of a field full of bones.

And he led me around them, and behold, they were in very great numbers on the upper part of that countryside, and were very dry.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, can these bones live?" And I answered, "Sovereign Lord, you know."

Then he said to me, "Prophecy to these bones, and say to them, 'Dry bones, hear the word of the Lord.'"

Thus says the Lord GOD to these bones: Behold, I am going to make breath enter into you, and you shall live.

And I will put sinews upon you, and I will make flesh grow upon you, and I will spread skin upon you; then I will put spirit back in you, and you shall live; and you shall know that I am the Lord.

So I prophesied as I was commanded, and as soon as I prophesied there was a sound, and behold, there was a movement, and these bones came together, one to the other.

Then I looked, and behold, sinews came upon them, and flesh grew upon them, and skin was spread over them; but the spirit was not there.

Then he said to me, "Prophecy to the spirit, prophecy, son of man, and say to the spirit: 'Thus says the Lord GOD: Come from the four winds, O spirit, and breathe on these slain, that they may live.'"

So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the spirit entered them, and they revived and stood on their feet; and it was an exceedingly large army.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel; behold, they say: 'Our bones have become dry, and our hope is lost, it is over for us.'"

Therefore prophesy, and say to them: Thus says the Lord GOD: My people, behold, I am going to open your graves, and I will bring you out of your graves, and bring you back into the land of Israel.

And you, my people, will know that I am the Lord when I open your graves and bring you up from your graves.

And I will put my Spirit in you, and you will live, and I will place you in your own land; and you will know that I, the Lord, have spoken, and have done it, says the Lord.

Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

And you, son of man, take a piece of wood, and write on it: for Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions; take another piece of wood, and write on it: the wood of Ephraim and of all the house of Israel his companions, for Joseph.

Then you will join them together to form one piece of wood, and they will be joined in your hand.

And when the children of your people ask, saying, "Will you not tell us what you mean by these things?"

Tell them: This is what the Lord GOD says: I am going to take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the Tribes of Israel his companions, and I will put them on this one, namely, on the stick of Judah; and I will make them one stick; and they shall be one stick in my hand.

So the wood on which you have written will be in your hand, they will see it.

And tell them: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am going to take the children of Israel from among the nations among whom they have gone, I will gather them from all sides, and I will bring them back into their land.

And I will make them one nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel; they will all have only one King for their King, they will no longer be two nations, nor will they be divided into two kingdoms.

And they will no longer defile themselves with their idols, nor with their infamies, nor with any of their crimes, and I will remove them from all their dwellings in which they have sinned, and I will purify them; and they shall be my people, and I shall be their God.

And David my servant shall be their King, and they shall all have one Shepherd; and they shall walk in my ordinances, they shall keep my statutes, and do them.

And they will dwell in the land that I gave to Jacob my servant, in which your fathers dwelt; they will dwell there, I say, they and their children and their children's children, forever; and David my servant will be their Prince forever.

And I will make a covenant of peace with them, and there will be an everlasting covenant with them, and I will establish them and multiply them, and I will put my Sanctuary in their midst forever.

And my pavilion will be among them; and I will be their God, and they will be my people.

And the nations will know that I am the Lord who sanctifies Israel, when my sanctuary is in their midst forever.

The word of the Lord came to me again, saying:

Son of man, set your face against Gog in the land of Magog, the prince of the chiefs of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

And say: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against you, Gog, Prince of the chiefs of Meshech and Tubal;

And I will make you turn back, and I will put buckles in your jaws, and I will make you come out with all your army, with the horses, and the horsemen, all perfectly equipped, a great multitude with shields and bucklers, and all wielding swords. Those from Persia, Cus, and Put with them, all of whom have shields and helmets. Gomer and all his bands, the house of Togarma from the depths of the North, with all his troops, [and] many peoples with you.

Prepare yourself, and be ready, you and all the multitude that has gathered around you, and be their guard.

After several days you will be visited, and in the last years you will come to the land that has been delivered from the sword, and [to the people] gathered from among many nations, to the mountains of Israel that have been continually in the desert; [you will come] to that land, when that land has been delivered from among the nations, all will dwell in it securely.

You will therefore rise like a bursting ruin, and you will come like a cloud to cover the earth, you and all your troops, and many peoples with you.

Thus says the Lord GOD: In those days many things will come up in your heart, and you will devise a wicked plan.

For you will say: I will go up against the land whose cities have no walls; I will invade those who are at rest, who dwell securely, who all live [in cities] without walls, which have neither bars nor gates;

To take a great deal of plunder and to carry out a great deal of pillage; to put your hand back on the deserts which were once again inhabited and on the people gathered from among the nations, who are tending their livestock and their possessions in the midst of the land.

Seba, Dedan, the merchants of Tarshish, and all its young lions will say to you: Are you not going to carry off a great plunder? Have you not assembled your multitude to carry off a great plunder, to take silver and gold, to take livestock and goods, to carry off a great plunder?

Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say to Gog: This is what the Lord God says: On that day, when my people Israel are living in safety, will you not know?

And will you not come from your place, from the depths of the North, you and many peoples with you, all of them horsemen, a great multitude, and a large army?

And will you not come up against my people Israel like a cloud to cover the earth?

You will be in the last days, and I will bring you into my land, so that the nations may know me, when I am sanctified in you, O Gog! in their sight.

Thus says the Lord GOD: Is it not of you that I spoke long ago through the ministry of my servants, the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in those days for many years, that you would be brought against them?

But on that day, on the day of Gog's coming to the land of Israel, says the Lord GOD, my anger will burst forth.

And I will speak in my jealousy [and] in the heat of my fury, if on that day there is not a great turmoil in the land of Israel.

And the fish of the sea, and the birds of the heavens, and the beasts of the field, and every creeping thing that creeps on the earth, and all men that are on the face of the earth shall be terrified at my presence; the mountains shall be overturned, the towers and the walls shall be brought down.

And I will call down the sword against him through all my mountains, says the Lord GOD; the sword of each of them will be against his brother.

And I will enter into judgment with him by death and bloodshed, and I will rain down on him, on his troops, and on the great peoples who are with him, torrents of water, hailstones, fire, and brimstone.

I will glorify myself, I will sanctify myself, I will be known in the presence of many nations; and they will know that I am the Lord.

Therefore, son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say: Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against you, Gog, Prince of the chiefs of Meshech and Tubal.

And I will bring you back, leaving only six, one after I have brought you up from the depths of the North, and brought you to the mountains of Israel.

For I will break your bow in your left hand, and I will make your arrows fall from your right hand.

You will fall on the mountains of Israel, you and all your troops, and the peoples who are with you; I have given you over to the birds of prey above all birds, and to the beasts of the field, to be devoured.

You will fall on the top of the fields, because I have spoken, says the Lord GOD.

And I will set fire to Magog, and among those who dwell securely in the islands; and they will know that I am the Lord.

And I will make known my Holy Name in the midst of my people Israel; and I will no longer profane my Holy Name; the nations will know that I am the Lord, the Holy One in Israel.

This has happened and has been done, says the Lord GOD; this is the day of which I have spoken.

And the inhabitants of the cities of Israel shall go out, and light the fire, and burn the weapons, the shields, the armor, the bows, the arrows, the throwing sticks, and the javelins, and they shall keep the fire burning there for seven years.

And they shall not bring wood from the fields, nor cut it down from the forests, because they will make fire of these weapons when they plunder those who had plundered them, and when they plunder those who had plundered them, says the Lord Eternal.

And it will come to pass on that day that I will give Gog in those parts a place for a burial in Israel, namely the Valley of the Passersby, which is in front of the sea, and it will silence the passersby with astonishment; there Gog will be buried, and all the multitude of his people, and it will be called the Valley of Hammon-Gog.

And those of the house of Israel shall bury them for a period of seven months to purify the land.

All the people of the land, I say, will bury them, and this will be their name, [namely] the day on which I will have been glorified, says the Lord Eternal.

And they will set apart some people who will do nothing but travel throughout the land, and these men and those who pass through will bury those who remain on the surface of the earth, to purify it, [and] they will search for them until the end of seven months.

And these passers-by will go throughout the land, and whoever sees a man's bone will set up a signal by it, until the gravediggers have buried it in the valley of Hammon-Gog.

And also the name of the city will be Hamona, and we will cleanse the country.

Therefore, son of man, this is what the Lord GOD says: Say to all the birds and to all the beasts of the field: Assemble yourselves and come; gather together from all around to my sacrifice which I am making for you, [which] is a great sacrifice on the mountains of Israel; you shall eat flesh and drink blood.

You will eat the flesh of the mighty men, and you will drink the blood of the principal men of the earth, the blood of sheep, lambs, goats, and calves, all fat cattle of Bashan.

You will eat fat until you are full, and you will drink blood until you are drunk, [fat, I say, and blood] of my sacrifice, which I will have sacrificed for you.

And you will be satisfied at my table with horses, and with beasts of burden, with mighty men, and with all men of war, says the Lord GOD.

And I will set my glory among the nations, and all the nations will see my judgment that I have executed, and how I have laid my hand upon them.

And the house of Israel will know from that day forth, that I am the Lord their God.

And the nations will know that the house of Israel was carried away into captivity because of their iniquity, because they had sinned against me, and I had hidden my face from them, and had given them into the hands of their enemies, so that they all fell by the sword.

I had dealt with them according to their defilement and their sin, and I had hidden my face from them.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: Now I will restore Jacob's fortunes, and I will have compassion on all the house of Israel, and I will be zealous for my Holy Name.

After they have borne their ignominy, and all their crime, by which they had sinned against me, when they remained safely in their land, and without anyone to frighten them.

Because I will bring them back from among the peoples, and gather them from the countries of their enemies, and I will be sanctified in them in the presence of many nations.

And they will know that I am the Lord their God, when I have carried them among the nations and gathered them into their own land, and have left not a remnant of them there.

And I will no longer hide my face from them, since I have poured out my Spirit on the house of Israel, says the Lord GOD.

In the twenty-fifth year of our captivity, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city was taken, on that very day the hand of the Lord was upon me, and he brought me there.

He brought me [therefore] by visions of God to the land of Israel, and set me on a very high mountain, on the south side of which there was something like the building of a city.

And after he had brought me in, behold, a man, who to see him was as one who sees bronze, who had in his hand a linen cord, and a measuring rod, and who stood at the gate.

And this man spoke to me, [and said to me]: son of man, look with your eyes, and listen with your ears, and apply your heart to all the things that I am going to show you, for you have been brought here so that I may show them to you, and that you may make known to the house of Israel all the things that you are going to see.

Here is a wall outside the house all around. And as this man had in his hand a measuring rod six cubits long, [each cubit being] one [common] cubit and a palm, he measured the width of this built wall, which was one rod, and its height another rod.

Then he came to a gate that faced the road leading east, and went up its steps, and he measured one of the gateposts by one rod in width, and the other gatepost by another rod in width.

Then he measured each room by one rod in length, and by one rod in width, and the spaces between the rooms by five cubits, and [he measured] by one rod each of the gateposts near the alley that led to the innermost gate.

Then he measured with a cane the path that led to the innermost door.

Then he measured the gateway to be eight cubits, and its canopies to be two cubits, together with those of the walkway which led to the innermost gate.

Now the chambers of the portal towards the Eastern Way were three on this side and three on the other, all three of the same measure, and the canopies on this side and on the other were of the same measure.

Then he measured the width of the opening of the [first] gate to be ten cubits, [and] the length of the [same] gate to be thirteen cubits.

Then [he measured on one side] a limited space in front of the chambers of one cubit [on this side], and another cubit of limited space on the other side; then [he measured] each chamber six cubits on this side, and six cubits on the other side.

After that he measured the portal from the roof of one room to the roof of the other, to a width of twenty-five cubits; the openings were opposite each other.

Then he put up awnings sixty cubits wide, and at the end of the awnings the courtyard all around the gate.

There were avenues in front of the gate, and in front of the walk that led to the inner gate, fifty cubits.

Now there were narrow windows in the rooms, and on their canopies, [which looked] towards the inside of the portal all around, and likewise on the walkways; and the windows [which were] all around, looked inwards, [and there were] palm fronds on the canopies.

He then led me into the outer court, and behold, chambers and staircases built on all sides in this court, and thirty chambers on each staircase.

However, the steps that were towards the sides of the gates at the point where the gates were the length of the gates, were the lowest steps.

Then he measured across the width of the courtyard from the front of the gate which led down to the front of the inner courtyard [and] outside, one hundred cubits, even as far as the East was, and as far as the North was.

After that he measured the length and width of the outer courtyard of the gate that faced the North Way.

And as for the chambers, three on this side and three on the other, and as for its canopies and walkways, [all] was according to the measurements of the first gate; so that the gate of this [second] outer court was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.

Its windows also, and its other walkways, and its palm fronds were according to the measurements [of the outer courtyard] the gate that faced the road to the East; so that one went up to it by seven steps, and its walkways [met] one in front of the other.

And the gate of the inner court was opposite the [first] gate of the North, as [it was on the side that faced] toward the East; and he measured from one gate to the other one hundred cubits.

After that he led me to the road leading south, and here is the gate of the road leading south, and he measured its canopies and walkways according to the previous measurements.

There were also windows in this [gateway], and in its walkways all around, like the previous windows; so that it was fifty cubits long, and twenty-five cubits wide.

It also had seven steps by which one went up, and in front of which its walkways met; likewise it had palm fronds for its awnings, one on this side and the other on the other.

Likewise, the inner courtyard had its gate opposite the road leading south; so that from that gate to the gate of the road leading south, it measured one hundred cubits.

After that he brought me into the inner court through the gate on the south side, and he measured the gate that was there on the south side, according to the previous measurements.

So much so that the rooms that were in it, its canopies and its walkways had the previous measurements, and this [gateway] and its walkways all around, had windows, and it was fifty cubits long, and twenty-five cubits wide.

And it had walkways all around, which were twenty-five cubits long and five cubits wide.

It also had its walkways to the outer courtyard, and palm fronds on its awnings, and eight steps by which one ascended to it.

After that he brought me into the inner courtyard [the gate facing] the way to the East, and there he measured the gate according to the previous measurements.

So much so that the rooms which were there, its canopies, and its walkways, had the previous measurements, and this gate and its walkways which it had all around, had windows, and it [was] fifty cubits long, and twenty-five wide.

It also had its walkways to the outer courtyard, and palm fronds on its awnings on either side, and eight steps by which one ascended to it.

After that he led me to the North Gate, and he measured it according to the previous measurements.

And its chambers, its canopies, and its walkways. Now there were windows all around; [and a gate] fifty cubits long, and twenty-five cubits wide.

There were also canopies towards the outer courtyard, and palm fronds on its canopies, on either side, and eight steps by which one ascended to it.

There were also rooms which had openings towards the canopies which led to the doors near which the burnt offerings were washed.

There were also in the gate alley two tables on this side, and two tables on the other, for slaughtering the animals that would be sacrificed for burnt offering, and the animals that would be sacrificed for sin, and the animals that would be sacrificed for offense.

And towards one side [of the gate] outside towards the place where one went up, at the entrance of the gate which faced the North, there were two tables, and on the other side [of the same gate] which led towards the gate passage, two other tables. So there were four tables on this side, and four tables on the other, towards the doorposts; and thus eight tables on which they slaughtered [the animals that were sacrificed].

Now the four tables which were for the burnt offering were of hewn stone, one and a half cubits long, one and a half cubits wide, and one cubit high; and also the instruments with which the burnt offering and the [other] sacrifices were to be placed on them.

There were also, inside the house all around, skinning racks, a palm wide, very well fitted out, from which the flesh of the offerings was brought to the tables.

And outside the innermost gate, there were rooms for the singers in the inner courtyard, which were beside the North Gate, and looked out onto the road leading south; [and then] a [row of rooms] which were beside the Eastern Gate, which looked out onto the road leading north.

Then he said to me: these rooms which face the road leading towards the South, are for the Priests who are in charge of the house.

But these rooms which face the road leading north are for the priests who are in charge of the altar, who are the sons of Zadok, who among the children of Levi approach the Lord to do his service.

Then he measured a courtyard one hundred cubits long and one hundred cubits wide, in a square, and the altar was in front of the Temple.

Then he brought me into the vestibule of the Temple; and he measured the posts of the vestibule five cubits on this side, and five cubits on the other, and the width of the gate three cubits on this side, and three cubits on the other.

The length of this vestibule was twenty cubits, and the width eleven cubits, it [was taken] from the steps by which one went up to it; and there were columns near the posts, one on this side and the other on the other.

Then he brought me into the Temple, and he measured out the posts, six cubits wide on one side, and six cubits wide on the other side, which is the width of the Tabernacle.

Then he measured the width of the opening of [the gate], which was ten cubits, and the sides of the opening, five cubits on one side and five cubits on the other. Then he measured [the Temple] a length of forty cubits and a width of twenty cubits.

Then he went into the innermost place, and he measured a doorpost two cubits wide, and the height of that opening was six cubits, and the width of that opening was seven cubits.

Then he measured [inside] this [opening] a length of twenty cubits, and a width of twenty cubits on the floor of the Temple; and he said to me: This is the Most Holy Place.

Then he measured the thickness of the Temple wall, which was six cubits, and the width of the chambers all around the Temple, four cubits.

As for these chambers, there were three of them one on top of the other, so that there were thirty of them, arranged in this way, of which the joists entered into a wall which touched the wall of the Temple, [and which had been added] all around, so that the joists of these chambers would rest on it, and that they would not bear on the wall of the Temple.

Now there was a width and a circuit [around the Temple], much higher than the chambers, for this wall, by means of which one went up all around the Temple, was much higher all around the Temple, and thus it was the cause that the Temple was wider at the top than at the bottom, and by this means one went up from the lower level to the one which [was] above the middle level.

I also saw towards the Temple all around a height which was [like] the foundations of the chambers, which had a great staff, [that is], six cubits of those which go up to the armpit.

The width of the wall that the chambers had on the outside was five cubits; which [space] was also [in the wall], where some place was left unbuilt; [and these two walls were] that on which the surrounding chambers of the Temple were leaned.

Now between the chambers there was a space twenty cubits wide all around the Temple.

The opening of the chambers was towards the wall in which some place was left unbuilt, [namely] an opening on the side of the road towards the North, and another opening [on the side] towards the South; and the width of the place where the wall was, in which some place was left unbuilt, [was] five cubits all around.

Now the building which went to the front of the separation, which formed the side of the road to the West, was seventy cubits wide, and the wall of the building was five cubits wide all around, so that its length was ninety cubits.

Then he measured the Temple, which was one hundred cubits long; so that the partitions, the buildings and the walls that were in it were one hundred cubits long.

The width also of the front of the Temple, and of the partitions towards the East, one hundred cubits.

And he measured the length of the building which was opposite the partition which was behind the Temple, and of its chambers on either side, [and] it was one hundred cubits; then there was the inner Temple, and the walkways of the courtyard.

The posts and the windows which were narrowed, and the surrounding chambers [of the Temple] in [all] their three [stairs, from] along the posts, were only a wooden paneling all around; and the floor was covered with it up to the windows, which were covered with it in the same way;

Up to above the openings, and up to the inner house as well as outside, and over all the surrounding walls, both in the inner [house] as well as in the outer: [keeping all] the measurements.

And [this paneling] was carved with cherubs and palm fronds, so that there was a palm frond between one cherub and another, and each cherub had two faces.

And the face of a man was turned towards the palm on one side, and the face of a lion cub was turned towards the palm on the other side; and thus it was carved by the whole house all around.

From the ground up to above the openings there were carved cherubim and palm fronds, even [up to] the wall of the Temple.

The gateposts of the Temple were square; and the front of the Holy Place had a representation such as the previous representation.

The altar was made of wood, three cubits high and two cubits long; its corners, its length, and its sides were all made of wood. Then he said to me, "This is the table that is before the Lord."

There were also gates at the Temple door, and likewise at the door of the Most Holy Place.

Now each of these leaves was divided into two, which were two leaves that folded back on themselves: so that each of the two leaves was again broken in two.

There were also cherubim and palm fronds depicted on the doors of the Temple, just as there were depicted on the walls. There were also large pieces of wood on the front of the porch on the outside.

There were likewise narrowed windows, and palm fronds here and there, on either side of the porch; there were also the rooms that were around the Temple, and then the large pieces of wood.

After that he led me out to the outer court, by the road leading north; [and] he brought me into the chambers which were along the partition, and which were along the building toward the north.

Opposite the length of one hundred cubits there was an opening towards the North, and the width was fifty cubits.

Along twenty [cubits] which were of the inner court, and along the steps which were of the outer court, there were rooms opposite other rooms, on three floors.

And in front of these chambers there was a walkway ten cubits wide inside, [towards which] there was a path one cubit wide, [and] their openings were towards the North.

But the upper rooms were narrowed; for the lower and middle rooms, [of which this] building was composed, projected further than those.

Because they were three stories high, and had no columns, such as are the columns of the courtyards, and for this reason something had been reserved of the lower and middle rooms from the ground [of the first story].

And the floor which was outside opposite the chambers, and which had a path leading to the outside courtyard opposite the chambers, was fifty cubits long.

For the length of the rooms that were in the outer court was fifty cubits. And behold, there were one hundred cubits in what was opposite the Temple.

Now below the chambers which were in this courtyard was the place by which he had entered from the East, when he had come there from the outer courtyard.

In width, there was the parquet floor of the forecourt towards the paths that led to the East, [and] rooms opposite the separation, and opposite the building.

And there were paths in front of them, like the rooms that were towards the North Way, and they had the same length [and] the same width, and all the same exits, according to their layout, and according to their openings.

Even [the openings of the rooms] which were towards the South Way, were like the openings of those rooms; so that the opening was where the way began, [and] the way went opposite the fully arranged floor, [namely] the way [which came from the East courtyard] to go towards [the rooms].

After this he said to me: The chambers of the northern court and the chambers of the southern court, which are along the partitions, being the chambers of the holy place, are where the priests who approach the Lord will eat the most holy things. They will place the most holy things there, namely, the cakes, the sin offerings, and the guilt offerings; for this place is holy.

When the priests have entered, they shall not leave the holy place to go to the outer court unless they have laid their garments there in which they minister; for they are holy; and they have put on other garments; then they shall approach the court of the people.

After he had finished measuring the inner house, he led me out by way of the gate that faced the way to the East, and then he measured [the enclosure that was] all around.

He measured the eastern side with the measuring rod, and there were five hundred rods all along, from the measuring rod.

Then he measured the northern side, which was five hundred rods long, from the measuring rod.

Then he measured the southern side, which had five hundred canes, from the measuring cane.

Then he went around to the West side, and measured it, and there were five hundred rods, from the measuring rod.

He therefore measured [this enclosure] on [its] four sides, in which there was a wall all around, and this wall was five hundred [rods] long and five hundred [rods] wide, and [it served to] separate the holy place from the profane place.

Then he led me back to the gate mentioned above, [namely] to the gate that faced the way to the East.

And behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the East, and the sound of him was like the sound of many waters, and the earth shone with his glory.

And the vision that I had then was like the one that I had seen when I came to destroy the city, so that these visions were like the vision that I had seen on the river of Kebar; and I prostrated myself with my face to the ground.

Then the glory of the Lord entered the house by way of the gate that faced east.

And the Spirit lifted me up and brought me into the inner court, and behold, the glory of the Lord filled the house.

And I heard him speaking to me from inside the house, and the man [who was leading me] was standing near me.

[The Lord] then said to me: Son of man, this is the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell forever among the children of Israel; and the house of Israel shall no longer defile my holy name, neither they nor their kings, by their fornications; [but rather they] will defile their high places with the corpses of their kings.

For they placed their threshold next to my threshold, and their doorpost right next to my doorpost, so that there was only the wall between me and them; and thus they defiled my holy Name by their abominations, which they did, therefore I consumed them in my anger.

Now they will cast away from me their adulteries and the corpses of their kings, and I will make my dwelling among them forever.

Therefore, son of man, tell the house of Israel about this Temple, so that they may be ashamed of their iniquities and understand its plan.

When they have been confounded by all that they have done, make them understand the form of this Temple, and its layout, with its exits and entrances, and all its figures and all its ordinances, and all its forms, and all its laws, and the writings, as they see it, so that they may observe all the arrangement that must be kept in it, and all the ordinances that have been established in it, and that they may practice them.

This, then, is the Law of this Temple; the whole enclosure of this Temple, on the top of the mountain, [shall be] a most holy place all around. This is the Law of this Temple.

But these are the measurements of the altar taken by the cubit, which is equal to a [common] cubit and a palm. The breast [of the altar] shall be a cubit high and a cubit wide, and its enclosure on its rim all around shall be [high] half a cubit; this [breast] shall be the back of the altar.

From the breast embedded in the ground to the lower projection there will be two cubits, and this projection will be one cubit wide; then there will be four cubits from the small projection to the large projection, which will be one cubit wide.

After that there will be the harel, [high] four cubits; then there will be four horns [that will come out] of the harel, and [will rise] upward.

And the harel shall be twelve cubits long, corresponding to twelve cubits wide; and it shall be square on its four sides.

But each projection will be fourteen cubits long, corresponding to fourteen cubits wide on its four sides, and it will have all around an enclosure [high] of half a cubit, because each projection will have a breast of one cubit all around, and the places by which one will go up to it will face the East.

And he said to me, "Son of man, this is what the Lord God says: These are the statutes of the altar for the day that it shall be made, so that the burnt offering may be offered on it, and the blood may be shed on it.”

This is what you shall give to the Levite priests, who are of the descendants of Zadok, and who come near to me, says the Lord GOD, so that they may minister to me there, a young calf as a sin offering.

And you shall take some of his blood, and put it on the four horns of the altar, and on the four corners of the projections, and on the enclosures around it, [and thus] you shall purify the altar, and make atonement for it.

Then you shall take the calf which is the sin offering, and burn it in the place appointed in the house, outside the Sanctuary.

And on the second day you shall offer a male goat from among the goats, without blemish, as a sin offering; and the altar shall be purified with it as it was purified with the calf.

After you have finished purifying the altar, you shall offer a young calf without blemish, and a ram without blemish, from among the sheep;

You shall offer them in the presence of the Lord, and the priests shall throw salt on top of them, and offer them as a burnt offering to the Lord.

For seven days you shall sacrifice each day a goat, such as is sacrificed for sin, and [the Priests] shall sacrifice a young calf and a ram without blemish, from among the sheep.

For seven days [the Priests] will make atonement for the altar, and cleanse it, and each of them will be consecrated.

After those days have been completed, if on the eighth day and thereafter the priests offer your burnt offerings and peace offerings on this altar, I will be appeased toward you, says the Lord GOD.

Then he led me back to the path of the outer gate of the Sanctuary, which faced east, and it was closed.

And the Lord said to me: This gate shall be shut, [and] shall not be opened, and no one shall pass through it, because the Lord the God of Israel has entered through this gate; therefore it shall be shut.

[It will be] for the Prince: the Prince will be the only one who will sit there to eat before the Lord; he will enter by the way of the alley of that gate, and will leave by the same way.

And he brought me back by way of the North Gate to the front of the house, and I looked, and behold, the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord, and I bowed down on my face.

Then the Lord said to me, “Son of man, apply your heart, and see with your eyes, and hear with your ears all that I am going to tell you, concerning all the ordinances and all the laws that concern the house of the Lord: apply your heart to what concerns the entrance to the house by all the exits of the Sanctuary.

Therefore, you shall say to those who are extremely rebellious, namely, to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: House of Israel! Let it be enough for you that, in addition to all your abominations,

You brought in foreign children, who were uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my Sanctuary, to profane my house, when you offered my meat, [namely] the fat and the blood, and they broke my covenant, besides all your [other] abominations.

And you did not give an order that my holy things should be observed, but you appointed, as you pleased, in my Sanctuary, people to be guards of the things that I had commanded to be guarded.

Thus says the Lord GOD: not one of all the foreigners, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter my Sanctuary, not even one of all the foreigners who shall be among the children of Israel.

But the Levites who went away from me when Israel went astray, and who went astray from me to follow their idols, shall bear [the punishment for] their iniquity.

However, they will be employed in my Sanctuary in the duties which are near the gates of the house, and they will perform the service of the house; they will slaughter for the people [the animals for] the burnt offering, and [for] the [other] sacrifices, [and] will stand [ready] before him to minister to him.

Because they served them [presenting themselves] before their idols, and they were an occasion of stumbling into sin for the house of Israel, for this reason I have raised my hand [sworn] against them, says the Lord GOD, that they shall bear [the penalty for] their iniquity.

So much so that they will no longer approach me to exercise priesthood for me, nor to approach any of my holy things in the most holy places, but they will bear their shame and their abominations, which they have committed.

That is why I will appoint them to have custody of the house for all its service, and for all that is done in it.

But as for the Levite priests, the sons of Zadok, who carefully administered what needed to be done in my sanctuary when the children of Israel departed from me, they shall come near to me to minister to me, and shall stand before me to offer me the fat and the blood, says the Lord GOD.

These are the ones who will enter my Sanctuary, and these are the ones who will approach my table to serve me, and they will carefully administer what I have commanded to be done.

And it shall come to pass that when they enter the gates of the inner courts, they shall wear linen robes; and there shall be no wool on them while they perform the service at the gates of the inner courts and in the Temple.

They shall have linen ornaments on their heads, and linen undergarments on their loins, [and] shall not bind themselves in the place where one sweats.

But when they go out to the outer court, to the outer court, [I say], to the people, they shall take off their garments, in which they minister, and lay them in the holy chambers, and put on other garments, so that they do not sanctify the people with their garments.

They shall not shave their heads, nor let their hair grow long, but they shall simply cut their heads.

Not one of the priests shall drink wine when they enter the inner court.

They shall not take as wives a widow or a divorced woman; but they shall take virgins from the descendants of the house of Israel, or a widow who is the widow of a priest.

And they will teach my people the difference between the holy and the profane, and will make them understand the difference between what is defiled and what is clean. And when any lawsuit arises, they shall attend the judgment, and judge according to the laws that I have given; and they shall keep my laws and my statutes in all my solemnities, and they shall sanctify my Sabbaths.

[Not one of the Priests] shall enter near the dead body of any man, lest he be defiled by it, except that it be for their father, for their mother, for their son, for their daughter, for their brother, and for their sister who has not had a husband.

And after each of them has purified himself, seven days shall be counted for him;

And on the day he enters the holy places, [namely] the inner court to minister in the holy places, he shall offer a [sacrifice for] his sin, says the Lord Eternal.

And this will be their inheritance. I will be their inheritance, for you will give them no possession in Israel, and I will be their possession.

They will therefore eat the cakes and [what is offered for] sin, and [what is offered for] injustice; and everything forbidden in Israel will belong to them.

And the firstfruits of all that is produced first in all things, and of all that is presented as a heaped offering of all things, from among all your heaped offerings, shall belong to the priests; you shall also give the firstfruits of your dough to the priests, so that they may place the blessing upon the house of each one of you.

The priests shall not eat the flesh of any animal that died of itself, nor anything torn by wild beasts, whether bird or four-footed animal.

But when you divide the land by lot as an inheritance, you shall set aside a portion for the Lord, [presenting it to him as] a raised offering, [which being taken from] the length of the land, shall be sanctified out of all the other portions of the land, and shall be twenty-five thousand [rods] long, and ten thousand wide; it shall be a holy thing in all its borders around.

From this [portion] there will be five hundred [canes] corresponding to five hundred other canes, measured in a square around, for the Holy Place, and fifty cubits around for its suburbs.

You shall therefore measure by this measure [the space of the Holy Place, namely] the length of twenty-five thousand, and the width of ten thousand [rods]; and the Sanctuary, [and] the Most Holy Place, shall be in this [space].

This sanctified portion of the land will belong to the priests who minister to the sanctuary, who approach the Lord to perform his service, and it will be a place for their houses, and a sanctuary for the sanctuary.

Then there will be twenty-five thousand [other reeds] in length, and ten thousand in width, which will belong to the Levites who do the service of the house, to be their possession, with the twenty chambers.

Then you shall give for the possession of the city the width of five miles, and the length of twenty-five miles, according to the proportion of the sanctified portion, which will have been raised from all the land; and this shall be for all the house of Israel.

Then [you will assign the portion] of the Prince both beyond the sanctified portion which will have been levied on the whole mass, and within the possession of the city, [namely] all along the sanctified portion which will have been levied on the whole mass, and all along the possession of the city, extending from the western canton to the west, and from the canton which looks towards the east, to the east; so that [the other] length will be on the parts opposite one of the [other] portions, [extending] from the western borders to the borders which look towards the east.

All that land will belong to the [Prince] to be possessed by him in the land of Israel; and the Princes whom I will appoint will no longer oppress my people, but they will distribute the land to the house of Israel, according to their Tribes.

Thus says the Lord GOD: Princes of Israel, be sufficient for you; remove violence and plunder, and establish justice and righteousness; remove your extortions from my people, says the Lord GOD.

Have a just balance, and a just ephah, and a just bath.

The ephah and the bath shall be of the same measure; so that one shall take a bath for one tenth part of a homer, and the ephah shall be one tenth part of a homer, the measure of the one and the other shall refer to the homer.

And the shekel shall be twenty obols; [and] twenty shekels, twenty-five shekels, fifteen shekels shall make the mina.

This is the oblation that you shall offer as a high offering; one-sixth of an ephah of a homer of wheat; and you shall give one-sixth of an ephah of a homer of barley. [And because] the bath [is the measure] for oil, the prescribed offering for oil shall be a tenth part of a bath for a core, [as] ten baths shall make a homer; for ten baths shall make a homer.

Likewise, the prescribed offering of the small livestock shall be two hundred each, even from the best pastures of Israel; [all of which offering] shall be used in cakes, and in burnt offerings, and in peace offerings, to make atonement for you, says the Lord GOD.

All the people who are of the land shall be required to make this exalted offering, for him who shall be Prince in Israel.

But the Prince shall be responsible for providing the burnt offerings, the cakes, and the sprinklings to be offered at the appointed feasts, the new moons, and the Sabbaths, and at all the appointed feasts of the house of Israel. He shall keep ready the sin offerings, the cakes, the burnt offerings, and the peace offerings, to make atonement for the house of Israel.

Thus says the Lord GOD: In the first month, on the first [day] of the month, you shall take a young calf without blemish, and you shall purify the Sanctuary with this sacrifice offered for sin.

So much so that the Priest will take some of the blood of this [sacrifice offered for] sin, and put it on the doorposts of the house, and on the four corners of the projections of the altar, and on the doorposts of the gates of the inner courts. You shall do this on the seventh day of the same month, for the sake of those who sin through ignorance, and for the sake of the simple; and in this way you shall make atonement for the house.

In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, you shall have the Passover, a solemn feast which shall last seven days, during which unleavened bread shall be eaten.

And on that day the Prince will offer a calf for sin, both for himself and for all the people of the land.

Likewise, during the seven days of this solemn feast, he shall offer each day seven calves and seven rams, without blemish, for the burnt offering which shall be offered to the Lord, and one male goat from among the goats [for the sin offering], each of these seven days.

Likewise, he shall offer an ephah for the cake of each calf, and an ephah [for the cake] of each ram, and a hin of oil for each ephah.

In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, at the solemn feast, he shall offer for seven days the same things, [namely] the same sin offering, the same burnt offering, the same cakes, and the same measures of oil.

Thus says the Lord GOD: the gate of the inner court, which faces east, shall be shut on the six working days, but it shall be opened on the Sabbath day, and likewise it shall be opened on the day of the new moon.

And the Prince shall enter by way of the outer gate, and stand by one of the doorposts of the other gate, and the priests shall prepare his burnt offering and his peace offerings; then he shall bow down at the threshold of that other gate, and afterward he shall go out; but that other gate shall not be shut until evening.

So much so that the people of the land will bow down before the Lord at the entrance of this [other] gate, on the Sabbath days and of the new moons.

Now the burnt offering that the Prince shall offer to the Lord on the Sabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish, and one ram without blemish.

And the cake for the ram [will be] one ephah, and the cake for each of the lambs will be according to what he can give; but there will be a hin of oil for each ephah.

And on the day of the new moon [his holocaust] shall be of a young calf, without blemish, and of six lambs and of a ram, also without blemish.

And he shall offer for the calf's cake, an ephah, and for the ram's cake, another ephah, and for each of the lambs according to what he can give; but there shall be a hin of oil for each ephah.

And as the Prince will have entered [the Temple] by way of the alley of this [same] outer gate [of the courtyard], which faces East, so he will leave by the same way.

But when the people of the land enter to present themselves before the Lord at the solemn feasts, he who enters by way of the North Gate to worship the Lord there shall leave by way of the South Gate; and he who enters by way of the South Gate shall leave by way of the gate that faces North; so that no one shall return by way of the gate by which he entered, but he shall leave by the one opposite.

Then the Prince will enter among them when they enter; and when they go out, they will go out [together].

Now in these solemn feasts, and in these solemnities, the cake of a calf shall be one ephah, and [the cake] of a ram another ephah, and the cake of each of the lambs shall be according to what the Prince can give, and there shall be a hin of oil for each ephah.

If the Prince offers a freewill offering, a burnt offering, or a peace offering as a freewill offering to the Lord, the gate facing east shall be opened to him, and he shall offer his burnt offering and his peace offerings as he offers them on the Sabbath day, and then he shall go out, and after he has gone out, that gate shall be shut.

You shall offer a burnt offering to the Lord every day, a year-old lamb without blemish; you shall offer it every morning.

You shall also offer every morning with him a cake, made from one-sixth of an ephah and one-third of a hin of oil to soak the fine flour; this is the continual cake that must be offered by perpetual ordinances.

Thus, every morning we will offer this lamb and this cake soaked with this oil as a continual holocaust.

Thus says the Lord GOD: when the Prince makes a gift [of any part] of his inheritance to one of his sons, that gift shall belong to his sons; because they have a right of possession in the inheritance.

But if he makes a gift [of any part] of his inheritance to one of his servants, the gift shall belong to him, but only until the year of his emancipation, at which time it shall return to the Prince; [for] in any case, it is his inheritance which belongs to his sons, [therefore] it shall remain with them.

And the Prince will not usurp anything of the people's inheritance, defrauding them of the possession that belongs to them, [only] he will leave as an inheritance to his sons the possession that belongs to him, so that none of my people will be driven from their possession.

Then he led me by the entrance which was towards the side of the door, to the holy chambers which belonged to the Priests, which faced towards the North, and behold, there was a certain place on both sides of the back which faced towards the West.

And he said to me: This is the place where the priests will boil the [remains of the animal that was sacrificed for] the trespass, and the [remains of the animal that was sacrificed for] the sin, and where they will bake the cakes; so that they will not carry them out to the outer court to sanctify the people.

Then he brought me out to the outer court, and led me through to the four corners of the court, and behold, there was a court at each corner of the court.

So much so that at the four corners of this court there were other courts joined to it, and they were forty cubits long and thirty cubits wide; all four had the same measure and had their four corners.

All these four courtyards had a row of tall buildings all around, and what was built below these rows of tall buildings, all around, were places suitable for baking.

And he said to me: these are the kitchens, where those who serve the household will cook the sacrifices for the people.

Then he brought me back to the entrance of the house, and behold, water was coming out from under the threshold of the house toward the east, for the front of the house [was toward] the east; and these waters were coming down from under, on the right side of the house from toward the south side of the altar.

Then he brought me out by way of the gate that faced north, and led me around by way of the outer gate, [even as far as] the way that faced east, and behold, the waters were flowing from the right side.

When this man began to advance towards the East, he had a measuring line in his hand, and he measured a thousand cubits; then he led me through those waters, and they came up to my ankles.

Then he measured a thousand [more cubits]; and he led me through those waters, and they came up to my knees; then he measured a thousand [more cubits]; and he led me through those waters, and they came up to my waist.

Then he measured a thousand [other] cubits; but those waters were already a torrent, which I could not ford; for those waters had swollen, they were waters which had to be swum across, and a torrent which could not be forded.

Then he said to me, "Son of man, have you seen this?" Then he led me further on, and brought me back to the edge of the stream.

When I returned there, there were a great many trees on both banks of the stream.

Then he said to me: these waters will go into the Eastern Galilee, and they will go down into the countryside, and then they will enter the sea, and when they have gone into the sea, the waters will become fresh.

And it will come to pass that every living creature that moves wherever either of the two streams enters will live, and there will be a very great quantity of fish. When these waters have entered there, [the others] will be made whole, and everything will live wherever this stream enters.

Likewise, it will come to pass that the fishermen will stand along this sea, from Hengedi to Henheglajim; [so that all this circuit] will be full of nets all spread out to catch fish, and the fish that will be caught there will be in very great numbers, each according to its kind, like the fish that are caught in the great sea.

Its marshes and ditches have been designated for salt production, because they will not be made healthy.

And beside this stream, on both its banks, fruit trees of every kind will grow, whose leaves will not wither, and in which fruit will always be found; in all their months they will produce early fruits, because the waters of this stream flow from the Sanctuary, and because of this their fruit will be good to eat, and their leaves will serve as medicine.

Thus says the Lord GOD: [these are] the borders of the land which you shall possess as an inheritance, according to the twelve Tribes of Israel; Joseph [will have two] portions of it.

But you will both inherit the land over which I raised my hand to give to your fathers; and that land will fall to you as an inheritance.

So this is the border of the country, on the northern side, towards the great sea, [namely] that which is the road to Hethlon, to the district by which one comes to Zedad.

[Where are] Hamath, [the region extending] towards Beroth, [and] Sibrajim, which is between the border of Damascus, and between the border of Hamath, [and] the towns in between, which are towards the border of Havran.

The border therefore [taken] from the sea will be Hazar-henan; the border of Damascus, and the North which looks [properly] towards the North, namely, the border of Hamath, and the canton of the North.

But you shall measure the eastern side from what is between Havran, Damascus, Gilead, and the land of Israel which is beyond the Jordan, and from the border which is towards the Eastern Sea; and [thus you shall measure] the canton which looks [properly] towards the East.

Then [you will measure] the southern side [which looks properly] towards the Autan wind, from Tamar to the waters of the debates of Kadesh, along the torrent to the great sea; [thus you will measure] the canton which looks [properly] towards the Autan wind, pulling towards the South.

But the western side will be the great sea, from the border of the [South] to the place of the entrance of Hamath, that will be the western side.

After that you will divide that land among yourselves according to the Tribes of Israel.

Provided, however, that you cause that land to fall as an inheritance to you and to the foreigners who dwell among you, who have begotten children among you, and they shall be to you like one who was born in the land among the children of Israel, so that they shall come with you to share the inheritance among the Tribes of Israel. And it will come to pass that you will assign to the foreigner his inheritance in the Tribe in which he dwells, says the Lord Eternal.

These are the names of the Tribes; from the end of the side facing north, along the region of the road to Hethlon, from the district by which one enters Hamath, [as far as] Hazar-henan, which is the border of Damascus, on the side facing north, along the region of Hamath, so that this end has the canton of the East and that of the West, there shall be a [portion for] Dan.

And all joining the borders of Dan, from the canton of the East, to the canton that looks towards the West, there will be [another portion for] Asher.

And joining the borders of Asher, again from the canton that looks towards the East, to the canton that looks towards the West, there will be [another portion for] Naphtali.

And all joining the borders of Naphtali, from the canton that looks towards the East, to the canton that looks towards the West, there will be [another portion for] Manasseh.

And all joining the borders of Manasseh, from the canton that looks towards the West, to the canton that looks towards the East, there will be [another portion for] Ephraim.

And all joining the borders of Ephraim, again from the canton of the East, to the canton that looks towards the West, there will be [another portion for] Reuben.

And all joining the borders of Reuben, from the canton of the East to the canton that looks towards the West, there will be [another portion for] Judah.

And all along the borders of Judah, from the eastern canton to the western canton, there shall be a portion which you shall raise up from the whole mass [of the land as] a raised offering, which shall be twenty-five thousand [cubits] wide; and [in] length as much as one of the other portions, from the [canton] which looks toward the east to the western canton; so that the Sanctuary shall be in the middle.

The portion that you shall set up for the Lord, presenting it to him as a raised offering, shall be twenty-five thousand [rods] long, and ten thousand wide.

And this holy portion shall be for these, [namely] for the Priests, [and] it shall have along the side which looks towards the North twenty-five thousand [rods in length], and along the side which looks towards the West ten thousand in width; and likewise along the side which looks towards the East ten thousand, then along the side which looks towards the South twenty-five thousand [rods in length]; and the Sanctuary of the Lord shall be in the middle.

It will be for the Priests, and whoever has been sanctified from among the sons of Zadok, who did what I had commanded to be done, and who did not go astray when the children of Israel went astray, as the [other] Levites went astray;

These will have a portion thus levied on the other which will have previously been levied on the whole mass of the land, as being a most holy thing, and it will be towards the borders [of the portion] of the Levites.

For the Levites' portion will be all around the borders of what belongs to the priests, and it will be twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand cubits wide; so that the whole length will be twenty-five thousand cubits, and the width ten thousand.

But they shall not sell any of it, and none of them shall exchange any of it, nor shall they transport the firstfruits of the land; because it is a thing consecrated to the Lord.

But the five thousand [canes] which remain in width in front of the twenty-five thousand canes [in length], is a profane place for the city, both for its foundation and for its suburbs; and the city will be in the middle.

And these are the measurements [that the city's area will have], on the North side, four thousand five hundred [canes], and on the South side, four thousand five hundred, and on the East side, four thousand five hundred, and on the West side, four thousand five hundred.

Then there will be suburbs for the city, to the North, of two hundred and fifty rods; and to the South, of two hundred and fifty; and to the East, of two hundred and fifty; and to the West, of two hundred and fifty.

As for what will remain in length, and which will be all adjoining the sanctified portion, and which will have ten thousand [rods] on the side pulling towards the East, and ten thousand [other rods] on the side pulling towards the West, on which side it will also be all adjoining the sanctified portion, the revenue that will be derived from it will be to feed those who will do the necessary service in the city.

Those who perform the necessary service in the city, [being taken] from all the Tribes of Israel, will cultivate that land.

You shall therefore take from all the land [of the land] as a holy portion, [presented to the Lord as] a raised offering, all this portion which shall be twenty-five thousand [rods], corresponding to another twenty-five thousand [rods], all taken in a square, and including the possession of the city.

Then what remains shall be for the Prince, both beyond the holy portion, [presented to the Lord as] a raised offering, and within the possession of the city, along the twenty-five thousand [rods] of the portion which shall have been levied from all the mass, as far as the borders which face towards the East, and what shall be tending towards the West, along the [other] twenty-five thousand [rods], as far as the borders which face towards the West, all joining the [other] portions, shall be for the Prince; and thus the holy portion, [presented to the Lord as] a raised offering, and the Sanctuary of the house shall be in the middle of all the land.

What will belong to the Prince will be in the areas between the possession of the Levites and the possession of the city; what will be between [these possessions and] the borders of Judah and the borders of Benjamin will belong to the Prince.

But what remains will belong to the [other] Tribes. From the canton facing east to the canton facing west, there will be a [portion] for Benjamin.

Then, joining the borders of Benjamin from the canton facing east to the canton facing west, there will be another portion for Simeon.

Then, joining the borders of Simeon, from the canton of what looks eastward to the canton of what looks westward, there will be another portion for Issachar.

Then, joining the borders of Issachar, from the canton of what looks eastward to the canton of what looks westward, there will be another portion for Zebulun.

Then, joining the borders of Zebulun, from the canton of that which looks eastward to the canton of that which looks westward, there will be another portion for Gad.

Now [that which belongs] to the side of the South, which [properly] faces the Autan wind, is on the border of Gad; and this border will be from Tamar [as far as] the waters of the debate of Kadesh, [along] the torrent as far as the great sea.

This is the land that you will divide by lot as an inheritance among the Tribes of Israel, and these are their portions, says the Lord GOD.

And these are the exits from the city. On the northern side there will be four thousand five hundred measures.

Then as for the city gates, which will be named after the Tribes of Israel, there will be three gates facing north; one called the Reuben Gate; one called the Judah Gate, and one called the Levi Gate.

On the side facing east, there will be four thousand five hundred [rods], and three gates; one [called] the gate of Joseph; one [called] the gate of Benjamin, [and] one [called] the gate of Dan.

And on the side facing south there will be four thousand five hundred measures, and three gates; one called the Gate of Simeon; one called the Gate of Issachar; and one called the Gate of Zebulun.

[On] the side of that [which faces] towards the West there will be four thousand five hundred [rods], to which there will be three gates; one [called] the gate of Gad; one [called] the gate of Asher; [and] one [called] the gate of Naphtali.

Thus the circuit [of the city] will be eighteen thousand [rods]; and the name of the city from that day on will be: THE LORD IS THERE.

In the third year of Jehoiakim King of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon came [against] Jerusalem, and besieged it.
And the Lord delivered into his hand Jehoiakim king of Judah, and some of the ships of the house of God, which [Nebuchadnezzar] carried away to the land of Sinhar to the house of his God; and he put these ships into the treasury of his God.
And the King told Aspenaz, Captain of his Eunuchs, to bring from among the children of Israel, and from the Royal line and the principal Lords,
Some young children, in whom there was no defect, beautiful of face, instructed in all wisdom, knowledgeable in the sciences, who had much intelligence, and in whom there was strength, to stand in the palace of the King; and that they be taught the letters and the language of the Chaldeans.
And the King assigned them as provision each day a portion of the Royal meat, and of the wine which he drank; so that they might be fed thus for three years, and afterwards [some of them] might serve in the presence of the King.
Among these were children of Judah: Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Hazariah.
But the Chief of the Eunuchs gave them other names; for he named Daniel Belteshazzar, Hananiah Shadrach, Mishael Meshach, and Hazariah Habednego.
Now Daniel resolved in his heart not to defile himself with the portion of the King's meat, nor with the wine which the King drank; therefore he begged the Chief of the Eunuchs not to induce him to defile himself.
And God caused the Chief of the Eunuchs to be kind to Daniel, and to have mercy on him.
However, the Captain of the Eunuchs said to Daniel: I fear the King my master, who has ordered your food and your drink; why should he see your faces more disfigured than those of other young children like you, and make my head guilty before the King?

But Daniel said to Melzar, who had been appointed by the Chief of the Eunuchs over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Hazaria;

Please test your servants for ten days, and give us vegetables to eat and water to drink.

And after that look at our faces, and the faces of the young children who eat the portion of the royal meat; then you shall do to your servants according to what you have seen.

And he granted them this, and tested them for ten days.

But at the end of the ten days their faces appeared in better condition, and they were plumper than all the young children who ate the portion of Royal meat.

So Meltsar took their portion of meat and the wine they were to drink, and gave them vegetables.

And God gave to these four young boys knowledge and understanding in all kinds of literature and wisdom; and Daniel understood all kinds of visions and dreams.

And at the end of the days that the King had said they should be brought in, the Captain of the Eunuchs brought them before Nebuchadnezzar.

And the King spoke with them; but among them all there was not one found like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Hazariah; and they stood in the presence of the King.

And in every learned question that required penetration, on which the King questioned them, he found ten times more knowledge in them than in all the horoscope tellers and astrologers who were in all his Kingdom.

And Daniel was there until the first year of King Cyrus.

Now in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, and his mind was troubled, and his sleep ended.

Then the King commanded that the magicians, and the astrologers, and the enchanters, and the Chaldeans be summoned to explain to the King his dreams; so they came and presented themselves before the King.

And the King said to them: I had a dream, and my mind was troubled, trying to know the dream.

And the Chaldeans answered the King in the Syriac language: King, live forever! Tell your servants the dream, and we will give its interpretation.

[But] the King answered, and said to the Chaldeans: The matter has escaped me; if you do not make known to me the dream and its interpretation, you will be torn to pieces, and your houses will be reduced to rubble.

But if you reveal to me the dream and its interpretation, you will receive from me gifts, bounty, and great honor; in any case, reveal to me the dream and its interpretation.

They answered a second time, and said: Let the King tell the dream to his servants, and we will give its interpretation.

The King replied, and said: I now know that you are only trying to gain time, because you see that the matter has escaped me.

But if you do not tell me the dream, the same sentence will be against you; for you have prepared to speak some false and perverse word in my presence, waiting for the time to change. In any case, tell me the dream, and I will know that you can give me its interpretation.

The Chaldeans answered the King, and said: There is no man on earth who can carry out what the King asks; and also there is no King, nor Lord, nor Governor who has ever asked such a thing of any magician, astrologer, or Chaldean whatsoever.

For the thing that the King asks is extremely difficult and only the gods, who have no dealings with the flesh, can reveal it to the King.

That is why the King, in great anger and indignation, commanded that all the wise men of Babylon be put to death.

So the sentence was published, and they killed the wise men; and they sought out Daniel and his companions to kill them.

Then Daniel diverted [the execution] from the council, and from the decree given to Arioch, provost of the king's household, who had gone out to kill the wise men of Babylon.

And he asked and said to Arioch, the King's commissioner: Why is the sentence so urgent from the King? And Arioch declared the matter to Daniel.

And Daniel entered, and begged the King to give him time, and that he would give the interpretation to the King.

Then Daniel went to his house and told the matter to Hananiah, Mishael, and Hazariah, his companions;

Who implored the mercy of the God of heaven concerning this secret, so that Daniel and his companions would not be put to death, along with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

And the secret was revealed to Daniel in a night vision, and thereupon Daniel blessed the God of heaven.

Daniel then spoke up and said: Blessed be the name of God from one age to the next; for to him belong wisdom and strength.

And it is he who changes times and seasons, who removes kings and establishes kings, who gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to those who have understanding.

He is the one who discovers deep and hidden things; he knows the things that are in darkness, and the light dwells with him.

O God of our fathers! I celebrate and praise you for giving me wisdom and strength, and for now making known to me what we asked of you, by revealing to us the word of the King.

Therefore Daniel went to Arioch, whom the King had appointed to put to death the wise men of Babylon, and when he arrived, he spoke to him thus: Do not put the wise men of Babylon to death, [but] bring me before the King, and I will give the King the interpretation [that he desires].

Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel before the King and spoke to him thus: "I have found a man from among those who were taken captive from Judah who will give the King the interpretation [of his dream]."

And the King spoke, saying to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar: Can you tell me the dream that I saw, and its interpretation?

And Daniel answered in the presence of the King, and said: The secret that the King asks [is such], that neither astrologers, nor magicians, nor soothsayers can reveal it to the King.

But there is a God in heaven who reveals secrets, and he has shown King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen in the last days. Your dream, and the visions in your head [that you had] while lying on your bed, are such.

Your thoughts, O King! have come to you in your bed, concerning what would happen next, and he who reveals secrets has told you what must happen.

And this secret was revealed to me, not by any wisdom that is in me, more than in any of the living, but in order to give the King the interpretation [of his dream], and so that you may know the thoughts of your heart.

You were gazing, O King! and behold a great statue, and this great statue, whose splendor was excellent, stood before you, and it was terrible to behold.

The head of this statue was of very fine gold, its breast and arms [were] of silver; its belly and hips [were] of bronze.

His legs were made of iron, and his feet were partly iron and partly clay.

You were watching this until a stone was cut without hands, which struck the statue on its feet of iron and earth, and broke them.

Then the iron, the earth, the bronze, the silver, and the gold were all broken to pieces and became like the chaff on the threshing floor, blown about by the wind. No place was found for them, but the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

This is the dream; we will now tell its interpretation in the presence of the King.

You, O King! who are the King of Kings; because the God of heaven has given you the Kingdom, the power, the strength, and the glory,

And wherever the children of men dwell, and the beasts of the field, and the birds of the air, he has given them into your hand, and made you ruler over them all; you are the head of gold.

But after you another kingdom will arise, inferior to yours, and then a third kingdom, which will be of bronze, which will rule over all the earth.

Then there will be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron, because iron breaks and smashes everything; and as iron smashes all these things, so it will break and smash everything.

And as for what you saw, that the feet and toes were partly of potter's clay and partly of iron, it means that the Kingdom will be divided, and there will be in it the power of iron, just as you saw the iron mixed with the potter's clay.

And just as the toes of the feet were partly iron and partly clay, so this Kingdom will be partly strong and partly fragile.

But what you saw, the iron mixed with the potter's clay, is that they will mix through human seed, but they will not join with one another, just as iron cannot mix with clay.

And in the days of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed, and this kingdom will not be left to another people, but it will crush and consume all these kingdoms, and it will be established forever.

As you saw, a stone was cut from the mountain without hands, and it broke the iron, the bronze, the earth, the silver, and the gold to pieces. The great God has shown the king what will happen after this; and the dream is true, and its interpretation is certain.

Then King Nebuchadnezzar fell on his face and worshiped Daniel, and said that he should be given something to make as a sweet-smelling offering and sacrifice.

[Also] the King spoke to Daniel, and said to him: Surely your God is the God of gods, and the Lord of kings, and it is he who reveals secrets, since you were able to declare this secret.

Then the King exalted Daniel to great honor, and gave him many great gifts; he appointed him Governor over all the Province of Babylon, and made him greater Lord than all those who had superintendence over all the wise men of Babylon.

And Daniel made a request to the King; and [the king] appointed Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego over the affairs of the Province of Babylon, but Daniel was at the King's gate.

King Nebuchadnezzar made a golden statue, sixty cubits high and six cubits wide; and he set it up in the countryside of Dura, in the Province of Babylon.

Then King Nebuchadnezzar sent to assemble the Satraps, the Lieutenants, the Dukes, the Bailiffs, the Receivers, the Councilors, the Provosts, and all the Governors of the Provinces, so that they might come to the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had erected.

Thus were assembled the Satraps, the Lieutenants, the Dukes, the Bailiffs, the Receivers, the Councilors, the Provosts, and all the Governors of the Provinces, for the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had erected; and they stood before the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had erected.

Then a herald cried out in a loud voice, [saying]: You are told, O peoples, nations, and tongues!

When you hear the sound of the horn, bugle, harp, sackbut, psaltery, symphony, and all kinds of music, you must fall down and worship the golden image that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up.

And whoever does not fall to the ground and prostrate himself will be thrown at that very hour into the midst of the blazing furnace.

Therefore, at the same moment and as soon as all the peoples heard the sound of the horn, the bugle, the harp, the sackbut, the psaltery, and all kinds of music, all the peoples, nations, and languages fell down and worshiped the golden image that the King had set up.

At this point some Chaldeans approached at the same time, and accused the Jews.

And they spoke and said to King Nebuchadnezzar: King, live forever!

You, King, made an edict that every man who heard the sound of the horn, the trumpet, the harp, the sackbut, the psaltery, the symphony, and all kinds of music, should throw himself to the ground and prostrate himself before the golden statue;

And whoever did not fall to the ground and prostrate himself would be thrown into the midst of the blazing furnace.

But there are some Jews whom you appointed over the affairs of the Province of Babylon, namely Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, and these men, O king, have not paid attention to you; they do not serve your gods, nor bow down before the golden image that you have set up.

Then King Nebuchadnezzar, filled with anger and fury, commanded that Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego be brought in, and these men were brought before the King.

And King Nebuchadnezzar spoke to them, saying, "Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, that you do not serve my gods, nor bow down before the golden image that I have set up?"

Now, are you not ready, when you hear the sound of the horn, bugle, harp, sackbut, psaltery, symphony, and all kinds of music, to fall down and worship the image I have made? But if you do not worship, you will be thrown at that very hour into the blazing furnace. And who is God who will rescue you from my hand?

Shadrach, Meshach and Habednego answered, and said to King Nebuchadnezzar: There is no need for us to answer you on this matter.

Behold, our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us from the blazing furnace, and he will deliver us from your hand, O King!

Otherwise, know, O King! that we will not serve your gods, and that we will not bow down before the golden image that you have set up.

Then Nebuchadnezzar was filled with fury, and the look on his face changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego; and speaking, he commanded that the furnace be heated seven times as much as it had been accustomed to be heated.

Then he commanded the strongest and most valiant men in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, to throw them into the blazing furnace.

And at the same time these people were bound together with their underpants, their shoes, their tiaras, and their clothes, and were thrown into the midst of the blazing furnace.

And because the King's word was urgent, and the furnace was extraordinarily blazing, the flame of the fire killed the men who had thrown Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego into it.

And these three characters, Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, all fell bound together in the midst of the blazing furnace of fire.

Then King Nebuchadnezzar was greatly astonished, and quickly rose up, and speaking to his Counselors, he said: Did we not throw three men bound into the midst of the fire?

And they answered, and said to the King: It is true, O King!

He answered, and said: Behold, I see four men loosed, walking in the midst of the fire, and there is no harm in them, and the form of the fourth is like a son of God.

Then Nebuchadnezzar approached the door of the blazing furnace and called out, "Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, servants of the Most High God, come out and come here." So Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego came out of the midst of the fire.

Then the Satraps, the Lieutenants, the Governors, and the King's Councillors assembled to contemplate these figures, and the fire had had no power over their bodies, and not a hair of their heads was singed, and their underpants were in no way changed, and the smell of fire had not passed over them.

[Then] Nebuchadnezzar spoke up and said: Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, who sent his angel and delivered his servants who had hope in him, and who defied the king's word, and abandoned their bodies, to serve no god but their own God, and not to bow down to any other.

Therefore, by my decree, any man of whatever nation and language he may be, who says anything unseemly against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego, shall be torn to pieces, and his house shall be reduced to rubble, because there is no other God who can deliver like him.

Then the King brought Shadrach, Meshach, and Habednego into the Province of Babylon.

King Nebuchadnezzar, to all peoples, nations, and languages that dwell in all the earth: May your peace be multiplied!

It seemed good to me to declare to you the signs and wonders that the sovereign God has performed for me.

Oh, how great are his signs, and how powerful are his wonders! His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his power endures from generation to generation.

I, Nebuchadnezzar, was at ease in my house, and flourishing in the midst of my palace;

When I saw a dream that terrified me; and the thoughts that I had in my bed, and the visions in my head troubled me.

And it was made by me that all the wise men of Babylon should be brought before me, so that they might declare to me the interpretation of the dream.

Then came the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers, and I recited the dream before them, but they could not give me its interpretation.

But at last Daniel, whose name is Belteshazzar, according to the name of my God, and to whom belongs the Spirit of the holy gods, came in before me, and I recited the dream before him, [saying]:

Belteshazzar Chief of the Magi, as I know that the Spirit of the holy gods is in you, and that no secret is difficult for you, [listen] to the visions of my dream that I have seen, and tell its interpretation.

The visions of my head on my bed were thus: Behold, I saw a tree in the middle of the earth, whose height was very great.

This tree had grown large and strong, its top reached to the heavens, and it could be seen to the ends of the earth.

Its branches were beautiful, and its fruit abundant, and there was enough food for all; the beasts of the field sat in the shade beneath it, and the birds of the air nested in its branches, and all flesh was nourished by it.

I was looking in the visions of my head on my bed, and behold, a Watchful and Holy One descended from heaven;

He cried out in a loud voice, and spoke thus: Cut down the tree, and cut off its branches; scatter its branches to one side and scatter its fruit; let the beasts depart from under it, and the birds from between its branches.

However, leave the trunk of its roots in the earth, and having bound it with chains of iron and bronze, let it be among the grass of the field, let it be watered with the dew of heaven, and let it have its portion with the beasts in the grass of the earth.

Let his heart be changed so that it is no longer the heart of a man, and let him be given the heart of an animal; and let seven times pass over him.

The thing is by the decree of the Watchers, and the request with word of the Saints; so that the living may know that the Sovereign rules over the Kingdom of men, and gives it to whomever he pleases, and establishes therein the most abject of men.

I, Nebuchadnezzar the King, saw this dream; you, therefore, Belteshazzar, tell its interpretation; for none of the wise men of my kingdom can declare its interpretation to me, but you can, because the Spirit of the holy gods is in you.

Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, remained astonished for about an hour, and his thoughts troubled him; [and] the King spoke to him, and said: Belteshazzar, do not let the dream or its interpretation trouble you; [and] Belteshazzar answered, and said: My lord, let the dream come to those who hate you, and its interpretation to your enemies!

The tree that you saw, which had grown large and strong, whose top reached to the heavens, and which was visible throughout the earth;

And whose branches were beautiful, and the fruit abundant, and in which there was enough food for all, under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and in whose branches the birds of the air lived.

It is you yourself, O King! who have become great and strong, so much so that your greatness has increased, and has reached to the heavens, and your dominion to the ends of the earth.

But, as for what the King saw the Watcher and the Holy One coming down from heaven, and saying: Cut down the tree, and lopp off its branches, yet leave the stump of its roots in the earth, and [let it be bound] with fetters of iron and bronze among the grass of the field, let it be watered with the dew of heaven, and let it have its portion with the beasts of the field, until seven times are spent over it;

This is the interpretation, O King! and this is the decree of the Sovereign, which has come upon the King my Lord;

For you will be driven away from among men, your dwelling will be with the beasts of the field, and you will be fed on grass like the oxen, and you will be watered with the dew of heaven; and seven times will pass over you, until you know that the Sovereign rules over the kingdom of men, and gives it to whomever he pleases.

But as for what was said about leaving the trunk of the roots of that tree, it means that your Kingdom will be restored to you as soon as you know that Heaven rules.

Therefore, O King, let my advice be pleasing to you, and redeem your sins by righteousness, and your iniquities by showing mercy to the poor; behold, this shall be a prolongation of your prosperity.

All these things happened to King Nebuchadnezzar.

After twelve months, he was walking around the Royal Palace of Babylon;

And the King spoke, saying: Is not this Babylon the great, which I have built to be the royal dwelling place by the power of my strength, and for the glory of my majesty?

The word was still in the King's mouth when a voice came from heaven, saying: King Nebuchadnezzar, it is announced to you that your kingdom will be taken from you. And you will be driven away from among men, and your dwelling will be with the beasts of the field; you will be fed with grass like oxen, and seven times will pass over you, until you acknowledge that the Sovereign rules over the kingdom of men, and gives it to whomever he pleases.

At that very hour this word was fulfilled concerning Nebuchadnezzar, and he was driven away from among men, he ate grass like oxen, and his body was watered with the dew of heaven until his hair grew like that of an eagle, and his nails like those of birds.

But at the end of those days I, Nebuchadnezzar, lifted my eyes to the heavens; my senses returned to me, I blessed the Sovereign, I praised and honored him who lives forever, whose power is an everlasting power, and whose kingdom is from generation to generation.

And by whose price all the inhabitants of the earth are valued nothing; he does what pleases him both in the army of heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth; and there is no one who restrains his hand, or who says to him, "What have you done?"

At that time my senses returned to me, and [I returned] to the glory of my Kingdom, my magnificence and splendor were restored to me, and my advisors and gentlemen sought me out again, I was restored to my Kingdom, and my glory was increased.

Therefore, I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise, exalt, and glorify the King of heaven, whose works are all true, whose ways are just, and who is able to humble those who walk in pride.

King Belshazzar held a great feast for a thousand of his gentlemen, and he drank wine in front of these thousand [courtiers].

And having drunk a little, he commanded that the gold and silver vessels which Nebuchadnezzar his father had taken from the Temple which was in Jerusalem be brought in; so that the King and his gentlemen, his wives and his concubines might drink from them.

Then the golden vessels that had been taken from the Temple of the house of God which was in Jerusalem were brought in, and the King, and his gentlemen, his wives, and his concubines drank from them.

They drank wine there, and praised their gods of gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

And at that same hour came forth [from the wall] the fingers of a man's hand, which wrote in the place of the lampstand, on the plaster of the wall of the royal palace; and the King saw this part of the hand which was writing.

Then the King's face changed, and his thoughts troubled him, and the joints of his loins loosened, and his knees knocked together.

Then the King called out in a loud voice to bring in the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers; and the King spoke and said to the wise men of Babylon: Whoever reads this writing, and declares to me its interpretation, shall be clothed in scarlet, and he shall have a gold chain around his neck, and shall be the third in the Kingdom.

Then all the king's wise men came in, but they could not read the writing, nor give the king an interpretation of it.

King Belshazzar was greatly troubled, and his face was completely changed; his gentlemen were also terrified.

[Now] the Queen entered the banquet house because of what had happened to the King and his gentlemen; and the Queen spoke, and said: King, live forever! Let not your thoughts trouble you, and let not your countenance change.

There is in your kingdom a man in whom is the Spirit of the holy gods, and in the days of your father, light, understanding, and wisdom were found in him, such as is the wisdom of the gods; and King Nebuchadnezzar, your father, your own father, O King! appointed him chief of the Magi, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers, Because a greater spirit, and more knowledge and understanding, to interpret dreams, and to explain obscure matters, and to resolve difficult things, was found in him, and [this man is] Daniel, to whom the King had given the name Belteshazzar. Now therefore, let Daniel be called, and he will give the interpretation [that you desire].

Then Daniel was brought before the King, and the King spoke and said to Daniel: Are you the Daniel who was among those taken captive from Judah, whom my father the King brought from Judah?

But I have heard that the Spirit of the gods is in you, and that in you there has been found a light, an intelligence, and a singular wisdom;

And now the wise men and astrologers have been brought before me, so that they may read this writing, and give me its interpretation, but they cannot give its interpretation.

But I have heard of you that you can interpret and resolve difficult things; now [therefore] if you can read this writing, and give me the interpretation, you shall be clothed in scarlet, and you shall wear a gold chain around your neck, and you shall be the third in the Kingdom.

Then Daniel answered and said before the King, "Let your gifts remain with you, and give your presents to another; however, I will read the writing to the King, and I will give him the interpretation."

O King! The sovereign God had given to Nebuchadnezzar your father, the Kingdom, the magnificence, the glory and the honor.

And because of the greatness he had given him, all peoples, nations, and languages trembled before him and feared him; for he put to death those he wanted, and saved the lives of those he wanted; he exalted those he wanted, and humbled those he wanted.

But after his heart had been lifted up, and his spirit had been strengthened in his pride, he was deposed from his royal seat, and he was stripped of his glory;

And he was driven out from among men, and his heart was made like that of beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild donkeys; he was fed with grass like oxen, and his body was watered with the dew of heaven, until he knew that the sovereign God has power over the kingdoms of men, and that he establishes there those whom he pleases.

You too, Belshazzar his son, have not humbled your heart, although you knew all these things.

But you have risen up against the Lord of heaven, and the ships of his house were brought before you, and you and your gentlemen, your wives and your concubines drank wine from them; and you praised the gods of silver, gold, bronze, iron, wood, and stone, which do not see, nor hear, nor know, and you did not glorify the God in whose hand is your breath, and all your ways.

Then this portion of his hand was sent, and this writing was written.

But this is the writing that was written: MENE, MENE, THEKEL, UPHARSIN.

[And] this is the interpretation of these words; MENE: God has calculated your reign, and has brought it to an end.

THEKEL: You have been weighed in the balance, and you have been found to be light.

PERES: Your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians.

Then, by order of Belshazzar, Daniel was dressed in scarlet, and a gold chain was placed around his neck, and it was proclaimed of him that he would be the third in the kingdom.

On that same night Belshazzar, King of Chaldea, was killed;

And Darius the Mede took the kingdom, being about sixty-two years old.

Now it pleased Darius to establish sixty Satraps over the Kingdom to be over the whole Kingdom.

And above them were three governors, one of whom was Daniel, to whom these satraps were to answer, so that the king would suffer no harm.

But Daniel excelled above the other Governors and Satraps, because he had more wit than they; and the King considered appointing him over the whole Kingdom.

Then the Governors and Satraps sought to find some occasion to accuse Daniel concerning the affairs of the Kingdom; but they could find no occasion or vice in him, because he was faithful, and there was no fault or vice in him.

These men then said, "We will not find any occasion to accuse this Daniel unless we find it in what pertains to the Law of his God."

Then these Governors and Satraps gathered around the King, and spoke to him thus: King Darius, live forever!

All the Governors of your Kingdom, the Lieutenants, the Satraps, the Counselors, and the Captains are of the opinion that a royal ordinance should be established, and a firm decree made, that whoever makes any request to any God, or to any man whatsoever, within thirty days, except to you, O King! let him be thrown into the lions' den.

Now therefore, O King! establish this decree, and have it written down in letters so that it may not be changed, according to the Law of the Medes and Persians which is irrevocable.

That is why King Darius wrote the letter and the decree.

Now when Daniel heard that the letters had been written, he went into his house, and with the windows of his room opened toward Jerusalem, he got down on his knees three times a day, and prayed and praised his God, as he had done before.

Then these men gathered together and found Daniel praying and making a request to his God.

They approached and said to the King, concerning the royal decree: "Did you not write this decree, that any man who makes a request to any god or man whatsoever, within thirty days, except to you, O King!, shall be thrown into the lions' den?" [And] the King answered, and said: "The matter is settled, according to the Law of the Medes and Persians, which is irrevocable."

Then they answered, and said to the King: Daniel, who is one of those who were taken captive from Judah, has not heeded you, O King! nor the decree that you have written; but he prays, making a request three times a day.

When the King heard this, he was greatly displeased, and he took it into his heart to rescue Daniel, and applied himself earnestly until sunset to rescue him.

But these men gathered around the King and said to him, "O King! Know that the Law of the Medes and Persians is that no decree or ordinance which the King establishes shall be changed."

Then the King ordered that Daniel be brought in and thrown into the lions' den. And the King said to Daniel, "Your God, whom you serve continually, will deliver you."

And a stone was brought, which was placed over the opening of the pit, and the King sealed it with his own ring, and with the rings of his gentlemen, so that nothing would be changed concerning Daniel.

After which the King went to his palace, and spent the night without supper, and no musical instruments were brought to him, he could not even sleep.

Then the King got up very early in the morning, when the day was beginning to dawn, and went with haste towards the lions' den.

And as he approached the den, he cried out in a sorrowful voice: Daniel, [and] the King speaking said to Daniel: Daniel, servant of the living God, could your God, whom you serve continually, have delivered you from the lions?

Then Daniel said to the King: O King, live forever.

My God sent his Angel, and shut the mouths of the lions, so that they did me no harm, because I was found innocent before him; and even towards you, O King! I have committed no fault.

Then the king rejoiced greatly and gave orders that Daniel be lifted out of the pit. So Daniel was lifted out of the pit, and no injury was found on him, because he had believed in his God.

And by the King's command, these men who had accused Daniel were brought in, and thrown, they, their children, and their wives, into the lions' den, and before they had reached the bottom of the den, the lions seized them, and broke all their bones.

Then King Darius wrote [Letters of such content]: To all peoples, nations and languages, which dwell in all the earth; may your peace be multiplied!

By me is decreed that throughout the extent of my kingdom people should fear and awe of the God of Daniel, for he is the living God, and he endures forever; and his kingdom will not be destroyed, and his dominion will endure until the end.

He saves and delivers, he performs wonders and marvels in heaven and on earth, and he delivered Daniel from the power of the lions.

So Daniel prospered in the days of Darius, and in the days of Cyrus of Persia.

In the first year of Belshazzar, King of Babylon, Daniel had a dream, and while on his bed he had visions in his head; then he wrote down the dream, and he told the summary of it.

Daniel then spoke, and said: I was watching in my vision by night, and behold, the four winds of heaven rose up with great force upon the great sea.

Then four great beasts came up out of the sea, each different from the others.

The first was like a lion, and she had eagle's wings, and I watched her until the feathers of her wings were plucked out, and she rose from the ground, and stood on her feet like a man, and she was given a human heart.

And behold another beast [which was] the second like a bear, which stood on one side, and had three fangs in its mouth between its teeth; and it was told thus: Arise, eat much flesh.

After that I looked, and behold another beast, like a leopard, which had on its back four bird's wings, and this beast had four heads, and dominion was given to it.

After that one I looked in the visions of the night, and behold the fourth beast, which was dreadful, horrible, and very strong, and had great iron teeth; it ate and broke in pieces, and trampled under its feet what was left; and it was different from all the beasts which were before it, and had ten horns.

I considered these horns, and behold, another little horn came up between them, and three of the first horns were plucked out by it; and behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things.

I watched until the thrones were rolled away, and the Ancient of Days took his seat; his clothing was as white as snow, and the hair of his head was like clean wool; his throne was flames of fire, and its wheels a blazing fire.

A river of fire came out and poured out from before him; thousands upon thousands served him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him; the judgment was held, and the books were opened.

And I watched because of the sound of the great words which that horn spoke; and I watched until the beast was killed, and its body was destroyed and given to be burned with fire.

Dominion was also taken away from the other beasts, although a long life had been given to them until a time and a time.

I was watching [again] in the visions of the night, and behold, there was something like the Son of Man, coming with the clouds of heaven, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and stood before him.

And he gave him dominion, and honor, and a kingdom; and all peoples, nations, and languages shall serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away, and his kingdom shall not be dissipated.

[Then] my spirit failed me in my body, Daniel, and the visions in my head troubled me.

I approached one of the attendants and asked him the truth about all these things; and he spoke to me and gave me the interpretation of these things, [saying]:

These four great beasts are four Kings, who will arise on the earth. And the Saints of the Sovereign will receive the Kingdom, and will obtain the Kingdom forever and ever.

Then I wanted to know the truth about the fourth beast, which was different from all the others, and very dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and whose claws of bronze, which ate and broke in pieces, and trampled under its feet what remained; And concerning the ten horns that were in its head; and concerning the other [horn] that went up, by means of which the three had fallen; and because that horn had eyes, and a mouth that spoke great things; and because its appearance was greater than that of its companions.

I had watched how this horn waged war against the Saints, and overcame them.

Until the Ancient of Days came, and judgment was given to the Saints of the Sovereign, and the time came when the Saints obtained the Kingdom.

He spoke to me thus: The fourth beast will be a fourth kingdom on earth, which will be different from all the kingdoms, and will devour the whole earth, and trample it down, and crush it.

But the ten horns are ten kings who will arise from this kingdom, and another will arise after them, who will be different from the first ones, and he will subdue three kings.

He will speak against the Sovereign, and destroy the Sovereign's Saints, and think he can change the times and the Law; and [the Saints] will be delivered into his hand for a time, and times, and half a time.

But the judgment will be held, and its dominion will be taken away, by destroying it and making it perish, until the end of it is seen.

So that the reign, and the dominion, and the greatness of the Kingdoms which are under all heavens, may be given to the people of the Saints of the Sovereign; his Kingdom is an eternal Kingdom, and all Empires shall be subject to him, and obey him.

So far, this is the end of that saying. As for me, Daniel, my thoughts greatly troubled me, and my good countenance was changed within me; nevertheless, I kept this saying in my heart.

In the third year of King Belshazzar, a vision appeared to me, Daniel, after the one that had appeared to me at the beginning.

So I saw a vision, and it was at Susan, the capital of the Province of Helam, that I saw it; I saw, I say, a vision, and I was on the river Ulai.

And I lifted up my eyes, and looked; and behold, a ram was standing by the river, and it had two horns; and the two horns were high; but one was higher than the other, and the higher one was raised on the rear.

I saw this ram striking its horns against the West, and against the North, and against the South, and not a beast could stand before it, and there was no one who could take anything away from it, but it acted according to its will, and grew great.

And as I watched this, behold, a male goat came from the West over the top of all the earth, and did not touch the ground; and this male goat had between his eyes a horn, which appeared very great.

And he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen standing by the river, and he ran against it in the fury of his strength.

And I saw him approach the ram and, becoming angry with him, he struck the ram and broke both of its horns; and there was no strength in the ram to stand firm against him, and when he had thrown it to the ground, he trampled it, and no one could deliver the ram from his power.

Then the male goat became very large, and as soon as he became powerful, the large horn was broken off, and in its place four new horns grew, very prominent, pointing towards the four winds of heaven.

And from one of them came another little horn, which grew larger towards the South, and towards the East, and towards [the land] of nobility.

It even extended to the army of heaven, and overthrew some of the army and some of the stars, and trampled them.

It even grew up to the Commander of the army; and the continual was removed by this [horn], and the secure dwelling place of his sanctuary was thrown to the ground.

And a certain time was given [her] because of the unfaithfulness against the continual, and she threw the truth to the ground, and did [great exploits], and prospered.

Then I heard a Saint speaking, and a Saint said to someone who was speaking: How long will this vision continue concerning the continual, and concerning the crime that causes desolation, to deliver the Sanctuary and the army to be trampled underfoot? And he said to me: Until 2,300 evenings and mornings; after which the holiness will be justified.

Now when I, Daniel, saw the vision, and asked for its interpretation, behold, the likeness of a man stood before me.

And I heard the voice of a man in the middle of [the river] Ulai, who cried out, and said: Gabriel, let this man hear the vision.

Then [Gabriel] came near to the place where I was standing, and when he came, I was terrified, and I fell on my face; and he said to me, Son of man, hear, for [there is a] time appointed for this vision.

And as he spoke with me, I fell asleep with my face to the ground; then he touched me, and made me stand up in the place where I was standing.

And he said: Behold, I will tell you what will happen at the end of the indignation; for there is a fixed appointment.

The ram that you saw with two horns represents the kings of the Medes and Persians; And the hairy goat is the King of Javan; and the large horn that was between his eyes is the first King.

And what was broken off, and four [horns] came in its place, are four kingdoms that will arise from this nation; but not according to the strength of this [horn].

And towards the end of their reign, when the number of the treacherous is complete, a King will arise, deceitful and of a penetrating mind.

And his power will increase, but not by his strength; and he will cause marvelous destruction, and prosper, and perform great exploits, and he will destroy the mighty, and the people of the Saints.

And by [the subtlety] of his mind he will make fraud prosper in his hand, and he will exalt himself in his heart, and destroy many through prosperity; he will resist the Lord of Lords, but he will be broken without a hand.

But the vision of the evening and the morning, which was spoken, is very true; and you, hide the vision, for it will not take place for a long time.

And I, Daniel, was quite defeated and sick for a few days; then I got up and did the king's business; and I was quite astonished at the vision, but there was no one who heard it.

The first year of Darius, son of Ahasuerus, of the race of the Medes, who had been established King over the Kingdom of the Chaldeans.

In the first year, [I say], of his reign, I, Daniel, having heard from the Books, that the number of years, which the Lord had spoken of to the Prophet Jeremiah to end the desolations of Jerusalem, was seventy years;

I turned my face to the Lord God, seeking to make a request and supplication with fasting, sackcloth, and ashes.

And I prayed to the Lord my God, I made my confession, and I said: Alas! Lord, the Mighty, the Great, the Terrible, who keeps the covenant and mercy to those who love you, and who keep your commandments;

We have sinned, we have committed iniquity, we have acted wickedly, we have been rebellious, and we have turned away from your commandments and your ordinances;

And we have not obeyed the Prophets, your servants, who spoke in your name to our kings, our leaders, our ancestors, and all the people of the land.

O Lord! To you belongs justice, and to us shame of face, which today covers the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and all those of Israel who are near and who are far away, in all the countries in which you have scattered them, because of their transgression which they have committed against you.

Lord, we are ashamed of our faces, our kings, our leaders, and our fathers, because we have sinned against you.

Mercy and forgiveness are from the Lord our God, for we have rebelled against him.

And we have not listened to the voice of the Lord our God to walk in his laws, which he set before us through his servants, the Prophets.

And all those of Israel have transgressed your Law, and have turned away not to listen to your voice; therefore the execration and the oath written in the Law of Moses, servant of God, have fallen upon us; for we have sinned against [God].

And he has confirmed the words he spoke against us and against our governors who governed us, and he has brought upon us a great disaster, such as has not occurred under all heavens like the one that happened to Jerusalem.

All this evil has come upon us, according to what is written in the Law of Moses; and we have not pleaded with the Lord our God to turn away from our iniquities, and to make us heed your truth.

And the Lord watched over the evil [that we did] and brought it upon us; for the Lord our God is righteous in all his works that he has done, since we have not obeyed his voice.

But now, Lord our God, who brought your people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and who acquired a name for yourself, such as [it appears] today, we have sinned, we have done wrong.

Lord, I pray that according to all your righteousness your anger and indignation may be turned away from your city Jerusalem, the mountain of your holiness; for it is because of our sins, and because of the iniquities of our fathers, that Jerusalem and your people are a reproach to all those who are around us.

Hear now, O our God, the request of your servant, and his supplications, and for the love of the Lord, let your face shine upon your desolate Sanctuary.

My God! Give ear, and listen; open your eyes, and see our desolation, and the city which is called by your Name; for we do not present our supplications before your face [based] on our righteousness, but on your great compassion.

Lord, hear, Lord, forgive, Lord, listen and act; do not delay, for your own sake, my God! For your city and your people have been called by your name.

While I was still speaking, and making my request, and confessing my sin, and the sin of my people Israel, and pouring out my supplication before the Lord my God, for the holy mountain of my God:

As I was still speaking in my prayer, this personage Gabriel, whom I had seen in a vision at the beginning, flew swiftly and touched me, around the time of the evening oblation.

He instructed me, he spoke to me, and said: Daniel, I have now come out to tell you something worth hearing.

The word went forth from the beginning of your supplications, and I have come to declare it to you, because you are pleasing. Hear, therefore, the word, and hear the vision.

Seventy weeks are decreed for your people and your holy city, to abolish unfaithfulness, to consume sin, to make atonement for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy Place.

Therefore you shall know and hear that from the going forth of the word to return and to rebuild Jerusalem, until Christ the Ruler, there shall be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; and the streets and the breach shall be rebuilt, and this in a time of distress.

And after these sixty-two weeks, Christ will be cut off, but not for himself; then the people of the ruler who will come will destroy the city and the sanctuary, and the end will be with overflowing, and the desolations are determined until the end of the war.

And he will confirm the covenant to many in one week, and in the middle of that week he will put an end to sacrifice and offering; then by means of abominable wings, which will cause desolation, even to a determined consumption, [desolation] will fall upon the desolate.

In the third year of Cyrus, King of Persia, a word was revealed to Daniel, who was called Belteshazzar; and this word is true, but the appointed time is long, and he heard the word, and he had understanding in the vision.

At that time, I, Daniel, was in mourning for three whole weeks;

And I ate no bread that was pleasing to the palate, and no meat or wine entered my mouth, and I did not anoint myself at all, until these three whole weeks were completed.

And on the twenty-fourth day of the first month I was by the bank of the great river, which is Tigris;

And I lifted up my eyes, and looked; and behold a man clothed in linen, and whose loins were girded with a belt of fine gold from Uphaz;

And his body was like chrysolite, and his face like the brightness of lightning, his eyes were like lamps of fire, and his arms and feet like the gleam of polished bronze, and the sound of his words was like the sound of a multitude [of people].

And I, Daniel, alone saw the vision, and the men who were with me did not see it; but great fear fell upon them, and they fled to hide.

And I, being left all alone, saw this great vision, and no strength remained in me; therefore my outward appearance was changed, until it was completely undone, and I retained no vigor.

For I heard the voice of his words, and as soon as I heard the voice of his words I was overcome with sleep, lying on my face, with my face to the ground.

And behold, a hand touched me, and made me sit on my knees, and on the palms of my hands;

Then he said to me, "Daniel, man loved by God, hear the words that I speak to you, and stand on your feet, for I have now been sent to you." And when he had spoken these words to me, I stood trembling.

And he said to me, "Do not be afraid, Daniel, for from the first day that you set your heart to hear and to grieve before your God, your words were heard, and I have come because of your words."

But the Prince of the Kingdom of Persia resisted me twenty-one days; but behold, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me, and I remained there with the Kings of Persia.

And I have come to tell you what will happen to your people in the last days, for there is still a vision for those days.

And as he was speaking these words to me, I put my face to the ground and remained silent.

And behold, [someone having] the likeness of a man touched my lips, and opening my mouth, I spoke, and I said to him who was near me: My Lord! My joints have loosened from this vision, and I have retained no strength.

And how can the servant of my Lord speak with my Lord, since from now on no strength remains in me, and my breath does not remain in me?

Then the one who resembled a man touched me again, and strengthened me.

And he said to me, "Do not be afraid, you who are received into grace; peace be with you. Be strong, be strong," I said. And as he spoke with me, I was strengthened, and I said, "Let my lord speak, for you have strengthened me."

And he said: Do you not know why I have come to you? Now I will return to fight against the Prince of Persia; then I will go out, and behold, the Prince of Javan will come.

Moreover, I will tell you what is written in the Scripture of truth; yet there is no one who stands with me in these matters except Michael your leader.

But in the first year of Darius the Mede I was present to strengthen and fortify him.

And now I will also tell you the truth: Behold, there will be three more kings in Persia, then the fourth will possess great riches above all others; and having strengthened himself with his riches, he will stir up everyone against the Kingdom of Javan.

And a mighty King will arise and rule with great power, and will do according to his will.

And as soon as he is in power, his Kingdom will be broken and divided to the four winds of heaven, and will not be for his offspring, nor according to the dominion with which he ruled: for his Kingdom will be uprooted and given to others besides them.

And the King of the South will be very powerful, but one of the chief leaders of the [King of Javan] will be more powerful than [the King of the South], and will rule, and his rule [will be] a great rule.

And after [certain] years they will unite, and the daughter of the King of the South will come to the King of the North, to set things right; but she will not restrain the strength of the arm, and [neither he] nor his arm will survive; but she will be given up, and also those who brought her, and him who will be born of her, and who strengthened her in those days.

But the support of the South will rise from a shoot from its roots, and will come to the army, and enter the fortresses of the King of the North, and there will perform great exploits, and will be fortified.

And he will even take captive to Egypt their gods with their sprinkler vessels, and with their precious vessels of silver and gold, and he will outlive the King of the North for a few years.

And the King of the South will enter [his] Kingdom, but he will return to his own country.

But the sons of that one will go to war, and assemble a multitude of great armies; then [one of them] will certainly come, and spread out, and pass through; he will return, I say, and advance in battle to the fortress [of the King of the South].

And the King of the South will be angry, and will go out and fight against him, [namely] against the King of the North; and he will assemble a great multitude, and this multitude will be delivered into the hands of the King of the South.

And after defeating this multitude, he will lift up his heart and strike down thousands, but he will not be strengthened.

For the King of the North will return, and assemble a greater multitude than the first, and after some time, [namely], a few years, he will certainly come with a great army, and a great display.

And at that time many will rise up against the King of the South; and the violent men of your people will rise up to confirm the vision, but they will fall.

And the King of the North will come, and build siege ramps, and take the fortified cities; and the arms of the South, nor its elite people, will not be able to resist, for there will be no strength to resist.

And he will deal with the one who comes against him, according to his will, and there will be no one who can stand against him; and he will stop in the land of nobility, and there will be destruction by his power.

Then he will turn his face to enter by force into all the kingdom of that one, and his affairs will go well, and he will do great things, and he will give him a daughter of women, to ruin the kingdom; but it will not stand, and she will not be for him.

Then he will turn his face towards the Islands, and take several of them, but a captain will force him to cease the disgrace he was causing, and besides that he will bring his disgrace back upon himself.

Then he will turn his face towards the fortresses of his country, he will strike, he will be overthrown, and he will no longer be found.

And another will be established in his place, who will send the exactor for the Royal Majesty, and he will be destroyed in a few days, but not in an encounter, nor in a battle.

And in his place another will be established who will be despised, to whom no royal honor will be given; but he will come in peace, and he will occupy the Kingdom by flattery.

And the arms of the great waters will be swallowed up by a flood before him, and will be broken, and he will be the Leader of an agreement.

But after the agreements made with him, he will use deception, and he will rise up and strengthen himself with a few people.

He will enter the rich places of a [then] peaceful Province, and he will do things that his fathers, nor his fathers' fathers, did not do; he will spread plunder, spoil, and riches over them; and he will plot against the fortresses: and this for a certain time.

Then he will awaken his strength and his heart against the King of the South, with a great army, and the King of the South will advance in battle with a very large and very strong army, but he will not survive, because plots will be hatched against him.

And those who eat the food from his table will tear him to pieces, and his army will be overwhelmed, as in a flood, and many people will fall mortally wounded.

And the hearts of these two kings will be [given] to harm each other, and they will speak at the same table with deceit, which will not turn out well; for there will still be an end in the appointed time.

After that he will return to his country with great riches, and his heart will be against the holy covenant, and he will do [great exploits], then he will return to his country.

[Then] he will return to the prefixed time, and he will come against the South, but this last [expedition] will not be like the previous one.

For the ships of Kittim will come against him, which will grieve him, and he will return, and he will be angry with the holy covenant, and will do [great exploits], and will return, and will make peace with the apostates of the holy covenant.

And the forces will be on his side, and they will defile the Sanctuary, which is the fortress, and they will remove the daily sacrifice, and they will put in it the abomination that will cause desolation.

And he will cause those who behave wickedly in the covenant to sin through flattery; but the people of those who know their God will be strengthened and will perform great feats.

And the most intelligent among the people will instruct many, and some will fall by the sword and by the flame, or will be in captivity and as prey for many days.

And when they fall in this way, they will be helped a little; but many will join them under a fine pretense.

And some of these most intelligent will fall away, so that some of them may be tested, refined, and made spotless, until the appointed time; for this is still for a while.

This King will therefore do according to his will, and will pride himself, and exalt himself above all God; he will utter strange things against the God of gods, and prosper until the indignation has ended; for the determination has been made.

And he will not concern himself with the gods of his fathers, nor with the love of women, nor with any god; for he will exalt himself above all.

But he will honor in his place the god Mahuzzim, he will honor, I say, with gold and silver, and precious stones, and desirable things, the god whom his fathers did not know.

And he will perform great feats in the strongest fortresses, taking the side of the unknown god whom he will have known; he will multiply their glory, and make them rulers over many, and divide the land among them for a price of money.

And at the appointed time the King of the South will clash his horns with him, but the King of the North will rise up against him like a storm, with chariots and horsemen, and with many ships, and he will enter his lands, and flood them, and pass on beyond.

And he will enter the land of nobility, and several countries will be ruined, but these will escape from his hand, [namely], Edom, and Moab, and the principal place of the children of Hammon.

He will therefore take possession of those countries; and the land of Egypt will not escape.

He will take control of the treasures of gold and silver, and of all the desirable things of Egypt; the Libyans and those of Cush will be in his wake.

But news from the East and the North will disturb him, and he will go out in great fury to destroy and exterminate many people.

And he will pitch the tents of his royal house between the seas, opposite the noble mountain of holiness; but he will come to his end, and no one will help him.

But at that time Michael, that great Prince who stands firm for the children of your people, will stand firm; and there will be a time of distress such as has not occurred since there were nations until that time; and at that time your people, [that is to say], whoever is found written in the Book, will escape.

And many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth will awake, some to everlasting life, and others to shame and everlasting contempt.

And those who have been wise will shine like the brightness of the expanse; and those who have led many to righteousness [will shine] like stars, forever and ever.

But you, Daniel, shut up these words, and hide this Book until the appointed time, [at which] many will run, and knowledge will be increased.

Then I, Daniel, looked; and behold, two others were standing, one on this side of the riverbank, and the other on the other side of the riverbank.

And they said to the man clothed in linen who was above the waters of the river, "When will the end of [these] wonders be?"

And I heard the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, who lifted up his right hand and his left hand to heaven, and swore by him who lives forever, that it shall be for a time, for times, and half a time; and when he has finished scattering the power of the holy people, all these things shall be accomplished.

What I heard, but I did not understand; and I said, "My Lord, what will be the outcome of these things?"

And he said, "Go, Daniel, for these words are closed and sealed until the appointed time."

Many will be cleansed and made white, and proven; but the wicked will act wickedly, and not one of the wicked will have understanding, but the intelligent will understand.

Now from the time that the daily sacrifice is taken away, and the abomination of desolation is put in, there shall be 1,290 days.

Blessed is he who waits, and who reaches the end of 1,335 days.

But you, go to [your] end; nevertheless you will rest, and remain in your state until the end of [your] days.

The word of the Lord that came to Hoshea son of Beerai in the days of Hoziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel.

At the beginning when the Lord spoke by Hosea, the Lord said to Hosea, "Go, take for yourself a depraved wife, and [have] illegitimate children by her, for the land does nothing but commit adultery, [turning away] from the Lord."

So he went away and took Gomer, daughter of Diblajim, who conceived and bore him a son.

And the Lord said to him, "Call his name Jezrehel; for in a little while I will punish the house of Jehu with the blood of Jezrehel, and I will put an end to the reign of the house of Israel."

And it will come to pass that on that day I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezrehel.

She conceived again, and gave birth to a daughter, and [the Lord] said to her, "Call her name Loruhamah; for I will no longer show mercy to the house of Israel, but I will completely take them away."

But I will have mercy on the house of Judah, and I will deliver them by the Lord their God; and I will not deliver them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, nor by horses, nor by horsemen.

Then, when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and gave birth to a son.

And [the Lord] said: Call his name Lo-hammi; for you are not my people, and I will not be your [God].

However, it will come to pass that the number of the children of Israel will be like the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured or counted; and it will come to pass that in the place where it was said to them, "You are Lo-hammi," it will be said to them, "You are the children of the living God."

Therefore the children of Judah and the children of Israel shall be gathered together, and they shall appoint a leader for themselves, and go up out of the land; for the day of Jezrehel shall have been great.

Call your brothers Hammi, and your sisters Ruhama.

Plead, plead with your mother, for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband; and let her remove her prostitution from before her, and her adultery from her bosom. Lest I expose her nakedness, lest I return her to the state in which she was the day she was born, lest I reduce her to a desert, and make her be like a dry land, and cause her to die of thirst.

And that I show no mercy to her children, for they are children of prostitution. Because their mother played the harlot, she who conceived them disgraced herself, for she said: I will go after those I love, who give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, my oil and my drinks.

Therefore, behold, I will block your way with thorns, and I will make a wall of stones, so that she shall not find her paths.

She will go to those whose friendship she seeks; but she will not reach them; she will seek them, but she will not find them; and she will say: I will go back to my first husband, for then I was better than I am now.

But she did not know that it was I who had given her the wheat, and the wine, and the oil, and who had multiplied for her the silver and the gold with which they made a Bahal.

That is why I will come to reclaim my wheat in its season, and my wine in its season, and I will take away my wool and my linen that covered her nakedness.

And now I will expose her depravity before the eyes of those who love her, and no one will deliver her from my hand.

I will put an end to all her joy, her festivals, her new moons, her Sabbaths, and all her solemnities.

And I will ruin her vineyards and her fig trees, of which she said, "These are my rewards that those who love me have given me," and I will reduce them to a forest, and the beasts of the field will devour them.

And I will punish her for the days of the Bahalins, in which she made perfumes for them, and adorned herself with her rings and jewels, and went after those who loved her, and forgot me, says the Lord.

Nevertheless, behold, I will draw her after I have led her through the wilderness, and I will speak to her according to her heart.

And I will give her her vineyards, from that place, and the Valley of Hahor, for the entrance of her waiting, and there she will sing as in the days of her youth, and as when she came up from the land of Egypt.

And it will come to pass on that day, says the Lord, that you will call me My husband, and you will no longer call me My Bahal.

For I will remove the names of the Bahalins from his mouth, and they will no longer be mentioned by name.

Therefore at that time I will make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the air, and with the creeping things of the earth; and I will break [and remove] from the land the bow, and the sword, and war, and I will make them sleep in safety.

And I will marry you for myself forever; I will marry you, I say, for myself, in righteousness, and in judgment, and in gratuitousness, and in compassion.

I will indeed marry you firmly, and you will know the Lord.

And it will come to pass at that time that I will answer, says the Lord, that I will answer the heavens, and the heavens will answer the earth.

And the earth will respond to the wheat, the good wine, and the oil; and they will respond to Jezrehel.

Then I will sow it for myself in the earth, and I will have mercy on Lo-ruhamah; and I will say to Lo-hammi, you are my people; and he will say to me, my God.

After this the Lord said to me, "Go again and love a woman who is loved by a [friend], yet an adulteress, according to the Lord's love for the children of Israel, though they look to other gods and love bottles of wine."

So I acquired that woman for fifteen pieces of silver and one and a half homers of barley;

And I said to her, "You will stay with me for many days; you will not abandon yourself anymore, and you will not be a husband; and I will also be faithful to you."

For the children of Israel shall dwell for many days without King and without Governor, without sacrifice, and without statue, without Ephod and without Teraphim.

But after this the children of Israel will repent, and seek the Lord their God, and David their King; they will revere the Lord and his goodness in the last days.

Children of Israel, listen to the word of the Lord; for the Lord has a case against the inhabitants of the land; because there is no truth, no mercy, no knowledge of God in the land.

There is only execration, only lies, only murder, only theft and only adultery; they have completely run rampant, and one murder leads to another.

Therefore the land will mourn, and all who dwell in it will languish, along with the beasts of the field and the birds of the air; even the fish of the sea will perish.

In any case, let no one argue with anyone, and let no one be reproved; for as for your people, they are all people who argue with the priest.

You will fall in broad daylight, and the prophet will also fall with you at night, and I will exterminate your mother.

My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge. Because you have rejected knowledge, I will reject you from serving me as priests. Because you have forgotten the law of your God, I will also forget your children.

As they increased, they sinned against me; I will change their glory into shame.

They eat the sins of my people, and ask for nothing but their iniquity.

Therefore the priest shall be treated like the people, and I will visit him according to his ways, and I will repay him according to his deeds.

They will eat, but they will not be satisfied; they will prostitute themselves, but they will not multiply; because they have forsaken the Lord, not holding on to him.

Lust, and wine, and new wine, take away the understanding.

My people ask their wood for guidance, and their staff answers them: for the spirit of fornication has led them astray, and they have committed adultery, turning away from their God.

They sacrifice on the mountaintops, and make incense on the hillsides, under oaks, poplars, and elms, because their shade is pleasant; therefore your daughters will become prostitutes, and your sons' wives will commit adultery.

I will not punish your daughters when they have given themselves up, nor your sons' wives when they have committed adultery; because they separate themselves with prostitutes and sacrifice with debauched women; thus the people, who lack understanding, will be ruined.

If you commit adultery, O Israel! [at least] let Judah not be guilty; therefore do not enter Gilgal, and do not go up to Beth-aven, and do not swear; the Lord lives. Because Israel was stubborn like a stubborn heifer, the Lord will now shepherd them like lambs in spacious places.

Ephraim has associated himself with idols; abandon him.

Their drink has turned sour; they have done nothing but prostitute themselves; they only like to [say], bring it; it is nothing but ignominy that his protectors.

The wind has caught him in its wings, and they will be ashamed of their sacrifices. Listen to this, Priests, and you house of Israel, pay attention, and [you] house of the King, give ear; for it is your duty to do justice; but you have become like a snare in Mizpah, and like a net spread over Tabor.

And they subtly invented ways to slaughter the rebels, but I will punish them all. I know who Ephraim is, and Israel is not unknown to me: for now you, Ephraim, have committed adultery, Israel is defiled.

Their behavior will not allow them to return to their God, because the spirit of fornication is in their midst, and they do not know the Lord.

Therefore the pride of Israel will testify against him, and Israel and Ephraim will fall in their iniquity; Judah also will fall with them.

They will go with their sheep and their cattle to seek the Lord, but they will not find him; he has withdrawn from them.

They have acted unfaithfully against the Lord; for they have begotten foreign children; now a month will devour them with their possessions.

Blow the horn at Gibeah, and the trumpet at Ramah; sound the loud voice at Bethaven; we are behind you, Benjamin.

Ephraim will be desolate on the day of punishment; I am making it known among the Tribes of Israel [as] a certainty.

The governors of Judah are all boundary-shakers; I will pour out my fury on them like water.

Ephraim is oppressed, he is broken justly, because of his own free will he went after the commandment.

Therefore I will be like a moth to Ephraim, and like worms to the house of Judah.

And Ephraim saw his languor, and Judah his wound; Ephraim went to the King of Assyria, and they sent to King Jareb, but he will not be able to heal you, nor will he bind up the wound to deliver you from it.

For I will be like a lion to Ephraim, and like a young lion to the house of Judah; I, I will tear them apart, and then I will go away; I will carry them off, and no one will take them from me.

I will go away and return to my place until they acknowledge their guilt and seek my face; they will seek me early in the morning in their anguish.

"Come," they will say, "let us return to the Lord, for it is he who has torn us to pieces, but he will heal us; he has struck us, but he will bind up our wounds."

He will have raised us from the dead in two days, and on the third day he will have restored us to health, and we will live in his presence.

For we shall know the Lord, and we shall continue to know him; his rising is prepared like the breaking of the sun, and he shall come to us like the rain, like the latter rains that water the earth.

What shall I do to you, Ephraim? What shall I do to you, Judah? For your piety is like a morning cloud, like the morning dew that departs.

That is why I have shaped them by my Prophets, I have killed them by the words of my mouth, and my judgments upon them will be [like] the rising light.

For I desire mercy, not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God, rather than burnt offerings.

But they have transgressed the covenant, as if it were a man's, in which they have acted treacherously against me.

Gilead is a city of workers of iniquity, cunning in killing.

And as bands of robbers lie in wait for someone, so the priests, after plotting, kill people on the road, on the side of Shechem; for they carry out their wicked plans.

I have seen a shameful thing in the house of Israel; there is the prostitution of Ephraim, and Israel is defiled by it.

Judah will reap you when I bring my people back from captivity.

As I was healing Israel, the iniquity of Ephraim and the wickedness of Samaria were uncovered, for they had committed falsehood, and the thief enters, and the robber plunders outside.

And they did not think in their hearts that I remembered all their malice; their behavior, which was in my presence, has now surrounded them.

They delight the King with their malice, and the Governors with their perfidy.

They all commit adultery, [being ablaze] like an oven that the baker has heated, [after] he has ceased to awaken from the time the dough is kneaded until it is risen.

On the day of our King, they made the Governors sick by making them drink bottles of wine; he reached out to the jesters.

For they have applied to their snares their heart [burning] like an oven; their baker sleeps all night, in the morning [the oven] is ablaze like a fire accompanied by flame.

They are all heated like an oven, and they devour their governors; all their kings have fallen, and there is not one of them who cries out to me.

Ephraim himself mixes with the peoples; Ephraim is like a cake that has not been turned.

Foreigners have devoured his strength, and he did not recognize it; gray hairs have already appeared in him, and he did not know it.

Therefore the pride of Israel will testify against him; for they have not turned to the Lord their God, nor sought him for all this.

Ephraim became like a simple dove, without understanding; [for] they claimed Egypt, and went to the King of Assyria.

[But] when they go there, I will spread my net over them; and I will strike them down like the birds of the air; I will punish them, as was proclaimed in their assembly.

Woe to them, because they stray from me to this and that; they shall be exposed to harm; for they have acted wickedly against me; yet I would redeem them, but they utter lies against me.

They do not cry out to me in their hearts, when they howl in their beds; they tear themselves apart for wheat and good wine, and they turn away from me.

I punished them, and I strengthened their arms, but they plotted evil against me.

They turn back, [but] not to the Sovereign; they have become like a deceiving bow; the leaders of them will fall by the sword, because of the fury of their tongue; this will become a mockery of them in the land of Egypt.

[Shout as if you had] a trumpet in your mouth. [He comes] like an eagle against the House of the Lord; because they have transgressed my covenant, and have acted wickedly against my Law.

They will cry out to me: My God! We have known you, [Israel] will say.

Israel has rejected what is good; the enemy will pursue it.

They made rulers, but not by my authority; they appointed governors, and I knew nothing about it; they made gods of their gold and silver; therefore they shall be cut off.

Samaria, your calf has driven you far away; my anger has burned against them; how long will they not be able to [indulge] in innocence?

For it is also of Israel, the goldsmith made it, and it is not God; therefore the calf of Samaria shall be cut in pieces.

Because they sow the wind, they will reap the whirlwind; and there will be no standing wheat; the grain will not make flour, and if it does, foreigners will devour it.

Israel is devoured; it is now among the nations like a ship that no one cares about.

For they went up to the King of Assyria, who is a wild donkey, standing alone apart; Ephraim gave pledges to those he loved.

And because they have given pledges to the nations, I will now assemble them; they have even begun to do so somewhat, because of the tax for the King of Princes.

Because Ephraim made many altars for sinning, they will have altars for sinning.

I wrote to him the great things of my Law, [but] they are considered as foreign laws.

As for the sacrifices offered to me, they sacrifice flesh and eat it; [but] the Lord does not accept them, and now he will remember their iniquity and punish their sins; they will return to Egypt.

Israel has forgotten its Maker and has built palaces; and Judah has made many fortified cities; therefore I will send fire upon the cities of this one, when it has devoured the palaces of that one.

Israel, do not rejoice like the other nations over your adultery, turning away from your God. You have loved the reward of fornication in all the threshing floors.

The threshing floor and the vat will not feed them, and sweet wine will deceive them.

They will not remain in the land of the Lord, but Ephraim will return to Egypt, and they will eat defiled meat in Assyria.

They will not sprinkle wine on the Lord, nor will their sacrifices please him; [but] they will be like the bread of mourning to them; all who eat of it will be defiled; because their bread is for their dead, it will not enter the house of the Lord.

What will you do on the days of the solemn feasts, and on the days of the Lord's feasts?

For behold, they have gone away because of the destruction; Egypt will oppress them, Memphis will bury them; only their silver will be desired; the thistle will be their heir, and the thorn will be in their tabernacles.

The days of visitation have come, the days of retribution have come, and Israel will know it. The prophets are fools, the men of revelation are insane because of the greatness of your iniquity and your great aversion.

The watchman of Ephraim is with my God; [but] the prophet is a fowler's snare in all the ways of Ephraim, he [is] an aversion to the house of his God.

They have become extremely corrupt, as in the days of Gibeah; he will remember their iniquity, he will punish their sins.

I had, [he will say], found Israel like clusters in a desert; I had seen your fathers like the first fruit on a fig tree in its beginning; [but] they entered towards Bahal-pehor, and separated themselves to go after a shameful thing, and made themselves abominable like what they loved.

Ephraim's glory will fly away as quickly as a bird, from birth, from the womb, and from conception.

If they raise their children, I will deprive them of them, [so that not one of them] will become a man; for also, woe to them, when I have withdrawn from them.

Ephraim was like Tyre I saw, planted in a pleasant place, but nevertheless Ephraim will lead his sons to the murderer.

O Eternal One! Give them; [but] what would you give them? Give them a womb prone to miscarry, and dry breasts.

All their wickedness is in Gilgal; that is why I hated them there; I will drive them out of my house because of the malice of their actions; I will no longer love them; all the leaders of them are stubborn.

Ephraim has been struck down; and their root is withered, they will bear no more fruit; and if they beget [children], I will put to death the desirable [fruits] of their womb.

My God will reject them, because they did not listen to him, and they will be wanderers among the nations.

Israel is a desert vine, bearing fruit only for itself; they have multiplied altars according to the multiplication of their fruit, according to the goodness of their land, they have adorned their statues.

He has divided their hearts, they will be treated as guilty, he will tear down their altars, he will destroy their statues.

For soon they will say: We have no king, because we have not feared the Lord; and what could a king do for us?

They spoke words, swearing falsely when they made a covenant; therefore judgment will sprout on the furrows of the fields, like gall.

The inhabitants of Samaria will be terrified because of the young cows of Beth-aven: for the people will mourn over their idol; and the priests of their idols, who had rejoiced over it, will mourn because its glory has been transferred away from it.

It will even be transported to Assyria, to be presented to King Jareb; Ephraim will be ashamed, and Israel will be ashamed of its plan.

The King of Samaria will be cut off, like the foam that is above the water.

And the high places of Aven, which are the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed; thorns and thistles shall grow on the altars; and it shall be said to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall on us.

Israel, you have sinned from the days of Gibeah; they remained there; the battle that was against the wicked did not seize them at Gibeah.

I will punish them according to my will, and the peoples will be gathered against them, because they have become attached to the two objects of their love.

Ephraim is like a well-trained young cow, eager to tread [the wheat], but I despised the beauty of his neck. I will make Ephraim pull [the plow], Judah plow, Jacob break up his clods.

Sow righteousness for yourselves, and you will reap freely; break up the clods of earth; for it is time to seek the Lord, until he comes and showers righteousness on you.

You have plowed wickedness and reaped perversity; you have eaten the fruit of lies, because you trusted in your ways because of the multitude of your strong men.

Therefore a tumult will arise among your people, and all your fortresses will be plundered, as Salman plundered Beth-Abel on the day of the battle, [where] the mother was crushed over the children.

Bethel will do the same to you, because of the malice of your wickedness; the King of Israel will be completely destroyed at daybreak.

When Israel was a young child, I loved him, and I called my son out of Egypt.

When they were called, they went away from those who called them; they sacrificed to the Bahalins, and burned incense to the carved images.

And I taught Ephraim to walk; they carried him on their arms, and they did not know that I had healed them.

I drew them with cords of humanity, and with ties of friendship; and I was like those who would remove the yoke from their necks, and I brought the meat near to him.

He will not return to the land of Egypt; but the King of Assyria will be his King, because they refused to convert [to me].

The sword will stand still in its cities, and consume its forces, and devour them, because of their plans.

And my people hang clinging to their rebellion against me; and they are called to the Sovereign, but not one of them exalts him.

How can I treat you, Ephraim? How can I hand you over, Israel? How can I treat you like Adamah, or make you like Zeboiim? My heart is troubled within me; all my compassions are aroused together.

I will not execute the fierceness of my anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim; for I am the Mighty One [God], and not a man; I am the Holy One in your midst, and I will not enter the city.

They will follow the Lord; he will roar like a lion; and when he roars, the children will come running from the West in haste.

They will hasten out of Egypt like birds, and out of the land of Assyria like doves, and I will make them dwell in their houses, says the Lord.

Ephraim approached me with lies, and the house of Israel with deceit, when Judah still ruled with the Mighty God, and was faithful with the Saints.

Ephraim feeds on wind, and goes after the east wind; he multiplies his lies and destruction every day, and they make an alliance with Assyria, and they carry fragrant oils to Egypt.

The Lord also has a case against Judah, and he will visit Jacob according to his ways, he will repay him according to his deeds.

From the womb he supplanted his brother, then by his strength he was victorious [in wrestling] with God.

He was victorious [in wrestling] with the Angel, and was the strongest; he wept, and begged for mercy; he found him at Bethel, and there [God] spoke with us.

Now the Lord is the God of hosts; his memorial is the [Lord].

Therefore, return to your God; keep mercy and justice, and always have hope in your God.

[Ephraim] is a merchant; in his hand are deceitful scales; he loves to extort.

And Ephraim said: Be that as it may, I have become rich; I have acquired riches; not one of my works will find in me an iniquity that is a sin.

And I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt; I will again make you dwell in tents, as on the days of solemn feasts.

I will speak through the Prophets, and multiply the visions, and I will present likenesses through the Prophets.

Surely Gilead is nothing but iniquity, surely they are nothing but vanity; they have sacrificed oxen in Gilgal; even their altars are like heaps on the furrows of the fields.

Now Jacob fled to the land of Syria, and Israel served as a wife, and as a woman he tended the livestock.

Then the Lord brought Israel up out of Egypt by the Prophet, and they were protected by the Prophet.

[But] Ephraim provoked [God] to bitter indignation, therefore his blood will be shed on him, and his Lord will repay him for his disgrace.

As soon as Ephraim had spoken, there was trembling; he had established the [Kingdom] in Israel, but he became guilty through Bahal, and he died.

And now they continue to sin, and they have made for themselves a cast image of their silver, according to their understanding, idols which are only the work of craftsmen, [but] of which [yet] they say to the men who sacrifice: let the calves be kissed.

Therefore they will be like the morning cloud, and like the morning dew, which departs; like chaff that is blown out of the threshing floor by the whirlwind; and like smoke coming out of the chimney.

And I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, and you should not acknowledge any other gods besides me; therefore there is no Savior besides me.

I met you in the desert, in a barren land.

They were satiated according to the abundance of their pastures; they were satiated, and their hearts were lifted up; and they forgot me.
So I was like a great lion to them; and I spied on them along the way like a leopard.

I will meet them like a bear whose cubs have been taken away, and I will tear open the membrane of their hearts, and there I will devour them like an old lion; the beast of the field will tear them apart.

We have lost you, O Israel! but in me resides your help.

Shall I be your King? Where is he [your king?] and let him deliver you in all your cities; where are your Governors, of whom you said: Give me a King, and Lords?

I gave you a king in my anger, and I will remove him in my fury.

Ephraim's iniquity is bound, and his sin is pressed down.

The pains [like] those of a woman in childbirth will surprise him; he is a child who is not wise, for he does not stand in time at the gap of the children.

I would have redeemed them from the power of the tomb, and would have guaranteed them from death; I would have been your pestilence, O death! and your destruction, O tomb! [but] repentance is hidden far from my eyes.

When it has borne fruit among its brothers, the east wind, the wind of the Lord rising from the desert, will come, and its springs will dry up, and its fountain will run dry, and the treasure of all desirable things will be plundered.

Samaria will be desolate, for she has rebelled against her God; they will fall by the sword, their little children will be crushed, and their pregnant women will be ripped open.

Israel, return to the Lord your God; for you have fallen because of your iniquity.

Take with you what you have to say, and return to the Lord, and say to him: Take away all the iniquity, and take the good, [to put it in its place], and we will repay you the bulls of our lips.

Assyria will not deliver us; we will no longer ride on horses, nor will we say to the work of our hands: [You are] our gods; for the orphan finds compassion in your sight.

I will heal their rebellion, and will love them willingly; because my anger is turned away from them.

I will be like dew to Israel; it will blossom like the lily, and put down its roots like [the trees] of Lebanon.

Its branches will extend, and its magnificence will be like that of the olive tree, and its fragrance like that of Lebanon.

They will return to sit under its shade, and they will flourish like wheat, and blossom like the vine, and the fragrance of each one of them will be like that of the wine of Lebanon.

Ephraim [will say]: What more have I to do with false gods? I will answer him, and watch over him; I will be like a green fir tree to him, your fruit will come from me.

Who is the wise one? Let him hear these things; and who is the prudent one? Let him know them; for the ways of the Lord are right; therefore the righteous shall walk in them, but the rebellious shall stumble in them.

The word of the Lord that came to Joel, son of Pethuel.

Elders, listen to this, and all you inhabitants of the land, give ear. Has anything like this happened in your time, or even in the time of your fathers?

Tell the story to your children, and have your children tell it to their children, and their children to another generation.

The grasshopper grazed the remains of the cockchafer, and the hurricane grazed the remains of the grasshopper, and the worm grazed the remains of the hurricane.

Drunkards, wake up and weep; and all you wine drinkers, wail because of the new wine, because it is cut off from your mouths.

For a powerful and countless nation has come up against my country; its teeth are the teeth of a lion, and it has the jaw-like teeth of an old lion.

She has reduced my vineyard to a desert, and stripped the bark from my fig trees; she has completely stripped them, and cut them down, their branches have turned white. Lament like a young woman who has girded herself with sackcloth, because of the death of the husband of her youth.

The cake and the sprinkling are taken away from the house of the Lord, and the priests who minister to the Lord mourn.

The fields are ravaged, the land mourns because the wheat is destroyed, the sweet wine has dried up, and the oil is lacking.

Farmers, be ashamed; vinedressers, wail because of the wheat and barley; for the harvest of the fields has perished.

The vines are without fruit, and the fig trees have failed; the pomegranates, and the palm trees, the apple trees, and all the trees of the field have withered; therefore joy has ceased among men.

Priests, gird yourselves and lament; you who minister at the altar, wail; you who minister to my God, come in, spend the night clothed in sackcloth, for it is forbidden for grain and sprinkling to enter the house of your God.

Observe the fast, proclaim the solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants of the land to the house of the Lord your God, and cry out to the Lord: Alas, what a day! For the day of the Lord is near, and it will come like destruction from the Almighty.

Have not the provisions been cut off from our sight, and the joy and gladness from the house of our God?

The grains are rotten under their clods, the granaries are desolate, the barns are finished, because the wheat has failed.

Oh, how the beasts have groaned, and in what pain the herds of oxen have been, because they have no pasture! Also the flocks of sheep are desolate.

Eternal One, I will cry out to you, for the fire has consumed the huts of the desert, and the flame has burned all the trees of the fields.

Even all the beasts of the field cry out to you, because the streams of water have dried up, and the fire has consumed the huts of the desert.

Blow the trumpet in Zion, and sound the loud alarm on my holy mountain; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble; for the day of the Lord is coming, for it is near.

A day of darkness and gloom; a day of clouds and mists. As the dawn spreads over the mountains, so spreads a great and powerful people, such as has never been before, and such as will never be again in the ages to come.

Fire devours before his face, and behind him the flame burns; the land was before his coming like the garden of Eden; and after he has gone [it will be like] a desolate wilderness; and indeed nothing will escape him.

It is, to see it, as if one were seeing horses, and they will run like horsemen; And they will leap forth with a noise like that of chariots on the mountaintops, and like the sound of a flame of fire, which devours stubble; and they will be like a mighty people arrayed for battle.

The people will tremble at the sight of it; all faces will become pale and livid.

They will run like valiant men, and climb the wall like warriors; they will each march in their rank, and will not turn aside from their ways.

Neither will press the other, but each will walk in his own way; they will throw themselves through the swords, and will not be harmed.

They will go here and there through the city, they will run on the wall, they will climb on the houses, they will enter through the windows like the thief.

The earth will tremble before him, the heavens will shake, the sun and moon will be darkened, and the stars will withdraw their light.

Therefore the Lord will make his voice heard before his army, because his camp will be very large; for the executor of his word will be powerful; surely the day of the Lord is great and terrible; and who can endure it?

"Now therefore also," says the Lord, "return to me with all your heart, with fasting, with tears, and with mourning."

And rend your hearts, and not your garments, and return to the Lord your God; for he is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in compassion, and relents from causing grief.

Who knows if the Lord your God will not come to repent, and leave behind him a blessing, a cake, and a sprinkling?

Blow the trumpet in Zion, consecrate the fast, proclaim the solemn assembly.

Assemble the people, sanctify the congregation, gather the elders, assemble the children, and those who suckle at the breast; let the bridegroom come out of his chamber, and the bride out of her bridal chamber.

Let the priests who minister to the Lord weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say: "Lord, forgive your people, and do not make your inheritance a reproach, so that the nations may ridicule it. Why should they say among the peoples, 'Where is their God?'"

But the Lord was jealous for his land, and he had compassion on his people.

And the Lord answered and said to his people, "Behold, I will send you wheat, good wine, and oil, and you shall be satisfied with them, and I will no longer expose you to reproach among the nations."

I will drive away from you [the army coming] from the North, and I will push it into a dry and desolate land; the front part towards the Eastern Sea; and the rear part towards the Western Sea; its stench will rise, and its odor will ascend, after it has done great things.

Do not be afraid, earth; be glad and rejoice; for the Lord has done great things.

Do not be afraid, beasts of the field, for the pastures of the desert have sprouted, and even the trees have borne their fruit; the fig tree and the vine have grown vigorously.

And you children of Zion, rejoice and be glad in the Lord your God; for he has given you rain according to justice, and even he has poured down on you the rain [of the first season], and that of the last, in the first month.

And the threshing floors will be filled with wheat, and the vats will overflow with must and oil.

So I will restore to you the [fruits of the years] that the grasshopper, the locust, the worm, and the cockchafer, my great army, which I had sent against you, had grazed.

You will therefore have plenty to eat and be satisfied; and you will praise the name of the Lord your God, who has done wonderful things for you; and my people will never again be put to shame.

And you will know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and that there is no other; and my people will not be put to shame forever.

And after these things I will pour out my Spirit on all people; your sons and daughters will prophesy, your old men will dream dreams, your young men will see visions.

And even in those days I will pour out my Spirit on the servants, both men and women.

And I will perform wonders in the heavens and on the earth, with blood and fire, and with columns of smoke.

The sun will be turned into darkness and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes.

And it will come to pass that whoever calls on the Name of the Lord will be saved; for salvation will be in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, as the Lord has said, and in the remnant whom the Lord will call.

For behold, in those days and at that time, when I will restore those who were taken captive from Judah and Jerusalem,

I will gather all the nations, and bring them down to the valley of Jehoshaphat, and there I will enter into judgment with them, because of my people, and my inheritance Israel, whom they scattered among the nations, and because they divided my land among themselves;

And that they cast lots for my people; and that they gave a child for a prostitute, and sold the young girl for wine, which they drank.

And what have I to do with you, Tyre and Sidon, and with you, all the borders of Palestine? Will you repay me my reward, or do you want to provoke me? I will repay you promptly and without delay.

For you have taken my silver and my gold, and carried off into your temples my most precious and best things.

And you sold the children of Judah and the children of Jerusalem to the children of the Greeks, in order to remove them from their land.

Behold, I will raise them up from the place to which [they were transported after] you sold them; and I will return your reward to your own head.

I will therefore sell your sons and daughters into the hands of the children of Judah, and they will sell them to those of Sheba, [who will carry them] to a distant nation; for the Lord has spoken.

Proclaim this among the nations: Prepare for war; rouse the mighty men, let all the fighting men approach, and let them come up.

Beat swords from your plowshares, and javelins from your sickles; and let the weak say, "I am strong."

Gather yourselves, and come, all you surrounding nations, and be assembled; the Lord will strike down your mighty men there.

Let the nations be roused, and let them come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for I will sit there to judge all the surrounding nations.

Put in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come down, for the winepress is full: the vats overflow, for their malice is great.

Peoples, peoples, to the valley of decision; for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision.

The sun and moon were darkened, and the stars withdrew their light.

And the Lord will roar from Zion, and make his voice heard from Jerusalem, and the heavens and the earth will shake, and the Lord will be a refuge for his people, and the strength of the children of Israel.

And you will know that I am the Lord your God, who dwells in Zion, my holy mountain; and Jerusalem shall be nothing but holy, and foreigners shall no longer pass through it.

And it shall come to pass in that day that the mountains shall distill sweet wine, and the hills shall melt into milk, the waters shall run in all the streams of Judah, and a fountain shall come forth from the house of the Lord, and it shall water the valley of Shittim.

Egypt will be desolate, and Idumea a desolate wilderness, because of the violence done to the children of Judah, whose innocent blood they shed in their land.

But Judea will be inhabited forever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation.

And I will cleanse their blood which I had not cleansed; for the Lord dwells in Zion.

The words of Amos, who was among the shepherds of Tekoah, which he heard in a vision concerning Israel, in the days of Hoziah king of Judah, and of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.

He said therefore: The Lord will roar from Zion, and make his voice heard from Jerusalem, and the shepherds' huts will wail, and the top of Carmel will wither.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Damascus, even for four, I will not bring this to remembrance, [but I will] because they have crushed Gilead with iron harrows.

And I will send fire upon the house of Hazael, and it will devour the palace of Benhadad.

I will also break the bar of Damascus, and I will exterminate from Bikhath-aven its inhabitants, and from the house of Heden him who holds the scepter there; and the people of Syria shall be carried away to Kir, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Gaza, even for four, I will not call them to account; [but I will] because they carried off those [of Judah] into a whole captivity, even to hand them over to Edom.

And I will send fire to the wall of Gaza, and it will devour its palaces.

And I will cut off from Ashdod its inhabitants, and from Ashkelon him who holds the scepter there; then I will turn my hand on Hekron, and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish, says the Lord GOD.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Tyre, even for four, I will not call them to account, [but I will] because they delivered those of Judah into a whole captivity to Edom, and did not remember the brotherly covenant.

And I will send fire upon the wall of Tyre, and it will devour its palaces.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Edom, even for four, I will not call it to account; [but I will] because he pursued his brother with the sword, and his compassion wasted, and his anger continually ripped, and he kept his fury forever.

And I will send fire to Teman, and it will devour the palaces of Bozrah.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of the children of Hammon, even for four, I will not call them to account; [but I will] because in order to enlarge their borders they ripped open the wombs of pregnant women in Gilead.

And I will kindle the fire, with alarm on the day of battle, with whirlwind on the day of storm, in the wall of Rabbah, and it will devour its palaces.

And their king will go into captivity, and with him the leaders of his country, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Moab, even for four, I will not call it to account; [but I will] because he burned the bones of the King of Edom until they were charred.

And I will send fire upon Moab, and it shall devour the palaces of Kerioth; and Moab shall die in tumult, in alarm, and to the sound of the trumpet.

And I will exterminate the governors from the midst of his land; and I will kill together with him all the leaders of the land, says the Lord.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Judah, even for four, I will not call them to account; [but I will] because they have rejected the Law of the Lord, and have not kept his statutes; but their lies, which their fathers had followed, have led them astray.

And I will send fire upon Judah, and it will devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

Thus says the Lord: For three transgressions of Israel, even for four, I will not call them to account; [but I will] because they sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of sandals;

They sigh for the dust of the earth to throw it on the heads of the weak; and they pervert the way of the meek; and the son and the father go to the same young woman, to profane the Name of my holiness.

And they lie down near every altar, on the clothes they have taken as pledges, and drink the wine of the condemned in the house of their gods.

Yet I destroyed before them the Amorite, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and who was strong like the oaks; and I destroyed his fruit above, and his roots below.

I also brought you out of the land of Egypt, and led you through the desert for forty years, so that you might possess the land of the Amorites.

Moreover, I have raised up some of your sons to be prophets, and some of your young men to be Nazirites; is this not so, children of Israel? says the Lord.

But you made the Nazirites drink wine, and you commanded the Prophets, and told them, "Do not prophesy anymore."

Behold, I am about to trample the place where you dwell, as a cart full of sheaves tramples [everything through which it passes].

So much so that the light-hearted man will not be able to flee, and the strong man will not be able to make use of his strength, and the valiant man will not save his life.

And he who wields the bow will not be able to stand firm; and he who is swift in the runner will not escape; and the horseman will not save his life.

And the bravest of the mighty men will flee naked on that day, says the Lord.

Children of Israel, listen to the word that the Lord has spoken against you, against all the families, [I say], that I brought out of the land of Egypt, saying:

Of all the families of the earth, I have known you alone; therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities.

Will two men walk together unless they have agreed to do so?

Will the lion roar in the forest if he has no prey? Will the lion cub cry out from its den if it has caught nothing?

Would the bird fall into the net on the ground, if no traps had been set for it?

Would the net be lifted from the ground, if nothing had been caught at all?

Will the trumpet sound through the city without the people assembling in fear? Or will there be any harm in the city except that the Lord has done?

For the Lord God will do nothing except that he has revealed his secret to the Prophets his servants.

The lion has roared; who will not fear? The Lord God has spoken; who will not prophesy?

Proclaim this in the palaces of Ashdod, and in the palaces of the land of Egypt, and say: Assemble yourselves on the mountains of Samaria, and look at the great disorder which is in it, and those who are wronged within it.

For they did not know how to do what is right, says the Lord, heaping up violence and plunder in their palaces.

Therefore this is what the Lord GOD says: The enemy will come and surround the land, and will take away your strength, and your palaces will be plundered.

Thus says the Lord: as if a shepherd saves both hamstrings or the tip of an ear from the mouth of a lion, so shall the children of Israel, who dwell in Samaria, be snatched from the corner of the bed, and from their refuge in Damascus.

Listen, and protest against the house of Jacob, says the Lord GOD, the God of hosts; that on the day I will punish Israel for its sins against him, I will also punish the altars of Bethel, and the horns of the altar shall be cut off and fall to the ground.

And I will strike the winter house and the summer house; and the ivory houses will be destroyed, and the great houses will come to an end, says the Lord.

Listen to this word, you cows of Bashan, who dwell in the mountains of Samaria, who wrong the needy and oppress the poor, who say to their masters, "Bring us something to drink."

The Lord God has sworn by his holiness, that behold, the days are coming upon you when he will take you away on shields; and what remains of you, with fishing hooks.

And you shall go out through the breaches, each one straight ahead; and you shall throw there [what you have amassed] into the palaces, says the Lord.

Enter Bethel, and commit your crimes there; multiply your sins in Gilgal, and bring your sacrifices in the morning, and your tithes at the end of three years [completed].

And make a fragrant offering of leavened bread for the thanksgiving offering; proclaim the voluntary offerings, and make known them; for you love him thus, children of Israel, says the Lord GOD.

That is why I also sent famine upon all your cities, and a lack of bread upon all your dwellings; but for this you have not returned to me, says the Lord.

I also withheld the rain for you, when there were still three months until the harvest, and I made it rain on one city, and I did not make it rain on the other; one piece of land was watered by rain, and the other piece, on which it did not rain, is parched.

And two, even three cities, went to one city to drink water, and were not quenched, yet for this you did not return to me, says the Lord.

I struck you with burning and mildew; and the cockchafer devoured as many gardens and vineyards, fig trees and olive trees as you had, but for this you did not turn back to me, says the Lord.

I have sent you death, in the same way I sent it to Egypt, and I have put to death with the sword your elite men, and your captured horses, and I have made the stench of your camps rise even into your nostrils, but for this you have not turned back to me, says the Lord.

I have overthrown some of you as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and you have been like a burning stick plucked from the fire, yet you have not returned to me, says the Lord.

Therefore I will treat you thus, O Israel! And because I will do this to you, prepare to meet your God, O Israel!

For behold, he who formed the mountains, and created the wind, and declares to man what his thoughts are, who makes the dawn [and] the darkness, and who treads on the high places of the earth; the Lord God of hosts is his name.

Listen to this word, which is the lament that I speak aloud concerning you, house of Israel!

She has fallen, she will not rise again, the virgin of Israel; she is abandoned on the earth, there is no one to raise her up.

For thus says the Lord GOD to the house of Israel: The city from which a thousand went forth shall have only a hundred left; and the city from which a hundred went forth shall have only ten left.

For thus says the Lord to the house of Israel: Seek me, and you shall live.

And do not seek Bethel, and do not enter Gilgal, and do not cross over to Beersheba; for Gilgal shall be carried away entirely into captivity, and Bethel shall be destroyed.

Seek the Lord, and you shall live, lest he seize the house of Joseph, like a fire which shall consume it, with no one to quench it at Bethel.

Because they turn judgment into absinthe, and they overturn justice.

[Seek] him who made the Dusty Hut and Orion, who turns the deepest darkness into the dawn of day, and makes the day as dark as night; who calls for the waters of the sea, and pours them out over the face of the earth, whose name is the Lord.

Who strengthens the forager above the strong man, so much so that the forager will enter the fortress.

They hate at the gate those who rebuke them, and they abhor the one who speaks with integrity.

That is why, because you oppress the poor and take away their load of wheat, you have built houses of hewn stone, but you will not live in them; you have planted vineyards that are very good, but you will not drink their wine.

For I have known your crimes, and they are many, and your sins have multiplied: you oppress the righteous, and take ransoms, and you pervert the justice of the poor at the gate.

Therefore, the prudent man will keep silent at that time, for the time is evil.

Seek good, not evil, that you may live; and so the Lord God of hosts will be with you, as you have said.

Hate evil, and love good, and establish justice at the gate; perhaps the Lord God of hosts will have mercy on the remnant of Joseph.

Therefore the Lord, the God of hosts, the Lord, says: There will be wailing in all the squares, and cries of "Alas! Alas!" will be heard. The plowman will be called to mourning, and those who know their trade to lamentation.

And there will be lamentation through all the vineyards; for I will pass through you completely, says the Lord.

Woe to you who long for the day of the Lord! What good will the day of the Lord do you? It is darkness, not light.

It is as if a man were to flee from a lion, and a bear were to meet him, or if he were to enter a house, and put his hand against the wall, and a snake were to bite him.

Is not the day of the Lord darkness, and not light? Is not there darkness in it, and not brightness?

I hate and reject your solemn festivals, and I will not smell [the scent of your perfumes] in your solemn assemblies.

If you offer me burnt offerings and cakes, I will not accept them; and I will not look upon the peace offerings that you make from your fattened animals.

Take away the noise of your songs from before me, for I will not listen to the melody of your bagpipes.

But judgment will roll on like water, and justice like a rushing torrent.

Is it to me, house of Israel, that you offered sacrifices and cakes in the desert for forty years?

On the contrary, you carried the tabernacle of your Molech, [and] Kijun your images, and the star of your gods, which you made for yourselves.

Therefore I will carry you beyond Damascus, says the Lord, whose name is the God of hosts.

Hola! You who are at ease in Zion, and you who trust in the mountain of Samaria, [places] most renowned among the principal nations, to which the house of Israel goes.

Go on to Calne, and look; and from there go to Hamath the great; then go down to Gath of the Philistines; were they not better than these kingdoms? Was not their country larger than your country?

You who avert the days of calamity, and who bring near to yourselves the seat of violence;

You who lie on beds of ivory, and stretch out on your couches; who eat the [chosen] lambs from the flock, and the calves taken from the place where they are fattened;

You who hum to the sound of the bagpipe; you who invent musical instruments, like David;

You who drink wine from basins, and anoint with the finest perfumes, and are not sick for the wound of Joseph.

Because of this, they will soon go into captivity, among the first to go into captivity, and the luxury of these voluptuous people will come to an end.

The Lord God Almighty has sworn by himself, the Lord God Almighty says: I detest the pride of Jacob, and I hate his palaces; therefore I will give up the city and all that is in it.

And if there happen that ten men remain in a house, they will die.

And each of their uncles shall take them and burn them, putting their bones outside the house. Then he shall say to the one who is at the back of the house, "Is there anyone left with you?" And he shall answer, "This is the end." Then [his uncle] shall say to him, "Be quiet, for they would not have commemorated the name of the Lord."

For behold, the Lord commands, and he will strike the great houses with flooding water, and the small houses with cracks.

Will horses run over the rocks? Or will oxen be plowed there? But you have turned justice into gall, and the fruit of righteousness into wormwood.

You rejoice in things of nothing, [and] you say: Did we not acquire the exaltation by our own strength?

But, O house of Israel! behold, I will raise up against you a nation, says the Lord God of hosts, which will oppress you from the entrance of Hamath to the stream of the desert.

The Lord God showed me this vision, and behold, he formed locusts at the beginning when the second growth increased; and behold, it was the second growth after the King's haymaking.

And when they had finished eating the grass of the earth, then I said, O Lord God, be gracious, I pray you; how can Jacob recover? For he is small.

[And] the Lord relented concerning this. It shall not happen, says the Lord.

[Then] the Lord Eternal showed me this vision: and behold, the Lord Eternal cried aloud, that judgment should be made by fire; and [the fire] devoured a great abyss, and it also devoured a piece [of land].

And I said, O Lord, please stop; how can Jacob rise again? For he is small.

[And] the Lord relented concerning this. This too shall not happen, says the Lord God.

[Then] he showed me this vision: and behold, the Lord was standing on a level wall, and he had a level in his hand.

And the Lord said to me, "What do you see, Amos?" And I answered, "A plumb line." And the Lord said to me, "Behold, I am going to set the plumb line in the midst of my people Israel, and I will not pass it by them again."

And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be destroyed; and I will rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

Then Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent word to Jeroboam, king of Israel: Amos has conspired against you in the midst of the house of Israel; the land could not bear all his words.

For thus said Amos: Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall certainly be carried out of its land.

Then Amaziah said to Amos, "Seer, go and flee to the land of Judah, and eat your bread there, and prophesy there."

But do not prophesy at Bethel any longer, for it is the King's sanctuary and the house of the kingdom.

And Amos answered, and said to Amaziah, I was neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet; but I was a herdsman, and I gathered wild figs;

And the Lord took me from the flock, and the Lord said to me, "Go, prophesy to my people Israel."

Now therefore listen to the word of the Lord; You say to me: Do not prophesy against Israel anymore, and do not send down [the word] against the house of Isaac.

Therefore this is what the Lord says: Your wife will become a prostitute in the city, and your sons and daughters will fall by the sword, and your land will be divided up by the measuring line, and you will die in a defiled land, and Israel will certainly be carried out of its land.

The Lord God showed me this vision, and behold, a basket of summer fruits.

And he said, "What do you see, Amos?" And I answered, "A basket of summer fruits."

And the Lord said to me, "The end has come upon my people Israel; I will no longer pass anything on to them."

The songs of the Temple will be like wailing at that time, says the Lord God. There will be a great many dead bodies that will be thrown everywhere in silence.

Listen to this, you who devour the poor, even to the point of desolating the afflicted of the land;

And who say, "When will this month be over? And we will sell the grain; and [when] will this Sabbath be over? And we will sell the wheat, making the ephah smaller, increasing the shekel, and falsifying the scales to deceive."

So that we might acquire the needy with money, and the poor for a pair of shoes, and that we might sell the chaff of the wheat.

The Lord swore by the majesty of Jacob: If I ever forget any of their deeds!

Will not the earth be shaken by such a thing, and all its inhabitants lament? Will not it all flow away like a river, and be swept away and submerged as by the river of Egypt?

And it will come to pass on that day, says the Lord GOD, that I will make the sun set at midday, and that I will bring darkness upon the earth on a clear day.

I will turn your solemn feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation; I will put sackcloth on every loin, and I will make every head bald; and I will make the [land] lament like that of an only son; and its end will be like a bitter day.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord GOD, "when I will send a famine on the land—not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but a famine of hearing the words of the LORD."

They will run from one sea to the other, and they will go in every direction from the north to the east, to seek the word of the Lord, but they will not find it.

On that day, beautiful virgins and young men will swoon with thirst, who swear by the sin of Samaria, and say: O Dan! Your God lives: and, long live the way of Beersheba!' they will fall, and not rise again.

I saw the Lord standing at the altar, and saying, "Strike the lintel of the door, and let the doorposts shake; and strike all of them in the head, and I will kill with the sword the remnant of them; he who flees will not flee; and he who escapes will not escape."

Even if they dig to the lowest parts of the earth, my hand will lift them out of there; even if they ascend to the heavens, I will bring them down.

And if they were to hide on the summit of Carmel, I would search for them there and take them away; and if they were to hide from my sight in the depths of the sea, I would command the serpent to bite them there.

And when they go into captivity before their enemies, I will command the sword to kill them there; I will set my eyes on them to harm them, and not to help them.

For it is the Lord, the Eternal of hosts, who touches the earth, and it melts, and all who dwell in it mourn, and it flows away like a river, and is submerged as by the river of Egypt.

He who built his floors in the heavens, and who established his armies on the earth; who calls for the waters of the sea, and pours them out over the face of the earth; his name is the Lord.

Are you not like the Cushites, you children of Israel? declares the Lord. Did I not bring Israel up from the land of Egypt, and the Philistines from Caphtor, and the Arameans from Kir?

Behold, the eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will abolish it from the face of the earth; yet I will not utterly abolish the house of Jacob, says the Lord.

For behold, I will command, and I will cause the house of Israel to wander among all the nations, as grain is carried about in a sieve, so that not a grain falls to the ground.

All the sinners of my people will die by the sword, they who say: Evil will not come near us nor overtake us.

At that time I will raise up the Tabernacle of David which has fallen, and I will repair its breaches, and I will close its openings; I will rebuild it as it was in the days of old.

So that they may possess the remnant of Idumea, and all the nations upon which my Name shall be invoked; says the Lord, who does this.

"The days are coming," declares the Lord, "when the plowman will overtake the reaper, and the one who treads the grapes will overtake the one who sows the seed; the mountains will distill their sweet wine, and all the hillsides will flow with it."

And I will bring back from captivity those of my people Israel who have been taken captive, and the desolate cities will be rebuilt, and people will inhabit them; they will plant vineyards and drink their wine; they will also make gardens and eat their fruit.

I will plant them on their land, and they will no longer be uprooted from their land, which I have given them; says the Lord your God.

The vision of Obadiah. Thus says the Lord GOD concerning Edom: We have heard a proclamation from the LORD, and a messenger has been sent among the nations, [and they said]: Courage, let us rise up against him to fight him. Behold, I will make you small among the nations, and you will be greatly despised. The pride of your heart has deceived you, you who dwell in the clefts of the rocks, which are your high dwelling, and who say in your heart: Who will knock me to the ground?

Even if you were to raise your nest like the eagle, and even if you were to place it among the stars, I will throw you from there to the ground, says the Lord.

Were they thieves who broke into your house, or night robbers? How then did you get your head shaved? Wouldn't they have stolen until they had had enough? If grape harvesters had broken into your house, wouldn't they have left some gleanings?

How was Esau searched? How were his secret places examined?

All your allies led you to the border; those who were at peace with you deceived you and prevailed over you; those who ate your bread struck you from below, without anyone noticing.

Will it not be at that time, says the Lord, that I will destroy the wise in the midst of Edom, and prudence in the mountains of Esau?

Your mighty men will also be astonished, O Teman! so that the men will be cut off from the mountain of Esau, by killing them there.

Shame will cover you, and you will be cut off forever, because of the violence [done] to your brother Jacob.

When you stood opposite him when foreigners led his army into captivity, and when foreigners entered his gates and cast lots for Jerusalem, you were also like one of them.

But you should not have taken pleasure in seeing your brother's day when he was handed over to foreigners, nor should you have rejoiced over the children of Judah on the day they were destroyed, nor should you have defied them in the day of distress.

And you should not have entered the gate of my people in the day of their calamity, and you should not have taken pleasure, I say, in seeing their evil in the day of their calamity, and [your hands] should not have advanced on their good in the day of their calamity.

And you should not have stood at the crossings to exterminate those who survived, nor hand over those who remained in the day of distress.

For the day of the Lord is near upon all nations; as you have done, so it shall be done to you; your reward shall return upon your own head.

For as you have drunk on the mountain of my holiness [the cup of my wrath], so all the nations will drink without ceasing; yes, they will drink it and swallow it, and they will be as though they had not been.

But there will be survivors on Mount Zion, and it will be holy, and the house of Jacob will possess its possessions.

And the house of Jacob will be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau stubble; they will be kindled among them and consume them; and there will be nothing left in the house of Esau; for the Lord has spoken.

They will possess the South, [namely] the mountain of Esau; and the countryside, [namely] the Philistines, and they will possess the territory of Ephraim, and the territory of Samaria; and Benjamin [will possess] Gilead.

And those bands of the children of Israel who were deported will possess what belonged to the Canaanites, as far as Zarephath; and those from Jerusalem who were deported will possess what is as far as Sepharad, they will possess it with the cities of the South.

For the deliverers will go up to Mount Zion to judge the mountain of Esau, and the kingdom will belong to the Lord.

Now the word of the Lord came to Jonah son of Amittai, saying:

Arise, and go to Nineveh, the great city, and thunder against it; for their malice has come up before me.

But Jonah arose to flee to Tarshish from the presence of the Lord, and went down to Joppa, where he found a ship going to Tarshish; and having paid the port, he went aboard, to go with them to Tarshish from the presence of the Lord.

But the Lord raised a great wind upon the sea, and there was a great storm in the sea, so that the ship thought it would break apart.

And the mariners were afraid, and each cried out to his God, and threw the cargo of the ship into the sea to unload it; but Jonah had gone down into the hold of the ship, and was lying there, and was sleeping soundly.

Then the master pilot approached him and said, "What's wrong, sleeper? Get up and cry out to your God; perhaps he will think of us, and we will not perish."

Then they said to one another, "Come, let us cast lots so that we may know whose fault this calamity has come upon us." So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

Then they said to him, "Tell us now why this misfortune has befallen us here, what your occupation is, and where you come from; what your country is, and what people you are from."

And he said to them, "I am a Hebrew, and I fear the Lord, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land."

Then these men were filled with great fear, and said to him, "Why have you done this?" For these men had heard that he was fleeing from the presence of the Lord, because he had told them so.

And they said to him, "What shall we do to you so that the sea will calm down and leave us in peace?" For the sea was growing more and more troubled.

And he answered them, "Take me and throw me into the sea, and the sea will calm down, leaving you in peace; for I know that this great storm has come upon you because of me."

And these men were sailing to put in on land, but they could not, because the sea was getting rougher and rougher.

So they cried out to the Lord, and said, "Lord, we pray that we do not now perish for the life of this man, and do not lay innocent blood upon us; for you are the Lord, you have done as you pleased."

Then they took Jonah and threw him into the sea, and the storm of the sea ceased.

And these people feared the Lord with great fear, and they offered sacrifices to the Lord, and made vows.

Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow Jonah; and Jonah remained in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

And Jonah prayed to the Lord his God in the belly of the fish.

And he said: I cried to the Lord because of my distress, and he answered me; I cried out from the belly of the tomb, and you heard my voice.

You threw me into the depths, into the heart of the sea, and the current surrounded me; all your waves and all your breakers swept over me;

And I said: I am rejected from your sight; but nevertheless I shall see again the Temple of your holiness.

The waters surrounded me up to my soul, the abyss surrounded me all around, the reeds twisted around my head.

I descended to the roots of the mountains, the earth with its bars was around me forever; but you brought my life up from the pit, O Eternal, my God!

When my soul fainted within me, I remembered the Lord, and my prayer came to you, to the palace of your holiness.

Those who indulge in false vanities abandon their gratuitousness.

But I will sacrifice to you with a voice of praise, I will repay what I have vowed; for salvation belongs to the Lord.

Then the Lord gave command to the fish, and it vomited Jonah up on dry ground.

Then the word of the Lord came to Jonah a second time, saying:

Get up, and go to Nineveh, the great city; and proclaim there aloud what I command you.

So Jonah got up and went to Nineveh, following the word of the Lord. Now Nineveh was a very large city, three days' journey away.

And Jonah began to enter the city for a day's journey, and he cried out and said, "Forty more days and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

And the men of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them to the least.

For this word had reached the King of Nineveh, who rose from his throne, and took off his magnificent robe, and covered himself with sackcloth, and sat down in ashes.

Then he issued a proclamation, and it was published in Nineveh by decree of the King and his Princes, saying: Let neither man nor beast nor ox nor sheep taste anything, let them not eat, and let them not drink water.

And let the men be covered with sackcloth, and the beasts also; and let them cry out to God with all their might, and let each one turn from his evil way, and from the violent deeds which they have committed.

Who knows if God will come to repent, and turn away from the fierceness of his anger, so that we do not perish.

And God looked at what they had done, [namely] how they had turned away from their evil way, and God relented concerning the evil which he had said he would do to them, and did not do it.

But this displeased Jonah, it displeased him greatly, and he was angry.

That is why he made this request to the Lord, and said, "O Lord, I pray you, is this not what I said when I was still in my own country? That is why I wanted to flee to Tarshish; for I knew that you are a mighty, merciful, gracious, slow to anger, abounding in steadfast love, and relenting from the disaster [of which you have threatened]."

Now therefore, O Eternal One! take away my life, I pray you; for death is better for me than life.

And the Lord said, "Is it right that you were so angry?"

And Jonah went out of the city, and sat down on the east side of the city, and made himself a shelter there, and sat in the shade under it, until he saw what would happen to the city.

And the Lord God prepared a tree, and made it grow over Jonah, so that it might give shade over his head, and deliver him from his evil; and Jonah rejoiced exceedingly in the tree.

Then God prepared for the next day, when the dawn would rise, a worm that struck the kikajon, and it withered.

And it came to pass that when the sun rose, God prepared an Eastern wind which could not be seen, and the sun struck Jonah on the head, so that he fainted and asked to die, and he said: Death is better for me than life.

And God said to Jonah, "Is it right that you were so distressed about this kikajon?"

And he answered, "It is right that I was so distressed, even unto death."

And the Lord said: [You would have] that the kikajon had been spared, for which you did not labor, nor did you make it grow; for it came in one night, and in one night it perished;

And I, shall I not spare Nineveh, that great city, in which there are more than 620,000 human beings who do not know [discern] between their right hand and their left hand, and where there are also a great quantity of beasts.

The word of the Lord which came to Micah the Morasite in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, which came to him in a vision concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

All you peoples, listen; and you earth, pay attention, and let all that is in it [listen]; and let the Lord Eternal be witness against you, the Lord, [I say, coming out] from the palace of his holiness.

For behold, the Lord is going out of his place, he will come down, and walk on the high places of the earth;

And the mountains will melt beneath him, and the valleys will split apart; they will be like wax before the fire, and like waters flowing downhill.

All this will happen because of Jacob's transgression and the sins of the house of Israel. [Now] what is Jacob's transgression? Is it not Samaria? And what are the high places of Judah? Is it not Jerusalem?

Therefore I will reduce Samaria [as] a heap of stones [gathered] from the fields [where they want to plant vineyards]; and I will roll its stones into the valley, and I will uncover its foundations.

And all her carved images will be broken, all the wages of her prostitution will be burned in the fire, and I will put all her false gods to desolation; because she has amassed them by means of the wages of her prostitution, they will serve as wages for a prostitute.

Therefore I will wail and howl; I will go stripped and naked; I will lament like the dragons, and mourn like the owls.

For there is not one of his plagues that is not incurable; each one of them has come to Judah, and [the enemy] has reached the gate of my people, to Jerusalem.

Do not announce it in Gath, do not weep at all; wallow in the dust in the house of Haphra.

Inhabitant of Sapphire passes by, with your nakedness fully exposed; the inhabitant of Zaanen did not go out to the lament of the house of Esai; they will learn from you to remain in the house.

For the inhabitant of Maroth will have been in anguish for [her] own good; because evil has come down from the Lord upon the gate of Jerusalem.

Harness the horse to the chariot, inhabitant of Lachish, [you] who are the beginning of the sin of the daughter of Zion; for in you were found the iniquities of Israel.

Therefore, give gifts because of Moresheth the Gathian; the houses of Achzib will lie to the Kings of Israel.

I will also bring you an heir, inhabitant of Maresah; and the glory of Israel will come as far as Hadadram.

Pluck out your hair, and have yourself shorn because of your sons who are your delight; pluck out all the hair of your body like an eagle [shedding its feathers], for they are taken captive [far] from you.

Woe to those who plot outrage, who devise evil on their beds, and carry it out at daybreak, because they have the power in their hands.

If they covet possessions, they have immediately seized them, and [if they covet] houses, they have immediately taken them; thus they oppress man and his house, man, I say, and his inheritance.

Therefore this is what the Lord says: "Behold, I am planning an evil against this family from which you cannot hide, and you shall not walk about with your heads held high; for this time is evil."

At that time you will be used as a mournful proverb, and people will wail with a lamentable groan, saying: We are utterly destroyed; he has changed the portion of my people; how could he have taken it from us? Does he divide our fields to make us give them back?

That is why there will be no one for you who will cast the measuring line for your lot in the congregation of the Lord.

[It is said]: Do not prophesy, they will prophesy, [but] they will not prophesy for these; the disgrace will not turn back.

But you who are called the House of Jacob, has the Spirit of the Lord diminished? Are these his deeds? Are not my words good for him who walks uprightly?

But he who was yesterday my people rises up like an enemy, to meet a cloak; you strip the magnificent garment from those who pass by in confidence, having returned from the war.

You are putting the women of my people out of the homes where they took pleasure; you are taking away my glory forever from their little children.

Arise, and walk, for [this land] is no longer [a place of] rest for you; because it is defiled, it will destroy [you], even with swift destruction.

If there is any man who walks according to the wind, and who lies falsely, [saying]; I will prophesy to you wine and ale; he shall be the Prophet of this people.

[But] I will gather all of you, O Jacob! and I will gather all the remnant of Israel, and put them all together like the sheep of Bozrah, like a flock in the midst of its sheepfold; there will be a great noise for the multitude of men.

The destroyer will go up before them, they will be broken down and pass on, and they will go out through the gate; and their King will pass on before them, and the Lord will be at their head.

That is why I said: Now listen, you leaders of Jacob, and you leaders of the house of Israel: Is it not for you to know what is right?

They hate good and love evil; they tear the skin off these people from themselves, and their flesh from their bones.

And what they eat is the flesh of my people, and they have skinned themselves, and broken their bones, and put them in pieces as in a pot, and as flesh in a cauldron. Then they will cry out to the Lord, but he will not answer them, and he will hide his face from them at that time, according to the evil they have done.

Thus says the Lord concerning the prophets who lead my people astray, who gnaw with their teeth, and who cry, "Peace!" but if anyone does not give them anything in their mouth, they declare war against him.

Therefore, night will be upon you, so that you may not see; and it will grow dark, so that you may not divine; the sun will set on those prophets, and the day will be dark for them.

And the seers will be ashamed, and the diviners will blush with shame; they will all cover their upper lips, because there will be no answer from God.

But I am filled with power, and with judgment, and with courage, by the Spirit of the Lord, to declare to Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin.

Now listen to this, you leaders of the house of Jacob, and you leaders of the house of Israel, who abhor judgment and pervert all that is just.

Zion is built on blood, and Jerusalem on injustice.

Her leaders judge for a bribe, her priests teach for a fee, and her prophets tell fortunes for money; yet they rely on the Lord, saying, "Is not the Lord among us? No harm will come upon us."

Therefore, because of you, Zion will be plowed [like] a field, and Jerusalem will be reduced to heaps [of stones], and the Temple Mount to the heights of forest.

But in the last days the mountain of the Lord's house will be established as the highest of the mountains and will be exalted above the hills; the peoples will come to it.

And many nations will go and say, "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord and to the house of the God of Jacob. He will teach us about his ways, so that we may walk in his paths. The law will go out from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

He will execute judgment among many peoples, and he will severely rebuke the great nations even to the most distant countries; and they will beat their swords into plowshares and their halberds into pruning hooks; nation will not lift up sword against nation, nor will they engage in war anymore.

But each one will sit under his vine and under his fig tree, and no one will frighten them; for the mouth of the Lord of hosts has spoken.

Certainly all peoples will walk each in the name of their god; but we will walk in the name of the Lord our God forever and ever.

At that time, says the Lord, I will gather the lame, and I will collect the one who had been driven away, and the one whom I had afflicted.

And I will make the lame a remnant, and the far-off nation a strong nation; the Lord will reign over them on Mount Zion from that hour forever.

And you, Tower of the flock, Hophel, the daughter of Zion will come to you; and the first dominion will come, the Kingdom, [I say], will come to the daughter of Jerusalem.

Why do you cry out so loudly now? Is there no King among you? Or has your advisor perished, that pain has seized you like that of a woman in childbirth?

Be in labor, and cry out, daughter of Zion, like one who is giving birth; for you will soon go out of the city, and you will dwell in the fields, and come as far as Babylon; [but] there you will be delivered; there the Lord will redeem you from the hand of your enemies.

And now many nations have gathered against you, saying, Let it be profaned, and let our eye see in Zion [what it would like to see there].

But they do not know the thoughts of the Lord, nor do they listen to his counsel; for he has gathered them like sheaves on the threshing floor.

Arise, and throng, daughter of Zion, for I will make your horn iron, and I will make your nails bronze; and you will wrought many peoples, and I will devote their gain to the Lord, and their possessions to the Lord of all the earth.

Now assemble yourselves by troops, daughter of troops; they have laid siege to us, they will strike the Governor of Israel with the rod on his cheek.

But you, Bethlehem Ephrathah, though small among the clans of Judah, out of you will come for me one to be ruler over Israel; and his descendants are from of old, from ancient times.

Therefore he will give them up until the time when she who is in labor has given birth; and the rest of his brothers will return with the children of Israel.

And it will stand and rule by the strength of the Lord, with the majesty of the Name of the Lord his God; and they will remain firm; for in a little while it will extend to the ends of the earth.

And he will be peace. After the Assyrian has entered our country and set foot in our palaces, we will appoint seven shepherds and eight common princes against him.

And they will ravage the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nimrod at its gates; and he will deliver us from the Assyrians, when they have entered our land, and set foot in our quarters.

And the remnant of Jacob will be in the midst of many peoples like dew from the Lord, and like light rain falling on the grass, which no one expects from man, nor hopes for from the children of men.

Therefore the remnant of Jacob will be among the nations and in the midst of many peoples, like a lion among the beasts of the forest, and like a young lion among flocks of sheep; which passes through them tramples and tears them apart, and no one can protect them.

Your hand will be raised over your adversaries, and all your enemies will be cut off.

And it will come to pass at that time, says the Lord, that I will cut off your horses from among you, and destroy your chariots.

And I will cut off the cities of your country, and destroy all your fortresses.

I will also remove the sorcery from your hand, and you will no longer have any weather forecasters.

And I will cut off your carved images and your statues from among you, and you will no longer bow down to the work of your hands.

I will also uproot your groves from among you, and wipe out your enemies.

And I will take vengeance in anger and fury on all the nations that have not listened to me.

Now listen to what the Lord says: Arise, plead your case before the mountains, and let the hills hear your voice.

Listen, mountains, to the Lord's case; [listen] also, you who are the firmest foundations of the earth; for the Lord has a case against his people, and he will plead with Israel.

My people, what have I done to you, or how have I caused you pain? Answer me.

For I brought you up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you from the house of bondage, and I sent before you Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.

My people, remember, I pray you, what advice Balak King of Moab had taken [against you], and that Balaam son of Behor answered him: [and what I have done] from Shittim to Gilgal, so that you may know the righteous acts of the Lord.

With what shall I come before the Lord, and bow down before the Almighty God? Shall I come before him with burnt offerings and with calves a year old?

Will the Lord take pleasure in thousands of sheep, or in ten thousand rivers of oil? Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my womb for the sin of my soul?

O man! He has declared unto you what is good; and what does the Lord require of you, except that you do what is right, that you love kindness, and that you walk humbly with your God.

The voice of the Lord cries out to the city, (for your Name sees how it goes in all things): Listen to the rod, and to him who assigned it?

Does not everyone still have a wicked house, treasures of wickedness, and a short, detestable Ephah?

Shall I consider clean someone who has false scales and false stones in his bag?

For its rich are filled with things taken by violence, its inhabitants practice falsehood, and there is a deceitful tongue in their mouth.

That is why I have made you languish by striking you, and made you desolate because of your sins.

You will eat, but you will not be satisfied; and [the cause of] your humiliation [will be] within yourself; you will remove from before, but you will not save; and what you have saved, I will give to the sword.

You shall sow, but you shall not reap; you shall press the olives, but you shall not anoint yourself with oil; and the new wine, but you shall not drink the wine.

For you have kept the ordinances of Homri, and all the work of the house of Ahab, and you have walked in their counsels, so that I may bring desolation and reproach upon those who dwell in it, and that you may bear the reproach of my people.

Woe is me! For I am like one who gathers the fruits of summer, and the gleanings of the vintage; there is no cluster to eat, and my soul longed for the first fruits.

The meek have perished from the earth, and there is no righteous man among men; they all lie in wait to shed blood, each one hunts his brother with nets.

To do harm with both hands; the Governor demands, and the Judge chases after the reward, and the great ones speak only of the outrages they desire, and which they twist.

The most righteous among them is like a bramble, and the most just is worse than a hedge of thorns: your visitation, which is the day of your overseers, has come, [and] their perplexity will soon be.

Do not trust in [your close] friend, and do not put your trust in your leaders; beware of opening your mouth before the [woman] who sleeps in your bosom.

For the son dishonors the father, the daughter rises up against her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law, and everyone's servants are his enemies.

But I will be watching, waiting for the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation; my God will answer me.

You, my enemy, do not rejoice over me; though I have fallen, I shall rise again; though I have lain in darkness, the Lord will shine on me.

I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he pleads my cause and does me justice; he will bring me to the light, I will see his righteousness.

And my enemy will see it, and shame will cover her; she who said to me, "Where is the Lord your God?" My eyes will see her, and she will soon be trampled down like the mud of the streets.

By the time he rebuilds your walls, at that time the edicts will be extended far and wide.

At that time people will come to you, even from Assyria and the fortified cities, and from the fortified cities to the river, and from one sea to the other, and from one mountain to the other mountain;

After the country has been in desolation because of its inhabitants, and for the fruit of their actions.

Shepherd with your staff your people, the flock of your inheritance, who dwell alone in the forests in the midst of Carmel; and make them graze in Bashan and Gilead, as in the days of old.

I will show him wonderful things, like in the days when you came out of the land of Egypt.

The nations will see it, and they will be ashamed with all their might; they will put their hands over their mouths, and their ears will be deaf.

They will lick the dust like a snake, and tremble in their enclosures like the reptiles of the earth; they will run terrified to the Lord our God, and will fear you.

Who is the [God] Mighty like you, [who are a God] who takes away iniquity, and who passes over the sins of the remnant of his inheritance? He does not retain his anger forever, because he delights in gratuitousness.

He will again have compassion on us; he will blot out our iniquities, and cast all our sins into the depths of the sea.

You will maintain your faithfulness to Jacob, and your grace to Abraham, which you swore to our fathers from the ages past.

The charge of Nineveh, [which is] the book of the vision of Nahum Elkosien.

The Mighty God is jealous, and the Lord is avenging; the Lord is avenging, and he has fury at his command; the Lord takes vengeance on his adversaries, and reserves it for his enemies.

The Lord is slow to anger and great in power, but by no means does he leave the guilty unpunished; the Lord walks through whirlwinds and tempests, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.

He rebukes the sea, and makes it dry up, and he dries up all the rivers; Bashan and Carmel wither, the flower of Lebanon also withers.

The mountains tremble because of him, and the hills melt; the earth rises in flames because of his presence, the earth, [I say], habitable, and all who dwell in it.

Who can stand before his indignation? And who can remain steadfast in the heat of his anger? His fury is poured out like fire, and the rocks are shattered before him.

The Lord is good, a fortress in times of trouble, and he knows those who trust in him.

It will pass like an overflowing of waters; it will reduce its place to nothing, and darkness will pursue its enemies.

What could you plot against the Lord? He is the one who brings to nothing; distress will not return to him a second time.

For being twisted like thorns, and drunk as they are accustomed to be drunk, they will be consumed entirely like dry straw.

From you has come one who plots evil against the Lord, and who puts forward wicked advice.

Thus says the Lord: Though they are at peace and in great numbers, they shall surely be cut off, and the land shall pass on; yet I have afflicted you, but I will afflict you no more.

But now I will break his yoke from you, and I will tear your bonds to pieces.

For the Lord has given a commission against you; no one from your name will be born again; I will cut off from the house of your gods the carved and cast images; I will make [that house] your grave, after you have fallen into contempt. Behold, upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good tidings, [and] who proclaims peace! You Judah, celebrate your solemn feasts, and make your vows; for the violent men shall no longer pass through your midst in the future, they are utterly cut off.

The destroyer has come up against you; guard the fortress, beware the avenues, strengthen your loins, gather all your strength.

For the Lord has humbled the pride of Jacob as he humbled the pride of Israel; because the robbers have emptied them, and have destroyed their branches.

The shield of his strong men is made red; his valiant men are dyed vermilion; the chariots [will march] with a torchlight, on the day when he has put away [his battles], and the fir trees shake.

The chariots will run swiftly through the streets, and will collide with each other in the squares; they will be seen as torches, and will run like lightning.

He will remember his valiant men, but they will be overthrown on the way; they will hasten to his walls, and the counter-defense will be ready.

The river gates are open, and the palace has melted away.

They made [everyone] stand there, [the Queen] was taken prisoner, they made her go up, and her servants accompanied her, as if with the voice of a dove, beating their breasts like a drum.

Now Nineveh, since it was built, has been like a pool of waters; but they flee; stop, stop; but there is no one who turns his face.

Plunder the silver, plunder the gold; there are limits to its power, which surpasses all precious vessels.

May it be completely emptied and emptied, even completely exhausted; may their hearts melt, may their knees knock against each other; may torment be in the loins of all, and may their faces become black like a pot [that has been put on the fire].

Where is the lions' den, and the lion cubs' meat, where the lions used to retreat, and where the old lions and the lions' fawns stayed, without anyone frightening them?

The lions seized everything they needed for their fawns, and strangled [the beasts] for their old lionesses, and they filled their dens with prey, and their lairs with plunder.

"Behold, I am against you," says the Lord of hosts, "and I will burn your chariots, [and they shall go] up in smoke, and the sword shall consume your young lions; I will cut off your prey from the earth, and the voice of your ambassadors shall no longer be heard."

Woe to the bloodthirsty city, full of lies and brimming with plunder; plunder will never depart from it:

Neither the sound of the whip, nor the impetuous noise of the wheels, nor the horses stamping their feet, nor the bouncing of the carts.

Neither the horsemen making [their horses] leap, nor the shining sword, nor the gleaming halberd, nor the multitude of the mortally wounded, nor the great number of dead bodies, and there will be no end to the dead bodies, so that one will be thrown down upon their bodies.

Because of the multitude of prostitutions of this charming prostitute, expert in sorcery, who sold nations through her prostitution, and families through her enchantments.

"Behold, I am against you," says the Lord of hosts, "I will strip you of your garments; I will make your shame known to the nations, and your disgrace to the kingdoms."

I will bring down upon your head the punishment for your abominations, I will consume you and cover you with infamy.

And it will come to pass that whoever sees you will turn away from you and say,

"Nineveh is destroyed; who will have compassion on her? From where shall I seek comforters for you?"

Are you better than No, the nourishing one, situated between the rivers, who has waters all around her, whose rampart is the sea, for whom the sea serves as walls? His strength was Cusa and Egypt, and countless other [peoples]; Put and the Libyans came to his aid.

She herself was also taken [out of her land], she went into captivity; even her children were crushed at the crossroads of all the streets, and lots were cast for her honorable people, and all her principals were bound in chains.

You too will be intoxicated, you will hide, and you will seek help against the enemy.

All your fortresses will be [like] figs, and like the first fruits, which, when shaken, fall into the mouth of the one who wants to eat them.

Behold, your people will be like so many women in your midst; the gates of your land will all be opened to your enemies; fire will consume your bars.

Draw water for the siege, strengthen your ramparts, sink [your foot] into the rich earth, and tread the clay, and rebuild the brickworks.

There the fire will consume you; the sword will cut you off, it will devour you like the hurricane [devours trees]. Let them gather like the hurricanes, gather yourselves like the locusts.

You have multiplied your merchants in greater number than the stars of heaven; the hurricanes, having spread out, ravaged everything, and then they flew away.

Those who wear the diadem in your midst are like grasshoppers, and your captains like great grasshoppers that camp in the walls in the cool of the day, and when the sun rises, they move away, so that no one knows where they have been.

Your shepherds have fallen asleep, O King of Assyria! Your illustrious men have remained in their tents; your people are scattered across the mountains, and there is no one to gather them.

There is no remedy for your wound, your injury is painful; all who hear of you will clap their hands at you; for who is there who has not continually experienced the effects of your malice?

The burden that Habakkuk the Prophet saw.

O Lord! How long must I cry out, but you do not listen to me? How long must I cry out to you, when I am oppressed, but you do not deliver me?

Why do you show me outrage, and do you see perversity? [Why] is there devastation and violence before me, and [people] stirring up lawsuits and quarrels?

Because the Law is without power, and justice is never done, therefore the wicked surround the righteous, and therefore judgment comes out corrupt.

Look among the nations, and see, and be astonished and utterly amazed, for I am going to do in your time a work which you will not believe when it is told to you.

For behold, I am going to raise up the Chaldeans, who are a cruel and impetuous nation, marching over the breadth of the earth, to possess dwellings which do not belong to it.

She is dreadful and terrible; her government and authority will come from herself.

His horses are lighter than leopards, and they have sharper sight than evening wolves; and his horsemen will spread out to and fro, even his horsemen will come from afar; they will fly like an eagle that hurries to feed.

She will come in full force to wreak havoc; what they will swallow up with their eyes [will be carried] towards the East, and she will heap up the prisoners like sand.

She mocks Kings, and plays with Princes; she laughs at all fortresses, building terraces, she will take them.

Then she will strengthen her courage and pass on, but she will be guilty, [saying that] this power that she has [is] from her God.

Are you not from all eternity, O Eternal One! my God! my Holy One? We shall not die; O Eternal One! You have established it for judgment; and you, [my] Rock, have founded it for punishment.

Your eyes are too pure to see evil, and you cannot take pleasure in looking at the evil that is done to others. Why would you look at the treacherous, and remain silent when the wicked devour his neighbor who is more righteous than he?

But you made men like the fish of the sea, and like the reptile that has no ruler. He caught everything with the hook; he gathered it with his net, and assembled it in his net; therefore he will rejoice and be glad.

Because of this he will sacrifice to his net, and burn incense to his fishing net, because he will have obtained a rich portion through them, and his meat is a tender thing.

Will he empty his net because of this? And will he never cease to slaughter the nations?

I stood on guard, I stood in the fortress, and kept watch, to see what would be said to me, and what I would answer to my complaint.

And the Lord answered me, and said to me, "Write the vision, and express it clearly on tablets, so that a runner may read it."

For the vision is still delayed for a while, and the Lord will speak of the things which will take place in the end, and he will not lie; if he delays, wait for him, for he will surely come, and he will not delay.

Behold, the soul which exalts itself [in someone] is not upright in him; but the righteous shall live by his faith.

And how much more is the man given to wine a transgressor, and the powerful man proud, not remaining at home; who enlarges his soul like the grave, and is insatiable like death, he gathers to himself all nations, and unites all peoples?

Will not all these people make him a subject of ridicule and enigmatic sayings? And will it not be said: Woe to him who gathers what does not belong to him; how long will he do it, and heap thick mud upon himself?

Will there not be some who will immediately rise up to bite you? And will there not awaken some who will make you run here and there, and whom you will plunder?

Because you have plundered many nations, all the rest of the peoples will plunder you, and also because of the murders of men, and the violence [done] to the land, to the city, and to all its inhabitants.

Woe to him who seeks to gain unjustly to establish his house; in order to place his nest on high to be delivered from the claw of the evil one.

You have taken a counsel of confusion for your house by consuming many peoples, and you have sinned against yourself.

For the stone will cry out from the wall, and the knots that are in the beams will answer it.

Woe to him who cements the city with blood, and who founds the city on iniquity.

Behold, is it not from the Lord of hosts that the peoples labor to feed the fire abundantly, and that the nations weary themselves in vain?

But the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters fill the sea.

Woe to him who makes his companion drink by bringing his bottle near him, and even intoxicates him, so that their nakedness may be seen.

You will have even more shame than you have had glory; you too will drink, and show your disgrace; the cup from the Lord's right hand will go around you, and disgrace will be poured out on your glory.

For the violence [done] in Lebanon will cover you; and the damage done by the great beasts will make them utterly astonished, because of the murders of men, and the violence [done] to the land, to the city, and to all its inhabitants.

What good is a carved image that its maker has carved? It is nothing but cast iron, and a doctor of lies; what good is it, that the craftsman who makes mute idols should trust in his work?

Woe to those who say to the wood, 'Awake!' and to the mute stone, 'Awake!' Can it teach? Behold, it is covered with gold and silver, yet there is no spirit within it.

But the Lord is in his holy temple; all the earth, be silent, fearing his presence.
Habakkuk the Prophet's plea for the ignorant.

O Lord, I have heard what you have made me hear, and I was filled with fear. O Lord, continue your work in its being throughout the years; make it known throughout the years; remember, when you are angry, to have mercy.

God came from Teman, and the Holy One from Mount Paran; Selah. His Majesty covered the heavens, and the earth was filled with his praise.

His splendor was like light itself, and rays [came forth] from his hand; therein lies his strength.

Death marched before him, and the quicksand came out at his feet.

He stopped and measured the land; he looked, and made the nations tremble; the mountains that have always been were broken, and the hills of the ages bowed down; the ways of the world are his.

I saw the tents of Cusan [overwhelmed] under the punishment; the pavilions of the land of Midian were shaken.

Was the Lord angry with the rivers? Was your anger against the rivers? Was your fury against the sea, when you mounted your horses and your chariots to deliver?

Your bow was awakened, and shot forth all the arrows, [according to] the oath sworn to the Tribes, [namely your] word; Selah. You split the earth, and brought forth rivers from it.

The mountains saw you, and they grieved; the rushing waters swept by, the deep uttered its voice, the abyss lifted up its hands on high.

The sun and the moon stood still in [their] dwelling place, they walked by the light of your arrows, and by the splendor of the flash of your halberd.

You walked upon the earth in indignation, and trampled the nations in anger.

You went out to deliver your people, [you went out] with your Anointed for deliverance; you pierced the Prince, so that there would be no more in the house of the wicked, uncovering the foundation to the very bottom; Selah.

You pierced with his sticks the Chief of his towns, when they came like a storm to scatter me; they rejoiced as if to devour the afflicted in his retreat.

You walked with your horses by the sea; the great waters having been piled up.

I heard [what you told me], and my heart trembled; at your voice trembling seized my lips; decay entered my bones, and I trembled within myself, for I will be at rest in the day of distress, [when] going up to the people, he will cut them to pieces.

For the fig tree will not grow, and there will be no fruit in the vineyards; what the olive tree produces will be a lie, and no field will produce anything to eat; the sheep will be cut off from the pen, and there will be no oxen in the stables.

But I will rejoice in the Lord, and exult in the God of my salvation.

The Lord, the Lord, is my strength; he will make my feet like the feet of a deer and enable me to tread on my high places. To the chief musician at Nequinoth.

[This is] the word of the Lord that came to Zephaniah son of Cush, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah.

I will utterly destroy everything on top of this earth, says the Lord.

I will destroy man and cattle; I will consume the birds of the heavens and the fish of the sea; and ruin will come upon the wicked, and I will cut off mankind from this earth, says the Lord.

I will stretch out my hand against Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; I will cut off from this place the remnant of the Bahalites, and the names of the priests of false gods, and the priests;

And those who bow down on the rooftops before the host of heaven, and those who bow down before the Lord, swear by him, and those who also swear by Malcam:

And those who turn away from the Lord, and those who have not sought the Lord, who have not sought him.

Be silent, because of the presence of the Lord Eternal, for the day of the Lord is near; the Lord has prepared the sacrifice, he has invited his guests. And it will come to pass on the day of the sacrifice of the Lord that I will punish the Lords, and the children of the King, and all those who dress in foreign clothing.

And I will punish on that day all those who leap over the threshold, [and] those who fill the house of their masters with violence and fraud.

And on that day, says the Lord, there will be a great cry at the Fish Gate, and a wailing at the second [city], and great desolation at the hills.

You who live in Mactes, cry out; for all those who traded have been defeated, and all those who brought money have been cut off.

And it will come to pass at that time, that I will search Jerusalem with lamps, that I will punish the men who are stuck in their ways, and who say in their hearts, The Lord will do neither good nor harm to us.

And their possessions will be plundered, and their houses will be desolate; they will have built houses, but they will not live in them; and they will have planted vineyards, but they will not drink the wine.

The great day of the Lord is near, it is near, and it is hastening; the day of the Lord is but a noise; he who is bitter cries out with all his might; there are the mighty men.

That day is a day of fury, a day of distress and anguish, a day of loud and terrifying noise, a day of darkness and gloom, a day of clouds and mists;

A day of horns and alarms against fortified cities, and against tall towers.

I will bring distress upon mankind, and they will walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the Lord; and their blood will be poured out like dust, and their flesh like dung.

Neither their silver nor their gold will be able to deliver them on the day of the Lord's wrath; and all this land will be devoured by the fire of his jealousy; for he will hasten to consume all the inhabitants of this land.

Examine yourselves, examine yourselves carefully, O nation that is not lovable!

Before the decree gives birth, and the day passes like chaff; before the fierce anger of the Lord comes upon you, before the day of the Lord's anger comes upon you.

You, all you meek people of the land, who do what he commands, seek the Lord, seek justice, seek meekness; perhaps you will be made safe on the day of the Lord's anger.

But Gaza will be abandoned, and Ashkelon will be desolate; they will drive [the inhabitants] of Ashdod into the South, and Hekron will be uprooted.

Woe to the inhabitants of the sea country, to the nation of the Kerethites, the word of the Lord is against you; Canaan, [which is] the land of the Philistines, I will destroy you so that no one will live in it.

And the coastal region will be nothing but huts, shepherds' lodges, and sheep pens.

And this land will belong to the remnant of the house of Judah; they will graze in these places, and in the evening they will make their home in the houses of Ashkelon; for the Lord their God will visit them, and he will restore their fortunes.

I have heard the insults of Moab, and the invectives of the children of Hammon, with which they have defamed my people, and defied them on their border.

Therefore, as surely as I live, says the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, Moab shall be like Sodom, and the children of Mammon like Gomorrah, a place overgrown with nettles, and a quarry of salt and desolation forever; the remnant of my people shall plunder them, and the remnant of [my] nation shall possess them.

This will happen to them in return for their pride, because they have used insults and boasts against the people of the Lord of hosts.

The Lord will be terrible against them; for he will weaken all the gods of the land; and they will bow down before him, each from their own place, even all the islands of the nations.

You too [inhabitants] of Cus, you will be mortally wounded by my sword.
He will also extend his hand over the North, and he will destroy Assyria, and make Nineveh a desolate place, a dry place like a desert.
And the flocks will make their lair in the midst of it, and all the beasts of the nations, even the cormorant, and the bittern will lodge in its gates, the voice of birds will resound at the window, desolation will be at the threshold, because he will have cut down cedars.
This is the city filled with joy, which stood secure, and said in its heart, "I am he, and there is no other besides me." How is it made a desolate place, a dwelling for beasts? Everyone who passes by will mock it and shake their hand.
Woe to the gluttonous, defiled city that does nothing but oppress.
She did not listen to the voice; she did not receive instruction; she did not trust in the Lord; she did not draw near to her God.
Her princes within her are roaring lions, and her rulers are evening wolves, which do not leave the bones to gnaw on them in the morning.
His prophets are reckless and faithless men; his priests have defiled the holy things, they have violated the Law.
The righteous Lord is in her midst; he does no iniquity; every morning he brings forth his justice, and nothing is lacking; but the wicked do not know what it is to be ashamed.
I have exterminated the nations, and their fortresses have been desolate; I have made their places deserted, so that no one passes through them; their cities have been destroyed, without a single man remaining, and without any inhabitant.
[And] I said; At least you will fear me, you will receive instruction, and her dwelling will not be cut off, whatever punishment I send upon her; but they got up early in the morning, they corrupted all their actions.
Therefore wait for me, says the Lord, for the day when I rise up for destruction; for my decree is to gather nations and assemble kingdoms, so that I may pour out on them my indignation and all the fierceness of my anger; for the whole earth shall be consumed by the fire of my jealousy.
Even then I will change the lips of the peoples into pure lips, so that all of them will call on the name of the Lord and serve him with one spirit.
My worshipers who are beyond the rivers of Cush, [namely], the daughter of my scattered people, will bring me my offerings.
On that day you will no longer be ashamed because of all your deeds, by which you have sinned against me; because then I will remove from your midst those who rejoice in your pride, and henceforth you will no longer boast of the mountain of my holiness.
And I will cause a remnant of afflicted and weak people to dwell in your midst, who will have their refuge in the Name of the Lord.
The remnant of Israel will do no wrong, nor will they speak lies, nor will there be any deceitful tongue in their mouths; therefore they will graze and make their home, and no one will frighten them.
Rejoice with a song of triumph, daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, O Israel! Rejoice and be glad with all your heart, daughter of Jerusalem!
The Lord has abolished your condemnation, he has removed your enemy; the King of Israel, the Lord, is in your midst; you will feel no more harm.
At that time it will be said to Jerusalem: Do not fear, Zion, lest your hands be slack.
The Lord your God is in your midst; the Mighty One will deliver you; he will rejoice over you with great joy: he will be silent because of his love, and he will exult over you with singing.
I will gather those who are grieved because of the appointed assembly; they have come out of you; what burdened it will only be shame.
Behold, at that time I will destroy all those who have afflicted you; I will deliver the lame, I will gather the one who had been cast out, and I will make them praised and renowned, in all the countries where they have been covered with shame. At that time I will bring you back, and at that time I will gather you together; for I will make you famous and a praise among all the peoples of the earth, when I restore your fortunes before you, says the Lord.

In the second year of King Darius, on the first day of the sixth month, the word of the Lord came by Haggai the prophet to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, saying: This people have said: The time has not yet come, the time to rebuild the house of the Lord.

Therefore the word of the Lord came through Haggai the Prophet, saying:

Is it time for you to live in your wood-paneled houses, while this house remains desolate?

Therefore, this is what the Lord Almighty says: Consider carefully your ways.

You have sown much, but you have planted little; you have eaten, but not to the point of being satisfied; you have drunk, but not enough to drink; you have been clothed, but not to the point of being warm; and he who hires himself out hires himself out [to put] his wages in a bag with holes.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: Consider carefully your ways.

Go up to the mountain, bring wood, and build this house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, says the Lord.

We looked at much, and behold, [all has returned] to little; and you brought it home, and I blew on it; why? Because of my house, says the Lord of hosts, which remains desolate, while you each run to your own house.

Because of this the heavens have closed over us so as not to give the dew, and the earth has withheld its produce.

And I called for drought on the earth, and on the mountains, and on the wheat, and on the new wine, and on the oil, and on [all] that the earth produces, and on men, and on beasts, and on all the work of hands.

Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and all the rest of the people, listened to the voice of the Lord their God, and to the words of Haggai the prophet, as the Lord their God had sent him; and the people were afraid of the presence of the Lord.

And Haggai, the Lord's ambassador, spoke to the people, following the Lord's embassy, saying, "I am with you, says the Lord."

And the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came and labored on the house of the Lord their God.

The twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, in the second year of King Darius.

On the twenty-first day of the seventh month, the word of the Lord came through Haggai the Prophet, saying:

Now speak to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the rest of the people, and say to them:

Who among you has remained who saw this house in its former glory, and as you see it now? Is it not as nothing before your eyes, compared to that one?

Now therefore you, Zerubbabel, be strong, says the Lord; and you also, Jehoshua, son of Jehozadak, the high priest, be strong; and you also, all you people of the land, be strong, says the Lord, and work, for I am with you, says the Lord of hosts.

The word of [the covenant] that I made with you when you came out of Egypt, and my spirit, remain among you; do not be afraid.

For thus says the Lord of hosts: once again, which [even will be] in a little while, I will shake the heavens and the earth, the sea, and the dry land;

And I will shake all nations; and the desires of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory; says the Lord of hosts.

The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, says the Lord of hosts.
The glory of this latter house shall be greater than that of the former, says the Lord of hosts, and I will establish peace in this place, says the Lord of hosts.
On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month of the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came through Haggai the Prophet, saying:
Thus says the Lord of hosts: Now ask the priests about the law, saying:
If someone has consecrated meat on the corner of their garment, and touches bread, or anything baked, or wine, or oil, or any kind of meat with the corner of their garment, will it be made holy? And the priests answered, and said, No.
Then Haggai said, "If someone who is defiled for the dead touches all these things, will they not become defiled?" And the priests answered, "They will become defiled."

Then Haggai answered, and said, "Such is this people, and such is this nation before my face, says the Lord; and such is all the work of their hands; even what they offer here is defiled."

Therefore, I pray you, put this into your heart: from this day forward, before they lay stone upon stone in the Temple of the Lord,
Before that, [I said], when we came to a heap [of wheat], [instead] of twenty [measures], there were only ten; and when we came to the winepress, instead of drawing fifty [measures] from the winepress, there were only twenty.
I struck you with burning, mildew, and hail in all the labor of your hands; and you did not return to me, says the Lord.
Now put this into your heart; from this day forward, from, [I say], the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, from this day on which the foundations of the Temple of the Lord were laid, put this into your heart;
Has what you sowed yet returned to the barn? Even the vine, the fig tree, the pomegranate tree, and the olive tree yielded nothing; but from this day forward I will give the blessing.

And the word of the Lord came a second time to Haggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month, saying:

Speak to Zerubbabel, Governor of Judah, saying: I will shake the heavens and the earth;

I will overthrow the throne of the Kingdoms, I will destroy the strength of the Kingdoms of the Nations! I will overthrow the chariots, and those who ride on them; and the horses, and those who ride on them, will be struck down, each by the sword of his brother.

At that time, says the Lord of hosts, I will take you, O Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, my servant, says the Lord, and I will make you like a signet ring; for I have chosen you, says the Lord of hosts.

In the eighth month of the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zechariah son of Barachiah, son of Hiddo, the prophet, saying:

The Lord was extremely angry with your fathers.

Therefore you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Return to me, says the Lord of hosts; and I will return to you, says the Lord of hosts.

Do not be like your fathers, to whom the prophets who were former cried out, saying, Thus says the Lord of hosts: Turn now from your evil ways and your evil deeds; but they did not listen or pay attention to what I said to them, says the Lord.

Where are your fathers? And were those prophets supposed to live forever?

However, did not my words and my ordinances, which I commanded my servants the Prophets, reach your fathers? So, when they repented, they said, "As the Lord of hosts intended to do to us according to our ways and our deeds, so he has done to us."

On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is the month of Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zechariah son of Barachiah, son of Hiddo the prophet, as follows.

I had a vision at night: and behold, a man was riding on a red horse, and he stood among myrtles that were in a deep place; and after him were red horses, dappled horses, and white horses.

And I said: My Lord! What [do these things mean]? And the Angel who was speaking with me said to me: I will show you what these things [mean].

And the man who was standing among the myrtles answered, and said: These are the ones whom the Lord has sent to roam the earth.

And they answered the Angel of the Lord who stood among the myrtles, and said, "We have gone throughout the earth, and behold, the whole earth is inhabited and is at rest."

Then the Angel of the Lord answered and said, "Lord Almighty, how long will you not have compassion on Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, against which you have been indignant these seventy years?"

And the Lord answered the angel who was speaking with me, with kind words, with words of comfort.

Then the angel who was speaking with me said to me, "Cry out, saying: 'Thus says the Lord of hosts: I am very jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion.'"

And I am extremely indignant with the nations who are at ease; for I was indignant for a little while, and they helped in the evil.

Therefore this is what the Lord says: "I have turned back to Jerusalem in compassion, and my house will be rebuilt in it," says the Lord Almighty; "and the plumb line will be stretched out over Jerusalem."

Cry out again, saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts: My cities shall again overflow with prosperity, and the Lord shall again comfort Zion, and again choose Jerusalem.

Then I lifted my eyes and looked, and behold, four horns.

Then I said to the angel who was speaking with me, "What do these things mean?" And he answered me, "These are the horns that have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem."

Then the Lord showed me four blacksmiths.

And I said, "What are these coming to do?" And he answered, and said, "These are the horns that scattered Judah, so that no one lifted up their head; but these have come to frighten them, and to cut off the horns of the nations that raised the horn against the land of Judah, to scatter it."

I raised my eyes again and looked; and there was a man with a measuring line in his hand,

To which I said, "Where are you going?" And he answered me, "I am going to measure Jerusalem, to see what its width is, and what its length is."

And behold, the angel who was speaking with me went out, and another angel went out to meet him;

And he said to him, "Run, and speak to that young man, saying, 'Jerusalem shall be inhabited without walls, because of the multitude of men and beasts that will be in the midst of it.'"

But I will be a wall of fire around her, says the Lord, and I will be a glory in her midst.

Ha! Flee, flee from the land of the North, says the Lord: for I have scattered you to the four winds of heaven, says the Lord.

Ha! Zion, who dwells with the daughter of Babylon, save yourself.

For thus says the Lord of hosts, who after the glory sent me to the nations that plundered you, that whoever touches you, let him touch the apple of his eye.

For behold, I am going to raise my hand against them, and they shall be plunder to their servants, and you shall know that the Lord of hosts has sent me.

Rejoice with singing, and be glad, daughter of Zion; for behold, I am coming, and I will dwell in your midst, says the Lord.

And many nations will join the Lord on that day and become my people, and I will dwell in your midst; and you will know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you.

And the Lord will inherit Judah as his portion in his holy land, and he will again choose Jerusalem.

Let all flesh be silent before the face of the Lord, for he has roused himself from his holy dwelling.

Then [the Lord] showed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the Lord, and Satan standing at his right hand to oppose him.

And the Lord said to Satan, "The Lord rebuke you, O Satan! The Lord, I say, who has chosen Jerusalem, rebuke you! Is not this the brand that was taken from the fire?"

Now Jehosuah was clothed in filthy clothes, and he stood before the Angel.

And [the angel] spoke, and said to those who were standing before him, "Take off these filthy garments from him." And he said to [Jesus], "See, I have removed your iniquity from you, and I have clothed you with new garments."

And I said, Let a clean turban be placed on his head; and a clean turban was placed on his head; then he was clothed with garments, and the Angel of the Lord was present.

Then the Angel of the Lord protested to Jehoshua, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts: If you walk in my ways, and keep what I want to be kept, you shall have jurisdiction over my house, and you shall keep my courts, and I will cause you to walk among these attendants.

Listen now, Jehoshua, High Priest, you and your companions who sit before you, because they are people who are considered monsters, certainly behold, I am going to bring Germe, my servant.

For behold, the stone that I have set before Jehoshua, on this stone, which is one, there are seven eyes. Behold, I am going to engrave its inscription, says the Lord of hosts, and I will remove the iniquity of this land in one day.

On that day, says the Lord of hosts, each of you will call his neighbor under the vine and under the fig tree.

Then the angel who was speaking with me returned and woke me up like a man who is awakened from his sleep;

And he said to me, "What do you see?" And I answered, "I look, and behold, a lampstand all of gold, and a basin above its top, and its seven lamps are upon it, with seven pipes for the seven lamps which are upon its top."

And there are two olive trees above, one to the right of the basin, and the other to the left.

Then I spoke, and I said to the Angel who was speaking with me, the following: My Lord, what do these things mean?

And the angel who was speaking with me answered and said to me: Do you not know what these things mean? And I said: No, my Lord!

And he answered, and said to me, This is the word of the Lord to Zerubbabel, saying, Not by army, nor by power, but by my Spirit, says the Lord of hosts.

Who are you, great mountain, before Zerubbabel? A plain. He will lift out the highest stone; there will be resounding sounds; Grace, Grace for it.

Therefore the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

The hands of Zerubbabel have founded this house, and his hands will finish it; and you will know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you.

For who has despised the time of small things [beginnings]? Since these seven [namely], the eyes of the Lord which go to and fro throughout all the earth, shall rejoice, and see the stone of the plumb line in the hand of Zerubbabel.

And I answered, and said to him: What do these two olive trees, to the right and to the left of the lampstand, signify?

And I spoke a second time, and said to him: What [do these two olive branches mean which are near the two golden spouts, from which the gold flows?

And he answered me, and said: Do you not know what these things mean? And I said: No, my Lord.

And he said: These are the two sons of oil, who stand before the Lord of all the earth.

Then I turned around and lifted my eyes to look; and behold, a flying scroll.

Then he said to me, "What do you see?" And I replied, "I see a flying scroll, twenty cubits long and ten cubits wide."

And he said to me: This is the abhorrence of the oath that goes out over the whole earth; for whoever among this [people] steals, will be punished like her; and whoever among this [people] swears, will be punished like her.

I will unleash this curse, says the Lord of hosts, and it will enter the house of the thief, and the house of him who swears [falsely] by my Name, and it will lodge in the midst of their house, and consume it with its wood and its stones.

And the angel who was speaking with me came out and said to me, "Now lift up your eyes and see what is coming out."

And I said, "What is it?" And he [answered], "It is an Ephah who is going out." Then he said, "It is my eye that I have on them throughout the whole earth."

And behold, a lead weight was being carried, and a woman was sitting in the midst of the Ephah.

And he said, "This is the wickedness"; then he threw it into the middle of the Ephah, and put the lead weight over its opening.

Then I lifted up my eyes and looked, and behold, two women came out, and the wind was blowing in their wings; and they had wings like the wings of a stork; and they lifted up Ephah between the earth and the heavens.

And I said to the angel who was speaking with me, "Where are they taking the Ephah?"

And he answered me: It is to build him a house in the land of Sinhar, which, once established, will be placed there on its foundation.

And I raised my eyes again, and looked, and behold, four chariots were coming out from between two mountains; and these mountains were mountains of bronze.

The first chariot had red horses; the second chariot had black horses;

In the third wagon, white horses; in the fourth wagon, dappled, gray horses.

And I spoke, and said to the Angel who was speaking with me: My Lord, what do these things mean?

And the Angel answered, and said to me: These are the four winds of heaven which come out from the place where they stood before the Lord of all the earth.

[As for the chariot] where the black horses are, they go out towards the land of the North, and the white ones go out after them; but the speckled ones go out towards the land of the South.

Then the ashen ones came out and asked to go and run on the earth. And he said to them, "Go, and run on the earth." And they ran on the earth.

Then he called me and spoke to me, saying, "Behold, those who are going out to the land of the north have caused my Spirit to rest in the land of the north."

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Take some of those who have returned from captivity, [namely], from Heldai, from Tobiah, and from Jedaiah; and come that same day, and enter the house of Josiah son of Zephaniah, who have come from Babylon.

And take silver and gold, and make crowns of them, and put them on the head of Jehosuah, son of Jehozadak, the high priest.

And speak to him, saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts, saying: Behold the man, whose name is Branch, who shall spring up from within himself, and shall build the Temple of the Lord.

Yes, he himself will build the Temple of the Lord; and he himself will be filled with majesty, and will sit and rule on his throne, and will be a priest, [being] on his throne; and there will be a council of peace between the two.

And the crowns shall be in Helem, and in Tobiah, and in Jedaiah, and in Hen son of Zephaniah as a memorial, in the Temple of the Lord.

And those who are far away will come and build the Temple of the Lord; and you will know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you; and this will happen if you listen carefully to the voice of the Lord your God.

Then it came to pass in the fourth year of King Darius, that the word of the Lord came to Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, which is the month of Kislev.

when Sarezzer, and Regem-melech and his men had been sent to the house of the Mighty God to plead with the Lord.

And to speak to the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and to the prophets, saying, "Shall I weep in the fifth month, standing apart, as I have already done for many years?"

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

Speak to all the people of the land, and to the priests, and say to them: When you fasted and wept in the fifth and seventh months, seventy years ago, did you observe this fast for my sake?

And when you eat and drink, is it not you who eat and you who drink?

Are these not the words that the Lord spoke through the prophets who were formerly, when Jerusalem and its surrounding towns were inhabited and at peace, and when people lived toward the south and in the plain?

Then the word of the Lord came to Zechariah, saying:

Thus spoke the Lord of hosts, saying: Do what is truly right, and show mercy and compassion each to his brother.

Do not wrong the widow, the orphan, the stranger, or the afflicted, and do not plot evil in your hearts against your brother.

But they would not listen, and pulled their shoulders back, and they weighed down their ears so as not to hear.

And they made their hearts as hard as flint, so that they would not listen to the Law, and to the words which the Lord of hosts sent by his Spirit, by means of the Prophets who were former; therefore there was great indignation from the Lord of hosts.

And it came to pass, that just as when they were called out to them, they did not listen; so when they called out, I did not listen, says the Lord of hosts.

And I scattered them [as] in a whirlwind among all the nations they did not know, and the land was desolate after them, so that no one passed through it or passed back, and the desirable land was laid waste.

The word of the Lord Almighty came to me again, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts: I was jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I was jealous for her with great indignation.

Thus says the Lord: I have returned to Zion, and I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem shall be called, City of Truth; and the mountain of the Lord of hosts [shall be called], Holy Mountain.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: There will still be old men and old women in the squares of Jerusalem, and each will have his staff in his hand because of his advanced age.

And the city squares will be filled with sons and daughters, who will play in its squares.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: If it seems difficult in the sight of the remnant of this people, [that it should happen] in those days, shall it nevertheless be difficult in my sight, says the Lord of hosts?

Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I am going to deliver my people from the land of the East, and from the land of the setting sun;

And I will bring them in, and they will live in Jerusalem, and they will be my people, and I will be their God in truth and justice.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: You who hear in these days these words from the mouth of the Prophets who were on the day that the house of the Lord was founded, and the Temple rebuilt, let your hands be strengthened.

For before these days there was no wage for man, nor wage for beast; and there was no peace for those going out, nor for those coming in, because of the distress, and I sent all men against one another.

But now I will not do to those who remain of this people as I did in the days before, says the Lord of hosts.

But what [they will sow] will be a seed of prosperity, the seed of peace [will be there]; the vine will yield its fruit, and the earth will give its produce; the heavens will give their dew, and I will give all these things as an inheritance to those who remain of this people.

And it will come to pass, O house of Judah and house of Israel! That as you have been a curse among the nations, so I will deliver you, and you shall be a blessing; do not be afraid, [but] let your hands be strengthened.

For thus says the Lord of hosts: As I thought to afflict you, when your fathers provoked my indignation, says the Lord of hosts, and I did not relent;

So on the contrary, I have turned around, and I have decided in these days to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah; do not be afraid.

[And] these are the things you must do: Speak truthfully, each with his neighbor; speak truth and justice of peace in your gates.

And let no one plot evil in his heart against his neighbor; and do not love to swear falsely: for these are things which I hate, says the Lord.

Then the word of the Lord Almighty came to me, saying:

Thus says the Lord of hosts: The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall be changed for the house of Judah into joy and gladness, and into solemn feasts of rejoicing; therefore love truth and peace.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: Yet it shall come to pass that peoples and inhabitants of many cities shall come;

And the inhabitants of one will go to the other, saying, "Come, let us go and beseech the Lord, and seek the Lord of hosts; I too will go there."

Thus many peoples, and powerful nations, will come to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, and to beseech the Lord there.

Thus says the Lord of hosts: In those days ten men from all languages of the nations shall take hold of the hem of a Jew's robe, saying, Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you.

The burden of the Word of the Lord against the land of Hadrach, which will fall upon Damascus; for the Lord has his eye on men and on all the Tribes of Israel.

Even Hamath, Tyre, and Sidon will be limited by it, although each of them is very wise.

For Tyre has built himself a fortress, and has heaped up silver like dust; and fine gold, like the mud of the streets.

Behold, the Lord will impoverish it, and by striking it he will throw his power into the sea, and it will be consumed by fire.

Ashkelon will see it and be afraid; Gaza will see it and be as though in childbirth; and Hekron too, because what she looked at will make her ashamed; and there will be no more king in Gaza, and Ashkelon will no longer flourish.

And the bastard will dwell in Ashdod; and I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.

But I will remove their blood from the mouth of each of them, and their abominations from between their teeth; and he also shall be reserved for our God, who shall be as ruler in Judah, and Hekron shall be like the Jebusite.

And I will encamp around my house because of the army and because of those who come and go; and the tax collector will no longer pass among them; for now I am watching it with my eyes.

Let your joy be lively, daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, daughter of Jerusalem! Behold, your King will come to you, righteous, and secure in himself, lowly, and riding on a donkey, and on a colt, the foal of a donkey.

And I will cut off the chariots from Ephraim, and the horses from Jerusalem; and the battle bow shall also be cut off, and the [King] shall speak peace to the nations; and his dominion shall extend from one sea to the other sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth.

As for you also, because of the blood of your covenant, I will bring your prisoners out of the pit where there is no water.

Return to the fortress, you prisoners who have hope, even today I announce to you that I will give you double.

After I have stretched Judah [like] a bow, and filled Ephraim [like a quiver], and have, O Zion! Awaken your children against your children, O Javan! And have set you like the sword of a mighty man;

Then the Lord will appear against them, and his darts will go forth like lightning, and the Lord God will sound the trumpet, and march with the whirlwinds of the South.

The Lord of hosts will be their protector, and they will eat after they have subdued [those who shoot] the slingstones; they will drink with a clatter like drunken men, they will fill themselves with wine like a basin, and like the corners of the altar.

And the Lord their God will deliver them on that day as the flock of his people; even crowned stones will be raised on his land.

For how great will be her goodness and her beauty? Wheat will make the young men grow, and sweet wine will make her maidens eloquent.

Ask the Lord for rain in the time of the latter rains, and the Lord will send lightning and give you abundant rain, and to each one grass in his field.

For the Teraphim spoke falsehood, and the diviners saw the lie; they uttered vain dreams and gave vain comforts; therefore the people went away like sheep and were heartbroken, because there was no shepherd.

My anger was kindled against those shepherds, and I punished those goats; but the Lord of hosts has reviewed his flock, [namely], the house of Judah; and he has drawn them up in battle array like his warhorse.

From him comes the corner, from him comes the nail, from him comes the battle bow, and likewise from him will come every extortioner.

But they will be like valiant men who tread the mud of the roads in battle, and they will fight, because the Lord will be with them, and the horsemen will be put to shame.

For I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will preserve the house of Joseph; and I will bring them back, and make them dwell in rest, because I will have compassion on them, and they will be as though I had not rejected them; for I am the Lord their God, and I will answer them.

And those of Ephraim will be like a mighty man, and their hearts will rejoice as with wine; and his children will see it, and rejoice; their hearts will exult in the Lord.

I will whistle to them, and I will gather them together, because I have redeemed them; and they will be multiplied as they were [before].

And after I have scattered them among the peoples, they will remember me in distant lands, and they will live with their children, and return.

So I will bring them back from the land of Egypt, I will gather them from Assyria, I will bring them to the land of Gilead, and to Lebanon, and there will not be [enough space] for them.

And distress will pass through the sea, and it will strike the waves; and all the depths of the river will be dried up, and the pride of Assyria will be brought down, and the scepter of Egypt will be removed.

And I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they will walk in his Name, says the Lord.

Lebanon, open your gates, and fire will consume your cedars.

Fir, howl; for the cedar has fallen, because the magnificent things have been ravaged; oaks of Bashan, howl, for the forest which was like a stronghold, has been cut down.

[There is] a howling cry from the shepherds, because their magnificence has been ravaged, [there is] a roaring cry from the lion cubs, because the pride of the Jordan has been ravaged.

Thus says the Lord my God: Feed the sheep exposed to slaughter; Let their owners kill, without being held guilty, and each seller of them says: Blessed be the Lord, I am rich: And not one of their shepherds spares them. "Surely I will no longer have pity on those who dwell in the land," says the Lord, "for behold, I will make each one fall into the hand of his neighbor and into the hand of his king, and they will trample the land, and I will not deliver it from their hand."

So I began to tend the sheep that were destined for slaughter, which are truly the poorest of the flock. Then I took two rods, one of which I called Beauty, and the other Cord; and I began to tend the sheep.

And I eliminated three pastors in one month, because my soul grew weary of them, and their souls also grew disgusted with me.

And I said: I will no longer shepherd you; let what dies, die; and let what is destroyed, be destroyed; and let those that remain devour each other's flesh. Then I took my staff, [called] Beauty, and broke it in pieces to break my covenant that I had made with all these peoples;

And it was broken that day; and so the poorest of the flock who heed me knew that it was the word of the Lord.

And I said to them, "If it seems good to you, give me my wages; if not, do not give them to me." Then they weighed out my wages, which were thirty pieces of silver.

And the Lord said to me, "Throw them away for a potter, for that honorable price at which I was valued by them." So I took the thirty pieces of silver and threw them into the house of the Lord for a potter.

Then I broke my second rod, [called] Cord, to break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

And the Lord said to me: Take again the equipment of a foolish shepherd.

For behold, I am going to raise up a shepherd in the land, who will not visit the sheep that go astray; he will not seek the delicate ones, he will not heal the sick ones, and he will not carry those that have lag behind, but he will eat the flesh of the fat ones, and cut their nails.

Woe to the useless shepherd, who abandons the flock; the sword will be on his arm, and on his right eye; his arm will surely wither, and his right eye will be completely darkened.

The burden of the word of the Lord concerning Israel; the Lord, who stretches out the heavens and lays the foundations of the earth and forms the spirit of man within him, has said:

Behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of turmoil to all the surrounding peoples; and it will also be a [occasion] of siege against Judah and against Jerusalem.

And it will come to pass at that time, that I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone to all peoples; all who bear its burden will be utterly crushed, for all the nations of the earth will gather against it.

At that time, says the Lord, I will strike every horse with stupor, and the man who rides on it with madness; and I will open my eyes on the house of Judah, and I will strike all the horses of the peoples with blindness.

And the leaders of Judah will say in their hearts, "The inhabitants of Jerusalem are my strength from the Lord of hosts, their God."

At that time I will make the leaders of Judah like a hearth of fire among wood, and like a torch of fire among sheaves, and they will devour all the surrounding peoples on the right and on the left; and Jerusalem will still be inhabited in its place, in Jerusalem.

And the Lord will secure the tabernacles of Judah before all things, so that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not rise above Judah.

At that time the Lord will be the protector of the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and the weakest among them will at that time be like David, and the house of David will be like angels, like the angel of the Lord before them.

And it will come to pass that at that time I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

And I will pour out on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem the Spirit of grace and supplication; and they will look to me whom they have pierced, and they will mourn for me as one mourns for an only son, and grieve bitterly as one grieves for a firstborn son.

On that day there will be great mourning in Jerusalem, like the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the plain of Megiddon.

And the land will mourn, each family by itself: the family of the house of David by itself, and the women of that house by themselves; the family of the house of Nathan by itself, and the women of that house by themselves.

The family of the house of Levi were separated, and the women of that house were separated; the family of Shimei were separated, and his wives were separated.

All the families who will have stayed behind, each family separately, and their wives separately.

At that time there will be a fountain opened for the benefit of the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for defilement.

It will also come to pass at that time, says the Lord of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the false gods from the land, and they will no longer be mentioned; I will also remove the [false] prophets and the spirit of impurity from the land.

And it will come to pass that when anyone prophesies from now on, his father and mother who begot him will say to him, "You shall not live anymore, for you have spoken lies in the name of the Lord"; and his father and mother who begot him will pierce him when he prophesies.

And it will come to pass at that time that these prophets will be ashamed, each of them of his vision, when he has prophesied; and they will no longer be clothed in hairy robes to lie.

And he will say: I am not a prophet, [but] I am a farmer; for I was taught to manage cattle from my youth.

And they will say to him, "What do these wounds in your hands mean?" And he will answer, "They are the wounds that were inflicted on me in the house of my friends."

"Awake, sword, against my shepherd, against the man who is my companion," says the Lord of hosts. "Strike the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered, and I will turn my hand against the little ones."

And it will happen throughout the whole earth, says the Lord, that two parts will be cut off from it and fail, but the third part will remain in it.

And I will bring the third part into the fire, I will refine them as silver is refined, and I will test them as gold is tested; each one of them will call on my Name, and I will answer him; I will say, This is my people; and he will say, The Lord is my God.

Behold, the day is coming for the Lord, and your spoils shall be divided in your midst, [Jerusalem].

Therefore I will gather all the nations into battle against Jerusalem, and the city shall be taken, and the houses plundered, and the women raped, and half of the city shall go out into captivity, but the rest of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

For the Lord will go out and fight against those nations, as he fought on the day of the battle.

And his feet shall stand on that day on the Mount of Olives, which is opposite Jerusalem on the east side; and the Mount of Olives shall be split in two from east to west, so that there shall be a very large valley; and half of the mountain shall move away toward the north, and the other half toward the south.

And you will flee through this mountain valley; for he will join this mountain valley to Azal; and you will flee as you fled from the earthquake in the days of Hoziah king of Judah; then the Lord my God will come, and all the saints will be with you.

And it will come to pass that on that day, the precious light will not be mingled with darkness.

But the day will be without mixture, which will be known to the Lord: There will be no alternation of day and night, but at the time of evening there will be light.

And it will come to pass that on that day living water will flow out from Jerusalem; half of it will flow toward the eastern sea, and the other half toward the western sea; there will be water in summer and in winter.

And the Lord will be King over all the earth; on that day there will be only one Lord, and his name will be one.

And the whole land will become like the countryside from Gebah to Rimmon, toward the South of Jerusalem, which will be exalted and inhabited in its place, from the Benjamin Gate, to the place of the first gate, and to the Corner Gate, and from the Tower of Hananel, to the King's winepresses.

They will remain there, and there will no longer be any prohibition, but Jerusalem will be inhabited in safety.

This will be the plague with which the Lord will strike all the peoples who have waged war against Jerusalem; he will cause the flesh of each one to melt while they are still on their feet; and their eyes will melt in their sockets, and their tongues will melt in their mouths.

And it will come to pass on that day that there will be great strife among them from the Lord; for each one will seize the hand of his neighbor, and the hand of one will be lifted up against the hand of another.

Judah will also fight in Jerusalem, and the riches of all the surrounding nations will be gathered there: gold, silver, and clothing in very great quantities.

The plague of the horses, mules, camels, donkeys, and all the animals that are in those fields will be like the previous plague.

And it shall come to pass that all those who have remained of all the nations which came against Jerusalem, shall go up in multitudes year after year to worship before the King, the Lord of hosts, and to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles.

And it will come to pass that whoever from among the families of the earth does not go up to Jerusalem to worship before the King, the Lord of hosts, there will be no rain upon them.

And if the family of Egypt does not go up there, and does not come there, although there is no rain on them, they shall be afflicted with the plague with which the Lord will strike the nations that did not go up to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles.

This will be the sin of Egypt, and the sin of all the nations that did not go up to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles.

At that time it will be written on the bells of the horses: HOLINESS TO THE LORD; and there will be cauldrons in the house of the Lord, as many as basins before the altar.

And every cauldron that is in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holy to the Lord of hosts; and all who sacrifice shall come and take of it and cook in it; and there shall no longer be a Canaanite in the house of the Lord of hosts on that day.

The burden of the word of the Lord against Israel, through Malachi.

"I have loved you," says the Lord; "and you have said, 'How have you loved us?' Was not Esau Jacob's brother?" says the Lord. "Yet I have loved Jacob;

But I hated Esau, and I laid his mountains to desolation, and his inheritance to the desert dragons.

If Edom says, "We have been impoverished, but we will return and rebuild the ruined places," the Lord of hosts says, "They will rebuild, but I will destroy, and they will be called, 'Land of Wickedness,' and the people against whom the Lord is indignant forever."

Your eyes will see it, and you will say: The Lord has exalted himself over those at the borders of Israel.

The son honors the father, and the servant his master. If I am the Father, where is the honor due me? And if I am the Lord, where is the fear of me? says the Lord Almighty, to you priests who despise my name. And you have said, "How have we despised your name?"

You offer defiled bread on my altar, and you say: How have we dishonored you? It is in this that you say: The table of the Lord is for contemplation.

And when you bring a blind animal to sacrifice, is there no harm in that? And when you bring one lame or sick, is there no harm in that? Present it to your governor; will he be pleased with you, or will he receive you favorably? says the Lord of hosts.

Now therefore plead with the Mighty God, that he may have mercy on us; this [coming] from your hand, will he receive you favorably? says the Lord of hosts.

Who among you shuts the doors? For is it not in vain that you burn fire on my altar? I have no pleasure in you, says the Lord of hosts; and I will not accept the offering of your hands.

But from the rising of the sun to its setting, my name will be great among the nations, and in every place incense will be offered to my name, and a pure offering; for my name will be great among the nations, says the Lord of hosts.

But you have profaned it, saying, "The table of the Lord is defiled, both it and what comes from it; its food is contemptible."

You also say, "Look, what a lot of work!" and you blow on it, says the Lord Almighty. You bring what has been stolen, what is lame, and what is sick—you bring it, I say, to be offered to me. Shall I accept this from your hand? says the Lord.

Therefore, cursed be the deceitful man, who, having a male in his flock, and making a vow, sacrifices to the Lord what is defective; for I am a great King, says the Lord of hosts, and my Name is feared among the nations.

Now this commandment is addressed to you, priests:

If you do not listen, and do not take to heart to give glory to my Name, says the Lord of hosts, I will send the curse upon you, and I will curse your blessings; and [already] I have even cursed them, because you do not take it to heart.

Behold, I am going to severely rebuke your posterity, and I will scatter the dung [of your victims] on your faces, the dung, [I say], of your solemnities; and it will carry you away.

Then you will know that I gave you this command, that my covenant was with Levi; says the Lord of hosts.

My covenant of life and peace was with him; and I gave them to him, so that he would revere me; and he revered me, and was awestruck by the presence of my Name.

The law of truth was in his mouth, and no perversity was found in his lips; he walked with me in peace and uprightness, and he turned many from iniquity.

For the lips of the priest preserved knowledge, and people sought the law from his mouth, because he was the messenger of the Lord of hosts.

But you have turned away from that way, you have caused many to stumble in the Law, and you have corrupted the covenant of Levi, says the Lord of hosts.

That is why I have made you despised and abhorrent to all the people; for you do not keep my ways, and you show partiality in the Law.

Do we not all have the same Father? Did not one Mighty God create us? Why then does each one act treacherously against his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers?

Judah has acted treacherously, and an abomination has been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah has profaned the holiness of the Lord, who loved him, and has married the daughter of a foreign god.

The Lord will cut off from the tabernacles of Jacob anyone who does this thing, both the one who awakens and the one who answers, and the one who presents the offering to the Lord of hosts.

And here is another thing that you do: You cover the altar of the Lord with tears, with complaints, and with groaning, so that I no longer look at the offering, and I do not accept [anything] willingly from what comes from your hands.

And you say: Why? Because the Lord has stood witness between you and the wife of your youth, against whom you are acting treacherously; yet she is your companion, and the wife who was given to you.

But he made only one; and yet in him was an abundance of spirit. But why [made] only one? It was because he was seeking an offspring from God. Therefore, be careful in your spirit; and as for the wife of your youth, [take care] that no one acts treacherously [with] her.

For the Lord, the God of Israel, has said that he hates it when she is sent away. But violence is hidden under a robe, says the Lord Almighty. Therefore, be careful, and do not act treacherously.

You have grieved the Lord with your words; you have said, "How have we grieved him?" It is when you say, "The Lord is pleased with anyone who does evil, and he delights in such people." Otherwise, where is the God of justice?

Behold, I am going to send my messenger, and he will prepare the way before me, and immediately the Lord whom you seek will come to his Temple, the Angel, I say, of the covenant, whom you desire; behold, he is coming, says the Lord of hosts.

But who can endure the day of his coming? And who can stand when he appears? For he will be like the fire of a refiner, and like the soap of a fuller.

And he shall sit like one who refines and purifies silver; he shall cleanse the sons of Levi, and purify them like gold and silver; and they shall present to the Lord an offering in righteousness.

The offering of Judah and Jerusalem will be pleasing to the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in the early years.

I will come near to you to judge, and I will be a sudden witness against sorcerers, adulterers, perjurers, those who defraud the hired worker of his wages, those who oppress the widow and the orphan, and those who wrong the foreigner, and do not fear me, says the Lord of hosts.

Because I am the Lord, and have not changed, therefore you children of Jacob have not been consumed.

From the time of your fathers you have turned away from my statutes and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return to you, says the Lord of hosts. And you ask, "How shall we repent?"

Shall man plunder God, that you should plunder me? And you say, In what way have we plundered you? [You have done it] in tithes and offerings.

You are certainly cursed, because you are plundering me, [you] the whole nation.

Bring all the tithes to the places ordained to keep them, and let there be provision in my house; and test me in this now, says the Lord of hosts, if I do not open the channels of heaven for you, and pour out for you such blessing that you cannot keep enough.

And I will rebuke the devourer for your sake, and it will not destroy the fruits of your earth; and your vineyards will not fail in the field, says the Lord of hosts.

All nations will call you blessed, because you will be a desirable country, says the Lord of hosts.

Your words have become stronger against me, says the Lord; and you say, "What have we said against you?"

You have said: It is in vain that we serve God, and what have we gained by keeping what he commanded us to keep, and by walking in poverty for the love of the Lord of hosts?

And now we consider the proud blessed; and even those who do wicked things are advanced, and if they have tested God, they have been delivered.

Then those who feared the Lord spoke to one another, and the Lord listened and heard them, and a book of remembrance was written before him for those who feared the Lord and who meditated on his name.

And they shall be mine, says the Lord of hosts, when I set apart my most precious jewels, and I will forgive them, as a man forgives his son who serves him.

Repent, then, and you will see the difference between the righteous and the wicked, between one who serves God and one who has not served Him.

For behold, the day is coming; burning like an oven; all the proud, and all the wicked shall be like stubble, and that day which is coming, says the Lord of hosts, shall set them ablaze, and shall leave them not root, nor branch.

But for you who fear my Name, the Sun of righteousness will rise, and healing will be in its rays; you will go out and grow fat like calves being fattened.

And you will trample the wicked; for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet on the day I do my work, says the Lord of hosts.

Remember the Law of Moses my servant, to whom I gave at Horeb statutes and judgments for all Israel.

Behold, I am going to send you Elijah the Prophet before the coming of the great and terrible day of the Lord.

He will turn the hearts of the fathers toward the children, and the hearts of the children toward their fathers, lest I come and strike the earth like the forbidden thing.

The Book of the Genealogy of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham.

Abraham fathered Isaac; and Isaac fathered Jacob; and Jacob fathered Judah and his brothers;

And Judah fathered Perez and Zerah, of Tamar; and Perez fathered Hezron; and Hezron fathered Aram;

And Aram begat Aminadab; and Aminadab begat Naasson; and Naasson begat Salmon;

And Salmon fathered Boaz, by Rahab; and Boaz fathered Obed, by Ruth; and Obed fathered Jesse;

And Jesse fathered King David; and King David fathered Solomon, by the woman [who had been the wife] of Uriah;

And Solomon fathered Rehoboam; and Rehoboam fathered Abijah; and Abijah fathered Asa;

And Asa begat Jehoshaphat; and Jehoshaphat begat Jehoram; and Jehoram begat Hoziah;

And Hoziah begat Joatham; and Joatham begat Ahaz; and Ahaz begat Hezekiah;

And Hezekiah begat Manasseh; and Manasseh begat Amon; and Amon begat Josiah;

And Josiah fathered Jakim; and Jakim fathered Jeconiah, and his brothers, around the time they were deported to Babylon.

And after they had been transported to Babylon, Jeconiah fathered Shelathiel; and Shelathiel fathered Zerubbabel;

And Zerubbabel fathered Abiud; and Abiud fathered Eliakim; and Eliakim fathered Azor;

And Azor begat Zadok; and Zadok begat Achim; and Achim begat Eliud;

And Eliud fathered Eleazar; and Eleazar fathered Matthan; and Matthan fathered Jacob;

And Jacob fathered Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

Thus all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the time they were deported to Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the time they were deported to Babylon until Christ, fourteen generations.

Now the birth of Jesus Christ came about in this way. When Mary his mother was betrothed to Joseph, before they came together, she was found to be pregnant through the Holy Spirit.

And Joseph her husband, because he was righteous and did not want to slander her, wanted to dismiss her secretly.

But as he was thinking about these things, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, and said to him, Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to receive Mary as your wife, for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Spirit.

And she will give birth to a son, and you shall call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins.

All this has happened so that what the Lord had spoken of through the Prophet might be fulfilled, saying:

Behold, the Virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which means, God with us.

Joseph, having awakened from his sleep, did as the Angel of the Lord had commanded him, and received his wife.

But he did not know her until she had given birth to her firstborn son; and he called his name Jesus.

Now Jesus was born in Bethlehem, [a city] of Judah, in the days of King Herod, and behold, wise men from the East came to Jerusalem.

Saying: Where is the King of the Jews who has been born? For we saw his star in the East, and have come to worship him.

When King Herod heard this, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

And having assembled all the chief priests and the scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Christ was to be born.

And they said to him, "In Bethlehem, [a city] in Judea; for it is written thus by a Prophet:

And you, Bethlehem, land of Judah, are by no means the least among the rulers of Judah, for from you will come the leader who will shepherd my people Israel.

Then Herod, having secretly summoned the Wise Men, inquired carefully of them about the time when the star had appeared to them.

And sending them to Bethlehem, he said to them, "Go and search carefully for the child; and when you have found him, bring me word, so that I too may go and worship him."

So when they had heard the King, they went away, and behold, the star which they had seen in the East went before them, until it came and stood over the place where the little child was.

And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with a very great joy.

And entering the house, they found the child with Mary his mother, whom they worshiped, prostrating themselves on the ground; and when they had displayed their treasures, they offered him gifts, namely, gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

Then, being divinely warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they withdrew to their own country by another way.

Now after they had departed, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph, and said to him, "Arise, and take the child, and his mother, and flee to Egypt, and stay there, until I tell you; for Herod is going to search for the child to kill him."

Joseph, therefore, when he awoke, took the child and his mother during the night and departed for Egypt.

And he remained there until the death of Herod; so that what the Lord had spoken through a Prophet might be fulfilled, saying, "Out of Egypt I called my Son."

Then Herod, seeing that the Wise Men had mocked him, was very angry, and he sent and killed all the boys who were in Bethlehem and in all its territory, from the age of two years and under, according to the time which he had accurately inquired of the Wise Men.

Then was fulfilled what Jeremiah the Prophet had spoken of, saying:

A cry was heard in Ramah, a lamentation, mourning, and a great wailing: Rachel weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted that they were no more.

But after Herod died, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt,
And [he] said: Get up, and take the little child, and his mother, and go to the land of Israel; for those who sought to take the life of the little child are dead.
So Joseph woke up, took the child and his mother, and went to the land of Israel.
But when he learned that Archelaus reigned in Judea, in place of Herod his father, he was afraid to go there; and being divinely warned in a dream, he withdrew to Galilee.

And having arrived there, he settled in the town called Nazareth; so that what had been spoken through the Prophets might be fulfilled: he shall be called a Nazarene.
Now in those days John the Baptist came, preaching in the wilderness of Judea;
And saying, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."
For this is he of whom Isaiah the Prophet spoke, saying: the voice of one crying in the wilderness [is]: prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
Now John had a camel-hair garment and a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey.
Then the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of all Judea, and of all the country around the Jordan, came to him.
And they were baptized by him in the Jordan, confessing their sins.
But seeing many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said to them, "Brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come?"
Therefore, produce fruits suitable for repentance.
And do not presume to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our father,' for I tell you that God is able to raise up children for Abraham from these very stones.
But the axe is already laid to the root of the trees; therefore every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.
For me, I baptize you with water for repentance; but after me comes one who is more powerful than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry; he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.
His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will thoroughly clear his threshing floor, and he will gather his wheat into the barn; but he will burn up the chaff with an unquenchable fire.
Then Jesus came from Galilee to the Jordan to John to be baptized by him.
But John strongly discouraged him, saying, "I need to be baptized by you, and do you come to me?"
And Jesus answered him, "Let [me] do it for now, for it is fitting for us to fulfill all righteousness." And then he let him do it.
And when Jesus was baptized, he immediately went up out of the water, and behold, the heavens were opened to him, and [John] saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and coming upon him.
And a voice came from heaven, saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."
Then Jesus was led by the Spirit into the desert, to be tempted by the devil.
And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, finally he was hungry.
And the Tempter came to him and said, "If you are the Son of God, tell these stones to become loaves of bread."
But [Jesus] answered, and said, It is written: Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.
Then the devil took him to the holy city and placed him on the battlements of the Temple;
And he said to him, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down; for it is written: 'He will command his angels, and they will lift you up in their hands, so that you will not strike your foot against a stone.'" Jesus said to him, "It is also written: 'You shall not put the Lord your God to the test.'"

The devil again took him to a very high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory;

And he said to him, "I will give you all these things, if you will bow down on the ground and worship me."

But Jesus said to him, "Go away, Satan! For it is written: 'You shall worship the Lord your God, and him only shall you serve.'"

Then the devil left him, and behold, the angels came and served him.

Now when Jesus heard that John had been put in prison, he withdrew to Galilee.

And having left Nazareth, he went to live in Capernaum, a seaside town, on the borders of Zebulun and Naphtali.

So that what was spoken of by Isaiah the Prophet might be fulfilled, saying:

The land of Zebulun, and the land of Naphtali, towards the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan, the Galilee of the Gentiles;

This people, who sat in darkness, have seen a great light; and to those who sat in the region and in the shadow of death, a light has dawned.

From that time on Jesus began to preach, saying, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

And as Jesus walked along the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon, who was called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting their nets into the sea, for they were fishermen.

And he said to them, "Come after me, and I will make you fishers of men."

And having immediately left their nets, they followed him.

And going on from there, he saw two other brothers, James, son of Zebedee, and John, his brother, in a boat, with Zebedee their father, mending their nets, and he called them.

And having immediately left their gondola, and their father, they followed him.

And Jesus went throughout Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every kind of disease and affliction among the people.

And his fame spread throughout all Syria; and they brought to him all who were sick, tormented by various diseases, the demon-possessed, the lunatics, the paralyzed; and he healed them.

And large troops [of people] followed him from Galilee, and from the Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond the Jordan.

When [Jesus] saw all these people, he went up on a mountain; then he sat down, and his disciples came to him;

And having begun to speak, he taught them in this way;

Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.

Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.

Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled.

Blessed are the merciful, for they will be shown mercy.

Blessed are those who are pure in heart, for they will see God.

Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called children of God.

Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

You will be blessed when people insult you and persecute you, and falsely say all kinds of evil against you because of me.

Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven, for in the same way they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

You are the salt of the earth; but if the salt loses its saltiness, how can it be made salty again? It is no longer good for anything except to be thrown out and trampled underfoot.

You are the light of the world; a city built on a mountain cannot be hidden.

And a lamp is not lit and put under a bushel, but on a lampstand, and it gives light to all who are in the house.

Therefore, let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven.

Do not think that I have come to abolish the Law or the Prophets; I have not come to abolish them but to fulfill them.

For I tell you truly, until heaven and earth have passed away, not one jota, not one stroke of a pen, will pass away until all things are accomplished.

Therefore, whoever breaks one of these little commandments and teaches others accordingly will be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever does and teaches these commands will be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

For I tell you that unless your righteousness surpasses that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will certainly not enter the kingdom of heaven.

You have heard that it was said to the people long ago, "You shall not murder; and whoever murders will be subject to judgment."

But I tell you that anyone who is angry with his brother without cause will be subject to judgment; and anyone who says to his brother, 'Raha,' will be subject to the council; and anyone who says, 'You fool,' will be subject to the fire of hell. If, therefore, you bring your offering at the altar, and there it remembers that your brother has something against you;

Leave your offering before the altar, and go first to be reconciled to your brother, and then come and offer your offering.

Settle matters quickly with your opponent while you are on the way with them; lest your opponent hand you over to the judge, and the judge hand you over to the sergeant, and you be put in prison.

Truly I tell you, you will not get out of there until you have paid the last penny. You have heard that it was said to the people long ago, "You shall not commit adultery."

But I tell you that anyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart.

If your right eye causes you to stumble, gouge it out and throw it away; for it is better that one of your members should perish than that your whole body should be thrown into hell.

And if your right hand causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it away; for it is better that one of your members should perish than that your whole body should be thrown into hell.

It has also been said: if anyone divorces his wife, let him give her the Certificate of Divorce.

But I tell you that anyone who divorces his wife, except for adultery, makes her the victim of adultery, and anyone who marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

You have also heard that it was said to the people long ago, 'You shall not break your oath, but you shall render to the Lord what you have sworn to do.'

But I tell you, do not swear at all: either by heaven, for it is God's throne; Not by the earth, for it is the footstool of his feet; nor by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the great King.

You shall not swear by your head; for you cannot make a hair white or black.

But let your word be: yes, yes; no, no; for anything beyond this is evil.

You have heard that it was said: an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.

But I tell you, do not resist evil; but if someone strikes you on your right cheek, turn to him the other also.

And if someone wants to sue you and take your robe, let him have your cloak as well.

And if someone wants to force you to go with him one league, go two.

Give to the one who asks you, and do not turn away from the one who wants to borrow from you.

You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.'

But I tell you, love your enemies and bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who persecute you.

So that you may be children of your Father in heaven; for he makes his sun rise on the wicked and on the good, and sends rain on the righteous and on the unrighteous. For if you love only those who love you, what reward will you have? Do not even the tax collectors do the same?

And if you welcome only your brothers, what are you doing more [than others]? Do not even the tax collectors do the same?

Therefore you must be perfect, as your Father in heaven is perfect.

Be careful not to give your alms in front of men to be seen by them; otherwise you will not receive your reward from your Father who is in heaven.

So when you give to the needy, do not announce it with a trumpet, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and on the streets, to be honored by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward in full.

But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing.

So that your alms may be in secret, and your Father, who sees [what is done] in secret, will reward you publicly.

And when you pray, do not be like the hypocrites, for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the street corners to be seen by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward in full.

But when you pray, go into your room, close the door and pray to your Father, who sees what is done in secret. Then your Father, who sees what is done in secret, will reward you publicly.

But when you pray, do not keep on babbling like pagans, for they think they will be heard because of their many words.

Therefore do not be like them, for your Father knows what you need before you ask him.

Therefore, pray like this: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.

Your Kingdom come. Your will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

Give us this day our daily bread.

And we leave our debts, just as we leave [debts] to our debtors.

And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever. Amen.

For if you forgive others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you [yours].

But if you do not forgive others their trespasses, your Father will not forgive you your trespasses.

And when you fast, do not look somber as the hypocrites do, for they disfigure their faces so that it may appear to others that they are fasting; truly I tell you, they have received their reward in full.

But you, when you fast, anoint your head and wash your face; so that it will not be apparent to men that you are fasting, but your Father who is present in [your] secret place; and your Father who sees you in [your] secret place, will reward you publicly.

Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, which moths and rust consume, and which thieves break into and steal.

But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust destroys, and where thieves do not break in or steal.

For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

The eye is the light of the body; therefore, if your eye is clear, your whole body will be illuminated.

But if your eye is evil, your whole body will be full of darkness; if then the light that is in you is darkness, how great is that darkness?

No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other; you cannot serve God and Mammon.

Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or drink; or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothes?

Consider the birds of the air; for they do not sow or reap or store away in barns, yet your heavenly Father feeds them; are you not much better than they?

And which of you, through your concern, can add an cubit to your height?

And why are you concerned about clothing? Learn how the lilies of the field grow; they neither labor nor spin;

However, I tell you that even Solomon in all his glory was not dressed like one of them.

If then God clothes the grass of the field, which is here today and tomorrow is thrown into the fire, will he not much more clothe you, you of little faith?

Therefore do not worry, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?'

Since the Gentiles are searching for all these things; for your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things.

But seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well.

Therefore do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about itself. Each day has enough trouble of its own.

Do not judge, so that you may not be judged.

For with the judgment you pronounce, you will be judged; and with the measure you use, it will be measured to you.

And why do you look at the speck of sawdust that is in your brother's eye, and do not pay attention to the plank in your own eye?

Or how can you say to your brother, 'Let me take this splinter out of your eye,' and behold, you have a beam in your own eye.

Hypocrite, first take the plank out of your own eye, and after that you will see clearly to remove the speck from your brother's eye.

Do not give what is holy to dogs, and do not cast your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn and tear you to pieces.

Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you.

For everyone who asks receives; and everyone who seeks finds; and the door will be opened to him who knocks.

And which of you will give his son a stone if he asks him for bread?

And if he asks him for a fish, will he give him a snake?

If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give good things to those who ask him?

Therefore, in all things, do to others what you would have them do to you, for this sums up the Law and the Prophets.

Enter through the narrow gate; for it is the wide gate and the broad road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it.

For the gate is narrow, and the way is narrow that leads to life, and there are few who find it.

But beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly are ravenous wolves.

You will know them by their fruits. Do you pick grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles?

So every good tree bears good fruit; but a bad tree bears bad fruit.

A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit.

Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.

You will therefore know them by their fruits.

Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only the one who does the will of my Father who is in heaven.

Many will say to me on that day, "Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?"

But then I will tell them plainly: I never recognized you; depart from me, you who practice iniquity.

Therefore, whoever hears these words of mine and puts them into practice, I will compare him to the wise man who built his house on the rock;

And when the rain fell, and the torrents came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, it did not fall, because it was founded on the rock.

But whoever hears these words of mine and does not put them into practice is like the foolish man who built his house on sand;

And when the rain fell, and the torrents came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, it fell, and its ruin was great.

Now it came to pass that when Jesus had finished this discourse, the troops were astonished at his teaching;

For he taught them as having authority, and not as the scribes.

And when he came down from the mountain, large troops followed him.

And behold, a leper came and knelt before him, saying to him, Lord, if you will, you can make me clean.

And Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I am willing; be clean!" And immediately his leprosy was healed.

Then Jesus said to him, "See that you tell no one; but go, and show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them."

And when Jesus had entered Capernaum, a centurion came to him, begging him,

And saying, "Lord, my servant is paralyzed in my house, and is suffering greatly." Jesus said to him, "I will go and heal him."

But the centurion answered him, "Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant shall be healed."

For I myself, being a man [constituted] under [another's] power, have men of war under me, and I say to one: go, and he goes; and to another: come, and he comes; and to my servant: do this, and he does it.

When Jesus heard this, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, "Truly I tell you, I have not found anyone in Israel with such great faith."

But I tell you that many will come from the East and the West, and will sit down at the table in the Kingdom of Heaven with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

And the children of the Kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Then Jesus said to the centurion, "Go, and let it be done to you as you have believed." And at that very moment his servant was healed.

Then Jesus came to Peter's house and saw Peter's mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever.

And having touched his hand, the fever left her; then she got up and served them.

And when evening came, many demon-possessed were brought to him, and he drove out the [evil] spirits with his word, and healed all who were ill.

So that what was spoken of by Isaiah the Prophet might be fulfilled, saying: He took our infirmities and bore our diseases.

When Jesus saw large troops around him, he commanded them to cross to the other side.

And a scribe approached him and said: Master, I will follow you wherever you go.

And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have dens and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has no place to lay his head."

Then another of his disciples said to him, "Lord, allow me to go first and bury my father."

And Jesus said to him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead."
And when he had entered the gondola, his disciples followed him.
And behold, there arose such a great storm upon the sea that the boat was covered with waves; and Jesus was asleep.
And his disciples came and woke him, saying, "Lord, save us, we are perishing!"
And he said to them, "Why are you afraid, you of little faith?" Then he got up and spoke earnestly to the winds and the sea, and there was a great calm.
And the people [who were there] were astonished, and said: Who is this that even the winds and the sea obey him?
And when he had crossed over to the other side, into the land of the Gergesenes, two demon-possessed men came out of the tombs to meet him, and [they were] so dangerous that no one could pass by that way.
And behold, they cried out, saying: What have you to do with us, Jesus, Son of God? Have you come here to torment us before the time?
Now there was a large herd of pigs grazing a little way off from them.
And the demons begged him, saying, "If you cast us out, let us go into that herd of pigs."
And he said to them, "Go." And they went out and went into the herd of pigs; and behold, the whole herd of pigs rushed into the sea and died in the waters.
And those who guarded them fled; and when they came into the city, they told all these things, and what had happened to the demon-possessed.
And so, the whole city went out to meet Jesus, and when they saw him, they begged him to leave their country.
So, having entered the boat, he crossed [the sea] again, and came to his city.
And behold, they brought to him a paralytic lying on a bed. And Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, "Take heart, my son; your sins are forgiven."
And behold, some of the Scribes were saying to themselves: this one blasphemeth. But Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said to them, "Why do you think evil in your hearts?"
For which is easier, to say, "Your sins are forgiven," or to say, "Get up and walk"?

But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins, he said to the paralytic, "Get up, load your mat and go home."
And he got up and went home.
When the troops saw this, they were amazed, and they glorified God that he had given such power to men.
Then Jesus, going on from there, saw a man named Matthew sitting at the tax collector's place, and he said to him, "Follow me"; and he got up and followed him.
And as Jesus was having dinner in [Matthew's] house, many tax collectors and sinners came and sat down at dinner with Jesus and his disciples.
When the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, "Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?"
But when Jesus heard this, he said to them, "Those who are healthy do not need a doctor, but those who are sick."
But go and learn what these words mean: I desire mercy, not sacrifice; for I have not come to call the righteous to repentance, but sinners.
Then John's disciples came to him and said, "Why do we and the Pharisees fast often, but your disciples do not fast?"
And Jesus answered them, "Can the guests of the bridegroom's room mourn while the bridegroom is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast."
Therefore, no one puts a piece of new cloth on an old garment; for what is put on to fill it takes away from the garment, and the tear is made bigger.
New wine should not be put into old vessels; otherwise the vessels will burst, the wine will spill out, and the vessels will be ruined. But new wine should be put into new vessels, and both will be preserved.

As he was saying these things to them, a Lord came and knelt before him, saying, "My daughter is already dead, but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live."

And Jesus got up and followed him with his disciples.

And behold, a woman who had been suffering from a flow of blood for twelve years came up behind him and touched the edge of his garment.

For she said to herself, "If I only touch his garment, I shall be healed."

And Jesus turned around and looked at her and said, "Take heart, daughter! Your faith has healed you." And at that moment the woman was healed.

Now when Jesus arrived at the house of this Lord, and saw the musicians and a crowd of people making a great noise,

He told them: Go away, for the girl is not dead, but asleep; and they mocked him.

After they had all the troops left, he came in, took the girl's hand, and she stood up.

And the news spread throughout that whole country.

And as Jesus went on past, two blind men followed him, crying out and saying, "Son of David, have mercy on us."

And when he arrived at the house, these blind men came to him, and he said to them, "Do you believe that I can do [what you ask of me]?" They answered him, "Yes, indeed, Lord."

Then he touched their eyes, saying, "According to your faith let it be done to you."

And their eyes were opened; and Jesus warned them with threats, saying, "Take care that no one knows about this."

But when they left, they spread his fame throughout that country.

And as they were leaving, behold, a mute and demonic man was brought before him.

And when the demon had been driven out, the mute man spoke; and the troops were astonished, saying: nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel.

But the Pharisees said, "He casts out demons by the prince of demons."

Now Jesus went into all the cities and towns, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every kind of disease and every kind of infirmity among the people.

And seeing the troops, he was moved with compassion, because they were scattered and wandering like sheep without a shepherd.

And he said to his disciples: indeed the harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few.

Therefore pray to the Lord of the harvest, that he may send laborers into his harvest.

Then [Jesus] called his twelve disciples, and gave them power over unclean spirits to drive them out [of the possessed], and to heal every kind of disease and every kind of infirmity.

And these are the names of the twelve Apostles: the first is Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James, son of Zebedee, and John, his brother; Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the tax collector; James, son of Alphaeus, and Lebbeus, surnamed Thaddeus.

Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who even betrayed him.

Jesus sent these twelve, and commanded them, saying, "Do not go among the Gentiles, and do not enter any town of the Samaritans;

But rather go to the lost sheep of the House of Israel.

And when you have gone, preach, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, drive out demons [from the possessed]; you received it freely, give it freely.

Do not store any gold, silver, or coins in your belts;

Not a bag for the journey, nor two robes, nor sandals, nor a staff; for the worker is worthy of his food.

And in whatever city or town you enter, inquire who is worthy [of lodging] there; and stay with him until you leave there.

And when you enter any house, greet it.

And if this house is worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it is not worthy, let your peace return to you.

But when anyone will not receive you or listen to your words, shake the dust off your feet as you leave that house or town.

Truly I tell you, it will be more bearable for those in the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that city.

Behold, I am sending you out as sheep in the midst of wolves; therefore be shrewd as serpents and innocent as doves.

And beware of men; for they will hand you over to the Consistories, and will flog you in their Synagogues.

And you will be brought before the Governors, and even before the Kings, on account of me, to bear witness about me to them as well as to the nations.

But when they hand you over, do not worry about what [you will have to say], nor how you will speak, because at that time you will be given what you are to say.

For it is not you who are speaking, but the Spirit of your Father speaking through you.

Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child; and children will rise against their fathers and mothers and have them put to death.

And you will be hated by everyone because of my name; but whoever perseveres to the end will be saved.

But when they persecute you in one town, flee to another; for truly I tell you, you will not finish going through all the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

The disciple is not above the master, nor the servant above his lord.

It is enough for the disciple to be like his teacher, and the servant like his master. If they have called the head of the household Beelzebul, how much more will they call his servants?

Do not be afraid of them. For there is nothing hidden that will not be disclosed, nor anything secret that will not come to be known.

What I tell you in the dark, speak in the light; and what I whisper in your ear, proclaim from the houses.

And do not fear those who kill the body, but cannot kill the soul; but rather fear him who can destroy both soul and body [by throwing them] into hell.

Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from your Father's will.

And even the hairs on your head are all numbered.

So do not be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows.

Therefore, whoever confesses me before men, I will also confess him before my Father who is in heaven.

But whoever denies me before men, I will also deny him before my Father who is in heaven.

Do not think that I have come to bring peace to the earth; I have not come to bring peace, but a sword.

For I have come to set a son against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.

And a man's own servants will be his enemies.

Anyone who loves their father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and anyone who loves their son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me.

And whoever does not take up his cross and come after me is not worthy of me.

Whoever finds their life will lose it, but whoever loses their life for my sake will find it.

Whoever receives you receives me; and whoever receives me receives the one who sent me.

He who receives a Prophet as a Prophet will receive the reward of a Prophet; and he who receives a righteous person as a righteous person will receive the reward of a righteous person.

And whoever gives even a cup of cold water to one of these little ones as a disciple, I tell you truly, he will by no means lose his reward.

And it came to pass that when Jesus had finished giving his instructions to his twelve disciples, he departed from there to go and teach and preach in their towns.

Now John, having heard in prison about the deeds of Christ, sent two of his disciples to tell him:

Are you the one who was supposed to come, or should we wait for someone else?

And Jesus answered them, saying, "Go and report to John the things that you hear and see."

The blind receive their sight, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the Gospel is proclaimed to the poor.

But blessed is he who has not been offended by me.

And as they were leaving, Jesus began to say to the troops about John: What did you go out into the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind?

But what did you go out to see? A man dressed in fine clothes? Look, those who wear fine clothes are in the houses of kings.

But what did you go to see? A Prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a Prophet.

For he is the one of whom it was written: "Behold, I send my messenger before your face, who will prepare your way before you."

Truly I tell you, among those born of women there has not risen anyone greater than John the Baptist; yet he who is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he.

But from the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven has been subjected to violence, and the violent have been seizing it.

For all the Prophets and the Law until John prophesied.

And if you want to receive [my words], it is Elijah who was to come.

Let those who have ears to hear, hear.

But to whom shall I compare this generation? It is like little children sitting in the marketplaces, shouting to one another,

And they said to them: we played the flute, and you did not dance; we sang mournful songs to you, and you did not mourn.

For John came neither eating nor drinking; and they say, he has a demon.

The Son of Man came eating and drinking; and they say, 'Look at him, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' But wisdom is vindicated by her offspring.

Then he began to reproach the cities where he had performed many miracles, for they had not repented, [saying to them]:

Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.

That is why I tell you that Tyre and Sidon will be treated less severely than you on the day of judgment.

And you, Capernaum, who have been lifted up to heaven, you shall be brought down to hell; for if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Sodom, it would still be standing.

That is why I tell you, it will be more tolerable for those in Sodom on the day of judgment than for you.

At that time Jesus spoke, saying: I praise you, O my Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and learned, and revealed them to little children.

It is so, O my Father! because such was your good will.

All things have been granted to me by my Father! But no one knows the Son except the Father; and no one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.

Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest.

Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart; and you will find rest for your souls.

For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

At that time Jesus was walking through the grain fields on the Sabbath, and his disciples were hungry and began to pick heads of grain and eat them.

And the Pharisees, seeing this, said to him, "Look, your disciples are doing something that is not lawful to do on the Sabbath day."

But he said to them, "Have you not read what David did when he and those with him were hungry?"

How he entered the house of God and ate the consecrated bread, which was not permitted to him or those with him to eat, but only to the priests?

Or have you not read in the Law that on the Sabbath the priests in the temple violate the Sabbath, and they are not guilty?

But I tell you, there is here [someone who is] greater than the Temple.

But if you knew what these words mean: I desire mercy, not sacrifice, you would not have condemned those who are not guilty.

For the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath.

Then, having left there, he came to their Synagogue.

And behold, there was a man there who had a withered hand, and to accuse him they questioned him, saying: Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath?

And he said to them, "If any of you has a sheep, and it falls into a pit on the Sabbath day, will you not take it up and raise it up?"

But how much better is a man than a sheep? Therefore, it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath.

Then he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and it was made as sound as the other.

Now the Pharisees went out and plotted against him how they might destroy him.

But Jesus, knowing this, left that place, and large crowds followed him, and he healed them all.

And he forbade them, with threats, to make it known;

So that what was spoken of by Isaiah the Prophet might be fulfilled, saying:

Here is my servant whom I have chosen, my beloved, in whom I love; I will put my Spirit in him, and he will proclaim judgment to the nations.

He will not argue, he will not shout, and no one will hear his voice in the streets.

He will not break the bruised reed, nor quench the smoking wick, until he brings justice to victory.

And the nations will hope in his name.

Then a man tormented by a demon, blind and mute, was brought to him, and he healed him; so that the one who had been blind and mute spoke and saw.

And all the troops were astonished, and they said, "Is this not the Son of David?"

But when the Pharisees heard this, they said, "This man casts out demons only by Beelzebul, the prince of demons."

But Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said to them: Every kingdom divided against itself will be made a desert, and every city or household divided against itself will not stand.

But if Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then will his kingdom stand?

And if I cast out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your sons cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges.

But if I drive out demons by the Spirit of God, then the Kingdom of God has come upon you.

Or, how can someone enter a strong man's house and plunder his possessions unless he first ties up the strong man? And then he will plunder his house.

He who is not with me is against me; and he who does not gather with me scatters.
Therefore I tell you, every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven men; but the blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven them.
And if anyone has spoken against the Son of Man, he will be forgiven; but if anyone has spoken against the Holy Spirit, he will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come.
Either make the tree good, and its fruit will be good; or make the tree bad, and its fruit will be bad: for a tree is known by its fruit.
Brood of vipers, how can you speak well, being wicked? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks.
A good man brings good things out of the good treasure of his heart; and an evil man brings evil things out of the evil treasure [of his heart].
But I tell you, on the day of judgment people will give account for every careless word they have spoken.
For you will be justified by your words, and you will be condemned by your words.
Then some of the Scribes and Pharisees said to him, "Teacher, we would like to see some miracle from you."
But he answered them, and said: the wicked and adulterous nation seeks a sign, but no sign will be given to it except that of Jonah the Prophet.
For as Jonah was in the belly of the whale three days and three nights, so the Son of Man will be in the heart of the earth three days and three nights.
The Ninevites will rise up at the judgment against this nation and condemn it, because they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and behold, something greater than Jonah is here.
The Queen of the South will rise up at the judgment against this nation and condemn it, because it came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and behold, something greater than Solomon is here.
But when an unclean spirit comes out of a man, it goes through dry places, seeking rest, but finds none.
And then he said: I will return to my house, from which I came; and when he came there, he found it empty, swept and decorated.
Then he goes away, and takes with him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, who enter and dwell there; and so the end of that man is worse than the beginning; it will be the same with that perverse nation.
And while he was still speaking to the troops, behold, his mother and brothers were outside seeking to speak to him.
And someone told him: look, your mother and brothers are outside, wanting to talk to you.
But he answered the one who had told him this: Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?
And extending his hand over his disciples, he said: here are my mother and my brothers.
For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother.

That same day Jesus went out of the house and sat down by the sea.
And large troops gathered around him, so he got into a boat and sat down, and the whole multitude stood on the shore.
And he spoke to them of many things by analogies, saying: Behold, a sower went out to sow.
And as he sowed, some of the seed fell along the path, and the birds came and ate it all up.
And another part fell in stony places, where it had little soil, and immediately it rose up, because it did not go deep into the earth.
And when the sun rose, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away.

And another part fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up and choked it.
And another part fell on good soil, and produced fruit, one grain yielding a hundred, another sixty, and another thirty.
Let those who have ears to hear, hear.
Then the Disciples approached him and said: why do you speak to them using analogies?

He answered, and said to them: it is because it has been given to you to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven, but it has not been given to them [to know them].

For to him who has, more will be given, and he will have even more; but from him who does not have, even what he has will be taken away.
That is why I speak to them in parables, because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear, nor do they understand.
And [thus] was fulfilled in them the prophecy of Isaiah, which said: "Being ever hearing, you will never understand; seeing ever seeing, you will never perceive."
For the heart of this people is fattened, and they have heard hard with their ears, and blinked with their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and turn, and I heal them.
But your eyes are blessed, for they see; and your ears are blessed, for they hear.
For truly I tell you, many prophets and many righteous people longed to see the things you see, but they did not see them; and to hear the things you hear, but they did not hear them.

Therefore, you should listen to the sowing parable.

When a man hears the word of the Kingdom, and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what was sown in his heart; and this is the one who received the seed along the path.

And the one who received the seed on rocky ground is the one who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy;

But it has no root in itself, therefore it is only for a time; so that as soon as affliction or persecution arises because of the word, it is immediately scandalized.

And the one who received the seed among the thorns is the one who hears the word of God, but the worry about the things of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful.

But the one who received the seed on good soil is the one who hears the word and understands it; and bears fruit and produces, some a hundred, some sixty, some thirty.

He offered them another analogy, saying: the Kingdom of Heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field.

But while the men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and then went away.

And after the seed had grown into a plant and borne fruit, then the weeds also appeared.

And the servants of the family owner came to him and said, "Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? Where then did the weeds come from?"

But he told them, "The enemy did this." And the servants said to him, "Do you want us to go and gather the weeds?"

And he said to them, "No; lest it should happen that while you are picking the weeds, you might uproot the wheat with them."

Let them both grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will tell the reapers: First gather the weeds and tie them in bundles to be burned; but gather the wheat into my barn.

He offered them another analogy, saying: the Kingdom of Heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in his field.

Which is indeed the smallest of all seeds; but when it grows, it is larger than other plants, and becomes a tree; so much so that the birds of the air come to it, and make their nests in its branches.

He told them another parable: the kingdom of heaven is like yeast which a woman took and mixed with three measures of flour until it was fully leavened.

Jesus said all these things to the troops in analogies, and he did not speak to them without analogies;

So that what was spoken of by the Prophet might be fulfilled, saying: I will open my mouth in likenesses; I will declare the things which have been hidden since the foundation of the world.

Then Jesus left the troops and went home, and his disciples came to him and said, "Explain to us the similarity of the weeds in the field."

And he answered them and said: The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man; And the field is the world; the good seed are the children of the Kingdom, and the tares are the children of the evil one;

And the enemy who sowed it is the devil; the harvest is the end of the age, and the harvesters are angels.

Just as the weeds are gathered and burned in the fire, so it will be at the end of the age.

The Son of Man will send his angels, who will gather out of his kingdom all causes of sin and those who do wrong;

And they will throw them into the fiery furnace; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Then the righteous will shine like the sun in the Kingdom of their Father. Whoever has ears to hear, let them hear.

The kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which a man found and hid again; then in his joy he went away and sold all he had and bought that field.

The Kingdom of Heaven is like a merchant looking for good pearls;

And he who found a pearl of great price, went away, and sold all that he had, and bought it.

The kingdom of heaven is like a net thrown into the sea, gathering all kinds of things;

When the boat is full, the fishermen pull it up onto the shore, then, sitting down, they put what is good aside in their vessels, and throw out what is worthless.

The same will happen at the end of the world; the Angels will come and separate the wicked from the righteous;

And they will throw them into the fiery furnace; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Jesus said to them, "Have you understood all these things?" They answered him, "Yes, Lord."

And he said to them: Therefore every scribe who is well instructed for the kingdom of heaven is like a father of a household who brings out of his treasure new things and old things.

And when Jesus had finished these analogies, he left from there.

And when he came to his country, he taught them in their Synagogue, so that they were astonished, and said: where did this man get this knowledge and these virtues?

Isn't this the carpenter's son? Isn't his mother's name Mary? And aren't his brothers named James, Joseph, Simon, and Judah?

And are not all his sisters among us? Where then did all these things come from to this man?

They were so scandalized by him. But Jesus said to them: A prophet is not without honor except in his own town and in his own house.

And he performed few miracles there, because of their unbelief.

At that time Herod the Tetrarch heard the fame of Jesus;

And he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist; he has risen from the dead, therefore the power to perform miracles is at work powerfully in him.”

For Herod had taken John, and had him bound and put in prison, because of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip.

Because John told him: it is not permitted for you to have her as a wife.

And he would have liked to have him killed, but he feared the people, because they considered John to be a Prophet.

Now on the day of Herod's birthday feast, Herodias's daughter danced in the hall and pleased Herod.

That is why he swore an oath to give her anything she asked for.

She, having been urged on previously by her mother, said to him: give me here on a platter the head of John the Baptist.

And the king was distressed by it; but because of the oaths, and of those who were at table with him, he commanded that it be given to him.

And he sent and beheaded John in the prison.

And his head was brought in a dish, and given to the girl, who presented it to her mother.

Then his disciples came, and took away his body, and buried it; and they came and told Jesus.

And when Jesus heard it, he withdrew from there in a boat to a deserted place to be alone; and when the troops heard of it, they came out of the [nearby] towns and followed him on foot.

And Jesus went out and saw a great multitude, and he was moved with compassion, and healed their sick.

And as it was getting late, his disciples came to him and said, “This place is deserted, and the hour is already past; dismiss these troops so that they may go to the villages and buy provisions.”

But Jesus said to them, “They do not need to go away; you yourselves give them something to eat.”

And they said to him, “We have here only five loaves of bread and two fish.”

And he said to them, “Bring them here to me.”

And after ordering the troops to sit down on the grass, he took the five loaves and the two fish, and raising his eyes to heaven, he blessed [God]; then having broken the loaves, he gave them to the Disciples, and the Disciples to the troops.

And they all ate and were satisfied, and they took twelve baskets full of leftover pieces of bread.

Now those who had eaten were about five thousand men, not counting women and small children.

Immediately afterwards Jesus made his disciples get into the boat and go ahead of him to the other side, while he dismissed the troops.

And when he had given them leave, he went up on a mountain to be alone and to pray; and when evening came, he was there alone.

But the boat was already in the middle of the sea, being battered by the waves; for the wind was contrary.

And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus came to them, walking on the sea.

And his disciples, seeing him walking on the sea, were troubled, and they said: it is a ghost; and from their fear they cried out.

But immediately Jesus spoke to them, and said to them: Take courage; it is I; do not be afraid.

And Peter answered him, saying, “Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water.”

And he said to him, “Come.” And Peter got out of the boat and walked on the water to go to Jesus.

But seeing that the wind was strong, he was afraid; and as he began to sink, he cried out, saying: Lord! save me.

And immediately Jesus stretched out his hand and took him, saying to him, “You of little faith, why did you doubt?"

And when they had climbed into the gondola, the wind calmed down.

Then those who were in the boat came and worshiped him, saying: "Surely you are the Son of God."

Then, having crossed over [the sea], they came to the land of Gennesaret.

And when the people of that place recognized him, they sent word throughout the surrounding countryside; and they brought to him all those who were ill.

And they begged him [to allow] them to touch only the edge of his robe; and all who touched it were healed.

Then some scribes and Pharisees came to Jesus from Jerusalem and said:

Why do your disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? For they do not wash their hands when they eat.

But he answered them, and said, "And why do you transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?"

For God has commanded, saying: Honor your father and your mother. And [he also said]: Whoever curses his father or his mother shall die.

But you say: whoever says to his father or his mother, [Any] gift that [will be offered] from me, shall be for your benefit;

Although he does not honor his father or his mother, [he will not be guilty]; and thus you have nullified the commandment of God by your tradition.

Hypocrites, Isaiah was right when he prophesied about you, saying:

This people draws near to me with their mouth, and honors me with their lips; but their heart is far from me.

But they honor me in vain, teaching doctrines [which are only] the commandments of men.

Then, having called the troops together, he said to them: Listen, and understand [this].

It is not what goes into the mouth that defiles a person, but what comes out of the mouth; this is what defiles a person.

At this the disciples came to him and said, "Did you not know that the Pharisees were offended when they heard this talk?"

And he answered, and said: Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be pulled up by the roots.

Leave them, they are blind, guides of the blind; if a blind man leads another blind man, both will fall into the pit.

Then Pierre, taking the floor, said to him: explain this similarity to us.

And Jesus said, "Are you also still without understanding?"

Don't you still hear that everything that goes into the mouth goes down into the stomach and then is thrown away?

But the things that come out of the mouth proceed from the heart, and these things defile a person.

For out of the heart come evil thoughts, murder, adultery, fornication, theft, false testimony, slander.

These are the things that defile a person; but eating with unwashed hands does not defile a person.

Then Jesus left that place and withdrew to the districts of Tyre and Sidon.

And behold, a Canaanite woman, who had come from those quarters, cried out to him, saying, Lord! Son of David, have mercy on me! My daughter is miserably tormented by a demon.

But he did not answer her a word; and his disciples came to him and begged him, saying, "Send her away, for she is crying out after us."

And he answered, and said: I am sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

But she came and worshiped him, saying, "Lord, help me!"

And he answered him, and said: it is not right to take the children's bread and throw it to the little dogs.

But she said: That is true, Lord! Yet even little dogs eat crumbs that fall from their masters' table.

Then Jesus answered her, saying, "Woman, your faith is great; let it be done for you as you wish." And from that moment her daughter was healed.

And Jesus left there and came to the Sea of Galilee; then he went up on a mountain and sat down there.

And many groups of people came to him, bringing with them the lame, the blind, the mute, the maimed, and many others; and they laid them at Jesus' feet, and he healed them.

So these troops were astonished to see the mute speak, the one-armed be healthy, the lame walk, and the blind see; and they glorified the God of Israel.

Then Jesus called his disciples to him and said, "I have compassion for this multitude of people, for they have not left me for three days, and they have nothing to eat; and I do not want to send them away hungry, lest they fail on the way."

And his disciples said to him, "Where in this desert could we get enough bread to feed such a large crowd?"

And Jesus said to them, "How many loaves do you have?" They said to him, "Seven, and a few small fish."

Then he ordered the troops to sit on the ground.

And having taken the seven loaves and the fish, he broke them after blessing God, and gave them to his disciples, and the disciples to the people.

And they all ate and were satisfied; and they took up seven baskets full of leftover pieces of bread.

Now those who had eaten were four thousand men, not counting women and small children.

And Jesus, having dismissed the troops, got into a boat and came to the territory of Magdala.

Then some Pharisees and Sadducees came to him, and to test him, they asked him to show them some miracle in heaven.

But he answered them, and said to them: When evening comes, you say: it will be fine weather, because the sky is red.

And in the morning [you say]: "Today there will be a storm, for the sky is red and dark." Hypocrites! You know how to interpret the appearance of the sky, but you cannot interpret the signs of the seasons!

The wicked and adulterous nation seeks a sign; but no sign will be given to it except that of Jonah the Prophet; and leaving them he went away.

And when his disciples arrived at the shore beyond, they had forgotten to bring bread.

And Jesus said to them, "Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees."

But they thought to themselves, and said: it is because we did not bring any bread.

And Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said to them, "You of little faith, what do you think in your hearts about not having taken any bread?"

Do you still not understand, and do you no longer remember the five loaves for the five thousand men, and how many baskets you gathered from them?

Nor of the seven loaves of bread for the four thousand men, and how many baskets did you gather from them?

How is it that you do not understand that it is not concerning the bread that I told you to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees?

Then they understood that he was not telling them to beware of the leaven in the bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

And Jesus, coming to the quarters of Caesarea Philippi, questioned his disciples, saying, "Who do men say that I am the Son of Man?"

And they answered him: Some say that you are John the Baptist; others, Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the Prophets.

He said to them, "And you, who do you say that I am?"

Simon Peter answered, and said, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God."
And Jesus answered, and said, "Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah, for flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father who is in heaven."
And I also tell you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my Church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.
And I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

Then he expressly commanded his disciples not to tell anyone that he was Jesus the Christ.

From that time on, Jesus began to tell his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things there at the hands of the elders, chief priests, and scribes, and that he must be killed there and rise again on the third day.

But Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, "Lord, have mercy on you; this shall not happen to you."

But he turned around and said to Peter, "Get away from me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me; for you do not understand the things of God, but the things of men."

Then Jesus said to his disciples: if anyone wants to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

For whoever wants to save his soul will lose it, but whoever loses his soul for my sake will find it.

But what will it profit a man if he gains the whole world, yet loses his soul? Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul?

For the Son of Man is going to come with the glory of his Father and his angels, and then he will repay each person according to what they have done.

Truly I tell you, there are some who are standing here who will not die before they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom.

Six days later, Jesus took Peter, James, and John his brother, and led them up a high mountain by themselves.

And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became as white as light.

And behold, they saw Moses and Elijah, who were talking with him.

Then Peter spoke up and said to Jesus, "Lord, it is good for us to be here; if you wish, let us put up three tents, one for yourself, one for Moses, and one for Elijah."

And while he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud covered them with its shadow; and behold, a voice came from the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; listen to him.

When the disciples heard this, they fell face down to the ground and were terrified.

But Jesus came and touched them, saying, "Get up, and do not be afraid."

And when they raised their eyes, they saw no one but Jesus alone.

And as they were coming down the mountain, Jesus commanded them, saying, "Tell no one about the vision until the Son of Man has risen from the dead."

And his disciples questioned him, saying: why then do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?

And Jesus answered and said: it is true that Elijah will come first, and that he will restore all things.

But I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they did not recognize him, but did to him whatever they pleased; so the Son of Man must suffer at their hands.

Then the Disciples understood that it was John the Baptist he had spoken to them about.

And when they came to the troops, a man approached and knelt before him,

And he said to him, "Lord, have mercy on my son, who is epileptic and miserable; for he often falls into the fire and often into the water."

And I presented him to your disciples; but they could not heal him.

And Jesus, answering, said: O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I stay with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him here to me.

And Jesus strongly rebuked the demon, which came out of the child, and the child was healed at that very moment.

Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, "Why could we not throw him out?"

And Jesus answered them, "It is because of your unbelief. For truly I tell you, if you have faith as small as a mustard seed, you can say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move. Nothing will be impossible for you."

But this kind [of demons] only comes out through prayer and fasting.

And while they were in Galilee, Jesus said to them, "It will happen that the Son of Man will be delivered into the hands of men;

And that they will kill him, but on the third day he will rise again. And [the disciples] were greatly grieved.

And when they came to Capernaum, those who received the didrachmas came to Peter and said to him, "Doesn't your teacher pay the didrachmas?"

He said, "Yes." And when he had entered the house, Jesus spoke to him first, saying, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings of the earth collect tribute or taxes? From their own children, or from foreigners?"

Peter said: foreigners. Jesus answered him: children are exempt.

But so that we may not offend them, go out to sea, and throw down your line, and take the first fish that comes up; and when you open its mouth, you will find a stater in it; take it, and give it to them for me and for you.

At that very hour the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?"

And Jesus called a little child to him and placed him in their midst.

And he said to them, "Truly I tell you, unless you change and become like little children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven."

Therefore, whoever becomes humble like this little child is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven.

And whoever receives such a little child in my name receives me.

But whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to stumble, it would be better for him to have a millstone hung around his neck and to be thrown into the depths of the sea.

Woe to the world because of scandals; for it is inevitable that scandals will occur; however, woe to the man through whom the scandal comes.

If your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it away; for it is better for you to enter life maimed or crippled than to have two feet or two hands and be thrown into eternal fire.

And if your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out and throw it away; for it is better for you to enter life having one eye than to have two eyes and be thrown into the fire of hell.

Be careful not to despise any of these little ones, for I tell you, their angels in heaven always look to the face of my Father who is in heaven.

For the Son of Man came to save what was lost.

What do you think? If a man has a hundred sheep, and one of them wanders off, does he not leave the ninety-nine and go up into the mountains to look for the one that wandered off?

And if he happens to find it, truly I tell you, he rejoices more in it than in the ninety-nine that did not go astray.

So it is not the will of your Father in heaven that one of these little ones should perish.

But if your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault between you and him alone; if he listens to you, you have gained your brother.

But if he does not listen to you, take one or two others along with you, so that every word may be confirmed by the testimony of two or three witnesses. If he does not deign to listen to them, tell it to the Church; and if he does not deign to listen to the Church, let him be to you as a pagan and as a tax collector. Truly I tell you, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.

I also tell you that if two of you on earth agree, whatever they ask for will be given to them by my Father in heaven.

For where two or three are gathered in my Name, I am there in the midst of them.

Then Peter came to him and said, "Lord, how many times shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Up to seven times?"

Jesus answered him, "I do not say to you up to seven times, but up to seventy times."

That is why the Kingdom of Heaven is like a King who wanted to take his servants into account.

And when he had begun to count, he was presented with one who owed him ten thousand talents.

And because he had no means to pay, his Lord commanded that he, his wife, his children, and all that he had be sold, and that the debt be paid.

But this servant fell down at his feet and begged him, saying, "Lord, be patient, and I will restore everything to you."

Then the Lord of that servant, moved with compassion, released him and forgave him the debt.

But this servant went out and met one of his fellow servants who owed him a hundred denarii; and seizing him, he began to choke him, saying, "Pay me what you owe me."

But his fellow servant fell at his feet and begged him, saying: be patient, and I will give you everything back.

But he refused to do anything; and he went away and put him in prison until he had paid the debt.

But when his other companions in service saw what had happened, they were greatly distressed, and they came and told their Lord all that had happened.

Then his Lord summoned him and said to him: You wicked servant, I have forgiven you all this debt because you begged me to;

Shouldn't you also have felt pity for your fellow worker, just as I had felt pity for you?

And his lord, being angry, handed him over to the sergeants until he had paid him all that was owed to him.

This is how my heavenly Father will treat you unless you forgive each of your brothers and sisters their trespasses from your heart.

And it came to pass that when Jesus had finished these sayings, he departed from Galilee, and came to the border of Judea, beyond the Jordan.

And large troops followed him, and there he healed [their sick].

Then some Pharisees came to him to test him, and they said to him, "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for any and every reason?"

And he answered, and said to them: Have you not read that he who made them from the beginning made them male and female?

And he said: For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife, and the two will become one flesh.

Therefore they are no longer two, but one flesh. What God has joined together, let no one separate.

They said to him, "Why then did Moses command that a certificate of divorce be given and that his wife be divorced?"

He told them: It was because of the hardness of your hearts that Moses allowed you to divorce your wives; but from the beginning it was not so.

And I tell you that anyone who divorces his wife, except for adultery, and marries another woman commits adultery; and he who marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

His disciples said to him: If this is the condition of a man with regard to his wife, it is not appropriate to marry.

But he said to them: not everyone is capable of this, but [only] those to whom it has been given.

For there are eunuchs who were born that way from their mother's womb, and there are eunuchs who were made eunuchs by men, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let the one who can accept this accept it.

Then little children were brought to him so that he might lay his hands on them and pray [for them]; but the disciples rebuked them.

And Jesus said to them, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these."

Then, having laid his hands on them, he left from there.

And behold, someone came up to him and said, "Master, who is good, what good must I do to have eternal life?"

He replied, "Why do you call me good? God is the only good being. If you want to enter life, keep the commandments."

He asked him, "What?" And Jesus answered him, "You shall not kill. You shall not commit adultery. You shall not steal. You shall not bear false witness."

Honor your father and your mother; and you shall love your neighbor as yourself.

The young man said to him: I have kept all these things since my youth; what do I still lack?

Jesus said to him, "If you want to be perfect, go, sell what you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me."

But when this young man heard this, he went away sorrowful, because he had great possessions.

Then Jesus said to his disciples: truly I tell you, it is hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven.

I tell you again: It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.

His disciples, when they heard these things, were greatly astonished and said, "Who then can be saved?"

And Jesus, looking at them, said: "With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible."

Then Peter spoke up and said to him, "Look, we have left everything and followed you; what will happen to us now?"

And Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, you who have followed me in the regeneration, when the Son of Man sits on his glorious throne, you also will sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

And whoever has left houses, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or fields, for my sake, will receive a hundred times as much, and will inherit eternal life.

But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.

For the kingdom of heaven is like a family owner who went out early in the morning to hire workers for his vineyard.

And when he had agreed with the workers on a denarius a day, he sent them to his vineyard.

Then, having gone out around three o'clock, he saw others who were at the market, doing nothing;

To whom he said: you also go to my vineyard, and I will give you what is reasonable.

And they went. Then he went out again about six o'clock, and about nine o'clock, and did the same.

And going out around eleven o'clock, he found others who were doing nothing, to whom he said: why do you stand here all day doing nothing?
They answered him, "Because no one has praised us." And he said to them, "You also go to my vineyard, and you will receive what is reasonable."
And when evening came, the owner of the vineyard said to the one in charge of his affairs: call the workers and pay them their wages, beginning with the last ones and going all the way to the first.
Then those who had been hired around eleven o'clock came, and each received a denarius.
But when the first ones arrived they thought they would receive more, but each of them also received a denarius.
And having received it, they murmured against the father of the family,
By saying: these latter have worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us, who have borne the burden of the day, and the heat.
And he answered one of them, and said to him, "My friend, I am not wronging you; did you not agree with me for a denarius?"
Take what is yours, and go; but if I want to give the latter as much as you, Am I not allowed to do what I want with my own possessions? Is your eye cunning because I am good?
So the last will be first, and the first will be last, for many are called, but few are chosen.
And Jesus, going up to Jerusalem, took his twelve disciples aside on the way, and said to them:
Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be delivered over to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to death.
They will hand him over to the Gentiles to be mocked, flogged, and crucified; but on the third day he will rise again.
Then the mother of Zebedee's sons came to him with her sons, prostrating herself, and begging him for mercy.
And he said to her, "What do you want?" She said to him, "Order that my two sons, who are here, shall sit, one at your right hand, and the other at your left, in your kingdom."
And Jesus answered and said, "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I am going to drink, and to be baptized with the baptism with which I am going to be baptized?" They answered him, "We are able."
And he said to them, "You will indeed drink my cup and be baptized with the baptism I am baptized with; but to sit at my right or my left is not mine to give, but it will be given to those for whom it has been prepared by my Father."
The ten [other Disciples], having heard this, were indignant against the two brothers.
But Jesus called them together and said, "You know that the rulers of the nations lord it over them, and their great ones exercise authority over them."
But it shall not be so among you: on the contrary, whoever wishes to be great among you must be your servant.
And whoever wants to be first among you, let him be your servant.
Just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many.
And as they left Jericho, a large company followed them.
And behold, two blind men were sitting by the roadside, and when they heard that Jesus was passing by, they cried out, saying, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!"
And the troops rebuked them, so that they would be quiet; but they shouted even louder: Lord, Son of David! Have mercy on us!
And Jesus stopped, called them, and said to them, "What do you want me to do for you?"

They said to him, "Lord, let our eyes be opened."

And Jesus, moved with compassion, touched their eyes, and immediately their eyes received sight; and they followed him.

Now when they were near Jerusalem, and had come to Bethphage on the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent out two disciples, Saying to them: go to the village opposite you, and first you will find a donkey tied up, and her foal with her; untie them, and bring them to me.

And if anyone says anything to you, you shall say that the Lord needs them; and immediately he will let them go.

All this took place so that what the Prophet had spoken of might be fulfilled, saying:

Tell the daughter of Zion: behold, your King is coming to you, gentle, and riding on a donkey, and on a donkey's colt.

So the disciples went away and did as Jesus had commanded them.

And they brought the donkey and the colt, and put their garments on them, and made them sit on it.

Then large groups spread their garments along the road, and others cut branches from the trees and spread them along the road.

And the troops that went before, and those that followed, shouted, saying: Hosanna! to the Son of David, blessed is he who comes in the Name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest places!

And when he entered Jerusalem, the whole city was stirred, saying, "Who is this?"

And the troops said: This is Jesus the Prophet, who is from Nazareth in Galilee.

And Jesus entered the Temple of God, and drove out all those who were selling and buying in the Temple, and overturned the tables of the money changers, and the seats of those who were selling doves;

And he said to them, "It is written: 'My house shall be called a house of prayer,' but you have made it a den of robbers."

Then blind and lame people came to him in the Temple, and he healed them.

But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the wonders that he had done, and the children crying out in the Temple, and saying, Hosanna to the Son of David! they were indignant.

And they said to him, "Do you hear what these are saying?" And Jesus said to them, "Yes; but have you never read [these words]: 'Through the mouths of children and infants you have bestowed your praise upon them?'"

And having left them, he went out of the city to Bethany, and spent the night there.

But in the morning, as he was returning to the city, he was hungry.

And seeing a fig tree that was on the road, he approached it, but found nothing but leaves on it; and he said to it: may no fruit ever be born of you again: and immediately the fig tree withered.

When the disciples saw this, they were astonished, saying: how did the fig tree become withered in an instant?

And Jesus answered them, "Truly I tell you, if you have faith and do not doubt, not only will you do what was done to the fig tree, but also you will say to this mountain, 'Move from your place and throw yourself into the sea,' it will be done."

And whatever you ask for in prayer [God], if you believe, you will receive it.

Then when he came to the Temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said to him, "By what authority are you doing these things? And who gave you this authority?"

Jesus answered them, saying: I will also ask you about one thing, and if you tell me, I will also tell you by what authority I do these things.

The baptism of John—where did it come from? From heaven, or from men? Now they disputed among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say to us, 'Why then did you not believe him?'"

And if we say: men, we fear troops: for everyone holds John to be a prophet. Then they answered Jesus, saying, "We do not know." And he said to them, "I will not tell you by what authority I do these things."

But what do you think? A man had two sons, and going to the first, he said to him: My son, go, and work today in my vineyard.

The one who replied said: I do not want to go; but after having repented, he went. Then he came to the other, and said the same thing to him; and this one answered, and said: I am going, Lord; but he did not go.

Which of the two did the will of the father? They answered him, "The first." And Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, the tax collectors and the prostitutes are entering the kingdom of God ahead of you."

For John came to you in the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him; but the tax collectors and the prostitutes believed him; and afterward you did not repent and believe him.

Listen to another parallel: there was a family man who planted a vineyard, and surrounded it with a hedge, and dug a winepress in it, and built a tower; then he rented it to some vine-growers, and went away.

And as the fruit season was near, he sent his servants to the vinedressers to receive their fruit.

But the tenants seized his servants, flogged one, killed another, and stoned another to death.

He sent other servants, more than the first time, and they did the same to them. Finally, he sent his [own] son to them, saying: they will respect my son.

But when the tenants saw the son, they said to one another, "This is the heir; come, let us kill him and seize his inheritance."

Having seized him, they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him.

When the Lord of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?

They told him: he will destroy them like wicked people, and will rent his vineyard to other tenants, who will give him back its fruit in its season.

And Jesus said to them, "Have you never read in the Scriptures: 'The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone; this has been done by the Lord, and it is marvelous in our eyes.'"

Therefore I tell you that the Kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a nation that will produce its fruits.

But whoever falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls.

And when the chief priests and the Pharisees heard these parables, they knew that he was speaking about them.

And they sought to seize him, but they feared the troops, because he was considered a Prophet.

Then Jesus, speaking to them again in parables, said:

The Kingdom of Heaven is like a king who gave a wedding feast for his son.

And he sent his servants to call those who had been invited to the wedding; but they refused to come.

He sent out other servants, saying, "Tell those who were invited, 'See, I have prepared my dinner; my bulls and fattened cattle have been slaughtered, and everything is ready; come to the wedding feast.'"

But they paid no heed to this, and went off, one to his farm, and the other to his business.

And the others seized his servants, and insulted them, and killed them.

When the King heard of it, he became angry, and having sent his troops there, he destroyed those murderers and burned their city.

Then he said to his servants, "Well, the wedding banquet is prepared, but those who were invited were not worthy."

Go to the crossroads, and invite as many people as you find to the wedding.

Then his servants went out into the roads and gathered together all they found, both bad and good, so that the wedding place was filled with people who were at the table.

And when the King came in to see those who were at the table, he saw a man there who was not wearing a wedding robe.

And he said to him, "My friend, how did you get in here without a wedding robe?" And he was speechless.

Then the King said to the servants, "Bind him hand and foot, take him away, and throw him outside into the darkness; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth there."

Because there are many who are called, but few who are chosen.

Then the Pharisees withdrew and discussed together how they might catch him in words;

And they sent their disciples to him, along with some Herodians, saying, "Teacher, we know that you are true and that you teach the way of God in truth, and that you care not for anyone, because you pay no attention to the appearance of men."

So tell us what you think about this: is it permissible to pay tribute to Caesar, or not?

And Jesus, knowing their malice, said: Hypocrites, why are you testing me?

Show me the tribute coin; and they presented him with a denarius.

And he said to them, "Whose image is this, and whose inscription?"

They answered him: from Caesar. Then he said to them: render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's.

And when they heard this, they were astonished, and leaving him, they went away.

That same day the Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, came to him and questioned him,

By saying, "Master," Moses said: "If anyone dies without children, let his brother take his wife, and he shall bear children for his brother."

Now there were seven brothers among us, the eldest of whom, after marrying, died, and having no children, left his wife to his brother.

Similarly the second, then the third, up to the seventh.

And after them all, the woman also died.

In the resurrection, then, of which of the seven will she be a woman? For all of them had her.

But Jesus answered them, "You are mistaken, because you do not know the Scriptures or the power of God."

For in the resurrection, women are neither taken nor given in marriage, but are like the angels of God in heaven.

And as for the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what God has spoken to you about, saying:

I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob; [or] God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

Having heard this, the troops admired his doctrine.

And when the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together in one place.

And one of them, who was a Doctor of the Law, questioned him to test him, saying: Teacher, which is the greatest commandment of the Law?

Jesus said to him, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind."

This is the first and greatest commandment.

And the second like it is: you shall love your neighbor as yourself.

The entire Law and the Prophets depend on these two commandments.

And when the Pharisees had gathered together, Jesus questioned them,

They said, "What do you think of the Christ? Whose son is he?" They answered him, "The son of David."

And he said to them, "How then does David, speaking by the Spirit, call him [his]

Lord?" saying:

The Lord said to my Lord, sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet.

If then David calls him [his] Lord, how can he be his Son?

And no one could answer him with a single word, nor did anyone dare to question him again from that day on.

Then Jesus spoke to the troops and to his disciples,

Saying: The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat.

Therefore, observe and do all the things they tell you to do, but not their works, because they say, but do not do.

For they bind together heavy and unbearable burdens, and put them on the shoulders of men; but they will not lift a finger to move them.

And they do all their works to be seen by men; for they wear broad phylacteries and long fringes on their garments.

And they love the places of honor at feasts, and the best seats in the Synagogues;

And greetings in the marketplaces; and to be called by men, Our master! Our master!

But for you, do not be called, Our Master; for Christ alone is your Teacher; and for you, you are all brothers.

And do not call anyone on earth [your] father; for you have one Father, and he is in heaven.

And do not be called teachers, for Christ alone is your teacher.

But let the one who is greatest among you be your servant.

For whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.

But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for you shut the kingdom of heaven in people's faces: for you yourselves do not enter it, nor do you allow those who would enter to enter.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you devour widows' houses, even under the pretext of making long prayers; therefore you will receive a greater condemnation.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you travel across sea and land to make a single proselyte, and after he becomes one, you make him twice as much a son of hell as yourselves.

Woe to you, blind guides, who say: whoever swears by the Temple, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gold of the Temple, he is bound by his oath.

Fools and blind men! For which is greater, gold, or the temple that sanctifies gold?

And whoever swears by the altar, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gift that is on the altar is bound.

You fools and blind people! For which is greater, the gift, or the altar that sanctifies the gift?

Therefore, whoever swears by the altar swears by the altar and by everything that is on it.

And whoever swears by the Temple, swears by the Temple and by him who dwells in it.

And whoever swears by heaven swears by the throne of God and by him who sits on it.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you tithe mint, dill, and cumin, and neglect the weightier matters of the law: justice, mercy, and faithfulness. You ought to have done these, and not neglected the others.

Blind drivers, you sink the gnat, and you swallow the camel.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but inside they are full of greed and self-indulgence.

Blind Pharisee, first clean the inside of the cup and the dish, so that the outside also may be clean.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs, which outwardly appear beautiful, but within are full of dead people's bones and all kinds of filth.

So you appear righteous to men on the outside, but inwardly you are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for you build the tombs of the prophets and repair the graves of the righteous;

And you say: if we had lived in the time of our fathers, we would not have participated with them in the killing of the Prophets.

Thus you are witnesses against yourselves that you are the children of those who killed the Prophets;

And you have finished filling the measure of your fathers.

Snakes, brood of vipers! How will you escape the torment of hell?

For behold, I am sending you prophets, and wise men, and scribes; some of them you will kill, some you will crucify, some you will flog in your synagogues, and some you will persecute from town to town.

So that all the righteous blood that has been shed on earth may come upon you, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Barachiah, whom you killed between the Temple and the altar.

Truly I tell you, all these things will come upon this generation.

Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you who kill the Prophets and stone those sent to you, how often I have longed to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were not willing!

Behold, your house will become deserted.

For I tell you, you will not see me again until you say, "Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!"

And as Jesus was leaving the Temple, his disciples approached him to point out the Temple buildings.

And Jesus said to them, "Do you see all these things? Truly I tell you, not one stone here will be left on another; every one will be thrown down."

Then, sitting on the Mount of Olives, his disciples came to him privately and said, "Tell us, when will these things happen, and what will be the sign of your coming and of the end of the age?"

And Jesus answered them, saying: Beware lest anyone deceive you.

For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am the Christ,' and they will deceive many.

And you will hear of wars and rumors of wars; [but] see that you are not troubled by them; for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be famines, pestilences, and earthquakes in various places.

But all these things are only the beginning of sorrows.

Then they will hand you over to be afflicted, and will kill you; and you will be hated by all nations because of my name.

And then many will be scandalized, and will betray one another, and hate one another.

And many false prophets will arise and deceive many.

And because iniquity will be multiplied, the charity of many will grow cold.

But he who perseveres to the end will be saved.

And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached throughout the inhabited earth as a testimony to all nations, and then the end will come.

But when you see the abomination that will cause desolation, which was foretold by Daniel the Prophet, standing in the holy place, (Let the reader understand this.)

Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains.

And let the one who is in charge of the house not go down to take anything from his house.

And let him who is in the field not turn back to take his clothes.

But woe to those who are pregnant, and to those who are breastfeeding in those days.

Or pray that your flight will not be in winter, nor on a Sabbath day.
For then there will be great distress, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, nor will there ever be again.
And if those days had not been shortened, no one would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days will be shortened.
So if anyone tells you, 'Look, here is the Christ!' or, 'There he is!' do not believe it.
For false Christs and false prophets will appear and perform great signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect.
Here it is, I predicted it.
If they tell you, 'Look, he is in the desert,' do not go out; or, 'Look, he is in the innermost part of the house,' do not believe it.
But as the lightning comes from the east and is seen even in the west, so will be the coming of the Son of Man.
For where the dead body is, there the eagles will gather.
But immediately after the affliction of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken.
And then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky. Then all the tribes of the earth will mourn and beat their breasts, and they will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of the sky with power and great glory.
And he will send his angels, who with a loud trumpet call will gather his chosen ones from the four winds, from one end of the heavens to the other.
Or learn this analogy taken from the fig tree: When its branches are already full of sap, and it is growing leaves, you know that summer is near.
Likewise, when you see all these things, you will know that [the Son of Man] is near, and is at the door.
Truly I tell you, this generation will certainly not pass away until all these things have happened.
Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.
But about that day or hour no one knows, not even the angels in heaven, but only my Father.
But as it was in the days of Noah, so it will be at the coming of the Son of Man.
For as in the days before the flood [men] ate and drank, married, and gave in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark;
And they did not know that the flood would come until it came and took them all away; so it will be at the coming of the Son of Man.
Then two [men] will be in a field; one will be taken, and the other left.
Two women will grind at the mill, one will be taken, and the other left.
Therefore keep watch, because you do not know at what hour your Lord will come.
But know this, that if a father of a family knew at what time of night the thief was to come, he would stay up, and would not let his house be broken into.
Therefore, you also must be ready, for the Son of Man will come at an hour when you do not expect him.
Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom the master has put in charge of all his servants, to give them their food at the proper time?
Blessed is that servant whom his master finds acting in this way when he arrives.
Truly I tell you, he will establish it over all his possessions.
But if it is a wicked servant, who says to himself, 'My master is taking a long time to come';
And that he should start beating his fellow servants, and eating and drinking with drunkards;
The master of that servant will come on a day when he does not expect him, and at an hour he does not know.

And he will separate him and place him among the hypocrites; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.
Then the Kingdom of Heaven will be like ten virgins who took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom.
Now there were five wise ones, and five foolish ones.
The madwomen, when they took their lamps, had not taken any oil with them.
But the wise men had taken oil in their vessels along with their lamps.
And as the bridegroom was delayed in coming, they all became drowsy and fell asleep.

But at midnight there was a cry, [saying]: Behold, the bridegroom is coming; come out to meet him.

Then all the virgins got up and prepared their lamps.

And the foolish ones said to the wise ones: Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.

But the wise men answered, saying: [We cannot give you any], lest we should not have enough for ourselves and for you; but rather go to those who sell it, and buy some for yourselves.

But while they were going to buy the food, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding banquet, and the door was shut.

After this the other virgins also came, and said, "Lord! Lord! Open to us!"

But he answered them, and said: truly I do not know you.

Therefore, keep watch, because you do not know the day or the hour when the Son of Man will come.

For it is like a man who went out, called his servants, and entrusted his property to them.

And he gave to one five talents, and to another two, and to another one; to each according to his means; and immediately he departed.

But the one who had received the five talents went away and traded with them, and gained five more talents.

Likewise, the one who had received the two talents also gained two more.

But the one who had received only one went away, buried it in the ground, and hid his master's money.

Now, a long time later, the master of those servants came and settled accounts with them.

Then the one who had received the five talents came and presented five more talents, saying, "Master, you entrusted me with five talents; behold, I have gained five more."

And his Lord said to him: That is well, good and faithful servant; you have been faithful over a little, I will set you over much; come and share in the joy of your Lord.

Then the one who had received the two talents came and said, "Master, you entrusted me with two talents; see, I have gained two more as well."

And his master said to him, "Well done, good and faithful servant; you have been faithful over a little, I will set you over much: come and share in the joy of your master."

But the one who had received only one talent came and said, "Master, I knew you to be a hard man, reaping where you have not sown, and gathering where you have not scattered."

That is why, fearing [to lose your talent], I went and hid it in the ground; behold, you have [here] what belongs to you.

And his Lord answered him, saying: wicked and cowardly servant, you knew that I reaped where I did not sow, and that I gathered where I did not scatter.

So you had to give my money to the bankers, and when I returned I would have received it with interest.

Take the talent from him, and give it to the one who has ten talents.

For to everyone who has, more will be given, and even more will be given to him; but from him who does not have, even what he has will be taken away.

Throw the worthless servant into the outer darkness; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

When the Son of Man comes, surrounded by his glory and accompanied by all the holy Angels, then he will sit on his glorious throne.

And all the nations will be gathered before him; and he will separate them one from another, as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats.

And he will place the sheep on his right, and the goats on his left.

Then the King will say to those on his right, "Come, you who are blessed by my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

For I was hungry, and you gave me something to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave me something to drink; I was a stranger, and you welcomed me;

I was naked, and you clothed me; I was sick, and you visited me; I was in prison, and you came to me.

Then the righteous will answer him, saying, "Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you something to drink?"

And when did we see you a stranger, and welcome you; or naked, and clothe you?

Or when did we see you sick, or in prison, and come to visit you?

And the King will answer them, saying: Truly I tell you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for me.

Then he will also say to those on his left, "Depart from me, you cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels."

For I was hungry, and you gave me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave me nothing to drink;

I was a stranger, and you did not welcome me; I was naked, and you did not clothe me; I was sick and in prison, and you did not visit me.

Then they too will answer him, saying, "Lord, when did we see you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not help you?"

Then he will answer them, saying, "Truly I tell you, just as you did not do these things to one of the least of these, you did not do them to me."

And these will go away to eternal punishment; but the righteous will go to enjoy eternal life.

And it came to pass that when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said to his disciples:

You know that the [Feast of] Passover is in two days; and the Son of Man is going to be handed over to be crucified.

Then the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders of the people assembled in the hall of the high priest, whose name was Caiaphas;

And they conspired together to seize Jesus by cunning, in order to kill him.

But they said: it should not be during the Festival, lest there be some unrest among the people.

And while Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper,

A woman came to him with an alabaster jar full of very expensive perfume, and she poured it on his head while he was at the table.

But his disciples, seeing this, were indignant and said: what is the point of this loss?

Because this perfume could be sold in large quantities and given to the poor.

But Jesus, knowing this, said to them, "Why are you giving this woman grief? For she has done a good deed for me."

Because you will always have the poor with you; but you will not always have me.

For what she poured this perfume on my body, she did for [the apparatus of] my burial.

Truly I tell you, in all the places in the world where this Gospel is preached, what she did will also be recited in her memory.

Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests,
And he said to them, "What are you willing to give me, and I will deliver him to you?" And they counted out thirty pieces of silver to him.
And from then on he looked for an opportunity to deliver it.
Now on the first day of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Where do you want us to prepare the Passover meal for you?"
And he replied: go to the city to so-and-so, and tell him: the Teacher says: my time is near; I will celebrate Passover with my disciples at your house.
And the disciples did as Jesus had commanded them, and prepared the Passover.
When evening came, he sat down to eat with the twelve.
And as they were eating, he said to them, "Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me."
And they were greatly grieved, and each of them began to say to him, "Lord, is it I?"

But he answered them, and said: whoever puts his hand into the dish to dip with me, that is the one who will betray me.
But the Son of Man goes away, just as it is written about him; but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that man if he had not been born.
And Judas, who betrayed him, answered and said: Master, is it I? [Jesus] said to him: You have said so.
And as they were eating, Jesus took the bread, and after he had blessed God, he broke it and gave it to his disciples, and said to them: take, eat; this is my body.
Then he took the cup, and blessed God, and gave it to them, saying: drink from it, all of you.
For this is my blood, the [blood] of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the forgiveness of sins.
But I tell you, from this hour I will not drink of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in the kingdom of my Father.
And when they had sung the Song, they went up to the Mount of Olives.
Then Jesus said to them, "This night you will all fall away because of me, for it is written: 'I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.'"

But after I have risen from the dead, I will go before you into Galilee.
And Peter, speaking up, said to him: even if everyone were scandalized because of you, I never will be.
Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, on this very night, before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times."
Peter said to him: even if I have to die with you, I will not deny you; and all the disciples said the same thing.
Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, "Sit here until I pray in the place where I am going."
And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and he began to be sorrowful and very distressed.
Then he said to them, "My soul is overcome with sorrow on all sides, even to the point of death. Stay here and keep watch with me."
Then going a little farther, he bowed down with his face to the ground, praying, and said, "My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from me; yet not as I will, but as you will."
Then he came to his disciples and found them sleeping, and he said to Peter, "Is it possible that you could not have stayed awake with me for one hour?"
Be on your guard and pray that you will not fall into temptation. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.
He went away a second time and prayed, saying, "My Father, if it is not possible for this cup to pass from me unless I drink it, your will be done."

He returned later, and found them still sleeping; for their eyes were heavy. And having left them, he went away again, and prayed for the third time, saying the same words.

Then he came to his disciples and said to them, "Sleep and rest, for the hour is near, and the Son of Man is about to be delivered into the hands of the wicked." Get up, come on, here comes the one who betrays me.

And while he was still speaking, behold, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a large company, with swords and clubs, sent from the chief priests and the elders of the people.

But the one who betrayed him had given them a signal, saying: the one I will kiss is him, seize him.

And immediately, approaching Jesus, he said to him, "Master, I greet you," and he kissed him.

And Jesus said to him, "Friend, why are you here?" Then they came up and laid hands on Jesus and seized him.

And behold, one of those who were with Jesus, reaching for his sword, drew it, and struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

Then Jesus said to him, "Put your sword back in its place, for all who take the sword will die by the sword."

Do you think I cannot now pray to my Father, who would give me at present more than twelve Legions of Angels?

But how would the Scriptures that say it must happen this way be fulfilled?

At that very moment Jesus said to the troops: You have come out with swords and clubs, as against a robber, to seize me; I sat among you every day teaching in the Temple, and you did not arrest me.

But all this happened so that the Scriptures of the Prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.

And those who had taken Jesus brought him to Caiaphas, the high priest, where the scribes and elders were assembled.

And Peter followed him at a distance, right up to the court of the high priest, and having entered it, he sat down with the officers to see what the outcome would be.

But the chief priests, the elders, and the whole council were seeking false testimony against Jesus in order to put him to death.

But they found none; and although several false witnesses came, they found none [proper]; but at last two false witnesses approached,

They said: This man said: I can destroy the Temple of God, and rebuild it in three days.

Then the high priest stood up and said to him, "Have you nothing to answer? What are these men testifying against you?"

But Jesus remained silent. And the high priest spoke up and said to him: I command you by the living God, tell us if you are the Christ, the Son of God.

Jesus said to him, "You have said so; moreover, I tell you, from now on you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power [of God], and coming on the clouds of heaven."

Then the high priest tore his clothes, saying, "He has blasphemed! Why do we need witnesses anymore? Now you have heard his blasphemy; what do you think?"

They replied: he is worthy of death.

Then they spat in his face, and some of them slapped him, and others beat him with their rods;

Saying to him: Christ, prophesy to us who it is who struck you.

Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard, and a servant girl came to him and said to him, "You also were with Jesus the Galilean."

But he denied it in front of everyone, saying: I don't know what you're saying.

And when he had gone out into the vestibule, another servant girl saw him, and she said to those who were there: This man also was with Jesus of Nazareth.

And he denied it again under oath, saying: I do not know this man.

And a little while later, those who were there approached and said to Peter, "Surely you are one of them, for your speech gives you away."

Then he began to curse and swear, [saying]: I do not know this man; and immediately the rooster crowed.

And Peter remembered the word of Jesus, who had said to him: before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times: and going outside, he wept bitterly.

Then when morning came, all the chief priests and the elders of the people plotted against Jesus to put him to death.

And having bound him, they brought him and handed him over to Pontius Pilate, who was the Governor.

Then Judas, who had betrayed him, seeing that he was condemned, repented and returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders.

He told them: I have sinned by betraying innocent blood; but they said to him: what does that matter to us? You will see to it.

And after throwing the silver coins into the Temple, he withdrew, and having left, he choked himself.

But the chief priests took the silver coins and said, "It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, for they are a blood money award."

And after they had consulted among themselves, they bought a potter's field there for the burial of foreigners.

That is why that field has been called, until today, the field of blood.

Then was fulfilled what was spoken of by Jeremiah the Prophet, saying: and they took thirty pieces of silver, the price of him who was appraised, which the children of Israel appraised;

And they gave them to buy a potter's field, according to what the Lord had commanded me.

Now Jesus was brought before the Governor, and the Governor questioned him, saying, "Are you the King of the Jews?" Jesus answered him, "You say so."

And when accused by the chief priests and elders, he did not answer.

Then Pilate said to him, "Do you not hear how many testimonies they are bringing against you?"

But he did not answer him a word about anything; so the Governor was extremely astonished.

Now the Governor was accustomed to releasing to the people [on the day of] the Festival a prisoner, whoever they asked for.

And there was at that time a famous prisoner named Barabbas.

When they were gathered together, Pilate said to them, "Which one do you want me to release to you? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?"

Because he knew full well that they had handed him over out of envy.

And as he sat in the judicial seat, his wife sent word to him: do not interfere in the case of this righteous man, for I have suffered greatly today in my thoughts about him.

And the chief priests and the elders persuaded the multitude of the people to ask for Barabbas and to kill Jesus.

And the Governor, speaking to them, said: Which of the two do you want me to release to you? They said: Barabbas.

Pilate said to them, "What then shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" They all told him, "Let him be crucified!"

And the Governor said to them, "But what evil has he done?" And they shouted even louder, saying, "Let him be crucified!"

Then Pilate, seeing that he was gaining nothing, but that the uproar was increasing, took water and washed his hands in front of the people, saying: I am innocent of this righteous man's blood; consider this.

And all the people answered, saying: May his blood be upon us and upon our children!

Then he released Barabbas to them; and after having Jesus flogged, he handed him over to be crucified.

And the Governor's soldiers brought Jesus to the Praetorium, and assembled the whole cohort before him.

And after stripping him, they put a scarlet robe on him.

And having made a crown of woven thorns, they put it on his head, with a reed in his right hand; then kneeling before him, they mocked him, saying: We salute you, King of the Jews!

And after spitting on him, they took the reed and struck his head with it.

And after mocking him, they took off his cloak and dressed him in his own clothes, and brought him out to crucify him.

And as they went out, they met a Cyrenian named Simon, whom they compelled to carry Jesus' cross.

And having arrived at the place called Golgotha, that is, the place of the Skull, They gave him vinegar mixed with gall to drink; but when he had tasted it, he refused to drink it.

And after they had crucified him, they divided his clothes by casting lots, so that what had been spoken by a prophet might be fulfilled: "They divided my clothes among themselves, and cast lots for my robe."

Then they sat down and kept him there.

They also placed a placard above his head, in which the cause [of his condemnation] was written in these words: THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

And two robbers were crucified with him, one on his right and the other on his left.

And those who passed by hurled insults at him, shaking their heads,

And saying: you who destroy the Temple, and rebuild it in three days, save yourself; if you are the Son of God, come down from the cross.

Likewise, the chief priests, together with the scribes and the elders, mockingly said:

He saved others, he cannot save himself: if he is the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe in him.

He trusts in God; [but] if [God] loves him, let him deliver him now, for he has said: I am the Son of God.

The brigands who were crucified with him also accused him of the same thing.

But from six o'clock until nine o'clock there was darkness over the whole land.

And about nine o'clock Jesus cried out in a loud voice, saying: Eli, Eli, lamma sabachthani? that is, My God! My God! Why have you forsaken me?

And some of those who were there, having heard this, said: he is calling Elijah.

And immediately one of them ran, and took a sponge, and having filled it with vinegar, put it on the end of a reed, and gave it to him to drink.

But the others said: leave it, let's see if Elijah will come to save him.

Then Jesus, having cried out again with a loud voice, gave up his spirit.

And behold, the veil of the Temple was torn in two from top to bottom; and the earth shook, and the stones split.

And the tombs were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had died were raised to life.

And having come out of the tombs after his resurrection, they entered the holy city, and showed themselves to many.

Now the centurion, and those with him who were guarding Jesus, when they saw the earthquake and all that had happened, were terrified, and said, "Surely this was the Son of God."

There were also several women there watching from a distance, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, serving him.

Among them were Mary Magdalene; and Mary the mother of James and Joses; and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

And when evening came, a rich man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who had also been a disciple of Jesus,

He came to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus; and at the same time Pilate ordered that the body be returned.

So Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth;

And he placed it in his new tomb, which he had cut out of the rock; and after rolling a large stone against the entrance of the tomb, he went away.

And there were Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, sitting opposite the tomb.

But the next day, which is after the preparation [of the Sabbath], the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered around Pilate,

And they said to him, "Lord! We remember that this deceiver used to say, while he was still alive: 'In three days I will rise again.'"

Therefore, command that the tomb be securely guarded until the third day; lest his disciples come by night and steal it away and say to the people, "He has risen from the dead," for this last deception would be worse than the first.

But Pilate said to them: you are in charge; go, and secure him as you see fit.

So they went away and secured the tomb, sealing the stone and placing guards there.

On the evening of the Sabbath, the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to see the tomb.

And behold, there was a great earthquake, for the Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came, and rolled back the stone from the entrance [of the tomb], and sat upon it.

And his face was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow.

And the guards were so terrified that they became like dead men.

But the Angel spoke up and said to the women: "Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified."

He is not here; for he has risen, as he said; come, and see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he has risen from the dead. And behold, he is going before you to Galilee; you will see him there. Behold, I have told you. Then they quickly came out of the tomb with fear and great joy; and ran to tell his disciples.

But as they were going to tell his disciples, Jesus stood beside them and said, "Greetings!" And they came up and kissed his feet and worshiped him.

Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid; go, and tell my brothers to go to Galilee, and they will see me there."

But when they had left, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened.

Whereupon [the Priests] assembled with the Elders, and after consulting together, they gave a good sum of money to the soldiers, Saying to them: say: his disciples came by night and stole him away while we were sleeping.

And if the Governor hears about it, we will persuade him, and we will set you free.

So they took the money and did as they had been instructed; and this rumor has spread among the Jews to this day.

But the eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had commanded them [to go].

And when they saw him, they worshiped him, but some doubted.

And Jesus came to them and spoke, saying: all authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me.

Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit;

And the teachers to keep all that I have commanded you. And behold, I am always with you, to the end of the age. Amen

The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, Son of God;
As it is written in the Prophets: behold, I send my messenger before your face, who will prepare your way before you.
The voice of one crying out in the wilderness [is]: Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
John was baptizing in the desert, and preaching the baptism of repentance, to obtain the remission of sins.
And all the country of Judea, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, went to him, and they were all baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.
Now John was clothed in camel hair, and he had a leather belt around his waist, and he ate locusts and wild honey.
And he preached, saying: there is one who comes after me, who is more powerful than I, whose sandal straps I am not worthy to untie.
For me, I baptized you with water; but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit.
Now it came to pass in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized by John in the Jordan.
And at the same time as he came up out of the water, [John] saw the heavens split open, and the Holy Spirit descending on him like a dove.
And there was a voice from heaven, [saying]: You are my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.
And immediately the Spirit drove him [to go] into a desert.
And he was there in the desert forty days, being tempted by Satan; and he was with the wild beasts, and the angels ministered to him.
Now after John had been put in prison, Jesus came to Galilee, preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God,
And saying: The time is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God has come near; repent, and believe in the Gospel.
And as he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother, casting their nets into the sea, for they were fishermen.
And Jesus said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."
And having immediately left their nets, they followed him.
Then, going a little further from there, he saw James son of Zebedee, and John his brother, mending their nets in the boat.
And immediately he called them, and they, leaving their father Zebedee in the boat, with the workers, followed him.
Then they entered Capernaum; and immediately afterwards, on the Sabbath day, he went into the synagogue and taught.
And they were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one who had authority, and not as the scribes.
Now there was found in their synagogue a man of unclean spirit, who cried out, Saying: Ha! What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God.
But Jesus spoke firmly to him, and said to him, "Be quiet, and come out of this man."

Then the foul spirit tormented him, and screaming loudly, came out of that man.
And they were all astonished, so that they asked one another, and said: What is this? What new teaching is this? He commands with authority, even unclean spirits, and they obey him.
And his fame spread continuously throughout the land surrounding Galilee.
And immediately after leaving the Synagogue, they went with James and John to the house of Simon and Andrew.
Now Simon's mother-in-law was in bed, sick with a fever; and first they spoke to him about her.
And having approached, he helped her up, taking her by the hand; and at once the fever left her; and she served them.

But when evening came, as the sun was setting, they brought to him all the sick and those possessed by demons,
And the whole city was gathered before the gate.
And he healed many sick people who had various diseases; and drove many demons out [of the possessed], and he did not allow the demons to say that they knew him.
Then in the morning, since it was still very dark, he got up, went out, and left for a deserted place, and there he prayed.
And Simon, and those who were with him, followed him.
And when they found him, they said to him: everyone is looking for you.
And he said to them, "Let us go to the neighboring villages, so that I may preach there also; for this is what I have come for."
So he preached in their synagogues throughout Galilee, and drove out demons.
And a leper came to him, begging him and kneeling before him, and saying to him: if you wish, you can make me clean.
And Jesus, moved with compassion, stretched out his hand and touched him, saying to him, "I do will it; be clean."
And when he had said this, the leprosy immediately left the man, and he was clean.
Then, having threatened him, he sent him away immediately.
And he said to him, "Be careful not to tell anyone; but go, and show yourself to the priest, and present for your cleansing the things that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them."
But he went away and began to publish many things and to divulge what had happened, so that Jesus could no longer enter the city openly, but stayed outside in deserted places; and people came to him from all sides.
A few days later he returned to Capernaum; and it was heard that he was in the house.

And immediately a great many people gathered there, so many that even the space near the door could not contain them, and he proclaimed the word to them.
And [some] came to him, carrying a paralytic, who was supported by four people.
But because they could not approach him because of the crowd, they uncovered the roof of the place where he was, and having pierced it, they lowered the small bed in which the paralytic was lying.
And when Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "My son, your sins are forgiven."
And some Scribes who were sitting there reasoned thus among themselves:
Why does he utter such blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?
And Jesus, immediately perceiving in his spirit that they were reasoning thus in their hearts, said to them, "Why do you reason these things in your hearts?"
For which is easier, to say to the paralytic, "Your sins are forgiven," or to say to him, "Get up, load up your bed, and walk"?
But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins, he said to the paralytic:
I tell you: get up, and pack your little bed, and go home.
And he got up immediately, and having loaded his little bed, he went out in the presence of all; so that they were all astonished, and they glorified God, saying: we have never seen such a thing.
And [Jesus] went out again to the sea, and all the people came to him, and he taught them.
And as he passed by, he saw Levi, son of Alphaeus, sitting at the tax collector's place, and he said to him, "Follow me." And Levi got up and followed him.
Now it happened that when [Jesus] was having dinner in the house of Levi, many tax collectors and sinners also sat down to eat with Jesus and his disciples, for there were many who had followed him.
But when the scribes and the Pharisees saw him eating with tax collectors and sinners, they said to his disciples, "Why does he eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?"

And when Jesus heard this, he said to them: those who are healthy do not need a doctor, but those who are sick; I have not come to call the righteous to repentance, but sinners.

Now the disciples of John and those of the Pharisees were fasting; and they came to [Jesus], and said to him, "Why do the disciples of John and those of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?"

And Jesus answered them, "Can the friends of the bridegroom fast while the bridegroom is with them? While they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast."

But the days will come when the Bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast in those days.

Therefore, no one sews a piece of new cloth onto an old garment; otherwise, the piece of new cloth pulls away from the old, and the tear is greater.

And no one puts new wine into old vessels; otherwise the new wine will burst the vessels, and the wine will spill out, and the vessels will be ruined; but new wine must be put into new vessels.

And it happened that as he was passing through a field of wheat one Sabbath day, his disciples, as they walked along, began to pluck up ears of grain.

And the Pharisees said to him, "Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath?"

But he said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he was in need and hungry, he and those who were with him?"

How he entered the House of God in the days of Abiathar the chief priest, and ate the consecrated bread, which was only permitted to be eaten by the priests; and he also gave some to those who were with him.

Then he said to them, "The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath."

So that the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath.

Then he went back into the Synagogue, and there was a man there who had a withered hand.

And they watched him closely to see if he would heal him on the Sabbath day, so that they might accuse him.

And [Jesus] said to the man with the withered hand, "Get up and stand there in the middle."

Then he said to them, "Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath, or to do evil? To save a life, or to kill a life?" But they remained silent.

Then, looking at them from all sides with indignation, and being at once grieved at the hardness of their hearts, he said to this man: stretch out your hand; and he stretched it out; and his hand was made healthy like the other.

Then the Pharisees went out and plotted against him with the Herodians how they might destroy him.

But Jesus withdrew with his disciples to the sea, and a great multitude followed him from Galilee, Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, and beyond the Jordan.

And those from the vicinity of Tyre and Sidon, having heard of the great things he was doing, came to him in great numbers.

And he told his disciples that a small boat should not move from there to serve him, because of the troops, so that they would not press him.

For he had healed many, so that all who were afflicted with any plague rushed upon him to touch him.

And the unclean spirits, when they saw him, bowed down before him and cried out, saying, "You are the Son of God."

But he forbade them, with great threats, to make it known.

Then he went up onto a mountain, and called to those whom he wanted, and they came to him.

And he appointed twelve to be with him, and to send them out to preach;

And so that they might have the power to cure diseases, and to drive demons out [of the possessed].

[And these are the names of these twelve], Simon, whom he nicknamed Peter.

And James son of Zebedee, and John, brother of James, to whom he gave the name Boanerges, which means, sons of thunder.

And Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James [son] of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Canaanite,

And Judas Iscariot, who even betrayed him.

Then they came to the house, and such a large crowd gathered there again, that they could not even eat their meal.

And when his parents heard this, they went out to seize him; for they said that he was out of his mind.

And the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, "He has Beelzebul, and he drives out demons by the prince of demons."

But [Jesus] having called them together, said to them by parables: how can Satan drive Satan out?

For if a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

And if a house is divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

Therefore, if Satan rises up against himself and is divided, he cannot sustain himself, but is heading toward his end.

No one can enter a strong man's house and plunder his possessions unless he first ties up the strong man; but then he may plunder his house.

Truly I tell you, all kinds of sins will be forgiven the children of men, and also [all kinds] of blasphemies by which they have blasphemed;

But whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven, but will be subject to eternal condemnation.

But that was because they were saying: he is possessed by an unclean spirit.

At this his brothers and his mother arrived there, and standing outside they sent word to him; and the multitude was sitting around him.

And they told him: your mother and brothers are outside, asking for you.

But he answered them, saying, "Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?"

And after looking around at those who were sitting around him, he said: here are my mother and my brothers.

For whoever does the will of God is my brother and sister and mother.

Then he began to teach again by the sea, and large crowds gathered around him; so he got into a boat, and sitting [in the boat] on the sea, all the people remained on land on the shore of the sea.

And he taught them many things by analogies, and he told them in his instructions: Listen: behold, a sower went out to sow.

And it came to pass that when sowing, some [of the seed] fell along the path, and the birds of the air came and ate it all up

Another part fell in stony places, where it had little soil, and immediately it rose up, because it did not penetrate deeply into the earth;

But when the sun rose, it was scorched, and because it had no root, it withered away.

Another part fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it produced no fruit.

And another part fell on good soil, and produced fruit, growing up and increasing; so that one grain yielded thirty, another sixty, and another a hundred.

And he said to them: Whoever has ears to hear, let them hear!

And when he was alone, those who were around him with the twelve questioned him about this parable.

And he said to them, "The secret of the kingdom of God has been given to you, but to those outside, everything is spoken of in parables."

So that, seeing, they may see but not perceive; and hearing, they may hear but not understand; lest they should turn and be forgiven their sins.

Then he said to them, "Do you not understand this parable? And how then will you know all parables?"

The sower is the one who sows the word.

And behold, those who receive the seed along the way are those in whom the word is sown; but after they hear it, Satan comes again and takes away the word sown in their hearts.

Likewise, those who receive the seed on rocky places are those who, having heard the word, immediately receive it with joy;

But they have no root in themselves, and are only for a time; so that affliction and persecution arise because of the word, and they are continually offended.

And those who receive the seed among the thorns are those who hear the word;

But the worries of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the desires for other things, having entered [their minds], choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful.

But those who received the seed on good soil are those who hear the word, and accept it, and bear fruit: one thirtyfold, another sixtyfold, and another a hundredfold.

He also said to them: Is a lamp brought to be put under a bushel, or under a bed? Is it not brought to be put on a lampstand?

For there is nothing hidden that will not be disclosed, and nothing concealed that will not be brought to light.

If anyone has ears to hear, let them hear.

He also said to them, "Pay attention to what you hear; with the measure you use, it will be measured to you; but to you who hear, more will be added."

For to him who has, more will be given; and from him who does not have, even what he has will be taken away.

He also said: the Kingdom of God is like a man who scattered seed on the ground, who slept, and who got up night and day;

And the seed germinated and grew, without him knowing how.

For the earth produces of itself, first the stalk, then the ear, and then the full grain in the ear;

And when the wheat is ripe, the sickle is put to it without ceasing, because the harvest is ready.

He also said: to what shall we compare the Kingdom of God, or by what likeness shall we represent it?

It is like the mustard seed, which, when sown in the earth, is indeed the smallest of all the seeds that are thrown into the earth.

But after it is sown, it grows up and becomes larger than all other plants, and puts out large branches, so that the birds of the sky can make their nests under its shade.

Thus, through many similar parables, he proclaimed to them the word [of God], as they were able to understand it.

And he did not speak to them without similarity; but in private he explained everything to his disciples.

But on that same day, when evening came, he said to them, "Let us go across the water."

And leaving the troops, they took him [with them], he already being in the gondola; and there were also other small gondolas with him.

And such a great whirlwind of wind arose that the waves were crashing into the gondola, so that it was already filling up.

Now he was in the stern, asleep on a pillow; and they woke him up and said to him, "Master, do you not care that we are perishing?"

But when he awoke, he rebuked the wind and said to the sea: be quiet, be still; and the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

Then he said to them, "Why are you so afraid? Do you still have no faith?"

And they were filled with great fear, and they said to one another, "Who is this,

that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

And they arrived beyond the sea, in the land of the Gadarenes.

And when he had come out of the boat, a man who had an unclean spirit first came out of the tombs and met him.

This man made his dwelling in the tombs, and no one could restrain him, not even with chains.

Because often, when he had been bound with irons and chains, he had broken the chains and smashed the irons to pieces, and no one could subdue him.

And he was continually night and day in the mountains and among the tombs, crying out and striking himself with stones.

But when he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and worshiped him.

And crying out in a loud voice, he said: What have we to do with you, Jesus, Son of the sovereign God? I adjure you in the name of God, do not torment me.

For [Jesus] was saying to him, "Come out of this man, you unclean spirit."

Then he asked him, "What is your name?" And he answered, "My name is Legion, because we are many."

And he earnestly begged him not to send them out of that country.

Now there was a large herd of pigs grazing there near the mountains.

And all these demons begged him, saying, "Send us into the pigs, so that we may enter them"; and immediately Jesus gave them permission.

Then these unclean spirits came out and entered the pigs, and the herd, which was about two thousand, threw itself up and down into the sea; and they were suffocated in the sea.

And those who were tending the pigs fled, and carried the news throughout the city and the villages.

And [those of the city] went out to see what had happened, and came to Jesus; and they saw the demon-possessed man, the one who had had the legion, sitting and clothed, and in his right mind; and they were filled with fear.

And those who had seen [the miracle] told them what had happened to the demoniac and to the pigs.

So they began to beg him to leave their quarters.

And when he had entered the gondola, the one who had been demonic begged him to allow him to be with him.

But Jesus did not allow him to do so, and said to him, "Go home to your family and tell them the great things the Lord has done for you, and how he has had mercy on you."

So he went away and began to proclaim in the Decapolis the great things that Jesus had done for him, and everyone was amazed.

And when Jesus had crossed back to the other shore in a boat, large crowds gathered around him, and he was near the sea.

And behold, one of the leaders of the synagogue, named Jairus, came to him, and seeing him, he fell at his feet.

And he begged him earnestly, saying: My little daughter is at the end of her life; [I beg you] to come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be healed and live.

[Jesus] then went with him; and large crowds of people followed him and pressed around him.

However, a woman who had been experiencing bleeding for twelve years,

And who had suffered greatly [at the hands] of many doctors, and had spent all his wealth, without having profited at all, but rather had gone on getting worse;

Having heard about Jesus, he came up behind the crowd and touched his garment.

For she said: if I only touch his clothes, I shall be healed.

And at that moment the bleeding stopped; and she felt in her body that she was healed of her affliction.

And immediately Jesus, recognizing in himself the virtue that had gone out from him, turned to the crowd, saying: who touched my clothes?

And his disciples said to him: you see that the crowd is pressing against you, and you say: who touched me?
But he looked all around to see who had done this.
Then the woman, trembling with fear, knowing what had been done to her, came and fell at his feet and told him the whole truth.
And he said to her, "Daughter, your faith has saved you; go in peace, and be healed of your affliction."
While he was still speaking, some people came from the Synagogue Leader's house and said to him: "Your daughter is dead, why are you still giving the Teacher trouble?" But Jesus, having immediately heard what was being said, said to the leader of the synagogue, "Do not be afraid; only believe."
And he allowed no one to follow him except Peter, James, and John, the brother of James.
Then he came to the house of the Synagogue Leader, and he saw the commotion, [that is], those who were weeping and shouting loudly.
And having entered, he said to them: why are you making all this noise, and why are you crying? The little girl is not dead, but she is asleep.
And they laughed at him. But [Jesus] having put them all out, took the father and mother of the little girl, and those who were with him, and went in where the little girl was lying.
And having taken the child's hand, he said to her: Talitha cumi, which, when explained, means: little girl (I tell you) get up.
And first the little girl got up and walked; for she was twelve years old; and they were greatly astonished.
And he expressly commanded them that no one should know about it; then he said that he should be given something to eat.
Then he left there and came to his own country; and his disciples followed him.
And when the Sabbath day came, he began to teach in the Synagogue; and many of those who heard him were amazed, and they said, "Where did this man get these things? And what is this wisdom that has been given to him? And that even such wonders are done by his hands?"
Isn't this a carpenter? Son of Mary, brother of James, Joses, Judas, and Simon? And aren't his sisters here with us? And they were scandalized because of him.
But Jesus said to them: A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, and among his parents and relatives.
And he could not perform any miracles there, except that he cured some of the sick by laying his hands on them.
And he was amazed at their disbelief, and traveled through the surrounding villages, teaching.
Then he called the twelve, and began to send them out two by two, and gave them power over the unclean spirits.
And he commanded them to take nothing for the journey except a single staff, [and to carry] neither bag, nor bread, nor money in their belts;
But to wear shoes, and not to wear two robes.
He also told them: wherever you enter a house, stay there until you leave.
And as for those who do not receive you or listen to you, shake the dust off your feet as a testimony against them. Truly I tell you, it will be more bearable for Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that town.
Having left, they preached that people should repent.
And they drove out many demons [from the possessed], and anointed many sick people with oil, and healed them.
Now King Herod heard of it, for the name [of Jesus] had become very famous, and he said, "This John who baptized has risen from the dead; therefore the power to work miracles is greatly at work in him."
Others said, "It is Elijah"; and others said, "He is a Prophet, or like one of the Prophets."

When Herod heard of this, he said, "It was John whom I beheaded; he has risen from the dead."

For Herod had sent and arrested John, and had him bound in prison, because of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip, whom he had married.

For John had been saying to Herod, "It is not lawful for you to have your brother's wife."

That is why Herodias resented him and wanted to kill him, but she could not.

For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he respected him, and when he heard him, he did many things [that John had said to do], for he listened to him willingly.

But one day, when the time came, when Herod was holding a feast on his birthday for the great lords, captains, and leaders of Galilee, Herodias' daughter went in and danced, and having pleased Herod and those who were at table with him, the King said to the girl: ask me for whatever you want, and I will give it to you.

And he swore to him, saying: whatever you ask of me, I will give you, up to half of my kingdom.

And she went out and said to her mother, "What shall I ask for?" And [her mother] said to her, "The head of John the Baptist."

Then, having immediately returned hastily to the King, she made her request, saying: I would like you to give me immediately, on a platter, the head of John the Baptist.

And the King was very distressed by this, but he did not want to refuse it because of the oath, and because of those who were at table with him:

And he immediately sent one of his guards, and commanded him to bring John's head:

[the guard] went there, and beheaded [John] in the prison;

And he brought his head in a dish, and gave it to the girl, and the girl gave it to her mother.

When the disciples [of John] heard about this, they came and took his body away and laid it in a tomb.

Then the Apostles gathered around Jesus and told him all they had done and taught.

And he said to them, "Come away by yourselves to a secluded place and rest a while, for there were many people coming and going, so that they did not even have time to eat."

So they went away in a gondola to a secluded place, to be alone there.

But the people saw that they were leaving, and many, recognizing him, ran on foot from all the towns, and arrived there before them, and gathered around him.

And Jesus went out and saw large crowds there, and he had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things.

And as it was already late, his disciples approached him, saying: this place is deserted, and it is already late.

Give them leave, so that they may go to the surrounding villages and towns, and buy some bread for themselves; for they have nothing to eat.

And he answered them, and said, "You give them something to eat." And they said to him, "Shall we go and buy two hundred denarii worth of bread, in order to give it to them to eat?"

And he said to them, "How many loaves do you have? Go and see." And when they knew, they said, "Five, and two fish."

Then he ordered them to make them all sit down in groups on the green grass.

And they sat down in groups, some of a hundred, and others of fifty.

And when he had taken the five loaves and the two fish, looking up to heaven, he blessed [God], and broke the loaves, then gave them to his disciples, so that they might place them before them, and he divided the two fish among them all.

And they all ate it, and were satisfied.

And they took away twelve baskets full of pieces of bread, and some leftover fish. Now those who had eaten the loaves were about five thousand men.

And immediately afterwards he made his disciples get on the boat and go before him beyond the [sea] to Bethsaida, while he dismissed the troops.

And when he had given them leave, he went up on the mountain to pray.

And when evening came, the boat was in the middle of the sea, and he alone was on land.

And he saw that they were having great difficulty rowing, because the wind was against them; and about the fourth watch of the night, he went out to them, walking on the sea, and he wanted to get ahead of them.

But when they saw him walking on the sea, they thought it was a ghost, and they cried out.

For they all saw him, and were troubled; but he immediately spoke to them, and said to them: be assured, it is I; do not be afraid.

And he climbed up to them in the boat, and the wind ceased; which greatly increased their astonishment and admiration.

For they had not properly reflected on the [miracle of the] loaves; because their hearts were stupid.

And when they had passed beyond the sea, they arrived in the land of Gennesaret, where they landed.

And after they had gotten out of the gondola, those from the place recognized him first.

And they ran here and there throughout the surrounding countryside, and began to bring him sick people in small beds from all sides, wherever they heard he was.

And everywhere he entered the towns, or cities, or villages, they put the sick in the marketplaces, and they begged him to allow them at least to touch the edge of his robe; and all those who touched it were healed.

Then the Pharisees, and some scribes who had come from Jerusalem, gathered around him.

And having seen that some of his disciples were eating their meals with soiled hands, that is, without being washed, they blamed them.

(For the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat unless they frequently wash their hands, holding fast to the traditions of the elders.

And when they return from the market, they do not eat unless they have washed. There are several other observances they have undertaken, such as washing cups, pots, bronze vessels, and beds.

The Pharisees and the scribes then questioned him, saying, "Why do your disciples not live according to the tradition of the elders, but eat their meals without washing their hands?"

And he answered them, and said to them, "Surely Isaiah prophesied rightly about you hypocrites, as it is written: 'These people honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me.'"

But they honor me in vain, teaching doctrines [which are only] the commandments of men.

For you have let go of the commandment of God, and hold fast to the tradition of men, [namely] to wash pots and cups, and you do many other things like these.

He also said to them: you are indeed nullifying the commandment of God in order to observe your tradition.

For Moses said: Honor your father and your mother; and whoever curses his father or his mother shall die.

But you say: if anyone says to his father or mother, the gift that will be given from me will come to your benefit, he will not be guilty.

And you no longer allow him to do anything for his father or his mother.

Thus nullifying the word of God by your tradition which you have established; and you do many things like this.

Then, having called all the troops together, he said to them: Listen to me, all of you, and hear.

There is nothing outside a person that by going into them can defile them; but the things that come out of a person are what defile them.

If anyone has ears to hear, let them hear.

Then when he had entered the house, [having withdrawn] from the troops, his disciples questioned him concerning this similarity.

And he said to them, "Are you also without understanding? Do you not understand that nothing that enters a person from the outside can defile them?"

Because it does not enter his heart, but his stomach, from where it is then thrown into the secret place, thus purifying [the body] of all meats.

But he told them: what comes out of a man is what defiles him.

For from within, [that is to say] from the hearts of men, come evil thoughts, adultery, fornication, murder,

Theft, bad practices to obtain the property of others, wickedness, fraud, immodesty, malicious looks, outrageous speech, pride, madness.

All these evils come from within, and defile man.

Then, leaving from there, he went towards the borders of Tyre and Sidon; and having entered a house, he did not want anyone to know; but he could not be hidden.

For a woman who had a little daughter possessed by an unclean spirit, having heard of him, came and fell at his feet;

(Now this woman was Greek, Syro-Phoenician by birth) and she begged him to drive the demon out of her daughter.

But Jesus said to him, "First let the children be fed, for it is not right to take the children's bread and throw it to the dogs."

And she answered him, and said: that is true, Lord! yet even little dogs eat under the table the crumbs that children drop.

Then he said to her: because of this saying, go away: the demon has left your daughter.

When she had gone home, she found that the demon had left, and that her daughter was lying on the bed.

Then [Jesus] having set out again from the borders of Tyre and Sidon, he came to the Sea of Galilee through the middle of the country of the Decapolis.

And they brought to him a deaf man who was unable to speak, and they asked him to lay his hands on him.

And [Jesus] took him aside, away from the crowd, put his fingers into his ears; and spitting, he touched his tongue.

Then looking up to heaven, he sighed, and said to him, "Ephphatha," that is, "Be opened."

And immediately his ears were opened, and the bond of his tongue was loosened, and he spoke easily.

And [Jesus] commanded them not to tell anyone; but the more he forbade it, the more they proclaimed it.

And they were extremely amazed, saying: he has done everything well; he makes the deaf hear, and the mute speak.

In those days, when there was a very large crowd there, and they had nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples to him and said to them:

I am moved with compassion for this multitude, for they have not left my side for three days, and they have nothing to eat.

And if I send them back to their homes fasting, they will faint on the way, because some of them have come from far away.

And his disciples answered him: where in the desert can they be fed with bread?

And he asked them, "How many loaves do you have?" They told him, "Seven."

Then he commanded the troops to sit down on the ground, and he took the seven loaves, and after blessing [God] he broke them, and gave them to his disciples to place before the troops; and they placed them before them.

They also had some small fish; and after he had blessed [God], he commanded that they also put them before them.

And they ate and were satisfied; and they took up seven baskets of leftover pieces of bread.

(Now those who had eaten were about four thousand). And then he dismissed them.

And immediately afterwards he boarded a gondola with his Disciples, and went to the quarters of Dalmanutha.

And there came some Pharisees who began to argue with him, and who, to test him, asked him for some miracle from heaven.

Then [Jesus], sighing deeply in his spirit, said: Why does this generation ask for a sign? Truly I tell you, it will not be given to it.

Leaving them, he climbed back into the gondola and crossed to the other shore.

But they had forgotten to take loaves of bread, and they only had one with them in the boat.

And he commanded them, saying: See, beware of the yeast of the Pharisees, and of the yeast of Herod.

And they were discussing among themselves, saying: it is because we have no bread.

And Jesus, knowing this, said to them, "Why are you talking about having no bread? Do you still not consider and understand? Are your hearts still dull?"

Having eyes, do you not see? Having ears, do you not hear? And do you not remember?

When I distributed the five loaves to the five thousand men, how many baskets full of the leftover coins did you collect? They told him: twelve.

And when I distributed the seven loaves to the four thousand men, how many baskets full of the coins that were left over did you collect? They told him: Seven.

And he said to them, "How is it that you have no understanding?"

Then he came to Bethsaida, and they brought a blind man to him, begging him to touch him.

Then he took the blind man's hand and led him out of the village, and having put some of his saliva on his eyes and laid his hands on him, he asked him if he could see anything.

And this man, having looked, said: I see men walking, and they [appear to me] like trees.

[Jesus] again laid his hands on his eyes and commanded him to look; and he was restored, and saw them all clearly from a distance.

Then he sent him back to his house, saying to him: do not go into the village, and do not tell anyone in the village.

And Jesus and his disciples left there and came to the villages of Caesarea Philippi, and on the way he asked his disciples, saying to them, "Who do men say that I am?"

They replied: [Some say you are] John the Baptist; others, Elijah; and still others, one of the Prophets.

Then he said to them, "And you, who do you say that I am?" Peter answered him, "You are the Christ."

And he forbade them, with threats, to tell anyone about him.

And he began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests and the scribes, and that he must be killed and after three days rise again.

And he spoke these words quite openly; whereupon Peter took him [privately], and began to rebuke him.

But he turned around and looked at his disciples and rebuked Peter, saying, "Get behind me, Satan; for you do not understand the things that are of God, but those that are of men."

Then, having called the troops and his disciples together, he said to them: whoever wants to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

For whoever wants to save his soul will lose it; but whoever loses his soul for my sake and for the sake of the gospel will save it.

For what would it profit a man to gain the whole world, yet forfeit his soul?
Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul?
For whoever is ashamed of me and my words among this adulterous and sinful nation, the Son of Man will also be ashamed of him when he comes with the glory of his Father and the holy angels.
He also told them: Truly I tell you, some who are standing here will not taste death before they see the kingdom of God come with power.
Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter, James, and John, and led them up a high mountain by themselves, and he was transfigured before them.
And his clothes became shining and white as snow, such that no fuller on earth could whiten them.
And at the same time Elijah and Moses appeared to them, talking with Jesus.
Then Peter spoke up and said to Jesus, "Master, it is good that we are here; let us make three tabernacles here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah."
But he didn't know what he was saying, because they were terrified.
And a cloud came and covered them with its shadow; and a voice came from the cloud, saying, "This is my beloved Son, listen to him."
And immediately, having looked all around, they saw no one except Jesus alone with them.
And as they were coming down the mountain, he specifically commanded them not to tell anyone what they had seen, except after the Son of Man had risen from the dead.
And they pondered this saying among themselves, asking one another what it meant to raise the dead.
Then they questioned him, saying: why do the Scribes say that Elijah must come first?

He answered, and said to them: It is true, since Elijah came first, he must restore all things, and as it is written of the Son of Man, he must suffer many things and be full of contempt.
But I tell you that even Elijah came, and they did to him whatever they pleased, just as it is written about him.
Then, returning to the Disciples, he saw around them a large group, and Scribes who were arguing with them.
And as soon as all the troops saw him, they were filled with amazement; and they ran to greet him.
And he questioned the Scribes, saying: What are you arguing about with them?
And someone from the troupe spoke up and said: Master, I have brought you my son who has a mute spirit.
Which cruelly agitates him wherever it seizes him, and he foams, and grinds his teeth, and becomes dry; and I prayed to your Disciples to drive out this demon, but they could not.
Then Jesus answered him, saying: O unbelieving generation! How long shall I stay with you? How long shall I put up with you? Bring him to me.
And they brought him to him; and when he saw him the spirit immediately agitated him violently, so that [the child] fell to the ground, and turned to and frothing about.

And [Jesus] asked the child's father, "How long has this been happening to him?" He said, "From childhood;
And often he threw him into the fire and into the water to destroy him; but if you can do anything, help us, being moved with compassion for us.
Then Jesus said to him, "If you can believe, all things are possible to the believer."
And immediately the child's father, crying out with tears, said: I believe, Lord!
Help me in my unbelief.
And when Jesus saw that the people were rushing upon one another, he strongly rebuked

the unclean spirit, saying to it: "You mute and deaf spirit, I command you, come out of him and never enter him again."

And [the demon] came out screaming, and caused [the child] much suffering, so much so that he became like a dead man, so much so that many said: he is dead.

But Jesus took him by the hand and helped him up; and he stood up.

Then [Jesus] entered the house, and his disciples asked him privately, "Why could we not drive him out?"

And he replied to them: this kind of [demons] cannot leave except through prayer and fasting.

And having left there, they crossed Galilee; but he did not want anyone to know about it.

Now he taught his disciples, and said to them: the Son of Man is going to be delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill him, but after he has been killed he will rise again on the third day.

But they did not understand this speech, and they were afraid to question him.

After these things he came to Capernaum, and when he arrived at the house, he asked them: What were you arguing about on the way?

And they remained silent, for they had argued together on the way about who was the greatest.

And after he had sat down, he called the twelve together and said to them, "If anyone wants to be first [among you], he must be the very last of all, and the servant of all."

And having taken a little child, he placed him in the midst of them, and after taking him in his arms, he said to them:

Whoever receives one of these little children in my name receives me; and whoever receives me does not receive me but the one who sent me.

Then John spoke up and said, "Master, we saw someone driving out demons in your name, but he does not follow us; and we stopped him, because he does not follow us."

But Jesus said to them, "Do not stop him, for there is no one who does a miracle in my name who can immediately speak ill of me."

Because whoever is not against us is for us.

And whoever gives you a cup of water to drink in my name, because you belong to Christ, truly I tell you, he will by no means lose his reward.

But whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to stumble, it would be better for him to have a millstone hung around his neck and to be thrown into the sea.

But if your hand causes you to stumble, cut it off: it is better for you to enter life maimed than to have two hands and go into hell, into the unquenchable fire; Where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.

And if your foot makes you stumble, cut it off: it is better for you to enter life lame than to have two feet and be thrown into hell, into the unquenchable fire; Where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.

And if your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out: it is better for you to enter the Kingdom of God with one eye than to have two eyes and be thrown into the fire of hell;

Where their worm does not die, and where the fire is not quenched.

For each one will be seasoned with fire, and every offering will be seasoned with salt.

Salt is a good thing; but if salt loses its flavor, how can its flavor be restored?

Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another.

Then, having left there, he came to the borders of Judea, beyond the Jordan, and the troops having again gathered around him, he taught them as he had been accustomed to do.

Then some Pharisees came to him, and to test him they asked him, "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?"

He answered, and said to them, "What did Moses command you?"

They said: Moses allowed the writing of the Letter of Divorce, and to divorce [his wife].

And Jesus answered them, saying: He gave you this commandment because of the hardness of your heart.

But at the beginning of creation, God made a man and a woman.

That is why a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife;

And the two will become one flesh: so they are no longer two, but one flesh.

Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate.

Then his disciples questioned him again about this, even in the house.

And he said to them: whoever leaves his wife and marries another commits adultery against her.

Similarly, if a woman leaves her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.

And people brought little children to him so that he might touch them; but the disciples rebuked those who brought them;

And Jesus, seeing this, was indignant, and he said to them, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these."

Truly I tell you, anyone who will not receive the kingdom of God like a little child will never enter it.

After taking them in his arms, he blessed them, placing his hands on them.

And as he went out to begin his journey, a man ran up and knelt before him and asked him, "Master, who is good, what must I do to inherit eternal life?"

And Jesus answered him, "Why do you call me good? There is no one who is good except God."

You know the Commandments: Do not commit adultery. Do not murder. Do not steal. Do not bear false witness. Do not wrong anyone. Honor your father and your mother.

He answered, and said to him, "Master, I have kept all these things from my youth."

And Jesus, having looked upon him, loved him, and said to him, you lack one thing; go, and sell all that you have, and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, and follow me, having taken up the cross.

But he was upset by this remark, and went away very sad, because he had great wealth.

Then Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it is for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of God!"

And his disciples were astonished at these words; but Jesus, speaking again, said to them: My children, how hard it is for those who trust in riches to enter the Kingdom of God!

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.

And they were even more astonished, saying to one another, "Who then can be saved?"

But Jesus looked at them and said, "With man this is impossible, but not with God; for with God all things are possible."

Then Peter began to say to him: Look, we have left everything and followed you.

And Jesus answered, "Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left home or brothers or sisters or father or mother or wife or children or fields for my sake and for the sake of the gospel."

Who will not receive now in this age a hundred times as much, houses, brothers, sisters, mother, children, and fields, along with persecutions; and in the age to come, eternal life.

But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.

Now they were on their way, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was going before them; and they were terrified and afraid as they followed him, because Jesus had taken the twelve aside again and began to tell them what was going to happen to him;

[Saying]: Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem; and the Son of Man will be delivered over to the chief priests and the scribes; and they will condemn him to death, and deliver him over to the Gentiles;

They will mock him, and whip him, and spit on him, and then kill him; but he will rise again on the third day.
Then James and John, sons of Zebedee, came to him, saying, "Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you."
And he said to them, "What do you want me to do for you?"
And they said to him, "Grant us that in your glory we may sit, one at your right hand and the other at your left."
And Jesus said to them, "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup I am going to drink, and be baptized with the baptism I am going to be baptized with?"
They answered him, "We can." And Jesus said to them, "It is true that you will drink the cup that I am going to drink, and that you will be baptized with the baptism with which I am going to be baptized;
But to sit at my right and at my left, that is not for me to give; but [it will be given] to those for whom it is prepared.
When the ten [others] heard this, they became indignant against James and John.
And Jesus called them together and said to them, "You know that those who rule over the nations lord it over them, and that their great ones exercise authority over them."
But it will not be so among you; but whoever wants to be the greatest among you must be your servant.
And whoever among you wants to be first must be the servant of all.
For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many.
Then they arrived at Jericho; and as he was leaving Jericho with his disciples and a large company, a blind man, [called] Bartimaeus, [that is], son of Timaeus, was sitting on the road, begging.
And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to shout, saying, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"
And many rebuked him severely, telling him to be quiet; but he cried out all the more, "Son of David, have mercy on me!"
And Jesus stopped and said, "Let them call him." So they called him, saying, "Take courage, get up, he is calling you."
And throwing off his cloak, he got up and came to Jesus.
And Jesus, speaking to him, said: what do you want me to do for you? And the blind man said to him: Master, let me regain my sight.
And Jesus said to him, "Go, your faith has saved you."
And immediately he regained his sight, and he followed Jesus along the road.
And as they approached Jerusalem, near Bethphage and Bethany, at the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples,
And he said to them: Go to that village which is opposite you; and when you enter it, you will find a donkey tied there, on which no man has ever sat; untie it, and bring it here.
And if someone asks you, "Why are you doing this?" say, "The Lord needs it," and first he will send it here.
So they set out and found the donkey tied outside by the gate, between two paths, and they untied it.
And some of those who were there said to them, "Why are you untying that donkey?"
And they answered them as Jesus had commanded; and they were allowed to do so.
So they brought the donkey to Jesus, and put their clothes on the donkey, and he sat on it.
Many spread their garments along the road, and others cut branches from the trees and scattered them along the road.

And those who went in front, and those who followed, shouted, saying: Hosanna!
Blessed is he who comes in the Name of the Lord!
Blessed be the reign of David our father, [the reign] which comes in the Name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest!
Jesus entered Jerusalem and the Temple, and after looking around, as it was already late, he left to go to Bethany with the twelve.
And the next day, on his return from Bethany, he was hungry.
And seeing in the distance a fig tree which had leaves, he went to see if he would find anything on it, but when he came there, he found nothing but leaves; for it was not the season for figs.
And Jesus spoke up and said to the fig tree, "May no one ever eat fruit from you again." And his disciples heard him.
So they came to Jerusalem, and when Jesus entered the Temple, he began to drive out those who were selling and those who were buying in the Temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who were selling doves.
And he did not allow anyone to carry any vessel through the Temple.
And he taught them, saying, "Is it not written? 'My house shall be called a house of prayer by all nations,' but you have made it a den of robbers."
Having heard this, the scribes and chief priests sought how they might destroy him; for they feared him, because all the people admired his teaching.
And when evening came, he left the city.
And in the morning, as they passed by the fig tree, they saw that it had become dry right down to the roots.
And Peter, remembering [what had happened], said to Jesus, "Master, behold, the fig tree that you cursed is completely withered."
And Jesus answered them, "Believe in God."
For truly I tell you, whoever says to this mountain, "Go, throw yourself into the sea," and does not waver in heart but believes that what he says will happen, everything he says will be done to him.
Therefore I tell you: whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you will receive it, and it will be done for you.
But when you come to pray, if you hold anything against anyone, forgive them, so that your Father in heaven may forgive you your sins.
But if you do not forgive, your Father in heaven will not forgive your sins.
They returned again to Jerusalem, and as he walked in the Temple, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders came to him,
And they said to him, "By what authority are you doing these things, and who is it that gave you this authority to do the things that you are doing?"
And Jesus answered them, "I will ask you one thing, and answer me; then I will tell you by what authority I do these things."
Was John's baptism from heaven, or from men? Answer me.
And they reasoned among themselves, saying, "If we say from heaven, 'He will say to us,' then why did you not believe him?"
And if we say: men, we have to fear the people; for all believed that John had been a true Prophet.
So in response they said to Jesus, "We do not know." And Jesus answered them, "I will not tell you by what authority I do these things."
Then he began to tell them a parable: "Someone," he said, "planted a vineyard and put a hedge around it, dug a pit for a winepress, and built a tower in it. Then he rented it to some vine-growers and went away."
Now in the grape season he sent a servant to the vinedressers, to receive from them some of the fruit of the vine.
But they seized him, beat him, and sent him away empty-handed.
He sent them yet another servant; and they stoned him, struck him on the head, and sent him away, after having treated him shamefully.

He sent yet another, whom they killed; and several others, some of whom they beat, and others they killed.

But having one more Son, whom he loved, he sent to them also as the last, saying, "They shall respect my Son."

But these winegrowers said to one another: this is the heir, come, let's kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.

So they took him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard.

What will the Lord of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others.

And have you not read this Scripture? The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone;

This was done by the Lord, and it is a marvelous thing before our eyes.

So they tried to seize him, but they were afraid of the people; for they knew that he had said this parable against them; therefore they left him and went away.

But they sent some of the Pharisees and Herodians to catch him in his speeches;

Those who came to him said, "Teacher, we know that you are a man of integrity and that you pay no heed to anyone; for you do not show partiality, but teach the way of God in accordance with the truth. Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar or not? Shall we pay them, or shall we not?"

But [Jesus], knowing their hypocrisy, said to them, "Why are you testing me? Bring me a denarius, that I may see it."

And they presented it to him. Then he said to them, "Whose image is this, and whose inscription?" They answered him, "Caesar's."

And Jesus answered them, "Give back to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." And they were amazed.

Then the Sadducees, who say that there is no resurrection, came to him and questioned him, saying:

Master, Moses left us in writing: that if a man's brother dies and leaves his wife but no children, his brother must take his wife and raise up offspring for his brother.

Now there were seven brothers, the eldest of whom took a wife, and when he died he left no children.

And the second took her, and died, and he too left no children; and the third did the same.

So the seven took her, and left no children; the woman also died, the last of all.

In the resurrection, then, when they are resurrected, whose wife will she be? For the seven had her as their wife.

And Jesus answered them, "The reason you are falling into error is that you do not know the Scriptures, nor the power of God."

For when they are raised from the dead, they will neither marry nor be given wives in marriage, but will be like the angels in heaven.

And as for the dead, [to show you] that they rise again, have you not read in the Book of Moses, how God spoke to him in the burning bush, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?

[But] he is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living. You are therefore greatly mistaken.

And one of the Scribes who had heard them arguing, seeing that he had answered them well, approached him, and asked him: which is the first of all the Commandments?

And Jesus answered him: the first of all the Commandments is: Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is one;

And you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength. This is the first commandment.

And the second, which is like the first, is this: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. There is no other commandment greater than these.

And the Scribe said to him: Master, you have spoken the truth well, that there is only one God, and that there is no other besides him;

And to love him with all your heart, with all your understanding, with all your soul, and with all your strength; and to love your neighbor as yourself, is more than all burnt offerings and sacrifices.

And Jesus, seeing that [this Scribe] had answered prudently, said to him, "You are not far from the Kingdom of God." And no one dared to question him any further.

And as Jesus was teaching in the Temple, he spoke up and said, "How do the scribes say that the Christ is the Son of David?"

For David himself said by the Holy Spirit: The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet.

Since David himself calls him [his] Lord, how can he be his son? And great troops delighted to hear him.

He also told them while teaching them: beware of the Scribes, who take pleasure in walking around in long robes, and [who love] greetings in the marketplaces.

And the best seats in the Synagogues, and the best places at banquets;

Those who devour widows' houses entirely, even under the pretext of making long prayers. They will receive a greater condemnation.

And Jesus, sitting opposite the treasury, observed how the people put money into the treasury.

And many rich people put a lot in; and a poor widow came, who put in two small coins, which are a quarter of a penny.

And [Jesus] having called his disciples, he said to them: truly I tell you, this poor widow has put more into the treasury than all those who have put into it.

For they all contributed out of their surplus; but she, out of her poverty, put in everything she had, all her sustenance.

And as he was leaving the Temple, one of his disciples said to him, "Master, look at the stones and the buildings."

And Jesus answered him, "Do you see these great buildings? Not one stone in them will be left upon another; every one will be thrown down."

And as he sat down on the Mount of Olives opposite the Temple, Peter and James, John and Andrew questioned him privately,

[Saying]: Tell us when these things will happen, and what sign there will be when all these things are to be fulfilled.

And Jesus answered them, and began to say to them: beware lest anyone deceive you.

For many will come in my name, saying, "I am the Christ." And they will deceive many.

But when you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed, for these things must happen, but the end is not yet.

For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there will be earthquakes from place to place, and famines and disturbances: these are but the first pains.

But beware of yourselves: for they will hand you over to the Consistories and Synagogues; you will be flogged, and you will be brought before governors and kings, for my sake, to bear witness to them.

But first the Gospel must be preached in all nations.

And when they arrest you to hand you over, do not worry beforehand about what to say, nor meditate on it, but say whatever is given you at that time, for it is not you who are speaking, but the Holy Spirit.

But brother will betray brother to death, and father the child; and children will rise up against their fathers and mothers and have them put to death.

And you will be hated by everyone because of my name; but whoever perseveres to the end will be saved.

But when you see the abomination that causes desolation, which was foretold by Daniel the Prophet, standing where it ought not to be (let the reader understand this!), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains.

And let the one who is in charge of the house not go down into the house, nor enter it to take anything from his house.
And let him who is in the field not turn back to take his clothes.
But woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days.

Or pray [to God] that your flight does not occur in winter.
For in those days there will be such grief as has not been from the beginning of the creation of the things that God created until now, and there will never be one like it.
And if the Lord had not shortened those days, no one would have been saved; but he shortened those days for the sake of the elect whom he chose.
And if anyone tells you, "Look, here is the Christ!" or "Look, there he is!" do not believe it.
For false Christs and false prophets will arise and perform signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect.
But beware; behold, I have foretold it all to you.
But in those days, after that affliction, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light;
And the stars of the sky will fall, and the virtues that are in the heavens will be shaken.
And then they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds, with great power and great glory.
And then he will send out his angels, and he will gather his elect from the four winds, from the ends of the earth to the ends of heaven.
Or learn this analogy from the fig tree: when its branch is full of sap, and it throws off leaves, you know that summer is near.
So when you see these things happening, know that he is near, and at the door.
Truly I tell you, this generation will certainly not pass away until all these things have happened.
Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.
But about that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only my Father.
Pay attention [to everything], watch and pray: for you do not know when that time will come.
[It is] as if a man going out, and leaving his house, gave employment to his servants, and to each his task, and commanded the doorkeeper to keep watch.
Therefore keep watch: for you do not know when the Lord of the house will come, whether in the evening, or at midnight, or when the rooster crows, or in the morning;

For fear that, arriving suddenly, he might find you asleep.
But the things that I tell you, I tell everyone; be watchful.
Now the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread were two days later; and the chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to seize [Jesus] by cunning and kill him.
But they said: not during the Festival, lest there be a tumult among the people.
And while he was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, and was reclining at table, a woman came there having an alabaster jar filled with very expensive perfume of pure nard; and she broke the jar and poured the perfume on Jesus' head.
And some were indignant in their hearts, and they said, "What good is the waste of this perfume?"
For it could be sold for more than three hundred denarii and given to the poor. So they murmured against her.
But Jesus said, "Leave her alone; why are you giving her grief? She has done a good deed for me."
Because you will always have poor people with you, and you can do good to them whenever you want; but you will not always have me.

She did what was in her power; she anticipated anointing my body for [the apparatus of] my burial.

Truly I tell you, wherever this Gospel is preached in the world, this also that she did will be recited in her memory.

Then Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went to the chief priests to betray him to them.

Those who heard this rejoiced and promised to give him money, and he was looking for a convenient way to deliver it.

Now on the first day of Unleavened Bread, on which the Passover lamb was sacrificed, his disciples said to him, "Where do you want us to go and prepare the Passover lamb for you to eat?"

And he sent two of his disciples, and said to them, "Go into the city, and a man will come to meet you, carrying a jug of water; follow him."

And wherever he enters, say to the master of the house: The Teacher says: Where is the guest room where I may eat the Passover lamb with my disciples?

And he will show you a large room, adorned and prepared; prepare for us there [the Passover lamb].

So his disciples went away; and when they arrived in the city, they found everything just as he had told them, and they prepared the Passover lamb.

And in the evening [Jesus] himself came with the twelve.

And as they were at the table, and eating, Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, one of you who eats with me will betray me."

And they began to grieve; and they said to him one after another: Is it I? and the other: Is it I?

But he answered, and said to them: it is one of the twelve who dips with me in the dish.

Surely the Son of Man will go, just as it is written of him; but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that man if he had not been born.

And as they were eating, Jesus took the bread, and after blessing [God], he broke it, and gave it to them, and said to them: Take, eat, this is my body.

Then he took the cup, gave thanks, and gave it to them; and they all drank from it.

And he said to them: This is my blood, the blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many.

Truly I tell you, I will not drink again of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the Kingdom of God.

And when they had sung the song, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

And Jesus said to them, "This night you will all fall away because of me, for it is written: 'I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.'"

But after I have risen from the dead, I will go before you into Galilee.

And Peter said to him: even if everyone were scandalized, I would not be.

And Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, this very night, before the rooster crows twice, you will deny me three times."

But [Peter] said even more emphatically: Even if I have to die with you, I will not deny you; and they all said the same thing to him.

Then they came to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, "Sit here until I have prayed."

And he took with him Peter, James, and John, and he began to be frightened and very disturbed.

And he said to them, "My soul is overcome with sorrow to the point of death. Stay here and keep watch."

Then going a little further, he threw himself to the ground, and he prayed that if it were possible, the hour would pass behind him.

And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible for you; carry this cup back from me; yet not what I will, but what you will.

Then he returned and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, "Simon, are you asleep? Couldn't you watch for one hour?"

Be on your guard and pray that you will not fall into temptation. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.

And he went away again, and prayed, saying the same words.

Then, when he returned, he found them still asleep, for their eyes were heavy; and they did not know what to answer him.

He came again, a third time, and said to them, "Sleep and rest from now on; it is enough, the hour has come; behold, the Son of Man is about to be betrayed into the hands of the wicked."

Rise, let us go; behold, the one who betrays me is approaching.

And immediately, while he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a large company with swords and clubs, sent by the chief priests, scribes, and elders.

But the one who betrayed him had given a signal between them, saying: the one I will kiss is him; seize him, and take him away safely.

When he came, he immediately approached him and said, "Master, Master," and kissed him.

Then they laid hands on Jesus and seized him.

And one of those who were present drew his sword and struck the servant of the high priest, cutting off his ear.

Then Jesus spoke up and said to them, "Have you come out as against a robber, with swords and clubs, to capture me?"

I was with you every day teaching in the Temple, and you did not arrest me; but [all this happened] so that the Scriptures might be fulfilled.

Then all [his disciples] abandoned him and fled.

And a certain young man was following him, wrapped in a shroud over his naked body; and some young men seized him.

But abandoning his shroud, he fled from them completely naked.

And they brought Jesus to the high priest, at whose house all the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes assembled.

And Peter followed him at a distance, right into the courtyard of the high priest; and he sat with the servants, warming himself by the fire.

Now the chief priests and the whole consistory were looking for some testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death, but they could find none.

For many gave false testimony against him, but the testimonies were not sufficient.

Then some people rose up and gave false testimony against him, saying:

We heard that he said: I will destroy this Temple which is made by hand, and in three days I will rebuild another which will not be made by hand.

But even with all that, their testimonies were not sufficient.

Then the high priest stood up in the midst and questioned Jesus, saying, "Have you nothing to answer? What are these men testifying against you?"

But he remained silent and did not answer. The high priest questioned him again, saying, "Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed One?"

And Jesus said to him, "I am; and you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the power [of God], and coming on the clouds of heaven."

Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "What further need do we have of witnesses?"

You have heard the blasphemy: what do you think? Then they all condemned him as deserving of death.

And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to strike him; and they said to him: prophesy; and the sergeants struck him with their rods.

Now when Peter was down in the courtyard, one of the servant girls of the high priest came.

And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked at him face to face and said, "And you were with Jesus of Nazareth."

But he denied it, saying: I do not know him, and I do not know what you are saying; then he went out into the vestibule, and the rooster crowed.

And the servant girl, having looked at him again, began to say to those who were present: this man is one of them.

But he denied it a second time. And a little later, those who were there said to Peter, "Surely you are one of them, for you are a Galilean, and your speech reflects that."

Then he began to curse himself and swear, saying: I do not know this man you are talking about.

And the rooster crowed a second time; and Peter remembered the word that Jesus had spoken to him: "Before the rooster crows twice, you will deny me three times." And he went out and wept.

And first in the morning the chief priests, with the elders and scribes, and the whole consistory, having held council, had Jesus bound, and led him away, and handed him over to Pilate.

And Pilate questioned him, saying, "Are you the King of the Jews?" And [Jesus] answered him, "You say so."

Now the chief priests accused him of many things, but he did not answer.

And Pilate questioned him again, saying: Have you nothing to say? See how many things they are bringing against you.

But Jesus did not answer either; so that Pilate was astonished.

But he would release to them at the Festival a prisoner, whoever they asked for.

And there was one, named Barabbas, who was imprisoned with his accomplices for a sedition, in which they had committed murder.

And the people, shouting aloud, began to ask [Pilate to do] as he had always done to them.

But Pilate answered them, saying, "Do you want me to release to you the King of the Jews?"

(For he knew full well that the chief priests had betrayed him out of envy.)

But the chief priests urged the people to demand that Barabbas be released instead.

And Pilate, replying, said to them again: what do you want me to do with the one you call King of the Jews?

And they cried out again: crucify him!

Then Pilate said to them, "But what evil has he done?" And they cried out even louder, "Crucify him!"

Pilate, therefore, wanting to satisfy the people, released Barabbas to them; and after having Jesus flogged, he handed him over to be crucified.

Then the soldiers took him into the courtyard, which is the Praetorium, and the whole cohort assembled there,

They dressed him in a purple robe, and having made a crown of thorns entwined one with the other, they put it on his head;

Then they began to greet him, [saying to him]: We greet you, King of the Jews;

And they struck him on the head with a reed, and spat on him; and kneeling down, they prostrated themselves before him.

And after they had mocked him, they stripped him of the purple robe and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him.

And they compelled a certain [man, named] Simon, a Cyrenian, father of Alexander and Rufus, who was passing by, coming in from the fields, to carry his cross.

And they led him to the place [called] Golgotha, that is, the place of the Skull.

And they offered him wine mixed with myrrh to drink, but he did not take it.

And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes by casting lots to see what each would get.

But it was three o'clock when they crucified him.

And the placard containing the cause of his condemnation was: THE KING OF THE JEWS. They also crucified two robbers with him, one on his right hand and the other on his left.

And thus was fulfilled the Scripture which says: And he was numbered with the transgressors.

And those who passed by hurled insults at him, shaking their heads and saying, "Hey! You who destroy the Temple and rebuild it in three days!"

Save yourself, and come down from the cross.

The chief priests, also mocking the scribes, said to each other: he saved others, he cannot save himself.

Let Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross, so that we may see him and believe! Those who were crucified with him also heaped insults upon him.

But when it was six o'clock, darkness came over the whole land until nine o'clock.

And at nine o'clock Jesus cried out in a loud voice, saying: Eloi, Eloi, lamma sabachthani? that is to say: My God! My God! why have you forsaken me?

When some of those who were present heard this, they said: "Look, he is calling for Elijah."

And someone ran up, filled a sponge with vinegar, and having put it on the end of a reed, gave it to him to drink, saying: let's see if Elijah will come to take him down from the cross.

And Jesus, having given up a loud cry, breathed his last.

And the veil of the Temple was torn in two, from top to bottom.

And the centurion who was standing opposite him, seeing that he had given up his spirit while crying out in this way, said: surely this man was the Son of God.

There were also women there watching from a distance, among whom were Mary Magdalene, and Mary [mother] of James the Less, and of Joses, and Salome.

Those who, when he was in Galilee, had followed him and served him; [there were] also several other women who had gone up with him to Jerusalem.

And evening had already come, because it was the Preparation Day which is before the Sabbath;

Joseph of Arimathea, an honorable Counselor, who was also waiting for the Kingdom of God, having become bold, came to Pilate, and [he] asked for the body of Jesus.

And Pilate was astonished that he was already dead; and having called the Centurion, he asked him if he had been dead for a long time.

Having learned this from the Centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

And [Joseph] having bought a shroud, took him down from the cross, and wrapped him in the shroud, and put him in a sepulcher which was hewn out of the rock, then he rolled a stone over the entrance of the sepulcher.

And Mary Magdalene, and Mary [mother] of Joses were watching where he was being put.

Now the Sabbath day having passed, Mary Magdalene, and Mary [mother] of James, and Salome bought spices, to come and anoint him.

And very early in the morning, on the first day of the week, they arrived at the tomb, the sun having risen.

And they said to one another, "Who will roll away the stone from the entrance of the tomb?"

And when they looked, they saw that the stone had been rolled away; for it was very large.

Then, having entered the tomb, they saw a young man sitting on the right hand, dressed in a white robe, and they were terrified.

But he said to them, "Do not be alarmed; you are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified; he has risen! He is not here; see the place where they laid him."

But go, and tell his disciples, and Peter, that he is going ahead of you to Galilee; you will see him there, just as he told you.

They left immediately and fled from the tomb: for trembling and fear had seized them, and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.

Now when Jesus rose early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had driven seven demons.
And she went away and told those who had been with him, who were mourning and weeping.
But when they heard that he was alive, and that she had seen him, they did not believe her.
After that he appeared in another form to two of them, who were on their way to the fields.
And when they returned, they announced it to the others; but they did not believe them either.
Finally he appeared to the eleven, who were sitting together, and he rebuked them for their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they had not believed those who had seen him after he had risen.
And he said to them, "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

Whoever believes and is baptized will be saved, but whoever does not believe will be condemned.

And these are the signs that will accompany those who believe: they will drive out demons in my name; they will speak in new tongues;
They will grasp the snakes [with their hand], and when they drink something deadly, it will not harm them; they will lay their hands on the sick, and they will be healed.

Then the Lord, after he had spoken to them [in this way], was taken up into heaven and sat down at the right hand of God.

And they went out and preached everywhere; and the Lord cooperated with them and confirmed the word by the signs that accompanied it.

Because several people have endeavored to put in order a narrative of things that have been fully attested between us;

As those who saw them from the beginning, and who were ministers of the word, have made known to us.

It also seemed good to me, after having examined everything exactly from the beginning to the end, most excellent Theophilus, to write to you in order;

So that you may know the certainty of the things of which you have been informed.

In the time of Herod King of Judea, there was a certain priest named Zechariah, of the rank of Abijah; and his wife [was] of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth.

And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and in [all] the ordinances of the Lord, without reproach.

And they had no children, because Elizabeth was barren; and they were very old.

Now it came to pass that, as Zechariah exercised the priesthood before the Lord, in his turn;

According to the custom of exercising the priesthood, the lot fell to him to offer the incense and to enter [for this purpose] into the Temple of the Lord.

And the whole multitude of the people were outside praying at the hour when the incense was offered.

And the Angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing at the right side of the altar of incense.

And Zechariah was troubled when he saw him, and he was filled with fear.

But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zechariah; your prayer has been heard, and your wife Elizabeth will give birth to a son, and you shall call his name John."

And you will have great joy, and many will rejoice at his birth.

For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and he will drink neither wine nor beer; and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit even from his mother's womb.

And he will convert many of the children of Israel to the Lord their God. For he will go before him animated by the spirit and virtue of Elijah, so that he may turn the hearts of the fathers into the children, and the rebellious into the prudence of the righteous, to prepare for the Lord a people well disposed. Then Zechariah said to the angel, "How can I know this? I am old, and my wife is very old."

And the Angel answered him, saying: I am Gabriel, who stands before God, and who was sent to speak to you and to bring you this good news.

And behold, you will be speechless, and you will not be able to speak until the day these things take place; because you have not believed my words, which will be fulfilled in their time.

But the people were waiting for Zechariah, and they were wondering why he was taking so long in the Temple.

But when he came out, he could not speak to them, and they knew that he had seen some vision in the Temple; for he gave it to them by signs; and he remained mute.

And it came to pass that when the days of his ministry were completed, he returned to his home.

And after those days, Elizabeth his wife conceived, and she hid herself for five months, saying:

Indeed, the Lord has dealt with me in this way in the days when he has looked upon me to take away my reproach from among men.

In the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town in Galilee called Nazareth;

To a virgin betrothed to a man named Joseph, who was of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

And the angel entered the place where she was and said to her, "Greetings, [O you who are] received with favor; the Lord is with you; you are blessed among women."

And when she saw him, she was greatly troubled because of his words; and she considered within herself what this greeting was.

And the angel said to her, "Mary, do not be afraid, for you have found favor with God."

And behold, you will conceive in your womb and give birth to a son, and you shall call his name Jesus.

He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Sovereign, and the Lord God will give him the throne of David his father.

And he will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and there will be no end to his kingdom.

Then Mary said to the Angel, "How can this happen, since I am a virgin?"

And the Angel answered him, saying: the Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Sovereign will overwhelm you; therefore what will be born [of you], Holy One, will be called the Son of God.

And behold, Elizabeth, your cousin, has also conceived a son in her old age; and this is the sixth month of pregnancy for her who was called barren.

For nothing will be impossible for God.

And Mary said, "Behold, I am the servant of the Lord; let it be done to me according to your word." And the angel departed from her.

In those days Mary arose and went with haste to a town in the hill country of Judah.

And she entered the house of Zechariah and greeted Elizabeth.

And it came to pass that as soon as Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the little child leaped in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit.

And she cried out in a loud voice, and said: You are blessed among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb.

And how is this coming to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

For behold, as soon as the sound of your greeting reached my ears, the little child in my womb leaped for joy.

But blessed is she who believed, for the things which were spoken to her by the Lord will be fulfilled.
Then Mary said: My soul magnifies the Lord;
And my spirit rejoiced in God, who is my Savior.
For he has looked upon the lowliness of his servant; behold, from now on all generations will call me blessed.
For the Mighty One has done great things for me, and his name is holy.
And His mercy is from generation to generation in favor of those who fear Him.
He worked mightily with his arm; he thwarted the designs that the proud formed in their hearts.
He has brought down the powerful from their thrones, and he has lifted up the lowly.

He filled the hungry with good things; he sent the rich away empty.
He has taken Israel, his servant, under his protection, to remember his mercy;
(As he spoke to our fathers, to Abraham and his descendants) forever.
And Mary stayed with her for about three months, and then returned to her own home.
Now the time came for Elizabeth to give birth, and she gave birth to a son.
And her neighbors and relatives, having learned that the Lord had shown her mercy, rejoiced with her.
And it came to pass that on the eighth day they came to circumcise the little child, and they called him Zechariah, after his father.
But his mother spoke up and said, "No, but he shall be named John."
And they said to him: there is no one among your relatives who is called by that name.
Then they signaled to his father to declare how he wanted him to be named.
And [Zechariah] asked for tablets, and wrote: John is his name; and they were all astonished.
And at once his mouth was opened, and his tongue [loosened], so that he spoke in praise of God.
And all his neighbors were seized with fear; and all these things were divulged throughout the land of the mountains of Judea.
And all who heard them pondered these things in their hearts, saying, "What will become of this little child?" And the hand of the Lord was with him.
Then Zechariah his father was filled with the Holy Spirit, and he prophesied, saying:

Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, for having visited and delivered his people;

And because he has raised up a mighty Savior for us in the house of David, his servant.
According to what he had said through the mouth of his holy Prophets, who have been from all times;
[That] we would be saved [from the hand] of our enemies, and from the hand of all those who hate us;
To exercise his mercy towards our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant;
[Which is] the oath that he made to Abraham our father;
[Knowing], that he would grant us, that being delivered from the hand of our enemies, we would serve him without fear.
In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our lives.
And you, child, will be called the Prophet of the Sovereign; for you will go before the face of the Lord, to prepare his ways;
And to give his people knowledge of salvation, in the forgiveness of their sins;
Through the tender mercy of our God, from which the rising sun has visited us.
To shine upon those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, and to guide our feet into the way of peace.

And the child grew and became strong in spirit; and he was in the wilderness until the day he was to be revealed to Israel.

Now it came to pass in those days that an edict was issued by Caesar Augustus, [ordering] that everyone be registered.

And this first description was made when Cyrenius had the government of Syria.

Thus all went to be put in writing, each in his own city.

And Joseph went up from Galilee to Judea, [namely] from the town of Nazareth, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and line of David;

To be registered with Marie, the woman to whom he had been betrothed, who was pregnant.

And it came to pass, as they were there, that her time to give birth was fulfilled.

And she gave birth to her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling cloths, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

Now there were shepherds in those parts who slept in the fields and kept watch over their flocks during the night.

And behold, the Angel of the Lord came to them, and the light of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified.

But the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which will be for all the people."

For this day in the city of David a Savior has been born to you, who is Christ the Lord.

And this is the sign by which you will recognize it, that you will find the little child swaddled, and lying in a manger.

And immediately with the angel there was a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying:

Glory be to God in the highest, peace on earth and goodwill among men!

And it came to pass that after the Angels had departed from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us now go to Bethlehem, and see this thing which has happened, and which the Lord has revealed to us."

So they went with great haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the little child lying in a manger.

And when they had seen him, they divulged what had been told to them concerning this little child.

And all who heard them were astonished at the things that were told to them by the shepherds.

And Mary carefully kept all these things, and pondered them in her mind.

Then the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all these things which they had heard and seen, just as they had been told.

And when the eight days were completed for circumcising the child, then his name was called JESUS, which the angel had named before he was conceived in the womb.

And when the days of [Mary's] purification were completed according to the Law of Moses, they brought him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord,

(According to what is written in the Law of the Lord: that every firstborn male shall be called holy to the Lord.)

And to offer the oblation prescribed in the Law of the Lord, [namely] a pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons.

Now behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon, and this man was righteous and God-fearing, and he was waiting for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was in him.

And he had been divinely warned by the Holy Spirit that he would not die until he had first seen the Lord's Christ.

Therefore, being moved by the Spirit, he came to the Temple; and as the father and mother carried the infant Jesus into [the Temple], to prepare him according to the custom of the Law,

He took him in his arms, and blessed God, and said:
 Lord, you are now letting your servant go in peace, according to your word.
 For my eyes have seen your salvation;
 Which you have prepared in the sight of all peoples.
 A light to enlighten the nations; and to be the glory of your people Israel.
 And Joseph and his mother were astonished at the things that were said about him.
 And Simeon blessed him, and said to Mary his mother, "Behold, this is destined to cause many in Israel to fall and rise again, and to be a sign which will be spoken against."
 (And even a sword will pierce your own soul) so that the thoughts of many hearts may be discovered.
 There was also Anna the Prophetess, daughter of Phanuel of the Tribe of Asher, who was already advanced in years, and who had lived with her husband seven years since her virginity;
 And a widow of about eighty-four years, she did not leave the temple, serving [God] in fasting and prayer, night and day.
 She, therefore, having arrived at that very moment, also praised the Lord, and spoke of him to all those who were waiting for redemption in Jerusalem.
 And when they had performed everything which is commanded by the Law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to Nazareth their city.
 And the little child grew and became strong in spirit, being filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him.
 Now his father and mother went to Jerusalem every year for the Passover festival.
 And when he reached the age of twelve, [his father and mother] having gone up to Jerusalem according to the custom of the festival,
 And returning after the days [of the Feast] had been completed, the child Jesus remained in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother were unaware of it.
 But believing that he was in the group of travelers, they walked for a day; then they searched for him among their relatives and those of their acquaintance.
 And not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem, searching for him.
 Now it happened that three days later they found him in the Temple, sitting among the teachers, listening to them and questioning them.
 And all who heard him were amazed by his wisdom and his answers.
 And when they saw him, they were astonished, and his mother said to him, "My child, why have you treated us like this? Look, your father and I have been searching for you in great distress."
 And he said to them, "Why were you looking for me? Did you not know that I must be in my Father's business?"
 But they did not understand what he was saying to them.
 So he went down with them and came to Nazareth; and he was obedient to them; and his mother treasured all these words in her heart.
 And Jesus went on in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men.
 Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, when Pontius Pilate was Governor of Judea, and Herod was Tetrarch in Galilee, and his brother Philip Tetrarch in the region of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias Tetrarch in Abilene; Annas and Caiaphas being high priests, the word of God came to John son of Zechariah in the desert.
 And he went into all the country around the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins;
 As it is written in the Book of the words of Isaiah the Prophet, saying: the voice of one crying in the wilderness, is: Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
 Every valley shall be filled in, and every mountain and hill made low, and crooked things made straight, and rough ways made smooth;
 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

He therefore said to the crowd of those who came to be baptized by him, "Brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come?"

Produce fruit worthy of repentance, and do not begin to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our father,' for I tell you that God is able even from these stones to raise up children to Abraham.

But the axe is already laid to the root of the trees; therefore every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.

Then the troops questioned him, saying: what shall we do?

And he answered, and said to them: let him who has two robes give one to him who has none; and let him who has food do likewise.

Tax collectors also came to him to be baptized, and they said to him, "Teacher, what shall we do?"

And he said to them: do not demand anything beyond what you are commanded.

The soldiers also questioned him, saying: and what shall we do? He told them: do not extort money or commit fraud against anyone, but be content with your wages.

And as the people waited, and reasoned among themselves whether John was not the Christ,

John spoke up and said to them all: I baptize you with water, but one more powerful than I is coming, whose sandals I am not worthy to untie. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will thoroughly clear his threshing floor and gather the wheat into his barn, but he will burn up the chaff with an unquenchable fire.

And by making several other exhortations, he evangelized the people.

But Herod the Tetrarch was rebuked by him concerning Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip, and because of all the evils he had done,

He added to all the others the order to put John in prison.

Now it came to pass that when all the people were baptized, and Jesus also was baptized, and praying, the heavens were opened.

And the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form, like that of a dove; and there was a voice from heaven, which said to him, You are my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

And Jesus was beginning to be about thirty years old, the son (as he was thought) of Joseph, [who was the son] of Eli,

[Son] of Matthat, [son] of Levi, [son] of Melchi, [son] of Janna, [son] of Joseph, [Son] of Mattathias, [son] of Amos, [son] of Nahum, [son] of Heli, [son] of Naggi, [Son] of Maath, [son] of Mattathias, [son] of Shemei, [son] of Joseph, [son] of Judah,

[Son] of Johanna, [son] of Rhesa, [son] of Zerubbabel, [son] of Shealtiel, [son] of Neri,

[Son] of Melchi, [son] of Addi, [son] of Cosam, [son] of Elmodam, [son] of Er, [Son] of Jose, [son] of Eliezer, [son] of Jorim, [son] of Matthat, [son] of Levi, [Son] of Simeon, [son] of Judah, [son] of Joseph, [son] of Jonan, [son] of Eliakim, [Sons] of Melcah, [son] of Ma'inan, [son] of Mattatha, [son] of Nathan, [son] of David,

[Son] of Jesse, [son] of Obed, [son] of Boaz, [son] of Salmon, [son] of Nahshon, [Sons] of Aminadab, [sons] of Aram, [sons] of Hezron, [sons] of Perez, [sons] of Judah,

[Son] of Jacob, [son] of Isaac, [son] of Abraham, [son] of Terah, [son] of Nahor, [Sons] of Sarug, [son] of Ragau, [son] of Peleg, [son] of Heber, [son] of Shela, [Sons] of Cainan, [son] of Arphaxad, [son] of Shem, [son] of Noah, [son] of Lamech, [Son] of Methuselah, [son] of Enoch, [son] of Jared, [son] of Mahalaleel, [son] of Cainan, [Son] of Enos, [son] of Seth, [son] of Adam, [son] of God.

Now Jesus, being filled with the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan, and was led by the power of the Spirit into the wilderness.

And he was tempted by the devil for forty days, and ate nothing at all during those days, but after they had passed, finally he was hungry.

And the devil said to him, "If you are the Son of God, tell this stone to become bread."

And Jesus answered him, saying, "It is written: 'Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.'"

Then the devil took him to a high mountain, and showed him in a moment of time all the kingdoms of the world.

And the devil said to him, "I will give you all this power and their glory; for it has been given to me, and I give it to whomever I want."

If you wish to prostrate yourself before me, everything will be yours.

But Jesus answered him, "Get behind me, Satan! For it is written: 'You shall worship the Lord your God, and him only shall you serve.'"

He also brought him to Jerusalem, and placed him on the railing of the Temple, and said to him: if you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here.

For it is written that he will command his Angels to preserve you!

And that they will carry you in their hands, lest you strike your foot against a stone.

But Jesus answered him, "It was said, 'You shall not put the Lord your God to the test.'"

And when all the temptation was over, the devil left him for a time.

And Jesus returned to Galilee by the power of the Spirit, and his fame spread throughout all the surrounding country.

For he taught in their synagogues and was honored by all.

And he came to Nazareth, where he had been nourished, and entered the Synagogue on the Sabbath day, according to his custom; then he stood up to read.

And they gave him the Book of the Prophet Isaiah, and when he had unrolled the Book, he found the place where it is written:

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me; he has sent me to proclaim the gospel to the poor; to heal those who are brokenhearted.

To proclaim freedom for the captives and recovery of sight for the blind, to set the oppressed free, and to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor.

Then he folded the Book and gave it back to the Minister, and sat down; and the eyes of all those who were in the Synagogue were fixed on him.

Then he began to say to them: today this Scripture is fulfilled, in your hearing.

And all bore witness to him, and were amazed at the gracious words that came from his mouth; and they said, "Is not this the Son of Joseph?"

And he said to them, "Surely you will quote this proverb to me: 'Physician, heal yourself!' And do here in your own country all the things we have heard that you did in Capernaum."

But he said to them: truly I tell you that no prophet is [well] received in his own country.

And I tell you, there were many widows in Israel in the time of Elijah, when the heavens were shut up for three and a half years, and there was a great famine throughout the land.

And yet Elijah was not sent to any of them, but only to a widowed woman in Sarepta of Sidon.

There were also several lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha the Prophet; however, not one of them was healed; but only Naaman, who was Syrian.

And they were all filled with anger in the synagogue when they heard these things.

And getting up, they brought him out of the city and took him to the edge of the mountain on which their city was built, to throw him down from the top.

But he passed through the midst of them and went away.

And he went down to Capernaum, a town in Galilee, and taught them there on the Sabbath days.

And they were amazed at his teaching, for his word was with authority.

Now there was a man in the synagogue who was possessed by an unclean demon, who cried out in a loud voice, Saying: Ha! What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God.

And Jesus rebuked him severely, saying, "Be quiet, and come out of him!" And the devil, after hurling him violently into the midst [of the assembly], came out of the man without harming him.

And they were all filled with amazement, and they spoke among themselves, and said: What is this saying, that he commands with authority and with power the unclean spirits, and they go out?

And his fame spread throughout all the surrounding areas.

And when Jesus got up from the synagogue, he went into Simon's house, and Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a severe fever, and they begged him for her.

And having bent over her, he rebuked the fever and the fever left her; and immediately she got up and served them.

And as the sun was setting, all those who had sick people with various diseases brought them to him; and laying his hands on each one of them, he healed them.

Demons also came out of many, shouting, and saying, "You are the Christ, the Son of God!" But he severely rebuked them, and would not allow them to say that they knew he was the Christ.

And as soon as it was day he departed, and went to a deserted place; and the troops were looking for him, and when they came to him, they detained him, so that he would not leave with them.

But he said to them, "I must preach the Kingdom of God to the other towns also, because that is what I was sent for."

And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.

Now it happened, as the crowd rushed upon him to hear the word of God, that he was standing on the shore of the Lake of Gennesaret.

And seeing two boats that were by the lake, and from which the fishermen had gone out, and were washing their nets, he got into one of these boats, which belonged to Simon.

And he asked him to take her a little way off land; then, having sat down, he taught the troops from above the boat.

And when he had finished speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into deep water, and let down your nets for a catch."

And Simon answered him, "Master, we have worked all night and have caught nothing; yet at your word I will let down the nets."

Having done so, they trapped such a large quantity of fish that their nets began to break.

And they signaled to their companions who were in the other boat to come and help them; and when they came, they filled both boats so much that they sank.

And when Simon Peter saw this, he fell at Jesus' knees, saying to him, "Lord, depart from me, for I am a sinful man."

Because fear had seized him and all those who were with him, because of the catch of fish they had just taken; as well as James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were companions of Simon.

Then Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid; from now on you will be a fisher of living men."

And when they had brought the boats ashore, they left everything and followed him.

Now it happened that while he was in one of the cities [of that country], behold, a man full of leprosy, seeing Jesus, fell [on the ground] on his face, and begged him, saying, Lord, if you will, you can make me clean.

And [Jesus] stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I am willing; be clean!"

And immediately the leprosy left him.

And he commanded him not to tell anyone; but go, he told him, and show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing what Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.

And his fame spread more and more, so much so that large crowds gathered to hear him, and to be cured of their illnesses by him.

But he stayed in the deserts, and prayed.

Now it came to pass one day, while he was teaching, that Pharisees and teachers of the law, who had come from all the villages of Galilee, and of Judea, and of Jerusalem, were sitting there, and the power of the Lord was there to perform healings.

And here were some men carrying a paralyzed man on a bed, and they were looking for a way to carry him into the house and put him before him.

But not finding by what side they could bring it in, because of the crowd, they went up onto the house, and they lowered it down by the roof tiles, with the little bed, in the middle in front of Jesus;

Seeing their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Man, your sins are forgiven."

Then the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason among themselves, saying, "Who is this who utters blasphemies? Who is it that can forgive sins but God alone?"

But Jesus, knowing their thoughts, answered them, "Why are you reasoning like this among yourselves?"

Which is easier, to say, "Your sins are forgiven," or to say, "Get up and walk"?

But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins, he said to the paralytic, "I tell you, get up, load up your mat and go home."

And at once [the paralytic] got up before them, loaded the bed on which he had been lying, and went home, glorifying God.

And they were all filled with amazement, and they glorified God, and being filled with fear, they said: surely we have seen today things that were never expected.

After that he went out, and he saw a tax collector named Levi sitting at the tax collector's place, and he said to him, follow me.

He abandoned everything, got up, and followed him.

And Levi held a great feast in his house, where there was a large assembly of tax collectors, and other people who were with them at table.

And the scribes of that place and the Pharisees murmured against his disciples, saying, "Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?"

But Jesus, speaking up, said to them: those who are healthy do not need a doctor, but those who are sick.

I have not come to call the righteous to repentance, but sinners.

They also said to him, "Why do John's disciples often fast and pray, and so do the Pharisees, but yours eat and drink?"

And he said to them, "Can you make the friends of the Bridegroom fast while the Bridegroom is with them?"

But the days will come when the Bridegroom will be taken away from them; then they will fast in those days.

Then he told them this analogy: no one puts a patch from a new garment on an old garment; otherwise the new will tear [the old], and the patch from the new will not fit the old.

Likewise, no one puts new wine into old vessels; otherwise the new wine will burst the vessels, and spill out, and the vessels will be ruined.

But the new wine must be put into new vessels; and thus they are both preserved.

And there is no one who drinks the old wine and immediately wants the new: for he says, the old is better.

Now it came to pass on the Sabbath of the second and first, that he was passing through the grain fields, and his disciples plucked heads of grain, and crushing them in their hands, they ate them.

And some of the Pharisees said to them, "Why are you doing something which is not lawful to do on the Sabbath?"

And Jesus answered them, "Have you not read what David did when he and those with him were hungry?"

How he entered the House of God, and took the consecrated bread, and ate it, and also gave some to those who were with him, although it was permitted only to the priests to eat it.

Then he said to them, "The Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath."

There also happened another Sabbath day, when he entered the Synagogue and was teaching; and there was a man there whose right hand was withered.

But the Scribes and the Pharisees were watching to see if he would heal him on the Sabbath, so that they might find something to accuse him of.

But he knew their thoughts; and he said to the man with the withered hand, "Get up and stand in the middle." And he got up and stood.

Then Jesus said to them, "I ask you one thing: Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath or to do evil? To save a life or to let it die?"

And when he had looked around at them all, he said to the man: stretch out your hand; which he did; and his hand was made as sound as the other.

And they were filled with fury, and they discussed together what they might do to Jesus.

Now it came to pass in those days that he went up on a mountain to pray, and he spent all night praying to God.

And when the day came, he called his disciples; and chose twelve of them, whom he also named apostles;

[Knowledge] Simon, whom he also named Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew;

Matthew and Thomas, James [son] of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zealots;

Jude [brother] of James, and Judas Iscariot, who was also a traitor.

Then, going down with them, he stood in a plain with the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people from all Judea, and from Jerusalem, and from the coastal region of Tyre and Sidon, who had come to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases;

And those who were tormented by unclean spirits were healed.

And all the multitude tried to touch him; for a power came out of him that healed them all.

Then, turning his eyes toward his disciples, he said to them: You are blessed, you poor people; for the Kingdom of God belongs to you.

Blessed are you who hunger now, for you will be satisfied. Blessed are you who weep now, for you will laugh.

You will be blessed when people hate you, and cut you off [from their company], and insult you, and reject your name as evil, because of the Son of Man.

Rejoice in that day, and leap for joy; for behold, your reward is great in heaven; and their fathers did the same to the Prophets.

But woe to you rich people; for you are receiving your consolation.

Woe to you who are full, for you will go hungry. Woe to you who laugh now, for you will mourn and weep.

Woe to you when everyone speaks well of you, for their ancestors did the same to the false prophets.

But to you who hear me, I say: love your enemies; do good to those who hate you.

Bless those who curse you, and pray for those who run after you.

And if someone strikes you on one cheek, turn to him the other also; and if someone takes away your cloak, do not prevent him from taking your tunic also.

And to everyone who asks you, give to him; and to him who takes away what belongs to you, do not demand it back.

And as you would have men do to you, do to them in the same way.

But if you love [only] those who love you, what credit is that to you? For sinners love those who love them.
And if you only do good to those who have done good to you, what credit is that to you? For even the wicked do the same.
And if you lend only to those from whom you expect to receive, what credit is that to you? For sinners also lend to sinners, so that they may receive in full.
Therefore, love your enemies, and do good, and lend without expecting anything in return, and your reward will be great, and you will be children of the Sovereign, for he is kind to the ungrateful and the wicked.
Therefore be merciful, just as your Father is merciful.
And do not judge, and you will not be judged; do not condemn, and you will not be condemned; leave, and it will be left to you.
Give, and it will be given to you; a good measure, pressed down and piled up, will be given to you and will go back on top. For with the measure you use, it will be measured to you.
He also told them this analogy: Is it possible for a blind man to lead another blind man? Won't they both fall into the pit?
A disciple is not above his teacher, but every fully trained disciple will be made like his teacher.
And why do you look at the speck of sawdust that is in your brother's eye, and do not notice the plank in your own eye?
Or how can you say to your brother, 'Brother, let me take the speck out of your eye,' when you yourself do not see the plank in your own eye? You hypocrite, first take the plank out of your own eye, and then see clearly to remove the speck from your brother's eye.
Certainly, a tree that bears bad fruit is not good; nor is a tree that bears good fruit bad.
And each tree is known by its fruit; for figs are not picked from thorns, nor are grapes harvested from a bush.
A good man brings good things out of the good treasure of his heart, and an evil man brings evil things out of the evil treasure of his heart; for the mouth speaks what the heart is full of.
But why do you call me Lord, Lord, and do not do what I say?
I will show you what is like the one who comes to me, and who, hearing my words, puts them into practice.
It is like a man who, building a house, dug down deeply and laid the foundation on rock; so that when the waters came up, the river came against that house, but it could not shake it, because it had its foundation on rock.
But the one who, having heard my words, has not put them into practice, is like a man who built his house on the ground, without laying a foundation; [for] the river came against [that house], and it immediately fell; and the ruin of that house was great.

And when he had finished all this speech before the people who were listening to him, he entered Capernaum.
Now the servant of a certain Centenier, to whom he was very dear, was ill, and was going to die.
And when [the centurion] heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to him, asking him to come and heal his servant.
And when they came to Jesus, they earnestly begged him, saying that he was worthy to have this done to him.
For, [they said], he loves our nation, and he has built us the Synagogue.
So Jesus went with them; and as he was not far from the house, the centurion sent his friends to meet him, saying, "Lord, do not tire yourself out; for I am not worthy to have you come under my roof;
That is why I did not consider myself worthy to come to you myself; but just say the word, and my servant shall be healed.

For I myself, being a man constituted under the power of another, have men of war under me; and I say to one, go, and he goes; and to another, come, and he comes; and to my servant, do this, and he does it.

When Jesus heard this, he was amazed; and turning around, he said to the crowd that was following him, "I tell you, I have not found such great faith even in Israel."

And when those who had been sent returned home, they found the servant who had been sick, well.

And the next day it happened that Jesus went to a town called Nain, and many of his disciples and a large crowd went with him.

And as he approached the gate of the city, behold, a dead man was being carried out, the only son of his mother, who was a widow; and a large company of the city was with her.

And when the Lord saw her, he was moved with compassion for her; and he said to her, "Do not weep."

Then he approached and touched the bier; and those who carried [the body] stopped, and he said, "Young man, I tell you, get up."

And the dead man sat up and began to speak; and [Jesus] gave him back to his mother.

And they were all filled with awe, and they glorified God, saying: Surely a great Prophet has arisen among us; and surely God has visited his people.

And the news of this [miracle] spread throughout Judea and all the surrounding country.

And all these things having been reported to John by his disciples,

John called two of his disciples and sent them to Jesus to ask him, "Are you the one who was to come, or should we expect someone else?"

And when they came to him, they said, "John the Baptist sent us to you to ask you, 'Are you the one who was to come, or should we expect someone else?'"

(And at that very hour he healed many people of diseases and plagues, and of evil spirits, and he gave sight to many who were blind.)

Then Jesus answered them, and said to them, "Go, and report to John what you have seen and heard: that the blind receive sight, that the lame walk, that lepers are cleansed, that the deaf hear, that the dead are raised, and that the gospel is preached to the poor."

But blessed is anyone who has not been offended because of me.

Then, when John's messengers had left, he began to say to the troops about John: "What did you go out into the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind?"

But what did you go out to see? A man dressed in fine clothes? Look, it is in the palaces of kings that those who are magnificently dressed are found, and who live in luxury.

But what did you go to see? A Prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a Prophet.

It is of him that it is written: "Behold, I send my Messenger before your face, and he will prepare your way before you."

For I tell you that among those born of women there is no prophet greater than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

And all the people who heard this, and the tax collectors who had been baptized with the Baptism of John, justified God.

But the Pharisees and the teachers of the law, who had not been baptized by him, rendered God's purpose useless to them.

Then the Lord said, "To what then shall I compare the people of this generation? And what are they like?"

They are like children sitting in the marketplace, calling out to one another, saying: We played the flute for you, and you did not dance; we sang mournful songs for you, and you did not weep.

For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, 'He has a demon.'

The Son of Man came eating and drinking; and you say, 'Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!'

But wisdom has been vindicated by all her children.

One of the Pharisees invited him to eat at his house; and he went into the house of this Pharisee and sat down at the table.

And behold, there was in the city a woman of ill repute, who, having learned that [Jesus] was reclining at table in the house of the Pharisee, brought an alabaster jar full of fragrant oil.

And standing behind him at his feet, and weeping, she began to sprinkle them with her tears, and she wiped them with her own hair, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with that fragrant oil.

But the Pharisee who had invited him, seeing this, said to himself: if this man were a prophet, surely he would know who and what this woman is who is touching him: for she is [a woman] of ill repute.

And Jesus, speaking to him, said: Simon, I have something to tell you; and he said: Master, tell it.

A creditor had two debtors: one owed him five hundred denarii, and the other fifty. And since they had no way to pay, he forgave the debt to both of them; tell me, which of them will love him more?

And Simon answered him, "I consider that this is the one to whom he gave more." And [Jesus] said to him, "You have judged correctly."

Then turning to the woman, he said to Simon, "Do you see this woman? I entered your house, and you did not give me water to wash my feet; but she has wet my feet with her tears, and wiped them with her own hair."

You didn't give me a kiss, but she, ever since I came in, hasn't stopped kissing my feet.

You did not anoint my head with oil, but she anointed my feet with fragrant oil.

Therefore I tell you, her sins, which are great, are forgiven her; for she loved much; but he who is forgiven less loves less.

Then he said to the woman: your sins are forgiven.

And those who were with him at the table began to say among themselves: Who is this who even forgives sins?

But he said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace."

After this, he went about from city to city and from town to town, preaching and announcing the kingdom of God; and the twelve [Disciples] were with him;

And some women also whom he had delivered from evil spirits and diseases, [namely] Mary, who was called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had come out.

And Joanna, wife of Chuzas, who was in charge of Herod's affairs; and Susanna, and several others who supported him from their own resources.

And as a large crowd gathered, and many came to him from all the towns, he told them this parable:

A sower went out to sow his seed; and as he sowed, some [seed] fell along the path and was trampled underfoot, and the birds of the air ate it all up.

And another part fell on a rocky place; and when it was lifted up, it dried up, because it had no moisture.

And another part fell among thorns; and the thorns rose up with it and choked it.

And another part fell on good soil; and when it sprouted, it yielded a hundred times as much. As he said these things, he cried out, "Whoever has ears to hear, let them hear!"

And his disciples questioned him, asking what this parable meant.

And he answered: it is given to you to know the secrets of the Kingdom of God, but [they are not spoken of] to others except in likenesses, so that seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not understand.

This, then, is the meaning of this parable: the seed is the word of God.

And those who received the seed along the way are those who hear the word; but then the devil comes and takes away the word from their hearts, so that they may not be saved by believing.

And those who received the seed on a rocky place are those who, having heard the word, receive it with joy; but they have no root; they believe for a while, but in the time of testing they fall away.

And what fell among thorns are those who, having heard the word, went away and were choked by the cares, the riches, and the pleasures of this life, and they brought no fruit when ripe.

But what fell on good soil are those who, having heard the word, retain it in an honest and good heart, and by perseverance produce a crop.

No one, after lighting a lamp, covers it with a vessel or puts it under a bed, but places it on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light.

For there is no secret that will not be disclosed, nor any hidden thing that will not be known or brought to light.

Therefore, consider how you listen; for to him who has, more will be given; but from him who does not have, even that which he thinks he has will be taken away.

Then his mother and brothers came towards him, but they could not approach him because of the crowd.

And it was reported to him, saying: your mother and your brothers are outside, who desire to see you.

But he answered, and said to them: My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and put it into practice.

Now it came to pass that one day he got into a boat with his disciples, and he said to them: let us cross to the other side of the lake; and they departed.

And as they sailed, he fell asleep, and a fierce wind arose on the lake, [the boat] filled with water, and they were in great peril.

Then they came to him and woke him, saying, "Master! Master! We are perishing!" But he got up and spoke like a Master to the wind and the waves, and they calmed down, and all was well again.

Then he said to them, "Where is your faith?" And they were filled with fear and wonder, saying to one another, "Who is this, that he commands even the winds and the waters, and they obey him?"

Then they sailed to the country of the Gadarenes, which is opposite Galilee.

And when he had gone down to earth, a man from that city came to meet him, who had long been possessed by demons, and was not covered with clothes, and did not dwell in houses, but in tombs.

And when he saw Jesus, he cried out and knelt before him, saying in a loud voice: What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me.

For [Jesus] commanded the unclean spirit to come out of that man; because it had held him captive for a long time, and although that man was bound with chains and kept in irons, he broke his bonds and was carried away by the demon into the deserts.

And Jesus asked him, "What is your name?" And he said, "Legion," because many demons had entered him.

But they prayed to [Jesus] that he would not command them to go into the abyss.

Now there was a large herd of pigs grazing on the mountain, and they begged him to allow them to go into the pigs; and he allowed them.

And the demons coming out of that man went into the pigs; and the herd plunged up and down into the lake; and was suffocated.

And when those who were guarding him saw what had happened, they fled and went and told it in the city and in the fields.

And the people went out to see what had happened, and came to Jesus, and they found the man from whom the demons had gone out, sitting at Jesus' feet, clothed, and in his right mind and at rest; and they were afraid.

And those who had seen all this told them how the demon-possessed man had been delivered.

Then all these people who had come from various places near the Gadarenes begged him to leave their homes, for they were filled with great fear; so he got back into the boat and returned.

And the man from whom the demons had gone out begged him to be with him; but Jesus sent him away, saying to him:

Go back home and tell everyone what great things God has done for you. So he went away and told all over town how much Jesus had done for him.

And when Jesus returned, the multitude received him with joy; for they were all waiting for him.

And behold, a man named Jairus, who was the leader of the synagogue, came, and falling down at Jesus' feet, begged him to come to his house.

For he had an only daughter, about twelve years old, who was dying; and as he was leaving, the troops were pressing him.

And a woman who had been suffering from a hemorrhage for twelve years, and who had spent all her money on doctors, without being cured by any of them;

Approaching him from behind, she touched the edge of his garment; and at once the bleeding stopped.

And Jesus said, "Who touched me?" And when all denied it was they, Peter said to him, and those who were with him, "Master, the troops are pressing against you and trampling you, and you say, 'Who touched me?'"

But Jesus said, "Someone has touched me; for I know that power has gone out from me."

Then the woman, seeing that this had not been hidden from her, came trembling, and throwing herself at his feet, declared to him before all the people why she had touched him, and how she had been healed at the moment.

And he said to her, "Daughter, take heart; your faith has healed you. Go in peace."

And while he was still speaking, someone came from the house of the Synagogue Principal, who said to him: your daughter is dead, do not trouble the Master.

But when Jesus heard it, he answered the girl's father, saying, "Do not be afraid; only believe, and she will be healed."

And when he arrived at the house, he let no one in except Peter, James, and John, with the girl's father and mother.

But they were all weeping for her, and beating their breasts in grief; but he said to them, "Do not weep, she is not dead, but asleep."

And they laughed at him, knowing full well that she was dead.

But he put them all out, and taking the girl by the hand, cried out, saying: Girl, get up.

And her spirit returned, and she got up first; and he commanded that she be given something to eat.

And the girl's father and mother were astonished, but he commanded them not to tell anyone what had been done.

Then [Jesus] having gathered his twelve Disciples, gave them power and authority over all demons, and [the power] to heal the sick.

And he sent them out to preach the Kingdom of God and to heal the sick,

And he said to them, "Take nothing for the journey, neither staffs, nor bag, nor bread, nor money; and each of you should not have two robes."

And into whatever house you enter, stay there until you leave it.

And wherever you are not received, when you leave that city shake the dust off your feet as a testimony against them.

So they set out and went from town to town, evangelizing and healing everywhere.

Now Herod the Tetrarch heard about all the things that Jesus did; and he did not know what to believe about the fact that some were saying that John had risen from the dead;

And some said that Elijah had appeared; and others that one of the ancient Prophets had risen from the dead.

And Herod said, "I have beheaded John; who then is this man of whom I hear such things?" And he sought to see him.

Then the apostles returned and told him all the things they had done. And Jesus took them with him and withdrew to a deserted place near the town called Bethsaida.

When the troops learned of this, they followed him, and he received them, and spoke to them about the Kingdom of God, and healed those who needed to be healed.

As the day began to decline, the twelve [Disciples] came to [him], and said: dismiss this multitude, so that they may go to the surrounding towns and villages, to detach themselves there and find food; for we are here in a desert country.

But he said to them, "You give them something to eat." And they said, "We have no more than five loaves of bread and two fish unless we go and buy food for all these people."

For they were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples: arrange them into groups of fifty each.

They did so, and had them all arranged.

Then he took the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, he blessed them, and broke them, and distributed them to his disciples, so that they might place them before this multitude.

And they all ate and were satisfied, and twelve baskets full of the leftover pieces of bread were taken up.

Now it happened that while he was in a secluded place praying, and the Disciples were with him, he questioned them, saying: who say the troops that I am?

They answered him: [Some say that you are] John the Baptist; and others, Elijah; and others, that one of the ancient Prophets has risen from the dead.

He then said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" And Peter answered him, "You are the Christ of God."

But using threats, he ordered them not to tell anyone.

And he said to them, "The Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests and the scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised to life."

Then he said to all: if anyone wants to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross day by day, and follow me.

For whoever wants to save their life will lose it, but whoever loses their life for my sake will save it.

And what does it profit a man to gain the whole world, if he destroys himself and loses himself?

For whoever is ashamed of me and my words, the Son of Man will be ashamed of him when he comes in his glory and of the Father and of the holy angels.

And I tell you truly, among those who are standing here, there are some who will not die before they see the kingdom of God.

Now about eight days after these words, he took with him Peter, John, and James, and went up on a mountain to pray.

And as he prayed, the shape of his face changed completely, and his garment became white, so that he shone like lightning.

And behold, two figures, namely Moses and Elijah, were speaking with him.

And they appeared surrounded by glory, and they spoke of his death which he was to suffer in Jerusalem.

Now Peter and those who were with him were very sleepy; and when they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two figures who were with him.

And it came to pass as these men were leaving him, that Peter said to Jesus, Master, it is good that we are here, let us make three tents, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah; not knowing what he was saying.

And as he was saying these things, a cloud came and covered them with its shadow; and as they entered the cloud, they were afraid.

And a voice came from the cloud, saying, "This is my beloved Son; listen to him."

And when the voice spoke, Jesus was alone. And they all kept silent, and in those days they told no one anything they had seen.

Now it happened the next day, when they came down from the mountain, a large troop came to meet them.

And behold, a man from the troop cried out, saying, Master, I beg you, look upon my son, for I have no other.

And behold, a spirit seizes him, which immediately makes him cry out, and agitates him violently, making him foam, and scarcely does it withdraw from him, after having [as if] broken him.

But I asked your disciples to drive him out, but they could not.

And Jesus answered and said: O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, and shall I bear with you? Bring your son here.

And as he was only approaching, the demon shook him violently as if he wanted to tear him apart; but Jesus strongly rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and gave him back to his father.

And all were astonished at the magnificent power of God. And as they all marveled at all that he did, he said to his disciples:

You, listen carefully to these words: for it will happen that the Son of Man will be delivered into the hands of men.

But they did not understand this saying, and it was so obscure to them that they did not understand it; and they were afraid to question him concerning this saying.

Then they started arguing about which of them was the tallest.

But Jesus, seeing the thoughts of their hearts, took a little child and laid him beside him;

Then he said to them, "Whoever welcomes this little child in my name welcomes me; and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me. For the one who is least among you all is the one who will be great."

And John spoke up and said, "Master, we saw someone driving out demons in your name, and we stopped him because he does not follow us."

But Jesus said to him, "Do not stop him, for he who is not against us is for us."

Now it came to pass, when the days of his exaltation were fulfilled, that he set his face, [fully resolved] to go to Jerusalem.

And he sent messengers ahead of him, who went and entered a Samaritan village to prepare a lodging for him.

But [the Samaritans] did not receive him, because it appeared that he was going to Jerusalem.

And when James and John, his disciples, saw this, they said, "Lord, do you want us to say, as Elijah did, that fire should come down from heaven and consume them?"

But Jesus turned and strongly rebuked them, saying, "You do not know what kind of spirit you are [animated] by."

For the Son of Man did not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. So they went to another village.

And it came to pass as they were going along the road, that a certain man said to him, "I will follow you, Lord, wherever you go."

But Jesus answered him: Foxes have dens and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has no place to lay his head.

Then he said to another, "Follow me," and this one replied, "First let me go and bury my father."

And Jesus said to him, "Let the dead bury their own dead, but you go and proclaim the Kingdom of God."

Another also said to him, "Lord, I will follow you; but first let me take leave of those who are in my house."

But Jesus answered him: no one who puts a hand to the plow and looks back is well prepared for the kingdom of God.

After these things the Lord also commanded seventy others, and sent them two by two before him, into all the cities and into all the places where he was to go.

And he said to them, "The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few; therefore pray earnestly to the Lord of the harvest that he may send out workers into his harvest."

Go, here I am, sending you out like lambs among wolves.

Carry no purse, no bag, no shoes, and greet no one on the road.

And into whatever house you enter, first say, "Peace be to this house!"

If there is anyone there who is worthy of peace, your peace will rest on him; if not, it will return to you.

Stay in that house, eating and drinking whatever is set before you, for the worker deserves his wages. Do not move from house to house.

And in whatever town you enter, and are received, eat of what is set before you.

And heal the sick who are there, and tell them: The Kingdom of God has come near to you.

But whatever town you enter, if they do not receive you, go out into its streets and say:

We shake off against you the dust of your city which has clung to us; however, know that the Kingdom of God has come near to you.

And I tell you, on that day those in Sodom will be treated less severely than that city.

Woe to you Chorazin, woe to you Bethsaida! For if the miracles that were performed in you had been performed in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, covered themselves with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.

That is why Tyre and Sidon will be treated less severely than you on the day of judgment.

And you, Capernaum, who were exalted to heaven, will be brought down to hell.

He who listens to you listens to me; and he who rejects you rejects me; but he who rejects me rejects him who sent me.

Then the seventy returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the demons are subject to us in your name."

And he said to them: I saw Satan falling like lightning from heaven.

Behold, I give you the power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall harm you.

However, do not rejoice that the spirits are subject to you, but rather rejoice that your names are written in heaven.

At that very moment Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said: I praise you, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and learned, and revealed them to little children; it is so, O Father, for such was your good will.

All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father; nor who the Father is except the Son; and him to whom the Son wills to reveal him.

Then turning to his disciples, he said to them in particular: blessed are the eyes that see what you see.

For I tell you, many prophets and many kings longed to see the things you see, but they did not see them, and to hear the things you hear, but they did not hear them.

Then a lawyer stood up to test him and said, "Teacher, what must I do to have eternal life?"

And he said to him, "What is written in the Law? How do you read it?"

And he answered, and said: You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself.

And [Jesus] said to him, "You have answered correctly; do this, and you will live."

But wanting to justify himself, he said to Jesus: and who is my neighbor?
And Jesus answered him, saying: A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he fell into the hands of robbers, who stripped him, and after wounding him many times, went away, leaving him half dead.

Now by chance a priest was going down the same road, and when he saw him, he crossed over to the other side.

A Levite also arrived at that place, and seeing this man, nevertheless crossed over to the other side.

But a Samaritan, as he was traveling, came to him, and seeing him, he was moved with compassion.

And going to him, he bandaged his wounds, and poured oil and wine on them; then he put him on his own mount, and brought him to the inn, and took care of him.

And the next day, when he left, he took out two denarii [from his purse] and gave them to the innkeeper, saying to him: take care of him; and whatever more you spend, I will repay you on my return.

Which of these three do you think was next to the one who fell into the hands of the thieves?

He replied: it is the one who showed mercy to him. Jesus then told him: go, and do likewise.

And it happened as they were going away, that he entered a small town; and a woman named Martha received him into her house.

And she had a sister named Mary, who sat at Jesus' feet and listened to his teaching.

But Martha was distracted by various tasks; and coming to Jesus, she said, "Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to do all the work by myself? Tell her to help me on her end."

And Jesus answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and upset about many things;

But one thing is necessary; and Mary has chosen the good part, which will not be taken away from her.

And it came to pass, as he was praying in a certain place, that after he had ceased [to pray], one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples.

And he said to them, "When you pray, say: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Give us each day our daily bread.

And forgive us our sins, for we also forgive all who owe us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.

Then he said to them, "Which of you will have a friend who will come to him at midnight and say to him, 'Friend, lend me three loaves of bread?'"

Because one of my friends happened to be passing by, and I have nothing to offer him.

And let the one who is inside answer and say: do not trouble me; for my door is already shut, and my little children are with me in bed; I cannot get up to give them to you.

I tell you, although he will not get up to give him anything because he is his friend, yet because of his persistence he will get up and give him as much as he needs.

So I tell you: ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you.

For everyone who asks receives; and everyone who seeks finds; and the door will be opened to him who knocks.

If a child asks one of you, his father, for bread, will you give him a stone? Or if he asks for fish, will you give him a snake instead of a fish?

Or, if he asks for an egg, will he give him a scorpion?

If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him? Then he drove out a demon who was mute; and it came to pass that when the demon had gone out, the mute one spoke; and the troops were astonished. And some of them said: it is by Beelzebul, prince of demons, that he drives out demons.

But the others, to test him, asked him for a miracle from heaven.

But knowing their thoughts, he said to them: Every kingdom divided against itself will be made a desolate wasteland, and every house divided against itself will fall into ruin.

If Satan is so divided against himself, how can his reign continue? For you say that I cast out demons by Beelzebul.

If I drive out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your sons drive them out? Therefore, they themselves will be your judges.

But if I cast out demons by the finger of God, then surely the Kingdom of God has come upon you.

When a strong, well-armed man guards his hotel, his belongings are safe.

But if another stronger one comes along and overcomes him, he takes away all the weapons he trusted in and divides up his spoils.

He who is not with me is against me; and he who does not gather with me scatters.

When an unclean spirit comes out of a man, it goes through dry places seeking rest; and finding none, it says, I will return to my house from which I came.

And when he arrived there, he found it swept clean and adorned.

Then he goes away, and takes with him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they go in and remain there; so that the last condition of that man is worse than the first.

Now it came to pass, as he was saying these things, that a woman from among the troops raised her voice, and said to him: Blessed is the womb that bore you, and the breasts that you suckled.

And he said: but rather blessed are those who hear the word of God and keep it.

And as the troops gathered together, he began to say: This generation is wicked; it asks for a sign, but no sign will be given it except the sign of Jonah the Prophet.

For as Jonah was a sign to the people of Nineveh, so the Son of Man will be a sign to this generation.

The Queen of the South will rise at the judgment against the men of this generation and condemn them, because she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and behold, something greater than Solomon is here.

The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment against this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and behold, something greater than Jonah is here.

No one who lights a lamp puts it in a hidden place or under a basket, but on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light.

The eye is the light of the body: if your eye is clear, your whole body will also be full of light; but if it is unclean, your body will also be full of darkness.

Therefore, see that the light within you is not darkness.

Therefore, if your body is full of light, having no dark parts, it will be fully illuminated, just as when a lamp shines its light on you.

And while he was speaking, a Pharisee invited him to dinner at his house; and Jesus went in and sat down at the table.

But the Pharisee was surprised to see that he had not washed himself before dinner.

But the Lord said to him: You Pharisees clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but inside you are full of greed and wickedness.

You fools! Did not he who made the outside make the inside also?

But rather give alms from what you have, and behold, all things will be clean for you.

But woe to you, Pharisees; for you tithe mint, rue, and every kind of herb, and neglect justice and the love of God: these you ought to have done, and not left the others.

Woe to you, Pharisees, who love the places of honor in the synagogues and greetings in the marketplaces.

Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like tombs that do not appear, so that those who pass over them do not know about them.

Then one of the teachers of the law spoke up and said to him, "Teacher, in saying these things you are also insulting us."

And [Jesus] said to him: Woe also to you, teachers of the law, for you load men with burdens unbearable, but you yourselves do not lift one finger to help them.

Woe to you; for you build the tombs of the prophets whom your fathers killed.

Indeed, you are testifying that you consent to the actions of your fathers; for they killed them, and you build their tombs.

That is why God's wisdom also said: I will send them prophets and apostles, and they will kill some of them and drive them out.

So that the blood of all the Prophets, which has been shed since the foundation of the world, may be demanded of this nation.

From the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who was killed between the altar and the Temple; yes, I tell you, it will be demanded of this nation.

Woe to you, teachers of the law! Because you have taken away the key to knowledge, you yourselves have not entered, and you have hindered those who were entering.

And as he was saying these things to them, the Scribes and the Pharisees began to press him even more strongly, and to get many things out of his mouth;

Setting traps for him, and trying cunningly to elicit something from his mouth, in order to have something to accuse him with.

However, as the troops had gathered by the thousands, so that they were trampling one another, he began to say to his disciples: "Beware especially of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy."

For there is nothing hidden that will not be disclosed, nor anything secret that will not be made known.

Therefore, the things that you have said in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have whispered in the ear in the chambers will be proclaimed from the houses.

And I say to you, my friends: do not be afraid of those who kill the body, and after that can do no more.

But I will show you whom you should fear; fear him who has the power, after he has killed, to send into hell; yes, I tell you, fear him.

Are not five little sparrows given for two pittances? And yet not one of them is forgotten before God.

Even the very hairs of your head are numbered; therefore do not be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows.

But I tell you, whoever acknowledges me before men, the Son of Man will also acknowledge him before the angels of God.

But whoever denies me before men will be denied before the Angels of God.

And whoever speaks against the Son of Man will be forgiven; but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven.

And when they bring you to the Synagogues, and to the Magistrates, and to the Authorities, do not be anxious about how, or what you will answer, or what you will say.

For the Holy Spirit will teach you at that very moment what to say.

And someone from the troop said to him: Master, tell my brother to share the inheritance with me.

But he answered him, "O man, who appointed me to be a judge over you and to divide your property?"

Then he said to them, "See, and beware of greed; for although someone has many possessions, he does not live by his possessions."
And he told them this parable: The fields of a rich man yielded an abundant harvest;

And he thought to himself, saying: what shall I do, for I have nowhere to gather my fruits?

Then he said: this is what I will do: I will tear down my barns and build bigger ones, and I will store all my income and possessions there;
Then I will say to my soul: My soul, you have many goods laid up for many years, take rest, eat, drink, and be merry.

But God said to him, "Fool! This very night your soul will be demanded of you; and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?"

This is also true of the one who amasses great wealth for himself, and is not rich in God.

Then he said to his disciples, "Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat; or about your body, what you will wear."

Life is more than food, and the body is more than clothing.

Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, nor do they have storerooms or barns, yet God feeds them. How much better are you than birds?

And which of you, through your concern, can add a single cubit to your stature?

If you can't even do what's very small, why are you worried about the rest?

Consider how the lilies grow; they neither labor nor spin, yet I tell you that even Solomon in all his glory was not dressed like one of these.

If God thus clothes the grass which is today in the field, and tomorrow is put in the oven, how much more will he clothe you, O people of little faith?

Therefore do not say, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' and do not be in suspense.

For the people of this world seek after all these things; but your Father knows that you need these things.

But rather seek the Kingdom of God, and all these things will be given to you as well.

Do not be afraid, little flock; for it has pleased your Father to give you the Kingdom.

Sell what you have, and give alms; make for yourselves purses that do not grow old; and a treasure in heaven that never fails, where no thief approaches, [and where] no moth spoils anything;

For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

Let your loins be girded, and your lamps lit.

And be like servants who are waiting for the master to return from the wedding feast, so that when he comes and knocks, they may open the door for him at once.

Blessed are those servants whom the master finds awake when he comes. Truly I tell you, he will dress himself to serve, and will have them recline at the table, and will come and wait on them.

If he comes in the second watch, or in the third, and finds them thus [watching], blessed are those servants.

But know this, that if the father of the family knew at what hour the thief was to come, he would be vigilant, and would not let his house be broken into.

Therefore you also must be ready, for the Son of Man will come at an hour when you do not expect him.

And Peter said to him, "Lord, are you telling this parable for us, or for everyone?"

And the Lord said: Who then is the faithful and wise steward, whom the master has appointed over all his servants, to give them their daily portion at the proper time?

Blessed is that servant whom his master finds doing so when he comes.

Truly I tell you, he will establish it over all he has.
But if that servant says in his heart, 'My master is taking a long time to come,' and he begins to beat the male and female servants, and to eat and drink and get drunk. The master of that servant will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour he does not know, and will cut him off and place him among the unbelievers. But the servant who knew his master's will, and did not get ready, and did not do according to his will, shall be beaten with many blows. But he who has not known it, and has done things deserving of punishment, will be beaten with fewer blows; for from each one to whom much has been given, much will be required; and from him to whom much has been entrusted, more will be required. I have come to set the earth on fire; and what do I want if it is already kindled? But I have a baptism to be baptized; and how pressed I am until it is accomplished. Do you think I came to bring peace to the earth? No, I tell you; but rather division.

The father will be divided against the son, and the son against the father; the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother; the mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. Then he said to the troops: when you see a cloud rising from the west, you first say: the rain is coming, and so it happens. And when you see the south wind blowing, you say it will be hot; and it is. Hypocrites, you know how to interpret the appearances of heaven and earth; and how is it that you do not recognize this season? And why do you not recognize for yourselves what is right? But when you go to the Magistrate with your opposing party, try to be released from them on the way; lest they drag you before the judge, and the judge hand you over to the sergeant, and the sergeant put you in prison. I tell you that you will not get out of there until you have vomited the last drop. At that time some who were present told him [what had happened] concerning the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mixed with their sacrifices. And Jesus answered them, "Do you think that these Galileans were worse sinners than all the Galileans because they suffered in such ways?" No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish in the same way. Or do you believe that those eighteen on whom the tower of Siloam fell and killed were more guilty than all the inhabitants of Jerusalem? No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish in the same way. He also told this parable: A man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he went looking for fruit on it, but found none. And he said to the vinedresser, "Look, for three years now I have been coming to look for fruit on this fig tree, and I find none; cut it down; why should it use up the soil?" And the [vinedresser] replying, said to him: Lord, leave it for this year, until I have removed the soil from it, and put manure on it. If it bears fruit, [you shall leave it]; otherwise, you shall cut it down after that.

Now, as he was teaching in one of their synagogues on the Sabbath, Behold, there was a woman there who had been possessed by a demon for eighteen years, and she was bent over and could not straighten up at all. And when Jesus saw her, he called her and said to her, "Woman, you are freed from your illness." And he laid his hands on her; and at that moment she was raised up, and glorified God. But the Synagogue Master, indignant that Jesus had healed on the Sabbath day, spoke up and said to the assembly: there are six days for work; therefore come on those days and be healed, and not on the Sabbath day.

And the Lord answered him, and said: Hypocrite, does not each of you untie his ox or his donkey from the manger on the Sabbath day, and lead them out to drink?

And should not she, who is the daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound eighteen years ago, have been freed from this bond on the Sabbath day?

As he said these things, all his adversaries were confused; but all the troops rejoiced in all the glorious things he accomplished.

He also said: What is the Kingdom of God like, and to what shall I compare it?

It is like the mustard seed that a man took and planted in his garden, which grew and became a large tree, so that the birds of the air nested in its branches.

He also said: to what shall I compare the Kingdom of God?

It is like the leaven that a woman took and mixed with three measures of flour until it was fully leavened.

Then he went about through the towns and villages, teaching and guiding people on the way to Jerusalem.

And someone said to him, "Lord, are only a few people going to be saved?"

And he said to them, "Make every effort to enter through the narrow gate; for I tell you that many will try to enter, and will not be able."

And after the head of the household has gotten up and closed the door, and you are outside knocking at the door, saying, "Lord! Lord! Open the door for us," and he answers you and says, "I don't know where you're from."

Then you will begin to say: we ate and drank in your presence, and you taught in our streets.

But he will say: I tell you that I do not know where you come from; depart from me, all you who practice the trade of iniquity.

There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth there, when you see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrown out.

People will also come from the East, and from the West, and from the North, and from the South, who will be seated at the table in the Kingdom of God.

And behold, those who are last will be first, and those who are first will be last.

On that same day some Pharisees came to him and said, "Get away from here, for Herod wants to kill you."

And he answered them: Go, and tell this fox: Behold, I drive out demons, and I finish today and tomorrow performing healings, and on the third day I come to an end.

That is why I must walk today and tomorrow and the day after; for it never happens that a prophet dies outside of Jerusalem.

Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you who kill the prophets and stone those sent to you; how often I have longed to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were not willing?

Behold, your house is going to be desolate; and I tell you truly, you will not see me until it comes to pass that you say, Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.

It also happened that [Jesus] entered one Sabbath day into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat, and they were watching him.

And behold, a man with dropsy was standing there before him.

And Jesus, speaking to the teachers of the law and to the Pharisees, said: Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath day?

And they said nothing. Then he took [the sick man], healed him, and sent him away.

Then, addressing them, he said: Which of you, having a donkey or an ox that happens to fall into a well, will not immediately pull it out on the Sabbath day?

And they could not reply to these things.

He also offered the guests a similar exercise, paying close attention to how they chose the first seats at the table, and he would tell them:

When you are invited by someone to a wedding, do not sit at the table in the first place, lest someone more honorable than you be invited as well;

And let not the one who invited you come and say to you: give your place to this one; and let not then you begin with shame to put yourself in the last place.

But when you are invited, go and sit in the lowest place, so that when the one who invited you comes, he may say to you, 'Friend, move up higher'; and then it will be an honor for you in the presence of all those who are at the table with you.

For whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.

He also said to the one who had invited him: when you make a dinner or a supper, do not invite your friends, nor your brothers, nor your relatives, nor your rich neighbors; lest they invite you in turn, and the same be done to you.

But when you make a feast, invite the poor, the lame, and the blind;

And you will be blessed because they have no way of repaying you; for you will be repaid in the resurrection of the righteous.

And one of those who were at the table, having heard these words, said to him: blessed will be he who eats bread in the Kingdom of God.

And [Jesus] said: A man gave a great banquet and invited many people.

And at supper time he sent his servant to tell those who were invited: come, for everything is now ready.

But they all unanimously began to apologize. The first one said to him: I have bought an inheritance, and I must necessarily leave to go and see it; please excuse me.

Another said: I have bought five pairs of oxen, and I am going to test them; please excuse me.

And another said: I have married a wife, therefore I cannot go.

So the servant returned and reported these things to his master. Then the head of the household, in his anger, said to his servant, "Go quickly to the streets and lanes of the city, and bring here the poor, the lame, the blind, and the disabled."

Then the servant said, Master, it has been done as you commanded, and there is still room.

And the master said to the servant, "Go out into the roads and hedges, and compel those you find to come in, so that my house may be filled."

For I tell you that none of these men who were invited will taste my supper.

Now large troops were going with him; and he turned to them and said:

If anyone comes to me and does not hate his father and mother, his wife and children, his brothers and sisters, and even his own life, he cannot be my disciple.

And whoever does not carry his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple.

But which of you, wanting to build a tower, does not first sit down and calculate the cost, to see whether he has enough to complete it?

Lest, after laying its foundation and being unable to finish, all who see it should begin to mock him;

By saying: this man began to build, and he was unable to finish.

Or, what king is there who goes out to give battle to another king, who does not first sit down and consult whether he is able with ten thousand [men] to meet him who comes against him with twenty thousand?

Otherwise, he sends him an embassy, while he is still far away, and asks for peace.

Therefore, each of you who does not renounce all that he has cannot be my disciple.

Salt is good; but if salt loses its saltiness, how can it be made salty again?

It is fit neither for the soil nor for the manure pile; [but] it is thrown out.

Whoever has ears to hear, let them hear!

Now all the toll collectors and people of ill repute approached him to hear him.

But the Pharisees and the Scribes murmured, saying, "This man receives sinners and eats with them."

But he told them this parable, saying:

Which of you, having a hundred sheep, if he loses one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness, and go after the one that is lost, until he finds it?

And whoever finds it does not joyfully place it on their shoulders;
And when he returns home, does he not call his friends and neighbors together and say to them, "Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep which was lost?"
I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous people who need no repentance.
Or who is the woman who, having ten drachmas, if she loses one drachma, does not light a candle, and sweep the house, and search diligently until she finds it;
And who, having found it, does not call his friends and neighbors, saying to them: rejoice with me; for I have found the drachma that I had lost?
So I tell you that there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents.
He also told them: a man had two sons;
And the younger son said to his father, "Father, give me my share of the inheritance"; and he divided his inheritance between them.
And a few days later, when the youngest son had gathered everything together, he went away to a distant country; and there he squandered his wealth in wild living.
And after he had spent everything, a great famine came upon that land; and he began to be in want.
So he went away and entered the service of one of the inhabitants of the country, who sent him into his possessions to feed the pigs.
And he longed to fill his stomach with the pods that the pigs were eating, but no one gave him any.
When he came to his senses, he said, "How many hired servants are in my father's house who have more than enough bread, while I am dying of hunger?"
I will get up and go to my father, and I will say to him: Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you;
And I am no longer worthy to be called your son; treat me like one of your mercenaries.
So he got up and went to his father; and while he was still a long way off, his father saw him and was moved with compassion, and ran to him, threw his arms around his neck, and kissed him.
But the son said to him, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; and I am no longer worthy to be called your son."
And the father said to his servants, "Bring out the best robe and put it on him; put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet;
And bring me the fattened calf, and kill it, and let us feast on it.
For this son of mine was dead, but is risen again; he was lost, but is found again.
And they began to feast.
Now his eldest son was in the fields, and as he was returning and approaching the house, he heard the melody and the dancing.
And having called one of the servants, he asked him what it was.
And [this servant] said to him, "Your brother has come, and your father has killed the fattened calf, because he has received it back safe and sound."
But he became angry and would not go in; and his father went out and begged him [to come in].
But he answered, and said to his father, "Look, all these years I have served you, and I have never transgressed your commandment, yet you have never given me even a young goat to celebrate with my friends."
But when this son of yours, who has squandered your property with prostitutes, came, you killed the fattened calf for him.
And [the father] said to him: [my] child, you are always with me, and all my possessions are yours.
But we had to celebrate and rejoice, because this brother of yours was dead and is risen again; he was lost and is found.
He also said to his disciples: There was a rich man who had a manager, who was accused before him of wasting his possessions.

Having called him in, he said to him: what is this I hear about you? Give an account of your administration; for you will no longer have the authority to administer my property.

Then the steward said to himself: what shall I do, since my master is taking away my administration? I cannot dig the earth, and I am ashamed to beg.

I know what I will do, so that when my administration is taken away from me, [some] will receive me into their homes.

Then he called each of his master's debtors, and said to the first, "How much do you owe my master?"

He said: one hundred measures of oil. And he said to him: take your obligation, and sit down immediately, and write only fifty.

Then he said to another, "And how much do you owe?" And he said, "One hundred measures of wheat." And he said to him, "Take your obligation, and write only eighty."

And the master praised the dishonest steward for having acted prudently. Thus, the children of this age are more prudent in their generation than the children of light.

And I also tell you: make friends for yourselves by means of unrighteous wealth, so that when you come to want, they may receive you into the eternal tabernacles.

He who is faithful in very little is faithful also in great things; and he who is unjust in very little is unjust also in great things.

If you have not been faithful in the unrighteous riches, who will entrust to you the true [riches]?

And if you have not been faithful in what belongs to others, who will give you what is yours?

No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and wealth.

But the Pharisees, who were greedy, also heard all these things, and they mocked him.

And he said to them, "You are justifying yourselves before men, but God knows your hearts; therefore what is great in the sight of men is an abomination in the sight of God."

The Law and the Prophets [endured] until John; since that time the Kingdom of God has been preached, and everyone is forcing it.

But it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one point of the Law to fail.

Anyone who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, and anyone who takes a divorced woman commits adultery.

Now there was a rich man who dressed in purple and fine linen and lived lavishly every day.

There was also a poor man named Lazarus, lying at the gate of the rich man, covered with sores;

And he desired to be filled with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table; and even the dogs came and licked his sores.

And it came to pass that the poor man died, and was carried by the Angels to Abraham's bosom; the rich man also died, and was buried.

And being in hell, and lifting up his eyes, as he was in torment, he saw Abraham far away, and Lazarus in his bosom.

And crying out, he said: Father Abraham, have pity on me, and send Lazarus, who, wetting the tip of his finger in water, may come and cool my tongue; for I am grievously tormented in this flame.

And Abraham answered, "My son, remember that in your lifetime you received your good things, and Lazarus received his bad things; but now he is comforted, and you are grievously tormented."

And besides all this, there is a great chasm between us and you; so much so that those who want to pass from here to you cannot; nor can they pass from there to here.

And he said, "I beg you then, father, to send him to my father's house; For I have five brothers, so that he may bear witness to them [of my condition]; lest they also come to this place of torment.

Abraham replied, "They have Moses and the Prophets; let them listen to them."

But he said, "No, father Abraham, but if someone from the dead goes to them, they will repent."

And Abraham said to him, "If they do not listen to Moses and the Prophets, they will not be convinced even if someone rises from the dead."

But he said to his disciples: it is inevitable that scandals will occur; but woe to him through whom they come.

It would be better for him to have a millstone put around his neck and be thrown into the sea than to cause one of these little ones to stumble.

Be careful of yourselves. If your brother sins against you, rebuke him; and if he repents, forgive him.

And if seven times a day he sins against you, and seven times a day returns to you, saying, 'I repent,' you shall forgive him.

Then the Apostles said to the Lord: increase our faith.

And the Lord said, "If you had faith as small as a mustard seed, you could say to this mulberry tree, 'Be uprooted and planted in the sea,' and it would obey you."

But which of you has a servant plowing or tending livestock, and seeing him return from the fields, immediately says to him, "Come forward and sit down at the table"?

And who would not rather say to him, 'Prepare my supper, gird yourself, and serve me until I have eaten and drunk; and after that you shall eat and drink?'

But does that mean he is obligated to do what he commanded his servant? I don't think so.

So you also, when you have done all the things which you were commanded, should say, 'We are unprofitable servants, because what we have done, we had to do.'

And it came to pass that, on his way to Jerusalem, he passed through the middle of Samaria and Galilee.

And as he entered a small town, ten leper men met him, and they stopped at a distance;

And raising their voices, they said to him: Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

And when he had seen them, he said to them, "Go, show yourselves to the priests." And it came to pass that as they went they were cleansed.

And one of them, seeing that he was healed, returned, glorifying God with a loud voice;

And he fell facedown at Jesus' feet, giving him thanks. Now he was a Samaritan.

Then Jesus spoke up and said, "Were not the ten cleansed? And where are the nine?"

Only this foreigner returned to give glory to God.

Then he said to him, "Get up; go, your faith has saved you."

When the Pharisees asked him when the Kingdom of God would come, he answered them, "The Kingdom of God will not come with an appearance."

And they will not say, 'Look, here it is!' or 'Look, there it is!' For behold, the Kingdom of God is within you.

He also said to his disciples: the days will come when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, but you will not see it.

And they will tell you: here he is; or there he is; [but] do not go there, and do not follow them.

For as the lightning flashes from one side under the sky, and shines to the other under the sky, so will the Son of Man be in his day.

But first he must suffer greatly, and be rejected by this nation.

And as it was in the days of Noah, so it will be in the days of the Son of Man. They ate and drank; they married and gave women up until the day Noah entered the Ark; and the flood came and destroyed them all. The same thing happened in the days of Lot: people ate, drank, bought, sold, planted, and built; But on the day Lot left Sodom, fire and sulfur rained down from heaven and destroyed them all. It will be the same on the day the Son of Man is revealed. On that day, let no one who is in charge of the house, and who has his household in the house, go down to take it away; and let no one who is in the field return to what has been left behind. Remember Lot's wife. Whoever seeks to save their life will lose it; and whoever loses their life will give it life. I tell you, on that night two will be in one bed: one will be taken, and the other left. There will be two [women] grinding together: one will be taken, and the other left. Two will be in the fields: one will be taken, and the other left. And they answered him, saying, "Where [will it be], Lord?" And he said to them, "Wherever the [dead] body is, there also the eagles will gather." He also told them a parable, [to show] that they should always pray and not give up;

Saying: There was in a certain city a judge who neither feared God nor respected anyone. And in the same town there was a widow who often went to him and said, "Grant me justice against my adversary." For a long time he refused to do anything about it. But after that he said to himself: although I do not fear God, and I respect no one, Nevertheless, because this widow is causing me pain, I will do her justice, lest she come and perpetually drive me crazy. And the Lord said: Listen to what the unjust judge says. And will not God avenge his chosen ones who cry out to him day and night, even though he delays to be angry for their sake? I tell you that he will soon avenge them. But when the Son of Man comes, [do you think] that he will find faith on earth? He also told this parable to some who trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and who considered others as nothing. Two men went up to the Temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector.

The Pharisee, standing apart, prayed with himself, saying: "O God, I thank you that I am not like other men—robbers, unjust, adulterers—nor even like this tax collector."

I fast twice a week, [and] I give a tithe of all that I possess. But the tax collector, standing far away, did not even dare to raise his eyes to heaven, but beat his breast, saying: O God! Be merciful to me, a sinner! I tell you that this man went down to his house justified, rather than the other; for everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted. And some also brought little children to him, so that he might touch them; but when the disciples saw this, they rebuked [those who brought them]. But Jesus called them to him and said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these." Truly I tell you, whoever will not receive the kingdom of God like a child will never enter it. And a Lord questioned him, saying, "Master, who is good, what must I do to inherit eternal life?"

Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? There is no one good except one, [who is] God."

You know the Commandments: You shall not commit adultery. You shall not murder. You shall not steal. You shall not bear false witness. Honor your father and your mother.

And he said to him: I have kept all these things from my youth.

And when Jesus heard this, he said to him, "You still lack one thing: sell all that you have and distribute it to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me."

But when he heard these things, he became very sad, for he was extremely rich.

And when Jesus saw that he had become very sad, he said: How hard it is for those who have possessions to enter the Kingdom of God!

It is certainly easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God.

And those who heard this said, "Then who can be saved?"

And he said to them: things which are impossible with men are possible with God.

And Peter said: Look, we have left everything and followed you.

And he said to them, "Truly I tell you, there is not one who has left home or parents or brothers or wife or children for the sake of the kingdom of God,

Who do not receive much more in this age, and in the age to come, eternal life.

Then Jesus took the twelve aside and said to them, "We are going up to Jerusalem, and everything that is written by the prophets about the Son of Man will be fulfilled."

For he will be handed over to the Gentiles; he will be mocked and insulted, and they will spit in his face.

And after they have flogged him, they will kill him; but he will rise again on the third day.

But they understood none of it, and the speech was so obscure to them that they did not understand what he was saying to them.

Now it happened as he approached Jericho that a blind man was sitting by the roadside begging.

And hearing the crowd passing by, he asked what it was.

And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by.

Then he cried out, saying, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!"

And those who were going in front of him rebuked him, so that he would be quiet; but he cried out all the more: Son of David, have mercy on me!

And Jesus stopped and ordered that he be brought to him; and when he had approached, he questioned him, Saying: what do you want me to do for you? He replied: Lord, let me regain my sight.

And Jesus said to him, "Receive your sight; your faith has saved you."

And at once he regained his sight; and he followed [Jesus], glorifying God. And all the people, seeing this, praised God.

And [Jesus] having entered Jericho, went through the city.

And there was a man named Zacchaeus, who was a chief tax collector and wealthy,

He tried to see which one was Jesus, but he could not because of the crowd, for he was short.

That is why he ran ahead, and climbed a sycamore tree to see him; for he was going to pass that way.

And when Jesus came to that place, looking up, he saw him and said to him, Zacchaeus, come down quickly, for I must stay at your house today.

And he came down quickly, and received him with joy.

And everyone, seeing this, murmured, saying that he had entered the house of a man of ill repute to lodge there.

And Zacchaeus came there and said to the Lord, "Look, Lord, I give half of my possessions to the poor; and if I have wronged anybody in anything, I will pay back four times the amount."

And Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, because this man too is a son of Abraham."

For the Son of Man came to seek and to save what was lost.

And as they heard these things, Jesus continued his discourse, and told them a parable, because he was near Jerusalem, and they thought that at once the Kingdom of God was to be manifested.

He said, therefore: a nobleman went to a distant country, to take possession of a kingdom, but with the intention of returning.

And having called ten of his servants, he gave them ten marks of silver and said to them, "Put this to good use until I come."

But his citizens hated him: that is why they sent a delegation after him, to say: we do not want this man to reign over us.

It therefore came to pass after he had returned, and had taken possession of the Kingdom, that he commanded that those servants to whom he had entrusted [his] money be summoned, so that he might know how much each one had earned from his trade.

Then the first one came, saying, "Lord, your mark has produced ten more marks."

And he said to him, "That is well, good servant; because you have been faithful in a little, have authority over ten cities."

And another came, saying, "Sir, your mark has produced five more."

And he also said to this one: and you, be established over five cities.

And another came, saying, Lord, here is your mark which I have kept wrapped in a cloth;

For I feared you, because you are a severe man; you take what you have not sown, and you reap what you have not sown.

And he said to him, "You wicked servant, I will judge you by your own words. You knew that I am a hard man, taking what I have not planted and reaping what I have not sown;

Why then didn't you put my money in the bank, and on my return I could have withdrawn it with interest?

Then he said to those who were present, "Take the mark from him and give it to the one who has the ten."

And they said to him, "Sir, he has ten marks."

So I tell you, to everyone who has, more will be given; and from him who does not have, even what he has will be taken away.

Furthermore, bring here those enemies who did not want me to reign over them, and kill them in front of me.

And having said these things, he went ahead of them, going up to Jerusalem.

And it came to pass, as he approached Bethphage and Bethany, at the mountain called Olivet, that he sent two of his disciples, Saying to them: go to the village opposite you, and when you enter it, you will find a donkey tied up, on which no man has ever ridden; untie it, and bring it to me.

If anyone asks you why you are untying it, you shall tell them this: it is because the Lord needs it.

And those who were sent went away, and found [the donkey] just as he had told them.

And as they were untying the donkey, the masters said to them: why are you untying this donkey?

They replied: the Lord needs it.

So they brought it to Jesus, and threw their clothes on the donkey; then they put Jesus on it.

As he walked, they spread their clothes out on the path.

And when he came near to the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the Disciples rejoiced and began to praise God aloud for all the miracles they had seen;

Saying: Blessed is the King who comes in the Name of the Lord; let there be peace in heaven, and glory in the highest.

And some of the Pharisees in the group said to him, "Teacher, rebuke your disciples."

And Jesus answered them, saying, "I tell you, if these keep silent, the very stones will cry out."

And when he drew near, seeing the city, he wept over it, saying:

Oh, if you too had known, at least on this day of yours, the things that belong to your peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes.

For the days will come upon you when your enemies will surround you with trenches, they will enclose you, and surround you on all sides;

They will raze you and your children who are within you, and they will not leave one stone upon another in you, because you did not recognize the time of your visitation.

Then, having entered the Temple, he began to drive out those who were selling and buying there.

Saying to them, "It is written: 'My house is a house of prayer,' but you have made it a den of robbers."

And every day he was teaching in the Temple, and the chief priests and scribes were trying to kill him.

But they could find nothing they could do to him; for all the people were very attentive to listening to him.

And it happened one of those days, as he was teaching the people in the Temple, and preaching the gospel, that the chief priests and the scribes arrived with the elders.

And they spoke to him, saying, "Tell us by what authority you are doing these things, or who is it that gave you this authority?"

And Jesus answered them, saying: I will also ask you about one matter, and answer me.

Was John's baptism from heaven, or from men?

But they disputed among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?'"

And if we say: men, all the people will stone us; for they are convinced that John was a Prophet;

That is why they replied that they did not know where he was from.

And Jesus said to them, "I will not tell you by what authority I do these things."

Then he began to tell the people this parable: A man planted a vineyard and rented it to tenants, and remained out of it for a long time.

And in the season [of the fruit], he sent a servant to the tenants, so that they might give him some of the fruit of the vine, but the tenants beat him and sent him away empty-handed.

He sent them yet another servant; but they beat him also, and after treating him shamefully, they sent him away empty-handed.

He sent a third one, but they wounded him too, and threw him out.

Then the lord of the vineyard said: What shall I do? I will send my beloved son there; perhaps when they see him, they will respect him.

But when the tenants saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, so that the inheritance may be ours.'

And they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him. What then will the owner of the vineyard do to them?

He will come and destroy those tenants, and give the vineyard to others. When they heard this, they said, "God forbid!"

Then he looked at them and said, "What then is the meaning of this writing: 'The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone'?"

Anyone who falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls.

The chief priests and the scribes sought at that very moment to lay hands on him, for they knew well that he had told this parable against them, but they feared the people.

And observing him, they sent conspiring men, who pretended to be righteous, to catch him in words, in order to deliver him into the dominion and power of the Governor, They questioned him, saying, "Teacher, we know that you speak and teach in accordance with righteousness, and that you do not show partiality, but teach the way of God in truth."

Are we allowed to pay tribute to Caesar, or not?

But when he saw their trick, he said to them: why are you tempting me?

Show me a denarius; whose image and inscription does it bear? They answered him: Caesar's.

And he said to them, "Give back to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."

Thus they could find nothing wrong with his answer in the presence of the people; but, astonished by his response, they remained silent.

Then some of the Sadducees, who categorically deny the resurrection, approached him and questioned him, Saying: Master, Moses left us in writing, that if a man's brother dies having a wife, and dies without children, his brother shall take his wife, and raise up children for his brother.

Now there were seven brothers, the eldest of whom took a wife, and died childless.

And the second took her, and also died childless.

Then the third took her, and so did all seven; and they died without leaving any children.

And after all, the woman also died.

Which of them will she be his wife in the resurrection? For all seven had her as their wife.

And Jesus answered them, saying: the children of this age marry and are married.

But those who are deemed worthy to receive this age and the resurrection of the dead will neither marry nor be married;

For they can no longer die, because they will be like the angels, and will be children of God, being children of the resurrection.

But that the dead are raised, Moses himself showed it at the burning bush, when he calls the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.

But he is not the God of the dead, but of the living: for in him all live.

And some of the Scribes, speaking up, said: Master, you have spoken well.

And they no longer dared to question him about anything.

But he said to them, "How can anyone say that the Christ is the Son of David?"

For David himself says in the Book of Psalms: The Lord said to my Lord, "Sit at my right hand,"

Until I have made your enemies a footstool for your feet.

[Then] David calls him [his] Lord, how is he his Son?

And as all the people listened, he said to his disciples:

Beware of the Scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and who love greetings in the marketplaces, and the best pulpits in the Synagogues, and the best places at feasts;

And who devour widows' houses entirely, even under the pretext of making long prayers; for they will receive a greater condemnation.

And as [Jesus] looked on, he saw rich people putting their gifts into the offering box.

He also saw a poor widow who put two small coins in it.

And he said: indeed I tell you, that this poor widow has put in more than all [the others].

For all these have contributed to God's offerings out of their abundance; but she, out of her poverty, has put in everything she had to live on.

And when some were saying of the Temple, that it was adorned with beautiful stones and gifts, he said:

Is this what you're looking at? The days will come when not one stone will be left upon another that will not be demolished.

And they questioned him, saying, "Teacher, when will these things happen? And what will be the sign when these things are about to happen?"

And he said: beware lest you be deceived; for many will come in my name, saying, I am he [the Christ]; and indeed the time is near; therefore do not go after them.

And when you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be alarmed; for these things must happen first, but the end will not come immediately.

Then he said to them, "Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom."

And there will be great earthquakes in all places, and famines, and plagues, and terrors, and great signs from heaven.

But before all these things they will lay hands on you and persecute you, handing you over to the synagogues and putting you in prison; and they will bring you before kings and governors because of my name.

And this will serve as your testimony.

Therefore, set it in your hearts not to premeditate how you will have to answer; For I will give you a mouth and wisdom, which all those who oppose you will not be able to contradict or resist.

You will also be betrayed by your fathers and mothers, and by your brothers, and by your relatives, and by your friends; and they will put many of you to death.

And you will be hated by everyone because of my name.

But not a single hair of your head will be lost.

Possess your souls through your patience.

And when you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that its desolation is near.

Let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let those who are in Jerusalem depart from it; and let those who are in the fields not enter it.

For these will be the days of vengeance, so that all things which are written may be fulfilled.

But woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days; for there will be great calamity upon the land, and great wrath against this people.

And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led captive into all nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled by the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled.

And there will be signs in the sun and in the moon and in the stars, and such distress among the nations that people will not know what to do on the earth, the roaring sea and the waves.

So that men will be as though they were giving up their souls from fear, and because of the expectation of things which are coming upon all the earth; for the virtues of heaven will be shaken.

And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. But when these things begin to happen, look up and lift up your heads, because your redemption is drawing near.

And he offered them this comparison: look at the fig tree and all the [other] trees.

When they start to grow, you know by looking at them that summer is already near.

Likewise, when you see these things happening, know that the Kingdom of God is near.

Truly I tell you, this generation will certainly not pass away until all these things have happened.

Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.

Therefore, be careful that your hearts are not weighed down with gluttony and drunkenness and the cares of this life, and that day does not suddenly catch you.

For it will catch like a trap all those who dwell on the top of the whole earth.

Therefore, be on the watch, praying at all times, that you may be made worthy to avoid all these things that are going to happen, and that you may be able to stand before the Son of Man.

Now he taught by day in the Temple; and he went out and stayed by night on the mountain which is called the Mount of Olives.

And at daybreak, all the people came to him at the Temple to hear him.

Now the feast of unleavened bread, which is called Passover, was approaching.

And the chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to kill him, for they feared the people.

But Satan entered into Judas, surnamed Iscariot, who was one of the twelve.

He went away and spoke with the chief priests and captains about how he would hand him over to them.

And they were happy about it, and agreed that they would give him money.

And he promised it to them; and he sought the right time to deliver it to them without tumult.

Now the day of unleavened bread arrived, on which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed.

And [Jesus] sent Peter and John, saying to them, "Go, and prepare for us the Passover [Lamb], so that we may eat it."

And they said to him, "Where do you want us to prepare it?"

And he said to them, "Behold, when you enter the city you will meet a man carrying a jug of water; follow him into the house he enters."

And say to the master of the house: The Teacher sends you to say: Where is the guest house where I may eat the Passover lamb with my disciples?

And he will show you a large upper room, adorned; prepare there the [Passover Lamb].

So when they went away, they found everything just as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover lamb.

And when the hour came, he sat down to eat, and the twelve Apostles with him.

And he said to them, "I have earnestly desired to eat this [Passover] lamb with you before I suffer."

For I tell you, I will not eat of it again until it is fulfilled in the Kingdom of God.

And having taken the cup, he gave thanks, and said: take it, and distribute it among yourselves.

For I tell you, I will not drink again of the fruit of the vine until the Kingdom of God comes.

Then taking the bread, and having given thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying: This is my body, which is given for you; do this in remembrance of me.

Likewise also [he gave them] the cup after supper, saying: this cup is the New Testament in my blood, which is poured out for you.

However, behold, the hand of him who betrayed me is with me at table.

And indeed the Son of Man goes away, according to what has been determined; yet woe to that man by whom he is betrayed.

Then they began to ask each other which of them would happen to commit this act.

There also arose a dispute between them, over which of them would be considered the greatest.

But he said to them: The kings of the nations rule over them; and those who exercise authority over them are called benefactors.

But it shall not be so with you: on the contrary, let the greatest among you be as the least; and the one who rules, as the one who serves.

For who is greater, the one who sits at the table or the one who serves? Is it not the one who sits at the table? But I am among you as one who serves.
But you are the ones who have persevered with me in my temptations.
That is why I entrust the Kingdom to you, just as my Father entrusted it to me.
So that you may eat and drink at my table in my Kingdom; and that you may sit on thrones judging the twelve Tribes of Israel.
The Lord also said: Simon, Simon, behold, Satan has earnestly asked to sift you like wheat;
But I have prayed for you that your faith may not fail; therefore, when you have turned back, strengthen your brothers.
And [Peter] said to him, Lord, I am ready to go with you, either to prison or to death.
But Jesus said to him, "Peter, I tell you that the rooster will not crow today, unless you first deny three times that you have known me."
Then he said to them, "When I sent you out without purse, bag, or shoes, did you lack anything?" They replied, "Nothing."
And he said to them, "But now let the one who has a purse take it, and likewise the one who has a bag; and let the one who has no sword sell his robe and buy one."
For I tell you, this also must be fulfilled in me, and he was numbered among the wicked. For surely the things which were foretold of me will be fulfilled.
And they said, "Lord, here are two swords." And he said to them, "That is enough."
Then he departed, and went, as was his custom, to the Mount of Olives; and his disciples followed him.
And when he arrived at that place, he said to them, "Pray that you may not enter into temptation."
Then, having moved away from them about a stone's throw, and having knelt down, he prayed,
Saying: Father, if you are willing to take this cup away from me; yet not my will, but yours be done.
And an angel appeared to him from heaven, strengthening him.
And he, being in agony, prayed more earnestly, and his sweat became like drops of blood falling to the ground.
Then, having risen from his prayer, he returned to his Disciples, whom he found sleeping with sadness;
And he said to them, "Why are you sleeping? Get up and pray that you may not fall into temptation."
And while he was still speaking, a group came, and the one named Judas, one of the twelve, came before them and approached Jesus to kiss him.
And Jesus said to him, "Judas, are you betraying the Son of Man with a kiss?"
Then those who were around him, seeing what was going to happen, said to him, "Lord, shall we strike with the sword?"
And one of them struck the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.
But Jesus spoke up and said, "Let them go this far." And he touched the man's ear and healed him.
Then Jesus said to the chief priests, the captains of the temple, and the elders who had come against him: "Have you come out as against a robber with swords and clubs?"

Although I was with you in the Temple every day, you did not lay a hand on me; but this is your hour, and the power of darkness.
So they seized him, led him away, and brought him into the house of the high priest; and Peter followed at a distance.
Now these people had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard, and sat down together, Peter also sat down among them.
And a servant girl, seeing him sitting by the fire, and having her eye fixed on him, said: this man also was with him;

But he denied it, saying: woman, I do not know him.
And a little later, another man, seeing him, said: you are also one of them, but Peter said: O man! I am not.
And about an hour later, someone else affirmed, [and said]: Surely this man was with him, for he is a Galilean.
And Peter said, "O man! I do not know what you are saying." And at that moment, while he was still speaking, the rooster crowed.
And the Lord turned and looked at Peter; and Peter remembered the word of the Lord, who had said to him: Before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times.
Then Pierre went outside and wept bitterly.
But those who were holding Jesus mocked him and beat him.
And having blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and questioned him, saying:
guess who it is who hit you?
And they said many other things against him, insulting him with words.
And when the day came, the elders of the people, and the chief priests, and the scribes, assembled, and brought him into the council;
And they said to him, "If you are the Christ, tell us." And he replied, "If I tell you, you will not believe."
Even if I question you, you will not answer me, and you will not let me go.
From now on the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God.
Then they all said, "Are you then the Son of God?" He said to them, "You yourselves say that I am."
And they said, "What further need do we have of testimony? For we ourselves have heard it from his own mouth."
Then they all got up and led him to Pilate.
And they began to accuse him, saying: we have found this man inciting the nation to revolt, and forbidding them to pay tribute to Caesar, and claiming to be Christ, the King.
And Pilate questioned him, saying, "Are you the King of the Jews?" And [Jesus] answering him, said, "You say so."
Then Pilate said to the chief priests and the people: I find no guilt in this man.
But they insisted even more, saying: he stirs up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, and having begun from Galilee to here.
But when Pilate heard about Galilee, he asked if this man was a Galilean.
And when he learned that he was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him back to Herod, who was also in Jerusalem at that time.
And when Herod saw Jesus, he was very glad, for he had long desired to see him, because he had heard many things about him, and he hoped that he might see him perform some miracle.
So he questioned him with various words; but [Jesus] gave him no answer.
And the chief priests and scribes appeared, accusing him with great vehemence.
But Herod and his men despised him and mocked him, after dressing him in a white garment, and sent him back to Pilate.
And on that very day Pilate and Herod became friends with each other; for before, they had been enemies.
Then Pilate summoned the chief priests, the governors, and the people, and said to them:
You presented this man to me as inciting the people; and behold, having made him answer for it before you, I have found in this man none of these crimes of which you accuse him;
Nor Herod either; for I sent you back to him, and behold, nothing has been done to him [that indicates he is] worthy of death.
When I have had him flogged, I will release him.
But he needed to release someone to them at the party.

And all the troops cried out together, saying: Take this man away, and release Barabbas to us;
Who had been put in prison for some sedition committed in the city, with murder.
Pilate then spoke to them again, wanting to release Jesus.
But they cried out, saying: crucify him! Crucify him!
And he said to them for the third time, "But what wrong has this man done? I find nothing in him worthy of death; therefore, having had him flogged, I will release him."
But they kept shouting loudly, demanding that he be crucified; and their shouts and those of the chief priests grew louder.
Then Pilate decreed that what they asked should be done.
And he released to them the one who had been put in prison for sedition and murder, and whom they were asking for; and he handed Jesus over to their will.
And as they led him away, they seized a man from Cyrene, Simon, who was coming out of the country, and laid the cross on him to carry it after Jesus.
But he was followed by a great multitude of people and women, who beat their breasts and wept for him.
But Jesus turned to them and said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children."
For behold, the days will come when they will say, "Blessed are the barren, and those who never bore, and the breasts that never nursed."
Then they will begin to say to the mountains, "Fall on us!" and to the hills, "Cover us!"
For if they do these things when the wood is green, what will be done when it is dry?

Two others, who were also criminals, were brought in to be put to death with him.
And when they came to the place which is called the Test, they crucified him there, and the criminals also, one on his right and the other on his left.
But Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing."
Then they divided his clothes among themselves and cast lots for them.
And the people stood there watching; and the governors also mocked him with them, saying: he saved others, let him save himself, if he is the Christ, the chosen one of God.
The soldiers also mocked him, approaching and offering him vinegar;
And saying: If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself.
Now there was above him a sign in Greek, Roman, and Hebrew letters, [with these words]: THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.
And one of the criminals who were hanged insulted him, saying: if you are the Christ, save yourself, and us too.
But the other, taking the floor, strongly rebuked him, saying: at least do you not fear God, since you are under the same condemnation?
And for us, we are right there: for we receive things worthy of our crimes, but this one has done nothing that should not have been done.
Then he said to Jesus, "Lord, remember me when you come into your kingdom."
And Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, today you will be with me in paradise."
Now it was about six o'clock, and darkness came over all the land until nine o'clock;

And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the Temple was torn in two.
And Jesus, crying out in a loud voice, said, "Father, into your hands I commit my spirit!" And having said this, he gave up his spirit.
But the centurion, seeing what had happened, glorified God, saying: indeed this man was righteous.
And all the troops who had gathered at this spectacle, seeing the things that had happened, returned home beating their chests.
And all those who knew him, and the women who had followed him from Galilee, stood at a distance, watching these things.

And here is a man named Joseph, Counselor, a good and righteous man, Who had not consented to their resolution, nor to their action, [who was] from Arimathea, a city of the Jews, [and] who also was waiting for the Kingdom of God; Having come to Pilate, he asked him for the body of Jesus.

And having taken him down [from the cross], he wrapped him in a shroud, and laid him in a tomb cut out of the rock, where no one had ever been laid.

But it was the day of preparation, and the Sabbath was about to begin.

And the women who had come from Galilee with Jesus, having followed [Joseph], saw the tomb, and how the body of Jesus was laid in it.

Then they returned and prepared aromatic spices and perfumes; and on the Sabbath day they rested according to the commandment [of the Law].

But on the first day of the week, while it was still very early, they came to the tomb, and some others with them, bringing the spices they had prepared.

And they found the stone rolled away beside the tomb.

And when they entered, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus.

And it happened that, as they were in great perplexity concerning this, behold, two figures appeared before them in clothes all covered with light.

And as they were all terrified, and bowed their faces to the ground, they said to them, "Why do you look for the living among the dead?"

He is not here, but he has risen! Remember how he spoke to you while he was still in Galilee, Saying: that the Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinners, and be crucified, and rise again on the third day.

And they remembered his words.

Then they returned from the tomb and reported all these things to the eleven [Disciples], and to all the others.

Now it was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary [mother] of James, and the others [who were] with them, who told these things to the Apostles.

But the words of these women seemed to them like dreams, and they did not believe them.

Nevertheless, Peter got up, ran to the tomb, and stooping down to look, he saw only the linen cloths laid beside it; then he left, marveling in himself at what had happened.

Now behold, two of them were on their way that day to a town called Emmaus, which was some sixty stadia away from Jerusalem.

And they talked together about all these things that had happened.

And it came to pass that as they were talking and conferring among themselves, Jesus himself approached and began to walk with them.

But their eyes were held back so that they did not recognize him.

And he said to them, "What are these words that you are having among yourselves as you walk along? And why are you all so sad?"

And one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answered him, and said to him, "Are you the only foreigner in Jerusalem who does not know the things that have happened there in these days?"

And he said to them, "What are they?" They replied, "They concern Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet, mighty in deeds and words before God and all the people."

And how the chief priests and our governors handed him over to be condemned to death, and crucified him.

But we had hoped that he was the one who would deliver Israel; but besides all this, it is now the third day since these things have happened.

However, some women among us greatly astonished us, [because] they went to the tomb very early in the morning;

And not having found his body, they returned, saying that they had even seen an apparition of Angels, who said that he is alive.

And some of our people went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but they did not see him.

Then he said to them: O people devoid of understanding, and slow of heart to believe all that the Prophets have spoken!

Did not the Christ have to suffer these things and enter into his glory?

Then beginning with Moses, and [continuing] with all the Prophets, he explained to them what was said in all the Scriptures concerning himself.

And as they were near the village they were going to, he pretended to go further.

But they compelled him, saying, "Stay with us, for it is nearly evening and the day is almost over." So he went in to stay with them.

And it came to pass that, as he was at table with them, he took the bread, and he blessed it; and having broken it, he distributed it to them.

Then their eyes were opened, so that they recognized him; but he disappeared from their sight.

And they said to one another, "Were not our hearts burning within us while he talked with us on the road and opened the Scriptures to us?"

And getting up at that moment, they returned to Jerusalem, where they found the eleven assembled, and those who were with them;

They were saying: The Lord has truly risen, and has appeared to Simon.

And they also related the things that had happened to them on the way, and how he had been recognized by them when they broke bread.

And while they were speaking these words, Jesus himself stood among them and said to them, "Peace be with you!"

But they, all disturbed and terrified, thought they saw a spirit.

And he said to them, "Why are you troubled, and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?"

Look at my hands and my feet; for it is I myself: touch me, and consider me well; for a spirit does not have flesh and bones, as you see I have.

And saying this, he showed them his hands and feet.

But as they still did not believe it for joy, and were amazed, he said to them, "Do you have anything here to eat?"

And they presented him with a piece of roasted fish, and a honeycomb;

And having taken it, he ate in front of them.

Then he said to them, "These are the words I spoke to you while I was still with you: Everything must be fulfilled that is written about me in the Law of Moses, the Prophets and the Psalms."

Then he opened their minds to hear the Scriptures.

And he said to them, "It is written that the Christ should suffer and on the third day rise from the dead;

And that repentance and forgiveness of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

And you are witnesses of these things; and behold, I am going to send you the promise of my Father.

Therefore, you must remain in the city of Jerusalem until you are clothed with the power that comes from on high.

After that he led them out to Bethany, and lifting his hands upward, he blessed them.

And it came to pass that, in blessing them, he parted from them and was taken up to heaven.

And having worshipped him, they returned to Jerusalem with great joy.

And they were still in the Temple, praising and blessing God. Amen!

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God:

She was with God in the beginning.

All things were made through her, and without her nothing that has been made was made.

In her was life, and that life was the light of men.
And the light shines in the darkness, but the darkness has not received it.
There was a man called John, who was sent from God.
He came to bear witness, to bear witness, I say, to the Light, so that all might grow through him.
He was not the Light, but he [was sent] to bear witness to the Light.
[This] Light was the true one, which enlightens every man coming into the world.
She was in the world, and the world was made through her; yet the world did not recognize her.
He came to his own house, but his own people did not receive him;
But to all who did receive him, he gave the right to become children of God, [namely] to those who believe in his Name;
These were not born of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but were born of God.
And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, [which was] glory as of the only Son of the Father, full of grace and truth.
John therefore bore witness about him, and cried out, saying: This is the one of whom I said: He who comes after me is preferred to me, because he was before me.
And we have all received from his fullness, grace upon grace.
For the Law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.
No one has ever seen God; the only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, is the one who has revealed him to us.
And this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to question him, [and to say to him]: Who are you?
For he confessed it, and did not deny it; he confessed it, I say, [saying]: I am not the Christ.
Then they asked him, "Who are you then? Are you Elijah?" And he said, "I am not."
"Are you the Prophet?" And he answered, "No."
So they said to him, "Who are you, so that we may give an answer to those who sent us? What do you say about yourself?"
He said: I am the voice of one crying out in the wilderness: make straight the way of the Lord, as Isaiah the Prophet said.
Now those who had been sent [to him] were from among the Pharisees.
They questioned him further, saying, "Why then are you baptizing if you are neither the Christ, nor Elijah, nor the Prophet?"
John answered them, and said to them: I baptize with water; but there is one among you whom you do not know;
It is the one who comes after me, who is preferred to me, and whose shoe strap I am not worthy to untie.
These things happened at Bethabara beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing.
The next day John saw Jesus coming towards him, and he said, "Behold, the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world."
This is the one I used to say: after me comes a person who is preferred to me; because he was before me.
And for my part, I did not know him; but for this reason I came baptizing with water so that he might be revealed to Israel.
John also gave testimony, saying: I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and resting on him.
And I myself did not know him; but he who sent me to baptize with water had told me: the one on whom you see the Spirit descend and remain is the one who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.
And I have seen him, and I have testified, that this is the Son of God.
The next day John stopped again, and [with him] two of his disciples;
And seeing Jesus walking by, he said: Behold the Lamb of God.
And the two disciples heard him speaking these words, and they followed Jesus.

And Jesus turned around, and saw that they were following him, he said to them, "What are you looking for?" They answered him, "Rabbi," that is, "Teacher, where are you staying?"

He said to them, "Come and see him." So they went and saw where he was staying, and they stayed with him that day, for it was about ten o'clock.

Now Andrew, brother of Simon Peter, was one of the two who had heard about it from John, and who had followed him.

He first found his brother Simon and said to him, "We have found the Messiah," that is, the Christ.

And he brought him to Jesus, and Jesus, looking at him, said: You are Simon, son of Jonah, you will be called Cephas, that is, Peter.

The next day Jesus wanted to go to Galilee, and he found Philip, to whom he said: follow me.

Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

Philip found Nathanael and told him, "We have found Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph, of whom Moses wrote in the Law, and also the Prophets."

And Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see."

Jesus saw Nathanael coming towards him, and he said of him, "Here truly is an Israelite in whom there is no deceit."

Nathanael said to him, "How do you know me?" Jesus answered, "Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you."

Nathanael answered, and said to him, Master, you are the Son of God; you are the King of Israel.

Jesus answered, and said to him, "Because I told you that I saw you under the fig tree, do you believe? You will see greater things than this."

He also said to him, "Truly, truly, I say to you, from now on you will see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man."

Three days later a wedding was held in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there.

And Jesus was also invited to the wedding, along with his disciples.

And when the wine ran out, Jesus' mother said to him, "They have no more wine."

But Jesus answered her, "Woman, what has to do with me? My hour has not yet come."

His mother said to the servants: Do whatever he tells you.

Now there were six stone vessels there, placed according to the custom of the Jewish purification, each holding two or three measures.

And Jesus said to them, "Fill these vessels with water." And they filled them to the top.

Then he told them, "Pour some out now and take it to the head waiter." And they took it to him.

When the head waiter had tasted the water that had been changed into wine, (and he did not know where it came from, but the servants who had drawn the water knew well,) he addressed the bridegroom.

And he said to him: every man serves the good wine first, and then the cheaper wine after the guests have had plenty to drink; [but] you have kept the good wine until now.

Jesus performed this first miracle at Cana in Galilee, and he revealed his glory, and his disciples believed in him.

After this he went down to Capernaum with his mother, his brothers, and his disciples; but they stayed there only a few days.

Because the Jewish Passover was near; therefore Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

And he found in the Temple people selling oxen, sheep, and doves; and the money changers sitting there.

And having made a whip out of small cords, he drove them all out of the Temple, with the sheep and the oxen; and he scattered the money of the money changers and overturned the tables.

And he said to those who were selling doves, "Take these things away from here, [and] do not make my Father's house a place of marketplace."

Then his disciples remembered that it was written: zeal for your house has consumed me.

But the Jews spoke up and said to him, "What sign can you show us to prove your authority to do such things?"

Jesus answered, and said to them, "Tear down this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

And the Jews said: It has taken forty-six years to build this Temple, and you will raise it up in three days!

But he was talking about the Temple, about his body.

That is why, when he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had told them this, and they believed the Scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

And as he was in Jerusalem on the day of the Passover festival, many believed in his name when they saw the signs he performed.

But Jesus did not trust them, because he knew all of them;

And that he did not need anyone to testify about [any] man; for he himself knew what was in man.

Now there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, who was one of the leading men of the Jews;

One of them came to Jesus by night and said to him, "Teacher, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God, for no one can perform the miracles that you do if God is not with him."

Jesus answered, and said to him, "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

Nicodemus said to him: How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born?

Jesus answered, "Very truly I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God unless they are born of water and the Spirit."

That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

Don't be surprised by what I told you: you need to be born again.

The wind blows where it wishes, and you hear its sound; but you do not know where it comes from or where it goes: so it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit.

Nicodemus answered him, and said: how can these things be?

Jesus answered him, "You are a teacher of Israel, and yet you do not understand these things!"

Truly, truly I say to you, what we know we speak of, and what we have seen we testify to; but you do not receive our testimony.

If I have told you these earthly things, and you do not believe them, how will you believe if I tell you heavenly things?

For no one has ascended into heaven except the one who descended from heaven, [namely] the Son of Man who is in heaven.

For just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up;

So that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life,

For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life.

For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him.

Whoever believes in him will not be condemned; but whoever does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only Son of God.

This is the subject of the condemnation: that the light has come into the world, and that people loved the darkness rather than the light because their deeds were evil.

For everyone who does evil hates the light, and does not come to the light, lest his works should be exposed.

But he who pursues the truth comes into the light, so that it may be clearly seen that his works have been done according to God.

After these things Jesus came with his disciples to the land of Judea; and he stayed there with them, and baptized.

Now John also baptized at Aenon near Salim, because there was plenty of water there; and people came there and were baptized.

Because Jean had not yet been put in prison.

Now there was a question raised by John's disciples with the Jews concerning purification.

And they came to John and said to him, "Teacher, he who was with you on the other side of the Jordan, to whom you bore witness, behold, he is baptizing, and all are going to him."

John answered, and said: a man cannot receive anything unless it is given him from heaven.

You yourselves are witnesses that I said: I am not the Christ, but I have been sent before him.

The one who has the Bride is the Bridegroom; but the friend of the Bridegroom who attends and hears him is full of joy at the Bridegroom's voice; therefore this joy that I have is complete.

He must increase, and I must decrease.

He who came from above is above all; he who came from the earth is of the earth, and speaks as if he came from the earth; he who came from heaven is above all:

And what he has seen and heard, he testifies to; but no one accepts his testimony.

He who has received his testimony has sealed that God is true.

For the one whom God has sent speaks the words of God; for God does not give him the Spirit by measure.

The Father loves the Son, and has given him all things into his hand.

Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life; but whoever disobeys the Son will not see life, for God's wrath remains on him.

Now when the Lord learned that the Pharisees had heard that he was making and baptizing more disciples than John;

However, Jesus himself did not baptize, but it was his disciples;

He left Judea and went on to Galilee.

But he had to cross through Samaria.

So he came to a city in Samaria called Sychar, which is near the possession that Jacob gave to his son Joseph.

Now Jacob's well was there, and Jesus, being weary of the journey, sat there by the well; it was about six o'clock.

[And] a Samaritan woman came to draw water, and Jesus said to her, "Give me a drink."

For his disciples had gone to the city to buy food.

But this Samaritan woman said to him, "How is it that you, a Jew, ask me, a Samaritan woman, for a drink? For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans."

Jesus answered, and said to him, if you knew the gift of God, and who it is that says to you, 'Give me a drink,' you would have asked him, and he would have given you living water.

The woman said to him, "Sir, you have nothing to draw with, and the well is deep; where then do you get this living water?"

Are you greater than Jacob our father, who gave us the well, and he himself drank from it, as did his children and his livestock?

Jesus answered and said to him, "Everyone who drinks this water will be thirsty again;

But whoever drinks the water I give them will never thirst; indeed, the water I give them will become in them a spring of water welling up to eternal life.

The woman said to him, "Sir, give me this water, so that I will not be thirsty and have to keep coming here to draw water."

Jesus said to her, "Go, [and] call your husband, and come here."

The woman answered him, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "You are right in saying, 'I have no husband.'"

For you have had five husbands, and the one you have now is not your husband; in this you have spoken the truth.

The woman said to him, "Lord, I see that you are a Prophet."

Our fathers worshiped on that mountain, and you say that in Jerusalem is the place where we must worship.

Jesus said to her, "Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem."

You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know; for salvation is from the Jews.

But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth; for the Father requires such people to worship him. God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth.

The woman answered him, "I know that the Messiah, that is, the Christ, is to come; and when he comes, he will tell us all things."

Jesus said to him, "It is I who am speaking with you."

At this his disciples came, and they were astonished that he was speaking with a woman; yet no one said, "What do you want?" or "Why are you speaking with her?"

So the woman left her jug and went to the town, and she said to the inhabitants: Come, see a man who told me everything I ever did. Could this be the Christ?

So they left the city and came towards him.

However, the disciples begged him, saying, "Master, eat."

But he said to them, "I have food to eat that you do not know about."

The disciples then asked one another, "Has someone brought him food?"

Jesus said to them: My food is that I do the will of him who sent me, and accomplish his work.

Do you not say that there are yet four months, and the harvest will come? Behold, I tell you, lift up your eyes, and look at the fields, for they are already white for harvest.

But he who reaps receives a wage and gathers the fruit into eternal life, so that he who sows and he who reaps may rejoice together.

Now, the saying that one sows and the other reaps is true in this respect.

[That] I have sent you to reap what you have not worked for; others have done the work, and you have entered into their labor.

Now many of the Samaritans from that town believed in him because of the woman's testimony: "He told me everything I ever did."

So when the Samaritans came to him, they begged him to stay with them; and he stayed there two days.

And many more people believed because of his word;

And they said to the woman, "We no longer believe because of your word; for we ourselves have heard, and we know that this is truly the Christ, the Savior of the world."

Two days later he left there and went to Galilee.

For Jesus had testified that a prophet is not honored in his own country.

So when he came to Galilee, the Galileans welcomed him, having seen all the things that he had done in Jerusalem on the day of the Festival: for they too had come to the Festival.

Jesus then came again to Cana of Galilee, where he had changed water into wine. Now there was a nobleman in Capernaum whose son was ill;

Having heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he went to him and begged him to come down and heal his son, for he was about to die.

But Jesus said to him, "Unless you see signs and wonders, you will not believe."
And this Lord of the court said to him: Lord, come down before my son dies.
Jesus said to him, "Go, your son lives." The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him, and he went away.
And as he was already going down, his servants came to meet him and brought him news, saying: your son is alive.
And he asked them at what time he had felt better; and they told him: yesterday around seven o'clock the fever left him.
So the father knew that it was at that very hour that Jesus had told him, "Your son lives." And he and his whole household believed.
Jesus performed this second miracle after he had come from Judea to Galilee.
After these things there was a Jewish festival, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.
Now there is in Jerusalem, at the sheep market, a washing place called in Hebrew Bethesda, having five porticoes;
In which lay a great number of sick, blind, lame, [and people] whose limbs were dry, waiting for the movement of the water.
For an Angel would descend at certain times to the washhouse, and would muddy the water; and then the first one who went down to the washhouse after the water had been muddy was cured of whatever illness he was suffering from.
But there was a man there who had been ill for thirty-eight years.
[And] Jesus, seeing him lying on the ground, and knowing that he had already been there a long time, said to him, "Do you want to be healed?"
The sick man replied: Lord, I have no one to throw me into the washhouse when the water is murky, and while I come there, another goes down before me.
Jesus said to him: Get up, load up your little bed, and walk.
And at once the man was healed, and he loaded his little bed, and he walked. Now it was a Sabbath day.
So the Jews said to the one who had been healed: It is [a Sabbath day], it is not permitted for you to load your little bed.
He replied to them: the one who healed me told me: load your little bed, and walk.
Then they asked him, "Who is it that told you: 'Load your little bed, and walk?'"
But the one who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had slipped away from the crowd that was in that place.
Later, Jesus found him at the Temple and said to him, "See, you have been healed; sin no more, lest worse happen to you."
This man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had healed him.
That is why the Jews persecuted Jesus and sought to kill him, because he had done these things on the Sabbath.
But Jesus answered them, "My Father is always at his work to this very day, and I too am working."
And because of this the Jews tried even harder to kill him, because not only had he violated the Sabbath, but also because he said that God was his own Father, making himself equal to God.
But Jesus answered and said to them, "Truly, truly, I say to you, the Son can do nothing of himself, except what he sees the Father do; for whatever the Father does, the Son also does likewise."
For the Father loves the Son and shows him all the things he does; and he will show him greater works than these, so that you may marvel at them.
For as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so also the Son gives life to those whom he wills.
For the Father judges no one; but he has given all judgment to the Son;
So that all may honor the Son, just as they honor the Father; whoever does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent him.
Truly, truly I say to you, whoever hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life and will not be condemned, but has passed from death to life.

Truly, truly I say to you, the hour is coming, and is now here, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear it will live.
For as the Father has life in himself, so he has granted to the Son to have life in himself.
And he gave him authority to judge because he is the Son of Man.
Do not be amazed at this: for the hour will come when all who are in the tombs will hear his voice.
And they will come forth, those who have done good, in a resurrection of life; and those who have done evil, in a resurrection of condemnation.
I can do nothing on my own: I judge according to what I hear, and my judgment is just; for I do not seek my own will, but the will of the Father who sent me.
If I bear witness to myself, my testimony is not worthy of belief.
It is another who testifies about me, and I know that the testimony he gives about me is trustworthy.
You sent to John, and he bore witness to the truth.
But I am not seeking the testimony of men; but I say these things so that you may be saved.
He was a burning and shining lamp; and you wanted to rejoice for a little while in his light.
But I have a greater testimony than that of John; for the works which my Father gave me to accomplish, these very works which I do, testify of me that my Father has sent me.
And the Father who sent me has himself borne witness about me; you have never heard his voice nor seen his face.
And you do not have his word remaining in you, because you do not believe in the one he sent.
Inquire diligently into the Scriptures, for in them you consider that you have eternal life, and they are the ones that bear witness about me.
But you do not want to come to me, to have life.
I do not derive my glory from men.
But I know that you do not have the love of God in you.
I have come in the name of my Father, and you do not receive me; if another comes in his own name, you will receive him.
How can you believe, since you seek glory from one another and not the glory that comes from the only God?
Do not think that I will accuse you before my Father; Moses, on whom you rely, is the one who will accuse you.
For if you believed Moses, you would believe me also; for he wrote about me.
But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?
After these things Jesus went beyond the Sea of Galilee, which is [the Sea] of Tiberias.
And large crowds followed him, because they saw the miracles he performed on those who were sick.
But Jesus went up on a mountain, and sat there with his disciples.
Now the day of Passover, which was the Jewish festival, was near.
And Jesus, lifting up his eyes, and seeing great crowds coming toward him, said to Philip, "Where shall we buy bread, so that these may have something to eat?"
But he said this to test him, for he knew very well what he should do.
Philip replied to him: [even if we had] two hundred denarii worth of bread, it would not be enough for them, although each of them took only a little.
And one of his disciples, namely Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, said to him: There is a little boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish; but what is that to so many people?
Then Jesus said, "Have the people sit down." (Now there was much grass in that place.) So the people sat down, about five thousand in number.

And Jesus took the loaves; and after giving thanks, he distributed them to the disciples, and the disciples to those who were seated, and likewise fish, as much as they wanted.

And after they had eaten their fill, he said to his disciples: Gather up the coins that are left over, so that nothing may be lost.

So they gathered them up, and filled twelve baskets with the pieces from the five barley loaves that were left over for those who had eaten them.

But these people, having seen the miracle that Jesus had performed, said: this is truly the Prophet who was to come into the world.

But Jesus, knowing that they were going to come and take him away to make him King, withdrew again alone to the mountain.

And when evening came, his disciples went down to the sea.

And having climbed into the boat, they passed beyond the sea toward Capernaum, and it was already night, and Jesus had not yet come to them.

And the sea rose up with a great wind that was blowing.

But after they had rowed about twenty-five or thirty stadia, they saw Jesus walking on the sea, and approaching the boat; and they were afraid.

But he said to them, "It is I; do not be afraid."

So they gladly received him in the gondola, and immediately the gondola landed [at the place] where they were going.

The next day the troops who had remained on the other side of the sea, seeing that there was no other boat there except the one in which his Disciples had entered, and that Jesus had not entered with his Disciples into the boat, but that his Disciples had gone away alone;

And other boats came from Tiberias near the place where they had eaten the bread, after the Lord had given thanks;

So these troops, seeing that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, also got into the boats and came to Capernaum, looking for Jesus.

And when they found him beyond the sea, they said to him, "Master, when did you get here?"

Jesus answered them, and said to them, "Truly, truly I say to you, you are looking for me, not because you saw miracles, but because you ate loaves and were satisfied."

Do not work for the food that perishes, but for the food that endures to eternal life, which the Son of Man will give you; for the Father, [namely] God, has approved it with his seal.

So they said to him, "What shall we do to do the works of God?"

Jesus answered and said to them, "This is the work of God, that you believe in the one whom he has sent."

Then they said to him, "What sign will you perform that we may see it and believe you? What work will you do?"

Our ancestors ate the manna in the desert; as it is written: he gave them bread from heaven to eat.

But Jesus said to them, "Truly, truly, I say to you, Moses did not give you the bread of heaven, but my Father gives you the true bread of heaven;

For the bread of God is that which came down from heaven, and which gives life to the world.

So they said to him, "Lord, always give us this bread."

And Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never go hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty."

But I told you that you saw me, and yet you do not believe.

All that my Father gives me will come to me; and I will never drive away anyone who comes to me.

For I have come down from heaven not to do my own will, but the will of him who sent me.

And this is the will of the Father who sent me, that I should lose nothing of all that he has given me, but raise it up on the last day.

And this is the will of him who sent me, that everyone who looks upon the Son and believes in him should have eternal life; therefore I will raise him up at the last day.

But the Jews grumbled against him because he had said, "I am the bread that came down from heaven."

For they were saying, "Is this not Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How then can he say, 'I have come down from heaven'?"

Jesus then answered and said to them, "Do not grumble among yourselves."

No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him, and I will raise him up at the last day.

It is written in the Prophets: and they will all be taught by God. Therefore, whoever has listened to the Father and been instructed [by his intentions] comes to me.

Not that anyone has seen the Father except the one who is of God; he has seen the Father.

Truly, truly I say to you: whoever believes in me has eternal life.

I am the bread of life.

Your ancestors ate the manna in the desert, and they died.

This is the bread that came down from heaven, so that if anyone eats of it, he will not die.

I am the life-giving bread that came down from heaven; if anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

So the Jews argued among themselves, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?"

And Jesus said to them, "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you."

Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day.

For my flesh is real food, and my blood is real drink.

Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood remains in me, and I in him.

As the living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father, so the one who eats me will live because of me.

This is the bread that came down from heaven, not like the manna your ancestors ate and died; whoever eats this bread will live forever.

He said these things in the Synagogue, teaching in Capernaum.

And many of his disciples, when they heard it, said, "This is a hard saying; who can accept it?"

But Jesus, knowing in himself that his disciples were murmuring about this, said to them: Does this offend you?

[What will it be] then if you see the Son of Man ascend to where he was first?

It is the spirit that gives life; the flesh profits nothing; the words that I speak to you are spirit and life.

But there are [many] among you who do not believe; for Jesus knew from the beginning who those would not believe, and who it would be who would betray him.

He said to them, "This is why I told you that no one can come to me unless they are given to them by my Father."

From that hour many of his disciples deserted him and no longer walked with him.

And Jesus said to the twelve, "Do you not also want to go?"

But Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life."

And we have believed, and have known that you are the Christ, the Son of the living God.

Jesus answered them, "Did I not choose you twelve? Yet one of you is a demon."
Now he was saying this about Judas Iscariot, [son] of Simon; for it was the one who was destined to betray him, although he was one of the twelve.
After these things Jesus remained in Galilee, for he did not want to remain in Judea, because the Jews were seeking to kill him.
Now the Jewish Feast of Tabernacles was near.
And his brothers said to him, "Leave here and go to Judea, so that your disciples also may see the works that you are doing."
For nothing can be done in secret when one seeks to act openly; if you do these things, show yourself to the world.
For even his brothers did not believe in him.
And Jesus said to them, "My time has not yet come, but your time is always ready." The world cannot hate you, but it hates me: because I testify against it that its works are evil.
Go up to this Feast, you others; but I do not go up to this Feast yet, because my time has not yet been fulfilled.
And having said these things to them, he remained in Galilee.
But when his brothers had gone up, then he also went up to the Feast, not publicly, but as if in secret.
But the Jews were looking for him at the Festival, and they were saying, "Where is he?"
And there was a great murmur among the troops about him. Some said: he is a good man; and others said: no, but he deceives the people.
However, no one spoke frankly about him, because of the fear of the Jews.
And as the Festival was already half over, Jesus went up to the Temple, and there he taught.
And the Jews were astonished, saying, "How does this man know the Scriptures, since he has not learned them?"
Jesus answered them, and said: My teaching is not my own, but it comes from him who sent me.
If anyone wants to do his will, he will know the doctrine, whether it is from God, or whether I speak on my own.
He who speaks of himself seeks his own glory; but he who seeks the glory of him who sent him is true, and there is no unrighteousness in him.
Did not Moses give you the Law? And yet none of you observes the Law? Why are you seeking to kill me?
The troops replied: You have a demon; who is trying to kill you?
Jesus answered, and said to them, "I did a work, and you were all amazed."
[And you], because Moses gave you circumcision, which is not from Moses, but from the fathers, you circumcise a man on the Sabbath day.
If [therefore] a man receives circumcision on the Sabbath day, so that the Law of Moses may not be violated, are you angry with me because I healed a whole man on the Sabbath day?
Do not judge by appearances, but judge according to equity.
Then some of those in Jerusalem said, "Isn't this the one they are trying to kill?"
And yet behold, he speaks freely, and they say nothing to him; would the Governors have known for certain that this one is truly the Christ?
Now we know where this one is from, but when Christ comes, no one will know where he is from.
Jesus then cried out in the Temple, teaching and saying, "You know me, and you know where I am from; and I have not come on my own, but he who sent me is true, and you do not know him."
But I know him: for I am [descended] from him, and it is he who sent me.
So they sought to seize him, but no one laid hands on him, because his time had not yet come.

And many among the troops believed in him, and they said, "When the Christ comes, will he perform more miracles than this man has done?" The Pharisees heard the crowd murmuring these things about him; and the Pharisees, together with the chief priests, sent officers to arrest him. And Jesus said to them, "I am with you for a little while longer, and then I am going to the one who sent me."

You will seek me, but you will not find me; and where I am, you cannot come. The Jews then said to one another, "Where should he go that we will not find him? Should he go to those who are scattered among the Greeks, and teach the Greeks?" What is this speech he gave: you will seek me, but you will not find me; and where I am, you cannot come?

And on the last and great day of the Feast, Jesus was there, crying out, and saying, if anyone is thirsty, let him come to me and drink.

Whoever believes in me, as Scripture says, rivers of living water will flow from within them.

(Now he was saying this about the Spirit, whom those who believed in him were later to receive; for the Holy Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified.)

Many of the troops, having heard this speech, said: this man is truly the Prophet. Others said, "This is the Christ." And others said, "But will the Christ come from Galilee?"

Does not Scripture say that the Christ will come from the seed of David, and from the town of Bethlehem, where David lived?

Therefore, there was division among the people because of him.

And some of them wanted to seize him, but no one laid hands on him.

So the officers returned to the chief priests and the Pharisees, who said to them, "Why did you not bring him in?"

The bailiffs replied: never did a man speak like this man.

But the Pharisees answered them, "Were you not also deceived?"

Did none of the governors or Pharisees believe in him?

But this mob, which knows nothing about the Law, is more than detestable.

Nicodemus (the one who had come to Jesus by night, and who was one of them) said to them:

Does our law judge a man before it has heard him and known what he has done?

They answered him, and said, "Are you not also from Galilee? Find out, and know that no prophet has arisen from Galilee."

And each one went home.

But Jesus went away to the Mount of Olives.

And at daybreak he came again to the Temple, and all the people came to him, and he sat down and taught them.

And the scribes and the Pharisees brought to him a woman caught in adultery; and having placed her in the middle,

They told him: Master, this woman was caught in the act of committing adultery.

But Moses commanded us in the Law to stone those who are in her situation; so what do you say?

They said this to test him, so that they might have something to accuse him with. But Jesus bent down and wrote with his finger on the ground.

And as they continued to question him, he stood up and said to them: let he who is without sin among you be the first to throw a stone at her.

And bending down again, he wrote on the ground.

But when they heard this, being condemned by their conscience, they went out one by one, beginning with the oldest to the last; so that Jesus was left alone with the woman who was standing there in the middle.

Then Jesus stood up and, seeing no one except the woman, said to her, "Woman, where are those who accused you? Has no one condemned you?"

She said, "No one, Lord." And Jesus said to her, "Neither do I condemn you; go, and sin no more."

And Jesus spoke again to them, saying: I am the light of the world; whoever follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life.

Then the Pharisees said to him, "You are testifying about yourself; your testimony is not trustworthy."

Jesus answered and said to them, "Although I testify about myself, my testimony is trustworthy; for I know where I came from and where I am going, but you do not know where I come from or where I am going."

You judge according to the flesh, [but] I judge no one.

Even if I do judge, my judgment is trustworthy; for I am not alone, but I am with the Father who sent me.

It is even written in your Law that the testimony of two men is trustworthy.

I bear witness about myself, and the Father who sent me also bears witness about me.

Then they said to him, "Where is your Father?" Jesus answered, "You do not know me or my Father. If you knew me, you would know my Father also."

Jesus spoke these words in the Treasury while teaching in the Temple; but no one arrested him, because his hour had not yet come.

And Jesus said to them again: I am going away, and you will look for me, but you will die in your sin; where I am going you cannot come.

The Jews then said, "Will he kill himself, and say, 'Where I am going, you cannot come?'"

Then he said to them: You are from below, [but] I am from above; you are of this world, [but] I am not of this world.

That is why I told you that you will die in your sins; for if you do not believe that I am [the messenger of God], you will die in your sins.

Then they said to him, "Who are you?" And Jesus said to them, "What I have been telling you from the beginning."

I have many things to say about you and to condemn in you, but he who sent me is true, and the things that I have heard from him I tell the world.

They did not know that he was speaking to them about the Father.

Jesus then said to them, "When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am [the one sent by God], and that I do nothing on my own authority, but I speak these things just as my Father taught me."

For he who sent me is with me; the Father has not left me alone, because I always do the things that please him.

Because he said these things, many believed in him.

And Jesus said to the Jews who had believed in him: if you persist in my word, you are truly my disciples.

And you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free.

They answered him, "We are Abraham's descendants, and we have never served anyone; how then can you say, 'You shall be set free?'"

Jesus answered them, "Truly, truly I say to you, everyone who sins is a slave to sin."

But a slave does not remain in the house forever; a son remains there forever.

So if the Son sets you free, you will be free indeed.

I know that you are Abraham's descendants, yet you are trying to kill me because my word has not been received in your hearts.

I am telling you what I saw in my Father's house; and you also do the things that you saw in your father's house.

They answered him, "Abraham is our father." Jesus said to them, "If you were Abraham's children, you would do Abraham's works."

But now you are trying to kill me, a man who has told you the truth, which I heard from God; Abraham did not do that.

You are doing the deeds of your father. And they said to him, "We were not born of evil trade; we have a father who is God."

But Jesus said to them, "If God were your Father, you would surely love me, for I came from God and came from him; for I did not come on my own, but he sent me."

Why do you not understand my language? It is because you cannot listen to my words.

The father from whom you descend is the devil, and you want to carry out your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning, and he does not stand in the truth, for the truth is not in him. Every time he lies, he speaks his native language, for he is a liar and the father of lies.

But because I speak the truth, you do not believe me.

Who among you will rebuke me for my sin? And if I tell the truth, why do you not believe me?

He who is of God hears the words of God; but you do not hear them, because you are not of God.

Then the Jews answered him, and said to him, "Do we not know that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?"

Jesus answered: I do not have a demon, but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me.

But I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks it, and he is the judge of it.

Truly, truly I tell you, if anyone keeps my word, he will not die.

So the Jews said to him, "Now we know that you have a demon; Abraham died, and also the Prophets, and you say, 'If anyone keeps my word, he will not die.'"

Are you greater than our father Abraham, who died? The prophets also died; who do you claim to be?

Jesus answered: If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing; it is my Father who glorifies me, the one of whom you say is your God.

However, you have not known him, but I know him; and if I say that I do not know him, I would be a liar, like you; but I do know him, and I keep his word.

Abraham your father rejoiced to see this day of mine; and he saw it, and was glad.

At this the Jews said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old, and you have seen Abraham!"

[And] Jesus said to them: Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am.

Then they raised stones to throw at him, but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the Temple, passing right through them; and so he went away.

And as [Jesus] passed by, he saw a man blind from birth.

And his disciples questioned him, saying, "Teacher, who sinned, this man, or his father, or his mother, that he was born blind?"

Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his father nor his mother sinned, but this happened so that the works of God might be displayed in him."

I must do the works of him who sent me while it is day. Night is coming, when no one can work.

While I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

Having said these words, he spat on the ground, made mud with his saliva, and put some of this mud on the blind man's eyes.

And he said to him, "Go, and wash in the Pool of Siloam" (which means "sent"). So he went and washed, and came back seeing.

But the neighbors, and those who had previously seen that he was blind, said, "Isn't this the man who used to sit and beg?"

Some said: it is he; and others said: he looks like him; but he said: it is myself.

So they asked him, "How were your eyes opened?"

He answered, and said: This man who is called Jesus made mud, and put it on my eyes, and said to me: Go to the Pool of Siloam, and wash; so after I went and washed, I received my sight.

Then they said to him, "Where is that man?" He said, "I don't know."

They brought to the Pharisees the man who had previously been blind.

Now it was on a Sabbath day that Jesus had made the mud, and had opened the eyes of the blind man.

Therefore the Pharisees questioned him again, how he had received his sight; and he told them: he put mud on my eyes, and I washed, and I see.

Some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not sent from God, for he does not keep the Sabbath." But others said, "How can a wicked man perform such wonders?" And there was a division among them.

They said again to the blind man: what do you say about him, since he opened your eyes? He replied: he is a Prophet.

But the Jews did not believe that this man had been blind and had received his sight, until they had called for the father and mother of the one who had received his sight.

And they questioned them, saying: Is this your son, whom you say was born blind? How then can he see now?

His father and mother answered them, and said: we know that this is our son, and that he was born blind.

But how he sees now, or who opened his eyes, we do not know; he is old, ask him, he will speak about what concerns him.

His father and mother said these things because they feared the Jews; for the Jews had already decided that if anyone confessed to be the Christ, he would be put out of the synagogue.

For this reason his father and mother said: he is of advanced age, ask him himself.

So they called the man who had been blind a second time, and they said to him, "Give glory to God; we know that this man is a wicked man."

He answered, and said: I do not know if he is wicked; but one thing I do know, that I was blind, and now I see.

So they asked him again, "What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?"

He answered them, "I have already told you, and you did not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to be his disciples?"

Then they insulted him, and said to him: you be his disciple; as for us, we are disciples of Moses.

We know that God spoke to Moses; but as for this man, we do not know where he is from.

The man replied, and said to them: indeed, it is a strange thing, that you do not know where he is from; and yet he has opened my eyes.

Now we know that God does not listen to the wicked, but if anyone is a servant of God and does his will, [God] listens to him.

We have never heard of anyone opening the eyes of a person born blind.

If he were not a messenger of God, he could not do anything [of the same kind].

They answered him, and said to him, "You were born entirely in sin, and you dare to teach us?" And they drove him out.

Jesus heard that they had driven him out; and having found him, he said to him, "Do you believe in the Son of God?"

[This man] answered him, and said: Who is he, Lord, that I may believe in him?

Jesus said to him, "You have seen him, and he is the one speaking to you."

Then he said, "I believe, Lord," and he worshipped him.

And Jesus said: I came into this world to execute judgment, so that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may become blind.

When some of the Pharisees who were with him heard this, they said to him, "Are we also blind?"

Jesus answered them, "If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you say, 'We see,' and that is why your sin remains."

Truly, truly I tell you, anyone who does not enter the sheepfold by the gate, but climbs in by some other way, is a thief and a robber.

But the one who enters by the gate is the shepherd of the sheep.

The gatekeeper opens the gate to him, and the sheep hear his voice, and he calls his own sheep by name and leads them out.
And when he has put his sheep out, he goes before them, and the sheep follow him, because they know his voice.
But they will not follow a stranger; on the contrary, they will flee from him, because they do not know the voice of strangers.
Jesus told them this parable, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

Jesus then said to them again, "Truly, truly I say to you, I am the gate [through which the sheep enter].
All who came before me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not listen to them.

I am the Gate: if anyone enters through me, he will be saved, and he will come in and go out, and find pasture.
The thief comes only to steal and to kill and destroy; I have come that they may have life, and have it to the full.
I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd lays down his life for his sheep.
But the hired hand, and he who is not a shepherd, to whom the sheep do not belong, seeing the wolf coming, abandons the sheep and runs away; and the wolf snatches and scatters the sheep.
So the mercenary runs away, because he is a mercenary, and does not care about the sheep.
I am the good shepherd, and I know my sheep, and my sheep know me.
As the Father knows me, I also know the Father, and I lay down my life for my sheep.

I have other sheep that are not of this sheep pen; I must bring them also, and they will listen to my voice, and there shall be one flock, [and] one shepherd.
This is why the Father loves me: that I lay down my life, so that I may take it up again.

No one takes it from me, but I leave it of my own accord; I have the power to leave it, and the power to take it up again; I received this commandment from my Father.
There was further division among the Jews because of these speeches.

For many were saying, "He has a demon and is out of his mind; why listen to him?"
And the others said, "These words are not from a demon-possessed person; can a demon open the eyes of the blind?"

Now the [Feast of] Dedication took place in Jerusalem, and it was winter.

And Jesus was walking in the Temple, in Solomon's Portico.

And the Jews surrounded him and said to him, "How long will you keep us in suspense? If you are the Christ, tell us plainly."

Jesus answered them, "I told you, and you do not believe; the works that I do in the name of my Father testify about me."

But you do not believe: because you are not of my sheep, as I told you.

My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me.

And I give them eternal life, and they will never perish; and no one will snatch them out of my hand.

My Father, who gave them to me, is greater than all; and no one can snatch them out of my Father's hand.

I and the Father are one.

Then the Jews took up more stones to stone him.

[But] Jesus answered them, "I have shown you many good works from my Father; for which of these works are you going to stone me?"

The Jews replied, saying to him: we are not stoning you for any good work, but for blasphemy and because, being only a man, you make yourself God.

Jesus answered them, "Is it not written in your Law, 'I said, you are gods'?"

If she has [therefore] called gods those to whom the word of God is addressed; and

[however] Scripture cannot be broken;
Do you say that I blaspheme, I whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world, because I said: I am the Son of God?
If I am not doing the works of my Father, do not believe me.
But if I do them, and you do not want to believe me, believe the works themselves, so that you may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him.
Because of this they were still trying to seize him; but he escaped from their hands.

And he went again beyond the Jordan, to the place where John had baptized in the beginning, and he stayed there.
And many came to him, and they said, "As for John, he performed no miracles; but all the things that John said about this man were true."
And many believed in him.
Now there was a certain sick man, named Lazarus, who was from Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha.
And Mary was the one who anointed the Lord with fragrant oil, and who wiped his feet with her hair; and Lazarus, who was sick, was her brother.
So his sisters sent word to him, saying, "Lord, the one you love is sick."
And when Jesus heard this, he said: This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, so that the Son of God may be glorified through it.
Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus.
And after he heard that [Lazarus] was sick, he stayed two days in the same place where he was.
And after that he said to his disciples: let us return to Judea.
The disciples said to him, "Master, it was only a short time ago that the Jews sought to stone you, and you are going there again!" Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours in the day? If anyone walks in the daytime, he does not stumble, for he sees the light of this world."
But if anyone walks at night, he stumbles; for there is no light with him.
He said these things, and then he told them, "Our friend Lazarus is asleep, but I am going there to wake him up."
And his disciples said to him, "Lord, if he sleeps he will be healed."
Now Jesus had said this about his death; but they thought that he was speaking of sleep.
So Jesus told them plainly, "Lazarus is dead,"
And I rejoice for your sake that I was not there, so that you may believe; but let us go to him.
Then Thomas, called Didymus, said to his fellow students: let us go also, so that we may die with him.
When Jesus arrived there, he found that Lazarus had already been in the tomb for four days.
Now Bethany was only about fifteen stades from Jerusalem.
And many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary to comfort them about their brother.

And when Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet him; but Mary stayed at home.
And Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, if you had been here my brother would not have died."
But now I know that whatever you ask of God, God will give it to you.
Jesus said to him, "Your brother will rise again."
Martha said to him, "I know that he will rise again in the resurrection on the last day."
Jesus said to him, "I am the resurrection and the life. The one who believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live."
And whoever lives and believes in me will never die; do you believe that?

She said to him: Yes, Lord, I believe that you are the Christ, the Son of God, who was to come into the world.

And when she had said this, she went and secretly called Mary her sister, saying to her, "The Teacher is here and is calling for you."

And as soon as she heard it, she quickly got up and went to him.

Now Jesus had not yet come to the village, but was at the place where Martha had met him.

Then the Jews who were with Mary at home, and who were consoling her, when they saw that she got up so quickly and went out, followed her, saying, "She is going to the tomb to weep there."

When Mary came to where Jesus was, she saw him and fell at his feet, saying to him, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died."

And when Jesus saw her weeping, as well as the Jews who had come there with her, he was deeply moved in spirit and troubled.

And he said, "Where have you put it?" They answered him, "Lord, come and see."

[And] Jesus wept.

To which the Jews said: See how he loved her.

And some of them said: Could not this man who opened the eyes of the blind man have also prevented this man from dying?

Then Jesus, still trembling within himself, came to the tomb, (now it was a cave, and there was a stone placed over it).

Jesus said, "Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days."

Jesus said to him, "Did I not tell you that if you believe you will see the glory of God?"

So they lifted the stone [from the place] where the dead man had been lying. And Jesus lifted his eyes to heaven and said, "Father, I thank you that you have heard me."

But I knew that you always answer me; but I said this because of the troops around me, so that they may believe that you sent me.

And having said these things, he cried out in a loud voice, "Lazarus, come out!"

Then the dead man came out, his hands and feet bound with strips of linen, and his face covered with a veil. Jesus said to them, "Take off the grave clothes and let him go."

That is why many of the Jews who had come to Mary, and who had seen what Jesus did, believed in him.

But some of them went to the Pharisees and told them the things that Jesus had done.

Then the chief priests and the Pharisees assembled the council and said, "What are we doing? This man is performing many miracles."

If we let him do it, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come, who will exterminate us, the place, and the nation.

Then one of them, called Caiaphas, who was the high priest that year, said to them: You understand nothing about it.

And you do not consider it to be in our interest that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation should not perish.

But he did not say this of his own accord, but being High Priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation.

And not only for the Nation, but also to gather God's children, who were scattered.

From that day on, they conspired together to have him killed.

Therefore Jesus no longer walked openly among the Jews, but went from there to the region near the desert, to a town called Ephraim, and he stayed there with his disciples.

Now the Jewish Passover was near, and many from those countries went up to Jerusalem before Passover to purify themselves.

And they were looking for Jesus, and saying to one another in the Temple, "What do you think? Do you believe that he will not come to the Festival?"

Now the chief priests and the Pharisees had given orders that if anyone knew where he was, they should report it, so that they could seize him.

Six days before Passover, Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, who had been dead and whom Jesus had raised from the dead.

And they gave a supper for him there, and Martha served, and Lazarus was one of those who were at the table with him.

Then Mary took a pound of very expensive pure nard, anointed Jesus' feet with it, and wiped them with her hair; and the house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume.

Then Judas Iscariot, son of Simon, one of his disciples, the one who was destined to betray him, said:

Why wasn't this perfume sold for three hundred denarii, and [that money] given to the poor?

But he said this, not because he cared about the poor, but because he was a thief, and he had the purse, and carried off what was put in it.

But Jesus said to her, "Leave her alone; she has kept it for the day of my burial."

For you will always have the poor with you; but you will not always have me.

And large groups of Jews, having learned that he was there, came, not only because of Jesus, but also to see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead.

Whereupon the chief priests resolved to kill Lazarus as well.

For many of the Jews were going away from them on account of him and believing in Jesus.

The next day, a large crowd of people who had come to the Festival, having heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem,

They took palm branches and went out to meet him, shouting: Hosanna! Blessed is the King of Israel who comes in the Name of the Lord!

And Jesus, having found a donkey, sat on it, according to what is written:

Do not be afraid, daughter of Zion; behold, your King is coming, seated on a donkey's colt.

Now his disciples did not at first hear these things; but when Jesus was glorified, they remembered that these things were written about him, and that they had done these things to him.

And the company that was with him testified that he had called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead.

That is why the people also went to meet him; for they had heard that he had performed this miracle.

Then the Pharisees said to one another, "Don't you see that you are not accomplishing anything? Look, the world is going after him."

Now there were some Greeks among those who had gone up to worship [God] during the Festival,

They came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and begged him, saying, "Lord, we want to see Jesus."

Philip came and told Andrew, and Andrew and Philip told Jesus.

And Jesus answered them, saying, "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified."

Truly, truly I say to you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains only a single grain; but if it dies, it bears much fruit.

Whoever loves his life will lose it, and whoever hates his life in this world will keep it until eternal life.

If anyone serves me, he must follow me; and where I am, there will be the one who serves me; and if anyone serves me, my Father will honor him.

Now my soul is troubled; and what shall I say? O Father! deliver me from this hour; but it was for this reason that I came to this hour.

Father, glorify your Name: Then a voice came from heaven, [saying]: and I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again.

And the group that was there, and that had heard [this voice], said that it was thunder that had been made; the others said: an angel spoke to him.

Jesus answered, and said: this voice did not come for me, but for you.

Now has come the judgment of this world; now the prince of this world will be cast out.

And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all men to myself.

But he said this, implying the kind of death he was destined to die.

The troops answered him: We have learned from the Law that Christ remains forever; how then can you say that the Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man?

Then Jesus said to them, "The light is with you for a little while longer. Walk while you have the light, lest darkness overtake you; for he who walks in the darkness does not know where he is going."

While you have the light, believe in the light, so that you may become children of light. Jesus said these things, and then he went away and hid himself from their sight.

And although he had performed so many miracles before them, they did not believe in him.

So that the word which was spoken by Isaiah the Prophet was fulfilled: Lord, who has believed our word, and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?

That is why they could not believe, because Isaiah also says:

He has blinded their eyes and hardened their hearts, so that they cannot see with their eyes, nor hear with their hearts, nor be converted, and I heal them.

Isaiah said these things when he saw his glory, and spoke about him.

However, many of the leaders themselves believed in him; but they did not confess him because of the Pharisees, for fear of being put out of the Synagogue.

For they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God.

Then Jesus cried out, and said: Whoever believes in me does not believe in me only, but in the one who sent me.

And he who looks at me looks at him who sent me.

I came into the world to be its light, so that whoever believes in me may not remain in darkness.

And if anyone hears my words and does not believe them, I do not judge him; for I did not come to judge the world, but to save the world.

He who rejects me and does not receive my words has a judge: the word that I have spoken will be the one that judges him on the last day.

For I have not spoken of myself, but the Father who sent me has commanded me what to say and what to speak about.

And I know that his commandment is eternal life; therefore, the things that I say, I say just as my Father has told me.

Now before the Passover Festival, Jesus, knowing that his hour had come to pass from this world to the Father, just as he had loved his own who were in the world, he loved them to the end.

And after supper, the Devil having already put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot, [son] of Simon, to betray him;

[And] Jesus, knowing that the Father had given him all things into his hands, and that he had come from God, and was going to God;

He got up from supper, took off his robe, and having taken a cloth, he girded himself with it.

Then he put water in a basin, and began to wash the feet of his disciples, and to dry them with the towel that was wrapped around him.

Then he came to Simon Peter; but Peter said to him, "Lord, will you wash my feet?"

Jesus answered, and said to him, "You do not know now what I am doing, but you will know after this."

Peter said to him, "You will never wash my feet." Jesus answered him, "If I do not wash you, you have no part with me."

Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, not only my feet, but also my hands and my head."

Jesus said to him: he who has washed needs only to have his feet washed, and [then] he is completely clean; and you are clean, but not all of you.

For he knew who it was who would betray him; that is why he said: you are not all clean.

After he had washed their feet, he put on his clothes, and sitting down again at the table, he said to them: Do you know what I have done to you?

You call me Master and Lord; and you are right: for that is what I am.

If I then, who am Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another's feet.

For I have given you an example, so that as I have done to you, you should do likewise.

Truly, truly I say to you, a servant is not greater than his master, nor is an ambassador greater than the one who sent him.

If you know these things, you are blessed if you do them.

I am not speaking of all of you; I know those whom I have chosen, but this Scripture must be fulfilled, [which says]: He who eats bread with me has lifted up his heel against me.

I am telling you this now, before it happens, so that when it does happen you will believe that it is I [whom the Father has sent].

Truly, truly I say to you, if I send anyone, the one who receives him receives me; and the one who receives me receives the one who sent me.

When Jesus had said these things, he was troubled in his spirit, and he declared, and said: Truly, truly I say to you, one of you will betray me.

Then the disciples looked at one another, perplexed as to whom he was speaking.

Now one of Jesus' disciples, the one whom Jesus loved, was at table with him;

And Simon Peter motioned to him to ask who it was that [Jesus] was talking about.

So he, leaning back in Jesus' bosom, said to him, "Lord, who is it?"

Jesus answered, "It is the one to whom I will give the dipped piece." And having dipped the piece, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, [son] of Simon.

And after the song, Satan entered into him; so Jesus said to him, "Do quickly what you are doing."

But none of those at the table understood why he had said that to her.

For some thought that because Judas had the moneybag, Jesus had told him: buy what we need for the Festival; or that he should give something to the poor.

So after [Judas] had taken the piece, he left immediately; but it was night.

And when he had gone out, Jesus said: Now the Son of Man is glorified, and God is glorified in him.

If God is glorified in him, God will also glorify him in himself, and even soon he will glorify him.

My little children, I am with you for a little while longer; you will look for me, but as I told the Jews, that where I am going they could not come, I tell you the same now.

I give you a new commandment, that you love one another, [and] that as I have loved you, you also love one another.

By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another.

Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus answered him, "Where I am going you cannot follow me now, but you will follow me hereafter."

Peter said to him, "Lord, why can't I follow you now? I will risk my life for you."

Jesus answered him, "Will you risk your life for me? Truly, truly, I say to you, the rooster will not crow until you have denied me three times."

Do not let your heart be afraid; you believe in God, believe also in me.

In my Father's house are many rooms; if it were otherwise, I would have told you; I am going there to prepare a place for you.

And when I have gone and prepared a place for you, I will return and take you to myself, so that where I am you may be also.
And you know where I'm going, and you know the way.
Thomas said to him, "Lord, we do not know where you are going, so how can we know the way?"

Jesus said to him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father except through me."

If you knew me, you would know my Father also; [but] from now on you do know him and have seen him.

Philip said to him, "Lord, show us the Father, and that will be enough for us."

Jesus answered him, "Have I been with you so long, and you still do not know me?

Philip, whoever has seen me has seen my Father; and how can you say, 'Show us the Father'?"

Do you not believe that I am in [my] Father, and that the Father is in me? The words that I say to you I do not say on my own authority; but the Father who dwells in me is the one who does the works.

Believe me that I am in my Father, and that the Father is in me; if not, believe me because of the works themselves.

Truly, truly I say to you, whoever believes in me will do the works that I do, and even greater works than these, because I am going to my Father.

And whatever you ask in my name, I will do it, so that the Father may be glorified through the Son.

If you ask something in my name, I will do it.

If you love me, keep my commandments.

And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate to be with you forever.

[Know] the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it does not see him, nor does it know him; but you know him, for he dwells with you, and will be in you.

I will not leave you as orphans; I will come to you.

In a little while longer, the world will no longer see me, but you will see me; [and] because I live, you also will live.

On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

Whoever has my commandments and keeps them is the one who loves me; and the one who loves me will be loved by my Father, and I will love him and reveal myself to him.

Jude (not Iscariot) said to him: Lord! Why is it that you will reveal yourself to us, and not to the world?

Jesus answered, and said to him, if anyone loves me he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our home with him.

He who does not love me does not keep my words. And the word that you hear is not my word, but the word of the Father who sent me.

I have told you these things while remaining with you.

But the Advocate, who is the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you all things and will remind you of everything I have told you.

Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid.

You heard me say to you, 'I am going away, and I am coming back to you.' If you loved me, you would certainly be glad that I said, 'I am going to the Father,' for the Father is greater than I.

And now I have told you before it has happened, so that when it has happened, you may believe.

I will hardly speak with you anymore; for the Prince of this world is coming; but he has no power over me.

But so that the world may know that I love the Father, and that I do what the Father has commanded me. Rise, let us go from here.

I am the true Vine, and my Father is the Vintner.
He cuts off every branch in me that does not bear fruit, and he prunes every one that does bear fruit, so that it will bear more fruit.
You are already clean because of the word I have taught you.
Remain in me, and I in you; as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself, unless it remains on the vine, neither can you, unless you remain in me.
I am the vine, you are the branches; he who remains in me, and I in him, bears much fruit; for apart from me you can produce nothing.
If anyone does not remain in me, he is thrown away like a branch and withers; then it is gathered up, thrown into the fire, and burned.
If you remain in me, and my words remain in you, ask whatever you wish, and it will be done for you.
This is to my Father's glory, that you bear much fruit, and so you will be my disciples.
As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you; remain in my love.
If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love; just as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.
I have told you these things so that my joy may remain in you, and that your joy may be complete.
This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you.
No one has a greater love than this, [knowing], when someone risks their life for their friends.
You will be my friends if you do everything I command.
I no longer call you servants, because a servant does not know his master's business; but I have called you friends, for everything that I heard from my Father I have made known to you.
You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you so that you might go and bear fruit—fruit that will last—and so that whatever you ask in my name the Father will give you.
I command you these things, so that you may love one another.
If the world hates you, know that I was hated by it before you.
If you were of the world, the world would love what was its own; but because you are not of the world, and I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you.
Remember the word that I said to you, that a servant is not greater than his master; if they persecuted me, they will persecute you also; if they kept my word, they will keep yours also.
But they will do all these things to you because of my name, because they do not know the one who sent me.
If I had not come and spoken to them, they would not have sinned, but now they have no excuse for their sin.
He who hates me hates my Father also.
If I had not done among them the works which no one else has done, they would have no sin; but now they have seen them, and yet they have hated both me and my Father.
But this is so that the word written in their Law might be fulfilled: they hated me without cause.
But when the Advocate comes, whom I will send to you from my Father, the Spirit of truth, who proceeds from my Father, he will testify about me.
And you too will testify to this: for you have been with me from the beginning.
I have told you these things so that you will not be offended.
They will drive you out of the Synagogues; indeed, the time is coming when whoever kills you will think he is serving God.
And they will do these things to you because they have not known the Father or me.
But I have told you these things, so that when the time comes, you may remember that I told them to you; and I did not tell you these things from the beginning, because I was with you.

But now I am going to the one who sent me, and none of you asks me, "Where are you going?"

But because I told you these things, sadness filled your heart.

However, I tell you the truth, it is to your advantage that I go away, for if I do not go away, the Advocate will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you.

And when he comes, he will convict the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment.

Of sin, because they do not believe in me.

Of justice, because I am going to my Father, and you will see me no more.

Of judgment, because the Prince of this world has [already] been judged.

I still have several things to tell you, but they are still beyond your understanding.

But when he, the Spirit of truth, comes, he will guide you in all truth; for he will not speak on his own authority, but he will speak whatever he hears, and he will tell you the things that are to come.

He will glorify me; for he will receive from me, and he will declare it to you.

Everything that my Father has is mine; therefore I said, he will take what is mine and declare it to you.

In a little while you will not see me; and after a little while you will see me, because I am going to my Father.

And some of his disciples said to one another, "What does he mean by saying, 'In a little while you will not see me, and after a little while you will see me, because I am going to my Father?'"

So they were saying: what do these words mean: a little time? We don't understand what he's saying.

And Jesus, knowing that they wanted to question him, said to them: you ask among yourselves what I said: in a little while you will see me no more, and after a little while you will see me.

Truly, truly I tell you, you will weep and mourn, but the world will rejoice; you will be saddened, but your sadness will turn into joy.

When a woman gives birth, she feels pains because her time has come, but after she has had a little child, she no longer remembers her pains because of the joy she has in having brought a man into the world.

So now you also have sorrow; but I will see you again, and your heart will rejoice, and no one will take away your joy.

And on that day you will not ask me anything. Truly, truly, I tell you, whatever you ask the Father in my name, he will give it to you.

Until now you have asked for nothing in my name; ask, and you will receive, so that your joy may be complete.

I have told you these things by parables, but the hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in parables, but I will speak to you plainly about [my] Father.

On that day you will ask [for graces] in my name, and I am not telling you that I will pray to the Father for you;

For the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God.

I came from the Father, and I came into the world; [and] again, I am leaving the world, and I am going back to the Father.

His disciples said to him, "Now you speak plainly and no longer use parables."

Now we know that you know all things, and that you do not need anyone to question you; because of this we believe that you came from God.

Jesus answered them, "Do you now believe?"

Behold, the hour is coming, and is now here, when you will be scattered, each to his own home, and you will leave me alone; yet I am not alone, for the Father is with me.

I have told you these things so that in me you may have peace; in this world you will have anguish, but take heart! I have overcome the world.

Jesus said these things; then lifting his eyes to heaven, he said: Father, the hour has come, glorify your Son, so that your Son may glorify you;

As you have given him authority over all men, so that he may give eternal life to all those you have given him.

And this is eternal life, that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom you have sent.

I have glorified you on earth, I have completed the work that you gave me to do. And now glorify me, Father, in your presence, with the glory that I had with you before the world was made.

I have revealed your Name to the men whom you gave me out of the world; they were yours, and you gave them to me; and they have kept your word.

Now they know that everything you gave me comes from you.

For I gave them the words that you gave me, and they received them, and they truly knew that I came from you, and they believed that you sent me.

I pray for them; I do not pray for the world, but for those whom you have given me, because they are yours.

And all that is mine is yours, and all that is yours is mine; and I am glorified in them.

And now I am no longer in the world, but these are in the world; and I am going to you, holy Father, keep them in your name, those, I say, whom you have given me, so that they may be one, as we [are one].

While I was with them in the world, I kept them in your name; I have kept those whom you gave me, and not one of them has perished except the son of perdition, so that the Scripture might be fulfilled.

And now I come to you, and I say these things [while still] in the world, so that they may have my joy made complete in themselves.

I have given them your word, and the world has hated them, because they are not of the world, just as I am not of the world.

I do not ask you to remove them from the world, but to preserve them from harm.

They are not of the world, just as I am not of the world.

Sanctify them by your truth; your word is truth.

As you sent me into the world, so I have sent them into the world.

And I sanctify myself for them, so that they too may be sanctified in the truth.

But I do not pray only for them, but also for those who will believe in me through their word.

That they may all be one, just as you, Father, are in me, and I in you; that they also may be one in us; and that the world may believe that it is you who sent me.

And I have given them the glory that you gave me, so that they may be one as we are one.

I am in them, and you in me, so that they may be made one, and that the world may know that it is you who sent me, and that you love them, even as you have loved me. Father, my desire is for those whom you have given me, that where I am, they may also be with me, so that they may behold my glory, which you have given me; because you loved me before the foundation of the world.

Righteous Father, the world has not known you; but I have known you, and these have known that you sent me.

And I have made your Name known to them, and will continue to make it known, so that the love with which you have loved me may be in them, and I in them.

After Jesus had said these things, he went away with his disciples beyond the Kidron Valley, where there was a garden, into which he entered with his disciples.

Now Judas, who betrayed him, also knew this place, because Jesus had often gathered there with his Disciples.

Judas, therefore, having taken a company of soldiers, and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, came there with lanterns and torches, and weapons. And Jesus, knowing all the things that were going to happen to him, came forward and said to them, "Whom are you looking for?" They answered him, "Jesus of Nazareth." Jesus said to them, "I am he." And Judas, who betrayed him, was also with them. But after [Jesus] had said to them, "It is I," they drew back and fell to the ground.

He asked them a second time, "Who are you looking for?" And they replied, "Jesus of Nazareth."

Jesus answered, "I told you that I am he; so if you are looking for me, let these men go."

This was so that the word he had spoken might be fulfilled: I have not lost any of those you gave me.

Now Simon Peter having a sword, drew it, and struck a servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear; and this servant was named Malchus.

But Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword back into its sheath: shall I not drink the cup that the Father has given me?"

Then the company, the captain, and the Jewish officers seized Jesus and bound him. And they first brought him to Annas: for he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the high priest that year.

Now Caiaphas was the one who had given this advice to the Jews, that it was beneficial for a man to die for the people.

Now Simon Peter with another disciple followed Jesus, and this disciple was known to the high priest, and he went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest.

But Peter was outside at the gate, and the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the doorkeeper, who brought Peter in.

And the servant girl who was at the door said to Peter, "Are you not also one of this man's disciples?" He said, "I am not."

Now the servants and the officers had made a fire, and were there, because it was cold, and they were warming themselves; Peter also was with them, and was warming himself.

And the high priest questioned Jesus concerning his disciples and concerning his teaching.

Jesus answered him: I have spoken openly to the world; I have always taught in the Synagogue and in the Temple, where the Jews always assemble, and I have said nothing in secret.

Why do you question me? Ask those who heard what I told them; look, they know what I said;

When he had said these things, one of the officers who was standing there struck Jesus with his rod, saying to him, "Is this how you answer the high priest?"

Jesus answered him, "If I have spoken wrongly, bear witness to the wrong; but if I have spoken rightly, why do you strike me?"

But Annas had sent him bound to Caiaphas, the High Priest.

And Simon Peter was there, warming himself; and they said to him, "Are you not also one of his disciples?" He denied it, and said, "I am not."

And one of the servants of the high priest, a relative of the one whose ear Peter had cut off, said, "Did I not see you in the garden with him?"

But Peter denied it again, and immediately the rooster crowed.

Then they led Jesus from Caiaphas to the Praetorium (it was early morning), but they did not enter the Praetorium, lest they be defiled, and so that they might eat the Passover lamb.

Therefore Pilate went out to them and said, "What accusation do you bring against this man?"

They replied, and said to him: if he were not a criminal, we would not have handed him over to you.

Then Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and judge him according to your own law." But the Jews said to him, "We are not permitted to put anyone to death."

[And it happened so] so that the word which Jesus had spoken might be fulfilled, indicating the kind of death by which he was to die.

Pilate then entered the Praetorium again, and summoning Jesus, he said to him, "Are you the King of the Jews?"

Jesus answered him, "Do you say this of your own accord, or did others tell you this about me?"

Pilate replied: Am I a Jew? Your own nation and the chief priests have handed you over to me; what have you done?

Jesus answered: My kingdom is not of this world; if my kingdom were of this world, my people would be fighting, that I might not be delivered over to the Jews; but now my kingdom is not from here.

Then Pilate said to him, "Are you then a king?" Jesus answered, "You say that I am a king; I was born for this purpose, and for this purpose I came into the world, to bear witness to the truth; everyone who is of the truth hears my voice."

Pilate said to him, "What is truth?" And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews and said to them, "I find no guilt in him."

But you have a custom: that I release to you a prisoner at the Passover festival; do you then want me to release to you the King of the Jews?

And they all cried out again, saying: not this man, but Barabbas! Now Barabbas was a robber.

Pilate then had Jesus arrested and flogged.

And the soldiers made a crown of thorns and put it on his head, and clothed him in a purple robe.

Then they said to him, "King of the Jews, we salute you," and they struck him with their rods.

And Pilate went out again and said to them, "Look, I am bringing him out to you to let you know that I find no guilt in him."

Jesus then came out wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe; and Pilate said to them, "Here is the man."

But when the chief priests and their officers saw him, they cried out, saying, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Pilate said to them, "Take him yourselves and crucify him, for I find no guilt in him."

The Jews answered him: we have a law, and according to our law he must die, because he claimed to be the Son of God.

But when Pilate heard this, he was even more afraid.

And he went back into the Praetorium, and said to Jesus, "Where are you from?" But Jesus gave him no answer.

And Pilate said to him, "Do you not speak to me? Do you not know that I have the power to crucify you, and the power to set you free?"

Jesus answered him, "You would have no power over me if it were not given to you from above; therefore the one who handed me over to you has committed a greater sin."

From that time on, Pilate tried to free him; but the Jews shouted, saying, "If you release this man, you are no friend of Caesar; for whoever makes himself a king is contrary to Caesar."

When Pilate heard this, he brought Jesus out and sat down in the judicial seat at the place called [the Pavement], and in Hebrew Gabbatha.

Now it was the day of preparation for the Passover, and it was about six o'clock; and [Pilate] said to the Jews: Here is your King.

But they shouted: Take him down, take him down, crucify him! Pilate said to them: Shall I crucify your king? The chief priests answered: We have no king but Caesar.

So he handed him over to them to be crucified. They took Jesus and led him away.

And [Jesus], carrying his cross, came to the place called Calvary, and in Hebrew Golgotha;

Where they crucified him, and two others with him, one on either side, and Jesus in the middle.

Pilate then made a sign and put it on the cross, on which were written these words: JESUS NAZARIAN THE KING OF THE JEWS.

And many of the Jews read this sign, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and this sign was in Hebrew, in Greek, [and] in Latin.

Therefore the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews,' but that this man said, 'I am the King of the Jews.'"

Pilate replied: What I have written, I have written.

When the soldiers had crucified Jesus, they took his clothes and divided them into four parts, one part for each soldier; they also took his tunic, which was seamless, woven from top to bottom.

And they said to one another, "Let us not tear it to pieces, but cast lots for it, to see whose it shall be." And this was so, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saying, "They divided my garments among them, and for my robe they cast lots." So the soldiers did these things.

Now near the cross of Jesus were his mother, and his mother's sister, [namely] Mary [wife] of Cleopas, and Mary Magdalene.

And when Jesus saw his mother, and the disciple whom he loved standing nearby, he said to his mother, "Woman, behold your son."

Then he said to the disciple: "Here is your mother"; and from that hour the disciple received her into his home.

After this Jesus, knowing that all things were now accomplished, said, in order that the Scripture might be fulfilled: I thirst.

And there was a vase full of vinegar there, so they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it on the end of a hyssop branch, and presented it to his mouth.

And when Jesus had received the vinegar, he said, "It is finished," and bowing his head, he gave up his spirit.

So the Jews, in order that the bodies would not remain on the cross on the Sabbath day, because it was the day of preparation, (and it was a high Sabbath day) asked Pilate to break their legs and take them down.

So the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first man, and likewise those of the other who was crucified with him.

Then when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs;

But one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear, and at first blood and water came out.

And he who saw it has testified to it, and his testimony is trustworthy; and he knows that he speaks the truth, so that you may believe him.

For these things happened so that this Scripture might be fulfilled: not one of his bones will be broken.

And yet another Scripture, which says: they will see the one they have pierced.

Now after these things, Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple of Jesus, though secretly because he feared the Jews, asked Pilate to allow him to take away the body of Jesus; and Pilate gave him permission, and he came and took away the body of Jesus.

Nicodemus also, who had previously gone to Jesus by night, came bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes worth about one hundred pounds.

And they took the body of Jesus and wrapped it in cloths with spices, as is the Jewish custom for burial.

Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had yet been laid.

And they laid Jesus there, because of the Jewish preparation, since the tomb was nearby.

On the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene came early in the morning to the tomb, while it was still dark, and saw that the stone had been removed from the tomb. And she ran and came to Simon Peter and to the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and said to them, "They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, but we do not know where they have laid him."

Then Peter and the other disciple left, and they went to the tomb.

And they both ran together; but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first.

And bending down, he saw the linen cloths on the ground; but he did not go in.

Then Simon Peter, who was following him, arrived and entered the tomb, and saw the linen cloths lying there.

And the shroud that had been on [Jesus'] head, which was not laid with the linen cloths, but was wrapped up in a separate place.

Then the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, also went in, and saw, and believed.

For they did not yet know the Scripture, [which says] that he must rise from the dead.

And the disciples returned home.

But Mary stood outside the tomb, weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down into the tomb;

And he saw two angels clothed in white, sitting, one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had been lying.

And they said to her, "Woman, why are you weeping?" She said to them, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid him."

And when she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there; but she did not know that it was Jesus.

Jesus said to her, "Woman, why are you crying? Whom are you looking for?" She, thinking he was the gardener, said to him, "Sir, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have put him, and I will take him away."

Jesus said to her, "Mary!" And she turned around and said to him, "Rabboni!" (that is, my Master!)

Jesus said to her, "Do not cling to me, for I have not yet ascended to my Father; but go to my brothers and say to them, 'I am ascending to my Father and to your Father, to my God and to your God.'"

Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had said these things to her.

And when evening came to that first day of the week, and the doors of the place where the disciples were gathered together because of their fear of the Jews were shut, Jesus came and stood among them and said to them, "Peace be with you!"

And when he had said this to them, he showed them his hands and his side; and the disciples rejoiced greatly when they saw the Lord.

And Jesus said to them again, "Peace be with you! As my Father has sent me, so I send you."

And when he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit."

Whose sins you forgive, they are forgiven; and whose sins you retain, they are retained.

Now Thomas, called Didymus, who was one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came.

And the other disciples said to him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "Unless I see the nail marks in his hands and put my finger where the nails were and put my hand into his side, I will not believe."

And eight days later, while his disciples were still in [the house], and Thomas with them, Jesus came, the doors being shut, and stood among them, and said to them, Peace be with you!

Then he said to Thomas, "Put your finger here, and see my hands; and put out your hand, and put it into my side; and do not be unbelieving, but believe."

And Thomas answered, and said to him, My Lord, and my God!

Jesus said to him, "Because you have seen me, Thomas, you have believed; blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed."

Jesus also performed many other miracles in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book.

But these things are written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name.

After this Jesus appeared again to his disciples by the Sea of Tiberias, and he appeared there in this way.

Simon Peter and Thomas, called Didymus, and Nathanael, who was from Cana in Galilee, and the [sons] of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples were together.

Simon Peter said to them, "I am going fishing." They said to him, "We will go with you." So they set out and got into the boat at first, but they caught nothing that night.

And when morning came, Jesus was found on the shore; but the disciples did not know that it was Jesus.

And Jesus said to them, "Children, do you have any small fish to eat?" They answered him, "No."

And he said to them, "Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and you will find some." So they cast it, but they could not haul it in because of the multitude of fish.

That is why the disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, "It is the Lord!" And when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girded on his tunic (for he was naked) and threw himself into the sea.

And the other disciples came in the boat, for they were not far from land, but only about two hundred cubits away, dragging the net of fish.

And when they went down to land, they saw embers, and fish placed on top of them, and bread.

Jesus said to them, "Bring some of the fish you have just caught."

Simon Peter went up and hauled the net ashore, full of one hundred and fifty-three large fish; and although there were so many, the net was not torn.

Jesus said to them, "Come and have dinner." And none of his disciples dared ask him, "Who are you?" because they knew it was the Lord.

Jesus then came, and took bread, and gave it to them, and fish as well.

This was already the third time that Jesus had appeared to his disciples after rising from the dead.

And after they had eaten, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon [son] of John, do you love me more than these?" He answered him, "Yes, Lord, you know that I love you." He said to him, "Feed my lambs."

He said to him again, "Simon [son] of Jonah, do you love me?" He answered him, "Yes, Lord! You know that I love you." He said to him, "Feed my sheep."

He said to him a third time, "Simon [son] of John, do you love me?" Peter was grieved because he said to him the third time, "Do you love me?" And he answered him, "Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Feed my sheep."

Truly, truly I say to you, when you were younger you girded yourself and went where you wanted; but when you are old you will stretch out your hands, and another will gird you and lead you where you do not want to go.

He said this to show by what kind of death he was to glorify God; and when he had said these things, he said to him: follow me.

And Peter turned around and saw the disciple whom Jesus loved coming after them, who during supper had leaned on Jesus' breast and said, "Lord, who is it that will happen to betray you?"

When Peter saw him, he said to Jesus, "Lord, what about this man?"

Jesus said to him, "If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you? You follow me.”

Now the word spread among the brothers that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus did not say to him, “He will not die,” but, “If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you?”

This is the disciple who testifies to these things, and who wrote these things, and we know that his testimony is trustworthy.

There are also several other things that Jesus did, which are written in detail; I do not think that the whole world could contain the books that would be written about them. AMEN!

We have filled the first treaty, Theophilus! with all the things that Jesus did and taught;

Until the day he was taken up [to heaven]; after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the Apostles whom he had chosen.

To whom also, after he had suffered, he presented himself alive, with many convincing proofs, being seen by them for forty days, and speaking to them about the things concerning the Kingdom of God.

And having gathered them together, he commanded them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait there for the promise of the Father, which, he said, you have heard from me. For John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit in a few days.

So when they had gathered together, they questioned him, saying, “Lord, will you at this time restore the Kingdom of Israel?”

But he said to them, “It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, but those are in my Father’s hands.”

But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth. And when he had said these things, he was taken up [into heaven], while they watched him, and a cloud, supporting him, carried him out of their sight.

And as they were gazing up at the sky, as he was going away, behold, two men in white robes appeared before them;

They said to them, “Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come down in the same way you have seen him go into heaven.”

So they returned to Jerusalem from the mountain called [the Mount] of Olives, which is near Jerusalem on the way to a Sabbath.

And when they had entered [the city], they went up to an upper room; where Peter and James, John and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James [son] of Alphaeus, and Simon the Zealots, and Judas, brother of James, were staying.

All of them were wholeheartedly persevering in prayer and supplication with the women, and with Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brothers.

And in those days Peter stood up among the disciples, who were gathered there, numbering about sixty men, and said to them:

Men brothers! It was necessary that what was written, [and] that the Holy Spirit foretold by the mouth of David concerning Judas, who was the guide of those who took Jesus, should be fulfilled.

For he was of our body, and he had received his share in this ministry.

But having acquired a field with the unjust wages that had been given him, and having rushed headlong, his body burst open in the middle, and all his entrails spilled out.

This became known to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; so much so that that field was called in their own language, Haceldama, that is, the field of blood.

For it is written in the Book of Psalms: Let his dwelling be desolate, and let no one live in it. And let another take his place.

Therefore, it is necessary that from among these men who have gathered together with us during all the time that the Lord Jesus lived among us,

Beginning from the baptism of John until the day he was taken up from us, one of them may be a witness with us of his resurrection.
And they presented two, [namely] Joseph, called Barsabbas, who was surnamed Just; and Matthias.

And praying they said: you, Lord, who know the hearts of all, show which of these two you have chosen;

So that he may take [his] part in this ministry and this Apostleship, which Judas abandoned, to go to his place.

Then they cast lots for them; and the lot fell on Matthias, who by a common vote was added to the rank of the eleven Apostles.

And as the day of Pentecost had arrived, they were all together in one place.

And suddenly there was a sound from heaven, like the sound of a strong wind, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting.

And there appeared to them tongues as of fire, which separated and came to rest on each of them.

And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and began to speak in other tongues as the Spirit enabled them.

Now there were Jews residing in Jerusalem, devout men from every nation under heaven.

And this noise having been made, a multitude came together, who were all moved because each one heard them speaking in their own language.

They were therefore very surprised and astonished, saying to one another, "Look, are not all these who are speaking Galileans?"

How then do we each hear them speaking the very language of the country where we were born?

Parthians, Medes, Elamites, and we who live, some in Mesopotamia, others in Judea, Cappadocia, Pontus, and Asia,

In Phrygia, in Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in those parts of Libya near Cyrene, and we who live in Rome?

Both Jews and proselytes; Cretans and Arabs, we hear them each speaking in our own language of the wonders of God.

They were therefore quite astonished, and they did not know what to think, saying to each other: what does this mean?

But the others mocked them, saying: it's because they are full of sweet wine.

But Peter, standing up with the eleven, raised his voice and said to them, "Men of Israel, all of you who live in Jerusalem, learn this and pay attention to my words."

For these are not drunk, as you think, since it is only the third hour of the day.

But this is what the Prophet Joel said:

And in the last days, says God, I will pour out my Spirit on all people; your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men will see visions, and your old men will dream dreams.

And even in those days I will pour out my Spirit on my servants, both men and women, and they will prophesy.

And I will do marvelous things in the heavens above, and wonders on the earth below, blood, and fire, and billows of smoke.

The sun will be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the coming of that great and notable day of the Lord.

But it will come to pass that whoever calls upon the Name of the Lord will be saved.

Men of Israel, listen to these words! Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved by God among you by the signs, wonders, and miracles that God did through him in your midst, as you yourselves know;

Having been handed over by the definite counsel and providence of God, you took him, and put him on a cross, and you put him to death by the hands of the wicked;

[But] God raised him from the dead, breaking the bonds of death, because it was not possible for him to be held by it.

For David said of him: I always beheld the Lord in my presence: for he is at my right hand, that I shall not be shaken.

Therefore my heart rejoiced, and my tongue leaped for joy; and moreover, my flesh shall rest in hope.

For you will not abandon my soul to the grave, nor will you allow your Holy One to see corruption.

You have shown me the path of life, you will fill me with joy in your presence.

Brother men, I can freely tell you concerning the Patriarch David, that he died, and that he was buried, and that his tomb is among us to this day.

But since he was a prophet, and knew that God had promised him on oath, that from the fruit of his loins he would bring forth the Christ according to the flesh, to sit him on his throne;

He said of Christ's resurrection, in foreseeing it, that his soul was not left in the tomb, and that his flesh did not feel corruption.

God raised this Jesus from the dead; of which we are all witnesses.

Therefore, after he was taken up [into heaven] by the power of God, and received from his Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he poured out what you now see and hear.

For David did not ascend into heaven; but he himself said, "The Lord said to my Lord, 'Sit at my right hand,'"

Until I have made your enemies a footstool for your feet.

Therefore let all the house of Israel know for certain that God has made him Lord and Christ, this Jesus, [I say], whom you crucified.

Having heard these things, they were cut to the heart, and they said to Peter and the other Apostles, "Brothers, what shall we do?"

And Peter said to them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

For to you and to your children is the promise, and to all who are far off, as many as the Lord our God will call to himself.

And with many other words he admonished them and exhorted them, saying: Separate yourselves from this perverse generation.

Those who willingly received his word were baptized; and on that day about three thousand souls were added [to the Church].

And they all devoted themselves to the teaching of the Apostles, and to communion and the breaking of bread, and to prayer.

Everyone was filled with fear, and many signs and wonders were being performed by the Apostles.

And all those who believed were together in one place, and they had all things in common;

And they sold their possessions and goods, and distributed them to all, according to each one's need.

And every day they continued together in the Temple; and breaking bread from house to house, they ate together with glad and sincere hearts;

Praising God and pleasing all the people, the Lord added to their number daily those who were being saved.

And as Peter and John went up together to the Temple at the hour of prayer, which was at nine o'clock,

A man lame from birth was brought there, who was placed every day at the gate of the Temple called the Beautiful, to ask for alms from those who entered the Temple.

This man, seeing Peter and John about to enter the Temple, begged them to give him alms.

But Peter, along with John, fixed his gaze upon him, and Peter said to him: look at us.

And he watched them intently, expecting to receive something from them.
But Peter said to him, "I have neither silver nor gold, but what I do have I give you: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk."
And having taken him by the right hand, he lifted him up; and immediately the soles and ankles of his feet became firm.
And leaping, he stood up and walked; and he entered with them into the Temple, walking, leaping, and praising God.
And all the people saw him walking and praising God.
And recognizing that it was the very same man who sat at the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, begging for alms, they were filled with admiration and wonder at what had happened to him.
And as the lame man, who had been healed, held Peter and John by the hand, all the astonished people ran to them, to the Portico which is called Solomon's.
But Peter, seeing this, said to the people: Men of Israel, why are you astonished at this? Or why do you stare at us, as though by our power or holiness we had made this man walk?
The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his Son Jesus, whom you handed over and denied before Pilate, though he judged that he should be released.
But you have denied the Holy and the Just, and you have asked that a murderer be released to you.
You killed the Prince of life, whom God raised from the dead; of which we are witnesses.
And by faith in his name, his Name has strengthened [the feet of] this man whom you see and know; the faith, I say, that [we have] in him, has given this entire disposition of all his members, in the presence of all of you.
And now, my brothers, I know that you did it in ignorance, as did your governors.
But God thus fulfilled the things which he had foretold through the mouth of all his Prophets, that the Christ had to suffer.
Therefore, repent and turn to God, so that your sins may be wiped out:
When the times of refreshing have come through the presence of the Lord, and he has sent Jesus Christ, who was previously announced to you.
[And] which the heavens must contain until the time of the restoration of all things which God spoke by the mouth of all his holy Prophets from the [beginning] of the world.
For Moses himself said to our fathers: the Lord your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your brothers; you shall listen to him in all that he tells you.
And it will come to pass that anyone who did not listen to this Prophet will be exterminated from among the people.
And even all the Prophets since Samuel, and those who followed him, as many as there were who spoke, also foretold these days.
You are the children of the Prophets, and of the covenant that God made with our fathers, saying to Abraham: and in your offspring all the families of the earth shall be blessed.
It is for you first and foremost that God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, by removing each of you from your wickedness.
But as they were speaking to the people, the priests, the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees arrived.
Being greatly distressed because they were teaching the people, and proclaiming the resurrection of the dead in the Name of Jesus.
And having arrested them, they put them in prison until the next day, because it was already late.
And many of those who had heard the word believed; and the number of people was about five thousand.

Now it happened that the next day their Governors, the Elders, and the Scribes assembled in Jerusalem;
With Annas the High Priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and all those who were of the priestly race.
And having brought Peter and John before them, they asked them, "By what power or in whose name did you perform this [healing]?"
Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them: "Rulers of the people, and you elders of Israel:
Since we are being sought today for a good that was done in the person of a cripple, to find out how he was healed;
Know this, all of you and all the people of Israel, that it was in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, whom you crucified, [and] whom God raised from the dead; it is, [I say], in his name, that this man who appears here before you has been healed.
This is the stone that was rejected by you builders; it has become the cornerstone.
And there is no salvation in anyone else: for there is no other name under heaven given to mankind by which we must be saved.
Seeing the boldness of Peter and John, and knowing also that they were uneducated and foolish men, they were astonished, and they recognized that they had been with Jesus.

And seeing that the man who had been healed was present with them, they could not contradict him in any way.
Then, having ordered them to leave the Council, they conferred among themselves.
Saying: what shall we do to these people? For it is known to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem that a miracle was performed by them, and this is so evident that we cannot deny it.
But so that it may no longer be divulged among the people, let us forbid them with express threats, that they may no longer speak in this Name to anyone.
Having called them in, they commanded them to speak no more and to teach in any way in the name of Jesus.
But Peter and John answered them, "Judge for yourselves whether it is right in the sight of God to obey you rather than God."
Because we can only say the things we have seen and heard.
So they released them with threats, finding no way to punish them because of the people, since everyone was glorifying God for what had been done.
Because the man in whom this miraculous healing had taken place was over forty years old.
But after they had been let go, they came to their own people and told them everything that the chief priests and elders had told them.
Having heard this, they all raised their voices together to God, and said: Lord! You are the God who made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all things that are in them;
And who said by the mouth of David your servant: Why did the nations rage, and the peoples plot in vain?
The kings of the earth met in person, and the princes joined together against the Lord and against his Christ.
Indeed, against your holy Son Jesus, whom you anointed, Herod and Pontius Pilate, along with the Gentiles and the people of Israel, have gathered together.
To do all the things that your hand and your council had previously determined would be done.
Now therefore, Lord, pay attention to their threats, and grant to your servants to proclaim your word with all boldness;
By extending your hand so that healings, and wonders, and marvels may be done, through the Name of your holy Son Jesus.
And when they had prayed, the place where they were assembled shook; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and they spoke the word of God with boldness.

Now the multitude of those who believed were of one heart and one soul; and no one said of any of the things which he possessed, that it was his own; but all things were held in common among them.

Also the Apostles bore witness with great power to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus; and great grace was upon them all.

For there was no one in need among them; because all those who owned fields or houses sold them, and brought the proceeds of what was sold;

And they placed it at the feet of the Apostles; and it was distributed to each one as he needed.

Now Joses, who by the Apostles was surnamed Barnabas, that is, son of consolation, a Levite, and a Cyprian by nation,

Having a possession, he sold it, and brought the proceeds, and laid them at the feet of the Apostles.

Now a man named Ananias, having sold a possession with his wife Sapphira, With his wife's consent, he kept back part of the prize money and brought some of it with him and laid it at the feet of the Apostles.

But Peter said to him, Ananias, how has Satan seized your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and to keep back part of the price of the inheritance?

If you had kept it, would it not have remained with you? And being sold, would it not have been in your power? Why did you form such a plan in your heart? You have not lied to men but to God.

And when Ananias heard these words, he fell down and gave up his spirit; and this caused great fear to all who heard of it.

And some young men got up, took him out, and buried him.

And it happened about three hours later that his wife also, not knowing what had happened, came in;

And Peter, speaking up, said to her: tell me, did you sell the field for the same amount? and she said: yes, the same amount.

Then Peter said to him, "Why have you conspired among yourselves to test the Spirit of the Lord? Look, at the door are the feet of those who buried your husband, and they will carry you out."

And at that very moment she fell at his feet and breathed her last. And when the young men had entered, they found her dead, and they carried her out and buried her beside her husband.

And this caused great fear throughout the whole church and all who heard these things.

And many wonders and miracles were being performed among the people by the hands of the Apostles; and they were all together in Solomon's portico.

However, none of the others dared to join them; but the people praised them highly.

And the number of those who believed in the Lord, both men and women, increased more and more.

And they brought the sick into the streets, and put them on small beds and cots, so that when Peter came, at least his shadow might pass over some of them.

People from the surrounding towns also gathered in Jerusalem, bringing the sick and those tormented by unclean spirits; and all were healed.

Then the high priest stood up, he and all those who were with him, who were the sect of the Sadducees, and they were filled with envy;

And laying hands on the Apostles, they had them led into the public prison.

But the Angel of the Lord opened the prison doors by night, and having brought them out, he said to them:

Go, and stand in the Temple, and proclaim to the people all the words of this life.

Having heard this, they went into the Temple at daybreak and began to teach. But when the high priest and those with him came, they assembled the Council and all the elders of the Israelites, and sent them to prison to be brought in.

But when the officers came, they did not find them in the prison; so they returned and reported,

Saying: we found the prison securely locked, and the guards also who were in front of the gates; but after opening it, we found no one inside.

And when the [high] priest, and the captain of the temple, and the chief priests heard these words, they were greatly troubled about this, not knowing what would happen.

But someone came and told them: look, the men you put in prison are in the Temple, and they are standing there teaching the people.

Then the Captain of the Temple, with the bailiffs, went away and brought them in without violence, for they feared being stoned by the people.

And having brought them, they presented them to the Council. And the high priest questioned them, Saying: Have we not expressly forbidden you not to teach in this Name? And yet, behold, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and you want to bring upon us the blood of this man.

Then Peter and the [other] Apostles replied, saying: We must obey God rather than men.

The God of our fathers raised Jesus from the dead, whom you killed by hanging him on a tree.

And God exalted him by his power to be Prince and Savior, in order to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins.

And we are witnesses to him of what we say, and the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to those who obey him, is also a witness.

But when they heard these things, they gnashed their teeth and consulted others to have them put to death.

But a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the Law, honored by all the people, rose up in the Council and commanded that the Apostles withdraw outside for a little while.

Then he said to them: Men of Israel, be careful what you do concerning these people.

For before this time Theudas arose, claiming to be something, and was joined by a number of men about four hundred; but he was defeated, and all those who joined him were scattered and reduced to nothing.

After him came Judas the Galilean in the days of the census, and he drew to himself a great people; but he too perished, and all those who had joined him were scattered.

So now I tell you: stop pursuing these men and leave them alone, for if this enterprise or this work is of human origin, it will be destroyed;

But if it is from God, you cannot destroy it; and beware lest you even be found waging war against God. And they agreed with him.

Then, having called the Apostles in, they ordered them, after whipping them, not to speak in the name of Jesus; after which they let them go.

And [the Apostles] withdrew from before the Council, rejoicing that they had been made worthy to suffer disgrace for the Name of Jesus.

And they did not cease every day to teach and to proclaim Jesus Christ in the Temple and from house to house.

And in those days, as the disciples multiplied, a murmur arose among the Greeks against the Hebrews, because their widows were treated with contempt in the regular service.

Therefore the Twelve, having called together a multitude of disciples, said: it is not right that we should leave the word of God to wait on tables.

Therefore, my brothers, choose seven men from among you, of good reputation, full of the Holy Spirit and of wisdom, to whom we may entrust this matter.

And for us, we will continue to devote ourselves to prayer and to the administration of the word.

And this speech pleased all the assembly that was present; and they elected Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas, a proselyte of Antioch. And they presented them to the Apostles, who, after praying, laid their hands on them.

And the word of God increased, and the number of disciples multiplied greatly in Jerusalem; a great number of priests also became obedient to the faith.

Now Stephen, full of faith and power, performed great miracles and wonders among the people.

And some of the Synagogue called [the Synagogue] of the Libertines, and [of that] of the Cyrenians, and [of that] of the Alexandrians, and of those who [were] of Cilicia, and of Asia, rose up to dispute with Stephen.

But they could not resist the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spoke.

Then they bribed some men, who said: we have heard him utter blasphemous words against Moses and against God.

And they stirred up the people, and the Elders, and the Scribes, and throwing themselves upon him, they seized him, and brought him into the Council.

And they presented false witnesses, who said: this man does not cease to utter blasphemous words against this holy Place and [against] the Law.

For we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and change the ordinances that Moses gave us.

And as all those who were sitting in the Council had their eyes fixed on him, they saw his face like the face of an angel.

Then the high priest said to him, "Are these things so?"

And [Stephen] answered: Men, brothers and fathers, listen [to me]: the God of glory appeared to our father Abraham, while he was still in Mesopotamia, before he lived in Caran,

And he said to him, "Leave your country and your relatives and come to the land I will show you."

So he left the land of the Chaldeans and went to live in Carran; and from there, after his father had died, [God] brought him to this land where you now live.

And he gave him no inheritance in that country, not even a foot of land, although he had promised to give it to him as a possession, and to his posterity after him, at a time when he had no children yet.

And God spoke to him thus: your descendants will sojourn four hundred years in a foreign land, and there they will be enslaved and mistreated.

But I will judge the nation to which they were enslaved, says God; and after that they will come out and serve me in this place.

Then he gave him the Covenant of Circumcision; and after that [Abraham] begat Isaac, whom he circumcised on the eighth day; and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob the twelve Patriarchs.

And the Patriarchs, being full of envy, sold Joseph [to be taken] to Egypt; but God was with him;

Who delivered him from all his afflictions; and having filled him with wisdom, he made him pleasing to Pharaoh, King of Egypt, who appointed him Governor over Egypt, and over all his house.

Now there came throughout all the land of Egypt and Canaan a famine and great distress, so that our fathers could not find food.

But when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our fathers there for the first time.

And [having returned] a second time, Joseph was recognized by his brothers, and the family of Joseph was declared to Pharaoh.

Then Joseph sent for Jacob his father, and all his family, who were seventy-five persons.

So Jacob went down to Egypt, and there he and our ancestors died;

They were transported to Shechem and placed in the tomb that Abraham had bought with money from the sons of Emmor, [son] of Shechem.

But as the time of the promise that God had sworn to Abraham drew near, the people increased and multiplied in Egypt.

Until another king appeared in Egypt, who did not know Joseph;

And who, using cunning against our nation, mistreated our fathers, even causing them to expose their children to abandonment, in order to destroy their race.

At that time Moses was born, who was divinely beautiful; and he was nourished three months in his father's house.

But having been left to fend for himself, Pharaoh's daughter took him in and raised him as her own son.

And Moses was instructed in all the knowledge of the Egyptians; and he was powerful in speech and deed.

But when he reached the age of forty, he conceived the intention of going to visit his brothers, the children of Israel.

And seeing one of them being wronged, he defended him, and avenged the one who was outraged, by killing the Egyptian.

But he believed that his brothers would understand [by this] that God would deliver them through him; but they did not understand.

And the next day he found himself between them as they were quarreling, and he tried to reconcile them, [saying to them]: Men, you are brothers, why do you wrong one another?

But the one who wronged his neighbor rejected him, saying to him: who made you Prince and Judge over us?

Do you want to kill me, like you killed the Egyptian yesterday?

Then Moses fled after hearing this, and became a stranger in the land of Midian, where he had two sons.

And when forty years were completed, the Angel of the Lord appeared to him in the desert of Mount Sinai, in a flame of fire that was in a bush.

And when Moses saw it, he was astonished at the vision, and as he approached to see what it was, the voice of the Lord came to him, [Saying]: I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses trembled and did not dare to consider what it was.

And the Lord said to him, "Take off your sandals, for the place where you are is holy ground."

I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and I have come down to deliver them: now therefore come; I will send you to Egypt.

This Moses, whom they had rejected, saying: who made you Prince and Judge? This is the one whom [God] sent as Prince and Deliverer by means of the Angel who appeared to him at the bush.

This is the one who brought them out, performing miracles and wonders in the Red Sea and in the desert for forty years.

This is the Moses who said to the children of Israel: the Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from among your brothers; listen to him.

This is the one who was in the assembly in the desert with the Angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and who was with our fathers, and received the words of life to give to us.

Which our fathers refused to obey, but rejected it, and turned away in their hearts [to return] to Egypt,

Saying to Aaron: make us gods who will go before us; for we do not know what happened to this Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt.

So in those days they made a calf, and they offered sacrifices to the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their hands.

That is why God turned away [from them] and abandoned them to serve the army of heaven, as it is written in the Book of the Prophets: House of Israel, did you offer me sacrifices and offerings for forty years in the wilderness?

But you have carried the tabernacle of Molech, and the star of your god Remphan; which are images that you made to worship; therefore I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

The Tabernacle of the testimony was with our fathers in the desert, as commanded by the one who had told Moses to do it according to the pattern he had seen.

And our fathers having received [this Tabernacle], they carried it under the leadership of Joshua to the land which was possessed by the nations which God drove out from before our fathers, [where it remained] until the days of David; Who found favor with God and asked to be allowed to erect a Tabernacle to the God of Jacob.

And Solomon built him a house.

But the Sovereign does not dwell in temples made by hand, according to these words of the Prophet:

Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: what kind of house will you build me, says the Lord, or what could be the place of my rest?

Hasn't my hand done all these things?

You stiff-necked people, and uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Spirit; you do as your fathers did.

Which of the prophets did your ancestors not persecute? They even killed those who foretold the coming of the Righteous One, whom you have now betrayed and murdered. You who received the Law through the angels, but did not keep it.

Upon hearing these things, their hearts were inflamed with anger and they gnashed their teeth at him.

But he, being filled with the Holy Spirit, and having fixed his eyes upon heaven, saw the glory of God, and Jesus being at the right hand of God.

And he said, "Look, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God."

Then they cried out loudly, and covered their ears, and all together they rushed upon him.

And having brought him out of the city, they stoned him; and the witnesses laid their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul.

And they stoned Stephen, who was praying and saying, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

And having knelt down, he cried out in a loud voice: Lord, do not hold this sin against them; and when he had said this, he fell asleep.

Now Saul consented to the death of Stephen, and at that time a great persecution arose against the church that was in Jerusalem, and all were scattered throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles.

And some God-fearing men took Stephen away to bury him, and mourned him greatly.

But Saul ravaged the church, entering every house, and dragging men and women away and putting them in prison.

Those who were scattered went about proclaiming the word of God.

And Philip went down to a city in Samaria and preached Christ to them.

And the troops were all together attentive to what Philip was saying, listening to him, and seeing the miracles he was performing.

For the unclean spirits, crying out with a loud voice, came out of many who were possessed by them, and many who were paralyzed and lame were healed.

This caused great joy in that city.

Now there was previously in the city a man named Simon who practiced the art of sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, claiming to be some great personage. To which everyone was attentive, from the smallest to the greatest, saying: this is the great virtue of God.

And they were attached to him, because for a long time he had dazzled them with his magic.

But when they believed what Philip told them about the Kingdom of God and the Name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

And Simon himself believed, and after being baptized, he did not move from Philip's side; and seeing the wonders and great miracles which were being done, he was as though he were caught up in it.

Now when the Apostles who were in Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them;

Those who went down to them prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Spirit:

For he had not yet come down on any of them, but they were only being baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Then they laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit.

Then Simon, seeing that the Holy Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands, presented them with money, Saying to them: give me also this power, that all upon whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit.

But Peter said to him, "May your money perish with you, because you thought that the gift of God could be obtained with money."

You have no part or inheritance in this matter, for your heart is not right before God.

Therefore, repent of this wickedness, and pray to God, so that if possible, the thought of your heart may be forgiven you.

For I see that you are in very bitter gall, and in a bond of iniquity.

Then Simon answered, and said, "You, pray to the Lord for me, that nothing may come upon me of the things that you have said."

So after they had preached and proclaimed the word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem and preached the gospel in many Samaritan villages.

Then the Angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, saying: Arise, and go toward the South, to the road which goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza, which is deserted.

So he got up and went away; and behold, an Ethiopian man, a eunuch, who was one of the chief lords of the court of Candace, Queen of the Ethiopians, in charge of all her riches, and who had come to worship in Jerusalem;

He returned, sitting in his chariot; and he read the Prophet Isaiah.

And the Spirit said to Philip, "Come near and join this chariot."

And Philip ran up to him and heard him reading the Prophet Isaiah; and he said to him, "Do you understand what you are reading?"

And he said to him, "But how can I understand it unless someone guides me?" And he asked Philip to come up and sit with him.

But the passage of Scripture that he was reading was this: He was led like a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before its shearer is silent, so that he did not open his mouth.

In his humiliation his judgment was exalted; but who can describe his duration? For his life is taken from the earth.

And the eunuch, speaking up, said to Philip: I ask you, of whom is the Prophet saying this: of himself, or of someone else?

Then Philip opened his mouth, and beginning with this Scripture, he told him about Jesus.

And as they continued on their way, they came to [a place where there was] water; and the eunuch said, "Here is water, what can prevent me from being baptized?"

And Philip said, "If you believe with all your heart, it is permitted for you." And [the eunuch] answered, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

And having ordered that the chariot be stopped, they both went down into the water, Philip and the eunuch; and [Philip] baptized him.

And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord suddenly took Philip away, and the eunuch did not see him again; and he went on his way rejoicing.

But Philip found himself in Azote, and as he went along he preached the Gospel in all the towns, until he came to Caesarea.

Now Saul, still breathing only threats and carnage against the disciples of the Lord, having addressed himself to the high priest,

He asked her for letters to take to the Synagogues in Damascus, so that if he found any of that sect, whether men or women, he would bring them bound to Jerusalem.

Now it happened that as he walked, he approached Damascus, and suddenly a light flashed from the sky like lightning all around him.

And having fallen to the ground, he heard a voice saying to him: Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?

And he answered: who are you, Lord? And the Lord said to him: I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting; it is hard for you to kick against the goads.

And he, trembling and afraid, said, "Lord, what do you want me to do?" And the Lord said to him, "Get up and go into the city, and there you will be told what you must do."

And the men who were walking with him stopped in terror, hearing the voice clearly, but seeing no one.

And Saul arose from the ground, and opened his eyes, and saw no one; therefore they led him by the hand, and brought him to Damascus;

Where he spent three days without seeing, without eating or drinking.

Now there was a disciple in Damascus, named Ananias, to whom the Lord said in a vision: Ananias! And he answered: Here I am, Lord.

And the Lord said to him, "Get up and go to the street called Straight, and look for a man named Saul, who is from Tarsus, at the house of Judas; for behold, he is praying."

Now [Saul] had seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in and laying his hands on him so that he might regain his sight.

And Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many about this man, and how much harm he has done to your saints in Jerusalem."

He even has the power here, from the chief priests, to bind all those who call upon your name.

But the Lord said to him, "Go; for I have chosen a vessel to carry my name before the Gentiles and kings and the children of Israel."

For I will show him how much he will have to suffer for my Name.

So Ananias went away and entered the house; and laying his hands on him, he said to him, "Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road as you were coming here, has sent me so that you may regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit."

And immediately something like scales fell from his eyes; and at once he regained his sight; then he got up and was baptized.

And having eaten, he regained his strength. And Saul spent some days with the disciples who were in Damascus.

And he preached incessantly in the Synagogues that Christ was the Son of God.

And all who heard it were as though they were beside themselves, and they said: Is not this the one who destroyed those in Jerusalem who called on this Name, and who has come here expressly to bring them bound to the chief priests.

But Saul grew stronger and stronger, and confounded the Jews who remained in Damascus, proving that Jesus was the Christ.

But much later the Jews conspired together to kill him.

But their plots became known to Saul. Now they were guarding the gates day and night, in order to kill him.

But the disciples, taking him by night, lowered him down the wall in a basket.

And when Saul came to Jerusalem, he tried to join the disciples; but they all feared him, not believing that he was a disciple.

But Barnabas took him and brought him to the Apostles, and told them how on the way he had seen the Lord, who had spoken to him, and how he had spoken frankly in Damascus in the name of Jesus.

And he was with them in Jerusalem, showing himself publicly.
And speaking openly in the name of the Lord Jesus, he argued with the Greeks, but they sought to kill him.
Having learned of this, the brothers brought him to Caesarea and sent him to Tarsus.

Therefore the churches throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria were at peace, being built up and walking in the fear of the Lord; and they multiplied through the encouragement of the Holy Spirit.
Now it happened that, as Peter was visiting them all, he also came to the Saints who lived in Lydda.
And he found there a man named Aeneas, who for eight years had been lying in a small bed; for he was paralyzed.
And Peter said to him, Aeneas, may Jesus Christ heal you! Get up and make your bed; and he got up at once.
And all who lived in Lydda and Sharon saw him; and they were converted to the Lord.
Now there was in Joppa a female disciple named Tabitha, which means [in Greek] Dorcas, who was full of good works and almsgiving which she gave.
And it happened in those days that she fell ill, and died; and when they had washed her, they put her in an upper room.
And because Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, having heard that Peter was in Lydda, sent two men to him, begging him not to delay coming to them.
And Peter got up and went with them; and when he arrived, they brought him into the upper room; and all the widows came to him weeping, and showing how many robes and garments Dorcas made while she was with them.
But after Peter had put them all out, he knelt down and prayed; then turning toward the body, he said, "Tabitha, get up." And she opened her eyes, and seeing Peter, she sat down.
And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up; then having called the saints and the widows, he presented her alive to them.
And this became known throughout Joppa; and many believed in the Lord.
And it happened that he stayed several days in Joppa, at the home of a certain Simon, a tanner.
Now there was in Caesarea a man named Cornelius, Centurion of a cohort [of the Legion] called Italic;
[Man] devout and God-fearing, with all his family, also giving a lot of alms to the people, and praying to God continually;
Who clearly saw in a vision about nine o'clock in the day, an Angel of God who came to him, and who said to him: Cornelius!
And Cornelius, his eyes fixed upon him, and being greatly afraid, said to him: what is it, Lord? And he said to him: your prayers and your alms have ascended in remembrance before God.
Now therefore send people to Joppa, and bring back Simon, who is surnamed Peter. He is staying with a certain Simon the tanner, who has his house near the sea; he is the one who will tell you what you must do.
And when the angel who was speaking to Cornelius had gone away, he called two of his servants and a God-fearing soldier from among those who were standing around him.
Having told them everything, he sent them to Joppa.
The next day, as they were walking and approaching the city, Peter went up onto the house to pray, about six o'clock.
And it happened that, being hungry, he wanted to eat his meal; and as those of the house were preparing food for him, he experienced a rapture of the mind;
And he saw the heavens opened, and a ship descending upon him like a great shroud, bound at the four ends, and descending to earth;

In which there were all kinds of four-footed land animals, wild beasts, reptiles, and birds of the air.

And a voice came to him, saying, Peter, get up, kill, and eat.

But Peter replied, "I do not care, Lord! For I have never eaten anything unclean or defiled."

And the voice said to him a second time: "Do not consider the things that God has purified as defiled."

And this happened up to three times, and then the ship withdrew to the sky.

Now Peter was in anguish over the meaning of the vision which he had seen, when the men sent by Cornelius to inquire about Simon's house came to the gate.

And having called someone, they asked if Simon, who was surnamed Peter, was staying there.

And as Peter was thinking about the vision, the Spirit said to him: "Here are three men who are looking for you."

So get up, go downstairs, and go with them without causing any trouble, for I am the one who sent them.

So Peter went down to the people who had been sent to him by Cornelius and said to them, "Behold, I am the one you are looking for; what is the reason for which you have come?"

And they said: Cornelius the centurion, a righteous and God-fearing man, who had a good reputation among all the Jewish nation, was told by a holy angel of God to send for you to come to his house and hear you speak.

Then Peter brought them in and lodged them; and the next day he went with them, and some of the brothers from Joppa kept him company.

And the next day they entered Caesarea. Now Cornelius was waiting for them, having called his relatives and close friends.

And it came to pass that as Peter entered, Cornelius came to meet him, and threw himself at his feet, and worshipped him.

But Peter helped him up, saying to him, "Get up, I am also a man."

Then, while talking with him, he went in and found several people gathered there.

And he said to them, "You know how it is not lawful for a Jew to associate with a foreigner or to go to his house, but God has shown me that I should not consider any man to be unclean or defiled."

That is why, as soon as you sent for me, I came without hesitation. I therefore ask you what matter prompted you to send for me.

And Cornelius said to him: Four days at this time I have been fasting, and praying at nine o'clock in my house; and behold, a man stood before me in dazzling clothing.

And he said to me: Cornelius, your prayer has been heard, and God has remembered your alms.

Send therefore to Joppa, and bring from there Simon, called Peter, who is staying in the house of Simon the tanner, by the sea, who comes and will speak to you.

That is why I first sent to you, and you did well to come. Now we are all here before God to hear everything that God has commanded you to tell us.

Then Peter spoke up and said: I truly understand that God does not show partiality; But in every nation, he who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him.

This is what he sent to signify to the children of Israel, announcing peace through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all.

You know what happened throughout Judea, beginning with Galilee, after the baptism that John preached;

[Knowing], how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power, who went about doing good and healing all who were under the power of the demon: for God was with Jesus.

And we are witnesses of all the things he did, both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem; and how they put him to death by hanging him on a tree.

[But] God raised him from the dead on the third day, and gave him up to be manifested;

Not to all the people, but to us, [I say], to the witnesses formerly ordained by God, who ate and drank with him after he was raised from the dead.

And he commanded us to preach to the people, and to testify that he is the one appointed by God to be the Judge of the living and the dead.

All the Prophets bear witness to him, that whoever believes in him will receive forgiveness of his sins through his Name.

While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit came upon all who heard the word.

But the Faithful of the Circumcision who had come with Peter were astonished that the gift of the Holy Spirit was also poured out on the Gentiles.

For they heard them speaking in various languages and glorifying God.

Then Peter spoke up and said, "What can prevent these people, who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have, from being baptized with water?"

He therefore commanded that they be baptized in the Name of the Lord. Then they begged him to stay there a few days.

Now the Apostles and the brothers who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles also had received the word of God.

And when Peter returned to Jerusalem, those of the Circumcision disputed with him, Saying: you went into the house of uncircumcised men, and you ate with them.

Then Peter began to explain everything to them in order, saying:

I was praying in the city of Joppa, and being in a state of rapture, I saw a vision, [namely] a vessel like a great shroud, which descended from heaven, bound at the four ends, and came to me.

In which, having cast my eyes, I perceived and saw four-footed earth animals, wild beasts, reptiles, and birds of the air.

I also heard a voice saying to me: Peter, get up, kill, and eat.

And I answered: I have no regard, Lord! for nothing filthy or defiled has ever entered my mouth.

And the voice answered me again from heaven: What God has purified, do not consider defiled.

And this happened three times; and then all these things were taken up into heaven.

And behold, at that very moment three men, who had been sent from Caesarea to me, appeared at the house where I was;

And the Spirit told me to go with them, without hesitation; and these six brothers also came with me, and we entered the house of this man.

And he told us how he had seen an angel in his house who appeared to him and said:

"Send people to Joppa, and bring back Simon who is surnamed Peter;

Who will tell you things by which you and all your household will be saved?

And when I began to speak, the Holy Spirit came upon them, as it had come upon us in the beginning.

Then I remembered the word of the Lord, and how he had said: John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit.

Since God has given them a gift like the one he gave us who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I to stand against God?

Then, having heard these things, they were calmed, and they glorified God, saying: So God has granted repentance to the Gentiles, leading to life.

But those who had been scattered by the persecution stirred up on account of Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, without proclaiming the word to anyone except the Jews.

But there were some of them, Cyprians and Cyrenians, who, having entered Antioch, spoke to the Greeks, announcing the Lord Jesus.

And the hand of the Lord was with them; so that a great number believed and were converted to the Lord.

And the news reached the ears of the church in Jerusalem, so they sent Barnabas to cross over to Antioch.

When he had arrived there and seen the grace of God, he rejoiced; and he exhorted them all to remain faithful to the Lord with all their heart.

For he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith; and a great number of people were joined to the Lord.

Then Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul.

And having found him, he brought him to Antioch; and it came to pass that for a whole year they assembled with the Church, and taught a great people, so that it was first in Antioch that the disciples were called Christians.

Now in those days some prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch.

And one of them, named Agabus, stood up and declared by the Spirit that a great famine would come upon all the world; and indeed it came upon us in the days of Claudius Caesar.

And the disciples, each according to his ability, determined to send [something] to provide for the brothers who remained in Judea.

This they also did, sending it to the Elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

At that same time King Herod began to mistreat some of those of the Church;

And he put James, the brother of John, to death with the sword.

And seeing that this pleased the Jews, he continued, and also had Peter arrested.

Now it was the days of Unleavened Bread. And when he had seized him, he put him in prison, and gave him to be guarded by four squads, each with four soldiers, intending to bring him out for torture before the people after the Passover festival.

So Peter was kept in prison; but the Church continually prayed to God for him.

Now at the time when Herod was about to send him to his execution, that very night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains; and the guards who were outside the gate were guarding the prison.

And behold, an angel of the Lord appeared, and a light shone in the prison, and [the angel] struck Peter on the side, and woke him, saying to him, "Get up lightly." And the chains fell from his hands.

And the angel said to him, "Gird up and put on your sandals," which he did. Then he said to him, "Throw your robe over yourself and follow me."

So he went out and followed him; but he did not know that what was being done by the Angel was real, for he thought he was seeing some vision.

And when they had passed the first and second guards, they came to the iron gate, through which one goes into the city, and this gate opened to them of itself, and having gone out, they passed a street, and suddenly the Angel withdrew from him.

Then Peter came to his senses and said: I now know for certain that the Lord has sent his angel and has delivered me from the hand of Herod and from all the expectation of the Jewish people.

And having considered all things, he came to the house of Mary, the mother of John called Mark, where many were gathered, and praying.

And when he knocked on the door of the vestibule, a servant girl named Rhode came to listen;

When she heard Peter's voice, she did not open the vestibule for joy, but ran into the house and announced that Peter was at the door.

And they said to her, "You are crazy." But she insisted that what she said was true; and they said, "It is her Angel."

But Peter kept knocking; and when they opened the door, they saw him, and were as if taken out of their minds.

And he motioned to them with his hand to be silent, and told them how the Lord had brought him out of prison, and he said to them, "Tell these things to James and the brothers." Then he left there and went to another place.

But when the day came, there was great confusion among the soldiers, [as to] what had become of Peter.

And Herod, having searched for him and not finding him, after bringing charges against the guards, ordered that they be led to their execution. Then he went down from Judea to Caesarea, where he stayed.

Now he intended to wage war against the Tyrians and the Sidonians; but they came to him with a common agreement; and having won over Blastus, who was Chamberlain to the King, they asked for peace, because their country was nourished by that of the King.

On an appointed day, Herod, dressed in royal robes, sat on his throne and addressed them.

At this the people cried out: The voice of a God, and not of a man!

And at once an angel of the Lord struck him down, because he had not given glory to God; and he was eaten by worms, and he gave up his spirit.

But the word of God was making progress and spreading.

Barnabas and Saul, having completed their mission, returned from Jerusalem, taking with them John, who was surnamed Mark.

Now there were in the church that was at Antioch some prophets and teachers, namely Barnabas, Simeon called Niger, Lucius the Cyrenian, Manahem, who had been brought up with Herod the Tetrarch, and Saul.

And as they were serving the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Separate Barnabas and Saul for me, from the work to which I have called them."

Then, having fasted and prayed, and having laid their hands on them, they let them go.

So they, being sent by the Holy Spirit, went down to Seleucia, and from there they sailed to Cyprus.

And when they were in Salamis, they proclaimed the word of God in the Jewish synagogues; and they also had John to help them.

Then, having crossed the island to Paphos, they found there a certain enchanter, a Jewish false prophet, named Bar-Jesus,

Who was with the Proconsul Sergius Paulus, a wise man, who summoned Barnabas and Saul, desiring to hear the word of God.

But Elymas, [that is], the enchanter, for that is what the name Elymas means, resisted them, trying to turn the Proconsul away from the faith.

But Saul, who is also called Paul, being filled with the Holy Spirit, and having his eyes fixed on him, said:

O man full of all fraud and all deceit, son of the Devil, enemy of all justice, will you not cease to overturn the ways of the Lord which are straight?

Therefore, behold, the hand of the Lord is going to be upon you, and you will be blind, unable to see the sun for a time. And at once darkness and gloom fell upon him, and turning about, he sought someone to lead him by the hand.

Then the Proconsul, seeing what had happened, believed, being filled with admiration for the teaching of the Lord.

And when Paul and those who were with him had left Paphos, they came to Perga, a city in Pamphylia; but John having withdrawn from them, returned to Jerusalem.

And they, having departed from Perga, came to Antioch, a city of Pisidia, and having entered the Synagogue on the Sabbath day, sat down.

And after the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the leaders of the Synagogue sent word to them: Men brothers! If you have any word of exhortation for the people, speak it.

Then Paul stood up and motioned with his hand so that silence was given, and said: Men of Israel, and you who fear God, listen.

The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and gloriously distinguished this people from the time they dwelt in the land of Egypt, and brought them out with an exalted arm.

And he endured them in the desert for about forty years.

And having destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he distributed the land to them by lot.

And about four hundred and fifty years later, he gave them Judges, until Samuel the Prophet.

Then they asked for a king, and God gave them Saul son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin; and [thus] forty years passed.

And [God] having removed him, raised up David to be their King, of whom also he bore this testimony, and said: I have found David son of Jesse, a man after my own heart, [and] who will do all my will.

It was from his seed that God, according to his promise, raised up Jesus as Savior to Israel.

John had previously preached the Baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel, before the coming of Jesus.

And as John finished his course, he said, "Who do you suppose I am? I am not [the Christ], but behold, one is coming after me, whose sandal I am not worthy to untie from his feet."

Men, brothers! Children who descend from Abraham, and those of you who fear God, it is to you that the word of this salvation has been sent.

For the inhabitants of Jerusalem and their governors, not knowing him, even in condemning him fulfilled the words of the prophets, which are read every Sabbath.

And although they found nothing in him worthy of death, they begged Pilate to put him to death.

And after they had accomplished all the things which had been written of him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb.

But God raised him from the dead.

And he was seen for several days by those who had gone up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his witnesses before the people.

And we announce to you the promise that was made to our fathers,

That God has accomplished it towards us who are their children; having raised up Jesus, as it is written in the second Psalm: you are my Son, today I have begotten you.

And [to show] that he raised him from the dead, so that he would not have to return to the tomb, he said thus: I will give you the sure holiness of David.

That is why he also said in another place: you shall not allow your Holy One to smell of corruption.

For indeed David, after having served in his time in the counsel of God, fell asleep, and was placed with his fathers, and felt corruption.

But the one whom God raised from the dead did not experience corruption.

Therefore, brothers, know that through him the forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you;

And that in everything from which you could not be justified by the Law of Moses, whoever believes is justified by it.

Therefore, beware lest what is said in the Prophets happen to you:

See, you scorners, and be astonished, and be scattered: for I am going to do a work in your time, a work that you will not believe, if someone tells you about it.

Then, having left the Jewish synagogue, the Gentiles begged them to announce these words to them on the following Sabbath.

And when the assembly was separated, many of the Jews and proselytes who worshiped God followed Paul and Barnabas, who spoke to them, urging them to continue in the grace of God.

And the following Sabbath, almost the whole city gathered to hear the word of God.

But the Jews, seeing all this multitude, were filled with envy, and contradicted what Paul was saying, contradicting and blaspheming.

Then Paul and Barnabas, having grown bolder, said to them, "It was indeed necessary to speak the word of God to you first, but since you reject it and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold, we are turning to the Gentiles."

For the Lord has commanded us thus, [saying]: I have appointed you to be a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.

And when the Gentiles heard this, they rejoiced and glorified the word of the Lord; and all who were appointed to eternal life believed.
Thus the word of the Lord spread throughout the whole land.
But the Jews stirred up some devout and prominent women, and the leading men of the city, and they stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and drove them out of their quarters.
But they shook the dust off their feet against them and came to Iconium.
And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.
Now it happened that, while in Iconium, they entered together into the Jewish Synagogue, and they spoke in such a way that a great multitude of Jews and Greeks believed.
But those among the Jews who rebelled stirred up and angered the minds of the Gentiles against the brothers.
So they remained there for quite some time, speaking boldly for the Lord, who bore witness to the word of his grace, causing wonders and miracles to be done through them.
But the multitude of the city was divided in two, and some were on the side of the Jews, and others on the side of the Apostles.
And when a riot broke out among both the Gentiles and the Jews, and their rulers, to insult the Apostles and to stone them,
Having learned of this, they fled to the cities of Lycaonia, namely Lystra, Derbe, and the surrounding districts.
And they proclaimed the Gospel there.
Now there was a man in Lystra, crippled from birth, who had never walked, and who sat there.
This man heard Paul speak, and Paul, having fixed his eyes on him and seeing that he had faith to be healed,
He said to him in a loud voice, "Stand up straight on your feet." And he jumped up and walked.
And the people who were gathered there, having seen what Paul had done, raised their voices, saying in the Lycaonian language: the gods, having become like men, have come down to us.
And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercury, because it was he who spoke.
And even the Priest of Jupiter, who was before their city, having brought crowned bulls to the entrance of the gate, wanted to sacrifice to them with the crowd.
But when the Apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of this, they tore their clothes and fell into the crowd, shouting,
And saying, "Men, why do you do these things? We too are men, subject to the same passions as you, and we proclaim to you that you should turn from these vain things to the living God, who made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all things that are in them."
Which, in past centuries, allowed all nations to walk in their own ways;
Although he did not leave himself without testimony, by doing good, and giving us rains from heaven, and fruitful seasons, and filling our hearts with food and joy.
And by saying these things, they scarcely prevented the troops from sacrificing to them.
Then some Jews from Antioch and Iconium came and won over the people, so that they stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city, thinking that he was dead.
But the disciples having gathered around him, he got up and went into the city; and the next day he went with Barnabas to Derbe.
And after they had proclaimed the Gospel in that city, and instructed many people, they returned to Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch;
Strengthening the spirit of the disciples, and exhorting them to persevere in the faith, and making them understand that it is through many afflictions that we must enter the Kingdom of God.

And after, by the advice of the assemblies, they had appointed elders in each church, having prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, in whom they had believed.

Then, having crossed Pisidia, they went to Pamphylia.

And having proclaimed the word at Perge, they went down to Attalie.

And from there they sailed to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work they had completed.

And when they arrived, and had assembled the Church, they recounted all the things that God had done through them, and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles.

And they remained there a long time with the disciples.

Now some who had come down from Judea were teaching the brothers, [saying]: unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved.

Given this, a great dispute and disagreement arose between Paul and Barnabas and them, and it was decided that Paul and Barnabas, and some others of them, should go up to Jerusalem to the Apostles and Elders about this question.

So they, being sent from the Church, traveled through Phoenicia and Samaria, telling of the conversion of the Gentiles; and they caused great joy to all the brothers.

And when they arrived in Jerusalem, they were received by the Church, and by the Apostles, and by the Elders, and they recounted all the things that God had done through them.

But some, [they said], of the sect of the Pharisees who believed, stood up, saying that they must be circumcised and ordered to keep the Law of Moses.

Then the Apostles and the Elders gathered together to consider this matter.

And after much discussion Peter stood up and said to them, "Brothers, you know that long ago God chose me from among us, so that the Gentiles might hear the word of the gospel from my mouth and believe."

And God, who knows the hearts, bore witness to them by giving them the Holy Spirit, just as he did to us.

And he made no distinction between us and them, having purified their hearts by faith.

Now then, why are you testing God by wanting to impose on the disciples a yoke that neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear?

But we believe that we will be saved by the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, just as they were.

Then the whole assembly fell silent, and listened to Barnabas and Paul, who were recounting what wonders and marvels God had done among the Gentiles through them.

And after they had fallen silent, James spoke up and said: Men brothers, listen to me!

Simon recounted how God first looked to the Gentiles to draw from them a people consecrated to his Name.

And this is what the words of the Prophets agree on, as it is written:

After that I will return and rebuild the Tabernacle of David, which has fallen; I will repair its ruins and raise it up.

So that the rest of mankind may seek the Lord, and all the nations also upon whom my name is claimed, says the Lord, who does all these things.

All his works have been known to God from all times.

That is why I am of the opinion that we should not disturb those Gentiles who convert to God;

But to write to them that they should abstain from the defilements of idols and from fornication and from strangled animals, and from blood.

For as for Moses, from ancient times there are people in every city who preach him, since he is read in the Synagogues every Sabbath day.

Then it seemed good to the Apostles and the Elders, with the whole Church, to send to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas some men chosen from among themselves, namely Judas, surnamed Barsabbas, and Silas, who were leaders among the brothers. And they wrote through them, saying: The Apostles, and the Elders, and the brothers, to the brothers among the Gentiles in Antioch, and in Syria, and in Cilicia, greetings.

Because we have heard that some have gone out from among us and troubled you with certain words, stirring up your souls, commanding you to be circumcised and to keep the Law, without having given them any order; We have decided, having all come together with one accord, to send to you, along with our dear Barnabas and Paul, men whom we have chosen; And who are men who have given up their lives for the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

So we have sent Judas and Silas, who will tell you the same things by word of mouth.

For it seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us not to place a greater burden on you than these things which are necessary;

[Know] that you abstain from things sacrificed to idols, and from blood, and from strangled animals, and from fornication; from which things, if you keep yourselves, you will do well. So be it!

After taking leave, they came to Antioch, and having assembled the Church, they delivered the Letters.

And when [those of Antioch] had read them, they were gladdened by the consolation [they gave them].

Likewise, Judas and Silas, who were also prophets, exhorted the brothers with many speeches and strengthened them.

And after remaining there for some time, they were sent back in peace by the brothers to the Apostles.

But it seemed good to Silas to remain there.

And Paul and Barnabas also remained in Antioch, teaching and proclaiming the word of the Lord, along with many others.

And a few days later, Paul said to Barnabas: let us return and visit our brothers in all the towns where we proclaimed the word of the Lord, to see how they are doing.

But Barnabas advised that they take John, surnamed Mark, with them.

But it did not seem reasonable to Paul that someone who had separated himself from them in Pamphylia, and who had not gone with them for that work, should be added to them.

There was a dispute between them, and they parted ways, and Barnabas took Mark and sailed to Cyprus.

But Paul, having chosen Silas to accompany him, left there, having been commended to the grace of God by the brothers.

And he crossed Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches.

And he came to Derbe and Lystra, and behold, there was there a disciple named Timothy, son of a Jewish woman, a believer; but of a Greek father;

He had a good testimony from the brothers who were in Lystra and Iconium.

[Therefore] Paul wanted him to go with him; and taking him with him, he circumcised him, because of the Jews who were in those places: for they all knew that his father was a Greek.

So they, going from town to town, instructed them to keep the ordinances decreed by the Apostles and by the Elders of Jerusalem.

So the churches were strengthened in the faith and grew in number daily.

Then, having passed through Phrygia and the country of Galatia, they were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach the word in Asia.

And having come to Mysia, they tried to go to Bithynia; but the Spirit of Jesus would not allow them.

Therefore, having crossed Mysia, they went down to Troas.

And Paul had a vision at night of a Macedonian man who stood before him and begged him, saying, "Come over to Macedonia and help us."

When he had seen this vision, we immediately set out for Macedonia, concluding from this that the Lord had called us to preach the gospel to them.

Having thus departed from Troas, we headed straight for Samothrace, and the next day for Neapolis.

And from there to Philippi, which is the first city of the district of Macedonia, and is a colony; and we stayed some time in the city.

And on the Sabbath day we went out of the city, [and went] to the place where it was customary to pray, near the river, and there we sat and spoke to the women who were gathered there.

And a woman named Lydia, a dealer in purple cloth, who was from the city of Thyatira, and who worshiped God [us], heard, and the Lord opened her heart to pay attention to the things that Paul was saying.

And after she and her family had been baptized, she begged us, saying, "If you consider me faithful to the Lord, come into my house and stay." And she compelled us.

Now it happened that as we were going to prayer, we were met by a servant girl who had a spirit of Python, and who brought great profit to her masters by divining.

And she began to follow Paul and us, shouting and saying, "These men are servants of the Most High God, and they are telling you the way to salvation."

And she did this for several days; but Paul, being bothered, turned and said to the spirit, "I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her"; and it came out.

But when his masters saw that their hope of gain was lost, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the public square before the magistrates.

And they presented them to the Governors, saying: these men, who are Jews, are disturbing our city:

Because they proclaim maxims that we are not permitted to receive, nor to keep, since we are Romans.

The people also rose up together against them, and the Governors, having torn their robes, ordered that they be whipped.

And after giving them several lashes, they put them in prison, ordering the jailer to guard them securely.

And the [jailer], having received this order, put them at the back of the prison, and fastened their feet in stocks.

At midnight Paul and Silas were praying, singing hymns to God, so that the prisoners could hear them.

And suddenly there was such a great earthquake that the foundations of the prison collapsed; and immediately all the doors opened, and everyone's chains were loosed.

Whereupon the jailer awoke, and seeing the prison doors open, drew his sword, and wanted to kill himself, believing that the prisoners had fled.

Paul cried out in a loud voice, saying, "Do not harm yourself, for we are all here."

Then, having asked for light, he ran into [the dungeon], and trembling, fell [at the feet] of Paul and Silas.

And having led them out, he said to them, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

They said, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and you will be saved—you and your household."

And they spoke the word of the Lord to him and to all who were in his house.

After that, taking them at that same hour of the night, he washed their wounds, and immediately afterwards he was baptized, along with all those of his household.

And having brought them into his house, he served them food, and rejoiced, because he and all his household had believed in God.

And when day came, the Governors sent bailiffs to tell him: release these people.

And the jailer reported these words to Paul, [saying]: The governors have sent word that you should be released; so come out now, and go in peace.
But Paul said to the officers: After publicly flogging us, Roman citizens, they put us in prison; and now they want to release us secretly? No, let them come themselves and put us out.
And the bailiffs reported these words to the Governors, who were afraid, having heard that they were Romans.
That is why they came to them and begged them; then, having opened their doors to them, they implored them to leave the city.
Then, having left the prison, they went to Lydia's house, and having seen the brothers, they comforted them, and [then] they left.
Then, having passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a Jewish Synagogue.
And Paul, as was his custom, went there, and for three Sabbaths he disputed with them from the Scriptures;
Explaining and proving that it was necessary for Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead, and that this Jesus, whom [he said], I proclaim to you, was the Christ.
And some of them believed, and joined Paul and Silas, and a great multitude of Greeks who worshipped God, and a considerable number of prominent women.
But the rebellious Jews, being full of envy, took some lazy men filled with malice, who, having made a mass of people, caused an uproar in the city, and having forced Jason's house, sought out [Paul and Silas] to bring them to the people.
But not finding them, they dragged Jason and some brothers before the Governors of the city, shouting: these men who have stirred everyone up have also come here.
And Jason took them into his house; and they all disobeyed Caesar's orders, saying that there is another king, [whom they call] Jesus.
So they stirred up the people and the city's governors, who were hearing these things.
But after receiving assurances from Jason and the others, they let them go.
And first the brothers put Paul and Silas out of [the city] by night, to go to Berea, where, having arrived, they entered the Jewish Synagogue.
But these were more generous than the Jews of Thessalonica, for they received the word with all promptness, consulting the Scriptures daily to find out whether things were as they were told.
Many of them believed, including distinguished Greek women and men, in fairly large numbers.
But when the Jews of Thessalonica learned that the word of God was also being proclaimed by Paul in Berea, they came there and stirred up the people.
But then the brothers immediately brought Paul out of the city, as if to go toward the sea; but Silas and Timothy remained there.
And those who had taken charge of bringing Paul to safety brought him as far as Athens, and they left after receiving orders from [Paul] to tell Silas and Timothy to come and join him soon.
And as Paul waited for them in Athens, his spirit grew sour within him, considering that city entirely given over to idolatry.
He therefore argued in the Synagogue with the Jews and with the devout, and every day in the public square with those who met there.
And some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers began to speak with him, and some said: what does this speaker mean? and others said: he seems to be announcing foreign gods; because he was announcing Jesus and the resurrection to them.
And having taken him, they brought him into the Areopagus, [and said to him]: shall we not know what this new teaching is that you speak of?
Because you fill our ears with certain strange things; therefore we want to know what these things mean.
Now all the Athenians and the foreigners who lived in [Athens] were occupied with nothing but saying or hearing some news.

Paul, then, being in the midst of the Areopagus, said to them: Men of Athens, I perceive you to be overly devout in all things.

For as I passed by and observed your devotions, I even found an altar on which was written: TO THE UNKNOWN GOD; therefore, the one whom you honor without knowing him is the one I am announcing to you.

The God who made the world and all things in it, being Lord of Heaven and earth, does not dwell in temples made with hands;

And he is not served by the hands of men, [as] if he needed anything, since it is he who gives to all life, breath, and all things;

And he made from one blood all mankind, to inhabit all the earth, having determined the seasons he established, and the boundaries of their habitation:

So that they may seek the Lord, to see if they might somehow touch him by groping, and find him; although he is not far from any one of us.

For in him we live and move and have our being; as even some of your own poets have said; for we are his offspring.

Since we are the race of God, we should not consider divinity to be like gold, or silver, or stone cut by the art and industry of men.

But God, passing over those times of ignorance, now announces to all men everywhere that they should repent.

Because he has set a day on which he will judge the whole world with justice, by the man whom he has appointed [for this purpose]; of which he has given certain proof to all, by having raised him from the dead.

But when they heard this word about the resurrection of the dead, some of them scoffed, while others said, "We will hear you again on this."

And so Paul went out from among them.

Some, however, joined him and believed; among them were Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and some others with them.

After that, Paul left Athens and came to Corinth.

And having found there a Jew, named Aquile, originally from the country of Pontus, who a little while before had come from Italy, with Priscilla his wife, because Claudius had ordered that all the Jews leave Rome, he addressed them.

And because he was of the same trade, he stayed with them and worked. Now their trade was making tents.

And every Sabbath he debated in the Synagogue, and persuaded both Jews and Greeks.

And when Silas and Timothy came from Macedonia, Paul, moved by the Spirit, testified to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ.

And when they contradicted him and blasphemed, he shook out his clothes and said to them: May your blood be on your own heads, I am clear about it! I am going now to the Gentiles.

And leaving there, he entered the house of a man called Just, who served God, and whose house was attached to the Synagogue.

But Crispus, the leader of the synagogue, believed in the Lord with all his household; and many others of the Corinthians, when they heard it, believed and were baptized.

But the Lord said to Paul in a vision at night: do not be afraid, but speak, and do not be silent;

Because I am with you, and no one will lay hands on you to harm you; and I have a great many people in this city.

So he remained there for a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

But during the time when Gallio was Proconsul of Achaia, the Jews [all] unanimously rose up against Paul and brought him before the judicial seat,

By saying: this man persuades people to serve God against the Law.

And when Paul wanted to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews: O Jews! if there were a question of any injustice, or of any crime, I would bear with you as much as would be reasonable;

But if it concerns words and speech, and your Law, you yourselves shall set them in order: for I do not wish to be a judge of these things.

And he had them removed from in front of the courthouse.

Then all the Greeks, having seized Sosthenes, who was the Principal of the Synagogue, beat him in front of the judicial seat, without Gallio taking any trouble about it.

And when Paul had stayed there a while longer, he took leave of the brothers and sailed to Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquile, after he had his head shaved at Cenchreae, because he had taken a vow.

Then he arrived at Ephesus and left them there; but having entered the synagogue, he reasoned with the Jews,

They begged him to stay with them even longer; but he refused to grant their request.

And he took leave of them, saying, "I must by all means attend the coming Feast in Jerusalem, but I will return to you again, God willing." So he sailed out of Ephesus.

And when he had gone down to Caesarea, he went up [to Jerusalem], and after greeting the Church, he went down to Antioch.

And having stayed there for some time, he departed, and immediately crossed the region of Galatia and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples.

But there came to Ephesus a Jew named Apollos, an Alexandrian by birth, an eloquent man, and learned in the Scriptures;

He was in some way instructed in the way of the Lord; and as he had great zeal, he explained and taught very accurately the things which concern the Lord, although he knew only the Baptism of John.

So he began to speak boldly in the Synagogue; and when Priscilla and Aquile heard him, they took him with them and explained to him more specifically the way of God.

And when he wanted to go to Achaia, the brothers who had urged him to do so wrote to the disciples to receive him, and when he arrived there, he greatly benefited those who had believed by grace.

For he publicly convinced the Jews with great vehemence, demonstrating from the Scriptures that Jesus was the Christ.

Now it happened, while Apollos was in Corinth, that Paul, having passed through all the upper districts, came to Ephesus, where, having found some disciples, he said to them:

Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed? And they answered him, "We have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit."

And he said to them, "Into what [Baptism] were you baptized?" They answered, "Into the Baptism of John."

Then Paul said: it is true that John baptized with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was coming after him, that is, in Jesus Christ.

And having heard these things, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

And after Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and so they spoke in various tongues and prophesied.

And all these men were about twelve.

Then, having entered the Synagogue, he spoke boldly for three months, disputing and persuading about the things of the Kingdom of God.

But when some hardened their hearts and rebelled, speaking evil of the way [of the Lord] before the multitude, he withdrew from them and separated the disciples; and he disputed daily in the school of a man named Tyrannus.

And this continued for two years; so that all who remained in Asia, both Jews and Greeks, heard the word of the Lord Jesus.

And God was doing extraordinary wonders through Paul:

So that even handkerchiefs and cloths were carried over the sick from their own bodies, and they were cured of their illnesses, and the evil spirits came out of the [possessed].

Then some of the Jewish exorcists, who were running around, tried to invoke the Name of the Lord Jesus over those who were possessed by evil spirits, saying: we adjure you by this Jesus whom Paul preaches.

And those who did this were seven sons of Sceva the Jew, the chief priest.

But the evil spirit answered, "I know Jesus, and I know who Paul is; but who are you?"

And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped upon them, and having gained control of them, treated them so badly that they fled from that house naked and wounded.

This became known to all the Jews and Greeks living in Ephesus, and they were all filled with awe, and the name of the Lord Jesus was glorified.

And many of those who had believed came, confessing and declaring what they had done.

Several of those who had engaged in curious practices brought their books and burned them in front of everyone; when their value was calculated, it was found to amount to fifty thousand pieces of silver.

Thus the word of the Lord spread noticeably and produced great effects.

Now after these things were done, Paul resolved by [a movement] of the Spirit to go through Macedonia and Achaia, and to Jerusalem, saying, after I have been there I must see Rome also.

And having sent two of those who assisted him, namely Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, he remained for some time in Asia.

But at that time a great disturbance arose because of the doctrine.

For a certain man, named Demetrius, who worked in silversmithing, and made small silver temples of Diana, and who brought much profit to the craftsmen,

He gathered them together, along with others who were working on similar projects, and said to them: O men! You know that all our gain comes from this work.

But you see and hear how not only in Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul has, by his persuasion, turned many people away, saying that those who are made by hand are not gods.

And there is not only a danger for us that our profession will come to be disparaged, but also that the Temple of the great goddess Diana will no longer be esteemed, and that it will happen that her majesty, which all of Asia and the universal world reveres, will be annihilated.

And when they heard these things, they were all filled with anger, and cried out, saying: Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!

And the whole city was filled with confusion; and they rushed into the Theatre, and seized Gaius and Aristarchus of Macedonia, Paul's traveling companions.

And when Paul wanted to go out to the people, the disciples did not allow him to.

Some of the Asiarchs, who were his friends, also sent word to him, begging him not to appear at the Theatre.

Some shouted one way, and others another, for the assembly was confused, and many did not even know why they had been assembled.

Then Alexander was forced to come out of the crowd, the Jews pushing him [to speak]; and Alexander, waving his hand, wanted to offer some excuse to the people.

But when they learned that he was a Jew, a voice arose from all of them, for almost two hours, shouting: Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!

But the City Secretary, having calmed this multitude [of people], said: Men of Ephesians, and who is there among men who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is dedicated to the service of the great goddess Diana, and to [her] image, descended from Jupiter?

Since these things are such without contradiction, you must calm down and not do anything imprudently.

For these people whom you have brought are neither sacrilegious nor blasphemers of your goddess.
But if Demetrius and the workers who are with him have something to say against someone, the court is held, and there are Proconsuls; let them call each other there.

And if you have anything else to ask, that can be decided in a duly convened assembly.

For we are in danger of being accused of sedition for what happened today; since there is no cause we can cite to justify this riot. And when he had said these things, he dismissed the assembly.

After the disturbance had ceased, Paul called the disciples to him, and having embraced them, he left for Macedonia.

And when he had passed through those parts, and had given many exhortations there, he came to Greece.

And after staying there for three months, the Jews having set traps for him in case he went to embark for Syria, it was decided to return via Macedonia.

And Sopater Berean was to accompany him as far as Asia; and from among the Thessalonians Aristarchus and Second, with Gaius Derbrianus, and Timothy; and from those of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

So they went ahead and waited for us at Troas.

And we, having set sail from Philippi, after the days of unleavened bread, arrived at Troas after five days among them, and stayed there seven days.

And on the first week, when the disciples were gathered together to break bread, Paul, who was to leave the next day, gave them a speech, which he extended until midnight.

But there were many lamps in the upper room where they were assembled.

And a young man named Eutychus, who was sitting on a window, having fallen into a deep sleep during Paul's long discourse, was overcome by sleep and fell down from the third story, and was found dead.

But Paul came down, bent over him, and kissed him, and said: Do not be troubled, for his soul is in him.

And after he had gone up, and had broken the bread, and eaten, and had spoken for a long time until the dawn of day, he departed.

And they brought the young man there alive, which greatly comforted them.

Having entered the ship, we were taken to Assos, where we were to pick up Paul: for he had so ordered, having resolved to make that journey on foot.

And when he had joined us at Assos, we took him with us, and we went to Mytilene.

Then, having left there, the next day we landed opposite Chios; the following day we arrived at Samos; and having stopped at Trogyte, we came the next day to Miletus.

For Paul had intended to pass beyond Ephesus, so as not to stay in Asia; because he was eager to be in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, if possible.

So he sent from Miletus to Ephesus to bring the elders of the church;

When they came to him, he said to them: You know how I have always conducted myself with you from the first day I entered Asia;

Serving the Lord with all humility, and with many tears, and through many trials, which came to me through the plots of the Jews.

And how I spared myself nothing that was beneficial to you, having preached to you, and having taught publicly, and from house to house.

Urging the Jews and Greeks to convert to God, and to believe in Jesus Christ our Lord.

And now, behold, being bound by the Spirit, I am going to Jerusalem, not knowing what will happen to me there;

Otherwise, the Holy Spirit warns me from city to city, saying that bonds and tribulations await me.

But I consider nothing of value, and my life is not precious to me, if only I may joyfully finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God.

And now, behold, I know that none of you among whom I have gone about preaching the Kingdom of God will see me again.

That is why I call upon you today as witnesses that I am clean of everyone's blood.

For I have not spared myself from declaring to you the whole counsel of God.

Therefore, take heed to yourselves and to all the flock over which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God, which he purchased with his own blood.

For I know that after my departure very dangerous wolves will enter among you, who will not spare the flock.

And that men will arise from among yourselves, speaking corrupt doctrines in order to attract disciples after them.

Therefore, be vigilant, remembering that for three years I have not ceased night and day to warn each and every one of you.

And now, my brothers, I commend you to God and to the word of his grace, which is able to complete you and to give you the inheritance among all the saints.

I have not coveted anyone's silver, gold, or robe.

And you yourselves know that these hands supplied me with the things that were needed, and those who were with me.

I have shown you in all things that in working like this we must bear with the infirm, and remember the words of the Lord Jesus, who said that it is happier to be able to give than to be called upon to receive.

And when [Paul] had said these words, he knelt down and prayed with them all.

Then they all burst into tears, and throwing themselves on Paul's neck, they kissed him;

Being sad mainly because of the word he had spoken to them, that they would never see him again, they led him to the ship.

So, having left them and gone away from them, we sailed straight to Coos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara.

And having found a ship there that was crossing to Phoenicia, we boarded it and set sail.

Then, having discovered Cyprus, we left it to our left, and heading towards Syria, we arrived at Tyre: for the ship had to leave its cargo there.

And having found disciples there, we stayed there seven days. Now they were telling Paul through the Spirit not to go up to Jerusalem.

But when those days had passed, we departed and set out on our journey, being led by all with their wives and children, until we were outside the city, and having knelt on the ground on the shore, we offered prayer.

And after we had kissed each other, we boarded the ship, and the others returned home.

And thus completing our voyage, we came from Tyre to Ptolemais; and after greeting the brothers, we stayed with them for a day.

And the next day Paul and his company left there, and we came to Caesarea; and having entered the house of Philip the Evangelist, who was one of the seven, we stayed with him.

But he had four virgin daughters who prophesied.

And as we were there several days, a prophet named Agabus arrived from Judea;

When he came to see us, he took Paul's belt and tied his hands and feet together with it, saying: "The Holy Spirit says this: The Jews will bind the owner of this belt in Jerusalem and hand him over to the Gentiles."

When we and those who were from the place heard these things, we begged him not to go up to Jerusalem.

But Paul replied: What are you doing, weeping and afflicting my heart? For my part, I am ready not only to be bound, but also to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.

So, because he could not be persuaded, we remained silent on the matter, saying: the Lord's will be done!

A few days later, having loaded our belongings, we went up to Jerusalem.

And some of the disciples also came with us from Caesarea, bringing with them a man [called] Mnason, Cyprian, who was a former disciple, with whom we were to stay.

And when we arrived in Jerusalem, the brothers received us with joy.

And the next day, Paul came with us to James's house, and all the elders came there.

And after he had embraced them, he recounted in detail the things that God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry.

Having heard this, they glorified the Lord, and said to [Paul]: Brother, you see how many thousands of Jews have believed; and they are all zealous for the Law.

Now they have heard from you that you teach all the Jews who are among the Gentiles to renounce Moses, telling them that they must not circumcise their children, nor live according to the ordinances [of the Law].

So what must be done? The multitude [of the Faithful] must be gathered together, for they will hear that you have arrived.

Do what we tell you: we have four men who have made a vow;

Take them with you, and purify yourself with them, and contribute with them, so that they may shave their heads, and that all may know that there is nothing of the things which they have heard about you, but that you also continue to keep the Law.

But as for those among the Gentiles who have believed, We have written concerning them, having commanded that they observe nothing of the sort, but only that they abstain from that which is sacrificed to idols, from blood, from strangled animals, and from fornication.

Paul therefore took these men with him, and the next day purified himself with them, and entered the Temple, declaring on what day their purification should be completed, [and continuing in this way] until the offering was presented for each of them.

And when the seven days were completed, some Jews from Asia, seeing Paul in the Temple, stirred up all the people and laid hands on him, Shouting: Men of Israel, help us! Here is this man who everywhere teaches everyone against the people, against the Law, and against this Place; and who also brought Greeks into the Temple, and profaned this holy Place.

For before this they had seen Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the city, and they believed that Paul had brought him into the Temple.

And the whole city was stirred, and the people rushed there; and having seized Paul, they dragged him out of the Temple; and the gates were immediately shut.

But as they were trying to kill him, word reached the captain of the company [of the garrison] that all Jerusalem was in turmoil;

And immediately he took soldiers and centurions, and ran towards them; but when they saw the captain and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul.

And the captain approached, seized him, and ordered that he be bound with two chains; then he asked who he was, and what he had done.

But some were shouting one way, and others another, in the crowd; and because he could not learn anything for certain because of the noise, he commanded that [Paul] be taken into the fortress.

And when he came to the steps, it happened that he was carried by the soldiers, because of the violence of the crowd;

For the multitude of the people followed him, shouting: kill him.

And as they were about to bring Paul into the fortress, he said to the captain: May I say something to you? And [the captain] asked him: Do you know how to speak Greek?

Are you not the Egyptian who in recent days stirred up a sedition and led four thousand brigands into the desert?

And Paul said to him: indeed I am a Jew, a citizen, a native of Tarsus, a renowned city of Cilicia; but I beg you, allow me to speak to the people.

And when he had given him permission, Paul, standing on the steps, motioned with his hand to the people, and after a great silence had fallen, he spoke to them in the Hebrew language, saying:

Men, brothers and fathers, listen now to my defense.

And when they heard him speaking to them in the Hebrew language, they became even more silent; and he said:

Indeed, I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, having been strictly instructed in the Law of our fathers, and being zealous [for the Law] of God, as you all are today;

[And] I persecuted this doctrine to the point of death, binding and putting into prisons both men and women;

As the high priest himself and the whole assembly of the elders are witnesses to me; from whom also, having received letters [addressed] to the brothers, I went to Damascus, in order to bring bound to Jerusalem those who were there, to punish them.

Now it happened as I was walking, and as I approached Damascus, about to the south, that all at once a great light from heaven flashed like lightning around me.

And I fell in the square; and I heard a voice saying to me, "Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?"

And I answered: who are you, Lord? And he said to me: I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom you are persecuting.

Those who were with me saw the light and were terrified, but they did not hear the voice of the one who was speaking to me.

And I said, Lord, what shall I do? And the Lord said to me, "Get up and go to Damascus, and there you will be told everything you must do."

But because I could see nothing, because of the splendor of that light, those who were with me led me by the hand, and I came to Damascus.

And a man [named] Ananias, who feared God according to the Law, and who had a good testimony from all the Jews who lived there, came to me.

And being near me, he said to me, Saul [my] brother, receive your sight: and at that very moment I turned my eyes toward him, [and I saw him].

And he said to me: the God of our fathers has appointed you to know his will, to see the Righteous One, and to hear the voice of his mouth.

For you will be a witness to him before all men of the things that you have seen and heard.

And now what are you waiting for? Get up, and be baptized and cleansed of your sins, calling on the Name of the Lord.

Now it happened that after I had returned to Jerusalem, as I was praying in the Temple, I was rapt in ecstasy;

And I saw the [Lord] who said to me: Hurry, and depart quickly from Jerusalem: for they will not accept the testimony that you will give them about me.

And I said, "Lord! They themselves know that I imprisoned and flogged in the synagogues those who believed in you."

And when the blood of Stephen your martyr was shed, I was also present, I consented to his death, and I guarded the clothes of those who put him to death.

But he said to me, "Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles."

And they listened to him until that word; but then they raised their voices, saying: remove such a man from the earth, for it is not fitting that he should live.

And as they shouted aloud, and shook out their clothes, and threw dust into the air,

The Tribune ordered that he be taken into the fortress, and he ordered that he be examined by whipping, in order to find out why they were shouting against him in this way.

And when they had bound him with straps, Paul said to the centurion who was near him,

"Is it lawful for you to flog a Roman citizen who is not even condemned?"

Having heard this, the centurion went to the Tribune to warn him, saying: look at what you have to do: for this man is a Roman.

And the Tribune came to Paul and said to him, "Tell me, are you a Roman?" And he answered, "Yes, certainly."

And the Tribune said to him: I acquired this citizenship at a great price of money; and Paul said: but I have it by birth.

That is why those who were to examine him withdrew immediately from him; and when the Tribune learned that he was a citizen of Rome, he was afraid, because he had him bound.

And the next day, wanting to know for certain what reason he was accused of by the Jews, he had him released, and having commanded that the chief priests and the whole council assemble, he brought Paul in, and presented him before them.

And Paul, looking intently at the Council, said: Men brothers, I have conducted myself in all good conscience before God to this day.

Then the high priest Ananias commanded those who were near him to strike him on the face.

Then Paul said to him, "God will strike you, whitewashed wall; for you sit to judge me according to the Law, yet you command, in violation of the Law, that I be struck."

And those who were present said to him: "Do you insult the high priest of God?"

And Paul said: [My] brothers, I did not know that he was high priest: for it is written: you shall not speak ill of the prince of your people.

And Paul, knowing that some of them were Sadducees and others Pharisees, cried out in the council: "Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of a Pharisee, charged with the hope of the resurrection of the dead."

And when he had said this, a dissension arose between the Pharisees and the Sadducees; and the assembly was divided.

For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, nor angel, nor spirit, but the Pharisees maintain both.

And there was a great cry. Then the scribes of the party of the Pharisees stood up and argued, saying: We find no fault in this man; but if a spirit or an angel has spoken to him, let us not fight against God.

And when a great division arose, the Tribune, fearing that Paul would be torn to pieces by them, commanded that the soldiers go down, and take him away from among them, and bring him into the fortress.

And the following night the Lord appeared to him and said, "Paul, take courage: for as you have testified about me in Jerusalem, so you must also testify about me in Rome."

And when the day came, some Jews conspired and took an oath with execration, saying that they would neither eat nor drink until they had killed Paul.

And there were more than forty of them who had made this conspiracy.

And they addressed themselves to the chief priests and elders, and said to them, "We have made a vow, with an abhorrent oath, that we will not taste anything until we have killed Paul."

You therefore now inform the Tribune by the advice of the Council, that he should bring him to you tomorrow, as if you wished to know something more precisely about him, and we shall all be ready to kill him before he approaches.

But when Paul's sister's son heard about this conspiracy, he came and entered the stronghold and reported it to Paul.

And Paul called one of the centurions and said to him, "Take this young man to the Tribune, for he has something to report to him."

So he took him and brought him to the Tribune, and said to him: Paul, who is in prison, called me and begged me to bring you this young man who has something to tell you.

And the Tribune, taking him by the hand, withdrew to a side, and asked him: what do you have to tell me?

And he said to him: the Jews have conspired to ask you to send Paul to the Council tomorrow, as if they wanted to inquire of him more precisely about something.

But do not consent: for more than forty of them are lying in wait for him, who have taken a vow with an oath of abhorrence, not to eat or drink until they have killed him; and they are now all ready, waiting for what you will allow them.

The Tribune therefore sent the young man away, ordering him not to tell anyone that he had said these things to him.

Then, having summoned two centurions, he told them: have ready at three o'clock in the night two hundred soldiers, and seventy horsemen, and two hundred archers, to go to Caesarea.

And make sure that there are mounts ready, so that having put Paul on, they can safely take him to Governor Felix.

And he wrote her a letter in these terms:

Claude Lysias to the very excellent Governor Félix, Greetings.

As this man, who had been seized by the Jews, was about to be killed by them, I came with the garrison and took him away from them, after learning that he was a Roman citizen.

And wanting to know what they were accusing him of, I took him to their Council.

Where I found that he was accused concerning matters of their Law, having committed no crime worthy of death, or imprisonment.

And having been warned of the plots the Jews had set against him, I sent him to you without delay; having also commanded the accusers to tell you what they have against him. May you be well.

So the soldiers, as they were instructed, took Paul and brought him by night to Antipatris.

And the next day they returned to the fortress, leaving Paul in the care of the horsemen;

When they arrived in Caesarea, they returned the letter to the Governor and also presented Paul to him.

And when the Governor had read the letter, and had asked Paul which province he was from, having heard that he was from Cilicia:

"I will hear you more fully," he told him, "when your accusers have also arrived."

And he ordered that he be kept in Herod's palace.

Now five days after Ananias the high priest came down with the elders, and a certain orator, [named] Tertullus, who appeared before the governor against Paul.

And when Paul was summoned, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying:

Most excellent Felix, we know in all things and with all kinds of thanks, that we have obtained great tranquility through you, and through the good regulations that you have made for this people, according to your prudence.

But so that you do not have to stop for long, I ask you to listen to us, according to your fairness, [in what we are going to tell you] in a few words.

We have found that this is a very dangerous man, who stirs up sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and who is the leader of the sect of the Nazarenes.

He even attempted to desecrate the Temple; and we seized him, and wanted to judge him according to our Law.

But when Tribune Lysias arrived, he violently snatched it from our hands.

Commander, let his accusers come to you; and you yourself will be able to find out from him, by questioning him, all these things of which we accuse him.

The Jews agreed to this and said that things were as they were.

And after the Governor had signaled to Paul to speak, he replied: Knowing that for many years now you have been the Judge of this nation, I answer for myself with all more courage.

Since you can know that it has not been more than twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem to worship [God].

But they did not find me in the Temple disputing with anyone, nor gathering in a crowd, either in the Synagogues or in the city.

And they cannot substantiate the things they are currently accusing me of.

But I confess to you this point, that according to the way they call sect, I thus serve the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the Law and in the Prophets.

And having hope in God, that the resurrection of the dead, both of the righteous and of the unrighteous, which the latter also await, will come.

That is why I also strive to always have a clear conscience before God and before men.

But after several years, I came to give alms and offerings in my nation.

And while I was occupied with this, they found me purified in the Temple, without a crowd or commotion.

And [they were] some Jews from Asia,

Those who should have appeared before you and accused me, if they had anything against me.

Or let them themselves say, if they found any injustice in me, when I was presented to the Council;

Otherwise, this one word that I spoke aloud before them: today I am being called to account by you for the resurrection of the dead.

And Felix, having heard these things, put it off until another time, saying: after I have known more exactly what this sect is about, when Tribune Lysias has come down, I will know your affairs entirely.

And he commanded a centurion that Paul be kept under guard, but that he also have some respite, and that none of his people be prevented from serving him, or from coming to him.

A few days later, Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, and sent for Paul, and heard him speak about the faith that is in Christ.

And as he spoke of justice, and temperance, and of the judgment to come, Felix, quite frightened, replied: for the present, go away, and when I have the opportunity, I will call you back;

Hoping at the same time that Paul would give him some money to free him, he often sent for him and spoke with him.

But after two years had passed, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus, who, wanting to please the Jews, left Paul in prison.

Festus, having arrived in the Province, went up three days later from Caesarea to Jerusalem.

And the high priest and the leaders of the Jews appeared before him against Paul, and they prayed [Festus];

And they asked him for this favor against Paul, that he bring him to Jerusalem; for they had set ambushes to kill him on the way.

But Festus replied that Paul was well guarded in Caesarea, where he himself was soon to return.

Therefore, he said, let those of you who can go down with me; and if there is any crime in this man, let them accuse him.

And having not remained among them more than ten days, he went down to Caesarea; and the next day he sat in the judicial seat, and commanded that Paul be brought in.

And when he came there, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem surrounded him, accusing him of many serious crimes, which they could not prove.

Paul replied that he had sinned in no way, neither against the Law of the Jews, nor against the Temple, nor against Caesar.

But Festus, wanting to please the Jews, answered Paul, and said, "Do you want to go up to Jerusalem, and be judged there before me for these things?"

And Paul said: I stand before Caesar's judicial seat, where I must be judged: I have done no wrong to the Jews, as you yourself very well know.

If I have wronged them, or done anything deserving of death, I do not refuse to die; but if there is nothing of what they accuse me of, no one can hand me over to them: I appeal to Caesar.

Then Festus, having conferred with the Council, replied: "Have you appealed to Caesar? You will go to Caesar."

A few days later, King Agrippa and Berenice arrived in Caesarea to greet Festus.

And after staying there for several days, Festus mentioned to the King the matter of Paul, saying: a certain man has been left prisoner by Felix.

On the matter of which, while I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and elders of the Jews appeared, seeking his condemnation;

But I replied to them that it is not the custom of the Romans to hand someone over to death before the accused has his accusers present and has had a chance to defend himself against the crime.

So when they had come here, without my using any delay, the next day, sitting in the judicial seat, I commanded that this man be brought in;

And since his accusers were present, they did not allege any of the crimes I thought [they would accuse him of].

But they had some disputes with him concerning their superstitions, and concerning a certain dead Jesus, whom Paul claimed was alive.

But since I was very perplexed as to what it was, I asked [this man] if he would go to Jerusalem and be judged there for these things.

But because he appealed, asking to be kept for the knowledge of Augustus, I ordered that it be kept until I sent it to Caesar.

Then Agrippa said to Festus: I would also like to hear this man. Tomorrow, he said, you will hear him.

The next day, Agrippa and Berenice arrived with great pomp, and entered the Audience Chamber with the Tribunes and the leading men of the city, and Paul was brought in by order of Festus.

And Festus said: King Agrippa, and all of you who are here with us, you see this man against whom the whole multitude of Jews has come to plead with me, both in Jerusalem and here, crying out that he should no longer be allowed to live.

But I, having found that he had done nothing worthy of death, and he himself having appealed to Augustus, resolved to send him [to him].

But because I have nothing certain to write to the Emperor about it, I have presented it to you, and especially to you, King Agrippa, so that after examining it, I may have something to write about.

Because it seems to me that it is not reasonable to send a prisoner without stating the facts of which he is accused.

And Agrippa said to Paul, "You are permitted to speak for yourself." Then Paul stretched out his hand and spoke thus in his defense.

King Agrippa! I consider myself fortunate that I must answer before you today for all the things of which I am accused by the Jews.

And especially because I know that you have a complete knowledge of all the customs and issues that are among the Jews: that is why I ask you to listen to me patiently.

As for the way I lived from my youth, as it was from the beginning among my nation in Jerusalem, all the Jews know what it was.

For they have known for a long time, if they wish to bear witness, that from my ancestors I lived as a Pharisee, according to the most accurate sect of our Religion.

And now I stand in judgment for the hope of the promise that God made to our fathers;

To which our twelve Tribes, who serve God continually night and day, hope to attain; and it is for this hope, O King Agrippa! that I am accused by the Jews.

What, do you consider it an incredible thing that God raises the dead?

It is true that for me, I believed that I had to make great efforts against the Name of Jesus the Nazarene.

This is what I also did in Jerusalem, for I took many of the saints prisoner, after receiving authority from the chief priests, and when they were put to death I gave my vote.

And often by all the Synagogues, by punishing them, I forced them to blaspheme, and being carried away with fury against them, I persecuted them even in foreign cities.

And being occupied with this, as I was also going to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests,

I saw, O King! as I walked along the road at midday, a light from heaven, greater than the brightness of the sun, which shone around me and around those who were walking with me.

And when they all fell to the ground, I heard a voice speaking to me, saying in the Hebrew language: Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It is hard for you to kick against the goads.

So I said, "Who are you, Lord?" and he answered, "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting."

But get up and stand on your feet: for I have appeared to you for this purpose, to appoint you as a minister and a witness of both the things which you have seen and of those in which I will appear to you;

By delivering you from the people and the Gentiles, to whom I am now sending you, To open their eyes so that they may be converted from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to God; and that they may receive forgiveness of their sins, and a place with those who are sanctified by the faith they have in me.

Thus, O King Agrippa! I have not been rebellious to the heavenly vision.

But I first preached to those in Damascus, then to those in Jerusalem, and throughout all the land of Judea, and to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, doing works appropriate to repentance.

That is why the Jews who took me into the Temple tried to kill me;

But having been rescued by God's help, I am alive to this day, bearing witness to small and great alike, and saying nothing except what the Prophets and Moses foretold would come to pass.

[Knowing], that Christ had to suffer, and that he was the first of the resurrected to bring light to the people and to the Gentiles.

And as he spoke thus in his defense, Festus said aloud: you are out of your mind, Paul! your great knowledge in letters puts you out of your mind.

And Paul said: I am not out of my mind, most excellent Festus; but I speak words of truth and sound judgment.

For the King is aware of these things; and I speak boldly before him, because I believe that he is not ignorant of these things: for this was not done in secret.

O King Agrippa! Do you believe in the Prophets? I know that you do.

And Agrippa replied to Paul: you almost persuade me to be a Christian.

And Paul said to him: I would wish before God that not only you, but also all who are listening to me today, might become not only almost, but perfectly, like me, apart from these chains.

After Paul had said these things, the King stood up, along with the Governor and Bernice, and those who were sitting with them.

And when they had withdrawn to a private place, they conferred among themselves, and they said: this man has committed nothing deserving of death or imprisonment.

And Agrippa said to Festus: this man could have been released if he had not appealed to Caesar.

But after it had been decided that we would sail to Italy, they handed Paul and some other prisoners over to a man named Julius, a centurion of a cohort [of the Legion] called Augustus.

And having boarded a ship of Adramite, we set out to sail towards the quarters of Asia, and Aristarchus Macedonian [of the city] of Thessalonica, was with us.

The following day we arrived in Sidon; and Julius, treating Paul humanely, allowed him to go to his friends, so that they would take care of him.

Then, having left that place, we held our course below Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

And after crossing the sea opposite Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, [city] of Lycia,

Where the centurion found a ship from Alexandria going to Italy, on which he put us aboard.

And as we sailed heavily for several days, so that with great difficulty we could come into sight of Guide, because the wind was not pushing us, we passed below Crete, towards Salmone.

And walking alongside it with difficulty, we came to a place which is called Beaux-ports, near which was the town of Lasée.

And because much time had passed, and the voyage was already perilous, since even the fast was over, Paul exhorted them,

When I told them: men, I see that the voyage will be perilous and that we will be exposed not only to the loss of the ship's cargo, but even to the loss of our own lives.

But the centurion believed the Pilot, and the master of the ship, more than what Paul said.

And because the port was not suitable for spending the winter, most were of the opinion that they should leave there, to try to land at Phoenix, which is a port of Crete, situated against the wind from Africa and the northern west, in order to spend the winter there.

And as the south wind began to blow gently, they thought they had achieved their goal, and having set off, they sailed closer to Crete.

But a little while later a stormy wind [from the northeast], which is called Euroclydon, arose on the side of the island.

And the ship being carried away by the wind, in such a way that it could not resist, we were carried away, having abandoned [the ship to the wind].

And having passed under a small island, called Claudia, we were only with great difficulty able to gain control of the skiff;

But having pulled her towards us, the [sailors] sought every possible remedy, tying the ship underneath; and as they feared falling on sandbanks, they lowered the sails, and they were carried in this manner.

But because we were in the midst of a great storm, the next day they threw the goods into the sea.

Then on the third day we threw the ship's rigging with our own hands.

And as for several days neither sun nor stars appeared to us, and a great storm violently shook us, all hope of being able to save ourselves in the future was taken from us.

But after they had gone a long time without eating, Paul stood among them and said, "Men, you should have believed me and not left Crete, in order to avoid this storm and this loss."

But now I urge you to be courageous: for none of you will lose your life, but only the ship will perish.

For on this very night an angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I serve appeared to me,

[He] said to me, "Paul, do not be afraid; you must be presented to Caesar. And behold, God has given you all those who sail with you."

Therefore, O men! take courage, for I have this confidence in God that it will happen as it has been told me.

But we must be cast upon some island.

When the fourteenth night came, as we were being carried here and there on the Adriatic Sea, the sailors had an opinion about midnight that they were approaching some country.

And having cast the sounding line, they found twenty fathoms; then having passed a little further, and having cast the sounding line again, they found fifteen fathoms.

But fearing to run aground on some reef, they dropped four anchors from the stern, hoping that day would come.

And as the sailors sought to flee the ship, having lowered the skiff into the sea, under the pretext of carrying the anchors far out to sea towards the bow, Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers: unless these men remain in the ship, you cannot save yourselves.

Then the soldiers cut the ropes of the skiff and let it fall.

And until day came, Paul urged them all to eat something, saying to them: this is the fourteenth day that you have remained fasting, and have taken nothing;

I therefore urge you to take some food, since this is necessary for your preservation: for not a hair will fall from the head of any of you.

And when he had said these things, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in the presence of all, and having broken it, he began to eat.

Then, having all taken courage, they also began to eat.

But there were two hundred and seventy-six people in total on the ship.

And when they had eaten until they were satisfied, they lightened the ship by throwing the wheat into the sea.

And when day came they did not recognize the land; but they saw a gulf with a shore, and they resolved to run the ship aground there, if it were possible for them.

Therefore, having removed the anchors, they abandoned the ship to the sea, releasing at the same time the fastenings of the rudders; and having set the mizzen sail, they pulled towards the shore.

But having fallen into a place where two currents met, they struck the ship there, and the bow having sunk into it remained firm, but the stern broke by the violence of the waves.

So the soldiers' advice was to kill the prisoners, for fear that someone who had escaped by swimming might flee.

But the centurion, wanting to save Paul, prevented them from carrying out this advice, and he commanded that those who could swim should jump out first and save themselves on land;

And the rest, some on planks, and others on some [pieces] of the ship; and so it came to pass that all were saved on land.

Having thus escaped, they then recognized that the island was called Malta.

And the Barbarians showed us singular humanity, for they lit a great fire, and received us all, because of the rain that pressed upon us, and because of the cold.

And Paul, having gathered some branches, as he put them on the fire, a viper came out because of the heat, and seized his hand.

And when the Barbarians saw this beast hanging from his hand, they said to one another: surely this man is a murderer; since after escaping from the sea, vengeance does not allow him to live.

But Paul shook the beast off in the fire and suffered no harm;

Instead of expecting him to swell up or suddenly fall dead, when they had waited a long time and seen that no harm came to him, they changed their tune and said he was a god.

Now in that place were the possessions of the principal of the island, named Publius, who received us and lodged us for three days with great kindness.

And it happened that Publius' father was in bed sick with fever and dysentery, and Paul went to see him, prayed, laid his hands on him, and healed him.

When this happened, all the other sick people on the island came to him, and they were healed.

They also paid us great honors, and upon our departure provided us with what we needed.

Three months later we set sail on a ship from Alexandria which had wintered on the island, and which had as its ensign Castor and Pollux.

And having arrived in Syracuse, we stayed there for three days.

From there, sailing along the coast, we arrived at Rhege; and one day later, the south wind having risen, we came on the second day to Pozzuoli;

Where we found some brothers, we were asked to stay with them for seven days; and then we arrived in Rome.

And when the brothers who were there received news of us, they came to meet us as far as the Market of Appius and the Three Shops; and Paul, seeing them, gave thanks to God and took courage.

And when we arrived in Rome, the centurion handed the prisoners over to the Praetorian Prefect; but as for Paul, he was allowed to remain apart with a soldier who guarded him.

Now three days later, Paul summoned the Jewish leaders; and when they came, he said to them, "Brothers, although I have done nothing against the people or against the customs of the Fathers, nevertheless I was arrested in Jerusalem and handed over to the Romans,

Those who, after examining me, wanted to release me, because there was no crime in me worthy of death.

But the Jews opposed it, so I was forced to appeal to Caesar; though I had no intention of accusing my own nation.

This, then, is the reason why I have called you, to see you and to speak with you; for it is for the hope of Israel that I am entrusted with this chain.

But they answered him: we have received no letters from Judea that mention you; nor has any of the brothers come who has reported or spoken ill of you.

However, we would gladly hear from you what your opinion is; for as for this sect, it is known to us that it is contradicted everywhere.

And after he had assigned him a day, many came to him at his lodging, to whom he explained by many testimonies the Kingdom of God, and from morning until evening he led them to believe concerning Jesus, both by the Law of Moses and by the Prophets. Some were persuaded by what he said, while others did not believe it.

Therefore, disagreeing among themselves, they withdrew after Paul had said to them, "The Holy Spirit spoke indeed to our ancestors through Isaiah the Prophet."

Saying: Go to this people, and tell them: You will listen with your ears, but you will not hear; and you will see, but you will not perceive.

For the heart of this people is fattened; and they have heard hard with their ears, and closed their eyes; lest they should see with their eyes, hear with their ears, understand with their heart, and turn, and I should heal them.

Therefore, know that this salvation of God is sent to the Gentiles, and they will hear it.

When he had said these things, the Jews withdrew from him, and there was much dispute among them.

But Paul remained for two whole years in a house he had rented for himself, where he received all those who came to see him,

Preaching the Kingdom of God, and teaching about the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness of speech, [and] without any hindrance.

Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called [to be] an Apostle, set apart for [proclaiming] the Gospel of God.

Which he had previously promised through his Prophets in the holy Scriptures;

Concerning his Son, who was born of the family of David, according to the flesh;

And who was fully declared to be the Son of God in power, according to the spirit of sanctification by his resurrection from the dead, that is, our Lord Jesus Christ, Through whom we received grace and the commission of Apostle, to bring all the Gentiles to believe in his Name.

Among them you also are, you who are called by Jesus Christ.

To all of you in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints: Grace and peace to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

First, I give thanks to my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because your faith is being reported everywhere.

For God, whom I serve in my spirit in the gospel of his Son, is my witness that I constantly remember you;

I continually ask in my prayers that I may finally find, by the will of God, some favorable way to come to you.

For I earnestly desire to see you, to impart to you some spiritual gift, so that you may be strengthened.

That is, so that, being among you, I may be comforted with you by the faith that we have in common.

Now, my brothers, I do not want you to be unaware that I have often intended to come to you, in order to have some fruit both among you and among the other nations; but I have been prevented from doing so until now.

I am indebted to both the Greeks and the Barbarians, to both the wise and the ignorant.

Therefore, since I am in him, I am ready to proclaim the Gospel also to you who are in Rome.

For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, because it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes: first to the Jew, then also to the Greek.

For the righteousness of God is revealed in him [fully] from faith to faith; as it is written: "The righteous shall live by faith."

For the wrath of God is revealed [fully] from Heaven upon all the impiety and injustice of men who unjustly hold the truth captive.

Because what can be known about God is manifested in them; for God has manifested it to them.

For the invisible things of God, namely, his eternal power and divine nature, are clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that they are without excuse.

Because although they knew God, they did not glorify him as God, nor did they give thanks, but their words became futile, and their hearts, deprived of understanding, were filled with darkness.

Claiming to be wise, they have become mad.

And they exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God for the likeness of the image of corruptible man, and of birds, and of four-footed beasts, and of reptiles.

That is why God also gave them over to the lusts of their own hearts, so that they gave themselves over to impurity, dishonoring their own bodies among themselves:

They have changed the truth of God into falsehood, and have worshiped and served the creature, abandoning the Creator, who is blessed forever: Amen.

That is why God gave them over to their shameful affections; for even the women among them exchanged natural relations for those which are contrary to nature.

And yet men, leaving the natural use of women, were inflamed in their lust for one another, committing infamous things man with man, and receiving in themselves the reward for their error, as was due.

For since they did not think it worthwhile to retain the knowledge of God, God also gave them over to a depraved mind, to do things which are not fitting.

Being filled with all injustice, impurity, wickedness, avarice, malignancy, full of envy, murder, quarreling, fraud, and bad morals.

Slanderers, gossips, God-haters, outrageous, proud, vain, inventors of evils, disobedient to fathers and mothers.

Without understanding, not keeping what they have promised, without natural affection, people who never repent, without mercy.
And who, although they knew God's right, [namely], that those who commit such things deserve death, not only do they commit them, but they also favor those who commit them.

Therefore, O man! whoever you are who judges [others], you have no excuse; for in that you judge others, you condemn yourself, since you who judge do the same things.

But we know that God's judgment on those who do such things is according to truth. And do you think, O man! You who judge those who commit such things, and who commit them, that you should escape the judgment of God?
Or do you despise the riches of his gentleness, and of his patience, and of his long waiting; not knowing that the goodness of God invites you to repentance.
But because of your stubbornness and your unrepentant heart, you are storing up wrath against yourself for the day of wrath, when God's righteous judgment will be revealed.

Who will repay each person according to their deeds;
[Knowing] eternal life to those who persevere in doing good, seeking glory, honor, and immortality.
But there will be indignation and anger against those who are contentious, who rebel against the truth, and obey injustice.
There will be tribulation and anguish on every human soul that does evil, first on the Jew, then also on the Greek;
But glory, honor, and peace to everyone who does good; to the Jew first, then also to the Greek.

Because God does not regard people's appearance.
For all who have sinned without the law will also perish without the law, and all who have sinned under the law will be judged by the law.
(Because it is not those who hear the Law who are righteous in God's sight, but it is those who keep the Law who will be justified.
But when the Gentiles, who do not have the Law, do by nature the things which are of the Law, not having the Law, they are a Law to themselves.
And by this they show that the work of the Law is written on their hearts; their conscience bearing witness to them, and their thoughts accusing one another, or also excusing one another.)

[All, I say, will therefore be judged] on the day when God will judge the secrets of men through Jesus Christ, according to my Gospel.
Behold, you bear the name of Jew, you rely entirely on the Law, and you boast in God;

You know his will, and you know how to discern what is contrary to it, being instructed by the Law;
And you think you are the guide of the blind, the light of those who are in darkness;

The doctor of the ignorant, the master of the fools, having the model of knowledge and truth in the Law.
You who teach others, do you not teach yourself? You who preach against stealing, do you steal?
You who say that one should not commit adultery, do you commit adultery? You who abhor idols, do you commit sacrilege?
You who boast in the Law, you dishonor God by transgressing the Law.
For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you, as it is written.

Now it is true that circumcision is beneficial, if you keep the law; but if you transgress the law, your circumcision becomes a foreskin.
But if [the one who has] the foreskin keeps the ordinances of the Law, will not his foreskin be considered to him as Circumcision?

And if he who by nature has a foreskin fulfills the Law, will he not judge you who in the letter and in circumcision are a transgressor of the Law?

For that one is not a Jew who is one only outwardly, and that is not [true] circumcision, which is done outwardly in the flesh.

But he is a Jew who is one inwardly; and circumcision is that which is of the heart in spirit, not in the letter; and the praise of this [Jew] is not of men, but of God.

What advantage is there in being a Jew, or what benefit is there in circumcision?

[He is] great in every way; especially in that the oracles of God were entrusted to them.

For what if some have not believed? Will their unbelief nullify God's faithfulness?

No doubt! But let God be true, and every man a liar; according to what is written: so that you may be found righteous in your words, and prevail when you are judged.

But if our injustice recommends the justice of God, what shall we say? Is God unjust when he punishes? (I speak as a man.)

No doubt! Otherwise, how will God judge the world?

And if God's truth is made more abundant for his glory by my lie, why am I still condemned as a sinner?

But rather, according to the fact that we are blamed, and some say that we say, 'Why do we not do evil, so that good may come of it?' in which the condemnation is just. What then! Are we more excellent? Not at all. For we have previously convicted that all, both Jews and Greeks, are subject to sin.

As it is written: there is no one righteous, not even one.

There is no one who has intelligence, there is no one who seeks God.

They have all gone astray, they have all together made themselves useless: there is not one who does good, not even one.

Their throats are open sepulchers; they have fraudulently used their tongues, there is asp venom under their lips.

Their mouths are full of curses and bitterness.

Their feet are light to spread the blood.

Destruction and misery are in their path.

And they did not know the way of peace.

The fear of God is not before their eyes.

Now we know that whatever the Law says, it says to those who are under the Law, so that every mouth may be silenced and the whole world held accountable to God.

Therefore no one will be justified in his sight by the works of the Law: for through the Law [is given] knowledge of sin.

But now God's righteousness has been manifested apart from the Law, being testified to him by the Law and the Prophets.

The righteousness of God, I say, through faith in Jesus Christ, extends to all and to all who believe; for there is no difference, since all have sinned, and all fall short of the glory of God.

Being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus;

Which God appointed from time immemorial to be a sacrifice of atonement by faith, in his blood, to show his righteousness, by the forgiveness of previous sins, according to God's forbearance;

To show, [I say], his righteousness in the present time, so that he may be [found] righteous, and justifying the one who is of the faith of Jesus.

Where, then, is boasting? It is excluded. By what law? [Is it by the law] of works?

No, but by the law of faith.

We therefore conclude that man is justified by faith apart from the works of the Law.

Is [God] only the God of the Jews? Is he not also the God of the Gentiles? Certainly he is also the God of the Gentiles.

For there is only one God who will justify circumcision by faith, and the foreskin [also] by faith.

Do we then nullify the Law by this faith? Certainly not! On the contrary, we uphold the Law.

What then shall we say that Abraham our father found according to the flesh?

Certainly, if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God.

For what does the Scripture say? That Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness.

But to the one who does the works, the wage is not credited as a gift, but as something owed.

But to him who does not do works, but believes in him who justifies the wicked, his faith is credited as righteousness.

As David also expresses the blessedness of the man to whom God imputes righteousness apart from works, [saying]:

Blessed are those whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered.

Blessed is the man to whom the Lord has not imputed [his] sin.

Is this declaration of beatitude [only] for Circumcision, or also for the Foreskin?

For we say that faith was credited to Abraham as righteousness.

How then was it attributed to him? Was it when he was already circumcised, or when he was still in the foreskin? It was not in the circumcision, but in the foreskin.

Then he received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness of faith, which [he had received while] in the foreskin, so that he might be the father of all who believe [while] in the foreskin, and that righteousness might also be credited to them.

And [that he was also] the father of Circumcision, [that is], of those who are not only of Circumcision, but who also follow in the footsteps of the faith of our father Abraham, which [he had] in the foreskin.

For the promise to be heir of the world was not made to Abraham, or to his offspring, through the Law, but through the righteousness of faith.

But if those who belong to the Law are heirs, then faith is nullified and the promise is broken.

Because the law produces wrath; for where there is no law, there is no transgression.

Therefore, it is by faith, so that it may be by grace, [and] so that the promise may be assured to all the seed; not only to that which is of the Law, but also to that which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all.

As it is written: I have made you a father of many nations in the sight of God, in whom he believed; who gives life to the dead, and calls into being things that were not.

And [Abraham], having hoped against hope, believed that he would become the father of many nations, according to what had been said to him: so shall your offspring be.

And not being weak in faith, he did not consider his own body, which was already worn out, since he was about a hundred years old, nor Sarah's advanced age, since she was no longer able to bear children.

And he did not doubt God's promise through distrust, but was strengthened in faith, giving glory to God;

Being fully convinced that the one who had made him the promise was also powerful enough to fulfill it.

That is why this was attributed to him as a matter of justice.

Although this [justice] was credited to him, it was not written solely for him.

But also for us, to whom it will be imputed, to us, I say, who believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead;

He was delivered up for our sins, and was raised for our justification.

Therefore, since we have been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Through which also we have been brought by faith into this grace in which we stand; and we boast in the hope of the glory of God.

And not only that, but we also glory in our afflictions, knowing that affliction produces perseverance;

And patience is testing; and testing is hope.

But hope does not confound, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit who has been given to us.

For when we were still powerless, Christ died at the proper time for us who were ungodly.

It is very rare for someone to die for a righteous person; but it could also be that someone would be willing to die for a benefactor.

But God shows his love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us.

Rather, since we are now justified by his blood, many more will be saved from wrath by him.

For if, while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, how much sooner, having already been reconciled, shall we be saved by his life.

And not only that, but we also boast in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

Therefore, just as sin entered the world through one man, death also entered through sin; and in this way death came to all men, because all sinned.

For before the Law, sin was in the world; but sin is not imputed where there is no Law.

But death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those who had not sinned in the way Adam sinned, who is a type of the one who was to come.

But the gift is not like the trespass; for if by the trespass of the one man many died, much more so the grace of God and the gift by grace, which came from the one man, Jesus Christ, abounded to many.

And the gift is not like that which came through one man who sinned; for condemnation comes from one trespass, but the gift of justification extends to many sins.

For if, by the trespass of the one man, death reigned by that one man, how much more will many who receive God's abundant provision of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life by one man, who is Jesus Christ.

Just as through one sin men are subject to condemnation, so through one righteousness [the gift came] on all men for the justification of life.

For as by the disobedience of one man many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one man many will be made righteous.

But the Law was brought in so that the trespass might increase; but where sin increased, grace increased all the more;

So that, as sin reigned in death, so grace might reign through righteousness [leading to] eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

What shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, so that grace may abound?

God forbid! [For] we who died to sin, how can we live in it any longer?

Do you not know that all of us who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?

We were therefore buried with him in baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, we too might walk in newness of life.

For if we have been united with him in the likeness of his death, we shall certainly also be united with him in the likeness of his resurrection.

Knowing this, that our old self was crucified with him, so that the body of sin might be destroyed, so that we might no longer serve sin.

For he who has died is free from sin.

But if we died with Christ, we believe that we will also live with him; Knowing that Christ, having been raised from the dead, dies no more, [and that] death no longer has dominion over him.

For that which he died, he died once because of sin; but that which he lives, he lives to God.

You too, however, must realize that you are dead to sin, but alive to God in Jesus Christ our Lord.

Therefore, do not let sin reign in your mortal body, so that you obey its desires. And do not apply your members to be instruments of unrighteousness to sin, but apply yourselves to God as those who have been brought from the dead to life, and apply your members to be instruments of righteousness to God.

For sin will have no dominion over you, because you are not under the law, but under grace.

What then? Shall we sin because we are not under the Law, but under Grace? God forbid!

Do you not know that to whomever you become slaves to obey, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, whether of sin [which leads] to death; or of obedience [which leads] to righteousness?

But thanks be to God that, having been slaves to sin, you have obeyed from your heart the express form of the doctrine in which you were brought up.

Therefore, having been set free from sin, you have become slaves to righteousness. (I am speaking in human terms because of the weakness of your flesh.) Just as you have applied your members to serve in defilement and iniquity, to commit iniquity, so now apply your members to serve in righteousness in holiness.

For when you were slaves to sin, you were free in regard to righteousness.

What fruit did you then have of the things of which you are now ashamed? Indeed, their end is death.

But now that you have been set free from sin and are serving God, you reap the fruit of holiness, and the end is eternal life.

For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Do you not know, my brothers (for I am speaking to those who understand what the Law is) that the Law has authority over a person as long as they live?

For a woman who is under the authority of a husband is bound to her husband by the law as long as he is alive; but if her husband dies, she is released from the law of the husband.

Therefore, if her husband is alive and she marries another husband, she will be called an adulteress; but since her husband is dead, she is free from the law; so she will not be an adulteress if she marries another husband.

So, my brothers, you also died to the Law through the body of Christ, to belong to another, to him who was raised from the dead, in order that we might bear fruit for God.

For when we were in the flesh, the desires for sins, aroused by the law, were strong in our members to bear fruit in death.

But now we are freed from the Law, which held us captive, because it was dead; so that we may serve God in newness of mind, and not in old age of letters.

What shall we say then? Is the Law sin? God forbid! On the contrary, I have not known sin except through the Law: for I would not have known covetousness, if the Law had not said, 'You shall not covet'.

But sin, having taken its opportunity through the commandment, produced in me every kind of covetous desire; because apart from the law sin is dead.

For I was once alive apart from the Law; but when the commandment came, sin began to live again.

And I died; and the commandment which was ordained for my life was found to be my death.

For sin, taking the opportunity of the commandment, deceived me, and through it put me to death.

Therefore the Law is holy, and the commandment is holy, just, and good.

Has what is good become deadly to me? Not at all! But sin, in order that it might appear sin, caused me death through good; so that sin might be made to be exceedingly sinful through the commandment.

For we know that the law is spiritual; but I am carnal, sold under sin.

For I do not approve of what I do, since I do not do what I want, but I do what I hate.

But if what I do I do not want to do, I acknowledge [by that very fact] that the Law is good.

So now it is no longer I who do these things, but it is sin that dwells in me.

For I know that nothing good dwells in me, that is, in my flesh; because the will is certainly there in me, but I cannot find a way to accomplish what is good.

For I do not do the good I want to do, but the evil I do not want to do—this I keep on doing.

But if I do what I do not want to do, it is no longer I who do it, but sin that dwells in me.

I therefore find this Law within me, that when I want to do good, evil is attached to me.

For I take great pleasure in God's law concerning the inner man;

But I see another law at work in my members, which wages war against the law of my mind and makes me a prisoner of the law of sin which is in my members.

[Ha!] Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from the body of this death?

I give thanks to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Therefore, with my mind I obey the law of God, but with my flesh I obey the law of sin.

Therefore, there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, who do not walk according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.

Because the Law of the Spirit of life [which is] in Jesus Christ, has set me free from the Law of sin and death.

Because what was impossible for the Law, because it was weak in the flesh, God sent his own Son in the form of sinful flesh, and for sin, and condemned sin in the flesh;

So that the righteous requirement of the Law might be fulfilled in us, who do not walk according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.

For those who are according to the flesh have their minds set on the things of the flesh, but those who are according to the Spirit have their minds set on the things of the Spirit.

For to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.

Because the mind set on the flesh is hostile to God; for it does not submit to God's law, nor can it do so.

That is why those who are in the flesh cannot please God.

But you are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God dwells in you; but if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, that person does not belong to him.

And if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the spirit is life because of righteousness.

But if the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, he who raised Christ from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies because of his Spirit who dwells in you.

Therefore, my brothers, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh.

For if you live according to the flesh, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live.

For all who are led by the Spirit of God are children of God.
For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you received the Spirit of adoption, by whom we cry out, Abba, [that is,] Father.
It is this same Spirit who testifies with our spirit that we are children of God.
And if we are children, then we are heirs: heirs, I say, of God, and co-heirs with Christ; if we suffer with him, that we may also be glorified with him.
For all things considered, I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed in us.
For the great and ardent desire of creatures is that they wait for the children of God to be revealed;
(Because creatures are subject to futility, not of their own volition, but because of him who subjected them) [they await it, I say,] in the hope that they too will be delivered from the bondage of corruption, to be in the freedom of the glory of the children of God.
For we know that all creatures groan and are in labor together until now.
And not only they, but we ourselves, who have the firstfruits of the Spirit, groan inwardly as we wait eagerly for our adoption to sonship, the redemption of our bodies.
For in hope we are saved; but hope which is seen is not hope; for why should anyone hope for what he sees?
But if we hope for what we do not see, it is because we wait for it through patience.

Likewise, the Spirit also relieves our weaknesses. For we do not know what we ought to pray for, but the Spirit himself intercedes for us with groanings too deep for words.
But he who searches hearts knows what the mind of the Spirit is, because he prays for the saints in accordance with God's will.
Now we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him, who have been called according to his purpose.
For those whom he foreknew, he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn among many brothers.
And those whom he predestined, he also called; and those whom he called, he also justified; and those whom he justified, he also glorified.
What then shall we say to these things? If God is for us, who can be against us?
He who did not spare his own Son, but gave him up for us all, how will he not also, along with him, graciously give us all things?
Who will bring an accusation against God's chosen ones? God is the one who justifies.

Who will condemn? Christ is the one who died, and moreover, who rose again, who is also at the right hand of God, and who even prays for us.
Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall oppression, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword?
As it is written: we are given over to death for your sake all day long, and we are valued as sheep to be slaughtered.
On the contrary, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us.
For I am convinced that neither death nor life, neither angels nor principalities nor powers, neither things present nor things to come,
Neither height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God, which he has shown us in Christ Jesus our Lord.
I speak the truth in Christ; I am not lying, my conscience bearing me witness through the Holy Spirit.
I have great sadness and continual torment in my heart.
For I myself would wish to be separated from Christ for the sake of my brothers, who are my kinsmen according to the flesh;

Who are the Israelites, from whom come the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the ordinance of the Law, the divine service, and the promises.
Of whom [are] the fathers, and from whom, according to the flesh, [came] Christ, who is God over all, blessed forever; Amen!
However, it is not possible for the word of God to be destroyed; but not all who are of Israel are Israel.
For though they are of Abraham's seed, not all are his children; but it is in Isaac that his posterity must be considered.
That is to say, it is not those who are children of the flesh who are children of God; but it is the children of the promise who are considered to be seed.
For this is the word of the promise: I will come in this same season, and Sarah will have a son.
And not only that; but also Rebecca, when she conceived by one, [namely] our father Isaac.
For before the children were born and had done neither good nor evil, so that the purpose determined according to God's election might stand, not by works but by him who calls;
He was told: the greatest will be subservient to the least;
As it is written: I loved Jacob, and I hated Esau.
What shall we say then: Is there iniquity in God? God forbid!
For he said to Moses, "I will have compassion on whom I have compassion, and I will show mercy on whom I show mercy."
Therefore, it is not from the will, nor from the current: but from God who shows mercy.
For the Scripture says to Pharaoh: I have raised you up for this very purpose, to demonstrate my power in you, and to make my name known in all the earth.
Therefore, he has compassion on whomever he wants, and he hardens whomever he wants.

But you will ask me: why does he still complain? For who can resist his will?
But rather, O man, who are you to contend with God? Will the thing formed say to the one who formed it, "Why have you made me thus?"
Does not the potter have the power to make from the same mass of clay one vessel of honor, and another of dishonor?
And [what if], in wanting to show his wrath, and to make known his power, he has with great patience endured the vessels of wrath, prepared for destruction?
And in order to make known the riches of his glory in the vessels of mercy, which he has prepared for glory;
And whom he called, [that is to say] us, not only from among the Jews, but also from among the Gentiles.
According to what he says in Hosea: I will call my people those who were not my people; and the beloved, she who was not the beloved;
And it will come to pass, in the place where it was said to them, 'You are not my people,' there they shall be called children of the living God.
Isaiah also cries out concerning Israel: though the number of the children of Israel be like the sand of the sea, there will be only a [small] remnant saved.
For the Lord brings the matter to a close and makes it short in justice: he will make, I say, a shortened matter on earth.
And as Isaiah had said before: if the Lord of hosts had not left us some seed, we would have been made like Sodom, and would have been like Gomorrah.
What shall we say then? That the Gentiles, who did not seek righteousness, have attained righteousness, which is by faith.
But Israel, seeking the Law of justice, did not attain the Law of justice.
Why? Because it was not by faith, but only by works of the law; for they stumbled over the stumbling stone.
According to what is written: "See, I lay in Zion a stone that causes people to stumble, and a stone that makes them fall; and whoever believes in him will not be put to shame."

My brothers, as for the good affection of my heart, and the prayer that I make to God for Israel, it is that they may be saved.

For I can testify about them that they are zealous for God, but without knowledge.

Because they did not know the righteousness of God, and sought to establish their own righteousness, they did not submit to the righteousness of God.

For Christ is the end of the Law, in righteousness to every believer.

Now Moses describes [thus] the righteousness which is by the Law, [namely], that the man who does these things, shall live by them.

But the righteousness that comes by faith says this: Do not say in your heart, "Who will ascend into heaven?" This means to bring Christ back from on high.

Or: who will descend into the abyss? This is to bring Christ back from the dead.

But what does it say? The word is near you, in your mouth and in your heart. [Now] this is the word of faith, which we preach.

Therefore, if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved.

For with the heart one believes in justice, and with the mouth one confesses to salvation.

For the Scripture says: whoever believes in him will not be put to shame.

Because there is no difference between Jew and Greek; for there is one Lord of all, who is rich to all who call on him.

For whoever calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.

But how will they call upon him in whom they have not believed? And how will they believe in him of whom they have not heard? And how will they hear of him unless someone preaches to them?

And how can anyone preach except by sending those who are sent? As it is written: "How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good tidings!"

But not all have obeyed the Gospel; for Isaiah says: Lord, who has believed our message.

Faith, therefore, is hearing; and hearing through the word of God.

But I ask: have they not heard? On the contrary, their voice has gone out into all the earth, and their word to the ends of the world.

But I ask: Did Israel not know? Moses first said: I will make you jealous by him who is not a people; I will make you angry by a nation devoid of understanding.

And Isaiah became very bold, and said: I was found by those who did not seek me, and I clearly revealed myself to those who did not inquire about me.

But as for Israel, he says: I have stretched out my hands all day long to a rebellious and contrary people.

I ask then: Has God rejected his people? God forbid! For I too am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the Tribe of Benjamin.

God has not rejected his people, whom he knew before. And do you not know what the Scripture says about Elijah, how he pleaded with God against Israel, saying:

Lord, they have killed your Prophets, and they have demolished your altars, and I alone am left; and they seek to take my life.

But what was God's answer to him? I have reserved for myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee before Baal.

Thus, there is now also a residue according to the election of grace.

But if it is by grace, it is no longer by works; otherwise grace would no longer be grace. But if it is by works, it is no longer by grace; otherwise work would no longer be work.

What then? It is that what Israel sought, it did not obtain; but the elect obtained it, and the others were hardened;

As it is written: God gave them a drowsy spirit, [and] eyes that did not see, and ears that did not hear, until this day.

And David said: May their table be a snare for them, a trap, an occasion for stumbling, and this for their reward.

Let their eyes be darkened so they cannot see; and let their backs be bent continually.

But I ask: did they stumble to fall? Not at all! But by their fall salvation is granted to the Gentiles, to incite them to jealousy.

But if their fall means wealth for the world, and their decrease means wealth for the Gentiles, how much greater will their increase be?

For I am speaking to you, Gentiles; indeed, insofar as I am the Apostle to the Gentiles, I make my ministry honorable;

[To see] if in any way I can stir up those of my nation to jealousy, and save some of them.

For if their rejection is the reconciliation of the world, what will their reception be if not a life among the dead?

But if the firstfruits are holy, so is the whole; and if the root is holy, so are the branches.

If some of the branches were cut off, and you, who were a wild olive tree, were grafted in their place, and made a partaker of the root and fatness of the olive tree;

Do not boast against the branches; for if you boast, it is not you who support the root, but the root that supports you.

But you will say: the branches were cut off so that I could be grafted onto them.

That is well said, they were cut off because of their unbelief, and you stand by faith: do not be proud, but fear.

For if God has not spared the natural branches, [beware] lest he spare you also.

Consider therefore the kindness and severity of God: severity on those who fell, but kindness toward you, if you continue in his kindness: for otherwise you also will be cut off.

And they themselves, if they do not persist in their unbelief, will be grafted in, for God is able to graft them in again.

For if you were cut from the olive tree, which by nature was wild, and were grafted against nature into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will those who are natural be grafted into their own olive tree?

For my brothers, I do not want you to be ignorant of this mystery, so that you may not delude yourselves: that a hardening has come upon Israel in a part, until the fullness of the Gentiles has come in;

And so all Israel will be saved; according to what is written: The Deliverer will come from Zion, and he will turn away unfaithfulness from Jacob;

And this is the covenant I will make with them when I take away their sins.

They are certainly enemies with regard to the Gospel, for your sake; but they are beloved for election, for the sake of the fathers.

For the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable.

But just as you yourselves were once disobedient to God, and now you have received mercy through their disobedience.

These people, however, have now become rebellious, so that they too may receive mercy through the mercy shown to you.

For God has confined them all under rebellion, in order to have mercy on them all.

Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways impossible to discover!

For who has known the mind of the Lord? Or who has been his counselor?

Or who gave it to him first, and it will be repaid to him?

For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be glory forever:

Amen!

Therefore, I urge you, brothers, by the mercies of God, to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God, which is your true and proper service.

Do not conform to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. Then you will be able to test and approve what God's will is—his good, pleasing and perfect will.

But by the grace given to me I say to every one of you, that no one should think that he is wiser than he ought, but that each one should think with sober judgment, according to the measure of faith that God has assigned to each one.

For just as we have many members in one body, and all the members do not have the same function;

So [we, who are] many, are one body in Christ; and each one is a member of one another.

Now we have different gifts, according to the grace given to us: either of prophecy, [let us prophesy] according to the analogy of faith;

Whether it is a ministry, [let us apply ourselves] to the ministry; or if someone is called to teach, let him teach.

Whether someone is called upon to exhort, let them exhort; whether someone distributes, let them do so simply; whether someone presides, let them do so carefully; whether someone exercises mercy, let them do so joyfully.

Let charity be sincere. Abhor evil, clinging to good.

Being moved by brotherly charity to love one another; looking out for one another out of honor.

Not being lazy in employing yourselves for others; being fervent in spirit; serving the Lord.

Be joyful in hope; patient in tribulation; persevering in prayer.

Communicating to the needs of the Saints; practicing hospitality.

Bless those who persecute you; bless them, and do not curse them.

Rejoice with those who rejoice; and weep with those who weep.

Having the same feelings towards one another, not affecting high things, but accommodating yourselves to lowly things. Do not be wise in your own judgment.

Do not repay evil with evil. Seek honesty in the presence of all.

If it is possible, [and] as far as it depends on you, be at peace with all men.

Do not take revenge yourselves, my beloved, but leave room for the wrath of God, for it is written: Vengeance is mine; I will repay, says the Lord.

Therefore, if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink: for in doing this you will take away the burning coals that are on his head.

Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

Let every person be subject to the governing authorities: for there is no authority except that which God has established, and the authorities that exist have been ordained by God.

Therefore, whoever resists the power resists the ordinance of God; and those who resist it will bring condemnation upon themselves.

For princes are not to be feared for good deeds, but for bad ones. Now, do you wish to have no fear of the powerful? Do good, and you will receive praise.

For [the Prince] is God's servant for your good; but if you do wrong, be afraid; because he does not bear the sword in vain, for he is God's servant, ordained to do justice by punishing the wrongdoer.

That is why one must be submissive, not only because of punishment, but also because of conscience.

For this is also why you pay taxes to them, because they are God's ministers, doing justice.

Therefore, give to all what is due to them: to whom the tribute, the tribute; to whom the toll, the toll; to whom fear, fear; to whom honor, honor.

Owe no one anything, except to love one another; for he who loves another has fulfilled the Law.

Because what [is said]: You shall not commit adultery, You shall not kill, You shall not steal, You shall not bear false witness, You shall not covet, and such other commandment, is summarily included in this saying: You shall love your neighbor as yourself.

Charity does no harm to one's neighbor: therefore, the fulfillment of the Law is charity.

Even considering the season, because it is already time for us to wake up from sleep; for now salvation is nearer to us than when we first believed.

The night is past and the day is at hand; therefore let us cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light.

Let us conduct ourselves honestly [and] as in the daytime; not in gluttony, nor in drunkenness; not in childbearing, nor in insolence; not in quarreling, nor in envy. But be clothed with the Lord Jesus Christ; and do not think about the flesh to [fulfill] its desires.

But as for the one who is weak in faith, receive him, and have no quarrels or disputes with him.

One believes that one can eat anything, and the other, who is weak, eats herbs.

Let him who eats [of all things] not despise him who does not eat of it; and let him who does not eat of it not judge him who does eat of it: for God has taken him for himself.

Who are you, to judge another's servant? If he stands firm or if he stumbles, it is for his own master; and indeed [this weak Christian] will be strengthened; for God is powerful to strengthen him.

One esteems one day more than the other, and the other esteems every day [equally, but] let each be fully persuaded in his mind.

He who observes the day, observes it because of the Lord; and he who does not observe the day, there is no observance because of the Lord; he who eats [of all things], eats of it because of the Lord, and gives thanks to God; and he who does not eat of it, does not eat of it because of the Lord, and gives thanks to God.

For none of us lives for himself, and none of us dies for himself.

But whether we live, we live in the Lord; or whether we die, we die in the Lord; therefore, whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord.

For this is why Christ died, and rose again, and took up a new life, so that he might have dominion over both the dead and the living.

But why do you judge your brother? Or why do you despise your brother? Surely we will all appear before the judgment seat of Christ.

For it is written: As surely as I live, says the Lord, every knee will bow before me, and every tongue will praise God.

Therefore, each of us will give an account of ourselves to God.

Therefore let us not judge one another any longer, but rather be discerning in this matter, [which is] not to put any stumbling block or offense in the sight of [your] brother.

I know and am convinced by the Lord Jesus that nothing is defiled in itself; but if anyone believes that something is defiled, it is defiled to him.

But if your brother is distressed because you eat meat, you are not acting out of love; do not destroy by eating meat the one for whom Christ died.

The advantage you enjoy should not be open to criticism.

For the Kingdom of God is not a matter of food and drink, but of righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.

And he who serves Christ in these things is pleasing to God and approved by men.

Let us therefore seek things which lead to peace and are of mutual edification.

Do not ruin God's work by eating. It is true that all things are clean, but it is wrong for someone to eat in order to cause a stumbling block.

It is good not to eat meat, not to drink wine, and not to do anything else that might cause your brother to stumble, or to be scandalized, or to be hurt.

Do you have faith? Have it within yourself before God. [For] blessed is he who does not condemn himself in what he approves.

But whoever scruples about eating it is condemned, because he does not eat it with faith; and everything that is not from faith is sin.

But we who are strong must bear with the infirmities of the weak, and not please ourselves.

Therefore, let each of us please our neighbor for his good, for [his] edification.

For even Jesus Christ did not want to please himself, but according to what is written [about him]: the insults of those who insult you have fallen on me.

For all the things which were written before were written for our instruction, so that through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures we might have hope.

May the God of patience and comfort grant you all to be of one mind, in accord with Christ Jesus;

So that all of you with one heart and one mouth may glorify God, who is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, receive one another, just as Christ has received us, for the glory of God.

But I say that Jesus Christ was a minister of circumcision, for the truth of God, in order to ratify the promises made to the Fathers.

And so that the Gentiles may honor God for his mercy; according to what is written: I will therefore praise you among the Gentiles, and I will sing psalms to your Name.

And it is also said: Gentiles, rejoice with his people.

And again: all nations, praise the Lord; and all you peoples, extol him.

Isaiah also said: There will be a Root of Jesse, and a shoot will arise to rule the Gentiles, and the Gentiles will put their hope in him.

May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that by the power of the Holy Spirit you may abound in hope.

My brothers, I am also convinced that you yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another.

But my brothers, I have written to you somewhat more freely, as a reminder [of these things], because of the grace given to me by God.

So that I may be a minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, working for the sacrifice of the Gospel of God; so that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Spirit.

Therefore, I have reason to boast in Christ Jesus in matters pertaining to God.

For I cannot say anything that Christ has not done through me to bring the Gentiles to obedience by word and deed.

With the power of wonders and miracles, by the power of the Spirit of God; so that from Jerusalem, and the surrounding places, even to Illyricum, I have filled all with the gospel of Christ.

So I devoted myself wholeheartedly to proclaiming the Gospel where Christ had not yet been preached, so that I would not be building on a foundation that another had already laid.

But, as it is written: those who have not been told about him will see him, and those who have not heard of him will hear him.

And that's also what has often prevented me from coming to see you.

But now that I have no reason to stop in this country, and that for several years I have had a great desire to go to you;

I will come to you when I leave to go to Spain; and I hope that I will see you on passing through your country, and that you will lead me there, after I have first been partly satisfied by having been with you.

But for now I am going to Jerusalem to assist the Saints.

For it seemed good to the Macedonians and Achaians to make a contribution for the poor among the saints who are in Jerusalem.

It seemed good to them, I say, and they are also obliged to do so: for if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual goods, they must also share in their carnal goods.

After I have finished this, and recorded this fruit, I will go to Spain, passing through your quarters.

And I know that when I come to you, I will come with an abundance of blessings from the Gospel of Christ.

But I urge you, brothers, by our Lord Jesus Christ and by the love of the Spirit, to contend with me in your prayers to God for me.

So that I may be delivered from the rebels who are in Judea, and that my administration which I have to do in Jerusalem may be acceptable to the Saints.

So that I may come to you with joy by the will of God, and be entertained with you.

And the God of peace be with you all: Amen!

I recommend our sister Phoebe, who is a Deaconess of the Church of Cenchreae:

So that you may receive her as the Lord should receive the saints; and that you may assist her in all that she may need; for she has shown hospitality to many, and even to me.

Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my fellow workers in Jesus Christ.

Who submitted their necks for my life, [and] to whom I give thanks not only I, but also all the Gentile churches.

Greet also the church that is in their house. Greet Epaphroditus, my beloved, who is the firstfruits of Achaia in Christ.

Greet Marie, who has worked hard for us.

Greet Andronicus and Junias, my cousins, who were prisoners with me, and who are distinguished among the Apostles, and who were even before me in Christ.

Greet Amplias, my beloved, in the Lord.

Greet Urbain, our Fellow Worker in Christ, and Stachys, my beloved.

Greet Apelles, approved in Christ. Greet those from Aristobulus.

Greet Herodion, my cousin. Greet those of Narcissus who are in [our] Lord.

Greet Tryphena and Thryphosa, who work hard in [our] Lord. Greet Persis, the beloved, who has worked hard in our Lord.

Greet Rufus, chosen in the Lord, and his mother, [whom I regard as] my own.

Greet Asyncrite, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brothers who are with them.

Greet Philologus, and Julia, Nereus, and his sister, and Olympia, and all the Saints who are with them.

Greet one another with a holy kiss. The Churches of Christ greet you.

But I urge you, my brothers, to watch out for those who cause divisions and put obstacles in your way that are contrary to the teaching you have learned, and to keep away from them.

For these kinds of people do not serve our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own appetites, and by smooth talk and flattery they deceive the hearts of the simple.

For your obedience has become known to all. Therefore I rejoice in you; but I desire that you be prudent in what is good, and innocent in what is evil.

But the God of peace will soon crush Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you, Amen!

Timothy, my fellow worker, sends you greetings, as do Lucius, Jason, and Sosipater, my cousins.

I, Tertius, who wrote this Epistle, greet you in [our] Lord.

Gaius, my host, and host of the whole Church, greets you. Erastus, the Procurator of the city, greets you, and Quartus [our] brother.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen!

Now to him who is able to strengthen you according to my gospel and the preaching of Jesus Christ, in accordance with the revelation of the mystery that was kept secret in former times,

But who is now revealed through the Scriptures of the Prophets, according to the commandment of the eternal God, and who is preached among all peoples to bring them to faith.

To God, [I say], the only wise one, be glory forever through Jesus Christ, Amen!
Paul, called to be an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and his brother
Sosthenes,

To the church of God which is in Corinth, to the sanctified in Christ Jesus, who are called to be saints, together with all those who in any place call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, their [Lord] and ours;

Grace and peace be given to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

I always thank my God for you, for the grace of God that was given to you in Christ
Jesus;

For in him you have been enriched in every way, with every gift of speech and of every kind of knowledge;

According to the testimony of Jesus Christ has been confirmed in you;

So much so that you lack no spiritual gift as you await the manifestation of our Lord Jesus Christ,

Who also will strengthen you to the end, so that you will be blameless on the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

[And] God, by whom you were called into fellowship with his Son Jesus Christ our Lord, is faithful.

Now I beseech you, my brothers, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you all speak with one voice, and that there be no divisions among you, but that you be perfectly united in the same mind and in the same opinion.

For, my brothers, it has been told to me about you by those [who are from] Chloe, that there are dissensions among you.

So here is what I say, that each of you says: I follow Paul; and I follow Apollos; and I follow Cephas; and I follow Christ.

Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?

I thank God that I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius;

So that no one can say that I baptized in my own name.

I also baptized Stephanas' family; besides, I don't know if I baptized anyone else.
For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to evangelize, not with words of [human] wisdom, so that the cross of Christ would not be nullified.

For the message of the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God.

For it is written: I will abolish the wisdom of the wise, and I will destroy the understanding of the intelligent.

Where is the wise man? Where is the Scribe? Where is the Disputant of this Age? Has not God revealed the folly of the wisdom of this world?

For since in the wisdom of God the world did not know him through wisdom, it was God's good pleasure to save those who believe through the foolishness of what was preached.

For the Jews demand miracles, and the Greeks seek wisdom.

But we preach Christ crucified, a stumbling block to Jews and folly to Greeks.

To those, I say, who are called both Jews and Greeks, [we preach to them] Christ, the power of God, and the wisdom of God.

Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

For, my brothers, you see your calling, that not many of you are wise according to the flesh, nor many are powerful, nor many are noble.

But God chose the foolish things of this world to shame the wise; and God chose the weak things of this world to shame the strong;

And God chose the lowly things of this world, and the despised things, even the things that are not, to abolish the things that are.

So that no flesh may boast before him.

But it is because of him that you are in Christ Jesus, who has become for you wisdom from God, and righteousness, sanctification, and redemption; So that, as it is written, he who boasts, boasts to the Lord. Therefore, my brothers, when I came to you, I did not come with pompous speeches, full of [human] wisdom, proclaiming to you the testimony of God. Because I have set out to know nothing while I am with you except Jesus Christ and him crucified.

And I was even among you in weakness, in fear, and in great trembling. And my word and my preaching were not in persuasive words of human wisdom, but in evidence of the Spirit and of power;

So that your faith may not be based on human wisdom, but on God's power.

But we propose a wisdom among the perfect, a wisdom, I say, that is not of this world, nor of the princes of this age, who are about to be destroyed.

But we offer the wisdom of God, which is in mystery, that is, hidden, which God had determined before the ages for our glory.

[And] which none of the princes of this age knew; for if they had known it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory.

But as it is written: "No eye has seen, no ear has heard, no mind has conceived what God has prepared for those who love him."

But God has revealed them to us through his Spirit. For the Spirit searches all things, even the deep things of God.

For who among men knows the things of man except the spirit of man which is in him?

In the same way no one has known the things of God except the Spirit of God.

Now we have received not the spirit of this world, but the Spirit who is from God, so that we may know the things which have been given us from God;

These also we propose, not with words taught by human wisdom, but with those taught by the Holy Spirit, adapting spiritual things to those who are spiritual.

Now the natural man does not understand the things which are of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him; and he cannot even understand them, because they are discerned spiritually.

But the spiritual person discerns all things, and is not judged by anyone.

For who has known the mind of the Lord so as to be able to instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

And for my part, my brothers, I could not speak to you as to spiritual people, but as to carnal people, that is, as to children in Christ.

I gave you milk to drink, and not meat, because you were not yet able [to bear it]; even now you are not yet able; because you are still carnal.

For since there is envy, dissensions, and divisions among you, are you not carnal, and do you not behave in the manner of men?

For when one says, "I follow Paul," and another, "I follow Apollos," are you not carnal?

Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, except ministers, through whom you believed, as the Lord assigned to each?

I planted; Apollos watered; but it was God who gave the growth.

Neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but only God, who gives the increase.

And the one who plants and the one who waters are one and the same; but each will receive his reward according to his labor.

For we are God's fellow workers; [and] you are God's plowing, [and] God's building.

According to the grace of God given to me, I laid the foundation like a wise master builder, and another is building on it; but let each one examine how he is building on it.

For no one can lay any other foundation than the one that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

If anyone builds on this foundation, with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw;

Each person's work will be revealed; for the day will make it known, because it will be revealed by fire; and the fire will test what each person's work will be.

If the work of someone who has built upon it remains, he will receive a reward.

If anyone's work is burned up, it will be lost; but he himself will be saved, yet only as by fire.

Do you not know that you are the Temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?

If anyone destroys the Temple of God, God will destroy him; for the Temple of God is holy, and you are that [Temple].

Let no one deceive himself; if any of you thinks he is wise in this world, let him become a fool, so that he may become wise.

Because the wisdom of this world is foolishness in God's sight; for it is written: He catches the wise in their craftiness.

And again: the Lord knows that the words of the wise are vain.

Therefore, let no one boast in men; for all things are yours;

Whether Paul, Apollos, Cephas, the world, life, death, the present, or the future, all things are yours.

And you to Christ, and Christ to God.

Let each one regard us as ministers of Christ, and as stewards of the mysteries of God.

But, moreover, it is required of the providers that each one be found faithful.

For my part, I care very little about being judged by you, or by human judgment; and I do not even judge myself.

For I feel guilty of nothing; but for that I am not justified; but the one who judges me is the Lord.

Therefore do not judge anything before the appointed time, until the Lord comes, who will also bring to light the things hidden in darkness, and who will expose the motives of the heart; and then God will render to each one [his] praise.

Now, my brothers, I have turned [figuratively speaking] this discourse about myself and Apollos for your sake; so that you may learn from us not to presume beyond what is written, lest you pride yourselves on one another against another.

For who makes a difference between you and another? And what do you have that you did not receive? And if you did receive it, why do you boast as though you did not?

You are already full, you are already rich, you have become kings without us; and would that you reigned, so that we might also reign with you!

For I think that God has publicly exposed us, [we] who are the last Apostles, as people condemned to death, since we have been made a spectacle to the world, to angels and to men.

We are fools for Christ's sake, but you are wise in Christ; we are weak, but you are strong; you are held in esteem, but we are held in contempt.

To this very hour we suffer hunger and thirst, and we are naked; we are beaten, and we wander about.

And we labor with our own hands; we are slandered, and we bless; we are persecuted, and we suffer it.

We are blamed, and we pray; we are made like the world's scum, and like everyone's refuse, until now.

I am not writing these things to shame you; but I am giving you advice as I would to my dear children.

For though you have ten thousand teachers in Christ, you do not have many fathers; for I became your father in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

I therefore urge you to imitate me.

That is why I have sent you Timothy, who is my beloved son, and who is faithful in [our] Lord; so that he may remind you of my ways in Christ, and how I teach everywhere in every church.

But some have boasted as though I were not going to come to you.
But I will come to you soon, if the Lord wills; and I will know not the word of those who boast, but the effective one.
For the Kingdom of God is not a matter of talk, but of action.
What do you want? Shall I come to you with the rod, or with love and a spirit of gentleness?
It is being reported everywhere that there is sexual immorality among you, and even such sexual immorality as is not reported among the Gentiles; for a man is keeping his father's wife.
And yet you are puffed up [with pride], and you have not rather mourned, so that he who committed this act might be cut off from among you.
But I, being absent in body but present in spirit, have already given orders as though I were present, concerning the one who has thus committed such an action. You and my spirit being assembled in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, [I have, I say, commanded], by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ,
Let such a man be handed over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that his spirit may be saved on the day of the Lord Jesus.
Your vanity is unfounded; do you not know that a little leaven makes the whole batch of dough leaven?
Therefore, get rid of the old yeast, so that you may be a new batch, as you are unleavened; for Christ, our Passover lamb, has been sacrificed for us.
Therefore let us celebrate, not with the old leaven, nor with the leaven of wickedness and malice, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.
I wrote to you in [my] Letter, that you should not associate with fornicators. But not at all with the fornicators of this world, or with the greedy, or the swindlers, or the idolaters; for otherwise you would certainly have to go out of the world.
But now I am writing to you not to associate with them; that is, if anyone who calls himself a brother is a fornicator, or a miser, or an idolater, or a slanderer, or a drunkard, or a swindler, you should not eat even with such a person.
For what business is it of mine to judge those who are outside? Do you not judge those who are inside?
But God judges those who are outside. Therefore, expel the wicked person from among yourselves.
When one of you has a case against another, does he dare to go to court before the wicked, and not before the saints?
Do you not know that the Saints will judge the world? And if the world is to be judged by you, are you unworthy to judge even the smallest things?
Do you not know that we will judge the Angels? How much more then [must we judge] things which pertain to this life?
Therefore, if you have legal disputes concerning matters of this life, appoint as judges those who are less esteemed in the church.
I say this to your shame: are there no wise men among you, not even one who can judge between his brothers?
But a brother has lawsuits against his brother, and this before the infidels.
It is already a great flaw in you that you have lawsuits among yourselves. Why not simply endure being wronged? Why not suffer the harm instead?
But, on the contrary, you are doing wrong, and you are causing harm, even to your brothers.
Do you not know that the unrighteous will not inherit the Kingdom of God?
Do not deceive yourselves: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate men, nor thieves, nor the greedy, nor drunkards, nor slanderers, nor swindlers will inherit the kingdom of God.
And some of you were like that; but you were washed, but you were sanctified, but you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God.

All things are permissible for me, but not all things are fitting; all things are permissible for me, but I will not be subjected to the power of anything. Meat belongs to the stomach, and the stomach to meat; but God will destroy both. Now the body is not meant for sexual immorality, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

And God, who raised the Lord from the dead, will also raise us up by his power.

Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then take away the members of Christ and make them members of a prostitute? God forbid!

Do you not know that he who unites himself with a prostitute becomes one body with her? For, it is said, the two shall become one flesh.

But he who is united with the Lord is one spirit [with him].

Flee from fornication; every other sin a person commits is outside the body, but the fornicator sins against his own body.

Do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have from God? And you are not your own;

For you were bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which belong to God.

Now concerning the things about which you wrote to me: [I tell you] that it is good for a man not to marry.

However, to avoid impurity, each man should have his own wife, and each woman her own husband.

The husband should show his wife the kindness that is due to her, and likewise the wife should show it to her husband.

For the wife does not have her own body in her own power, but [it is in that of] the husband; and the husband likewise does not have his own body in his own power, but [it is in that of] the wife.

Do not deprive one another except by mutual consent for a time, so that you may devote yourselves to fasting and prayer, but after that come together again, lest Satan tempt you through your lack of self-control.

But I say this by permission, not by command.

For I would that all men were as I am; but each has his own gift from God, one in one way and another in another.

But I say to the unmarried and the widows, it is good for them to remain unmarried, as I am.

But if they cannot control their sexual relations, let them marry; for it is better to marry than to burn with passion.

And to those who are married, I command them, not I, but the Lord, that a wife must not separate from her husband.

And if she separates from him, let her remain unmarried, or else be reconciled to her husband; and let the husband not leave his wife.

But to the others I say, [and] not the Lord: If any brother has an unfaithful wife, and she is willing to live with him, he must not leave her.

And if any woman has an unfaithful husband, and he consents to live with her, she should not leave him.

For the unfaithful husband is sanctified in the wife, and the unfaithful wife is sanctified in the husband; otherwise your children would be unclean, but now they are holy.

If the unbeliever separates, let him separate; the brother or the sister are not enslaved in that case; but God has called us to peace.

For how do you know, wife, that you will not save your husband? Or how do you know, husband, that you will not save your wife?

However, each one should live according to the gift he has received from God, each one as the Lord has called him to; and this is the order I give in all the churches.

Is someone called while circumcised? Let him not retract his foreskin. Is someone called while still in the foreskin? Let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and the foreskin is nothing either, but the observance of God's commandments. Let each one remain in the condition in which he was called. Are you being called upon as a slave? Do not trouble yourself about it; but also, if you can be set free, make use of it instead: For he who is a slave and is called to our Lord is the Lord's freed person; and likewise he who is called and is free is Christ's slave. You were bought with a price; do not become slaves to men. [My] brothers, let each one remain with God in the state he was in when he was called. As for virgins, I have no commandment from the Lord, but I give advice as having obtained mercy from the Lord, to be faithful. I therefore consider this to be good for the present necessity, insofar as it is good for man to be so. Are you bound to a wife? Do not seek to be separated from her. Are you detached from your wife? Do not seek another wife. If you marry, you do not sin; and if a virgin marries, she also does not sin; but those who marry will have troubles in the flesh; but I spare you. But I tell you this, my brothers, that the time is short; and those who have wives should live as though they had none; And those who are weeping, as if they were not weeping; and those who are joyful, as if they were not joyful; and those who buy, as if they did not own. And those who use this world, as if not abusing it: for the form of this world is passing away. But I would like you to be free from anxiety. An unmarried man is responsible for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may please the Lord. But a married man is concerned about the things of this world, and how to please his wife, [and thus] he is divided. The unmarried woman and the virgin are concerned about the things that are of the Lord, to be holy in body and spirit; but the married woman is concerned about the things that are of the world, how she will please her husband. But I say this with regard to what is useful to you, not to set a trap for you, but to lead you to what is proper, and suitable [to unite you] with the Lord without any distraction. But if anyone thinks it is a disgrace for his daughter to pass the bloom of her youth and to marry her off, let him do as he pleases; he does not sin; let her be married. But he who remains firm in his heart, having no necessity [that he marry his daughter], but being master of his own will, has resolved in his heart to keep his daughter, he does well. Therefore, the one who marries her does well, but the one who does not marry her does better. The wife is bound by the Law as long as her husband is alive, but if her husband dies, she is free to marry whomever she wants; only [let it be] in [our] Lord. Nevertheless, she is happier if she remains so, in my opinion; and I believe that I also have the Spirit of God. As for things sacrificed to idols: we know that we all possess knowledge. Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up. And if anyone thinks he knows something, he has not yet known anything as he ought to know; But if anyone loves God, he is known by him. As for eating things sacrificed to idols, we know that the idol is nothing in the world, and that there is no other God but one; For although there are some who are called gods, whether in heaven or on earth (as there are many gods, and many Lords),

Yet we have only one God, the Father, from whom are all things, and in him we are;
and only one Lord Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and through him we are.

But not everyone has the same knowledge; for some, who until now are conscious because of the idol, of eating things that have been sacrificed to the idol, still eat them; therefore, their conscience being weak, it is defiled.

But meat does not make us pleasing to God; for if we eat, we have no more; and if we do not eat, we have no less.

But beware that this freedom you have should not somehow be a scandal to the weak.

For if someone sees you, who have knowledge, eating at the temple of idols, will not the conscience of the weak be led to eat things sacrificed to the idol?

And so your brother, who is weak, for whom Christ died, will perish by your knowledge.

But when you sin in this way against your brothers and wound their weak conscience, you sin against Christ.

Therefore, if meat offends my brother, I will never eat meat, so as not to offend my brother.

Am I not an Apostle? Am I not free? Have I not seen our Lord Jesus Christ? Are you not my workmanship to the Lord?

If I am not an Apostle to others, I am at least one to you; for you are the seal of my Apostleship to the Lord.

This is my defense of those who condemn me.

Don't we have the power to eat and drink?

Do we not have the power to bring along with us a sister woman, as well as the other Apostles, and the brothers of the Lord, and Cephas?

Are Barnabas and I the only ones who lack the power to stop working?

Who ever goes to war at their own expense? Who plants a vine and does not eat its fruit? Who tends a flock and does not drink the milk of the flock?

Do I say these things according to man? Does not the law say the same thing?

For it is written in the Law of Moses: You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain. [But] does God care for oxen?

And did he not say these things entirely for us? Indeed, they are written for us; for he who plows should plow in hope, and he who threshes should thresh in hope of sharing in the harvest.

If we have sown spiritual gifts, is it much that we reap from your earthly gifts?

And if others use this power against you, why should we not use it rather than them?

Yet we have not used this power, but on the contrary we endure all kinds of hardships, so as not to hinder the gospel of Christ in any way.

Do you not know that those who do sacred things eat of what is sacred, and those who serve at the altar partake of what is offered at the altar?

The Lord has nevertheless ordained that those who proclaim the Gospel should live by the Gospel.

However, I have not taken advantage of any of these things, and I am not even writing this so that it may be treated in this way towards me, for I would rather die than see someone destroy my glory.

For although I preach the gospel, I have no reason to boast; because necessity is laid upon me; and woe to me if I do not preach the gospel!

But if I do it willingly, I will have the reward; but if it is reluctantly, I am only fulfilling the commission that was given to me.

What reward do I have for this? It is that in preaching the gospel, I preach the gospel of Christ without incurring any expense, so that I may not abuse my power in the gospel.

For although I am free from all, I have nevertheless become a slave to all, in order to gain more people.

And I became like a Jew to the Jews, in order to win the Jews; like a Jew to those under the Law, in order to win those under the Law; To those who are without the Law, as though I were without the Law (though I am not without the Law of God, but am under the Law of Christ), in order to win those who are without the Law.

I became weak to the weak, in order to win the weak; I became all things to all people, so that I might absolutely save some.

And I do this for the sake of the Gospel, so that I too may share in its blessings with others.

Don't you know that when people run in a race, everyone runs well, but only one wins the prize? Run so hard that you win it.

But everyone who strives lives entirely by the regime; and they do it to have a crown that will not last, but we do it to have an imperishable one.

So I run, [but] not without knowing how; I fight, [but] not as if beating the air.

But I mortify my body and submit it to myself, lest after preaching to others I myself should somehow be found inadmissible.

But my brothers, I do not want you to be unaware that our fathers were all under the cloud, and that they all passed through the sea;

And that they were all baptized by Moses in the cloud and in the sea;

And that they all ate of the same spiritual meat;

And they all drank of the same spiritual drink: for they drank [water] from the spiritual stone that followed them; and the stone was Christ.

But God did not take pleasure in many of them, for they were overwhelmed in the wilderness.

But these things were examples for you, so that we would not covet evil things, as they coveted them;

And that you do not become idolaters, as some of them were; as it is written: The people sat down to eat and drink, and then rose up to play.

And so that we would not give in to fornication, as some of them did, and in one day twenty-three thousand of them fell.

And that we should not test Christ, as some of them did, and were destroyed by serpents.

And do not murmur, as some of them murmured, and were destroyed by the destroyer.

All these things happened to them as examples, and they are written for our instruction, as those to whom the last days have come.

Therefore, let him who thinks he will remain standing take heed lest he fall.

No temptation has overtaken you except what is common to mankind. And God is faithful; he will not let you be tempted beyond what you can bear. But when you are tempted, he will also provide a way out so that you can endure it.

Therefore, my beloved, flee from idolatry.

I am speaking to you as if you were intelligent people; judge for yourselves what I say.

The cup of blessing, which we bless, is it not a participation in the blood of Christ? And the bread which we break, is it not a participation in the body of Christ?

Because there is only one loaf, we, who are many, are one body; for we all partake of the one loaf.

Consider Israel according to the flesh: those who eat the sacrifices, are they not partakers of the altar?

What am I saying then? That the idol is something? Or that what is sacrificed to the idol is something? [No].

But I say that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God; and I do not want you to be partakers with demons.

You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons; you cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

Do we want to incite the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than him?
All things are permissible for me, but not all things are proper; all things are permissible for me, but not all things build up.
Let no one seek what is his own, but let each one seek what is for others.
Eat whatever is sold at the butcher's, without worrying about it for the sake of your conscience:
For the earth belongs to the Lord, with all that is in it.
If someone from the unbelievers invites you, and you want to go, eat whatever is put before you without asking about it for your conscience.
But if someone tells you, 'This is sacrificed to idols,' do not eat it, both because of the one who warned you and because of conscience; for the earth is the Lord's, and everything in it.
But I am talking about conscience, not yours, but that of the other; for why should my freedom be condemned by the conscience of another?
And if by grace I am a partaker in it, why am I blamed [for something] for which I give thanks?
So whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do it all to the glory of God.
So be in such a way that you do not cause any offense to Jews, Greeks, or the Church of God.
As I also please everyone in all things, not seeking my own advantage, but that of many, so that they may be saved.
Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ.
Now, my brothers, I commend you for remembering all things concerning me, and for keeping my ordinances, as I gave them to you.
But I want you to know that the head of every man is Christ, and the head of a woman is man, and the head of Christ is God.
Every man who prays or prophesies with something on his head dishonors his head.
But every woman who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered dishonors her head—it is just as if her head were shaved.
If a woman does not cover her hair, let her hair be cut off. But if it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut off or to have her head shaved, then let her cover her hair.
For as for man, he ought not to cover his head, since he is the image and glory of God; but woman is the glory of man.
Because man was not [taken] from woman, but woman [was taken] from man.
And also, man was not created for woman, but woman for man.
That is why a woman, because of the angels, must have a mark on her head that she is under the power [of her husband].
However, neither man is without woman, nor woman without man, in our Lord.
For as woman is from man, so man is from woman; but all things proceed from God.
Judge for yourselves: Is it proper for a woman to pray to God with her head uncovered?
Does not nature itself teach you that if a man nourishes his hair, it brings him dishonor?
But if a woman nourishes her hair, that is to her glory, because her hair is given to her as a covering.
If anyone likes to dispute, we have no such custom, nor do the churches of God.
But in what I am about to tell you, I am not praising you: it is that your assemblies are not better regulated than they were; they are less so.
For firstly, when you come together in the church, I hear that there are divisions among you; and I believe some of them:
For there must even be heresies among you, so that those who are worthy of approval may be revealed among you.
Therefore, when you all gather together [in this way], it is not eating the Lord's Supper.

Because when it comes to eating, each person eats their own supper in advance, so that one is hungry, and the other enjoys a good meal.

Do you not have houses to eat and drink in? Or do you despise the church of God and shame those who have nothing? What shall I say to you? Shall I praise you? I do not praise you in this.

For I received from the Lord what I also gave to you; that the Lord Jesus, on the night he was betrayed, took bread;

And after giving thanks he broke it, and said: Take, eat: this is my body [which is] broken for you; do this in remembrance of me.

Likewise, after supper he took the cup, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood; do this, whenever you drink it, in remembrance of me."

For whenever you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes.

Therefore, whoever eats of this bread, or drinks of the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner, will be guilty of sinning against the body and blood of the Lord. Let each one therefore examine himself, and so eat of this bread, and drink of this cup;

For he who eats and drinks it unworthily, eats and drinks his condemnation, not distinguishing the body of the Lord.

And that is why many among you are weak and sick, and many are asleep.

For if we judged ourselves, we would not be judged.

But when we are judged, we are taught by the Lord, so that we will not be condemned with the world.

Therefore, my brothers, when you come together to eat, wait for one another.

And if anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, so that you will not come together to be condemned. As for the other matters, I will give orders when I arrive.

Now concerning spiritual gifts, I do not want you to be ignorant, my brothers.

You know that you were Gentiles, led after mute idols, according to who you were led.

Therefore I want you to know that no one speaking by the Spirit of God says that Jesus must be rejected; and that no one can say except by the Holy Spirit, that Jesus is Lord.

Now there are different kinds of gifts, but there is only one Spirit.

There is also a diversity of ministries, but there is only one Lord.

There are also different kinds of operations; but there is only one God, who works all things in everyone.

But to each one is given the light of the Spirit to procure the [common] benefit.

For to one is given through the Spirit the utterance of wisdom, and to another through the same Spirit the utterance of knowledge;

And to another, faith by that same Spirit; to another, gifts of healing by that same Spirit;

And to another, the working of miracles; to another, prophecy; to another, the gift of discerning spirits; to another, various kinds of tongues; and to another, the gift of interpreting tongues.

But one and the same Spirit does all these things, distributing to each one his gifts as he sees fit.

For just as the body is one, and yet has many members, but all the members of this body, which is one, though many, are one body, so it is with Christ.

For we were all baptized by one Spirit into one body—whether Jews or Greeks, slave or free—we were all given the same Spirit to drink.

Because the body is not a single limb, but several.

If the foot says, 'Because I am not the hand, I do not belong to the body,' does it not nevertheless belong to the body?

And if the ear says, 'Because I am not the eye, I do not belong to the body,' does it not nevertheless belong to the body?

If the whole body is the eye, where will hearing be? If everything is hearing, where will smell be?

But now God has placed each member in the body, just as he wanted.

And if they were all one single member, where would the body be?

But now there are several members, however there is only one body.

And the eye cannot say to the hand, "I have no use for you"; nor can the head say to the feet, "I have no use for you."

What's more, the body parts that appear to be the weakest are much more necessary.

And those parts of the body that we consider to be the least honorable, we adorn with more care, and the parts of us that are the least beautiful to see are the most adorned.

For the parts that are beautiful in us do not need it; but God has brought this disposition into our body, that he has given more honor to what lacked it;

So that there may be no division in the body, but that its members may have mutual care for one another.

And whether one of the members suffers anything, all the members suffer with him; or whether one of the members is honored, all the members together rejoice.

Now you are the body of Christ, and each one of you is a member of it.

And God placed in the Church, first of all, Apostles, then Prophets, thirdly Teachers, then miracles, then gifts of healing, aid, governments, and various tongues.

Are they all Apostles? Are they all Prophets? Are they all Teachers? Do they all have the gift of miracles?

Do all have healing gifts? Do all speak [various] languages? Do all interpret?

But earnestly desire more excellent gifts, and I will show you a way that surpasses even these.

If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but do not have love, I am only a resounding gong or a clanging cymbal.

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing.

And if I give away all my possessions to feed the poor, and if I give my body to be burned, but do not have charity, it profits me nothing.

Charity is patient; it is gentle; charity is not envious; charity is not insolent; it is not proud;

She does not behave dishonestly; she does not seek her own gain; she does not become bitter; she does not think evil;

She does not rejoice in injustice, but she rejoices in the truth;

She endures everything, she believes everything, she hopes for everything, she bears everything.

Love never fails, but prophecies will cease, tongues will be stilled, and knowledge will pass away.

For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

But when perfection has come, then what is partly will be abolished.

When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I judged like a child, I thought like a child; but when I became a man, I abolished what was childish.

For now we see dimly in a mirror, but then we shall see face to face; now I know in part, but then I shall know fully, even as I am fully known.

Now these three remain: faith, hope, and love; but the greatest of these is love.

Seek charity. Eagerly desire spiritual gifts, but especially to prophesy.

Because the one who speaks in an [unknown] tongue does not speak to men, but to God; for no one understands him, and the mysteries he utters are for himself alone.

But the one who prophesies edifies, exhorts, and comforts those who hear him.

He who speaks in an [unknown] tongue edifies himself, but he who prophesies edifies the church.

I would like you to speak in all tongues, but even more that you prophesy, for the one who prophesies is greater than the one who speaks in tongues, except to interpret, so that the church may be edified.

Now then, my brothers, if I come to you and speak in tongues, what good will that do you unless I speak to you by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophecy, or by teaching?

Similarly, if inanimate things that produce sound, whether an oboe or a harp, do not form different tones, how will we know what is being sounded on the oboe, or on the harp?

And if the trumpet makes a sound that cannot be heard, who will prepare for battle?

Likewise, if you do not speak in your language a word that can be heard, how will anyone hear what is being said? For you will be speaking into the air.

There are, depending on where one encounters them, so many different sounds in the world, and yet none of these sounds is mute.

But if I do not know what is meant by the word, I will be a barbarian to the one who speaks; and the one who speaks will be a barbarian to me.

Therefore, since you earnestly desire spiritual gifts, seek to acquire them abundantly for the building up of the church.

Therefore, let the one who speaks an [unknown] language pray in such a way that he may interpret.

For if I pray in an [unknown] tongue, my spirit prays, but the understanding I have of it is fruitless.

What then? I will pray in spirit, but I will also pray in a way that will be heard; I will sing in spirit, but I will also sing in a way that will be heard.

Otherwise, if you bless with your spirit, how can someone who is from the common people say "Amen" to your thanksgiving, since they do not know what you are saying?

It is true that you give thanks; but another is not edified by it.

I thank my God that I speak more tongues than all of you.

But I would rather speak five words in the church in a way that is understood, so that I may instruct others also, than ten thousand words in an [unknown] tongue.

My brothers, do not be children in wisdom, but be little children in malice; and in wisdom, be mature men.

It is written in the Law: I will speak to this people by people of another tongue, and by foreign lips; and so they will not understand me, says the Lord.

That is why tongues are for a sign, not to the believers, but to the disbelievers; prophecy, on the other hand, [is a sign] not to the disbelievers, but to the believers.

If then the whole church comes together as one body, and all speak in foreign tongues, and commoners or unbelievers come in, will they not say that you are out of your minds?

But if all prophesy, and an unbeliever or an ordinary person enters, he is convicted by all and judged by all.

And so the secrets of his heart are revealed, so that he will fall on his face and worship God, and he will proclaim that God is truly among you.

What then will it be, my brothers? It is that whenever you come together, according to what each of you has, either a Psalm, or a teaching, or a [foreign] tongue, or a revelation, or an interpretation, let all be done for the building up of the church.

And if anyone speaks an [unknown] tongue, let it be done by two, or at most by three, and in turns; but let there be one who interprets.

If there is no interpreter, let [this man] remain silent in the Church, and speak to himself and to God.

Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others judge.

And if something is revealed to another who is sitting, let the first one remain silent.

For you can all prophesy one after another, so that all may learn and all may be comforted.

And the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets.

For God is not a [God] of confusion, but of peace, as [is seen] in all the churches of the saints.

Let the women who are among you remain silent in the churches; for they are not permitted to speak, but [they must] be submissive, as the Law also says.

And if they want to learn something, let them ask their husbands at home; for it is improper for women to speak in the church.

Did the word of God originate from you? Or did it only reach you?

If anyone thinks he is a prophet or spiritual being, let him acknowledge that the things I am writing to you are the commandments of the Lord.

And if anyone is ignorant, let him remain ignorant.

Therefore, my brothers, be eager to prophesy, and do not forbid speaking in tongues.

Let all things be done properly and in order.

Now, my brothers, I make known to you the Gospel which I preached to you, which you received, and to which you stand firm;

And by which you are saved, if you hold fast to the word I preached to you; unless you have believed in vain.

For first of all, I gave you what I also received, [namely], that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures;

And that he was buried, and that he was raised on the third day, according to the Scriptures;

And that he was seen by Cephas, and then by the Twelve.

Since then, he has been seen by more than five hundred brothers at one time, several of whom are still alive, and some have died.

Then he was seen by James, and then by all the Apostles.

And after all, he was seen by me too, as an abortion.

For I am the least of the apostles, unworthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.

But by the grace of God I am what I am; and his grace toward me was not in vain, but I worked much harder than all of them; yet not I, but the grace of God that is with me.

So it is either I or they who preach this, and you believed it.

But if it is preached that Christ has risen from the dead, how can some of you say that there is no resurrection of the dead?

For if there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised either.

And if Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is useless and so is your faith.

And indeed we are false witnesses from God: for we have testified from God that he raised Christ from the dead; but he did not raise him unless the dead are raised.

For if the dead are not raised, then Christ has not been raised either.

And if Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile; you are still in your sins.

Therefore, those who sleep in Christ are also perishing.

If our hope in Christ is only for this life, we are the most miserable of all men.

But now Christ has been raised from the dead, and has become the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep.

For since death came through one man, the resurrection of the dead also came through one man.

For as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will be made alive.

But each in his own order, the firstfruits are Christ; then those who belong to Christ [will be made alive] at his coming.

And after that will come the end, when he has handed over the Kingdom to God the Father, and when he has abolished every empire, and every power, and every strength.

For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet.

The enemy that will be destroyed last is death.

For [God] has subjected all things under his feet; but when it is said that all things are subject to him, it is evident that he who subjected all things to him is excepted.

And after all things have been subjected to him, then the Son himself will also be subjected to him who put all things under him, so that God may be all in all.

Otherwise, what will those who are baptized for the dead do, if the dead absolutely do not rise? Why then are they baptized for the dead?

Why are we in danger at all hours?

Through our glory which I have in our Lord Jesus Christ, I die day by day.

If I fought wild beasts at Ephesus for human reasons, what did I gain if the dead are not raised? Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die.

Do not be seduced: bad company corrupts good morals.

Wake up [to live] righteously, and do not sin; for some do not know God; I say this to your shame.

But someone will ask, how are the dead raised, and in what body will they come?

O fool! What you sow will not be brought to life unless it dies.

And as for what you sow, you do not sow the body that will be born, but the naked grain, as it may be found, of wheat, or of some other grain.

But God gives it the body as he wants, and to each seed its own body.

Not all flesh is the same kind; but there is one kind of flesh of men, and another kind of flesh of beasts, and another kind of flesh of fish, and another kind of flesh of birds.

[There are] also celestial bodies and terrestrial bodies; but the glory of the celestial bodies is one thing, and the glory of the terrestrial bodies is another.

The glory of the sun is one thing, and the glory of the moon is another, and the glory of the stars is another; for one star is different from another star in glory.

It will be the same in the resurrection of the dead; [the body] is sown in corruption, it will be raised incorruptible.

It is sown in dishonor, it will rise in glory; it is sown in weakness, it will rise in strength.

It is sown a natural body, it will be raised a spiritual body: there is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

As it is also written: the first man Adam was made a living soul; and the last Adam a life-giving spirit.

But that which is spiritual is not first: but that which is animal; and then that which is spiritual.

The first man was of the earth, he was taken from the dust; but the second man, [namely] the Lord, [is] from Heaven.

As is he who is taken from the dust, so are those who are taken from the dust; and as is the heavenly one, so are the heavenly ones.

And as we have borne the image of him who was taken from the dust, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly one.

So this is what I say, my brothers, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, nor does corruption inherit incorruptibility.

Listen, I tell you a mystery: we will not all sleep, but we will all be transformed;

In a moment, and in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet, for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will rise incorruptible, and we will be transformed.

For this corruptible must put on incorruptibility, and this mortal must put on immortality.

But when this corruptible has put on incorruptibility, and this mortal has put on immortality, then this saying of Scripture will be fulfilled: death is destroyed by victory.

Where, O death, is your sting? Where, O tomb, is your victory?

Now the sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law.

But thanks be to God, who gave us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved brothers, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your labor is not in vain before the Lord.

Concerning the collection which is made for the Saints, do as I have commanded the Churches of Galatia.

This is because on the first day of each week, each of you should set aside in his own house what he can gather according to the prosperity [that God grants him], so that when I come there will be no need for collections.

Then when I arrive, I will send those whom you approve in your letters to carry your generosity to Jerusalem.

And if it is appropriate for me to go myself, they will come with me as well.

So I will come to you, having passed through Macedonia; for I will pass through Macedonia.

And perhaps I will stay among you, or even spend the winter there; so that you may guide me wherever I go.

For I do not wish to see you now in passing, but I hope that I may stay with you for a while, if the Lord permits.

However, I will remain in Ephesus until Pentecost.

For a great door, [and of great] effectiveness, is opened to me there, but there are many adversaries.

But if Timothy comes, see that he is safe among you; for he is doing the work of the Lord just as I am.

Therefore, let no one despise him; but bring him safely, so that he may come to me; for I am expecting him with the brothers.

As for Apollos our brother, I have earnestly begged him to come to you with the brothers, but he has not been willing to go now: however, he will go when he has the opportunity.

Be watchful, be steadfast in the faith, be courageous, be strong.

Let all your dealings be done in charity.

Now, my brothers, you know the family of Stephanas, [and you know] that they are the first converts of Achaia, and that they have devoted themselves entirely to the service of the saints;

I urge you to submit to them, and to each one of those who are engaged in the work [of the Lord], and who work with us.

But I rejoice at the coming of Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaica; because they have made up for what you cannot do for me.

For they have recreated my mind and yours: therefore, have consideration for such people.

The churches of Asia greet you. Aquila and Priscilla, together with the church in their house, send you affectionate greetings in our Lord.

All the brothers greet you. Greet one another with a holy kiss.

The greeting [is] in my own hand, Paul.

If there is anyone who does not love the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be anathema, Maranatha.

May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you!

My love extends to all of you in Jesus Christ. Amen.

Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, to the church of God which is in Corinth, with all the saints who are in all Achaia;

Grace and peace be given to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Blessed be God, who is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort;

Who comforts us in all our affliction, so that with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God, we may be able to comfort those who are in any affliction.

For as we share abundantly in the sufferings of Christ, so also our comfort abounds through Christ.

And whether we are afflicted, it is for your consolation and for your salvation, which comes about by enduring the same sufferings that we also endure; or whether we are comforted, it is for your consolation and for your salvation.

But our hope for you is firm, knowing that as you share in our sufferings, so also you will share in our comfort.

For, my brothers, we want you to know about our affliction, which befell us in Asia, that we were burdened exceedingly beyond what we could carry, so that we lost the hope of preserving our lives.

For we considered ourselves as though we had received the sentence of death in ourselves, so that we might not trust in ourselves, but in God who raises the dead; And who has delivered us from such a great death, and who delivers us from it; and in whom we hope that he will deliver us from it again in the future.

We are also helped by your prayers for us, so that many may give thanks for us because of the gift that has been given to us for the benefit of many.

For this is our glory, [namely] the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, and not with carnal wisdom, but according to the grace of God, we conversed in the world, and especially with you.

For we are not writing you anything other than what you read, and which you already know; and I hope that you will recognize them also to the end.

As you have partially acknowledged, we are your glory, just as you are ours, for the day of the Lord Jesus.

And in such confidence I wanted first to go to you, so that you might have a second grace;

And go from your home to Macedonia, and from Macedonia come back to you, and be led by you into Judea.

But when I proposed this to myself, did I act lightly? Or do I think the things I think according to the flesh, so that there was both yes and no within me?

But God is faithful, that our word which I have spoken to you was not yes and no.

For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached by us among you—by me, by Silvanus, and by Timothy—was not “yes” and “no,” but in him it was “yes.”

For as many as there are promises of God, they are yes in him, and amen in him, to the glory of God through us.

Now it is God who makes both us and you stand firm in Christ and has anointed us.

Who also sealed us, and gave us the Spirit as a deposit, guaranteeing what is to come, in our hearts.

But I call God to witness on my soul that it was to spare you that I have not yet gone to Corinth.

Not that we have dominion over your faith, but we work with you for your joy, because you have remained steadfast in the faith.

But I had resolved within myself not to return to you with sadness.

For if I cause you sorrow, who will make me glad, except the one I myself have grieved?

And I have even written this to you, so that when I arrive, I will not be saddened by those from whom I should have received joy, assuring myself of all of you that my joy is yours.

For I wrote to you out of great affliction and anguish of heart, with many tears; not so that you should be grieved, but so that you might know the very special love that I have for you.

If anyone was the cause of this sadness, it is not me [alone] whom he has grieved, but in a way (so that I do not burden him) it is all of you [whom he has grieved]. That's enough for such a [man], this censure [that has been made against him] by many.

So you should rather show him mercy and comfort him, so that such a man will not be overwhelmed by too much sorrow.

Therefore, I ask you to confirm your charity towards him.

For this is also why I have written to you, to test you and to know whether you are obedient in everything.

Now to the one whom you forgive anything, I also forgive: for if I have forgiven anything to the one whom I have forgiven, I have done it for your sake in the presence of Christ.

So that Satan may not prevail over us: for we are not unaware of his schemes.

Moreover, having come to Troas for the gospel of Christ, although the door was opened to me there by the Lord,

Yet I had no respite in my mind, because I did not find Titus my brother; but having taken leave of them, I came to Macedonia.

But thanks be to God, who always leads us in triumph in Christ, and through us manifests everywhere the fragrance of the knowledge of him.

For we are the pleasing aroma of Christ [from] God, in those who are being saved and in those who are perishing:

To some, a deadly odor that kills them; and to others, a life-giving odor that leads them to life. But who is sufficient for these things?

For we do not falsify the word of God, as so many do; but we speak of Christ with sincerity, as from God and before God.

Are we starting to recommend ourselves again? Or do we, like some others, need letters of recommendation to you, or letters of recommendation from you?

You yourselves are our Epistle, written on our hearts, known and read by all men.

For it appears in you that you are the Epistle of Christ, prepared by our ministry, and written not with ink, but by the Spirit of the living God; not on tablets of stone, but on the fleshly tablets of the heart.

But we have such confidence in God through Christ.

Not that we are capable of thinking something on our own, as if on our own, but our ability comes from God;

Who has also made us competent to be ministers of the New Testament, not of the letter, but of the spirit; for the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life.

But if the ministry of death, [written] with letters, and engraved on stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not look upon the face of Moses, because of the glory of his face, which was to end;

How could the ministry of the Spirit not be more glorious?

For if the ministry of condemnation was glorious, the ministry of justice surpasses it by far in glory.

And even the [first ministry], which was glorious, was not as glorious as the [second], which surpasses it by far in glory.

For if what was destined to end was glorious, what is permanent is far more glorious.

Having such a hope, we speak with great boldness.

And we are not like Moses, who put a veil over his face, so that the children of Israel would not look at the end of what was to come.

But their minds are hardened; for to this day the same veil which was abolished by Christ remains in the reading of the Old Testament, without being removed.

But even today, when we read Moses, the veil remains over their hearts.

But when he has turned to the Lord, the veil will be removed.

Now the Lord is that Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom.

So we all, who behold the glory of the Lord unveiled, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another. For this comes from the Spirit of the Lord.

Therefore, having this Ministry according to the mercy we have received, we do not slacken.

But we have utterly rejected shameful and dishonorable things, walking not in deceit, nor falsifying the word of God, but by the manifestation of the truth we are commended to every conscience of men in the sight of God.

If our Gospel is still veiled, it is veiled only to those who are perishing.

Whose minds the God of this age has blinded, [that is], of the unbelievers, so that the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God, may not shine upon them.

For we do not preach ourselves, but Jesus Christ the Lord; and we declare that we are your servants for Jesus' sake.

For God, who said that light should shine out of darkness, is the one who has shone in our hearts to reveal the knowledge of the glory of God that is in Christ Jesus.

But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, so that the excellence of this power may be from God and not from us.

Being afflicted in every respect, but not entirely confined; being perplexed, but not without help.

Being persecuted, but not abandoned; being struck down, but not lost.

Always carrying around in our body the death of the Lord Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested in our body.

For we who live are always given over to death for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested in our mortal flesh.

So that death unfolds within us, but life within you.

Now having the same spirit of faith, as it is written: I believed, therefore I spoke; we also believe, and therefore we speak.

Knowing that he who raised the Lord Jesus from the dead will also raise us through Jesus and bring us to appear with you in his presence.

For all things are for you, so that this great grace may abound to the glory of God, through the thanksgiving of many.

That is why we do not become sluggish; but although our outer self is decayed, nevertheless our inner self is being renewed day by day.

For our light affliction, which is but passing away, produces in us an eternal weight of supremely excellent glory:

When we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are unseen; for the things which are seen are but for a time, but the things which are unseen are eternal.

For we know that if our earthly dwelling of [this] tent is destroyed, we have a building from God, [namely] an eternal house in Heaven, which is not made with hands.

For this is also why we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed in our dwelling place, which is Heaven:

If, however, we are found clothed, and not naked.

For we who are in this tent groan, being burdened; for we desire not to be unclothed, but to be clothed, so that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life.

But it is God who has formed us for this very purpose; who has also given us the Spirit as a deposit, guaranteeing our faith.

Therefore we always have confidence; and we know that, dwelling in this body, we are absent from the Lord;

For we walk by faith, not by sight.

We have confidence, I say, and we would rather be away from this body and be with the Lord.

That is why we also strive to be pleasing to him, both present and absent.

For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive in his body what he has done, whether good or evil.

Knowing therefore how much the Lord is to be feared, we appeal to men for faith, and we are manifested to God, and I also expect that we are manifested in your consciences.

For we are not commending ourselves to you again, but we are giving you an opportunity to boast about us, so that you may have something to say to those who boast about appearances and not about the heart.

For whether we are in ecstasy [we are united] with God; or whether we are of sound mind, [we are united] with you.

Because the love of Christ unites us closely, holding this to be certain, that if one died for all, all also died;

And that he died for all, so that those who live might henceforth not live for themselves, but for him who died and rose again for them.

Therefore, from now on we regard no one according to the flesh, even though we once regarded Christ according to the flesh, yet we regard him no longer [in that way] now.

Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, the new creation has come: The old has gone, the new is here!

All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Jesus Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation.

For God was in Christ reconciling the world to himself, not counting their sins against them, and has committed to us the message of reconciliation.

We are therefore Christ's ambassadors, as though God were making his appeal to you through our ministry; we implore you, therefore, for Christ's sake, to be reconciled to God.

For he made him who knew no sin to be sin for us, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God.

Therefore, since we are his co-workers, we ask you that you have not received God's grace in vain.

For he says: I heard you in the time of favor and helped you in the day of salvation; behold, now is the time of favor, behold, now is the day of salvation.

Giving no scandal in any way, so that [our] ministry may not be blamed.

But we commend ourselves in all things as servants of God, in great endurance, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses,

In injuries, in prisons, in unrest, in labor,

Through vigils, fasting, and purity; through knowledge, patience, gentleness, the Holy Spirit, and sincere love,

By the word of truth, by the power of God, by the weapons of righteousness which are in the right hand and in the left hand.

Amidst honor and ignominy, amidst slander and good reputation.

As seducers, and yet being true; as unknown, and yet being recognized; as dying, and behold we live; as punished, and yet not put to death;

As if saddened, yet always joyful; as if poor, yet enriching many; as if having nothing, yet possessing all things.

O Corinthians! Our mouth is open to you, our heart is wide open.

You are not cramped within us, but you are cramped within your own bowels.

But to treat us in the same way (I speak to you as to my children) also be kind to us.

Do not bear a yoke with unbelievers; for what partnership has righteousness with wickedness? And what fellowship has light with darkness?

And what agreement does Christ have with Belial? Or what does a believer have in common with an unbeliever?

And what agreement is there between the Temple of God and idols? For you are the Temple of the living God, as God has said: I will dwell among them and walk among them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

Therefore, come out from among them and separate yourselves from them, says the Lord; and touch nothing unclean, and I will receive you; And I will be a father to you, and you will be my sons and daughters, says the Lord Almighty.

Therefore, [my] beloved, since we have such promises, let us cleanse ourselves from every defilement of body and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

Receive us, we have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, we have plundered no one.

I do not say this to condemn you: for I have already told you that you are in our hearts to die and to live together.

I have great freedom with you, I have great reason to boast about you; I am filled with comfort, I am full of joy in all our affliction.

For after coming to Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were afflicted in every way; [having] battles outside, and fears within.

But God, who comforts the downcast, comforted us through the coming of Titus.

And not only by his coming, but also by the consolation he received from you; for he told us of your great desire, your tears, your ardent affection for me; so that I rejoiced exceedingly.

For although I grieved you with my Epistle, I do not repent of it, although I had [already] repented, because I see that if this Epistle grieved you, it was only for a short time.

Therefore, I rejoice now, not that you were grieved, but that you were saddened to repentance; for you were grieved in a godly way, so that you suffered no loss from us.

For godly sorrow produces repentance leading to salvation, from which there is no regret; but worldly sorrow produces death.

For behold, this very thing which grieved you according to God, what care did it not produce in you? What satisfaction? What indignation? What fear? What great desire? What zeal? What vengeance? You showed yourselves pure in every way in this matter.

Therefore, whatever I have written to you, it was not because of the one who committed the sin, nor because of the one against whom it was committed, but to show among you the care that I have for you before God.

That is why we were comforted by what you did for our comfort; but we rejoiced even more for the joy that Titus had, because his spirit was recreated by all of you.

Because if in anything I boasted about you in what I said to him, I was not ashamed; but as we have told you all things according to the truth, so what I boasted about [you in what I said] to Titus has turned out to be the very truth.

Therefore, when he remembers the obedience of all of you, and how you received him with fear and trembling, his affection for you is much greater.

Therefore, I rejoice that in all things I can be assured of you.

Furthermore, my brothers, we want you to know about the grace that God has given to the churches of Macedonia.

This is because, in the midst of their great trial of affliction, their joy was increased, and their profound poverty was transformed into riches by their prompt generosity.

For I am a witness that they gave willingly according to their ability, and even beyond their ability.

We earnestly pray that we may receive the grace and communication of this contribution in favor of the Saints:

And they did not only as we had hoped, but they gave themselves first of all to the Lord, and then to us, by the will of God.

So that we may urge Titus to complete this grace toward you, just as he had begun before.

Therefore, as you abound in everything—in faith, in speech, in knowledge, in all diligence, and in the love you have for us—give abound also in this grace.

I do not say this as a command, but also to test the sincerity of your charity by the diligence of others.

For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, so that you through his poverty might become rich.

And in this I give you this advice, because it is appropriate for you, that having not only already begun to act [for this Collection], but having even had the will since last year;

You were now finishing it; so that, as you were quick to desire it, you might also accomplish it according to your ability.

For if promptness of will precedes, one is pleasing according to what one has, and not according to what one does not have.

But this is not so that others may be relieved and you be trampled upon, but so that it may be for the sake of equality.

Therefore, let your abundance now supply their need, so that their abundance may also serve your need, and thus there may be equality.

As it is written: he who had much did not have superfluity; and he who had little did not have less.

But thanks be to God, who has put the same concern for you in the heart of Titus; He received my exhortation very well, and being himself very affectionate, he went to you of his own accord.

And we also sent with him the brother whose praise, which he has earned in the preaching of the gospel, is spreading throughout all the churches:

(And not only that, but he has also been appointed by the Churches as our traveling companion, for this grace which is administered by us to the glory of the Lord himself, [and to serve] the promptness of your zeal.)

giving us caution so that no one takes us back from this abundance which is administered by us.

And providing what is good, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.

We also sent with them our [other] brother, whom we have often found to be diligent in many things, and now even more diligent, because of the great confidence [he has] in you.

So then, as for Titus, he is my partner and fellow worker among you; and as for our brothers, they are messengers of the churches and the glory of Christ.

Therefore, show them and the churches proof of your love, and of the reason we have to boast about you.

Because writing to you about the collection being made for the Saints would be superfluous for me.

Since I know the promptness of your zeal, in which I boast of you before those of Macedonia, [making them understand] that Achaia was ready last year; and your zeal has stirred up many.

But I sent these brothers so that what I boasted about you in would not be in vain on this occasion, and that you would be ready, as I said.

Lest those from Macedonia, coming with me, and not finding you ready, should be ashamed (not to mention you yourselves) of the confidence with which we have boasted about you.

That is why I thought it necessary to ask the brothers to go first to you, and to finish preparing your benefice which you have already promised; so that it may be ready as a benefice, and not as a stinginess.

But I tell you this: whoever sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and whoever sows generously will also reap generously.

[But] let each one [contribute] according to what he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion; for God loves a cheerful giver.

And God is able to make grace abound in you, so that, always having all sufficiency in everything, you may abound in every good work:

As it is written: he has scattered his blessings, he has given to the poor; his righteousness endures forever.

Now he who supplies seed to the sower will surely give you bread to eat, and multiply your seed, and increase the revenues of your righteousness.

Being fully enriched to [exercise] perfect liberality, for which we give thanks to God.

For the administration of this offering is not only sufficient to meet the needs of the Saints, but it also abounds in such a way that many have something to give thanks to God.

Glorifying God for the test they make of this assistance, in that you submit yourselves to the gospel of Christ; and for your prompt and liberal communication to them and to all.

They pray to God for you, and they love you very dearly because of the excellent grace God has given you.

But thanks be to God for his inexpressible gift.

Furthermore, I, Paul, appeal to you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who humble myself when I am with you, but when absent I am bold toward you.

I beg you, I say, that when I am present I should not use boldness, by this assurance with which I intend to act boldly towards some, who regard us as walking according to the flesh.

But walking in the flesh, we do not wage war according to the flesh.

For the weapons of our war are not carnal, but they are powerful [by virtue of] God, for the destruction of strongholds;

Destroying counsels and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of God, and bringing every thought captive to the obedience of Christ;

And having vengeance ready against any disobedience, after your obedience has been complete.

Do you judge things by appearances? If anyone trusts in himself that he belongs to Christ, let him consider this in himself, that as he belongs to Christ, so do we.

For if I want to boast more of our power, which the Lord has given us for building you up, and not for destroying you, I will not be put to shame;

So that it does not seem that I wish to frighten you with my Letters.

For my Letters (they say) are indeed serious and strong, but the presence of the body is weak, and the speech is contemptible.

Let him who is such consider that as we are in word by our Letters, being absent, so also [we are] in fact, being present.

For we dare not associate ourselves or compare ourselves with some who commend themselves; but they do not understand that they measure themselves by themselves and compare themselves with themselves.

But we will not boast about what is beyond our ability; but according to the measure set by God, we will boast that we have reached even to you.

For we do not boast more than necessary, as though we had not reached you; since we have reached you even through the preaching of the gospel of Christ.

Not boasting in what is beyond our ability, [that is], in the works of others; but we have hope that as your faith grows in you, we shall be greatly increased in what has been allotted to us according to the prescribed measure;

Even to evangelize in places beyond yourselves; and not to boast in what has been allotted to others according to the prescribed measure, in things already prepared.

But let him who boasts, boast to the Lord.

For it is not the one who praises himself who is approved, but the one whom the Lord praises.

Would to God that you would bear with me a little in my imprudence; but still, bear with me.

For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; because I have united you to one husband, to present you to Christ as a chaste virgin.

But I fear that, just as the serpent deceived Eve by his cunning, your thoughts also may be corrupted, [turning away] from the simplicity which is in Christ. For if someone were to come and preach to you a Jesus other than the one we preached, or if you were to receive a different spirit from the one you received, or a different gospel from the one you received, would it be good for you to put up with it?

But I believe that I have been in no way less than the most excellent Apostles. Even if I am like someone from the common people in relation to language, I am not [so] in knowledge; but we have been fully revealed in all things to you. Did I commit a fault in humbling myself, so that you might be exalted, because without receiving anything I preached the gospel of God to you?

I plundered the other churches, taking what I needed to support myself in serving you.

And when I was with you, and was in need, I did not slacken from work so as not to be a burden to anyone; for the brothers who came from Macedonia supplied what I lacked; and I kept myself from being a burden to you in any way, and I will keep myself from it again.

The truth of Christ is in me, that this glory will not be taken from me in the lands of Achaia.

Why? Is it because I don't love you? God knows!

But what I do, I will do again, to cut off the opportunity to those who seek the opportunity; so that in that in which they boast, they too may be found just as we are.

For such false apostles are deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ.

And this is not surprising: for Satan himself disguises himself as an Angel of light.

It is therefore not a great cause for surprise if his ministers also disguise themselves as ministers of justice; [but] their end will be in accordance with their works.

I say this again, so that no one will think that I am being unwise; or else bear with me as unwise, so that I too may boast a little.

What I am about to say, in relating the subjects on which I should boast, I will not say according to the Lord, but as if imprudently.

Since many boast according to the flesh, I too will boast.

For you willingly tolerate the imprudent, because you are wise.

Even if someone enslaves you, if someone eats you, if someone takes [your property], if someone exalts themselves [over you], if someone strikes you in the face, you suffer it.

I say this with shame, even as if we were without any strength; but if in anything anyone dares [to boast] (I speak imprudently) I have the same boldness.

Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I.

Are they ministers of Christ? (I speak as a fool) I am more than they; in labors more, in wounds more than they, in prison more, in deaths more often.

I received from the Jews five times forty blows, minus one.

I was flogged three times; I was stoned once; I was shipwrecked three times; I spent a day and a night in the deep sea.

Often on journeys, in perils of rivers, in perils of brigands, in perils of [my] nation, in perils of the Gentiles, in perils in cities, in perils in deserts, in perils at sea, in perils among false brothers;

In pain and labor, often in vigils, in hunger and thirst, often fasting, in cold and nakedness.

Besides external matters, what keeps me besieged every day is the care I have for all the churches.

Who is weakened that I am not also weakened? Who is scandalized that I am not also consumed by it?

If I must boast, I will boast about the things that are my weakness.

God, who is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and who is blessed forever, knows that I am not lying.

In Damascus, the Governor for King Aretas had placed guards in the city of the Damascenes to capture me;

But I was lowered from the wall in a basket through a window, and thus I escaped from his hands.

Certainly, it is not fitting for me to boast: for I will come to the visions and revelations of the Lord.

I know a man in Christ fourteen years ago (whether it was in the body I do not know; whether it was out of the body I do not know; God knows), who was caught up to the third Heaven.

And I know that such a man (whether in the body or out of the body I do not know; God knows),

He was raptured into paradise, and heard secrets which man is not permitted to reveal.

I will not boast of such a man, but I will not boast of myself, except in my weaknesses.

But if I wanted to boast, I would not be imprudent, for I would speak the truth; but I refrain from doing so, so that no one may esteem me above what he sees me to be, or what he hears said about me.

But lest I should exalt myself because of the surpassing greatness of the revelations, a thorn was given me in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to harass me, [that has been, I say], lest I should exalt myself.

That is why I prayed three times to the Lord, to make [this angel of Satan] depart from me.

But [the Lord] said to me, "My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness." Therefore I will boast all the more gladly about my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may dwell in me.

And for this reason I take pleasure in infirmities, in insults, in hardships, in persecutions, and in difficulties for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then I am strong.

I was imprudent in boasting; [but] you compelled me to do so, for I ought to be commended by you, since I have been no less in anything than the most excellent Apostles, although I am nothing.

Certainly, the signs of my Apostleship were effective among you with all patience, through signs, wonders, and miracles.

For in what way have you been inferior to the other churches, except in that I have not become cowardly in my work to your detriment? Forgive me this wrong.

This is the third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not spare myself from working, so as not to be a burden to you; for I do not ask for your good, but you [that I ask]; therefore it is not children who should store up for their fathers, but fathers for their children.

And as for me, I will spend most willingly, and I will even be spent for your souls; although I love you much more, I am loved less.

But so be it, [it will be said], that I was not a burden to you, but that, being cunning, I caught you by trickery.

Have I then gained any profit from you through any of those I sent to you?

I asked Titus, and I sent one of our brothers with him; but did Titus profit from you? And did we not walk in the same spirit? Did we not walk in the same steps?

Do you still think we were trying to justify ourselves to you? We are speaking before God in Christ, and all of this, dearest ones, is for your edification.

For I fear that when I come, I may not find you as I would like, and I may be found by you as you would not like, and that there may be quarrels, envy, anger, disputes, slander, murmuring, pride, disorder, and sedition among you. And that, having returned [to you], my God should not humble me on your account, so that I should be grieved on account of many who have sinned before, and who have not repented of the impurity, fornication, and immorality of which they have made themselves guilty.

This is the third time I have come to you: every word will be confirmed by the mouth of two or three witnesses.

I have already said it, and I say it again as if I were present for the second time, and now being absent, I write to those who have sinned before, and to all the others, that if I come once more, I will spare no one.

Since you are seeking proof that Christ speaks through me, who is not weak toward you, but powerful in you.

For although he was crucified in weakness, he lives nonetheless by the power of God; and we also suffer [various] infirmities for his sake, but we shall live with him by the power that God has shown toward you.

Examine yourselves to see whether you are in the faith; test yourselves; do you not know that Jesus Christ is in you? unless you were somehow rejected.

But I hope you will know that for us, we are not condemned.

But I pray to God that you do no harm; not so that we may be found approved, but so that you may do what is good, and we may be like those who fail.

For we can do nothing against the truth, but only for the truth.

But we rejoice if we are weak and you are strong; indeed, we desire this, [that is to say] your complete fulfillment.

That is why I am writing these things while I am away, so that when I come I may not use harshness, according to the power the Lord has given me, for building up and not for tearing down.

Finally, my brothers, rejoice, strive to be perfect, be encouraged, be of one mind, live in peace, and the God of love and peace will be with you.

Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the Saints greet you.

May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all; Amen!

Paul the Apostle, not from men nor from any man, but from Jesus Christ and from God the Father, who raised him from the dead;

And all the brothers who are with me, to the churches of Galatia.

Grace and peace be given to you from God the Father and from our Lord Jesus Christ: Who gave himself for our sins, so that according to the will of God our Father, he might rescue us from this present evil age.

To Him be glory forever and ever; Amen!

I am astonished that you have abandoned Christ, who called you by his grace, and have so quickly turned to another gospel.

This is not another [Gospel], but there are people who are troubling you and who want to overturn the Gospel of Christ.

But even if we ourselves [should evangelize you], or if an angel from heaven should evangelize you beyond what we have evangelized you, let him be anathema.

As we have already said, I say again now: if anyone preaches to you a gospel other than what you have received, let him be accursed.

For am I now preaching to men, or to God? Or am I seeking to please men? Certainly, if I were still pleasing men, I would not be a servant of Christ.

But my brothers, I tell you that the gospel I preached is not from a human perspective.

Because I did not receive it from any man, nor was I taught it, but I received it through the revelation of Jesus Christ.

For you have heard of my former conduct in Judaism, how I persecuted the church of God beyond measure and tried to destroy it;

And I advanced in Judaism more than many of my age in my nation; being the most ardent zealot for the traditions of my fathers.
But when it was God's will, who had chosen me from my mother's womb, and who called me by his grace,
To reveal his Son in me, so that I might evangelize him among the Gentiles, I did not begin by taking counsel from flesh and blood;
And I did not return to Jerusalem to those who had been apostles before me, but I went to Arabia, and I returned to Damascus.
Then I returned three years later to Jerusalem to visit Peter, and I stayed with him for fifteen days.
And I saw none of the other Apostles except James, the Lord's brother.
But in the things that I am writing to you, behold, [I tell you] before God, that I am not lying.
I then went to the countries of Syria and Cilicia.
But I was unknown by face to the churches of Judea that were in Christ;
But they had only heard that the one who formerly persecuted us is now preaching the faith he formerly destroyed.
And they glorified God because of me.
After that I went up again to Jerusalem fourteen years later, with Barnabas, and I also took Titus with me.
But I went up there by revelation, and I conferred with those [in Jerusalem] concerning the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, even privately with those who are esteemed, so that in some way I might not run, or would not have run, in vain.
And even Titus, who was with me, was not forced to be circumcised, although he was a Greek.
And it was because of the false brothers who had infiltrated [the Church], and who had entered covertly to spy on our freedom, which we have in Christ Jesus, in order to bring us back into slavery.
And we did not yield to them in any way, not even for a moment, so that the truth of the gospel might remain among you.
And I am not at all different from those who seem to be something, whatever they may have been in the past, (God having no regard for the outward appearance of man) for those who are esteemed have not communicated anything [more] to me.
But, on the contrary, when they saw that the preaching of the gospel of the foreskin was entrusted to me, as that of the circumcision was entrusted to Peter:
(For he who worked effectively through Peter in the office of Apostle to the Circumcision, also worked effectively through me to the Gentiles.)
James, I say, Cephas, and John (who are considered to be the Pillars) having recognized the grace which I had received, gave to me and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, so that we should go to the Gentiles, and they should go to those of the Circumcision; [Recommending us] only to remember the poor; which I have also studied to do.
But when Peter came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face, because he deserved to be rebuked.
For before some came from James, he was eating with the Gentiles; but when they came, he withdrew from them and separated himself, fearing those who were of the Circumcision.
The other Jews also used deceit like him, so much so that Barnabas himself was led astray by their deceit.
But when I saw that they were not walking uprightly according to the truth of the Gospel, I said to Peter in front of them all: If you, being a Jew, live like the Gentiles and not like the Jews, why do you compel the Gentiles to Judaize?
We who are Jews by birth, and not sinners among the Gentiles;
Knowing that a person is not justified by the works of the law, but only by faith in Christ, we, I say, have believed in Christ Jesus, so that we might be justified by faith in Christ and not by the works of the law; because by the works of the law no one will be justified.

But if, in seeking to be justified by Christ, we are also found to be sinners, is Christ nevertheless a minister of sin? God forbid!

For if I were to rebuild the things I have overturned, I would show that I myself have been a wrongdoer.

But through the law I died to the law, so that I might live to God.

I have been crucified with Christ, and I do not now live, but Christ lives in me; and what I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.

I do not nullify the grace of God: for if righteousness comes through the law, then Christ died for nothing.

O foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you to disobey the truth, you to whom Jesus Christ was previously depicted before your eyes, and crucified among you?

I would only like to hear this from you: Did you receive the Spirit by the works of the Law, or by the preaching of faith?

Are you so foolish, that having begun by the Spirit, you are now ending by the flesh?

Have you suffered so much in vain? If indeed it was in vain.

Therefore, does he who gives you the Spirit and works miraculous gifts in you do so by works of the law, or by preaching faith?

Just as Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness;

Also know that those who are of faith are children of Abraham.

Scripture also foresaw that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, and before that he preached the gospel to Abraham, saying to him: all nations shall be blessed in you.

That is why those who are of faith are blessed along with faithful Abraham.

But all who are works of the Law are under a curse; for it is written: Cursed is everyone who does not continue to do all things which are written in the Book of the Law.

Now that no one is justified before God by the Law, this is shown [by what is said]: that the righteous shall live by faith.

But the law is not of faith; but the man who does these things shall live by them.

Christ redeemed us from the curse of the Law when he became a curse for us; (for it is written: cursed is everyone who is hung on a tree.)

So that the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles through Jesus Christ, and that we might receive by faith the promised Spirit.

My brothers, I will speak to you in human terms. If a covenant made by a man is confirmed, no one breaks it or adds to it.

Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring; it does not say, "and to offspring," as though he were speaking of many, but of one, "and to his offspring," who is Christ.

So this is what I say: that the Law, which came four hundred and thirty years later, cannot nullify the covenant which was previously confirmed by God in Christ, so as to abolish the promise.

For if the inheritance is by law, it is not by promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

What then [is the purpose of] the Law? It was added because of transgressions, until the seed [to which] the promise had been made came; and it was ordained by angels through the ministry of a mediator.

But the Mediator is not of one, but God is one.

Was the Law then [added] against the promises of God? Not at all. For if the Law had been given to give life, then righteousness would truly be of the Law.

But Scripture showed that all men were sinners, so that the promise through faith in Jesus Christ might be given to those who believe.

But before faith came, we were held in custody under the Law, being held in custody [under the expectation] of the faith that was to be revealed.

So the Law was our tutor [to bring us] to Christ, so that we might be justified by faith.

But with faith having come, we are no longer under the Pedagogue.

Because you are all children of God through faith in Jesus Christ.

For all of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ;

[Where] there is neither Jew nor Greek; [where] there is neither slave nor free;

[where] there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus.

But if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.

But I say that as long as the heir is a child, he is no different from a servant, although he is Lord of all.

But he is under guardians and curators until the time determined by the father.

We too, when we were children, were enslaved under the rudiments of the world.

But when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of a woman, [and] subject to the Law.

So that he might redeem those who were under the Law, and that we might receive the adoption of the children.

And because you are children, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying out, 'Abba, [that is,] Father.

So now you are no longer a servant, but a son; and if a son, then you are also an heir of God through Christ.

But when you did not know God, you served those who by nature are not gods.

And now that you have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how can you return again to those weak and miserable things, which you still want to serve as before?

You observe the days, the months, the times, and the years.

I fear for your sake that perhaps I have labored among you in vain.

Be like me; for I am like you; I beg you, my brothers; you have done me no wrong.

And you know how I previously evangelized you in my physical weakness.

And you did not despise or reject my suffering, which was in my flesh; but you received me as an angel of God, and as Jesus Christ himself.

What then was the declaration [that you made] of your happiness? For I bear you witness that, if it had been possible, you would have torn out your eyes and given them to me.

Have I therefore become your enemy by telling you the truth?

They are jealous of you, [but] that is not right; on the contrary, they want to exclude you, so that you will be jealous of them.

But it is good to always be zealous for what is good, and not only when I am present with you.

My little children, for whom I am again laboring to bring forth children, until Christ is formed in you:

I would like to be with you now, and change my language, because I am perplexed by your topic.

Tell me, you who wish to be under the Law, do you not understand the Law?

For it is written that Abraham had two sons, one by the slave woman and the other by the free woman.

But he who was of the slave woman was born according to the flesh; and he who was of the free woman was born through the promise.

Now these things must be understood allegorically: for they are the two covenants; one from Mount Sinai, which produces only slaves, and that is Hagar.

For this name Hagar means Sinai; which is a mountain in Arabia, and corresponds to the Jerusalem of now, which serves with her children.

But the Jerusalem above is free, and she is the mother of us all.
 For it is written: Rejoice, barren woman, who did not bear children; strive, and cry out, you who were not in labor; for many more children are born of the one who was left than of the one who had a husband.
 But we, my brothers, are children of the promise, as is Isaac.
 But just as then the one who was born according to the flesh persecuted the one who was born according to the Spirit, so it is now also.
 But what does the Scripture say? Drive out the slave woman and her son, for the son of the slave woman shall not be an heir with the son of the free woman.
 But my brothers, we are not children of the slave woman, but of the free woman.
 Therefore stand firm in the freedom from which Christ has set us free, and do not submit any longer to a yoke of slavery.
 Behold, I, Paul, tell you that if you are circumcised, Christ will profit you nothing.
 Furthermore, I protest to every man who circumcises himself that he is obligated to fulfill the entire Law.
 Christ becomes useless to all of you who want to be justified by the Law; and you have fallen away from grace.
 But we hope through the Spirit to be justified by faith.
 For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision nor the foreskin has any efficacy, but faith working through charity.
 You were running well: who then prevented you from obeying the truth?
 This persuasion does not come from the one who calls you.
 A little sourdough starter makes the whole dough rise.
 I assure you in [our] Lord, that you will have no other opinion; but whoever troubles you will bear the condemnation, whoever he may be.
 And for me, my brothers, if I still preach circumcision, why do I still suffer persecution? The scandal of the cross is therefore abolished.
 Would to God that those who trouble you were cut off!
 For you, my brothers, were called to freedom; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but serve one another in love.
 For the whole Law is fulfilled in this one word: you shall love your neighbor as yourself.
 But if you bite and devour one another, beware lest you be consumed by one another.
 So I tell you, walk in the Spirit, and you will not gratify the desires of the flesh.

 For the flesh desires against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh; and these are opposed to each other, so that you do not do the things that you want.
 But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law.
 For the works of the flesh are evident, which are adultery, fornication, defilement, and impurity,
 Idolatry, poisoning, enmities, quarrels, jealousies, anger, disputes, divisions, sects,
 Envy, murder, drunkenness, gluttony, and things like these; concerning which I predict to you, as I have already told you, that those who do such things will not inherit the Kingdom of God.
 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control.
 But the Law does not condemn such things.
 But those who belong to Christ have crucified the flesh with its affections and desires.
 If we live by the Spirit, let us also be led by the Spirit.
 Let us not desire vain glory, by provoking one another, and by envying one another.
 My brothers, when a man is caught in any sin, you who are spiritual should restore that man gently; and you, beware lest you also be tempted.

Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the Law of Christ.
For if someone thinks he is something, when he is nothing, he deceives himself.
Let each person examine their own actions, and then they will have reason to boast in themselves alone, and not in others.
For each will bear their own burden.
Let the one who is taught the word share all good things with the one who teaches him.
Do not be deceived, God cannot be mocked; for what a man sows, that he will also reap.
Therefore, whoever sows to his flesh will also from the flesh reap corruption; but whoever sows to the Spirit will from the Spirit reap eternal life.
Let us not become sluggish in doing good; for we shall reap in due season, if we do not become cowardly.
Therefore, while we have the opportunity, let us do good to all, but especially to the servants of the faith.
You see what a great letter I have written to you in my own hand.
Those who seek to make themselves pleasing in the flesh are the ones who compel you to be circumcised, only so that they may not suffer persecution for the cross of Christ.
For even those who are circumcised do not keep the law, but they want you to be circumcised so that they may boast in your flesh.
But as for me, God forbid that I should boast except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world!
For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision nor the foreskin has any efficacy, but the new creation.
And with regard to all those who will walk according to this rule, may peace and mercy be upon them, and upon the Israel of God.
Furthermore, let no one cause me grief, for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus.
My brothers, may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit; Amen!
Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, to the Saints and Faithful in Jesus Christ who are in Ephesus.
Grace and peace be given to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
Blessed be God, who is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places.
As he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless in his sight in love.
Having predestined us to adopt us to himself through Jesus Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will;
To the praise of the glory of his grace, by which he has made us acceptable in his Beloved.
In whom we have redemption through his blood, [namely] the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace,
Which he has bestowed upon us in all wisdom and understanding;
Having revealed to us, according to his good pleasure, the secret of his will, which he had first decided within himself.
So that in the fulfillment of the times he had set in motion, he might unite all things in Christ, both things in heaven and things on earth, in himself.
In whom also we have been made his inheritance, having been predestined, according to the plan of him who works out all things according to the counsel of his will;
So that we, who first put our hope in Christ, may be to the praise of his glory.
In whom you also are, having heard the word of truth, [which is] the gospel of your salvation, and having believed in it, you were sealed with the Holy Spirit of the promise;
Which is the guarantee of our inheritance until the redemption of the possession which he has acquired, to the praise of his glory.

Therefore, having heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for all the saints,
I do not cease to give thanks for you in my prayers;
So that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in what pertains to the knowledge of him;
May he enlighten the eyes of your understanding, so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, and what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the Saints;
And how excellent is the greatness of his power toward us who believe, according to the effectiveness of his mighty strength:
Which he worked effectively in Christ when he raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand in the heavenly realms,
Above all Principality, all Power, all Dignity and all Dominion, and above every Name which is named, not only in this age, but also in the one to come.
And he subjected all things under his feet, and established him over all things to be the Head of the Church;
Who is his Body, and the fulfillment of him who accomplishes all in all.
And when you were dead in your trespasses and sins,
In which you once walked, following the course of this world, according to the Prince of the power of the air, who is the spirit who now works effectively in the children who are disobedient [to God].
Among them we all formerly conversed in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of [our] thoughts; and we were by [our] nature children of wrath, like the rest.
(But God, who is rich in mercy, by whose great love he has loved us;)
When, I say, we were dead in our sins, he made us alive together with Christ, by whose grace you are saved.
And he raised us up together, and seated us together in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus;
So that in the ages to come he might show the immense riches of his grace in his kindness to us through Jesus Christ.
For you are saved by grace through faith; and this is not from yourselves, it is the gift of God.
Not by works, so that no one may boast.
For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared for us to walk in.
Therefore, remember that you who were once Gentiles in the flesh, and were called Foreskin, by that which is called Circumcision, performed by hand in the flesh,
At that time you were separate from Christ, having nothing in common with the Republic of Israel, being strangers to the covenants of the promise, having no hope, and being without God in the world.
But now through Jesus Christ you who once were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ.
For he is our peace, who has made the two one, having broken down the barrier of the dividing wall;
Having abolished enmity in his flesh, [namely] the Law of commandments which consists in ordinances; so that he might create the two in himself to be a new man, making peace;
And that he may unite them all to form one body before God, through the cross, having destroyed in it the enmity.
And when he came, he preached peace to you who were far away, and to those who were near.
For through him we both have access to the Father in one Spirit.
Therefore you are no longer strangers and aliens, but fellow citizens with the saints and servants of God.

Being built on the foundation of the Apostles and the Prophets, with Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone;

In whom the whole edifice, laid and fitted together, rises to be a holy Temple to the Lord.

In whom you are being built together to be a tabernacle of God in the spirit.

That is why I, Paul, am a prisoner of Christ Jesus for you Gentiles.

If, however, you have heard about the ministry of God's grace, which was given to me for you:

How the mystery was made manifest to me through revelation (as I have written above in a few words;

From this you can see, by reading it, what understanding I have of the mystery of Christ.

Which was not made known to the children of men in other ages, as it has now been revealed by the Spirit to his holy Apostles and Prophets;

[To know] that the Gentiles are co-heirs, and of one body, and that they participate together in his promise in Christ, through the Gospel.

Of which I was made a minister, according to the gift of God's grace, which was given me according to the working of his power.

This grace, [I say], was given to me, though I am the very least of all the saints, to preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ,

And to make it clear to everyone what communication has been granted to us concerning the mystery that was hidden for ages in God, who created all things through Jesus Christ;

So that the wisdom of God, which is manifold in all kinds, might now be made known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places through the church;

According to the plan established from ages past, which he established in Jesus Christ our Lord;

Through whom we have boldness and access with confidence, through the faith we have in him.

Therefore I beg you not to give up because of my afflictions which I suffer for love of you, which is your glory.

For this reason I kneel before the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ;

(From whom all the descendants are named in Heaven and on earth.)

So that according to the riches of his glory he may grant you to be strengthened with power through his Spirit in your inner being;

So much so that Christ dwells in your hearts through faith:

So that, being rooted and established in love, you may be able to comprehend with all the saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height;

And to know the love of Christ, which surpasses knowledge; that you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us,

To him be glory in the Church, in Jesus Christ, throughout all ages, world without end, Amen!

Therefore, I, a prisoner for the Lord, urge you to live a life worthy of the calling to which you have been called;

With all humility and gentleness, with a patient spirit, bearing with one another in charity;

Being careful to maintain the unity of the Spirit through the bond of peace.

[There is] one body, one Spirit, just as you are called to one hope of your calling.

[There is] one Lord, one faith, one Baptism;

One God and Father of all, who is over all, through all, and in all.

But grace is given to each of us, according to the measure of Christ's gift.

That is why it [is] said: when he ascended on high he brought captive a great multitude of captives, and he gave gifts to men.
Now what he ascended, what is it [other than that he had first descended into the lowest parts of the earth?
He who descended is the same one who ascended above all the heavens, in order to fill all things.
Therefore, he himself gave some to be apostles, some to be prophets, some to be evangelists, and some to be pastors and teachers.
To [work] for the perfection of the Saints, for the work of ministry, for the building up of the body of Christ.
Until we all meet together in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, in the state of a mature man, in the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ;
So that we may no longer be like children adrift, tossed here and there by every wind of doctrine, by the deceit of men, and by their cunning in artfully seducing.
But so that, following the truth with love, we may grow up in every respect into him who is the Head, [that is], Christ.
From which the whole body, well fitted and held together by all the joints of the supply, takes the growth of the body, according to the strength which is in the measure of each part, for the edification of itself, in charity.
I tell you therefore, and I urge you in the Lord, not to live any longer as the rest of the Gentiles do, who follow the vanity of their thoughts;
Their understanding is darkened with darkness, and they are separated from the life of God because of the ignorance that is in them due to the hardness of their hearts.

Having lost all feeling, they abandoned themselves to debauchery, to commit all manner of defilement, to whoever would do worse.
But you have not learned Christ in this way;
If, however, you have listened to him and been taught by him, according to the truth that is in Jesus;
[Knowing] that you are stripping the old man, as for the previous conversation, which is corrupted by seductive desires;
And that you may be renewed in the spirit of your mind.
And that you may be clothed with the new self, created after the likeness of God in righteousness and true holiness.
Therefore, having put away falsehood, speak truthfully, each with his neighbor; for we are members one of another.
If you become angry, do not sin. Do not let the sun go down while you are still angry.
And do not give the Devil any opportunity [to destroy you].
Let the one who has been stealing no longer, but let him work, doing good with his own hands, so that he may have something to share with anyone in need.
Let no dishonest talk come out of your mouth, but [only] that which is suitable for edification, so that it may be pleasing to those who listen.
And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption.
Let all bitterness, anger, rage, shouting, and slander be removed from among you, with all malice.
But be gentle with one another, full of compassion, and forgiving one another, just as God through Christ forgave you.
Therefore, be imitators of God, as [his] dear children;
And walk in love, as Christ also loved us, and gave himself for us as an offering and sacrifice to God, a pleasing aroma.
Neither fornication, nor any defilement, nor greed should even be named among you, as is proper for saints;

Neither anything obscene, nor foolish talk, nor joking; for these are things which are not proper; but rather thanksgiving.
For you know this, that no fornicator, nor impure person, nor greedy person, who is an idolater, has any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.
Let no one deceive you with empty words, for because of these things the wrath of God comes upon the rebellious.
Therefore, do not become their partners.
For you were once darkness, but now you are light to the Lord; therefore walk as children of light.
For the fruit of the Spirit consists in all gentleness, righteousness, and truth. Experiencing what is pleasing to the Lord.
And do not associate with the unfruitful works of darkness, but on the contrary, rebuke them.
Because it is even dishonest to talk about the things they do in secret.
But all things, being brought to light, are made manifest; for the light is that which makes all things manifest.
That is why it is said: Awake, you who sleep, and rise from the dead, and Christ will shine on you.
Therefore, take care how you conduct yourselves, not as unwise but as wise: Redeeming the time: for the days are bad.
Therefore, do not be careless, but understand clearly what the Lord's will is. And do not get drunk on wine, which leads to debauchery, but be filled with the Spirit.
Speaking to one another with Psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs; singing and making music in your heart to the Lord.
Always giving thanks for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ [to our] God and Father.
Submitting to one another out of fear of God.
Wives, submit yourselves to your husbands as you do to the Lord.
For the husband is the head of the wife, as Christ is the head of the Church, and he is also the Savior of [her] Body.
As the church submits to Christ, so also wives should submit to their husbands in everything.
[And] you husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her.
So that he might sanctify her, after cleansing her in the baptism of water and by his word:
So that he might make her a glorious church, without stain or wrinkle or anything like that, but holy and blameless.
Husbands, therefore, ought to love their wives as their own bodies; he who loves his wife loves himself.
For no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and sustains it, just as the Lord sustains the church.
For we are members of his body, being of his flesh and of his bones.
That is why a man shall leave his father and his mother and be united to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh.
This is a great mystery, but I am speaking of Christ and the Church.
Each of you must love his wife as himself, and the wife must respect her husband.
Children, obey your fathers and mothers, [in what is] according to the Lord; for this is right.
Honor your father and your mother (which is the first commandment, with a promise).
So that it may be well with you, and that you may live long on the earth.
And [you] fathers, do not exasperate your children, but feed them in discipline and instruction from the Lord.
Servants, obey those who are your earthly masters with fear and trembling, in the simplicity of your heart, as you would Christ.

Not serving them merely in their presence, as if seeking to please men, but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart;

Serving the Lord with affection, and not men.

Knowing that each person, whether slave or free, will receive from the Lord the good that he has done.

And you masters, do the same to them, and moderate your threats, knowing that the Lord of them and of you is in Heaven, and that there is no partiality in him.

Finally, my brothers, be strong in [Our] Lord, and in the power of his strength.

Be clothed with the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to withstand the snares of the Devil.

For we do not fight against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the lords of this world, [rulers] of the darkness of this age, against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms.

Therefore, put on the full armor of God, so that you may be able to withstand the evil day, and having done everything, to stand.

Therefore, stand firm, having your loins girded with truth, and having put on the breastplate of righteousness.

And having their feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;

Taking up the shield of faith above all, with which you may extinguish all the flaming darts of the evil one.

Take also the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

Praying in [your] spirit with all kinds of prayers and supplications at all times, being watchful with all perseverance, and praying for all the Saints.

And for me also, so that I may be given to speak freely and boldly, to make known the mystery of the Gospel,

For which I am an ambassador [although] in chains, so that, [I say], I may speak freely, as I ought to speak.

Now, so that you also may know my condition and what I am doing, Tychicus, our beloved brother and faithful servant of the Lord, will tell you everything.

[For] I have sent him to you expressly, so that you may learn [through him] what our condition is, and that he may comfort your hearts.

Peace be with the brothers, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Grace be with all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in purity; Amen!

Paul and Timothy, Servants of Jesus Christ, to all the Saints in Christ Jesus who are at Philippi, with the Bishops and Deacons.

Grace and peace be given to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

I thank my God every time I mention you.

Always praying for you all with joy in all my prayers.

Because of your devotion to the Gospel, from the first day until now.

Being assured of this very thing, that he who began this good work in you will complete it until the day of Jesus Christ:

It is right that I should think this way of all of you, because I hold it in my heart that you have all shared with me in grace in my chains, and in the defense and confirmation of the Gospel.

For God is my witness, that I love you all tenderly, in accordance with the love of Jesus Christ.

And I ask this grace of Him, that your charity may abound ever more with knowledge and full understanding.

So that you may discern what is contrary, to be pure and without stumbling until the day of Christ;

Being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which [are] through Jesus Christ, to the glory and praise of God.

But my brothers, I want you to know that the things that have happened to me have happened for the greater advancement of the Gospel.
So that my ties in Christ have been made famous throughout the Praetorium, and everywhere else;
And that many of our brothers in [our] Lord, being reassured by my chains, dare to proclaim the word more boldly, and without fear.
It is true that some preach Christ out of envy and rivalry, while others do so out of goodwill.
Some, I say, proclaim Christ out of a spirit of contention, and not purely; believing they are adding affliction to my bonds.
But others do it out of charity, knowing that I am appointed for the defense of the Gospel.
What then? Nevertheless, in whatever way, whether by ostentation or by love of the truth, Christ is proclaimed; and this is what I rejoice in, and will continue to rejoice.
But I know that this will turn out for my salvation through your prayer and the help of the Spirit of Jesus Christ:
According to my firm expectation and hope, that I shall in no way be put to shame, but that with all confidence Christ shall now be glorified in my body, as he has always been, whether by life or by death.
For Christ is gain to me, whether I live or die.
But whether it is useful for me to live in the flesh, and what I should choose, I do not know.
For I am hard pressed on both sides: my desire is to dislodge myself and to be with Christ, which is far better for me;
But it is more necessary for you that I remain in the flesh.
And I know this as fully assured, that I will remain, and that I will continue to be with you all for your progress, and for the joy of [your] faith;
So that you may have more and more reason to boast in me in Christ Jesus, through my coming again among you.
Only conduct yourselves in a manner worthy of the gospel of Christ, so that whether I come and see you, or am absent, I may hear of your condition, that you are standing firm in one spirit, striving together with one courage in the faith of the gospel, and not being frightened in any way by your adversaries.
This is a demonstration of their destruction, but of your salvation; and this from God.
Because it has been freely given to you in what pertains to Christ, not only to believe in him, but also to suffer for him;
Having [to support] the same fight that you saw in me, and that you are now learning to be in me.
If, therefore, there is any comfort in Christ, if there is any consolation in love, if there is any fellowship of the Spirit, if there is any heartfelt affection and compassion,
Make my joy complete, being of one mind, having the same love, being one soul, and consenting [all] to the same thing.
Let nothing be done out of a spirit of dispute, or out of vainglory; but let each person, out of humility of heart, consider the other more excellent than himself.
Do not each look to your own particular interest, but [let each one have regard] also to the interests of others.
Therefore let there be in you the same mind which was in Christ Jesus.
He who, being in the form of God, did not consider it an impoverishment to be equal to God.
However, he emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, made in the likeness of men;
And being found in appearance as a man, he humbled himself and became obedient unto death, even death on a cross.

That is why God also highly exalted him and gave him a name that is above every name;

So that in the Name of Jesus every knee should bow, both those in heaven and those on earth and under the earth,

And let every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

Therefore, my beloved, as you have always obeyed, not only in my presence, but much more now in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

For it is God who works in you to will and to act in order to fulfill his good purpose.

Do all things without grumbling and without arguing;

so that you may be blameless and pure, children of God, without fault in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you shine like lights in the world, holding before them the word of life.

To boast in the day of Christ that I have not run in vain, nor labored in vain.

Even if I am sprinkled on the sacrifice and service of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with you all.

You too should be glad and rejoice with me.

But I hope [with the grace] of the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon, so that I too may have more courage when I learn of your condition.

Because I have no one of such courage, and who is truly careful about what concerns you.

Because everyone is looking out for their own self-interest, not the interests of Jesus Christ.

But you know the test [that I put] of him, since he served with me in the gospel, as a child serves his father.

I therefore hope to send it as soon as I have taken care of my affairs.

And I assure myself in [our] Lord that I myself will come to see you soon.

But I thought it necessary to send you Epaphroditus, my brother, my fellow worker and my comrade-in-arms, who was also sent to me from you to provide me with what I needed.

For he also longed to see you all, and he was very distressed that you had heard that he had been ill.

Indeed, he was ill, and very near to death; but God had mercy on him, and not on him only, but also on me, so that I would not have sorrow upon sorrow.

Therefore, I sent it with extra care, so that when you see it again you may rejoice, and I may be less sad.

Therefore receive him in [our] Lord with all [kind of] joy; and esteem those who are like him.

For he nearly died for the work of Christ, not considering his own life, in order to make up for the lack of your service to me.

Finally, my brothers, rejoice in [our] Lord. It is not unpleasant for me, and it is for your safety, that I write you the same things.

Beware of dogs; beware of bad workmen; beware of circumcision.

For we are the circumcision, we who serve God in spirit, and who glory in Christ Jesus, and who have no confidence in the flesh;

Although I could not well trust in the flesh either; even if someone thinks he has reason to trust in the flesh, I have even more;

[I] was circumcised on the eighth day, and am of the race of Israel, of the Tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew, born of Hebrews, a Pharisee by religion:

As for zeal, persecuting the Church; and as for righteousness, which is based on the Law, being blameless,

But what was gain to me I now consider harmful, and this for the love of Christ.

And indeed, I consider all other things to be harmful to me in comparison with the surpassing worth of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord, for whose sake I have deprived myself of all these things, and I consider them as dung, in order that I may gain Christ;

And that I may be found in him, having not my own righteousness which is of the Law, but that which is by faith in Christ, [that is], the righteousness which is of God by faith;

[To] know Jesus Christ, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his afflictions, being made like his death;

[Trying] if in any way I can bring about the resurrection of the dead.

Not that I have already attained [the goal], or that I have already been made accomplished: but I pursue [this goal] to try to attain it, that is why I was taken by Jesus Christ.

My brothers, for my part, I do not convince myself that I have reached [the goal];

But [I do] one thing, [which is that] forgetting the things that are behind [me], and advancing towards those that are before [me], I run towards the goal, [namely] to the prize of the heavenly calling, [which is] of God in Jesus Christ;

Therefore, all of us who are perfect should think like this; and if you think differently about anything, God will reveal that also to you.

However, let us walk according to the same rule for the things we have achieved, and let us have the same feeling.

Be all together imitators of me, my brothers, and consider those who walk as you have us as your model.

For there are many who walk in such a way, which I have often told you, and now I tell you again even weeping, that they are enemies of the cross of Christ;

Whose end is destruction, whose God is their stomach, and whose glory is in their shame, having no affection except for earthly things.

But for us, our bourgeoisie is in Heaven, from where we also await the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ;

Who will transform our lowly body so that it will be conformed to his glorious body, according to that efficacy by which he is able even to subject all things to himself.

Therefore, my dearest brothers whom I love dearly, you who are my joy and my crown, remain steadfast in our Lord, my beloved.

I pray to Evodie, and I also pray to Syntiche, that they may have the same feeling before the Lord.

I also beg you, my true companion, help them, as you did those who fought with me in the Gospel, with Clement, and my other companions in work, whose names [are written] in the Book of Life.

Rejoice in [our] Lord; I tell you again, rejoice.

Let your gentleness be known to all men. The Lord is near.

Do not be anxious about anything, but in every situation, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, present your requests to God.

And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

Furthermore, my brothers, whatever is true, whatever is venerable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is well-reputed, whatever has virtue and praise, think about these things;

For you have learned them, received them, heard them, and seen them in me. Do these things, and the God of peace will be with you.

But I rejoiced greatly in [our] Lord, that at last you revived the care you have for me; something you also thought about, but you did not have the opportunity.

I do not say this because of any poverty: for I have learned to be content with whatever things I find myself in.

I know how to be lowly, and I know how to have plenty; in every situation I have learned to be well fed and to go hungry, to have plenty and to want.

I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me.
Nevertheless, you did well to share in my grief.
You Philippians also know that in the beginning of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, no church shared with me anything concerning giving and receiving, except you alone.

And even when I was in Thessaloniki, you sent me what I needed once, and even twice.

It is not that I am looking for gifts, but I am looking for the fruit that abounds for your benefit.

I have received everything, and I am full, and I am amply supplied, having received from Epaphroditus what was sent to me from you, [as] a fragrant incense, [as] a sacrifice acceptable to God, and pleasing to him.

Therefore my God will supply all your needs according to his riches, and [give you his] glory in Christ Jesus.

Now to our God and Father, be glory forever and ever; Amen!

Greet each of the saints in Christ Jesus. The brothers who are with me send you greetings.

All the Saints greet you, and especially those who are of the house of Caesar.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen.

Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and brother Timothy:

To the saints and brothers, faithful in Christ, who are at Colossae: Grace and peace to you from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

We give thanks to God, who is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and we always pray for you.

Having heard of your faith in Jesus Christ, and of your love for all the Saints; Because of the hope [of blessings] which are reserved for you in heaven, and which you have already heard of in the word of truth, [that is], in the Gospel.

Which has come to you, as it has also come to the whole world; and it bears fruit there, just as it has among you, since the day you heard and knew the grace of God in the truth.

As you were also taught by Epaphras our dear fellow servant, who is a faithful minister of Christ for you;

And who has taught us what love you have by the [Holy] Spirit.

Therefore, since the day we heard these things, we have not stopped praying for you and asking [God] that you may be filled with the knowledge of his will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding;

So that you may conduct yourselves worthily, as is fitting in the Lord, to please him in every way, bearing fruit in every good work, and growing in the knowledge of God.

Being strengthened with all power according to the might of his glory, in all endurance, and peace of mind, with joy.

Giving thanks to the Father, who has enabled us to share in the inheritance of the Saints in the light;

Who has delivered us from the power of darkness, and transferred us to the Kingdom of his beloved Son.

In whom we have redemption through his blood, [namely], the forgiveness of sins.

Which is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creatures.

For by him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities—all things were created through him and for him.

And he is before all things, and all things hold together through him.

And he is the head of the body, the church, and the beginning [and] the firstborn from the dead, so that in everything he might have the supremacy.

For it was the Father's good pleasure that all fullness should dwell in him;

And to reconcile to himself all things, having made peace through the blood of his cross, both things which are in heaven and things which are on earth.

And you who were formerly far from him, and who were his enemies in your understanding, [and] in evil works;
He has now reconciled you by his body of flesh through death, to make you holy, spotless, and blameless in his sight.
If, however, you remain in the faith, being grounded and firm, and not being moved away from the hope of the gospel which you have heard, which is preached to every creature under heaven, [and] of which I, Paul, have become a minister.
Therefore, I now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and I complete in my flesh the remainder of Christ's afflictions for his body, which is the Church;
Of which I was made a minister, according to the dispensation of God which was given me toward you, to fulfill the word of God;
[To know] the mystery which had been hidden throughout all centuries and [in] all ages, but which is now revealed to his Saints;
To whom God has chosen to make known the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is Christ, who was preached among you, and who is the hope of glory,
Which we proclaim, admonishing everyone and teaching everyone with all wisdom, so that we may make everyone perfect in Christ Jesus.
This is also what I am working towards, fighting according to its effectiveness, which acts powerfully within me.
But I want you to know how great is the struggle I have for you, and for those who are in Laodicea, and for all those who have not seen my presence in the flesh;
That their hearts may be comforted, being united together in love, and in all the riches of the full assurance of understanding, for the knowledge of the mystery of our God and Father, and of Christ.
In whom are found all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.
But I say this so that no one will deceive you with seductive words.
For although I am absent in body, yet I am with you in spirit, rejoicing and seeing your order and the firmness of your faith which you have in Christ.
Therefore, just as you have received the Lord Jesus Christ, walk in him;
Being rooted and built up in him, and strengthened in the faith, just as you were taught, abounding in it with thanksgiving.
Beware lest anyone win you over through philosophy and empty reasoning, which conforms to the tradition of men and to the elements of the world and not to the [doctrine] of Christ.
For the fullness of the Divine dwells bodily in him.
And you are made complete in him, who is the head of every principality and power;
In whom also you are circumcised with a circumcision done without hands, which consists in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh, which is the circumcision of Christ;
Having been buried with him in baptism; in whom also you were raised with him through faith in the working of God, who raised him from the dead.
And when you were dead in your sins, and in the foreskin of your flesh, he made you alive together with himself, having forgiven you all your sins free of charge.
Having canceled the obligation [that was] against us, which consisted of ordinances, and was contrary to us, and which he entirely abolished, having fastened it to the cross.
Having stripped the principalities and powers, which he produced in public, triumphing over them in the cross.
Therefore let no one condemn you for eating or drinking it, or for observing a festival day, or a new moon day, or Sabbaths.
These things are a shadow of those that were to come, but the substance belongs to Christ.
Let no one overpower you to his pleasure through humility of mind and the service of angels, meddling in things which he has not seen, being rashly puffed up with the mind of his flesh.

And not retaining the Head, from whom the whole Body, being supplied and fitted together by the joints and connections, grows with an increase of God.

If then you died with Christ to the elemental spirits of the world, why are you burdened with regulations as though you were still living in the world?

[Knowledge], Do not eat, Do not taste, Do not touch.

All of which are perishable by use, [and established] according to the commandments and doctrines of men.

[And] who nevertheless have some appearance of wisdom in voluntary devotion, and in humility of mind, and in that they do not spare the body at all, and have no regard for the satiety of the flesh.

Since then you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God.

Think of the things that are above, and not of the things that are on earth.

For you died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God.

When Christ, who is your life, appears, then you also will appear with him in glory.

Therefore, put to death your members which are on the earth: fornication, impurity, disordered affections, evil lust, and greed, which is idolatry;

For which things the wrath of God comes upon the rebellious children;

And in which you once walked, when you lived in them.

But now put away all these things: anger, rage, slander; and let no filthy word come out of your mouth.

Do not lie to one another, having stripped the old man of his deeds.

And having put on the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge, in the image of its Creator.

In whom there is neither Greek nor Jew, neither circumcised nor foreskin, nor barbarian nor Scythian, neither slave nor free; but Christ is all, and in all.

Therefore, as God's chosen people, be holy and beloved, clothed with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience;

Bear with one another and forgive one another; if one has a quarrel with another, just as Christ forgave you, so you also must forgive.

And besides all this, [be clothed] with love, which is the bond of perfection.

And let the peace of God, to which you were called in one body, have principality in your hearts; and be thankful.

Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another with psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

And whatever you do, whether by word or deed, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks through him to [our] God and Father.

Wives, submit yourselves to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord.

Husbands, love your wives, and do not be harsh with them.

Children, obey your fathers and mothers in everything, for this pleases the Lord.

Fathers, do not anger your children, so that they do not lose heart.

Servants, obey in everything those who are your earthly masters, not serving only while they are watching you, as people-pleasers, but with sincerity of heart, fearing God.

And whatever you do, do it all wholeheartedly, as if you were doing it for the Lord, and not for men;

Knowing that you will receive from the Lord the reward of the inheritance: for you serve Christ the Lord.

But he who acts unjustly will receive what he has done unjustly; for [in God] there is no partiality.

Masters, render justice and equity to your servants, knowing that you also have a Lord in Heaven.

Persevere in prayer, remaining vigilant in this practice with thanksgiving:

Pray also all together for us, that God may open to us the door of the word, to proclaim the mystery of Christ, for which I am also a prisoner.

So that I may manifest it as I need to speak about it.

Conduct yourselves wisely towards outsiders, redeeming the time.

Let your speech always be seasoned with salt and grace, so that you may know how to answer everyone.

Tychicus, our beloved brother, faithful minister, and fellow servant in [our] Lord, will let you know all my condition.

I have sent him to you expressly, so that he may know what your condition is, and that he may comfort your hearts;

Together with Onesimus, our faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you, they will warn you of all matters here.

Aristarchus, who is also a prisoner with me, sends you his greetings, as does Mark, the cousin of Barnabas, concerning whom you have received a command: if he comes to you, receive him.

And Jesus, called Righteous, who are of the Circumcision; these who are my fellow workers in the Kingdom of God, are [also] the only ones who have been a comfort to me.

Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, greets you, always wrestling in prayer for you, that you may be mature and complete in all the will of God.

For I can testify to him that he has great zeal for you, and for those in Laodicea, and for those in Hierapolis.

Luc, the beloved physician, greets you; and so does Demas.

Greet the brothers who are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, with the church that is in her house.

And when this letter has been read among you, have it also read in the church of the Laodiceans; and you also read the one that came from Laodicea.

And tell Archippus: take heed to the administration which you have received in [our] Lord, so that you may fulfill it.

The greeting is in my own hand, Paul. Remember my chains. Grace be with you! Amen!

Paul, and Silvanus, and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians in God the Father and in our Lord Jesus Christ: Grace and peace to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

We always give thanks to God for all of you, mentioning you in our prayers.

And continually reminding us of your work produced by faith, your labor prompted by love, and your endurance inspired by hope, which you have in our Lord Jesus Christ, before our God and Father;

Knowing, my beloved brothers of God, of your election.

For the gospel we preached among you was not in word only, but also in power, in the Holy Spirit, and in convincing evidence, as you know what kind of people we were among you for your sake.

Therefore you became imitators of us, and of the Lord, having received with joy the word of the Holy Spirit, accompanied by great affliction;

So much so that you became a model to all the faithful in Macedonia and Achaia.

For the word of the Lord has sounded forth from you, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place; and your faith toward God is so renowned that we do not need to say anything about it.

For they themselves report about us what kind of reception we had among you, and how you were converted from idols to God, to serve the living and true God;

And to await from Heaven his Son Jesus, whom he raised from the dead, and who delivers us from the wrath to come.

For, my brothers, you yourselves know that our entry among you was not in vain.

But although we were previously afflicted and insulted in Philippi, as you know, we had the courage, supported by our God, to proclaim to you the gospel of God in the midst of great conflicts.

For in the exhortation that we gave you there was no deception, no evil motive, no fraud.

But since we have been approved by God to receive the gospel, we speak not as people, but God, who approves of our hearts.

For we have never been caught in flattery, as you know, nor in greed; God is witness.

And we did not seek glory from men, neither from you nor from others, although we could have shown authority as Apostles of Christ:

But we were gentle among you, like a nurse tenderly nursing her children.

Since we were so fond of you, we wished to give you not only the gospel of God, but also our own souls, because you were greatly loved by us.

For, my brothers, you remember our toil and labor; for we preached to you the gospel of God, working night and day, so that we would not be a burden to any of you.

You are witnesses, and so is God, how holy and righteous we were, and without reproach to you who believe;

And you know that we have exhorted each of you, as a father exhorts his children;

And we have urged you to conduct yourselves worthily, as is fitting according to God, who calls you into his Kingdom and his glory.

Therefore we always thank God that when you received from us the word of God's preaching, you accepted it not as a word from men, but (as it really is) as the word of God, which also works effectively in you who believe.

For, my brothers, you imitated the churches of God which are in Judea in Christ Jesus, because you also suffered the same things from those of your own nation, as they also did from the Jews;

They even put the Lord Jesus to death, along with their own prophets, and drove us out; they displease God and are enemies of all mankind.

preventing us from speaking to the Gentiles so that they might be saved, thus continually filling up their sins. Therefore, God's wrath has come upon them in its full measure.

And for us, my brothers, who were separated from you for a moment in sight, and not in heart, we tried all the more to come and see you, because we had a very great desire to do so:

That is why we wanted to come to you, at least I, Paul, once or twice; but Satan prevented us.

For what is our hope, or our joy, or our crown of glory? Is it not you who are in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ [on the day] of his coming?

Indeed, you are our glory and our joy.

That is why, no longer able to bear [the deprivation of your news], we thought it best to remain alone in Athens.

And we have sent Timothy, our brother, God's servant and fellow worker in the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and encourage you in your faith.

So that no one may be troubled in these afflictions, since you yourselves know that we are destined for this.

For when we were with you, we predicted that we would suffer afflictions; and so it has turned out, as you know.

Therefore, I say, being unable to bear [this anxiety] any longer, I sent Timothy to find out the state of your faith, lest the one who is tempting might have somehow tempted you, and our labor might be in vain.

Timothy has recently returned from you with good news of your faith and love, and that you always remember us, longing to see us, just as we long to see you.

That is why, my brothers, you were a great comfort to us because of your faith in all our affliction and need.

For now we live, if you hold fast to the Lord.

And what thanksgivings do we not owe to God on your account, for all the joy we receive from you in the presence of our God;
Praying day and night more and more that we may see you again, in order to make up for what is lacking in your faith?
But our God [and our] Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, want to open the way for us to come to you.
And the Lord may make you increase and abound more and more in love for one another and for everyone, just as we abound [in love] for you;
To strengthen your hearts blameless in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his Saints.
Finally, brothers and sisters, we ask you and urge you by the Lord Jesus that, just as you have learned from us how to live and please God, you may make daily progress.

For you know what instructions we gave you from the Lord Jesus.
Because this is God's will; [namely] your sanctification, and that you abstain from fornication.
So that each of you may know how to possess your vessel in sanctification and honor;

And without giving in to the desires of covetousness, like the Gentiles who do not know God.
Let no one oppress [his brother], or profit from his brother's harm in any matter; because the Lord is the avenger of all these things, as we told you before, and as we assured you.

For God did not call us to be defiled, but to be sanctified.
Therefore, whoever rejects this does not reject a man, but God, who has also placed his Holy Spirit within us.

As for brotherly love, you do not need me to write to you about it, because you yourselves have been taught by God to love one another.
And this is also what you do toward all the brothers throughout Macedonia; but, brothers, we urge you to strive for perfection every day,
And to strive to live peacefully; to take care of your own affairs, and to work with your own hands, as we have commanded you.
So that you may conduct yourselves honestly towards those outside, and that you may not need anything.

But, my brothers, I do not want you to be ignorant of the affairs of those who sleep, so that you may not grieve like the rest of mankind, who have no hope.

For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, so also those who have fallen asleep in Jesus, God will bring with him.

For we tell you this by the word of the Lord, that we who will live and remain at the coming of the Lord will not precede those who sleep.

For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of exhortation, and with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and those who have died in Christ will rise first;

Then we who live and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we shall always be with the Lord.

Therefore, comfort one another with these words.

Now concerning the time and the moment, my brothers, you do not need anyone to write to you about it;

Since you yourselves know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night.

For when they say, "We are at peace and secure," then sudden destruction will come upon them, like labor upon a pregnant woman, and they will not escape.

But as for you, my brothers, you are not in darkness so that that day should surprise you like the thief.

You are all children of the light and of the day; we do not belong to the night or to the darkness.

Therefore, let us not sleep like others, but let us stay awake and be sober. For those who sleep, sleep at night; and those who get drunk, get drunk at night. But we, who are children of the day, let us be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love, and the helmet of the hope of salvation.

For God did not appoint us to wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ.

He died for us, so that whether we are awake or asleep, we may live with him.

Therefore encourage one another and build one another up, just as you are doing.

Now, [my] brothers, we ask you to acknowledge those who work among you, and who preside over you in [our] Lord, and who exhort you; and to have a special love for them because of the work they do. Be at peace with one another.

We also ask you, [my] brothers, to rebuke the disorderly, to comfort the fainthearted, to relieve the weak, and to be patient with everyone.

Take care that no one repays anyone evil for evil; but always seek what is good, both among yourselves and towards all men.

Always be joyful.

Pray without ceasing.

Give thanks for everything, for this is God's will through Jesus Christ.

Do not quench the Spirit.

Do not despise prophecies.

Test everything; hold fast to what is good.

Refrain from any appearance of evil.

May the God of peace sanctify you completely; and may your whole spirit, soul, and body be kept blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The one who calls you is faithful; therefore he will do these things [in you].

My brothers, pray for us.

Greet all the brothers with a holy kiss.

I adjure you by the Lord that this Epistle be read to all the holy brothers.

May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you; Amen!

Paul, and Silvanus, and Timothy: to the church of the Thessalonians which is in God our Father, and in [our] Lord Jesus Christ;

Grace and peace be given to you from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

My brothers, we ought always to give thanks to God for you, as is very reasonable, because your faith is increasing greatly, and your love for one another is growing. So we ourselves boast about you among the churches of God because of your endurance and faith in all your persecutions and afflictions which you endure;

These are a clear demonstration of God's righteous judgment, so that you may be considered worthy of the Kingdom of God, for which you are also suffering.

Since this is a just thing in God's sight, let him repay affliction to those who afflict you;

And [that he may give] relief to you who are afflicted, as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from Heaven with the Angels of his power;

With flames of fire, exercising vengeance against those who do not know God, and against those who do not obey the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ;

Those who will be punished with eternal damnation, by the presence of the Lord, and by the glory of his power;

When he comes to be glorified on that day in his saints, and to be marveled at among all who believe, because you have believed the testimony we have given you.

That is why we always pray for you, that our God may make you worthy of [his] calling, and that he may powerfully accomplish [in you] all the good pleasure of his kindness, and the work of faith.

So that the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Now, my brothers, we ask you concerning the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our being gathered together in him,
Do not let your minds be suddenly shaken, nor troubled by spirit, by word, or by letter, as though we had written a letter, and as though the day of Christ were near.

Therefore, let no one deceive you in any way; for that day will not come until the rebellion has occurred first, and the man of sin, the son of perdition, is revealed;

He opposes and rises up against everything that is called God, or that is worshiped, even sitting as God in the Temple of God, wanting to pass himself off as a God.
Don't you remember that when I was still with you, I used to tell you these things? But now you know what is holding him back, so that he may be revealed in due time. For the mystery of iniquity is already at work; but he who obtains now will obtain until it is abolished.

And then the wicked one will be revealed, [but] the Lord will destroy him by the Spirit of his mouth, and annihilate him by his glorious coming:

And as for the coming [of the wicked one], it is according to the workings of Satan, in all power, in wonders and in lying signs;

And into all unrighteous deception, in those who are perishing; because they did not receive the love of the truth, so as to be saved.

That is why God will send them a powerful delusion, so that they will believe the lie;

So that all may be judged who have not believed the truth, but have delighted in wickedness.

But, my brothers, beloved of the Lord, we must always give thanks to God for you, because God chose you from the beginning to be saved through sanctifying work by the Spirit and through belief in the truth.

To this he called you through our gospel, so that you might share in the glory that was obtained for us through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my brothers, stand firm and hold fast to the teachings that you have learned, whether from [our] word or from our epistle.

But he himself, Jesus Christ, our Lord, and our God and Father, who loved us and gave us eternal comfort and good hope by his grace,

May He comfort your hearts, and strengthen you in every good word and deed.

Finally, my brothers, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may run its course and be glorified, just as it is among you;

And that we may be delivered from wicked and evil men; for faith is not in everyone.

But the Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and protect you from evil.

Therefore we assure you by the Lord that you are doing, and will do, all the things that we command you.

May the Lord direct your hearts to the love of God and to the expectation of Christ.

We also command you, my brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to withdraw from any brother who is walking irregularly, and not according to the teaching which he received from us.

For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us, since there was nothing irregular in the way we conducted ourselves among you;

And we did not eat anyone's bread free, but with labor and toil, working night and day, so as not to burden any of you.

Not that we do not have the power to do so, but in order to present ourselves as an example to you, so that you may imitate us.

For even when we were with you, we warned you that if anyone is not willing to work, he shall not eat.

For we hear that there are some among you who are behaving erratically, doing nothing, but living in curiosity.

Therefore, we denounce those who are like this, and we exhort them by our Lord Jesus Christ, that by working they should eat their bread in peace.

But for you, my brothers, do not grow weary in doing good.

And if anyone does not obey our word contained in this Epistle, make him known; and do not converse with him, so that he may be ashamed.

However, do not treat him as an enemy, but warn him as a brother.

But the Lord of peace always gives you peace in every way! The Lord be with you all.

The greeting which is in my own hand, Paul, and which is a sign in all my Epistles, is that I write thus:

May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen.

Paul, Apostle of Jesus Christ by the command of God our Savior, and of the Lord Jesus Christ, our hope:

To Timothy, my true son in faith; grace, mercy, and peace be given to you from God our Father and from Jesus Christ our Lord.

Following my request to you to remain in Ephesus when I went to Macedonia, [I again ask you] to instruct certain people not to teach another doctrine;

And not to indulge in fables and genealogies, which are endless and produce more disputes than the edification of God, which consists in faith.

But the end of the Commandment is charity, which proceeds from a pure heart, a good conscience, and sincere faith:

Some, having strayed from these things, have turned away to vain chatter.

Wanting to be teachers of the Law, [but] not understanding either what they say or what they assert.

But we know that the Law is good if someone uses it lawfully.

Knowing this, that the Law is not given for the righteous, but for the wicked, and for those who cannot be ordered; for the ungodly, and who live wickedly; for the unreligious, and for the profane; for the murderers of father and mother, and for the slain;

For fornicators, for those who commit unnatural sins, for those who steal men, for liars, for perjurers, and against such other things as are contrary to sound doctrine;

According to the Gospel of the glory of the blessed God, which [Gospel] was entrusted to me.

And I give thanks to him who has strengthened me, [that is], to Jesus Christ our Lord, because he considered me faithful, having appointed me in the Ministry;

[I] who formerly was a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and an oppressor, but I obtained mercy because I acted in ignorance, [being] in unfaithfulness.

But the grace of our Lord abounded [in me], with faith and with the love that is in Jesus Christ.

This saying is trustworthy and deserves full acceptance: that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners—of whom I am the worst.

But I received grace so that in me, as the firstfruits, Christ Jesus might show his full mercy as an example to those who would come to believe in him for eternal life.

Now to the King of ages, immortal, invisible, to God alone be honor and glory forever and ever, Amen!

My son Timothy, I command you to do this, in accordance with the prophecies which were previously made of you, to fulfill, according to them, the duty to fight in this good war;

Holding on to the faith with a good conscience, which some having rejected, have shipwrecked their faith;

Between them are Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom I have handed over to Satan, so that they may learn from this punishment not to blaspheme anymore.

I therefore urge that petitions, prayers, supplications, and thanksgivings be made before all things for all people;
For kings, and for all those who are constituted in dignity, so that we may lead a peaceful and quiet life, in all piety and honesty.
For this is good and pleasing in the sight of God our Savior;
Who wants all men to be saved, and to come to a knowledge of the truth.
For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and men, [namely] Jesus Christ the man;
Who gave himself as a ransom for all, a testimony which was given in its time.
It is in this view that I was appointed a Preacher, an Apostle (I speak the truth in Christ, I am not lying), and a Teacher of the Gentiles in faith and in truth.
Therefore I want the men everywhere to pray, lifting up their holy hands without anger or disputing.
Women should also adorn themselves with decent clothing, with modesty and propriety, not with elaborate hairstyles or gold or pearls or expensive clothes;
But [they should be] adorned with good works, as is fitting for women who profess to serve God.
Let the woman learn in silence and in complete submission.
For I do not permit a woman to teach, nor to exercise authority over her husband; but she must remain silent.
For Adam was formed first, and then Eve.
And it was not Adam who was deceived, but the woman, having been deceived, was the cause of the transgression.
She will nevertheless be saved by bearing children, provided she perseveres in faith, in charity, and in sanctification, with modesty.
This saying is certain, that if anyone desires to be a Bishop, he desires an excellent work.
But the Bishop must be blameless, the husband of one wife, vigilant, moderate, honorable, hospitable, able to teach;
Not prone to wine, not a beater, not greedy for dishonest gain, but gentle, not quarrelsome, not stingy.
Honestly running his own household, keeping his children submissive in all purity of morals.
For if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how can he govern the church of God?
Let him not be a recent convert; lest, being puffed up with pride, he fall into the condemnation of the slanderer.
He must also have a good testimony from those outside, that he does not fall into faults that can be reproached to him, and into the trap of the Devil.
Deacons also should be serious, not duplicitous in speech, not prone to excessive drinking, not greedy for dishonest gain.
Holding onto the mystery of faith in a pure conscience.
Let these also be tested first, and then let them serve, having been found without fault.
Likewise, let their wives be honest, not slanderers, temperate, faithful in all things.
Deacons should be husbands of one wife, honestly leading their children and their own families.
For those who have served well obtain a good standing for themselves and great freedom in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.
I am writing these things to you hoping that I will come to you soon;
But in case I delay, [I am writing these things to you] so that you may know how one ought to conduct oneself in the House of God, which is the Church of the living God, the Pillar and foundation of the truth.
And without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness, [namely], that God was manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen by angels, preached to the Gentiles, believed on in the world, and taken up in glory.

But the Spirit expressly says that in later times some will rebel against the faith, giving themselves over to deceiving spirits and doctrines of demons.
Teaching lies through hypocrisy, and having a cauterized conscience;
Forbidding marriage, [commanding] abstaining from the meats that God created for the faithful, and for those who have known the truth, in order to consume them with thanksgiving.
For every creature of God is good, and there is none that is to be rejected, if it is received with thanksgiving.
Because it is sanctified by the word of God, and by prayer.
If you propose these things to the brothers, you will be a good minister of Jesus Christ, nourished on the words of the faith and of good doctrine which you have carefully followed.
But reject profane myths and the stories of those who are weak in spirit, and train yourself in godliness.
For physical training is of some value, but godliness is profitable for all things, holding promise for the life that now is and for that which is to come.
This is a certain statement, and one worthy of being fully accepted.
For this is also why we work, and why we are in disgrace, since we hope in the living God, who is the preserver of all men, but especially of the faithful.
Announce these things, [and] teach them.
Let no one despise your youth, but set an example to the believers in speech, in conduct, in love, in spirit, in faith, in purity.
Pay attention to the reading, the exhortation, and the instruction, until I come.
Do not neglect the gift that is in you, and which was conferred upon you according to prophecy, by the laying on of hands of the company of the Elders.
Practice these things, and pay attention to them, so that it may be known to all that you are benefiting.
Take heed to yourself and to the teaching; persevere in these things, for by doing so you will save yourself and those who listen to you.
Do not rebuke an older man harshly, but exhort him as you would a father; younger men as brothers;
The older women, like mothers; the younger ones, like sisters, in all purity.
Honor the widows who are truly widows.
But if any widow has children, or children of her children, let them first learn to show godliness to their own household and to repay those from whom they came: for this is good and pleasing in the sight of God.
But she who is truly a widow, and is left alone, hopes in God, and perseveres in prayers and supplications night and day.
But she who lives in delights, is dead while living.
Therefore warn them about these things, so that they may be blameless.
If anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for those of his family, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.
That the widow be registered as being no less than sixty years old, and having had only one husband;
Having the testimony of having done good works, [such as] having fed her own children, having lodged strangers, having washed the feet of the Saints, having helped the afflicted, and having [thus] constantly applied herself to all kinds of good works.
But refuse to marry younger widows, for when they become lustful against Christ, they want to marry.
Having their condemnation, in that they falsified their first faith.
And besides, being idle, they learn to go from house to house; and are not only idle, but also gossipy and curious, discussing unseemly things.

Therefore, I want young [widows] to marry, to have children, to manage their households, and to give no occasion to the adversary to slander. Because some have already turned away after Satan. If any faithful man or woman has widows, let them assist them, but let not the church be burdened, so that there may be enough for those who are truly widows. Let the Elders who duly preside be deemed worthy of a double honor; principally those who work in preaching and instruction. For the Scripture says: You shall not muzzle an ox while it treads out the grain, and the worker deserves his wages. Do not accept any accusation against the Elder except on the testimony of two or three witnesses. Publicly rebuke those who sin, so that others may also fear them. I adjure you before God, and before the Lord Jesus Christ, and before the elect angels, to keep these things without preferring one to the other, doing nothing by leaning to one side. Do not lay hands on anyone hastily; and do not share in the sins of others; keep yourself pure. Stop drinking only water, but use a little wine because of your stomach and the illnesses you often have. The sins of some are manifested beforehand, and precede [their] condemnation; but in others they follow afterward. Good works are also manifested beforehand, and those that are otherwise cannot be hidden. Let all slaves know that they owe their masters all kinds of honor, so that no one may blaspheme the Name of God and [his] doctrine. Those who have faithful teachers should not despise them because they are brothers, but rather serve them because they are faithful and beloved by God, participating in grace; teach and exhort. If anyone teaches otherwise and does not submit to the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ and to the doctrine that is in accordance with godliness, He is puffed up [with pride], knowing nothing, but he is sick with questions and arguments about words, from which come envy, quarrels, slander, and evil suspicions. These are vain disputes among men corrupted in mind, and deprived of the truth, who think that piety is a means of gain: withdraw from such people. But piety with contentment of mind is a great gain. Because we have brought nothing into the world, and it is also evident that we can take nothing out of it. But having food, and enough to cover us, that will suffice. But those who want to become rich fall into temptation and a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires, which plunge men into misery and destruction. For the lust for riches is the root of all evils, and by it some people have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pains. But you, man of God! flee from these things, and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance, gentleness; Fight the good fight of the faith; take hold of the eternal life to which you were called, and which you professed well in the presence of many witnesses. I command you before God, who gives life to all things; and before Jesus Christ, who made this good confession before Pontius Pilate, To keep this commandment, keeping yourself spotless and blameless until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, Which the blessed and only Prince, King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, will show in his own season; He who alone possesses immortality, and who dwells in unapproachable light, whom no man has seen, nor can see; and to whom be honor and eternal power, Amen.

Admonish those who are rich in this world not to be arrogant, nor to put their trust in the uncertainty of riches, but in the living God, who gives us everything in abundance to enjoy.

Let them do good; let them be rich in good works; let them be willing to give, generous.

Laying up a treasure for themselves for the future, established on a solid foundation, so that they may obtain eternal life.

Timothy, guard the deposit; flee from vain and profane disputes, and from the contradictions of a science falsely so named.

Some, professing this faith, have turned away from it. Grace be with you, Amen!

Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus:

To Timothy, my beloved son, grace, mercy and peace be given to you from God the Father and from Jesus Christ our Lord.

I give thanks to God, whom I have served since my ancestors with a pure conscience, constantly mentioning you in my prayers night and day.

Remembering your tears, I long to see you so that I may be filled with joy;

And remembering your sincere faith, which first lived in Lois your grandmother and in Eunice your mother, I am persuaded that it now lives in you also.

Therefore I urge you to rekindle the gift of God, which is in you, through the laying on of my hands.

For God has not given us a spirit of timidity, but of power, love, and prudence.

Therefore do not be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor I, who am his prisoner; but share in the afflictions of the gospel, according to the power of God;

Who saved us and called us to a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the ages began;

And which has now been manifested by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel;

For which I was appointed a preacher, an apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles.

That is why I suffer these things; but I am not ashamed; for I know him in whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that he is able to guard what I have entrusted to him until that day.

Hold fast to the true pattern of sound words which you have heard from me, in the faith and in the love which is in Christ Jesus.

Guard the good deposit entrusted to you by the Holy Spirit who dwells in us.

You know this, that all those who are in Asia have turned away from me; among them are Phygelus and Hermogenes.

The Lord will have mercy on the house of Onesiphorus: for often he has comforted me, and he has not been ashamed of my chains;

On the contrary, when he was in Rome, he searched for me very carefully, and he found me.

May the Lord grant him mercy toward the Lord on that day; and you know better than anyone how much he served me in Ephesus.

Therefore, my son, be strengthened in the grace that is in Christ Jesus.

And the things that you have heard from me in the presence of many witnesses, entrust them to faithful people who will be able to teach others also.

Therefore, you must endure hardships, like a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

No one who goes to war should concern himself with the affairs of this life, so that he may please the one who enlisted him for war.

Similarly, if someone fights in the lists, he is not crowned unless he has fought according to the rules.

The farmer must [also] work first, and then he reaps the fruits.

Consider what I say; for the Lord gives you understanding in all things.

Remember that Jesus Christ, who is of the seed of David, has risen from the dead, according to my Gospel.

For which I suffer many evils, even to the point of being put in chains, like a criminal; but nevertheless the word of God is not bound.

That is why I suffer everything for the sake of the elect, so that they too may obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory.

This saying is certain, that if we die with him, we will also live with him.

If we suffer with him, we will also reign with him; if we deny him, he will also deny us.

If we are treacherous, he remains faithful: he cannot deny himself.

Remember these things, protesting before the Lord that no one should argue about words, for it is a matter from which no profit is gained, [but] it is the ruin of the hearers.

Strive to become approved by God, a blameless worker, purely and simply teaching the word of truth.

But put an end to idle and profane quarrels, for they will pass further into impiety;

And their words will spread like gangrene, and among them are Hymenaeus and Philetus;

Those who have strayed from the truth, saying that the resurrection has already taken place, and who undermine the faith of some.

However, God's foundation remains firm, having this seal: The Lord knows those who are his; and everyone who calls on the name of Christ must turn away from iniquity. But in a great house there are not only vessels of gold and silver, but also of wood and clay: some for honor, and some for dishonor.

Therefore, if anyone cleanses himself from these things, he will be a vessel sanctified for honor, useful to the Lord, and prepared for every good work.

Flee also youthful desires, and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace with those who call on the Lord from a pure heart.

And reject foolish questions, and those that are uninformed, knowing that they only produce quarrels.

But the Lord's servant must not be quarrelsome, but gentle to everyone, able to teach, patiently enduring evil.

Teaching gently those who have contrary feelings, [in order to try] whether one day God will grant them repentance to recognize the truth;

And so that they may awaken [to escape] from the snares of the Devil, by whom they were taken to do his will.

But know this, that in the last days there will come times of trouble.

For men will be idolaters of themselves, greedy, vain, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to their fathers and mothers, ungrateful, profane;

Without natural affection, without loyalty, slanderers, incontinent, cruel, hating good people;

Traitors, reckless, puffed up [with pride], lovers of pleasure, rather than of God.

Having the appearance of godliness, but having denied its power: therefore, turn away from such people.

Now among these are those who creep into houses and hold captive women burdened with sins and tormented by various lusts;

Those who are always learning, but who can never attain full knowledge of the truth.

And just as Jannes and Jambres resisted Moses, so these also resist the truth; [being] people of corrupt mind, and rejected as to the faith.

But they will not advance any further: for their folly will be revealed to all, as was that of those others.

But for you, you have fully understood my doctrine, my conduct, my intention, my faith, my gentleness, my charity, my patience.

And you [know] the persecutions and afflictions that befell me in Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra, what persecutions, [I say], I endured, and [how] the Lord delivered me from all of them.

But all who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution. But wicked and seductive men will go on getting worse, both seducing and being seduced.

But you, remain steadfast in the things which you have learned and which have been entrusted to you, knowing from whom you learned them;

Since from your childhood you have knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.

All Scripture is divinely inspired and useful for teaching, for rebuking, for correcting, and for training in righteousness;

So that the man of God may be complete, and fully trained for every good work.

I summon you before God, and before the Lord Jesus Christ, who is to judge the living and the dead, at his appearing and in his kingdom.

Preach the word; be prepared in all circumstances; correct, rebuke, and exhort, with all gentleness of spirit and with instruction.

For the time will come when they will not tolerate sound doctrine, but loving to have their ears tickled, [with pleasant speeches] they will seek out teachers who will suit their desires.

And they will turn their ears away from the truth, and turn to fables.

But you, be watchful in all things, suffer afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make your ministry fully approved.

For me, I am now going to be sprinkled for the sacrifice, and the time of my departure is near.

I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith.

Moreover, the crown of righteousness is in store for me, and the Lord, the righteous judge, will award it to me on that day--and not only to me, but also to all who have longed for his appearing.

Hurry and come to me soon.

For Demas has deserted me, having loved this present age, and has gone to Thessalonica; Crescens has gone to Galatia; [and] Titus to Dalmatia.

Luke is alone with me; take Mark, and bring him with you: for he is very useful to me for the ministry.

I also sent Tychicus to Ephesus.

When you come, bring with you the cloak I left at Troas, at Carpus's house, and the Books too; but especially my parchments.

Alexander the blacksmith has done me much harm; the Lord will repay him according to his deeds.

Beware of him, for he has strongly opposed our words.

No one assisted me in my first defense, but all abandoned me; [however] let it not be imputed to them!

But the Lord stood by me and strengthened me, so that my preaching might be fully approved and all the Gentiles might hear it; and I was delivered from the mouth of the Lion.

The Lord will also deliver me from every evil work and save me in his heavenly kingdom. To him be glory forever and ever. Amen!

Greet Prisce and Aquila, and the family of Onesiphorus.

Erastus remained in Corinth, and I left Trophimus sick in Miletus.

Hurry and come before winter. Eubulus and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brothers, greet you.

The Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Grace be with you, Amen!

Paul, Servant of God, and Apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of God's elect, and the knowledge of the truth, which is according to godliness;

In the hope of eternal life, which God, who cannot lie, had promised before the beginning of time;

But which he manifested in his own time, [namely] his word, in the preaching entrusted to me by the commandment of God our Savior:

To Titus, my true son, according to the faith which [we] have in common: Grace, mercy, and peace be given to you from God [our] Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ, our Savior.

The reason I left you in Crete was so that you might finish putting in order the things which remain [to be settled], and that you might appoint Elders from city to city, according to what I commanded you;

[Choosing] no man who is not blameless, the husband of one wife, and whose children are faithful, and not accused of debauchery, or who cannot settle down.

For the bishop must be blameless, as a steward in the house of God, not given to his own mind, not quick to anger, not prone to drunkenness, not a beater, not greedy for dishonest gain.

But hospitable, loving good people, wise, just, holy, continent;

Holding fast to the word of truth as it was taught him, so that he may be able both to exhort by sound doctrine and to convict those who oppose it.

For there are many who cannot be included, vain talkers, and seducers of minds, especially those who are of the Circumcision whose mouths must be closed.

[And] who overthrow entire houses, teaching for dishonest gain things which they ought not to [teach].

One of them, who was their own prophet, said: The Cretans are always liars, bad beasts, lazy gluttons.

This testimony is true; therefore rebuke them sharply, so that they may be sound in the faith;

Not indulging in Jewish myths, nor in the commandments of men who turn away from the truth.

All things are pure to the pure, but nothing is pure to the impure and the unbelieving; rather, their minds and consciences are defiled.

They profess to know God, but they deny him by their works; for they are abominable, and rebellious, and rejected for every good work.

But you, teach what is consistent with sound doctrine.

Let the elderly be sober, serious, prudent, sound in faith, in charity, and in patience.

Likewise, let the older women order their outward behavior in a manner befitting holiness; let them not be slanderers, nor subject to much wine, but let them teach good things;

So that they may instruct young women to be modest, to love their husbands, to love their children;

To be wise, pure, keeping the house, good, submissive to their husbands; so that the word of God may not be blasphemed.

He also urges young men to be moderate.

Showing yourself as an example of good works in all things, in doctrine free from all alteration, in seriousness, in integrity,

[In] sound words, which cannot be condemned, so that he who opposes [you] may be put to shame, having nothing bad to say about you.

Let servants be submissive to their masters, pleasing them in all things, not being contradictory;

Not misappropriating anything [that belongs to their masters], but always showing great faithfulness, so as to make honorable in all things the doctrine of God, our Savior.

For the grace of God that brings salvation to all people has been manifested.

Teaching us that by renouncing impiety and worldly passions, we live in this present age soberly, justly, and religiously.

While awaiting the blessed hope, and the appearing of the glory of the great God, and our Savior, Jesus Christ,

Who gave himself for us to redeem us from all wickedness and to purify us to be a people for his own possession, eager to do what is good.

Teach these things, exhort and rebuke with all authority to command. Let no one despise you.

Warn them to be submissive to the Principalities and Powers, to obey the Governors, to be ready to do all kinds of good deeds.

To speak ill of no one; to be not quarrelsome, [but] gentle, and showing all kindness towards all men.

For we too were once foolish, disobedient, deceived, enslaved to various passions and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hated and hating one another.

But when the goodness of God our Savior and his love for mankind were revealed, he saved us;

Not by works of righteousness which we had done, but according to mercy; by the washing of rebirth, and renewal by the Holy Spirit;

Which he poured out abundantly on us through Jesus Christ our Savior.

So that, having been justified by his grace, we may be heirs of eternal life according to our hope.

This saying is trustworthy, and I want you to emphasize these things, so that those who have believed in God may be the first to devote themselves to good works; these are things which are good and profitable for mankind.

But put an end to foolish questions, genealogies, disputes, and quarrels about the Law; for they are useless and vain.

Reject the heretical man, after the first and second warnings.

Knowing that such a man is corrupt, and that he sins, being condemned by himself.

When I send Artemas or Tychicus to you, hurry to come to me at Nicopolis; for I have decided to spend the winter there.

Carefully accompany Zenas, Doctor of the Law, and Apollos, so that they lack nothing.

Let our people also learn to be the first to apply themselves to good works, for necessary purposes, so that they may not be without fruit.

All those who are with me greet you. Greet those who love us in faith. Grace be with you all, Amen!

Paul, a prisoner of Jesus Christ, and Timothy our brother, to Philemon our beloved, and Fellow worker;

And to Apphia our beloved, and to Archippus our Companion in arms, and to the Church which is in your house.

Grace and peace be given to you from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

I give thanks to my God, always mentioning you in my prayers;

Learning of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and your charity towards all the Saints.

So that the communication of your faith may be effective, manifesting itself in all the goodness that is in you through Jesus Christ.

For, my brother, we have great joy and comfort because of your love, that you have gladdened the hearts of the saints.

That is why, although I have great freedom in Christ to command you in what is your duty,

However, I appeal to you rather through charity, although I am what I am, namely Paul, an Elder, and even now a prisoner of Jesus Christ;

I pray to you [therefore] for my son Onesimus, whom I begot in my bonds;

Which was once useless to you, but is now very useful to both you and me, and which I am sending back to you.

Receive it then, as my own entrails.

I wanted to keep him with me, so that he might serve me in your place, in the bonds of the Gospel.

But I did not want to do anything without your advice, so that it would not be as if by constraint, but voluntarily, that you would leave me a property that belongs to you.

For perhaps he was separated from you only for a time so that you might recover him forever.

No longer as a slave, but as better than a slave, [namely], as a beloved brother, first and foremost to me; and how much more to you, whether according to the flesh or according to the Lord?

So if you consider me your companion, receive him as yourself.

If he has wronged you in any way, or if he owes you anything, make him accountable for it.

I, Paul, wrote this with my own hand, I will repay you for it; not to mention that you owe me yourself.

Yes, my brother, let me receive this pleasure from you in [our] Lord; gladden my heart in [our] Lord.

I wrote to you assuring myself of your obedience, and knowing that you will do even more than I tell you.

But also at the same time prepare a lodging for me; for I hope that I will be given to you through your prayers.

Epaphras, who is in prison with me in Christ Jesus, greets you;

Marc [also], and Aristarchus, and Demas, and Luke, my fellow workers.

May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, Amen!

God having spoken in ancient times to our fathers through the Prophets, in many ways,

He has spoken to us in these last days by [his] Son, whom he appointed heir of all things; and through whom he made the ages;

And who, being the radiance of his glory and the exact representation of his being, and upholding all things by his powerful word, having himself provided purification for our sins, sat down at the right hand of the Majesty in heaven.

Being made all the more excellent than the Angels, he inherited a Name more excellent than theirs.

For to which of the angels did he ever say, "You are my Son; today I have begotten you"? Or elsewhere, "I will be his Father, and he will be my Son"?

And again, when he brings his firstborn Son into the world, it is said: and that all the angels of God should worship him.

For as to the Angels, it is said: Making the winds the Angels, and the flame of fire their Ministers.

But [it is said] concerning the Son: O God! Your throne [remains] forever and ever, and the scepter of your kingdom is a scepter of justice:

You have loved justice and hated wickedness; therefore, O God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness above all your companions.

And in another place: You, Lord, laid the foundations of the earth from the beginning, and the heavens are the work of your hands:

They will perish, but you are eternal; and they will all wear out like a garment;

And you will fold them like a garment, and they will be changed; but you are the same, and your years will never end.

And to which of the angels did he ever say, "Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet"?

Are they not all administrator spirits, sent to serve on behalf of those who are to receive the inheritance of salvation?

That is why we must pay closer attention to the things we have heard, lest we let them slip away.

For if the word spoken by the angels was firm, and if every transgression and disobedience received its just recompense;

How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation, which, having first begun to be announced by the Lord, was confirmed to us by those who had heard him?

God also testified to them by wonders and miracles, and by many different effects of his power, and by the distributions of the Holy Spirit, according to his will. For it is not to the angels that he has subjected the world to come, of which we are speaking.

And someone else gave this testimony in another place, saying, "What is man that you remember him, or the son of man that you visit him?"

You made him a little lower than the angels, and crowned him with glory and honor, and established him over the works of your hands.

You have put all things under his feet. Now, in that he has put all things under him, he has left nothing that is not subject to him; yet we do not yet see that all things are subject to him.

But we see him who was made a little lower than the angels, Jesus, by the passion of his death, so that by the grace of God he might suffer death for all.

For it was fitting that he for whom all things exist, and through whom all things exist, since he was bringing many children to glory, should consecrate the Prince of their salvation through afflictions.

For both he who sanctifies and those who are sanctified all come from the same [father]; therefore he is not ashamed to call them his brothers.

Saying: I will declare your Name to my brothers, and I will praise you in the midst of the assembly.

And elsewhere: I will trust in him. And again: here I am, and the children God has given me.

Since the children share in flesh and blood, he too likewise shared in the same things, so that by death he might destroy him who had the power of death, that is, the Devil;

And that he would deliver from it all those who, for fear of death, were subjected to slavery all their lives.

For certainly he did not take the Angels, but he took the seed of Abraham.

Therefore he had to be like his brothers in all things, so that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest toward God, to make atonement for the sins of the people.

Because he suffered when he was tempted, he is also able to rescue those who are being tempted.

Therefore, my holy brothers, who are partakers of the heavenly calling, consider carefully Jesus Christ the Apostle and High Priest of our profession.

Who is faithful to the one who appointed him, as Moses also [was faithful] in all his house.

But Jesus Christ was judged worthy of greater glory than Moses, just as the one who built the house is of greater dignity than the house itself.

For every house is built by someone; but the one who built all these things is God.

And as for Moses, he was faithful in all God's house as a servant, to testify to the things that were to be said;

But Christ as Son is over his house; and we are his house, provided we hold fast our confidence and the glory of hope to the end.

That is why, as the Holy Spirit says: today, if you hear his voice,

Do not harden your hearts, as [it happened] in [the place of] anger, on the day of testing in the wilderness:

Where your fathers tested me and tried me, and saw my works for forty years.

That is why I was annoyed with that generation, and I said, "Their hearts always go astray, and they have not known my ways."

So I swore in my anger: if they ever enter my rest.

My brothers, take care that there is not in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, so as to rebel against the living God.

But exhort one another daily, while the day shines upon us, lest any of you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin.

For we have been made partakers of Christ, if indeed we hold fast to the end the beginning of our life.

While it is said: today if you hear his voice do not harden your hearts, as happened in the place of wrath.

For some, having heard it, provoked him to anger; but not all who had come out of Egypt through Moses.

But whose were they? Was it not those who sinned, and whose bodies fell in the desert?

And to whom did he swear that they would not enter his rest, except to those who were rebellious?

Thus we see that they could not enter because of their unbelief.

Therefore, let us be afraid that anyone among you who neglects the promise of entering his rest may be deprived of it:

For we were evangelized, just as they were; but the word of the preaching did not profit them at all, because it was not mixed with faith in those who heard it.

But for us who have believed, we shall enter that rest, according to what has been said: therefore I swore in my anger, that they shall never enter my rest, although his works were finished from the foundation of the world.

For it has been said in some place concerning the seventh [day]: And God rested from all his works on the seventh day.

And again in this passage: If [ever] they enter my rest.

Therefore, it remains that some will enter, but those to whom the gospel was first preached have not entered because of their unbelief.

[God] will set forth a certain day, [which he calls] today, saying through David so long afterward, according to what was said: Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts.

For if Joshua had brought them to rest, he would never have spoken of another day after that.

So there remains a rest for God's people.

For he who has entered into his rest has also rested from his works, just as God [had rested] from his own.

Let us therefore strive to enter into that rest, lest anyone fall away by imitating a similar unbelief.

For the word of God is living and active, and sharper than any double-edged sword, piercing even to the division of soul and spirit and joints and marrow, and it judges the thoughts and intentions of the heart.

And there is no creature that is hidden from him: but all things are naked and fully open to the eyes of him before whom we are dealing.

Therefore, since we have a great high priest, Jesus the Son of God, who has entered into heaven, let us hold fast to our profession.

For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but [we have one] who in every respect has been tempted as we are, yet without sin.

Let us then go with confidence to the throne of Grace, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need.

Now every high priest who is chosen from among men is appointed for men in matters pertaining to God, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins.

Being able to have sufficient pity on the ignorant and the erring; because he is also himself surrounded by infirmity.

So much so that because of this [infirmity], he must offer for sins, not only for the people, but also for himself.

No one takes this honor upon himself, but he who is called by God, like Aaron, [enjoys it].

Likewise, Christ did not glorify himself to become a high priest, but he who said to him, "You are my Son, today I have begotten you."

As he also said to him in another place: you are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.

Who, during the days of his life, offered up prayers and supplications with loud cries and tears to the one who could save him from death, and was granted what he feared,

Although he was the Son [of God], he nevertheless learned obedience through the things he suffered.

And having been consecrated, he became the author of eternal salvation for all who obey him;

Being called by God [to be] High Priest according to the order of Melchizedek;

We have much to say about them, but it is difficult to explain, because you have become lazy in listening.

For instead of being teachers by now, you need someone to teach you the basic principles of God's beginnings. You have become like this: you need milk, not solid food.

But anyone who uses milk does not know what the word of righteousness is, because he is a child;

But solid meat is for those who are already mature men, [that is], for those who, by being accustomed to it, have their senses trained to discern good and evil.

Therefore, leaving behind the word which teaches only the first principles of Christianity, let us strive for perfection, [and not stop] in laying anew the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith in God;

On the doctrine of Baptism, and of the laying on of hands, of the resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

And that is what we will do, God willing.

But it is impossible for those who have once been enlightened, and have tasted the heavenly gift, and have become partakers of the Holy Spirit,

And who have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the coming age;

If they fall back, let them be changed again by repentance, because they are crucifying the Son of God all over again and subjecting him to public disgrace.

For the land that often drinks the rain that comes upon it, and that produces herbs suitable for those by whom it is plowed, receives the blessing of God;

But the one that produces thorns and thistles is rejected and near to being cursed; its end is to be burned.

But we, my beloved, have convinced ourselves of better things in relation to you, and fitting for salvation, although we speak thus.

For God is not unjust, to forget your work and the labor of love which you have shown for His Name, in that you have helped the saints, and continue to help them.

But we wish that each of you will show, to the very end, the same care for the full certainty of hope.

So that you will not become sluggish, but imitate those who through faith and patience inherit what has been promised.

For when God made the promise to Abraham, because he could not swear by a greater one, he swore by himself,

By saying: indeed I will bless you abundantly, and I will multiply you wonderfully.

And so [Abraham], having waited patiently, obtained what had been promised to him.

For men swear by one greater than themselves, and the oath they take to confirm their word puts an end to all their disputes.

Therefore, God, wishing to make the unchanging firmness of his counsel better known to the heirs of the promise, introduced the oath:

So that by two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for God to deceive, we who have taken refuge in obtaining [the fulfillment of] the hope set before us;

[And] which we hold as a sure and firm anchor of the soul, and which penetrates even to the innermost veil,

Where Jesus entered as our forerunner, having been made a high priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.

For this Melchizedek was King of Salem and Priest of the Most High God, who met

Abraham returning from the defeat of the kings and blessed him,
And to whom Abraham gave a tenth of everything. His name means first King of Righteousness, and then [he was] King of Salem, that is, King of Peace.
Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but being made like the Son of God, he remains a priest forever.
Now consider how great was the one to whom even Abraham the Patriarch gave a tithe of the spoils.

For those among the children of Levi who receive the priesthood, they have a commandment to tithe the people according to the Law, that is, [to tithe] their brothers, although they came from the loins of Abraham.

But he who was not counted among them tithed Abraham, and blessed him who had the promises.

But without question, the one who is the least is blessed by the one who is the greatest.

And here men who are mortal take tithes; but there, he [takes them] of whom it is borne witness that he lives.

And, figuratively speaking, Levi himself, who takes tithes, was tithed in Abraham. For he was still in his father's loins when Melchizedek came to meet him.

If then perfection had been found in the Levitical priesthood, (for it was under it that the people received the Law) what need was there after that for another priest to arise according to the order of Melchizedek, and not according to the order of Aaron.

But since the Priesthood has been changed, it is necessary that there also be a change of Law.

For the one about whom these things are said belongs to another Tribe, from which no one has attended the altar;

For it is evident that our Lord descended from the Tribe of Judah, concerning which Moses said nothing about the Priesthood.

And this is even more undeniable, because another priest, in the likeness of Melchizedek, is raised up;

Who was not made [a priest] according to the law of the carnal commandment, but according to the power of the imperishable life.

For [God] testifies to him: You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.

But he abolished the preceding commandment because of his weakness, and because he could not profit from it.

For the law made nothing perfect, but what was brought to perfection was this better hope, by which we draw near to God.

All the more so since it was not without an oath. Now these were made priests without an oath;

But this one was so with an oath, by the one who said to him: The Lord has sworn, and he will not change his mind: you are a priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

It is [therefore] of a much better covenant [than the first], of which Jesus was made the guarantor.

And as for the priests, many were made, because death prevented them from serving forever.

But this one, because it remains eternally, has a perpetual priesthood.

That is why he is also able to save forever those who come to God through him, because he always lives to intercede for them.

But it was fitting for us to have such a high Priest, holy, innocent, without blemish, separated from sinners, and exalted above the heavens;

Who would not have needed, like the high priests, to offer sacrifices every day, first for his sins, and then for those of the people, since he did this once, having offered himself.

For the Law ordains weak men to be high priests; but the word of the oath which came after the Law [ordains] the Son, who is consecrated forever. Now the summary of our discourse is this: We have such a high priest, who sits at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven, Minister of the Sanctuary, and of the true Tabernacle, which the Lord set up and not men.

For every high priest is ordained to offer gifts and sacrifices, therefore it is necessary that this one also had something to offer. Since even if he were on earth he would not be a priest, while there would be priests who offer gifts according to the Law; Those who minister in the place which is but a copy and shadow of the heavenly things, as God said to Moses when he was to finish the Tabernacle: "Now take care," he said to him, "to make everything according to the pattern shown you on the mountain."

But now [our High Priest] has obtained a ministry that is as excellent as this, since he is Mediator of a better covenant, which is established under better promises. Because if there had been nothing to criticize in the first one, there would never have been any need for a second one.

For in censure [the Jews, God] said to them: Behold, the days will come, says the Lord, when I will make a New Covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah:

Not according to the covenant I made with their fathers on the day I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, for they did not persevere in my covenant; therefore I despised them, says the Lord.

But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord, [that] I will put my laws in their understanding, and I will write them on their hearts; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

And each one shall not teach his neighbor, nor each one his brother, saying, 'Know the Lord,' because they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest. For I will be appeased concerning their injustices, and I will remember their sins and their iniquities no more.

By making a new [covenant], he makes the first one obsolete: and what is becoming old and ancient is about to be abolished.

The first tabernacle therefore had ordinances concerning divine worship, and an earthly Sanctuary.

For a first tabernacle was built, called the Holy Place, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the bread of the Presence.

And after the second veil [was] the Tabernacle, [which was] called the Most Holy Place.

Having a golden censer, and the Ark of the Covenant, entirely covered with gold all around, in which was the golden pitcher in which was the manna; and Aaron's rod which had budded, and the tablets of the covenant.

And above the Ark were the Cherubim of glory, casting a shadow upon the Mercy Seat, of which things there is no need now to speak in detail.

Now these things being thus arranged, the Priests always enter the first Tabernacle to perform the service;

But the one High Priest enters the second once a year, [but] not without [bringing] blood, which he offers for himself, and for the sins of the people;

The Holy Spirit was making known by this, that the way to the Holy Places had not yet been revealed, while the first Tabernacle was still standing, which was a symbol destined for the time then;

During which gifts and sacrifices were offered; which could not sanctify the conscience of the one performing the service,

Ordained only in meats, in drinks, in various ablutions, and in carnal ceremonies, until this is rectified.

But Christ came to be the high priest of the good things to come, through a more excellent and perfect tabernacle, which is not made with hands, that is, of this kind of construction,

He entered the Holy Places once with his own blood, and not with the blood of calves or goats, having obtained eternal redemption.

For if the blood of bulls and goats, and the ashes of the heifer, with which they are sprinkled, sanctify those who are defiled as to the purity of the flesh;

How much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without blemish to God, purify our consciences from dead works to serve the living God?

Therefore he is the Mediator of the New Testament, so that when death comes as a ransom for the transgressions that were under the first Testament, those who are called may receive the promise of the eternal inheritance.

Because where there is a will, it is necessary that the death of the testator occur.

Because it is by the death of the [testator] that a will becomes firm, since it has no effect while the testator is alive.

That is why the first [will] itself was not confirmed without blood.

For after Moses had recited to all the people all the commandments according to the Law, having taken the blood of calves and goats, with water and wool dyed purple, and hyssop, he sprinkled it on the Book, and on all the people;

By saying: this is the blood of the Covenant, which God has commanded you [to observe].

He also sprinkled the blood on the Tabernacle, and on all the vessels of the service.

And almost everything according to the Law is purified by the blood; and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.

Therefore, it was necessary that the things which were like those which are in heaven should be purified by such things, but that the heavenly things should be purified by sacrifices more excellent than these.

For Christ did not enter the holy places made with hands, which were copies of the true ones, but he entered heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God on our behalf.

Not that he offers himself several times, as the high priest enters the Holy Places every year with another blood;

(Otherwise he would have had to suffer many times since the foundation of the world) but now at the end of the ages he has appeared once for all for the abolition of sin, by the sacrifice of himself.

And as it is ordained for men to die once, and after that [follows] judgment.

So also Christ, having been offered once to take away the sins of many, will appear a second time, not to bear sin, but to bring salvation to those who are waiting for him.

For the Law, having a shadow of the good things to come, and not the vivid image of the things, can never, by the same sacrifices which are continually offered year after year, sanctify those who cling to it.

Otherwise, would they not have ceased to be offered, since the sacrificers, once purified, would no longer have had any consciousness of sin?

But in these [sacrifices] there is a commemoration of sins repeated year after year.

For it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins.

That is why [Jesus Christ], when he came into the world, said: you did not desire sacrifice or offering, but you have prepared a body for me.

You did not take pleasure in burnt offerings, nor in sin offerings.

Then I said: Here I am, I have come, it is written of me in the beginning of the Book: that I may do, O God, your will.

Having said before, "You did not desire sacrifice, nor offering, nor burnt offering, nor sin offering, nor were you pleased with them," which are offered according to the Law, then he said, "Here I am, I have come to do your will, O God!"

He therefore removes the first one, in order to establish the second one.

But it is by this will that we have been sanctified, [namely] by the offering which was made once for all of the body of Jesus Christ.

Every priest, therefore, attends daily, administering and offering often the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins.

But he, having offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down at the right hand of God;

Waiting for what remains, [knowing] that his enemies should be used as a footstool for his feet.

For by one offering he has consecrated forever those who are sanctified.

And this is also what the Holy Spirit testifies to us, for after having said firstly:

This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, says the Lord, that I will put my laws in their hearts, and I will write them in their minds;

And I will remember their sins and their iniquities no more.

Where sins are forgiven, there is no longer any offering for sin.

Therefore, my brothers, we have freedom to enter the Holy Places by the blood of Jesus;

[Which is] the new and living way which he has consecrated for us; [which we have, I say, the freedom to enter] through the veil, that is to say, through his own flesh; And [that we have] a great Priest established over the house of God;

Let us approach him with a sincere heart [and] with unwavering faith, having our hearts cleansed of an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with clean water;

Let us hold fast to the profession of our hope without wavering, for he who has made the promises is faithful.

And let us consider how we may spur one another on toward love and good works;

Not leaving our assembly, as some are accustomed to do, but exhorting one another; and all the more as you see the Day approaching.

For if we deliberately keep on sinning after we have received the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins.

But a terrible expectation of judgment, and the ardor of a fire that must devour the adversaries.

If anyone had despised the Law of Moses, he died without mercy, on the testimony of two or three witnesses.

How much worse torment do you think someone deserves who has trampled the Son of God underfoot, and who has treated as an unholy thing the blood of the covenant by which he was sanctified, and who has insulted the Spirit of grace?

For we know him who said: Vengeance is mine, and I will repay, says the Lord. And again: The Lord will judge his people.

It is a terrible thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

Now recall to your memory the preceding days, during which, after being enlightened, you endured a great struggle of suffering;

Having been exposed on the one hand to public disgrace and affliction; and on the other hand, having shared in the suffering of those who have endured similar indignities.

For you also shared in the affliction of my chains, and you joyfully received the confiscation of your property, knowing in yourselves that in heaven you have better and lasting possessions.

Do not lose this firmness that you have shown, and which will be well rewarded.

Because you need patience, so that after you have done the will of God, you may receive [the effect of his] promise.

For in a little while, he who is to come will come and will not delay.

But the righteous will live by faith; but if anyone shrinks back, my soul takes no pleasure in him.

But we do not want to turn away [from our Master]; that would be our destruction; but we persevere in the faith for the salvation of our souls.

Now faith makes present the things hoped for, and is the evidence of the things not seen.

For it was through her that the ancients obtained a good testimony.

By faith we know that the ages were ordered by the word of God, so that the things which are seen were not made out of things which were seen.

By faith Abel offered to God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, and by it he was commended as righteous, because God bore witness to his gifts; and though he died, he still speaks by it.

By faith Enoch was taken away so that he did not go through death; and he was not found, because God had taken him away; for before he was taken away he obtained a testimony that he had pleased God.

But it is impossible to please him without faith; for whoever comes to God must believe that God exists and that he rewards those who seek him.

By faith Noah, having been warned by God of things not yet seen, was afraid, and built the Ark for the preservation of his family, and by [this Ark] he condemned the world, and was made heir of the righteousness which is according to faith.

By faith Abraham, being called, obeyed to go to the land that he was to receive as an inheritance; and he went, not knowing where he was going.

By faith he remained a stranger in the land that had been promised to him, as though it did not belong to him, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, who were heirs with him of the same promise.

For he was waiting for the city which has foundations, and of which God is the architect and founder.

By faith Sarah also received the power to conceive a child, and she gave birth after her child was old, because she was persuaded that he who had promised [her] was faithful.

Therefore, from one man, who was even dead, were born people who equal in number the stars of heaven, and the sand that is on the seashore, which cannot be counted.

All these died in faith, without having received the things promised, but having seen them from afar, they believed and welcomed them, and they professed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

Because those who make these statements clearly show that they are still searching for [their] country.

And indeed, if they had recalled to their memory the one from whom they had come, they would have had time to return there.

But they desired a better one, that is, a heavenly one; therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, because he had prepared a City for them.

By faith Abraham, being tested, offered up Isaac; he, [I say], who had received the promises, offered up even his only son.

Regarding which it had been said to him: the descendants of Isaac will be your true offspring.

Having considered that God was able even to raise him from the dead; therefore he also received him back by a kind [of resurrection].

By faith Isaac gave Jacob and Esau a blessing that looked to the future.

By faith Jacob, when dying, blessed each of Joseph's sons, and bowed down [before God] leaning on the end of his staff.

By faith Joseph, on his deathbed, mentioned the exodus of the children of Israel, and gave an order concerning his bones.

By faith Moses, after he was born, was hidden three months by his father and mother, because he was a very beautiful child, and they were not afraid of the King's edict.

By faith Moses, being already grown, refused to be named son of Pharaoh's daughter. Choosing rather to be afflicted with the people of God, than to enjoy for a little while [the delights] of sin.

[And] having considered that the reproach of Christ was of greater treasure than the riches of Egypt; because he regarded the reward.

By faith he left Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king; for he persevered, as seeing him who is invisible.

By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, so that whoever killed the firstborn would not touch those [of the Israelites].

By faith they crossed the Red Sea as through dry land; and when the Egyptians wanted to test them, they were drowned [in the waters].

By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they had been encircled for seven days.

By faith Rahab the hospitable did not perish with the unbelievers; having received the spies [and sent them away] in peace.

And what more shall I say? For time would fail me if I were to speak of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel, and the Prophets,

Who by faith have fought against kingdoms, have administered justice, have obtained the promises, have shut the mouths of lions,

They extinguished the force of the fire, escaped from the edge of the swords; the sick became strong; they proved themselves strong in battle, [and] turned the armies of foreigners into flight.

The women received back their dead through resurrection; others were laid in torment, not considering being delivered, in order to obtain the better resurrection.

And others were tested by mockery and beatings, by bonds, and by prison.

They were stoned, they were sawn in two, they suffered severe trials, they were put to death by the edge of the sword, they wandered about, clothed in sheep and goat skins, reduced to misery, afflicted, tormented;

Of whom the world was not worthy; wandering in deserts, and in mountains, in caves, and in holes in the earth.

And although they were all commendable for their faith, they did not receive the effect of the promise;

God has provided something better for us; so that without us they have not reached perfection.

Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, throwing off everything that hinders and the sin that so easily entangles, let us always run the race marked out for us;

Fixing our eyes on Jesus, the pioneer and perfecter of faith, who for the joy he enjoyed endured the cross, despising the shame, and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.

Therefore, consider carefully him who suffered such opposition from sinners against himself, so that you may not succumb by losing heart.

You have not yet resisted to the point of [shedding your] blood in fighting against sin;

And yet you have forgotten the exhortation which addresses you as to his children, saying: My child, do not despise the Lord's discipline, and do not lose heart when you are rebuked by him.

For the Lord disciplines the one he loves, and he chastens every child he acknowledges.

If you endure the punishment, God presents himself to you as to his children: for who is the child whom the father does not discipline?

But if you are without punishment in which all participate, then you are supposed children, and not legitimate ones.

And since our earthly fathers disciplined us, and yet we respected them, shall we not be much more submissive to the Father of spirits? And shall we live.

For in contrast to them, they disciplined us for a little while according to their will; but this one disciplines us for our benefit, so that we may share in his holiness.

No discipline seems pleasant at the time, but painful; but afterwards it produces a harvest of righteousness and peace for those who are trained by it.

Therefore, raise up your weak hands, [and strengthen your] dislocated knees.

And make the paths straight for your feet, so that he who stumbles may not stumble, but rather be restored to his whole being.

Pursue peace with everyone; and holiness, without which no one will see the Lord.

Taking care that no one falls short of the grace of God; that no root of bitterness springs up on high troubles you, and that many are not defiled by it.

Let none of you be a fornicator, or profane like Esau, who for a meal sold his birthright.

For you know that even desiring afterwards to inherit the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no place for repentance, although he had asked for it with tears.

For you have not come to a mountain that can be touched with the hand, nor to a burning fire, nor to a whirlwind, nor to darkness, nor to a storm,

Neither at the sound of the trumpet, nor at the voice of the words, [concerning] which those who heard it prayed that the word should no longer be addressed to them;

For they could not uphold what was ordained, [namely], If even an animal touches the mountain, it shall be stoned, or pierced with a dart.

And Moses, so terrible was what appeared, said: I am terrified and I tremble all over.

But you have come to Mount Zion, to the City of the living God, to the heavenly Jerusalem, and to thousands of angels,

And to the assembly and to the Church of the firstborn who are written in Heaven, and to God who is the judge of all, and to the spirits of the righteous sanctified;

And to Jesus, the Mediator of the new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood, which speaks better things than the blood of Abel.

Take care not to despise the one who speaks to you; for if those who despised the one who spoke to them on earth did not escape, we will be punished much more if we turn away from the one who speaks from Heaven;

Whose voice then shook the earth, but with regard to the present time, he made this promise, saying: I will shake once more not only the earth, but also Heaven.

Now this [word], once again, signifies the abolition of things that can be changed, as having been made [by hand], so that those that are immutable may remain;

Therefore, since we have taken hold of the kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us retain the grace by which we serve God, so that we may please him with reverence and awe.

For our God is also a consuming fire.

Let brotherly love remain [in your hearts].

Do not forget to show hospitality to strangers, for by doing so some have shown hospitality to angels, knowing it nothing.

Remember those in prison as if you were imprisoned with them, and those who are mistreated as if you yourselves were of the same body.

Marriage is honorable among all, and the bed undefiled; but God will judge the fornicators and adulterers.

Let your morals be without greed, being content with what you have now; for he himself said: I will never leave you nor forsake you.

So we can confidently say: The Lord helps me; and I will not fear what man might do to me.

Remember your leaders, who brought you the word of God, and imitate their faith, considering the outcome of their lives.

Jesus Christ was the same yesterday and today, and he is also eternally.

Do not be carried away here and there by all kinds of strange teachings; for it is good for the heart to be strengthened by grace, and not by food, which is of no profit to those who dwell on it.

We have an altar from which those who serve in the Tabernacle do not have the power to eat.

For the bodies of the animals whose blood is borne for sin by the high priest into the sanctuary are burned outside the camp.

That is why Jesus also suffered outside the gate, in order to sanctify the people through his own blood.

Let us therefore go out to him outside the camp, bearing his disgrace.

For we do not have here a lasting city, but we are looking for the one that is to come.

Therefore, through him let us continually offer to God a sacrifice of praise, that is, the fruit of our lips, confessing his Name.

But do not forget to give to God and to share in his possessions, for with such sacrifices God is pleased.

Obeys your leaders and submit to them, for they keep watch over your souls, as those who must give an account; so that what they do they do with joy and not with grudgingness, for that would not be to your advantage.

Pray for us; for we make sure that we have a good conscience, desiring to conduct ourselves honestly among all.

And I urge you even more earnestly to do so, so that I may be returned to you sooner.

Now the God of peace, who brought again from the dead the great Shepherd of the sheep, by the blood of the eternal covenant, [namely] our Lord Jesus Christ:

May He make you complete in every good work, to do His will, working in you what is pleasing to Him through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory forever and ever, Amen!

Therefore, my brothers, I ask you to bear with the word of exhortation; for I have written to you in a few words.

Know that our brother Timothy has been released; I will see you with him if he comes soon.

Greet all your leaders and all the saints; those in Italy greet you.

Grace be with you all, Amen!

James, servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve Tribes scattered abroad, greetings.

My brothers, consider it a cause for perfect joy when you are exposed to various trials.

Knowing that the testing of your faith produces perseverance.

But let patience have its perfect work, so that you may be perfect and complete, lacking nothing.

If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask God, who gives it freely to all, and does not reproach it, and it will be given him;

But let him ask in faith, without doubting at all; for he who doubts is like a wave of the sea, driven by the wind, and tossed to and fro.

But such a man should not expect to receive anything from the Lord.

A man of two hearts is inconstant in all his ways.

But let the brother who is of low condition glory in his elevation.

[And] let the rich man boast in his low condition, for he will pass away like a flower of the grass.

For no sooner does the scorching sun rise than the grass is scorched, its flower falls, and its beauty perishes; so also will the rich man fade away with his pursuits.

Blessed is the man who endures temptation, for when he has stood the test he will receive the crown of life that God has promised to those who love him.

When anyone is tempted, let him not say, 'I am being tempted by God'; for God cannot be tempted with evil, nor does he tempt anyone.

But everyone is tempted when they are attracted and enticed by their own desires. Then, when desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and sin, when it is full-grown, brings forth death.

My beloved brothers, do not deceive yourselves:

Every good and perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shadow of change.

He chose to give us birth through the word of truth, so that we might be a kind of firstfruits of all he created.

Therefore, my beloved brothers, let every man be quick to listen, slow to speak, and slow to anger;

For the anger of man does not accomplish the righteousness of God.

Therefore, putting away all filthiness and all superfluous wickedness, receive with meekness the word planted in you, which is able to save your souls;

And do not merely listen to the word, deceiving yourselves with empty talk.

For if anyone listens to the word, but does not put it into practice, he is like a man who looks at his natural face in a mirror;

For after he had considered himself, and left, he immediately forgot who he was.

But the one who looks into the perfect law, which is the law of liberty, and perseveres, not being a forgetful hearer but applying himself to the work, he will be blessed in what he has done.

If anyone among you thinks he is religious, and does not bridle his tongue but deceives his heart, such a person's religion is worthless.

Pure and spotless religion toward [our] God and [our] Father is to visit orphans and widows in their afflictions, and to keep oneself pure from the defilements of this world.

My brothers, do not have faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ, judging by the appearance of persons.

For if a man comes into your assembly wearing a gold ring and fine clothes, and a poor man comes in dressed in shabby clothes;

And that you show consideration to the one who wears the precious garment, and say to him: you, sit here honorably; and that you say to the poor: you, stand there; or sit on my footstool;

Have you not made a distinction among yourselves, and are you not judges who have unjust thoughts?

Listen, my beloved brothers, has not God chosen the poor of this world, who are rich in faith, and heirs of the Kingdom he promised to those who love him?

But you have dishonored the poor. And yet, do not the rich oppress you and drag you before the courts?

And are they not the ones blaspheming the good Name that has been invoked upon you?

If you fulfill the royal law, which is according to Scripture, you shall love your neighbor as yourself; you are doing well.

But if you show partiality, you sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors.

But whoever keeps the whole law, and yet sins in just one [point], is guilty of all.

For he who said, "You shall not commit adultery," also said, "You shall not murder."

So if you do not commit adultery but do murder, you are a transgressor of the law.

Speak and act as if you were to be judged by the Law of Liberty.

For there will be a condemnation without mercy on him who has not shown mercy; but mercy is safe from condemnation.

My brothers, what good will it be for someone to say they have faith but not works? Can such faith save them?

And if the brother or sister is naked, and lacks what they need each day to live,

And if one of you says to them, "Go in peace, be warmed and satisfied," but you do not give them the things necessary for the body, what good will that do them?

Likewise, faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead.
But someone will say, 'You have faith, and I have works.' Show me your faith without works, and I will show you my faith by my works.

You believe that there is only one God; you do well; the Demons believe it too, and they tremble at it.

But, O vain man! Do you want to know that faith without works is dead?

Was not Abraham our father justified by works when he offered his son Isaac on the altar?

Do you not see that his faith was working with his works, and that it was by his works that his faith was made perfect?

And so this Scripture was fulfilled, which says: Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness; and he was called God's friend.

So you see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone.

Similarly, was not Rahab the hospitable vindicated by her deeds when she received the messengers and sent them out by another way?

For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead.

My brothers, do not have many masters, knowing that we will receive a greater condemnation.

For we all sin in many ways; if anyone does not sin in what he says, he is a perfect man, and he can even bridle the whole body.

So, we put bits in the horses' mouths so that they obey us, and we lead their whole bodies here and there.

This is also true of ships, although they are so large, and are tossed about by the storm, they are steered here and there with a small rudder, according to the wishes of the one who steers them.

So it is with the tongue; it is a small member, yet it can boast of great things.

Here, too, is a small fire; how much wood does it kindle?

The tongue is also a fire, [and] a world of iniquity; [for] the tongue is in such a way among our members, that it defiles the whole body, and sets [the] whole world that was created on fire, being itself on fire [with the fire] of Gehenna.

For every kind of wild beast, bird, reptile, and fish of the sea, can be tamed, and has been tamed by human nature.

But no man can tame the tongue: it is an evil that cannot be restrained, [and] it is full of deadly poison.

With it we bless [our] God and Father; and with it we curse men, who have been made in the likeness of God.

From the same mouth proceeds blessing and cursing. My brothers, these things should not be so.

Does a fountain spout both sweet and bitter from the same opening?

My brothers, can a fig tree produce olives? Or a grapevine figs? Likewise, no spring can spout both salt water and fresh water.

Is there among you any wise and understanding man? Let him show his actions by good conduct, with gentleness and wisdom.

But if you have bitter envy and irritation in your hearts, do not boast, and do not lie by dishonoring the truth [of the Gospel].

For this is not the wisdom that comes down from above; but it is earthly, sensual, and demonic.

For where there is envy and irritation, there is disorder and every kind of evil.

But the wisdom that comes from above is first of all pure, then peaceable, gentle, agreeable, full of mercy and good fruits, not causing much trouble, and without hypocrisy.

But the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace.

Where do disputes and quarrels arise among you? Do they not come from your desires, which battle within you?

You covet, and you do not have [what you desire]; you are consumed by a deadly longing, you are jealous, and you cannot obtain [what you envy]; you quarrel and argue, and you do not have [what you desire], because you do not ask for it. You ask, and you do not receive; because you ask wrongly, [and] in order to use it for your pleasures.

Men and women who commit adultery, do you not know that friendship with the world means enmity against God? Therefore, whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God.

Do you think that Scripture speaks in vain? Does the Spirit who dwells in us inspire you with envy?

On the contrary, he gives you greater grace; therefore [Scripture] says: God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble.

Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the Devil, and he will flee from you.

Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you; sinners, cleanse your hands; and you double-minded, purify your hearts.

Feel your miseries, and lament, and weep; let your laughter turn into tears, and your joy into sadness.

Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will lift you up.

My brothers, do not slander one another; he who slanders his brother and condemns his brother slanders the law and condemns the law; but if you condemn the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge.

There is only one Lawgiver, who can save and who can destroy; [but] who are you, to condemn others?

But now you who say, 'Let us go today or tomorrow to such and such a city, and stay there a year, and trade and earn;

(However, you do not know what will happen tomorrow, for what is your life? It is surely only a vapor that appears for a little while, and then vanishes.)

Instead of you having to say: if the Lord wills it, and if we live, we will do this, or that.

But now you boast in your proud thoughts; all boasting of this kind is evil.

Therefore, there is sin in the one who knows how to do good, and does not do it.

Now you rich people, weep and cry out loudly because of the miseries that are coming upon you.

Your riches have rotted away; your clothes are riddled with worms.

Your gold and silver are corroded, and their corrosion will testify against you and eat your flesh like fire; you have stored up treasure for the last days.

Behold, the wages of the workers who reaped your fields, which you failed to pay, cry out; and the cries of those who reaped have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts.

You have lived in delights on earth, you have indulged in pleasures, [and] you have satiated your hearts as on a day of sacrifice.

You have condemned, [and] put to death the righteous one, [who] does not resist you.

Therefore, my brothers, wait patiently until the coming of the Lord; behold, the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, patiently waiting until it receives the rain of the early and the latter season.

Therefore, you too must wait patiently, and strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is near.

My brothers, do not grumble against one another, so that you may not be condemned; look, the judge is standing at the door.

My brothers, take as an example of affliction and patience the Prophets who spoke in the Name of the Lord.

Behold, we count as blessed those who have suffered; you have heard of the patience of Job, and you have seen the end of the Lord; for the Lord is full of compassion, and merciful.

But above all, my brothers, do not swear by heaven or earth or by any other oath; but let your yes be yes, and your no, no: lest you fall into condemnation.

Is there anyone among you who is suffering? Let him pray. Is there anyone who is cheerful? Let him sing psalms.
Is there anyone among you who is sick? Let him call the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, and anoint him with oil in the name of the Lord.
And prayer offered in faith will save the sick person, and the Lord will raise him up; and if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven.
Confess your sins to one another and pray for one another so that you may be healed. For the prayer of a righteous person, offered earnestly, is very effective.
Elijah was a man subject to similar infirmities as we are, and yet having prayed earnestly that it would not rain, it did not rain on the earth for three years and six months.
And after further prayer, Heaven gave rain, and the earth produced its fruit.
My brothers, if any of you should stray from the truth, and someone should bring him back;
Let him know that whoever brings back a sinner from his error will save a soul from death and cover a multitude of sins.
Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the foreigners scattered throughout the land of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, Chosen according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, by the sanctifying Spirit, to obey Jesus Christ and to receive the sprinkling of his blood: Grace and peace be multiplied to you.
Blessed be God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who by his great mercy has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead;
To obtain the incorruptible inheritance, which cannot be defiled or faded, kept in heaven for us,
We are kept by God's power through faith so that we may obtain the salvation that is ready to be revealed in the last time.
In this you rejoice, although for a little while you may now be grieved by various temptations, since this is fitting;
So that the testing of your faith—of greater worth than gold, which perishes, yet is refined by fire—may result in praise, honor, and glory when Jesus Christ is revealed;

Whom, though you have not seen him, you love; in whom, though now you do not see him, you believe, and you rejoice with an inexpressible and glorious joy;
Winning the end of your faith, [namely] the salvation of souls.
Of which salvation the Prophets, who prophesied of the grace which was reserved for you, inquired and diligently sought it;
They carefully sought out when and at what time the [prophetic] Spirit of Christ, which was in them, bore witness beforehand, declaring the sufferings that were to come upon Christ, and the glory that was to follow.
And it was revealed to them that they were not doing these things for themselves, but for us, which have now been announced to you by those who preached the gospel to you through the Holy Spirit sent from heaven, and in which the angels long to look into the depths.
Therefore, with your minds prepared and sober-minded, set your hope fully on the grace presented to you until Jesus Christ is revealed;
Like obedient children, not conforming to the desires of the past, in your ignorance.

But as he who called you is holy, so be holy in all your conversation;
Because it is written: be holy, for I am holy.
And if you call upon him as your Father, who does not show partiality but judges according to each person's work, conduct yourselves with fear during the time of your temporal sojourn;
Knowing that you were redeemed from your futile way of life, which was taught to you by your fathers, not with perishable things such as silver or gold;

But through the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without blemish or defect,
Ordained before the foundation of the world, but revealed in the last days for you;
Through him you believe in God, who raised him from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope may be in God.
Therefore, having purified your souls by obeying the truth through the Holy Spirit, so that you may have brotherly friendship without hypocrisy, love one another tenderly from a pure heart.
Since you have been born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, that is, through the word of God, which lives and endures forever.
For all flesh is like grass, and all the glory of man is like the flower of the grass; the grass withers, and its flower falls;
But the word of the Lord remains forever; and it is this word that was preached to you.
Therefore, having rid yourselves of all malice, fraud, dissimulation, envy, and slander,
Yearn earnestly, like newborn infants, to be nourished with pure spiritual milk so that you may grow by it.
If, however, you have tasted how good the Lord is.
And as you approach him, who is the living Stone, rejected by men but chosen by God and precious,
You too, like living stones, are being built into a spiritual house and a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ.
That is why it is said in Scripture: Behold, I lay in Zion the chief cornerstone, chosen and precious; and he who believes in him shall not be put to shame.
It is therefore precious to you who believe; but in relation to the rebels, [it is said]: the stone which the builders rejected has become the chief cornerstone, a stone of stumbling, a stone of offense.
Those who clash with the word, and are rebellious; for which they were also destined.

But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession, so that you may proclaim the virtues of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light;
You who once were not his people, but now are God's people; you who had not received mercy, but now have received mercy.
My beloved, I urge you, as strangers and exiles, to abstain from carnal desires, which wage war against the soul;
Have honest conduct with the Gentiles, so that instead of them slandering you as evildoers, they may glorify God on the day of visitation for your good works which they shall see.
Therefore, submit to every human authority for God's sake: to the King, as to the one who is above others;
This applies to the Governors, as well as to those sent by him, to punish the wicked and to honor the righteous.
For this is God's will, that by doing good you should silence the ignorance of foolish men.
As free people, and not as having freedom to serve as a cover for wickedness, but as servants of God.
Honor all. Love all your brothers. Fear God. Honor the King.
Servants, be subject in all respect to your masters, not only to those who are good and just, but also to those who are difficult:
For it is pleasing in the sight of God if someone, because of his conscience toward God, endures afflictions, suffering unjustly.
Otherwise, what honor will you have if, receiving blows for doing wrong, you patiently endure it? But if, in doing right, you are nevertheless afflicted, and you patiently endure it, that is where God takes pleasure.

For this is also what you are called to do; because Christ suffered for us, leaving us an example, that you should follow in his steps;

He who committed no sin, and in whose mouth no deceit was found.

He who, when insulted, did not return insults, and when harmed, did not threaten; but he entrusted himself to him who judges justly.

He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, so that we might die to sin and live to righteousness; by whose wounds you have been healed.

For you were like sheep going astray, but now you have turned to the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.

Wives also should submit to their husbands, so that even if there are any who do not obey the word, they may be won over without the word, by the conduct of their wives;

When they have seen the purity of your conduct, accompanied by fear.

And let their adornment not be that which is external, which consists of the curling of the hair, in the adornment of gold, and in the magnificence of clothes;

But their adornment consists in the man hidden in the heart, [that is] in the incorruptibility of a gentle and quiet spirit, which is of great worth in God's sight;

For this is how the holy women of old used to adorn themselves, who put their hope in God and remained submissive to their husbands;

Like Sarah, who obeyed Abraham, calling him [her] Lord; of whom you are the daughters in doing good, even though you fear nothing of what you might have to fear.

You husbands also, treat them with respect, as with a more fragile vessel, [that is to say], feminine, showing them reverence, as those who are also with them heirs of the grace of life, so that your prayers may not be interrupted.

Finally, all of you, be of one mind, compassionate to one another, loving one another fraternally, merciful, [and] gentle.

Not repaying evil for evil, nor insult for insult; but, on the contrary, blessing; knowing that you are called to this, so that you may inherit the blessing.

For he who wants to love his life and see [his] blessed days, must keep his tongue from evil, and his lips from speaking any deceit;

Let him turn away from evil and do good; let him seek peace and strive to obtain it.

For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are attentive to their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against those who do evil.

Who can harm you if you are imitators of the one who is good?

But if you suffer anything for righteousness' sake, you are blessed; but do not fear the evils they want to frighten you with, and do not be troubled by them;

But in your hearts revere the Lord, and always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have. But do this with gentleness and respect.

Having a good conscience, so that those who criticize your good conduct in Christ may be ashamed because they slander you as evildoers.

For it is better that you suffer for doing good, if it is God's will that you suffer, than for doing evil.

For Christ also suffered once for sins, the righteous for the unrighteous, to bring you to God; he died in the flesh but made alive in the Spirit.

By which means also, having gone, he preached to the spirits which are in the prison;

[And] who were formerly disbelievers, when God's patience waited for them once, in the days of Noah, while the Ark was being prepared, in which a few, namely eight persons, were saved by water.

To which also now corresponds the figure which saves us, [that is], Baptism; not that by which the filth of the flesh is cleansed, but the promise made to God of a pure conscience, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ;

Who is at the right hand of God, having gone into Heaven; [and] to whom are subject the angels, and the dominions, and the powers.
Since Christ suffered for us in the flesh, you also should be armed with the same mindset: that he who suffered in the flesh has turned away from sin;
So that during the time that remains in the flesh, you may no longer live according to the desires of men, but according to the will of God.
For it should be sufficient for us that we did the will of the Gentiles during the time of our former life, when we gave ourselves over to fornications, lusts, drunkenness, orgies in eating and drinking, and abominable idolatries;
Finding this very strange, they blame you for not running with them in the same abandonment of dissolution.
But they will give an account to him who is ready to judge the living and the dead.
For this is also why he was preached to the dead, so that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, and live according to God in the spirit.
But the end of all things is near: therefore be sober, and watchful in prayer.
But above all, have fervent love for one another, because love will cover a multitude of sins.
Be hospitable to one another, without grumbling.
Let each one use whatever gift he has received to serve others, as good dispensers of God's grace in its various forms.
If anyone speaks, they should speak as one who speaks the very words of God; if anyone administers, they should do so as by the power God has given them; so that in all things God may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory and power for ever and ever. Amen.
My beloved, do not be surprised when you are [as] in a furnace for your trial, as though something extraordinary were happening to you.
But rejoice inasmuch as you share in the sufferings of Christ, so that you may also rejoice with gladness when his glory is revealed.
If people insult you because of the name of Christ, you are blessed, because the Spirit of glory and of God rests on you, who is blasphemed by those who [blacken you] but you glorify him.
Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or thief, or evildoer, or curious about the affairs of others.
But if anyone suffers as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God in it.
For it is time for judgment to begin with the house of God; and if it begins first with us, what will be the outcome for those who do not obey the gospel of God?
And if the righteous are scarcely saved, where will the wicked and the sinner appear?

Therefore, let those who suffer by the will of God, since they do what is good, commend their souls to Him, as to the faithful Creator.
I pray to the elders who are among you, I who am an elder with them, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and a partaker of the glory which is to be revealed, [and I say to them]:
Shepherd the flock of Christ entrusted to you, giving careful attention to it, not under compulsion, but willingly; not for dishonest gain, but from a principle of love.
And not as having dominion over the inheritances [of the Lord], but in such a way that you may be an example to the Flock.
And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the incorruptible crown of glory.
Likewise, you younger men, be subject to the Elders, and all of you, be subject to one another, and inwardly adorn yourselves with humility, because God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble.

Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, so that he may exalt you in due time;

Entrust to Him all that may worry you: for He cares for you.

Be sober, [and] watchful: for the devil, your adversary, prowls around you like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.

Resist him, therefore, standing firm in the faith, knowing that the same kinds of suffering are being experienced by your brothers and sisters throughout the world. Now the God of all grace, who called us to his eternal glory in Christ Jesus, after you have suffered a little while, will make you complete, establish you, strengthen you, and set you up.

To Him be glory and strength, forever and ever, Amen!

I wrote to you briefly by Silvanus our brother, whom I believe to be faithful to you, declaring and protesting to you that the grace of God in which you are is the true one.

The church in Babylon, chosen with you, and Mark my son, send you greetings.

Greet one another with a kiss of love. Peace be with you all who are in Christ Jesus, Amen!

Simeon Peter, servant and Apostle of Jesus Christ, to you who have obtained with us a faith of equal worth through the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ. May grace and peace be multiplied to you in the knowledge of God and of our Lord Jesus.

Since his divine power has given us everything that pertains to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who called us by his glory and goodness.

Through which we have been given the great and precious promises, so that through them you may become partakers of the divine nature, having escaped from the corruption that reigns in the world through lust;

Therefore, you too, giving it your full attention, add virtue to your faith; and to virtue, knowledge;

To science, temperance; to temperance, patience; to patience, piety;

To piety, brotherly love; and to brotherly love, charity.

For if these things are in you, and abound in them, they will not leave you idle or unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

But he in whom these things are not found is blind, and cannot see far away, having forgotten the cleansing from his former sins.

Therefore, my brothers, strive to confirm your calling and election; for by doing this you will never stumble.

For by this means entry into the eternal Kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ will be abundantly granted to you.

Therefore, I will not be lazy in reminding you of these things always, even though you have knowledge and are grounded in the truth that you now have.

For I believe it is right that I wake you up with warnings while I am in this tent; Knowing that in a short time I must dislodge it, as our Lord Jesus Christ himself declared to me.

But I will take care that you can also, after my departure, continually remind yourself of these things.

For we did not follow cleverly devised stories about the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty.

For he received honor and glory from God the Father when such a voice came to him from the glorious glory; this is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

And we heard this voice emanating from Heaven, being with him on the holy mountain.

We also have the word of the Prophets, which is more certain, to which you will do well to pay attention, as to a candle which shone in a dark place, until the day began to dawn, and the morning star rose in your hearts.

Considering firstly this, that no prophecy of Scripture proceeds from any particular movement.

For prophecy was not originally produced by the human will, but holy men of God spoke as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit.

But as there were false prophets among the people, there will also be false teachers among you, who will secretly introduce destructive heresies, even denying the Lord who bought them, bringing swift destruction upon themselves.

And many will follow their [sects] of perdition; and because of them the way of truth will be blasphemed;

For they will exploit you with deceptive words out of greed; but their condemnation will not be delayed for a long time, and their punishment will not be asleep.

For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but cast them into the abyss, bound with chains of darkness, and handed them over to be reserved for judgment;

And [if] he did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, the eighth, [who was] the herald of righteousness; and brought the flood upon the world of the wicked;

And [if] he condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to total overthrow, reducing them to ashes, and making them an example to those who would live in impiety; and [if he] delivered righteous Lot, who had suffered greatly from these abominable and infamous conduct.

For this righteous man, who dwelt among them, seeing and hearing them, grieved his righteous soul daily because of their wicked deeds;

The Lord knows how to deliver those who honor him from temptation, and to reserve the unrighteous for punishment on the day of judgment;

Primarily those who follow the desires of the flesh, in the passion of impurity, and who despise authority, bold people, given to their senses, and who are not afraid to criticize dignities;

Instead, the angels, although they are greater in strength and power, do not pronounce any abusive sentence against them before the Lord;

But these, like brute beasts, who follow their sensuality, and are made to be caught and destroyed, blaspheming what they do not understand, will perish in their own corruption;

And they will receive the reward for their iniquity. They love to be in luxury every day. They are stains and defilements, and they delight in their deceit at the meals they share with you.

Their eyes are full of adultery; they never cease to sin; they attract unsure souls; their hearts are trained in plunder; they are children of a curse;

Those who have left the right path have gone astray and followed the ways of Balaam, son of Beor, who loved the wages of wickedness; but he was rebuked for his injustice.

[For] a mute donkey speaking with a human voice, repressed the prophet's madness.

They are fountains without water, and clouds stirred by the whirlwind, and [people] for whom the blackest darkness has been reserved forever.

For by speaking very boastful words of vanity, they entice, by the lusts of the flesh, and by [their] immoralities, those who had truly withdrawn from those who live in error;

Promising them freedom, although they themselves are slaves to corruption; for one is reduced to servitude by him by whom one is overcome.

Because if, after having withdrawn from the defilements of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are nevertheless again entangled in them and overcome, their last condition is worse than the first.

For it would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness than, after knowing it, to turn away from the holy commandment that was given them.

But what is said by a true proverb has happened to them: the dog returned to its vomit; and the washed sow returned to wallowing in the mire.

My beloved, this is the second Letter that I am writing to you, in order to awaken in both by my warnings the pure feelings [that you have].

[And] so that you may remember the words spoken before by the holy Prophets, and the commandment [which you received] from us, who are Apostles of the Lord and Savior. Above all, know that in the last days mockers will come, following their own desires;

And saying: where is the promise of his coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation. For they willfully ignore this, that the heavens were [made] from ancient times, and that the earth [came forth] from the water, and that it subsists among the water, by the word of God;

And that by these things the world of that time perished, being submerged by the waters of the flood.

But the heavens and the earth which now exist are reserved by the same word, being kept for fire on the day of judgment and destruction of the ungodly.

But, [you my] beloved, do not ignore this, that a day [is] with the Lord like a thousand years, and a thousand years like a day.

The Lord is not slow in keeping his promise, as some understand slowness, but he is patient with us, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to repent.

But the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night, and on that day the heavens will pass away with a whistling sound of tempest, and the elements will be dissolved by the heat [of fire], and the earth, and all the works that [are] in it, will be completely burned up.

Since all these things must be dissolved, what kind of people must you be in holy conversation and deeds of piety?

Meanwhile, and hastening [by your desires] the coming of the day of God, by which the heavens will be set on fire and dissolved, and the elements will melt in the heat [of the fire].

But we are waiting, according to his promise, for new heavens and a new earth, where righteousness dwells.

Therefore, [my] beloved, while waiting for these things, strive to be found by him without spot or blemish, at peace.

And consider the Lord's patience as proof that he desires your salvation; as Paul, our beloved brother, wrote to you according to the wisdom given to him;

As in all his Letters, he speaks of these points, in which there are things difficult to understand, which the ignorant and the unsure twist, as they also twist the other Scriptures, to their own destruction.

Therefore, my beloved, since you have already been warned, take heed lest, being carried away with the others by the seduction of the abominable, you fall from your steadfastness.

But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory now and forever. Amen!

That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our own eyes, which we have contemplated, and which our own hands have touched, concerning the Word of life,

(For the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and also testify to it, and proclaim to you the eternal life, which was with the Father, and which has been manifested to us.)

This, [I say], that we have seen and heard, we proclaim to you, so that you may have fellowship with us, and that our fellowship may be with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ.

And we are writing these things to you so that your joy may be complete.

This is the declaration we have heard from him, and which we announce to you, that God is light, and in him there is no darkness at all.

If we say that we have fellowship with him, and yet walk in darkness, we lie and do not act according to the truth.

But if we walk in the light, as God is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of his Son Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

If we say that we have no sin, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us. My little children, I am writing these things to you so that you may not sin; but if anyone does sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous. For he is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not only for ours, but also for those of the world.

And by this we know that we have come to know him, if we keep his commandments. He who says, 'I have come to know him,' and does not keep his commandments, is a liar, and there is no truth in him.

But for the one who keeps his word, the love of God is truly complete in him, and this is how we know that we are in him.

He who says that he abides in him must live as Jesus Christ himself lived.

My brothers, I am not writing you a new commandment, but the old commandment, which you have had from the beginning; and this old commandment is the word which you have heard from the beginning.

However, [the commandment that] I am writing to you is a new commandment, and is true in him and in you, because the darkness has passed away, and the true light has now shone.

He who says he is in the light, and hates his brother, is in darkness until this hour.

He who loves his brother abides in the light, and there is nothing in him that can make him fall.

But he who hates his brother is in the darkness and walks in the darkness, and does not know where he is going, because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

My little children, I am writing to you because your sins are forgiven in His Name.

Fathers, I am writing to you because you have known him who is from the beginning.

Young men, I am writing to you because you have overcome the evil one [spirit].

Little children, I am writing to you because you know the Father. Fathers, I have written to you because you know him who is from the beginning. Young men, I have written to you because you are strong, and the word of God abides in you, and you have overcome the evil spirit.

Do not love the world or anything in the world; if anyone loves the world, love for the Father is not in him.

For everything in the world, [that is], the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

And the world passes away, with its desires; but he who does the will of God abides forever.

Young children, this is the last time; and as you have heard that the Antichrist is coming, even now many Antichrists have appeared; and by this we know that it is the last time.

They went out from among us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, they would have remained with us; but this was to show that not all of them are of us.

But you have been anointed by the Holy [spirit], and you know all things.

I have not written to you as though you did not know the truth, but because you do know it, and that no lie is truth.

Who is the liar, if not the one who denies that Jesus is the Christ? That one is the Antichrist who denies the Father and the Son.

Whoever denies the Son does not have the Father either; whoever acknowledges the Son has the Father also.

Therefore let what you have heard from the beginning remain in you, for if what you have heard from the beginning remains in you, you will also remain in the Son and in the Father.

And this is the promise he announced to you: eternal life.

I have written these things to you concerning those who seduce you.

But the anointing you received from him remains in you, and you do not need anyone to teach you; but as the same anointing teaches you all things, and is real, and not a lie, and as it has taught you, you shall remain in him.

Therefore, my little children, remain in him; so that when he appears we may have confidence and not be ashamed of his presence at his coming.

If you know that he is just, know that whoever does what is right is born of him.

See what love the Father has had for us, that we should be called children of God; yet the world does not know us, because it did not know him.

My beloved, we are now children of God, but what we will be has not yet been revealed; yet we know that when [the Son of God] appears, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.

And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as he is pure.

Anyone who commits a sin acts against the Law; for sin is what is against the Law.

But you know that he appeared so that he might take away our sins; and in him there is no sin.

Whoever remains in him does not sin; whoever sins has neither seen him nor known him.

My little children, let no one deceive you. He who does what is right is a righteous person, just as Jesus Christ is righteous;

He who lives in sin is of the Devil; for the Devil has sinned from the beginning; but the Son of God appeared to destroy the works of the Devil.

No one who is born of God will live in sin, for God's seed remains in him; and he cannot sin, because he has been born of God.

And this is how we know who the children of God are and who the children of the Devil are: Anyone who does not do what is right and does not love their brother or sister is not a child of God.

For this is what you have heard from the beginning; [namely] that we love one another;

And let us not be like Cain, who belonged to the evil one [spirit] and killed his brother. But why did he kill him? Because his own works were evil and his brother's were righteous.

My brothers, do not be surprised if the world hates you.

In this way we know that we have been transferred from death to life: whoever does not love his brother remains in death.

Anyone who hates his brother is a murderer; and you know that no murderer has eternal life.

This is how we know what love is: Jesus laid down his life for us. So we ought to lay down our lives for our brothers.

But if someone sees their brother in need and closes their heart against them, how can God's love abide in them?

My little children, let us not love with words or tongue, but with deeds and in truth.

For it is by this that we know that we belong to the truth; and we thus assure our hearts before him.

Even if our heart condemns us, surely God is greater than our heart, and he knows all things.

My beloved, if our heart does not condemn us, we have confidence before God.

And whatever we ask, we receive from him; because we keep his commandments, and do the things that please him.

And this is his commandment, that we believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and that we love one another, as he has commanded us.

And he who keeps his commandments abides in Jesus Christ, and Jesus Christ abides in him; and by this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit whom he has given us. My beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God, for many false prophets have gone out into the world.

Recognize by this mark the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God.

And every spirit that does not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is not from God; and such is the spirit of the Antichrist, of whom you have heard that he is going to come, and even now is already in the world.

My little children, you are from God and have overcome them, because the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world.

They are of the world, that is why they speak of the world, and the world listens to them.

We are of God; whoever knows God listens to us; [but] whoever is not of God does not listen to us; by this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

My beloved, let us love one another; for love is from God; and whoever loves [his neighbor] is born of God, and knows God.

He who does not love [his neighbor] does not know God; for God is love.

This shows God's love for us, that God sent his only Son into the world, so that we might live through him.

This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the atoning sacrifice for our sins.

My beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another.

No one has ever seen God; but if we love one another, God abides in us, and his love is made complete in us.

By this we know that we abide in him, and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit.

And we have seen it, and we testify that the Father sent the Son to be the savior of the world.

Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God.

And we have come to know and believe the love that God has for us. God is love; and whoever abides in love abides in God, and God in him.

In this is fulfilled charity towards us, so that we may have confidence for the day of Judgment, if such is it, such are we in this world.

There is no fear in charity, but perfect charity casts out fear; for fear causes pain; and whoever fears is not complete in charity.

We love him because he loved us first.

If anyone says, "I love God," and yet hates his brother, he is a liar; for how can he who does not love his brother, whom he has seen, love God, whom he has not seen?

And we have this commandment from him, that whoever loves God must also love his brother.

Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God; and everyone who loves the Father loves his child as well.

We know by this mark that we love the children of God, it is when we love God, and when we keep his commandments.

For this is what [our] love for God consists in: that we keep his commandments; and his commandments are not burdensome.

Because everyone born of God overcomes the world; and this is what gives us the victory over the world, even our faith.

Who is it that overcomes the world, if not the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

This is the Jesus who came by water and blood, and not by water only, but by water and blood; and it is the Spirit who testifies to it; and the Spirit is the truth.

For there are three in Heaven that bear witness: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit; and these three are one.

There are also three that bear witness on earth, namely the Spirit, the water, and the Blood; and these three refer to one.

If we accept the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater, and this is the testimony of God, which he has given concerning his Son.

Whoever believes in the Son of God has God's testimony within himself; but whoever does not believe God has been made a liar, because he has not believed the testimony that God has given about his Son.

And this is the testimony, [knowing] that God has given us eternal life; and this life is in his Son.

Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life.

I have written these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life, and so that you may believe in the name of the Son of God.

And this is the trust we have in God, that if we ask for something according to his will, he will grant it.

And if we know that he grants our requests, we know it because we obtain the things we have asked of him.

If anyone sees their brother or sister commit a sin that does not lead to death, they should pray for them, and God will give them life. (I mean those whose sin does not lead to death.) There is a sin that leads to death; I am not telling you to pray about that.

All iniquity is sin; but there is some sin which does not lead to death.

We know that anyone born of God does not sin; but the one who is begotten of God keeps himself, and the evil one [spirit] does not touch him.

We know that we are born of God; but everyone is plunged into evil.

Now we know that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding to know him who is true; and we are in him who is true, in his Son Jesus Christ; he is the true God and eternal life.

My little children, beware of idols. Amen.

The Elder to the Chosen Lady, and to her children, whom I sincerely love, and whom I love not only myself, but also all those who have known the truth.

Because of the truth that remains in us, and that will be with us forever.

Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of the Father, be with you in truth and love.

I was very glad to find some of your children who walk in the truth, according to the commandment we received from the Father.

And now, O Lady! I pray you, not as writing you a new commandment, but the one we have had from the beginning, that we should have charity for one another.

And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; and this is his commandment, as you have heard from the beginning, that you should observe it.

For many deceivers have gone out into the world, who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh; such a man is a deceiver and an Antichrist.

Be careful, so that we do not lose what we have done, but that we may receive a full reward.

Whoever transgresses the doctrine of Jesus Christ and does not remain faithful to him does not have God: he who remains in the doctrine of Christ has the Father and the Son.

If anyone comes to you and does not bring this teaching, do not receive him into your house or greet him;

For he who greets him shares in his evil deeds.

Although I had many things to write to you, I did not want to write them with paper and ink, but I hope to come to you and speak to you face to face, so that our joy may be complete.

The children of your chosen sister greet you, Amen!

The Elder to Gaius the beloved, whom I truly love.
Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things, and that you may be in health, just as your soul prospers.
For I was very glad when the brothers came and testified to your sincerity and how you walk in the truth.
I have no greater joy than this, [which is] to hear that my children are walking in the truth.
Beloved, you act faithfully in all that you do towards the brothers, and towards the strangers;
Those who, in the presence of the Church, have borne witness to your charity, and you will do well to accompany them worthily, as is fitting according to God.
For they went out for His Name, taking nothing from the Gentiles.
Therefore, we must receive those who resemble them, so that we may help to the truth.

I wrote to the Church; but Diotrephes, who likes to be first among them, does not receive us.
Therefore, if I come, I will report the actions he is committing, spewing forth evil words against us, and not being content with that, not only does he not receive the brothers, but he even prevents those who want to receive them, and expels them from the Church.
Beloved, do not imitate evil, but good; he who does good is of God; but he who does evil has not seen God.
Everyone testifies to Demetrius, and the truth itself [testifies to him], and we also testify to him, and you know that our testimony is true.
I had several things to write, but I do not want to write to you with ink and pen; But I hope to see you soon, and we'll talk face to face.
Peace be with you! Your friends greet you; greet your friends by name.
Jude, a servant of Jesus Christ and brother of James, to those who have been called [by the Gospel], whom God has sanctified and Jesus Christ has preserved.
May mercy, peace, and love be multiplied to you.
My beloved, since I am very focused on writing to you about the salvation we have in common, it has become necessary for me to write to you urging you to continue the fight for the faith that was once given to the saints.
For some have crept in [among you], who long ago were written for this condemnation, ungodly people who pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness and deny the only Ruler, Jesus Christ our God and Lord.
But I want to remind you of something you already know, [which is] that the Lord, having delivered the people from the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe;
And that He has reserved under darkness, in eternal bonds, until the judgment of the great day, the angels who did not keep their origin, but abandoned their own dwelling place;
[And] that Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighboring cities which had given themselves up in the same way to impurity, and which had run after unnatural sins, were made an example of, having received the punishment of eternal fire;
Nevertheless, these people, having fallen asleep [in vice], defile [their] flesh, despise domination, and condemn dignities.
And yet Michael the Archangel, when he disputed with the Demon concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a sentence of curse, but he only said: May the Lord rebuke you severely!
But these people slander everything they do not understand, and in everything they naturally understand, like brute beasts, they become corrupt.
Woe to them, for they have followed the ways of Cain, and have run, in error [like that of] Balaam, [after] the reward, and have perished in contradiction [like that of] Korah.

These are stains on your charity meals, eating with you and feeding themselves without fear; they are clouds without water, blown about by the winds; trees whose fruit rots and is fruitless, twice dead and uprooted; impetuous waves of the sea, throwing up the foam of their impurities; wandering stars, for whom the darkness of darkness is reserved eternally.

Of whom also Enoch, the seventh man after Adam, prophesied, saying:

Behold, the Lord has come with his Saints, who are in thousands, to judge all men, and to convict all the wicked among them of all their wicked deeds which they have wickedly committed, and of all the abusive words which the ungodly sinners have uttered against him.

They are murmurers, quarrelsome people, acting according to their desires, whose mouths utter very inflated speeches, and who admire people for the benefit they derive from them.

But you, my beloved, remember the words which were spoken before by the Apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ.

And how they told you that in the last days there would be mockers, who would walk according to their ungodly desires.

These are the ones who separate themselves, sensual people, lacking the Spirit.

But you, my beloved, relying on your most holy faith and praying in the Holy Spirit,

Keep one another in God's love, waiting for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, so that you may obtain eternal life.

And have pity on some by using discretion;

And save the others by fear, snatching them away as from the fire, and hate even the robe soiled by the flesh.

[Or] to him who is able to keep you from stumbling and to present you blameless before his glory with joy;

To God, the only wise one, our Savior, be glory and magnificence, strength, and dominion now and forever, Amen!

The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to reveal to his servants what must soon take place, and which he made known by sending his angel to John his servant;

Who proclaimed the word of God, and the testimony of Jesus Christ, and all the things that he saw.

Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of this prophecy, and blessed are those who hear it and take to heart what is written in it, because the time is near.

John to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you and peace from him that is, and that was, and that is to come, and from the seven spirits which are before his throne.

And from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, the firstborn from the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth.

To him [I say], who loved us, and washed us clean of our sins in his blood, and made us kings and priests to God his Father, to him [be] glory and power forever and ever, Amen!

Behold, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him, even those who pierced him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn before him; yes, Amen!

I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end, says the Lord, WHO IS, WHO WAS, and WHO IS TO COME, the Almighty.

I, John, [who am] also your brother and sharer in the affliction, the kingdom, and the patience of Jesus Christ, was on the island called Patmos for the word of God and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.

Now I was in the spirit one Sunday, and I heard behind me a loud voice like the sound of a trumpet,

Who said: I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last. Write in a book what you see, and send it to the seven churches which are in Asia: to Ephesus, to Smyrna, to Pergamum, to Thyatira, to Sardis, to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea.

Then I turned to see [him] whose voice had spoken to me, and when I turned, I saw seven golden lampstands;
And in the midst of the seven golden lampstands was a figure like a man, dressed in a long robe, and girded with a golden belt over his breasts.
His head and his hair [were] white like white wool, and like snow, and his eyes [were] like a flame of fire.
His feet were like bright bronze, as if they had been refined in a furnace; and his voice was like the sound of rushing waters.
And in his right hand he held seven stars, and out of his mouth came a sharp, double-edged sword, and his face was like the sun shining in its strength.
And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as though dead, and he laid his right hand upon me, saying to me: do not be afraid, I am the first, and the last;
And I live, but I was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore, Amen! And I hold the keys of hell and death.
Write down the things you have seen, those that are [presently], and those that are to happen next.
The mystery of the seven stars that you saw in my right hand, and the seven golden lampstands. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches; and the seven lampstands that you saw are the seven churches.
Write to the angel of the church in Ephesus, who holds the seven stars in his right hand and walks among the seven golden lampstands:
I know your works, your labor and your patience, and that you cannot bear wicked people, and that you have tested those who claim to be apostles, but are not, and have found them liars.
And that you have suffered, and that you have been patient, and that you have labored for my Name, and that you have not grown weary.
But I have something against you, that you have abandoned your former charity.
Therefore, remember from where you have fallen, and repent, and do the works you did at first; otherwise I will come to you soon, and I will remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent.
But you have this [good] thing in you: You hate the practices of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.
Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the one who overcomes, I will give the right to eat from the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.
Write also to the Angel of the Church in Smyrna: The first and the last, who died and came back to life, says these things:
I know your works, your affliction and your poverty (but you are rich), and the blasphemy of those who say they are Jews, and are not, but [who are] the Synagogue of Satan.
Do not be afraid of what you are about to suffer. Behold, the devil will put some of you into prison, that you may be tested; and for ten days you will have affliction. Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life.
Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches. He who overcomes will be protected from the second death.
Write also to the angel of the church in Pergamum: He who has the sharp, double-edged sword says these things.
I know your works, and where you dwell, [namely] where Satan's seat is, and yet you hold fast to my Name, and have not renounced my faith, not even when Antipas, my faithful martyr, was put to death among you, where Satan dwells.
But I have a few things against you: that you have some there who hold to the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to cause the children of Israel to stumble, so that they would eat things sacrificed to idols, and to commit fornication.
So you also have some who hold to the teaching of the Nicolaitans, which I hate.

Repent: otherwise I will come to you soon; and I will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the one who overcomes I will give to eat of the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone, and on the stone a new name will be written, which no one knows except the one who receives it.

Write also to the angel of the church in Thyatira: The Son of God, whose eyes are like blazing fire and whose feet are like burnished bronze, says these things.

I know your works, your love, your ministry, your faith, your patience, and that your latter works surpass the former ones;

But I have a few things against you: that you allow this woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants into fornication and to eat things sacrificed to idols.

And I gave her time so that she might repent of her prostitution; but she did not repent.

Behold, I will make her bedbound, and [put] into great affliction those who commit adultery with her, if they do not repent of their works;

And I will strike his children dead; and all the churches will know that I am he who searches hearts and minds; and I will repay each of you according to your deeds.

But I say to you and to the others who are in Thyatira, to all who do not hold this doctrine and have not learned Satan's deep things, as they speak, that I will not place any other charge on you.

But hold on to what you have until I come.

For to him who overcomes, and keeps my works to the end, I will give authority over the nations:

And he will rule them with an iron rod, and they will be broken like a potter's vessels, just as I have received from my Father.

And I will give him the morning star.

Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

Write also to the angel of the church in Sardis: He who holds the seven spirits of God and the seven stars says: I know your deeds; you have a sound of living, but you are dead.

Be watchful, and strengthen the rest that are about to die; for I have not found your works perfect in God's sight.

Remember therefore the things which you have received and heard, and hold them fast, and repent; but if you do not wake up, I will come against you like the thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come against you.

[However] you also have some people in Sardis who have not soiled their clothes, and who will walk with me in white clothes, for they are worthy.

The one who overcomes will be clothed in white garments, and I will not blot out his name from the Book of Life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his Angels.

Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

Write also to the angel of the church in Philadelphia, the holy and true one, who has the key of David, who opens and no one shuts; who shuts and no one opens, says these things.

I know your works: behold, I have opened a door for you, and no one can shut it; because you have a little strength, and you have kept my word, and have not renounced my Name.

Behold, I will bring those of the Synagogue of Satan who say that they are Jews, and are not, but lie; behold, [I say], I will make them come and bow down at your feet, and they shall know that I love you.

Because you have kept my word about patience, I will also keep you from the hour of trial which is going to come on all the world, to test those who dwell on the earth.

Behold, I am coming soon; hold fast to what you have, so that no one takes your crown from you.

The one who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the Temple of my God, and he will never leave it again; and I will write on him the Name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of Heaven from my God, and my new Name.

Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

Write also to the angel of the church in Laodicea: The Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of God's creation, says these things.

I know your works, that you are neither cold nor hot; oh, if you were either cold or hot!

Because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to spit you out of my mouth.

For you say, 'I am rich, and have plenty, and do not need a thing'; but you do not realize that you are wretched, pitiful, poor, blind and naked.

I advise you to buy from me gold refined by fire, so that you may become rich; and white garments, so that you may be clothed and the shame of your nakedness may not be exposed; and to anoint your eyes with salve, so that you may see.

I rebuke and discipline all those I love; be zealous, and repent.

Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in to him and eat with him, and he with me.

To the one who overcomes, I will grant to sit with me on my throne, just as I also overcame, and I sit with my Father on his throne.

Whoever has ears, let them hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

After these things I looked, and behold, a door was opened to Heaven; and the first voice which I had heard, as of a trumpet, which spoke with me, said: come up here, and I will show you the things which must happen in the future.

And at once I was in the Spirit, and behold, a throne was set in Heaven, and one was seated on the throne.

And he who sat on it appeared like a jasper and sardius stone; and around the throne appeared a rainbow, like an emerald.

And there were twenty-four seats around the throne; and I saw twenty-four elders sitting on the seats, clothed in white garments, and having golden crowns on their heads.

And from the throne came flashes of lightning and peals of thunder and rumblings; and before the throne were seven lamps of fire blazing, which are the seven Spirits of God.

And in front of the throne was a sea of glass, like crystal; and in the middle of the throne and around the throne were four living creatures, full of eyes in front and in back.

And the first animal [was] like a lion; the second animal, [was] like a calf; the third animal had a face like a man; and the fourth animal was like a flying eagle.

And each of the four living creatures had six wings all around; and within them they were full of eyes; and they never cease to say day and night: Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was, and is, and is to come.

But when the animals gave glory and honor and thanks to him who sat on the throne, to him who lives forever and ever,

The twenty-four elders bowed down before him who sat on the throne, and worshiped him who lives forever and ever, and they cast their crowns before the throne, saying:

Lord, you are worthy to receive glory, honor, and power; for you created all things; it is by your will that they exist and were created.

Then I saw in the right hand of him who sat on the throne a scroll with writing on both sides and sealed with seven seals.

I also saw an angel [remarkable] in power, crying out in a loud voice: Who is worthy to open the scroll and to break its seals?

But no one in Heaven, nor on earth, nor under the earth could open the Book, nor look at it.

And I wept bitterly, because no one was found worthy to open the Book, nor to read it, nor to look at it.

And one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep; behold, the Lion who is of the Tribe of Judah, the root of David, has triumphed, to open the scroll and to loose its seven seals."

And I looked, and behold, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the Elders, was a Lamb, looking as though it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, sent out into all the earth.

And he came, and took the Book from the right hand of him who sat on the throne.

And when he had taken the Book, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, each having harps and golden flasks full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints.

And they sang a new song, saying: You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals, because you were slain, and with your blood you redeemed us from every tribe and language and people and nation;

And you have made us kings and priests to our God; and we shall reign on the earth.

Then I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels around the throne and the elders, and their number was several million.

And they said aloud: The Lamb who was slain is worthy to receive power and riches and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and praise.

I also heard every creature that is in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, and all things that are in them, saying: To him who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be praise and honor and glory and power, forever and ever!

And the four living creatures said, "Amen!" And the twenty-four elders fell down and worshiped him who lives forever and ever.

And when the Lamb had opened one of the seals, I looked, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder, "Come and see."

And I looked, and I saw a white horse; and he who was riding on it had a bow, and he was given a crown; and he went out victorious, and in order to conquer.

And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature say, "Come and see."

And another horse came out, a red one; and it was given to him who sat on it to take peace from the earth, so that people would kill one another; and he was given a great sword.

And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast saying, "Come and see"; and I looked, and behold a black horse, and he who sat on it had a pair of scales in his hand.

And I heard a voice among the four animals saying, "The wheat for a denarius, and the three barley for a denarius; but do not harm the wine or the oil."

And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast, saying, "Come and see."

And I looked, and I saw a wild horse; and he who rode upon it was named Death, and Hell followed after him; and they were given power over a fourth part of the earth, to kill with the sword, by famine, by plague, and by the wild beasts of the earth.

And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been killed for the word of God and for the testimony they had maintained.

And they cried out in a loud voice, saying, "How long, Lord, who are holy and true, will you not judge and avenge our blood on those who dwell on the earth?"

And each of them was given white robes, and they were told to rest a little longer, until the number of their fellow servants, and of their brothers who are to be put to death like them, is complete.

And I watched when he opened the sixth seal, and behold, there was a great earthquake, and the sun became black like sackcloth made of hair, and the moon became all like blood.

And the stars of heaven fell to earth, as when a fig tree, being shaken by a strong wind, drops its [still] green figs.

And the sky receded like a scroll being rolled up; and all the mountains and islands were removed from their places.

And the kings of the earth, the princes, the rich, the captains, the powerful, every slave, and every free [man] hid in the caves, and among the rocks of the mountains.

And they said to the mountains and to the rocks, "Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him who sits on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb;

For the great day of his wrath has come; and who is there who can stand?

After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth, so that no wind would blow on the earth or on the sea or on any tree.

Then I saw another angel ascending from the east, holding the seal of the living God, and he cried out in a loud voice to the four angels who had been commanded to harm the earth and the sea,

[And] said to them: Do not harm the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees, until we have marked the servants of our God on their foreheads.

And I heard that the number of those marked was one hundred and forty-four thousand, who were marked from all the Tribes of the children of Israel.

[Knowledge] of the Tribe of Judah, twelve thousand marked; of the Tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand marked; of the Tribe of Gad, twelve thousand marked;

From the Tribe of Asher, twelve thousand marked; from the Tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand marked; from the Tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand marked;

From the Tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand marked; from the Tribe of Levi, twelve thousand marked; from the Tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand marked;

From the Tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand marked; from the Tribe of Joseph, twelve thousand marked; from the Tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand marked.

After this I looked, and behold, a great multitude [of people], which no one could count, from every nation, tribe, people and language, standing before the throne and in the presence of the Lamb, clothed in long white robes, and having palm branches in their hands;

And they cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Salvation belongs to our God, who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb."

And all the angels stood around the throne, and the elders, and the four living creatures, and they bowed down before the throne on their faces and worshiped God.

Saying: Amen! Praise, glory, wisdom, thanksgiving, honor, power and strength be to our God, forever and ever, Amen!

Then one of the Elders spoke up and said to me: "These men, who are dressed in long white robes, who are they, and where did they come from?"

And I said to him, "Lord, you know." And he said to me, "These are the ones who came out of the great tribulation, and who have washed and made their robes white in the blood of the Lamb."

Therefore they are before the throne of God, and they serve him day and night in his Temple; and he who sits on the throne will dwell with them.

They will no longer hunger or thirst, and the sun will no longer beat down on them, nor any heat.

For the Lamb in the midst of the throne will shepherd them, and lead them to living springs of water; and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.

And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour.

And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, to whom were given seven trumpets.

And another angel came and stood before the altar, having a golden censer, and many incense was given him to offer with the prayers of all the saints on the golden altar which is before the throne.

And the smoke of the incense, together with the prayers of the Saints, rose from the hand of the Angel before God.

Then the angel took the censer, and having filled it with fire from the altar, he threw it to the earth; and there were thunders, rumblings, flashes of lightning, and an earthquake.

Then the seven angels who had the seven trumpets prepared to sound the trumpets.

And the first angel sounded his trumpet, and there came hail and fire mixed with blood, which were hurled down to the earth; and a third of the trees were burned up, and all the green grass was burned up as well.

And the second angel sounded his trumpet, and I saw something like a great mountain, burning with fire, which was thrown into the sea; and the third part of the sea became blood.

And the third part of the living creatures that [were] in the sea died; and the third part of the ships perished.

And the third angel sounded his trumpet, and a great star, blazing like a torch, fell from the sky on the third part of the rivers and in the fountains of the waters.

The name of the star is Wormwood; and the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many of the men died from the waters, because they had become bitter.

Then the fourth angel sounded his trumpet, and a third of the sun was struck, and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars, so that a third of them were darkened; and a third of the day was without light, and a third of the night was also without brightness.

Then I looked, and I heard an eagle flying in midair, saying in a loud voice, "Woe! Woe! Woe to the inhabitants of the earth, because of the sound of the trumpets of the three other angels who are about to sound their trumpets!"

Then the fifth angel sounded his trumpet, and I saw a star fall from the sky to the earth, and the key to the shaft of the abyss was given to him.

And he opened the shaft of the abyss; and smoke rose from the shaft like the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by the smoke from the shaft.

And out of the smoke of the well came locusts [which spread] throughout the earth, and they were given power like the power of scorpions of the earth.

And they were told that they should not harm the grass of the earth, nor any green plant, nor any tree, but only those men who do not have the mark of God on their foreheads.

And they were allowed not to kill them, but to torment them for five months; and their torments are like the torments that a scorpion inflicts when it strikes a man.

And in those days men will seek death, but they will not find it; and they will desire to die, but death will flee from them.

Now the form of the locusts was like horses prepared for battle, and on their heads were like crowns of gold, and their faces were like the faces of men.

And they had hair like women's hair; and their teeth were like lions' teeth.

And they had breastplates like breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was like the sound of chariots when many horses rush into battle.

And they had tails like scorpions' tails, and had stingers in their tails; and their power was to harm men for five months.

And they had as King over them the Angel of the Abyss, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and whose name in Greek is Apollyon.

One misfortune has passed, and now two more misfortunes are coming after this one.

Then the sixth angel sounded his trumpet, and I heard a voice coming from the four horns of the golden altar that is before the face of God,

Which one said to the sixth angel who had the trumpet: Release the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates.

So they released the four angels who had been prepared for the hour, the day, the month, and the year, in order to kill a third of mankind.

And the number of the mounted army was two hundred million: for I heard [that this was] their number.

And I also saw in the vision the horses, and those who were riding on them, having breastplates of fire, hyacinth, and sulfur; and the heads of the horses [were] like the heads of lions; and out of their mouths came fire, smoke, and sulfur.

The third part of the men were killed by these three things, [namely] by the fire, by the smoke, and by the sulfur that came out of their mouths.

For their power was in their mouths and in their tails; and their tails [were] like serpents, and they had heads with which they harmed.

But the rest of mankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands, so as not to worship the demons, the idols of gold, silver, copper, stone, and wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk.

They did not repent of their murders, nor of their poisonings, nor of their lewdness, nor of their thefts.

Then I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven, surrounded by a cloud, above whose head was the rainbow; and his face was like the sun, and his feet like pillars of fire.

And he had in his hand a little open book, and he put his right foot on the sea, and his left on the land;

And he cried out with a loud voice, as when a lion roars; and when he had cried out, the seven thunders uttered their voices.

And after the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write them down; but I heard a voice from heaven saying to me: cover up the things which the seven thunders have uttered, and do not write them down.

And the angel I had seen standing on the sea and on the land raised his hand toward heaven,

And swore by him who lives forever and ever, who created the heavens with the things that are in them, and the earth with the things that are in it, and the sea with the things that are in it, that there would be no more delay;

But in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he begins to sound his trumpet, the mystery of God will be accomplished, as he declared to his servants the prophets.

And the voice from heaven that I had heard spoke to me again, and said to me: go, and take the little open Book, which is in the hand of the Angel who stands on the sea and on the earth.

So I went to the Angel and said to him, "Give me the little scroll." And he said to me, "Take it and eat it; it will make your stomach bitter, but it will be sweet in your mouth like honey."

So I took the little book from the angel's hand and ate it: and it was sweet in my mouth like honey; but when I had eaten it, my stomach was filled with bitterness.

Then he said to me: you must prophesy again to many peoples, and [to many] nations, tongues and kings.

Then I was given a reed like a rod, and an angel appeared and said to me, "Get up and measure the temple of God and the altar and those who worship there."

But leave aside the courtyard which is outside the Temple, and do not measure it; for it is given to the Gentiles; and they shall trample the holy City underfoot for forty-two months.

But I will give it to my two Witnesses, who will prophesy for 1,260 days, and they will be clothed in sackcloth.

These are the two olive trees, and the two lampstands, which stand before the Lord of the earth.

And if anyone wants to harm them, fire comes out of their mouths and devours their enemies; for if anyone wants to harm them, he must be killed in this way.

These have the power to shut up the heavens so that it will not rain during the days of their prophecy; they also have the power to turn the waters into blood, and to strike the earth with all kinds of plagues, as often as they want. And when they have finished [giving] their testimony, the beast that comes up from the abyss will wage war against them, and will overcome them, and kill them; And their dead bodies [will be spread out] in the squares of the great city, which is spiritually called Sodom, and Egypt; where also our Lord was crucified. And those of the Tribes, Peoples, Languages, and Nations shall see their dead bodies for three and a half days, and they shall not allow their dead bodies to be placed in tombs.

And the inhabitants of the earth will be overjoyed, they will celebrate, they will send gifts to one another; because these two Prophets will have tormented those who dwell on the earth.

But after these three and a half days, the Spirit of life [coming] from God entered into them, and they stood on their feet, and great fear seized those who saw them. After this they heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, "Come up here"; and they went up to heaven on a cloud, and their enemies saw them.

And at that very hour there was a great earthquake; and a tenth of the city fell, and seven thousand men were killed by the earthquake; and the rest were terrified, and gave glory to the God of heaven.

The second woe has passed; and behold, the third woe will soon come.

Then the seventh angel sounded his trumpet, and there were loud voices in heaven, saying: "The kingdoms of the world have become subject to our Lord and to his Messiah, and he will reign for ever and ever."

Then the twenty-four elders who sat in their seats before God fell on their faces and worshiped God, Saying: We give thanks to you, Lord God Almighty, WHO IS, WHO WAS, and WHO IS TO COME, for you have displayed your great power, and for you have acted as King.

The nations were angry, but your wrath has come, and the time of the dead has come to be judged, and to give a reward to your servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to those who fear your name, both small and great, and to destroy those who corrupt the earth.

Then the Temple of God was opened in heaven, and the Ark of his covenant was seen in his Temple; and there were flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, an earthquake, and a great hailstorm.

And a great sign appeared in Heaven, [namely], a woman clothed with the sun, under whose feet was the moon, and on her head a crown of twelve stars.

She was pregnant, and she was crying out in childbirth, suffering the great pains of delivery.

Another sign appeared in heaven: an enormous red dragon with seven heads and ten horns, and seven diadems on its heads; and its tail dragged a third of the stars of heaven, which it threw to the earth; then the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, in order to devour her child as soon as she had given birth.

And she gave birth to a son, who is to rule all nations with an iron rod; and her child was caught up to God and to his throne.

And the woman fled into a desert, where she had a place prepared by God, so that she might be nourished there for 1,260 days.

And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought [against Michael].

But they were not the strongest, and they could no longer remain in the sky.

And the great dragon, the ancient serpent, called the Devil and Satan, who deceives the world, was hurled down to the earth, and his angels were hurled down with him.

Then I heard a loud voice in heaven saying, "Now have come the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God, and the might of his Christ, for the accuser of our brothers, who accuses them before our God day and night, has been hurled down."

And they triumphed over him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony; they did not love their lives but suffered death. Therefore rejoice, you heavens, and you who dwell in them! But woe to you inhabitants of the earth and the sea, for the Devil has come down to you in great fury, because he knows that his time is short.

But when the dragon saw that he had been thrown into the earth, he persecuted the woman who had given birth to a son.

But two wings of a great eagle were given to the woman, so that she might fly from before the serpent to his place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time.

And the serpent spewed water like a river out of its mouth after the woman, in order to sweep her away with the river.

But the earth helped the woman; for the earth opened its breast and swallowed the river that the dragon had spewed out of its mouth.

Then the dragon was enraged with the woman, and went to make war with the rest who are of the woman's seed, who keep God's commandments, and who have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

And I stood on the sand [that borders] the sea.

And I saw a beast rising out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and on its horns ten diadems, and on its heads a blasphemous name.

And the beast that I saw was like a leopard, its feet were like the feet of a bear; its mouth was like the mouth of a lion; and the dragon gave it his power, his throne, and great authority.

And I saw one of its heads as though it had been mortally wounded, but its fatal wound was healed; and all the earth was filled with wonder and went after the beast.

And they worshiped the dragon who had given power to the beast, and they also worshiped the beast, saying, "Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?"

And he was given a mouth to utter great things and blasphemies; and he was also given the power to complete forty-two months.

And she opened her mouth in blasphemies against God, blaspheming his Name, and his tabernacle, and those who dwell in heaven.

And it was given to him to make war against the Saints, and to conquer them. He was also given power over every Tribe, Language, and Nation.

So that she will be worshiped by all who dwell on the earth, whose names are not written in the Book of Life of the Lamb, who was slain from the foundation of the world.

If anyone has ears, let them listen.

If anyone is to be taken captive, they will be taken captive; if anyone is to be killed with the sword, they must themselves be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

Then I saw another beast coming up out of the earth, and it had two horns like a lamb, but it spoke like a dragon.

And it exercised all the power of the first beast in its presence, and made the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose deadly wound had been healed.

And she performed great wonders, even making fire come down from heaven to earth in the sight of men.

And it deceived the inhabitants of the earth because of the signs which it was given power to perform in the sight of the beast, commanding the inhabitants of the earth to make an image to the beast which had been struck [deadly] by the sword, and yet lived.

And it was permitted to him to give a soul to the image of the beast, so that even the image of the beast should speak, and cause all who did not worship the image of the beast to be put to death.

And she caused all, small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand, or on their foreheads;

And that no one could buy or sell unless he had the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of its name.

Here is wisdom: let him who has understanding count the number of the beast; for it is the number of a man, and his number is 666.

Then I looked, and behold, the Lamb was standing on Mount Zion, and with him were 144,000, who had the name of his Father written on their foreheads.

And I heard a voice from heaven like the roar of rushing waters and like the sound of loud thunder; and I heard the voice of harpists playing their harps,

And they sang a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures, and before the elders; and no one could learn the song except the 144,000 who were bought from among those of the earth.

These are those who have not defiled themselves with women, for they are virgins; these are those who follow the Lamb wherever he goes; and these are those who were bought from among men to be firstfruits to God and to the Lamb.

And no deceit was found in their mouths; for they are blameless before the throne of God.

Then I saw another angel flying in midair, having the eternal gospel, to preach the gospel to those who dwell on the earth, and to every nation, tribe, language, and people;

Saying aloud: Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come; and bow down before him who made heaven and earth, the sea and the springs of water.

And another angel followed him, saying, "Fallen, fallen is Babylon, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the fury of her immorality."

And a third angel followed them, saying in a loud voice, "If anyone worships the beast and its image and receives its mark on his forehead or on his hand,

This one too will drink the wine of God's wrath, the pure wine poured into the cup of his anger, and he will be tormented with fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and of the Lamb.

And the smoke of their torment will rise forever and ever, and those who worship the beast and its image, and whoever takes the mark of its name, will have no rest day or night.

Here is the patience of the saints; here are those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus.

Then I heard a voice from heaven saying to me: Write: Blessed are the dead who from now on die to the Lord; Yes, indeed, says the Spirit; for they rest from their labors, and their deeds follow them.

And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud sat one like a man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle.

And another angel came out of the temple, crying out in a loud voice to him who was sitting on the cloud, "Throw down your sickle and reap, for it is your time to reap, because the harvest of the earth is ripe."

Then he who was sitting on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the earth was harvested.

And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, also having a sharp sickle.

And another angel came out from the altar, having power over the fire; and he cried out with a loud cry to him who had the sharp sickle, saying, "Throw down your sharp sickle and gather the clusters of grapes from the vine of the earth, for its grapes are ripe."

And the angel thrust his sharp sickle into the earth and gathered the grapes of the earth, and threw them into the great winepress of God's wrath.

And the vat was trodden outside the City; and blood flowed out of the vat, reaching as far as the horses' bridles for a distance of 1,600 stadia.

Then I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvelous, [namely] seven angels who had the seven last plagues; for by these the wrath of God is completed.

I also saw what appeared to be a sea of glass mingled with fire, and those who had triumphed over the beast and over its image and its mark and over the number of its name, standing on the sea that was like glass, and having harps of God, Who sang the Song of Moses, the servant of God, and the Song of the Lamb, saying: How great and marvelous are your works, O Lord God Almighty! Your ways are just and true, O King of the Holy Ones!

Lord, who will not fear you, and who will not glorify your Name? For you alone are Holy; therefore all nations will come and worship before you, for your judgments are fully revealed.

And after these things I looked, and behold, the Temple of the Tabernacle of the testimony was opened in heaven.

And the seven angels who had the seven plagues came out of the Temple, clothed in pure white linen, and with golden sashes around their chests.

And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden jars full of the wrath of the living God for ever and ever.

And the Temple was filled with smoke from the majesty and power of God; and no one could enter the Temple until the seven plagues of the seven angels were accomplished.

Then I heard a loud voice from the Temple saying to the seven Angels: Go, and pour out on the earth the vials of the wrath of God.

So the first [Angel] went away and poured out his vial on the earth, and a foul and dangerous boil broke out on the people who had the mark of the beast and on those who worshiped its image.

And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it became like the blood of a dead body, and every soul that lived in the sea died.

And the third angel poured out his vial on the rivers and on the fountains of water, and they became blood.

And I heard the Angel of the waters, who said: Lord, WHO IS, WHO WAS, AND WHO WILL BE, you are just, because you have made such a judgment.

Because they shed the blood of the Saints and the Prophets, you also gave them blood to drink; for they deserve it.

And I heard another from the Sanctuary, saying: Surely, Lord God Almighty, your judgments are true and just.

Then the fourth angel poured out his vial on the sun, and [power] was given to it to scorch men with fire.

So the men were scorched by the intense heat, and they blasphemed the Name of God who has power over these plagues; but they did not repent to give Him glory.

After this the fifth angel poured out his vial on the seat of the beast, and the reign of the beast became dark, and [men] bit their tongues because of the pain they felt.

And because of their pains and their wounds they blasphemed the God of Heaven; and did not repent of their deeds.

Then the sixth angel poured out his vial on the great river Euphrates, and the water of that [river] dried up, so that the way of the kings toward the rising sun might be opened.

And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet;

For they are demonic spirits, performing wonders, and who go to the Kings of the earth and of the universal world, to assemble them for the battle of that great day of the Almighty God.

Behold, I come like the thief; blessed is he who stays awake and keeps his clothes on, so as not to go naked and be shamefully exposed.

And he assembled them at the place which is called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Then the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and a thundering voice came from the throne of the Temple in Heaven, saying, "It is done."

Then there were flashes of lightning, and rumblings, and peals of thunder, and there was a great earthquake, such an earthquake, [I say], and so great, that there was never any like it since men have been on the earth.
And the great City was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell; and great Babylon came to be remembered before God, to give him the cup of the wine of the indignation of his wrath.
And every island fled away, and the mountains were no longer found.
And there came down from heaven upon men a prodigious hail, the weight of a talent; and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague that it caused was very great.
Then one of the seven angels who had the seven vials came and spoke to me, saying, "Come, I will show you the condemnation of the great prostitute who sits on many waters;
With whom the kings of the earth committed fornication, and who intoxicated the inhabitants of the earth with the wine of her prostitution.
Then he carried me away in the spirit into a wilderness; and I saw a woman riding on a scarlet beast, full of blasphemous names, and which had seven heads and ten horns.

And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold, precious stones, and pearls; and she held in her hand a golden cup, full of the abominations of the impurity of her prostitution.
And there was a name written on her forehead, a mystery, Babylon the Great, the mother of fornications and abominations of the earth.
And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the Saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus; and when I saw her I was seized with great astonishment.
And the angel said to me, "Why are you astonished? I will tell you the mystery of the woman and of the beast that carries her, which has seven heads and ten horns."
The beast that you saw was, and is not, but must come up out of the abyss and be destroyed; and the inhabitants of the earth, whose names have not been written in the Book of Life from the foundation of the world, will marvel when they see the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.
This is where intelligence resides for anyone who has wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman sits.
These are also seven kings, five of whom have fallen; one is, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain for a little while.
And the beast that was, and is not, is also an eighth [King], it comes from the seven, but it tends toward its destruction.
And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings who have not yet begun to reign, but they will take power as kings, at the same time with the beast.
They have one purpose, and they will give their power and authority to the beast. These will fight against the Lamb, but the Lamb will overcome them, because he is Lord of Lords and King of Kings, and those who are with him are the called, the chosen, and the faithful.
Then he said to me, "The waters that you saw, and on which the prostitute sits, are peoples, nations, and languages."
But the ten horns that you saw on the beast are those that will hate the prostitute, and will devastate her, and strip her, and eat her flesh, and burn her with fire. For God has put it into their hearts to do what pleases him, and to form one plan, and to give their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God are fulfilled.
And the woman you saw is the great City, which reigns over the kings of the earth. After these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great power, and the earth was illuminated by his glory.
He cried out loudly and loudly, and said: Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, and she has become the dwelling place of demons, and the retreat of every unclean spirit, and the haunt of every unclean and detestable bird.

For all nations have drunk the wine of her unrestrained prostitution; and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her; and the merchants of the earth have grown rich from the excess of her luxury.

Then I heard another voice from heaven saying, "Come out of Babylon, my people, so that you do not share in her sins, and so that you do not receive any of her plagues."

For his sins have ascended to heaven, and God has remembered his iniquities.

Pay her back as she has done to you, and pay her double according to her works; and in the same cup in which she has poured you [to drink], pour her double.

As much as she has glorified herself and been in delight, give her as much torment and affliction; for she says in her heart: I sit as Queen, I am not a widow, and I will see no mourning.

Therefore her plagues, which are death, mourning, and famine, will come in one day, and she will be completely burned up with fire; for the Lord God who will judge her is powerful.

And the kings of the earth, who committed fornication with her, and who lived in luxury, will weep for her, and mourn over her, beating their breasts, when they see the smoke of her burning;

And they will stand far away for fear of her torment, and will say: Alas! Alas! Babylon, the great City, this powerful City, how has your condemnation come in such a moment?

The merchants of the earth will also weep and mourn over her, because no one buys their merchandise anymore;

Which are goods of gold, silver, precious stones, pearls, fine linen, purple, silk, scarlet, all kinds of fragrant wood, all kinds of ivory furniture, and all kinds of vessels of very precious wood, bronze, iron, and marble;

Cinnamon, perfumes, essences, incense, wine, oil, fine flour, wheat, pack animals, sheep, horses, chariots, slaves, and the souls of men.

For the fruits of your soul's desire have departed from you; and all the delicate and excellent things have perished for you; and henceforth you will find these things no more.

The merchants, [I say], of these things, who have become rich by them, will stand far from her, for fear of her torment, weeping and mourning;

And saying: Alas! Alas! The great City, which was clothed in fine linen, purple, and scarlet, which was adorned with gold, with precious stones, and with pearls, how in an instant have so many riches been dissipated?

Every pilot, every crew of those who go aboard ships, all the sailors, and all those who trade on the sea, shall keep away;

And seeing the smoke of its burning, they will cry out, saying: what [city] was like this great City!

They will throw dust on their heads, weeping and mourning, crying out, saying: Alas! Alas! The great City, in which all who had ships on the sea became rich through its opulence; how has it been desolate in a moment?

O heaven! Rejoice over her; and you also, holy Apostles and Prophets [rejoice]: for God has punished her because of you.

Then an angel of great power took up a stone, [which was] like a great millstone, and threw it into the sea, saying, "Thus shall Babylon, this great city, be thrown down with force; and shall not be found again."

And the voice of harpists, musicians, oboists, and trumpeters will no longer be heard in you; and no craftsman of any trade will be found in you; and the sound of the millstone will no longer be heard in you.

And the light of the candle will no longer shine in you; and the voice of the bridegroom and the bride will no longer be heard in you; because your merchants were princes on earth; and because by your poisons all nations were deceived.

And in it was found the blood of the Prophets, and of the Saints, and of all those who were put to death on the earth.
After these things I heard the voice of a great multitude in Heaven saying: Alleluia! Salvation and glory and honor and power belong to the Lord our God.
For his judgments are true and just, because he has executed the great prostitute, who corrupted the earth with her immorality; and he has avenged the blood of his servants [shed] at the hand of the prostitute.
And they said again: Alleluia! and its smoke rises forever and ever.
And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell on their faces and worshiped God, who was seated on the throne, saying: Amen! Alleluia!
And a voice came from the throne, saying: Praise our God, all you his servants, and you who fear him, both small and great.
Then I heard what sounded like the voice of a great assembly, and like the roar of many waters, and like the peal of loud thunder, saying: Alleluia! For the Lord our God Almighty has taken possession of his kingdom.
